TODAY'S CAMPUS

Some Pooch!

Jo Nelson, Charlevoix freshman, thinks the man shortage is giving way to a dog shortage. Yesterday a pretty coed brought her pet fox terrier into the library reading room to keep her company. Everything was under control until another campus queen cast a sly wink at him. The owner had to pull him back by his tail to keep him from going astray.

MSC Audience Lauds Music

Tremendous applause, and one of it in the wrong places, greeted Eugene Ormandy for his skillful conducting of the Philadelphia orchestra in College auditorium last night. Under the deft, fluent hands of Ormandy the orchestra demonstrated why Rachmaninoff called it the finest orchestra in the world.

Handel's Overture in D minor was admirably orchestrated and brilliantly executed; in setting a full group of solo instruments against a larger one of accompanying strings, the Handelian was maintained.

It has been said that the Seventh Symphony of Beethoven's "Fate" analysis, suffice to say that it nearly surpasses any other of Beethoven's except the Ninth symphony. The magnificent harmonies, the combination of flutes and strings, seem to allow no room for but "perfection." "Clouds" and "Festivals" two dances for orchestra by Debussy were in direct contrast to the "Clouds" was a soft, abstract piece; "Festivals" was a vibrating work. In the latter seems to imagine a festive scene with dancing, and then flashes of light in the background.

The inspired and brilliant playing of the orchestra, the skillful Conductor Ormandy, and the sound made every combination sound more beautiful than ever has before. —B. W.

Coal Shortage Curtails Work At Ford Plant

DETROIT, May 7 (AP) — The Ford Motor company announced late today that "virtually all operations of the Ford company will be suspended indefinitely beginning Wednesday night due to the coal strike, a shortage of parts, and railroad transportation."

"The railroad tieup which becomes effective at midnight Thursday and which in turn is caused by the coal strike dispelled our final hopes of continuing production at this time," declared M. L. Bricker, vice-president in charge of manufacturing.

"In addition, the Chicago brownout, which limits all production in that area to 24 hours a week, is affecting 40 or more of our suppliers," the Ford statement said.

The shutdown will affect an estimated 106,000 Ford workers. "Instead of improving, parts shortages due to strikes in the plants of suppliers have grown worse and 42 of our important supplies now are out on strike," Bricker said.

Germans Fail To Stop Spartan Cartoonist

"Where there's a will, there's a way" could well be the slogan of Bob Storms, Niles sophomore at Michigan State.

While a German prisoner of war during 1944 and 1945, Storms refused to give up a hobby he had been practicing for a long time — cartooning. Even though he was under strict Nazi guard at a notorious "Stalag" prison camp, he managed to find a way to realize his will to continue drawing cartoons and caricatures.

French Help Storms

Finding that way, according to Storms, was not easy, but finally he was able to rely on the French underground to smuggle in paints and drawing pencils. If this was not dangerous enough in the light of the very unsympathetic attitude of his captors to his artistic inclinations, he persuaded a German ration corporal to sneak in paper used to wrap bodies of dead prisoners. This he used for art paper.

Although subsisting on an average day's ration of water and a little stale bread, Storms used the French-smuggled paints and

Victory, But No Peace

Today marks the first anniversary of V-E day, Germany's unconditional surrender in World War II. On this date one year ago, Col. Gen. Gustav Jodl, chief of staff of the defeated German armies, capitulated for the Nazi high command at Gen. Dwight Eisenhower's headquarters in a little red schoolhouse at Reims, France.

At that time our hopes were high for building a world of peace. Japan was falling fast; her inevitable downfall was merely a matter of months. Prospects were bright.

Unfortunately, our hopes were premature. The allied powers, united in waging war, are at odds in making peace. V-J day followed V-E day, but V-P day (P for peace) is far from being realized.

We have yet to hold a comprehensive peace conference. The impotent United Nations phlegmatically reviews the Spanish question. Conceding failure in its attempts to write an Italian peace treaty, the Foreign Ministers' conference, now convening in Paris, flounders in indecision.

Lessons that going through a second world war should have taught us remain unlearned. By parceling out Germany, the world's powers continue in their "to the victors belong the spoils" policy.

In pursuing power politics, we scornfully mock the memory of our war dead who seem to have fought just one more imperialistic war.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

To the Editor:

You are entirely correct, R. L., in your letter of May 3. Congress has evidently disregarded not only the veteran, but all the average Joes of the country in their treatment of the Wyatt housing bill and their present plans to kill OPA.

A strong veterans organization of World War II is necessary to further the aims and desires of GI Joe, and make possible his dreams of a home, car, juicy steaks; everything he planned while standing the 12 to 4 watch in some God-forsaken spot!

There is an organization which has demonstrated that it will fight for the veteran. Recently the Detroit papers have carried front page stories of irregularities within the War Assets administration and how veterans with priority certificates have been bypassed in favor of certain companies and non-veterans. This whole stinking mess has been brought to light through the efforts of the American Veterans of World War II, AMVETS. They are now taking this fight to federal court, try-

THREE underground shelters have been converted by the Ministry of Education to provide extra living space for students. In the middle of this 'dormitory' two bicycle have been installed and when the electricity fails two students mount the bicycles which have been geared to the aeration system and pedal vigorously to keep their comrades from suffocating to death.

The above quotation is from a news release of the World Student Service Fund showing life in the Latin quarter of Paris today.

It isn't exaggerated, nor is it an exception. The files of material from the national office of this organization include similar material from students in Hungary, Finland, India, and China, proof of what students in other countries are enduring.

Last year the WSSF held a drive on the campus which was the outstanding example of co-operation from Michigan State college students. It was devised to assist prisoners of war. The drive was aimed at obtaining clothing, books, and money to aid students throughout the world two years ago.

Now the drive is emphasizing the monetary angle, for the simple reason that the other things are of no use if the students have no food, and this money will be sent abroad to help students in their fight against the devastating food shortages which are covering the world.

Four years ago when the first WSSF drive started at MSC, many persons expressed doubt as to the worth of such a cause. They felt that the idea had definite possibilities, but were dubious as to its background and whether it would be successful and actually go toward helping young men and women in foreign countries who were in need of necessary materials to continue their higher educations.

Any touch of doubt has vanished with the return of some of those prisoners of war we helped last year; with the transfer of refugee students who talk of the Student Relief funds helping them to "somehow carry on," and with the growth of the French Student Relief; Finnish World Student Relief, and the Shanghai Student Relief, as branch organizations of the in-

America Learns to Make Its Own Camphor

FOR YEARS, the Japanese maintained a tight hold on the world's camphor supply.

Americans had to have camphor in ever-increasing quantity for the manufacture of photographic film, celluloid, plastics, perfumes, medicines, lacquers and disinfectants. But they were forced to pay whatever price the Japanese chose to ask. And even at 1919's exorbitant top figure of $3.75 a pound, they were never sure of a full supply.

Men of Du Pont undertook to make this country independent of such an unsatisfactory source. They knew that camphor could be synthesized, but to make it at low cost and in large quantities was an entirely different matter. Long years of experiment and research produced little but disappointment. But finally, in 1932, a way was found to produce low-cost chemical camphor on a commercial scale that matched nature's product in color, texture, scent and usefulness.

C₁₀H₁₆O from Turpentine

Basic material from which Du Pont camphor is made is pinene, obtained from turpentine from southern pine trees. The formula of pinene (C₁₀H₁₆) seems to differ but little from that of camphor (C₁₀H₁₆O), but the structural difference is considerably greater than is indicated by the single atom of oxygen. Although the chemical conversion of pinene to camphor is not difficult to accomplish in the laboratory, to do so economically on a commercial scale taxed the ingenuity of many Du Pont chemists, engineers and designers.

World War II completely shut off the supply of natural camphor. But within a few months Du Pont production men were able to step up the output of the man-made product to take care of military, medical and civilian needs. Today this supply is going into the manufacture of hundreds of products that will bring more comfort, more satisfaction, more joy into the lives of millions.

All the men at Du Pont—chemists, mechanical engineers, civil engineers, and hundreds of others who worked on this development—feel great pride that they were able to free their country from foreign sources for such a vital material in our industrial life.

SYNTHESIS OPENS NEW ERA IN PERFUME MANUFACTURE

Some of the most interesting discoveries at Du Pont have come from "fundamental" research groups assigned to establish new scientific facts without regard to immediate commercial use.

Synthetic musk is an example. Musk is the most important single ingredient used in perfumery, a fixative blending many subtle odors into one fragrance and making it lasting. Until recently its only source was the musk deer of Tibet, an animal nearing extinction.

Then Du Pont organic chemists, in their long-time study of giant molecules, noted that a group of ring compounds called macroketones resembled musk in odor. Following up their observations with intensive research, they produced compounds of even more pronounced likeness.

Now, in "Astrotone," perfumers are offered a synthetic musk that is of a determined strength, immediately usable and as powerful as the pure essence of natural musk.

"WILL AN ADVANCED DEGREE HELP ME AT DU PONT?"

There are many Ph.D.'s at Du Pont. However, the majority of our chemists, chemical and mechanical engineers, physicists and biologists are Bachelors or Masters. Every effort is made to see that full recognition is made of a man's scientific training, as well as his special experiences and aptitudes. For certain openings, a higher degree is a distinct asset.

for representative of their preferred school the following year. Sophomores who have not designated a preference will be denied a vote, with the exception of sophomores who have earned less than 60 credits, who may vote with the freshmen for next year's basic college representative.

Freshmen shall vote for candidates who will become sophomore basic college representatives next year.

Elections by Schools

Next year's Student council will be composed of two representatives each from the School of Home Economics, School of Engineering, School of Agriculture, School of Business and Public Service, and School of Veterinary Medicine. School of Science and Arts will be represented by four members and basic college will have four sophomores on the board as well as freshmen who will be chosen next fall.

Membership on the council is divided among the different schools, in proportion to the student enrollment in each school and consists of not less than 20 and not more than 25 members. Representation from the individual schools is divided equally between the junior and senior classes.

THAT DOES IT

ternational WSSF. Sponsored on campus by such organizations as AWS, YWCA, PanHel, and IFC, the drive opens today and continues through Friday on the lower deck of the Union building.

The $5,000 goal is hardly impossible with the enrollment figures of the college today, but this drive will prove another thing to the student body and its teachers and administrators. It will prove that the spirit of college, which seemed to do a dying swan during the war years, hasn't gone completely.

In their dignified and unslangy way, the Chinese have a sentence for it . . . "The scholar is the brain-trust of the government, the arbiter in local affairs, and is expected to be a living example of the 'superior man,' the ideal of perfection since the days of Confucius . . ." Perhaps it hasn't been since Confucius for all of us, but no one can be a superior man with an empty stomach. Give your dollar to the WSSF today.

Today seems to be the day of good word, and while we're mentioning things to do comes the subject of Student council elections. The primary balloting on that long, long list of names that came out of the petitioning is only the beginning. There will be another step next week in this reactivated feeling for representative student government with the final elections.

The council's new constitution and its methods for obtaining members will be getting a try-out, too, with this voting. Maybe by next fall a few kinks will be discovered which will need working over, but at least the revision has been a move in the right direction. New blood will be coming in with fresh ideas, new angles and different methods for getting organization of the student body.

Yep, this is another chance for the more than 8,000 Spartans to show up with a little spirit.

When you stop to give your donation to the WSSF today on the lower deck of the Union, turn around and cast your ballot for good student government.

Let's contribute 100 per cent to the WSSF drive. Turn in your donation today in the lower deck of the Union.

This organization was the only one to press the fight in Congress for the Wyatt housing bill in its original form, even after the "old line" organizations quit. At present they are fighting for continuation of OPA as the only means of preventing inflation.

It is the only organization of World War II veterans that has a member on the board of trustees for the $51,000,000 Michigan veterans trust fund, thus showing the recognition given the organization by the state of Michigan.

Come around to the Lansing post of AMVETS, R. L. We meet in room 204, Lansing Tech high school, every Tuesday night at 8. We are interested in having veterans who feel the way you do become active in the organization. There are many problems of veterans which can be improved upon, if we have the men to carry the ball.

All his humorous drawings, and a few caricatures of his captors had to be kept hidden to prevent confiscation and punishment by his captors who were always ready to eliminate prisoners on the slightest pretext.

Soon after his rescue by victorious Yanks and return to this country, Storms re-entered Michigan State, where he is now majoring in art with particular emphasis on cartooning.

Spartan Netmen to Meet Illinois, Purdue Next

By Bill Adams

Mid-way in its 1946 schedule, the Spartan tennis team's record stands at three wins and four losses. Coach Charles D. Ball's men hold decisions over Kentucky, Western Michigan college, Indiana university, and have been defeated by Northwestern, Michigan, Ohio State, and a strong University of Cincinnati team.

Six out of the eight men on the Michigan State squad this year are returned veterans. At the present time, it is a virtual toss-up between netmen Roger Cessna, Dave Phillips, and Bob Malaga for the number one spot.

Led High School Team

Cessna, a junior from Lansing, returned from the army air corps and the ETO last fall term. While attending Lansing Central high school, he played as number one man on the prep squad. Cessna won a varsity tennis letter at State in 1942.

Dave Phillips, Jackson sophomore, was runner-up in the Michigan state high school tennis tournaments in 1941, won his freshman numerals in 1942, and returned from the naval air force this term after Pacific duty.

Bob Malaga, Cleveland freshman, won 1945 Ohio state interscholastic high school tennis championship and did considerable place kicking on the Spartan football team last fall.

Hoover in Fourth Place

Herb Hoover, East Lansing senior who returned to school winter term, is in number four spot. Hoover won his freshman numerals in tennis at State in 1941 and a varsity letter in 1942 before entering the army.

While at East Lansing high school, he teamed with Bob Cardinell, also an ex-Spartan, to take the class B Michigan high school doubles championship. Carl Evans, number five man, is a junior transfer student from Grand Rapids junior college and saw service in the army air corps before entering MSC winter term.

Three Netmen Return

Mike Vachman, Detroit sophomore, was number one man on Detroit Southwestern high school team before he entered Michigan State and won his freshman numerals in 1942. Vachman returned to school from the army his term.

John McGrath, Pontiac sophomore, and Tom Martin round out the squad. Martin left school for the infantry in 1943 after earning his numerals and also returned this term.

The Spartans start a tough weekend Friday when they meet a powerful Illinois team at Champaign. Roger Downs, Big Ten singles champ of 1942 is back at Champaign and playing in the number two spot for the Illini. Following the Illinois match, the Spartans meet Purdue at Lafayette, Ind., on Saturday.

WEST Mary Mayo took first place in the second intramural nine hole tournament at Glenmoor golf course. Mary Baumgarten drove in a score of 47 and Joyce Searcy shot 48 to place the lowest score of the contest to date.

Kappa Kappa Gamma and Sigma Kappa tied for the second place position with 99 points each. Entries for Kappa were Mary Kye with 48 and Bunny Geneback with 51. Lou Coolman and Martha Prown shot 50 and 49 respectively for Sigma Kappa.

Alpha Phi was named in fourth place as Jane Hite tallied 54 and Mary Clark carded a 53.

Honorable mention goes to Beverly Bradshaw with 54, and to June McNutt, Barb Tuttle and Mary Meloy, each with a score of 55. Doris Dedrick came out with 56 and Kitty Weiss stroked 58.

Totalling the two matches played so far, Kappa Kappa Gamma stands in first place, West Mayo and Sigma Kappa are in the number two slot and Delta Zeta holds fourth place. Kappa Delta and Chi Omega are stalemated in fifth place position. Alpha Phi is seventh and South Campbell eighth.

The final tournament is scheduled for next Monday afternoon. See WOMEN'S SPORTS, Page 7

Delta Sig Team Still Unbeaten In IFC League

Delta Sigma Phi scored four runs in the last of the fourth inning to come from behind and beat Phi Kappa Tau 5-2 last night, and thereby remain undefeated in the interfraternity softball league.

Pitcher John Clark helped his own cause by doubling down the right field line to score the first two runs in the big fourth, and break up a 2-2 tie at that point.

Kappa Sigma, aided by loose fielding by Delta Chi and some aggressive play by its own squad which saw catcher Dick Best steal home twice, had an easy time romping over Delta Chi 15-3. The winners needed only 10 hits to score their 15 runs, while Delta Chi committed nine errors in the field. Bert Parsons went the distance, without any trouble, for Kappa Sigma.

"Chick" Ruhl bested Ed Cookson of Psi Upsilon to win his second victory as Lambda Chi Alpha defeated the Psi U's 4-2 in a hard fought ball game. Bob Wells of Psi Upsilon connected for a home run in a losing cause.

On diamond four, in the other game of the evening, Gale Mikles switched from varsity wrestling long enough to pitch a two-hit game against Alpha Epsilon Phi, as Alpha Gamma Rho won in easy fashion, 10-5.

Hermie Says

By TOM RIORDAN

AS predicted during the war, a sports boom is sweeping the nation and by next year at this time there will probably have been reached an all-time high in athletic activity. This popularity and participation is becoming clearly shown at American colleges.

Michigan State coaches are finding that the men on campus want more than ever before to compete in intercollegiate athletic activities. In baseball this caused Coach John Kobs to form a junior varsity team which plays its own schedule.

The Jayvees gives an additional 30 men an opportunity to play on a college team against other schools and at the same time to build up players for future Spartan varsity clubs. It's a healthy program, benefiting all connected with it.

Due to the success of the baseball juniors and the fact that many more football players than will be able to compete with the varsity next fall are expected out, the athletic department is laying tentative plans for a Jayvee grid squad.

Football candidates, not talented or big enough to play varsity ball, will have an opportunity to see action on an intercollegiate level.

This program, we believe, should also be followed in basketball, because of the popularity of the sport and the small number of men who can be kept on the varsity squad. The cage game comes to the fore in popularity with American youth and definite plans should be made for a Jayvee setup in basketball.

Eastern schools have for many years sponsored junior varsity teams with restrictions as to weight and height. Many high school athletes find themselves too small to compete, and although they like competitive sports, they are unable to because of their small stature. The Jayvee teams fill the gap between prep and college varsity athletics.

It is presumed that beginning next winter when the six month residence and freshman eligibility rules go back in effect, freshman teams will be reorganized. This should mean the death of junior varsity teams.

There will still be men on campus, not good enough for varsity and not freshmen, who want to compete with an organized college team. The Jayvee setup should remain for them.
