MSU, U of M Credit Refused

State Universities Reach Loan Limits

Governing Bodies May Ask Resumption of Payments

By BILL CALLAHAN
State News Editor-in-Chief

Philip May, vice-president for business-finance, and treasurer, revealed Tuesday that he had received a letter from the National Bank of Detroit refusing further credit to MSU.

Vice President W. K. Pierpont of U of M received a similar letter concerning further extension of credit to that university. One section of the letter said: "... it is the opinion of bond counsel that the governing bodies of these two universities can only pledge those student fees collectible within a given school year to cover that year's operating expenses."

"It would therefore appear that MSU has reached its maximum borrowing capacity from banks for the present school year."

May said that it now appears that the university will be unable to borrow additional funds and will have to ask state officials to rescind the "freeze" on payments to the university.

The "freeze" withholding payments to state universities, was based on the assumption that the universities could borrow money against student fees and state appropriations to cover operational expenses. Some state agencies do not have this power and therefore were given priority in payments.

May said that they would not accept Gov. Williams' plan to transfer bonds from the Veterans Trust Fund to the universities for collateral until the proposal would be approved by the Legislature and supported by a favorable decision in a test case in the state Supreme Court.

At Monday night's meeting of Spartan Roundtable, President John A. Hannah said the state now is $6.3 million in arrears in its payments to MSU. The university has already borrowed $14 million to cover current expenses.

May said Tuesday that MSU will be able to meet payroll through the first three weeks in February, but will need additional funds to meet the payroll at the end of the month.

MSU, unlike U of M, has not withheld payments to creditors, according to May. Pierpont said that by March 3 U of M will have deferred more than $1 million in its payments to creditors.

Gov. Williams was in Detroit Tuesday and was not available for comment on the new development.

Governor's Budget Calls for Tax Hike

$424 Million Program Submitted to Legislature

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gov. Williams Tuesday proposed a record high 424 million dollar general purpose spending program calling for 140 million dollars in new taxes.

MSU Gets Proposed '60 Budget

Williams Grants $28.4 Million

Gov. G. Mennen Williams Tuesday made public his budget recommendations for 1959-60, which will include $28.4 million in operating funds for Michigan State University.

Gov. Williams' recommended budget for higher education is $106,106,000, which does not include an additional $46,700,000 from the general fund for primary and secondary schools.

The recommended budget for MSU includes $2.3 million for agricultural extension, $2.7 million for agricultural experiments, $323,000 for the traffic safety center and $207,000 for the labor and industrial relations center.

The MSU budget would be an increase of $3.1 million over current $25.3 million budgeted, but about $3 million less than the university officials wanted in their budget estimates.

The University of Michigan's proposed budget will be $342 million more than which is $5 million, which is $42 million less than U of M officials had requested.

Frank M. Landers, director of the budget division said that the university probably would get a lump sum again next year and could transfer from one individual budget to another as the situation warranted.

The MSU budget also included an outlay of $500,000 for the first year operation of the Oakland branch. Officials said a deficiency appropriation of $84,000 would be sought for this year's operation of Oakland.

Blue Key Bids Due

The final deadline for all Blue Key petitions is 3 p.m. today.

Petitions are available in the Union concourse and must be returned there. New petitions are required of all interested junior and senior men. The new members will be tapped at the J-Hop on Feb. 7.

Increases Comprehension

Language Lab Aids Learning

By BOB MITTENDORF
Sometimes the breaks come slowly for students, but not for the ambitious.

This is especially true of students wishing to expand or improve their ability in foreign languages.

An extensive program was recently launched on campus to introduce a new dimension in language learning through the language laboratory.

The function of the laboratory is to provide audio-oral training in foreign languages. In doing so it serves a dual purpose. All beginning courses in French, German and Spanish meet as a class once a week. Pre-recorded tapes are fed through a central console by the instructor to the 30 student booths. These booths are equipped with custom-built, dual-channel tape recorders.

The governor's 1959-60 budget, submitted to the legislature, comes to about 45 million dollars more than what he estimated the state will spend this year when its school and welfare obligations are met.

Williams also recommended: 1—Raising revenues totaling nearly 400 million dollars, including the new taxes, with about 20 millions earmarked for a start on reducing the state's soaring debt.

2—A long range, 148 million dollar building program and formation of a state building authority to run it under a bond issue financing system.

The governor's message to the legislature offered no specific tax proposals. He will divulge these in a state-wide telecast Friday night, and will outline them in detail to the legislature next week.

Williams estimated the state's general fund debt would rise to $110,600,000 by the end of the fiscal year, June 30.

An "explosive" population rise and the economic recession which raised welfare costs all cut deeply into state income, he said.

Reaction to the Governor's spending blueprint in the Republican-controlled legislature was mixed.

Sen. Carlton Morris (R-Kalamazoo) decried the Democratic governor as "quite a gambler."

"First he goes for broke," he said. "Now he's going for bankruptcy."

Rep. Arnold Engstrom (R-Traverse City) called the budget "rather tight."

"About the only place he lets out is in education," he said. Rep. Allison Green (R-Kingston), GOP floor leader in the House, agreed that "most of the things he has asked for are worth."

Newsman Favor Use of Vet Fund

A survey of several Michigan newspapers discloses that most of them have expressed editorial sentiment in favor of temporary use of the $50 million veterans' trust fund to help pull the state out of its financial difficulty.

Several of them editorially approved its use on a qualified basis but most of them warned that the fund must be protected for the benefit of the veterans.

They generally expressed a "we - must - make - the - best - of - a - bad - situation" theme.

Hannah introduced Dean Alfred Seelye, College of Business and Public Service, who spoke to the students and honored guests on "United States in a New World Era." Seelye applauded his people from a business, an economic and a political science standpoint, fostering the new role required of the U.S. since World War II.

Seelye emphasized various myths to the American way of thinking with regard to our role in foreign matters.

Four point students who attended the dinner were:

Red Cage Teams Pull 'Old Switch'

THE QUESTION of the validity of the government of Nationalist China is once again enkindling a hot international controversy in which the Reds are playing a major role, only this time it seems that no guilty finger can safely be pointed at Russia.

The controversy arose at the world basketball tournament held in Chile when the teams of Russia and satellite Bulgaria declared that they would absolutely refuse to floor teams if and when the schedule would call for them to play Nationalist China. Spokesmen for the two teams declared that the Red aggregations could not compete against a country that doesn't even exist.

This flat declaration set off a volley of remarks from the International Basketball Federation's secretary general William Jones. Jones asserted that the federation (FIBA) would not tolerate such action, and that it would inflict "all FIBA penalties possible" if necessary.

Such "penalties" might include a $2,000 fine and possible expulsion from the FIBA.

FIBA, in an attempt to complete the tourney and offer the Reds a chance to reverse their decision, transposed the playing dates of the Russia-China and Bulgaria-China games to the last two days of the tournament, Jan. 30 and 31.

However, this decision only served to hand the Reds a chance to revive the battle royal on another front, as the Russian Olympic authorities opened up a verbal blast at International Olympic Committee chancellor Otto Mayer, in which they demanded the expulsion of Nationalist China from the IOC. The Soviet officials gave impetus to their argument by accusing IOC of booting Red China out of Olympic competition.

Mayer replied that the Chinese Communists "notified IOC headquarters of their decision to resign from the Olympic movement."

IOC only accepted their resignation, Mayer reaffirmed. THE REDS can surely be expected to hold fast to their decision and not to take any penalties inflicted by the FIBA on the chin. Behind the Iron Curtain, it must be remembered, amateur athletics are taken very seriously. Expulsion from the FIBA would assuredly lead to some manner of Red retaliation. How serious this reaction might be isn't known.

Considerably more light is shed on the controversy when we examine the nature of the Red argument.

The single premise that the decision of Russia and Bulgaria rests on is that Nationalist China isn't a country.

THIS CRISIS cannot be compared to that of Formosa or others like it. Here Russia is not fighting for the supremacy of Communist China over Nationalist China. It is even refusing to recognize that there is a Nationalist Chinese government. It is forthrightly stating that Chiang Kai-shek's regime is not the ruling factor in China.

Historically, before Chiang allegedly established his government on Formosa, that island was not a part of China. The Nationalists still claim that their rule encompasses all of China. Obviously it does not. This is the brunt of the Soviet argument.

It seems the Reds have pulled their familiar switch and have adapted our own tactics of non-recognition to serve their purposes.

We hope the FIBA will stand firm in its refusal to tolerate the refusal to compete.

'Socially Smooth' Student Attacks 'Moo U's' J-Hop Semi-Formality

To the Editor:

It is unfortunate that MSU seems to enjoy its reputation as "Moo U's" when it is actually one of the greatest universities in the Midwest.

I am sure the other universities around us will be impressed to know that an all-university formal dance is absolutely unknown on this campus. Here we attempt to be a top-notch Big 10 school, and yet a formal dance is too "sophisticated" for us.

With our new resorting to semi-formal attire for the biggest all-university dance of the year, we are no doubt establishing a precedent that will encourage us to revert to overall next year.

By our very presence at this university most of us are placing ourselves in a social strata that will periodically demand our attendance at formal functions. Yet many of us will never have had this experience while at this university.

Formality Necessary

College is more than books and lectures. College is also a place for developing accepted modes of social interaction. College is a place where certain social amenities are learned and practiced. (And formal conduct is among these.) But not at this school.

The J-Hop committee has compromised and has said, "Go formal if you want to, we don't care." Who ever heard of a social function at which one-half of the guests were in formal attire and the other half were in semi-formal attire. Perhaps the J-Hop committee wouldn't mind if some of us came in Bermuda, sweat-shirts, and tennis shoes. "Just buy the tickets, come as you are, that's our motto."

"Rural Society"

Granted this university was founded as an agricultural school, but must the demands of an agricultural school and agricultural society permeate all the other colleges of this university? Or are we desirous of cultivating our latent Moo U? It is still not too late to improve our reputation. But if we permit our university to be known as a school where amenities are unknown, where dress requirements are scoffed at, and where rural society sets the pace, we will receive and deserve nothing but snide remarks from the universities around us. (Name Withheld by Request) A Student

Finnish Anthem Slighted at MSU

To the Editor:

Tuesday night, Jan. 20, MSU hosted one of the world's foremost gymnastic teams, that of Finland. These people were more than athletes, they were the invited representatives of a foreign country. In this capital city their conduct and performance were excellent.

Naturally, as a part of the opening ceremonies both countries' national anthems were played. Finland's national anthem was presented on a lone piano, then MSU's activity band played the Star Spangled Banner.

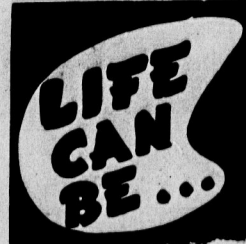

Seldom do we at MSU have the opportunity to host a foreign country in athletic events. It seemed to us that it would have been more appropriate to have the band participate in playing the Finnish national anthem, instead of by the tones of a meager piano.

Advance Notice

Had any of our Big 10 opponents been here the entire band would have honored them by playing their university song. It is hard to believe that at the moment of this happening, the musicians might not have had the opportunity to acquaint themselves with the National Song of Finland, but the occasion had been scheduled sufficiently in advance that this should not have been the case.

This is not a question of their over all reception, as the crowd was an enthusiastic and appreciative one, and formal decorum left no room for criticism. We have no doubt that these fine athletes would have been more favorably impressed had their national anthem been presented in the same manner as the Star Spangled Banner.

Dulles OK's German Meeting

Days Red Cold War Still Exists

West Continues To Seek Peace

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles gave the go-ahead today to a foreign ministers conference on Germany.

At the same time, he firmly stated his idea that Russia is still the enemy in the Cold War. Dulles told a news conference...

There are a series of programs made ostensibly to help the Cold War which would let play greatly into the hands of the prosecutors of the war.

Dulles said the Korean armistice and the Austrian Peace Treaty last January's U.S.-Soviet trade agreement were all the result of this policy.

He said it seems to him that Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan got the wrong end of America's unity during the U.S. visit this month.

The trouble was, Dulles said, Mikoyan's talks with government officials got down to brass-plate concrete cases, concrete cases—while his talks with businessmen and others mostly with broad generalities.

In reception, Dulles said, was Mikoyan's meeting with a group of American leaders, who, the Secretary said, "presented them very strongly and effectively."

Presently what Dulles had in mind were Mikoyan's sour comments that the American government wants peace but their policy clings to policies to continue the Cold War.

His remarks came as the result of a surprise. Officials have been saying that Mikoyan would increase Soviet friendliness of America's sign and unity.

24 People Escape Injuries As Capital Plane Collapses

LANSING (AP)—Twenty-four passengers and the crew of three escaped without injury today as a Capital Airlines Viscount collapsed as the plane sat down at the Lansing Capital City Airport.

James Ramsey, director of the State Department of Aeronautics, said a preliminary investigation indicated the plane landed slightly short of the runway.

The plane, apparently, set down 30 feet short of the cleared area of the runway," Ramsey said. "The left landing gear hit a snowbank about 31 inches high and collapsed."
The big, four-engine plane skidded about 200 yards along the runway before the dragging left wing forced it off and spun it around in a snowdrift.
None of the passengers were thrown from their seats and there was no panic. Most dropped 10 feet from the exit door into the snow. Others climbed down 30 feet short of the clear-

Gene Wancko, featured on Friday night's World Travel series, was faced with a problem on receiving his film, Yugoslavia. "What should he do with 7500 feet of exposed film when the Yugoslavian secret police refused to let him take it out of the country. Solving the problem wasn't easy and, even today, he refuses to admit the people who helped him."

Wancko was able to photograph the Yugoslavians and their strange ways without them knowing what he was doing—most people didn't know what a motion picture camera was. A constant fear is in the hearts of the people. They talk in whispers, the secret police are always present.

France is the topic of the second World Travel presentation this weekend. Saturday night Kenneth Richter views the country through the eyes of two French families, one rural and one urban.

Richter claims that these people, strongly individualistic, with close family loyalties, have a unique weakness for the theories of Communism. The film was made during the last days of the Fourth Republic. It will be interesting to view the film, and in the future note any changes in the French attitude that might be brought about by DeGaulle and the Fifth Republic.

IS STUDYING NECESSARY?

Once there were three roommates and their names were Walter Pelmed, Casimir Eng, and LeRoy Halseaux and they were all taking English lit. They were all happy, friendly, outgoing types and they all smoked Philip Morris Cigarettes as you would expect from such a group. For Philip Morris is the very essence of sociability, the very spirit of amity, the very soul of concord, with its tobacco so mild and true, its packs so soft and fluff-top, its length so regular or long size. You will find when you smoke Philip Morris that the birds sing for you and no man's hand is raised against you.

Each night after dinner Walter and Casimir and LeRoy went to their room and studied English lit. For three hours they sat in somber silence and por'd over their books and then, equitely and spent, they toppled onto their pillows and snobbed themselves to sleep.

This peaceful situation obtained all through September and October. Then one November night they were all simultaneously struck by a marvelous idea. "We are all studying the same thing," they cried. "Why, then, should each of us study for three hours? Why not each study for one hour? It is true we will only learn one-third as much that way, but it does not matter because there are three of us and next January before the exams we can get together and pool our knowledge."

Oh, what capture then LeRoy and Casimir and LeRoy! They flung their books into the air and donned a schottische and in thirty or forty Philip Morris and ran out to pursue the pleasure which had so long, so bitterly, been missing from their lives.

Alas, they found instead a series of grisly misfortunes. Walter, who went searching for love and was soon going steady with a good named Inevita Bread-stuff, a handsome lass, but, alas, hopelessly addicted to bowling, each night he layed true hundred lines, some nights a thousand. Poor Walter's health was a shambles and his purse was empty, but Inevita just kept on bowling and in the end, alas, she left Walter for a pinsetter, which was a terrible thing to do to Walter, especially in this case because the pinsetter was automatic.

Walter, of course, was far too distraught to study his English lit. book he took some comfort from the fact that his roommates were studying and they would help him before the exams. But Walter, alas, was wrong. His roommates, Casimir and LeRoy, were nature lovers and they used their free time to go for long tramps in the woods. One November night, alas, they were treed by two bears, Casimir by a brown bear and LeRoy by a hoodlak, and they were kept in the trees until mid-January when winter set in and the brown bear and the hoodlak used a trap to internate.

So when the three roommates met before exams to pool their knowledge, they found they had none to pool! Well, or, they had a good long laugh about that and then rushed to the kitchen and stuck their heads in the oven. It was, however, an electric oven and the effects were, on the whole, beneficial. The wax in their ears got melted and they acquired a healthy tan and today they are married to a lovely young heiress named Gargis Bran and live in the Casual Zone, where there are many nice boats to wave at.

And here's a word to you fellow smokers. Have you tried Marlboro—same fine flavor, now improved filter and better makin'—made by the makers of Philip Morris, sponsor of this column?

Ike to Send Labor Note to Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower will send his labor message to Congress today, Sparks are expected to fly.

Eisenhower helped set up a fight by scoring a rival bill, introduced a week ago by Sen. John Kennedy (D-Mass.), as a halfway measure.

That presidential description was relayed to newsmen Tuesday by Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana, House Republican leader who was among a group that conferred for 2½ hours with Eisenhower at the White House.

The Kennedy bill may be a little better than nothing, Halleck said on his own account.

But not much, he added slightly. Kennedy, a likely contender for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1960, got his bill in well ahead of both the administration's and one planned by Chairman John McClellan (D-Ark) of the Senate rackets investigating committee.

All three aim, or are expected to aim, in the same general direction but with different approaches: to eliminate as much as possible of the corruption and racketeering that have been shown to exist in some labor-management relations. The Teamsters Union headed by James Hoffa is a common target.

It was reported at the labor department last week that Secretary James Mitchell regards the Kennedy bill with a good deal of favor—as far as it goes.

However, Mitchell was said to feel that there should be a stiffer ban on blackmail picketing and that union officials should be held more accountable to members for handling union funds.

Shout Brings Death For Batista Follower

HAVANA (AP)—A Batista army officer was condemned Tuesday in Havana's second showcase trial after one of Fidel Castro's chief lieutenants shouted "I will shoot myself" if the officer escaped the firing squad.

After 10 hours of testimony, a war crimes tribunal deliberated only 39 minutes before ordering death for Capt. Pedro Morejon on charges of assassination, homicide and robbery.

Major Camillo Cienfuegos, chief of the revolutionary forces in the Havana area, and one of Castro's closest associates, made the dramatic gesture of threatening suicide. He called Morejon "the most bestial killer in the world."

Morejon's trial was held in a drab army headquarters outside Havana, in striking contrast to the first major trial in the Sports Palace before jeering crowds and the glaring lights of television.

The ex-captain, who accepted the verdict stoically, was expected to appeal. His colleague, Maj. Jesus Sosa Blanco, who was sentenced to face a firing squad in the first big Havana trial, also has appealed.

Death sentences were being handed out by other tribunals in Cuba. Alberto Corbo, a soldier in the army, was shot in Cardenas Tuesday, bringing the unofficial total of executions to 257.

A former lieutenant in Batista's army was given a 25-year sentence at Santa Clara. But death sentences drew most of the attention.

Ex-Army Capt. Roman Miral was convicted of 15 killings by a tribunal at Cabaiguán in Las Villas province and sentenced to face a firing squad.

War crimes courts in Pinar Del Rio in westernmost Cuba, which have announced 12 executions, condemned 14 more. At Manzanilla in southwestern Oriente province, two members of the private army of ex-Sen. Roland Masferrer were sentenced to death. Masferrer has fled to the United States.

Three former Batista policemen were found hiding in a church in the Miramar district of Havana Tuesday and immediately accused of war crimes.

The revolutionary government meanwhile made progress in getting the economy of the long troubled island back to normal.

Air Force Warns U. S. Of Russia

Asks Air Power, Space Strength

WASHINGTON (AP)—Air Force told Congress Tuesday it must face up to the fact that Russia "has been long-range military forces designed solely attacks against the United States."

The only way to deter threat, said the Air Force of Staff, Gen. Thomas White, to build strong retaliatory power and space power.

White and Secretary of Air Force James Douglas lined defense problems, the Air Force viewpoint, closed session of the Senate Armed Services committee, group is making a service study before any military legislation.

In the non-secret portion of their prepared testimony, White made public White Douglas took issue with suggestions by Army and Navy that the United States should pay more attention to readiness to fight limited wars.

The two said the ability to quickly in limited emergencies has been demonstrated in past year by all the armed forces, including the Air Force in Lebanon and the island of Formosa.

White said it would be dangerous to national survival, continued leadership of "the world" to alter U. S. policy massive retaliation.

ACTION ON THE ICE was plentiful Tuesday night as IM Hockey started rolling. There was a lot of play in front of the net as Evans Scholars defeated Farmhouse 14-1 in the first game.

Evans Scholars walloped Farmhouse 14-1 in the first of four IM hockey games today night at the ice rink.

John Linden led the attack with a double hat trick, accounting for 6 of the Scholars' goals. Jack Marsto was the Farmhouse man to get the net.

Early also pulled the hat trick in the third period with goals from Linden and Ken McEwen.

In the second game the Vistas defeated Butterfield 15-3. Boach opened the scoring for the Vistas in the second period made the final goal in closing seconds of the game.

Allen was responsible for Butterfield's two goals. Both Dave Frey for Butterfield and King Harvey, Vistas, had in good performances. Frey's only foul came in the first period as Laviana was put in the box for hitting an illegal zone.

Shaw beat the 69ers 2-1 in a rough and tumble game.

Rule Change Noted

The IM office announces following change in basketball rules: the rule that no substitutions at the two minutes of the fourth quarter is no longer in effect. Substitutions and timeouts may now be taken during the last two minutes.

Spartans Set to Battle Potent Offensive Team

Perhaps Forddy Anderson should stick to coaching the Michigan State University basketball team.

Anderson stood at center court with the student manager of the team after the Spartans had finished working out in preparation for Saturday's meeting with Northwestern.

The two had made a bet that the first one to sink a hook shot from mid-court was the winner. After five minutes, one of them finally found the mark.

Anderson was short a half a minute.

He certainly would forget the money, though, if he could get his team through Saturday's game without defeat.

Although Northwestern owns only a 3-3 conference state, it is generally regarded as the most potent offensive quarter. The Wildcats rank second in offense and are tied for ninth in defense.

Led by hooking center Joe Kuklick, the Wildcats can overcome their defensive shortcomings by sheer scoring power as was demonstrated in their 99-96 victory over Iowa last Saturday.

A full house will probably be on hand to watch the Spartans currently ranked seventh in the nation and first in the Big 10

To Appeal Hearing

Cepeda Regrets Loss Of Temper at Game

SAN JUAN, P.R. — Orlando Cepeda, first baseman for Puerto Rico's Santitas Club and for the San Francisco Giants, said Tuesday he is sorry he lost his temper during the riot halted game at Mayaguez Sunday.

But he also said he would appeal the hearing from Puerto Rican League President Carlos Garcia Nicolson before the $200 fine levied against him was made final.

Cepeda was fined by the league president and was charged with assault and released in $500 bond after a riot halted Sunday's playoff game in the eighth inning. Cepeda threw a ball at the stands after fans had "chattered him with fruit and bottles."

In an interview at his home Tuesday, Cepeda asked, "What can you do when you are being insulted and attacked physically?"

Good news traveled fast
at Michigan State

It started with Bob Yackels. Bob began his career with New England Life even before he graduated from Michigan State. While still a senior, he worked part-time with our General Agent in Grand Rapids and knew this was the company for him. Soon he had won success at a full-time agent and was promoted to District Agency Manager in Lansing.

The good news about Bob traveled fast. Some of his classmates decided to follow suit. Now each year more men from the graduating class confidently turn to New England Life for a career in life insurance. Forty Michigan State men are now representing us. Twelve of them already hold management positions.

Not all of our agent from Michigan State joined us immediately upon graduation. Not all participated in the fine life insurance course there while in college. But they've all had one thing in common: right along an awareness of how New England Life gives a man a firm foundation, from the start, in a challenging and rewarding business.

There's room in the New England Life picture for other ambitious college men who meet our requirements. You get income while you're learning. You can work anywhere in the U. S. A. Your future is full of substantial rewards.

You can get more information about this career opportunity by writing Vice President L. M. Huppeler, 501 Boylston Street, Boston 17, Mass.
