Two First Places Awarded to State

Michigan State College's department of Information Services walked off with two first prizes for public relations at the annual meeting of the American College Public Relations Association in Cleveland.

The awards bring to ten the total number of top public relations citations received by the department in the past six years. The first number ever received by a college or university in the history of the Judgments, Well-Treasured, Director of Information Services at MSC, accepted the citations at the Cleveland meeting.

The first concerned a one-year program for publicizing the department and its function headquarters for a greatly expanded program of adult education. The project was headed by Alvin L. Smith, editor of the News Bureau, and James McArthur, information assistant.

The other was made for a new series of "career" booklets designed to inform high school students of the educational offerings of the college. This work was headed by John C. Leonard, all-year bulletin editor.

A favorite game with the "tail set" is being revived among the "ponytail" set. In short, jacks are coming back. The youth in South Campus must be out of practice, though, for they were still on their toes when they went to bed at 2 a.m. one night last week.

Beg Pardon?

A journalism instructor had a bad scare the other day when a foreign student came up after a business letter writing lecture and said, "I did not understand one word you said." The instructor pictured himself translating all his lectures into the native tongue of the student, until he realized the student simply meant he did not understand just one of the words used. Merely a matter of inflection.

International Show Slated to Run Friday

Student representatives of 10 different nations will don their Sunday best Friday when the International club presents its 1952 International festival.

Display booths will be erected in Jenison fieldhouse for the all-day affair.

The festival will give Central Michigan residents an opportunity to see men and women from Asia, Africa, Europe, North and South America as they live and dress in 1952.

Dr. John N. Winburne, foreign student advisor at the college, said the show is to be an all-out attempt to show Americans the similarity between themselves and peoples of other lands.

Leaving a hall to members of the MSC International Club will be foreign students from other colleges and universities of the day. The students will turn the festival from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. Stage shows are slated at 10 a.m., 2:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Coming to take a curious peek at the natives of other lands will be high school students from schools within a 125 mile radius of Lansing. High school students have been sent special invitations, Dr. Winburne said.

In previous years, the International festival has grown in popularity with Lansing people. The 1951 edition of the show attracted more than 4,000 Lansing and East Lansing people for the evening show.

Among visiting foreign students at MSC are the University of Michigan, Western Michigan College of Education and Michigan State Normal College. They will participate in the festival with foreign students from MSC.

Included among the nations represented are Australia, Iran, Canada, Colombia, Finland, Germany, West Africa, Israel, Japan, Spain, Turkey, Sweden and Venezuela.

In addition to the regular exhibits of nationalities, a special display of Nigerian handicrafts has been secured from Prof. William B. Brown, Northwestern University anthropologist.

Prisoners Munity at Jackson

Convicts Hold Guards Hostage

JACKSON (AP) Two hundred tough convicts grabbed four guards as hostages at Southern Michigan Prison last night in a mutiny.

Five hours later they still were barricaded in a cell block. All the convicts are in the segregated cell block for infraction of prison disciplinary rules.

They demanded to see Assistant Deputy Warden George Bacon, chairman of the disciplinary board of the prison, and a newspaperman.

Bacon and Reporter Ed F. Smith of the Jackson Citizen-Patriot, who was called, and the men told them they wanted to protect "mutuality."

Smith said the prisoners told him they "wouldn't say" what it would take to end the mutiny.

Reporter Smith identified the leaders as Jack Hyatt, 29, and Earl E. Ward, 38, both of Detroit.

Hyatt was the leader in an escape attempt at Marquette State Prison July 8, 1950, when he drew a knife and attempted to use Gov. G. Mennen Williams, on an inspection trip, as a shield.

The mutiny broke out at 7:20 p.m. The prisoners still were barricaded at 11:30 p.m.

State police began mobilizing 100 officers at the Jackson post. All off-duty prison guards were called out. The cell block was surrounded but no immediate attempt was made to force an entrance.

"Ward's words," Smith said, "were it a mess."

Smith accompanied Bacon to the entrance of the cell block. "They wanted to complain," he said, "of what they said was brutality in No. 6 cell block. That's where mental patients are kept. And they also wanted to complain about treatment in the disciplinary cell block where they are held up."

Vet Wins Comp Prize

From Blues to Smiles In Three Surprises

By JO WOZNIAK

Three times surprised and "deeply honored," Harold Bradsher, Flint sophomore, received the History of Civilization Departmental prize Friday for the top third term examination grade.

The $25 prize was awarded by Dr. Harry H. Kimber, head of the department, and Stetson H. Nulle, associate professor. Bradsher also received an autographed copy of "The Age of Global Strife," by John B. Harrison, associate professor.

"The first surprise," Bradsher said, "was when I got my marks and found I had received a C. The second, when they discovered a mistake on the test, and the third was the prize itself."

Bradsher, a divisional social science major, is a 24-year-old married veteran. He shows an energetic interest in history and plans to teach a course in secondary schools some day.

When asked how he studied the subject the winner replied, "My wife thinks I study too long and too hard, but I like to spend a lot of time going over the reading."

He read the notes the instructors had written on the flyleaf and smiled shyly. He was not sure what he would do with the $25, however.

Seven-Day Exam Schedule to Stay

A seven-day final examination schedule has been set for spring term, according to Robert R. Reppenbagen, assistant recorder. The exam period will run from June 11 through 13.

The schedule for winter term was also seven days. The six-day period used fall term was found unsatisfactory. A six-day schedule will probably be re-introduced next fall to accommodate expected changes in curriculum, Reppenbagen said.

Full Time Instructors To Get Voting Rights

Michigan State's Teachers Union announced a plan for a Faculty Senate composed of professors, assistant professors, and instructors late Friday.

The plan includes extension of voting privileges to all full time resident members of the instructions staff and would set up policy committees similar to the Senate in each department, school, and division of the college.

WKAR to Air Spartan Games

Baseball and current affairs spotlight this week's program.

Big Ten baseball makes its 1952 debut over WKAR and WKAR-FM tomorrow when Bob Shackleton and Larry Fennell broadcast the State-Wayne game at 3 p.m. The college station will air Friday's OSU-State tilt at 3:30 p.m.

Saturday's doubleheader with the University of Illinois will also be carried starting at 1 p.m.

Discussion of the week's news developments will be heard Friday afternoon at 7:30 on Current Affairs Forum, a half-hour program conducted by members of the History and Political Science Department.

Petitions for MSC Spring Elections Ready Tomorrow

Students may pick up petitions for next year's center, junior, and sophomore class officers and Student Congress seats at the Union Desk tomorrow, according to Ted Eek, election official.

Deadline for obtaining petitions for spring elections is April 29. The All-College primary will be held May 6 and final vote will be taken May 13, he added.

Requirements for office-seekers are a 2.0 all-college average and a 2.0 average maintained winter term.

Separation of powers, similar to the U.S. Government, is the basis of the plan, which will be submitted to the All-College Educational Research Committee this month for study.

Other faculty and staff groups are also working on plans for a revamped instructional staff organization. All proposals will be submitted to the Research Committee for study. The Committee will make its recommendations to faculty and administrators for a new organization by June.

Under the Union plan, faculty would act as legislative, administration as executive, and the Board of Agriculture as judicial branches. Final authority in every case would rest with the Board, Prof. Weisner pointed out.

New powers come under faculty jurisdiction in the Union proposals. Policy formation privilege, extended to all staff and faculty staff, actually would be vested in the Senate.

Senators would elect an Executive Committee, members of which would head committees assigned certain types of policy cases.

Included under policy set by the Senate would be academic freedom and tenure, athletics, academic standards of students and faculty, finance, personnel relations, appointment of administrative officials, and cultural, extracurricular and intellectual activities.

The chairman of the Senate would be chosen from among its elected members. Administrators, including President Hannah and college deans, would be ex-officio members.

Departmental, divisional, and school senates would be elected by all instructional staff members to work out problems affecting their particular group. Lower policy groups would be similar to the Senate, but would be called policy committees.

With the departmental and larger committees set up, a close chain of communications would follow, Prof. Weisner said.

Problems concerning one group could be settled finally within that body, leaving particularly difficult questions to rise to final decision by the Senate.

Proposals coming from administrative officials could be discussed in the Senate since, since final policy-making power would lodge there, or they could be discussed by all lower bodies effected by the questions involved, he explained.

The Union proposals are the first to be announced.

Forgotten Alum Sells College To Young Korean Interpreter

Booster for M.S.C. can always be found—even as far away as Korea.

In spite of his complaint that he had received no alumni news letters or correspondence since he graduated from M.S.C. in June of 1953, Frederick Micha has been selling M.S.C. to a young Korean interpreter who wants to go to college in the United States.

Registrar Robert S. Linsley got a letter from Micha last Wednesday, asking for information about curriculum and entrance requirements for his friend. He also requested the latest catalog and application blanks.

The Korean, who name is Kim Sang Ok, wants to study animal husbandry. Micha assured him warmly, assuring that "the above average intelligence was a typical Korean sense of humor."

Linsley plans to send the information requested—and see that Micha himself is no longer neglected.
