

'Janus' Opens Tonight at Aud.

"Janus," a romantic comedy by Carolyn Green, will open for a three-night run tonight in the arena theater of the MSU Auditorium.

The cast is composed entirely of summer graduate students, all veterans of college and community theater productions.

Appearing as Jessica is Mrs. Judie Howard of Lansing, the role of Gill is played by Stuart Packard of Columbia. Robert Smith of the Hope College speech faculty portrays Dennis Rousseau, the Andover French teacher who collaborates with Jessica to form the writing team of "Janus."

Two Pontiac high school teachers, Garth Errington and Marjorie Stasiuk round out the cast as Mr. Harper and Mrs. Abby.

Margaret Sullivan, Robert Preston and Claude Dauphin are featured in the 1955 Broadway run of this comedy.

The comedy's action centers around Gill's discovery that his wife has been secretly writing "lusty-busty" historical novels during the summer months with the prep school French instructor.

No seats are reserved for the three performances, and tickets are available at the door. The arena area is located beneath the main auditorium in the space previously occupied by the University Museum.

INCOME TAX INVESTIGATOR Harper, played by Garth Errington, seems skeptical at the explanation of Jessica, played by Judy Howard, in rehearsal for "Janus."

MSU Board of Trustees Accepts Gifts, Grants

Gifts and grants of $4,123,464.28, including $2,661,329 from the International Cooperation Administration for continuation of a technical assistance project in Viet-Nam, were accepted for MSU last week by the Board of Trustees.

The ICA grant covers a three-year period for the program in Viet Nam, where MSU advisers have been conducting an extensive overseas project since 1954.

The grant will be used under the direction of Dr. Glen Taggart, dean of International Programs, and Dr. Alfred Seelye, dean of the College of Business and Public Service.

The program for the next three years will be somewhat smaller than what we have had in the past," reports Dean Taggart. He said there will be much greater emphasis placed on educational activities in relation with the public administration institute in Saigon.

The board also accepted a $850,000 grant from the Ford Foundation for a teacher education project. The grant, details of which were announced earlier, will be used by the College of Education to examine a new approach to training elementary school teachers.

The first large-scale research project concerning tuberculosis is to be conducted at MSU under two grants from the Agricultural Research Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Directing the program

J. W. Knapp Company Plans Expansion to East Lansing

East Lansing is growing, and so is the J. W. Knapp Company of Lansing.

The Knapp Company announced plans last Tuesday to construct a one-story building to serve the East Lansing area, with emphasis on the MSU students, faculty and staff.

The new store will be located on the site previously occupied by the Campus Press, Inc., the firm which prints the State News.

Campus Press moved to new quarters on Abbott Road last fall, and its property was sold to Knapp just afterwards.

Last Monday Knapp hurdled the final obstacle by completing the purchase of a building adjoining the old Campus Press, according to Howard Grimes, president and general manager of the department store.

The building, on the corner of Albert street and MAC, gives Knapp a frontage of 132 feet on MAC. A barber shop, the Spudnut shop, bus station and a laundrette now occupy the building.

According to Grimes, both building will be razed to make way for the new Knapp store.

The new department store, one-story with a basement, will feature women's fashions and accessories, men's wear and children's wear.

No definite date has yet been set for construction.

New Frosh Attend Counseling Clinics

Orientation To Activity On Campus

By NORM HINES

"Welcome to Michigan State University" is the well-worn phrase that greeted the new students who enrolled in this week's session of the counseling center's high school clinic.

The MSU welcome mat was rolled out for some 187 incoming freshmen who enrolled in the clinic Monday afternoon for a whirlwind three-day orientation program to campus life and activities.

Their schedules were jammed with such activities as testing, medical examinations, ROTC orientation for men, meeting faculty members who represent their desired majors and familiarization with student leaders and representatives for the Office of Student Affairs.

The program is an extension for fall term registration.

New students make out temporary enrollment cards while at the university. After those facets of their program are completed, the students are free to tour the university and enjoy the many facilities available on campus.

During the three-day clinic, incoming freshmen obtain a first impression of what university living is like.

Housed in West Landon dormitory, the students find out about dorm meals, dorm regulations and campus regulations.

Mrs. Azelee Paulson and Mr. Jerry Wilson are dorm counselors for women and men respectively. Through these people and their assistants, the students gain valuable information concerning the university. The dorm counselors also help enforce the regulations that are required during the clinic.

The average age of these students ranges from 17-18½. This week, students representing more than 15 states, from Massachusetts to Louisiana are attending.

The first clinic was started on July 14, 1949. Two hundred twenty-five students enrolled that year, and since then the enrollment, which is voluntary, has increased to about 2,200 students spread over an 11-week period.

Dr. Thomas Goodrick, coordinator for the summer program, says that the MSU faculty and administrative personnel feel that the clinic helps incoming freshmen become more oriented to campus life. Research shows that a student who has gone through this clinic shows less tendency to drop out of college than a student who has not taken part.

This program for incoming freshmen is sponsored by the counseling center in cooperation with the other agencies of the university.

The next session begins next Monday, and another 200 new faces will be welcomed to MSU.

THE NEWLY-ENROLLED freshmen from the high school counseling clinic fill the Kiva in the Education building for their first formal welcome to MSU. Dr. Thomas Goodrick presented the welcoming address, which was then followed by a meeting with the individual counselors. Counseling for incoming freshmen will continue throughout the summer.

Howard Gets Post

New WMSB Manager Named

Bruce Howard, formerly an NBC television producer, will become manager of MSU's educational TV station, WMSB, effective Sept. 1.

The position currently is held by Dr. Armand Hunter, director of broadcasting, who coordinates all university activity in television, radio and closed circuit TV broadcasting. Dr. Hunter will continue as director.

The Board of Trustees approved the appointment last week and also appointed Lee Frischknecht production and facilities manager at WMSB-TV effective August 1. He has been production supervisor.

Howard, a lecturer at MSU since September, 1958 in the department of television, radio film, has experience in academic teaching and in both educational and commercial television.

An Alaska native and University of Washington graduate, the new WMSB manager in February, 1957, was appointed a unit producer in NBC's Educational Television and Radio Center. In May, 1957, he was named executive producer of the entire ETV project.

Seven of Howard's plays were produced on the network in 1952-53. In 1954-55, he was production coordinator on seven shows, unit manager on two others. The next year he was senior unit manager for a network summer spectacular and the seven-part Maurice Evans series.

Sent to Southern Methodist University by the network in 1956 to assist in a summer television workshop for advanced students, he returned to manage two major summer musical programs and three productions in the Hallmark series.

In 1958, he was a featured speaker at MSU's eighth annual summer television workshop.

Howard began his career after graduation from Washington as a director, writer and announcer for station KFAI in Fairbanks, Alaska. After wartime service as an Air Force information-education officer, he became theater director at the Dallas Institute of Vocal and Dramatic Arts, an instructor in speech and theater at Southern Methodist University, a graduate assistant at Cornell University and director of the Dallas Center Players.

Frisknecht will replace Patrick Callahan, who is to join the National Educational Television and Radio Center in New York.

The new production and facilities manager has been a full-time member of the WMSB staff since 1954, and earlier was a cameraman, floor director and writer-director.

Through Alum Magazine

Spartan Grads Kept Informed

By JUDY BELL

How do MSU alumni keep in touch with what's going on around the campus? Because they are scattered throughout the United States and foreign countries, they find the easiest way is to subscribe to the MSU Alumni Magazine.

This alumni magazine, with headquarters in Wells Hall, is published 18 times yearly. The supporting cost is $4 for one year, $7.50 for two years, and $10 for three years. The first year after graduation, a subscription is given at no cost.

The Department of Information Services publishes 10,000 copies of each issue of the Alumni Magazine. About 7,800 copies are sent to paying subscribers, while the other 2,200 go to high schools and legislative offices. Some copies are sent without cost to foreign countries because often money can't be sent out of those countries.

The MSU Alumni Magazine is divided into various sections. Some of the regular features are "Affairs of State," a page telling about news around the campus; "With Spartan Alumni," which relates news of all the graduates classes, starting with 1902; and "Spartan Spotlights," a column about outstanding MSU graduates.

All stories in the magazine have some particular interest for the alumni. For example, the June issue included a story about the MSU graduates who live in Alaska. The pictures for this story were sent to the magazine by those individuals. It took six months to gather the information, according to Steven Arnett, editor of the magazine. Many of the stories used are reports on campus building and academic development.

The MSU Alumni Magazine was established in 1881; and at that time was known as the "Michigan Agricultural Record."

When the school changed from MAC to Michigan State College, the magazine was called "The Michigan State Record."

Finally in 1953, when the school reached the "university" status, the title was changed to its current one.

The staff for the magazine consists of six people. Arnett is the editor, while Mark Garbarini is the associate editor. Charles Miller is the assistant editor, Starr Kessler is director of alumni relations, Lowell Treaster is director of information services, and Wesley Emswiler is editorial adviser. Pictures are taken by the photography laboratory workers from information services.

Trustees Approve Driving Revisions

James Miller Appointed Secretary; Budget Okayed

The student driving regulations were overhauled last week as the MSU Board of Trustees voted to relax them somewhat.

In other action taken at the board meeting, the appointment of James Miller as secretary to the Board and secretary of the university was approved, and the first budget for MSU-Oakland was announced.

There was also much emphasis on pay raises at MSU, to curb an alarming list of faculty resignations, as the Board approved a budget of $28,444,854 for operating the university.

In the driving revisions, the rule on campus driving between terms was relaxed.

Previously, persons enrolled in MSU were considered "students" even between terms, according to the driving code. The new rule, however, says that students are not "students" between terms, and can drive on campus without permits.

Parking lot designations were also changed, as the lots will be given a distinguishing name. Previously, students often complained of being confused because of the parking lots being identified by code letters.

Another major change in the driving regulations is to relieve the part-time students and evening college students from the driving restrictions. Under the new regulation, students carrying less than seven credits will not be required to register their automobiles as student cars.

MILLER NEW SECRETARY
James Miller, currently serving as state controller under Gov. G. Mennen Williams, will become the secretary to the Board of Trustees and secretary of the university effective July 1, 1960.

Miller, former MSU political science professor, will succeed Karl McDonel, who has been associated with MSU for 43 years. McDonel will start on a year retirement furlough when Miller takes over. President John A. Hannah told the Board.

Miller is currently on leave of absence to serve as the state controller.

MSU-O-BUDGET
A budget of $670,000 was granted to the MSU-Oakland branch, which will open its doors to students for the first time in September.

State appropriations will be $500,000, and the other $170,000 will come from student fees. The largest budget expense for the MSU-O branch is its first year in payroll which total $427,000. Included in this is faculty and administrative salaries of $370,500, and labor payrolls of $56,500.

Durward Varner, chancellor of MSU-O, reported to the Board that his office has received 654 applications for admission to the branch. He predicted that the final enrollment will be about 800.

"Foundation Hall" will be the name of the newly-completed $2,000,000 classroom building at MSU-O.

The name will not only mark the building as the first of the new branch, but will honor the MSU-O Foundation, an organization of Oakland county leaders who helped draw the format for the entire program.

MSU BUDGET

Given tentative approval, subject to review at the next meeting of the Trustees, was a budget of $28,444,854.

President Hannah and the administrators will have to work within this framework in allocating salaries, new equipment and supplies for the new fiscal year at MSU.

The new budget has a $6,000,000 increase over last year's. Because salary increases to the faculty must come first, President Hannah told the Board that MSU will not be able to fill new faculty or staff positions. He said that the added money must be used to meet competition from other universities and private business.

After meeting how minimums in austerity budgets for equipment, supplies and services, there will be money left to "almost" allow a seven percent increase in the payroll budget, President Hannah said.

Eisenhower Nominates MSU Grad

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A former MSU student, Frederick Henry Mueller, was nominated by President Eisenhower Tuesday for promotion to secretary of commerce.

Mueller, 65, was graduated from MSU in 1914. He has been under-secretary of commerce since Dec. 3, 1958. For two years before that, he was assistant secretary for domestic affairs.

He has been acting secretary of commerce since Rear Adm. Louis Strauss stepped out of the spot after the Senate rejected his nomination by President Eisenhower.

Strauss had been serving under a recess appointment made while Congress was not in session.

Mueller has been generally expected to be nominated since Strauss quit on June 30. That Mueller would have no trouble winning confirmation was indicated by the comments from the Senate.

Sen. Warren Magnuson (D-Wash), chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee that will handle Mueller's nomination, said "I don't see any reason why he shouldn't be confirmed."

Republican Leader Everett Dirksen of Illinois predicted speedy Senate confirmation, saying: "Fred Mueller is a very able citizen with an extensive business background and a broad field of experience in the commerce department. I am sure he will make a very able and distinguished secretary of commerce."

LOUISE WHETSEL AND ROBERT GOSS in a routine from their "Make A Show" scheduled on the Summer Concert Series tonight at the Aud.

Goss and Whetsel Perform

The team of Goss and Whetsel will perform at the MSU Aud tonight on the Summer Concert Series.

The show will begin at 8:15 p.m. Done in colorful costumes with special staging and piano accompaniment, the show consists of vocal selections from Broadway show tunes, folk songs, opera arias and operatic favorites.

Robert Goss, baritone, was the leading man in the Broadway show "Wonderful Town." Louise Whetsel, soprano soloist, has performed on television with the NBC Opera Company.

"Make A Show" consists of costumes and choreographed dance and solos tied together by action or conversation to give the concert the pace of a minimalist Broadway performance.

Should Students Be Obligated To Take 3 Finals in 1 Day?

FINAL EXAMINATIONS — the climax of a term's work. With the summer five-week sessions flying by, they're rapidly approaching.

By rules stated by the university for five-week session courses, the final exams are to be held on the final day of sessions. That's Thursday—one week from today.

Controversies have arisen over final examinations in the past. One such argument was whether or not seniors should be obligated to take finals spring term after they've gone through graduation exercises.

AND THERE WILL probably be controversies and arguments over the final examinations setup for summer term.

There was not much foresight used in planning the final examination schedule for the five-week courses. Numerous students are taking five-week courses. Many are here only for the first five weeks, then most of the courses are being offered. Others will remain for the two five-week sessions.

During a regular term, final exams are spread out over a period of days. And during such a term, the student is not obligated to take three final examinations on one day.

DURING THE FIVE-WEEK session, however, the student has no choice. The timetable says that finals are to be held on the last day of classes.

Many of these five-week students are taking three courses. Such a schedule is going to leave its scar on these students. Only a professor's decision or parliamentary procedure in the classroom can change the final exam date this summer.

THE PROFESSOR, of course, can give his final exams earlier in the week if he wants to risk going against regulations. At any rate, some system ought to be worked out whereas students are not obligated to take three finals on one day.

Two finals a day during the regular ten-week term are rough on the student. Three finals on one day during the short, five-week sessions can be disastrous, especially since a majority of professors believe in basing most of a student's grade on his performance on the final.

Students Will Like Driving Rule Change

A SIGH OF RELIEF will be breathed by the MSU student drivers when they return to full-time school duty in the fall. The MSU Board of Trustees found it a feasible idea to approve a major revision of the student vehicle regulations at its last meeting.

This is another step toward better relations with the students.

IT IS A RELAXING of the regulations, which have been the target of debate and argument since their origination.

Much controversy was ignited last winter term when students came back from Christmas vacation arguing that in the eyes of the university, they were considered legal "students" regarding driving regulations—but yet the Olin Health Center policies stated that students were not "students" between terms.

This change in the driving regulations is right, and practical. It will be widely accepted by the student body.

Mystery Stories Hold Interest

ILL DIE FOR YOU by Stephen Ransome Doubleday and Co., New York $2.95

ILL DIE FOR YOU is a fast-moving tale. It catches your interest quickly and makes you reluctant to put it down. Most of the book is spent in putting grief on the hero and entangling him in situations from which there appears to be no possible exit.

Some of the characters (e.g. the pipe-smoking deputy sheriff), are almost stock characters. The author does a fine job of casting suspicion on first one person then another.

He is quite artful in giving just enough clues to make various people "suspect." If we grant that the primary purpose of a mystery story is to entertain, Stephen Ransome has succeeded admirably in his book.

BLOOD AND JUDGMENT by Michael Gilbert Harper and Brothers, New York $2.95

Blood and Judgment gives an entertaining picture of the solving of a London murder case. The writer presents a highly-detailed account of patient, slow-moving, police investigation which leaves not one detail neglected in bringing the real perpetrator of the crime to justice. The author also gives a fine picture of the way British courts handle a criminal case.

The most outstanding character in the book is detective Sam Pittella, who is sufficiently independent to defy his superiors when he feels the situation justifies it. Blood and Judgment is not a book to hurry through. The author takes time to write carefully. Some of his descriptions are excellent (e.g., "It was the pleasant mist of early November, which comes up from the river after a warm autumn day, and beats no resemblance to the smog London fog, which rolls in late in the year from the North Sea, saturated with filth and sends Londoners coughing and choking to their twilight homes").

The reader who enjoys a leisurely, carefully-matched mystery story will find Blood and Judgment delightful to his liking. O. I. Abbott English Department

A veritable chemist's wonderland awaits students who have the pleasure of dialing to turn, meters to read and light waves to measure. Many of these singular opportunities are reserved especially for the approximately fifty people who participate in the Honors course in thought and action, these students are chosen selectively by the staff of the chemistry department.

Essentially this is not just a science course but an experiment in education, says Dr. Charles N. McCarty. The students experience a liberty in schedule and program that is impossible to achieve in the typical class.

Experimentation is one of the main vehicles used in educating the students in the true nature of chemical research. Personal conferences with Dr. Robert Hammer, instructor of the course, help the members of the class to choose an individual subject for intense study and research.

Ranging from an original problem to a classical struggle with elements, the projects though not all entirely successful, matured, proved extremely instructive for the students. Professors who are working on special problems help some of the class while others work practically on an independent basis.

Rare and expensive materials are at the disposal of the class. These include such precious metals as silver and ores of rare minerals like cadmium and lithium. Occasionally students discover an unknown characteristic of the particular substance with which they are working. In one case, a student discovered an interesting polymer form of a compound appearing while the student was making some tests.

The fall term will see the beginning of the third such course for talented chemists. Dr. McCarty stated that because of the fact that the class has been in existence only two years it is difficult to make concrete statements as to the total effect of the experiment. In 1958 a new course was started for students who had completed one year in the honors chemistry section. This second honors course deals primarily with organic chemistry. The third term good grades in a class of fifty gifted people. After a year in this course some of the aforementioned aspiring chemists switched courses to major in literature or some other scientific pursuit of knowledge.

Workshop Students Give Good Concert

By HOWARD HOLMES

Michigan State Youth Training Band started the concert with a fast march, "The Pride of the Land," in the Band Shell.

The concert as a whole was given over 400 high school students working for three weeks with a musical program that was entirely satisfactory to the audience, which filled the Auditorium almost to capacity.

The Youth Training Band was led by Charles Mill. The loud music of Goldman's march, "Pride of the Land," captivated the audience and the band was begun.

The first part of the afternoon program was the Concert Band with Harry Hegian as the conductor. Its first selection was the Overture from "Music for a Festival," by Jacob And a festival it was a festival with a loud fast moving tempo. Next was the finale from "Death and Transfiguration."

The next score, excerpts from the "Suite of Royal Fireworks Music" by Handel, was a delightful and fast moving composition. The "Overture" was true to an overture, loud and heavy, followed by the light and gay "Bourree" with an underflow of melody.

Following this was the slow light "La Paix and the Menuet," somewhat like a conversation between the loudness and the softness of the number. A roll of the drums, followed by a roll of the trumpets, told the audience that the last number of the suite was the "Allegro."

The concert program was finished with the "Procession of Nobles" from "Mlada," a loud, march-like tune.

Speaking before MSU's Institute on Asia, Prof. Peffer a man regret about the U.S. policy is that it will now take a long time for friction to develop between Red China and Russia.

Sports Week in Brief

New Swimming Policy

A "group swim" period, from 7:10 Friday nights, has been opened at the outdoor pool. Students, faculty and staff may bring their families, including children over eight years old, on this night. Youngsters must be able to swim and must be accompanied by an adult. New Sunday swimming hours are 1-6 p.m.

THE SPORTS WEEK IN REVIEW:
BASEBALL—Cleveland briefly relinquished first place in the American League but edged back into the lead Tuesday (our deadline). The Indians were still up there, but the Chicago White Sox, who had been on top just enough to like the idea, remained in hot pursuit. Meanwhile, sinking deeper into the sands of oblivion, the Detroit Tigers were clawing their way toward the cellar. The Bengals won Tuesday, but dropped six games while winning three during the week.
 San Francisco's National League lead was looking better all the time. Los Angeles was second and slumping Milwaukee was third.
TRACK—The American men beat the Russians and the Russian women beat the Americans.

It was an American victory, a Soviet victory, or a deadlock, depending on your politics.
TENNIS—Alex Oniebo Thursday was booted out of the National Clay Courts tournament for not trying.

Sparring Big Summer Schedule

By LARRY GUSTIN
 State News Sports Editor

IT WAS THE FASHION a few months ago for sportswriters to bewail the state of professional boxing. No talent, no money, no interest, was the verdict.

You don't hear much of that anymore. This summer's championship program, in fact, has been the most exciting in years. Two new champions have already been crowned and two titles have been successfully defended. And there is much more to come.

Big Ingemar Johansson and little Jose Beccera are the new divisional kings of the sport. Johansson kayaked Floyd Patterson for the heavyweight title and Beccera knocked out Alphonse Halimi for the bantamweight crown. Joe Brown protected his lightweight belt with a TKO over Paolo Rosi and welterweight king Don Jordan decided 19-year-old Denny Moyer.

At least four more title bouts, each promising excitement, are scheduled before the end of the summer season.

Archie Moore defends his light heavyweight title against Yvon Durelle in Montreal Aug. 12 in the return bout of their great fight last December. Carmen Basilio and Gene Fullmer are scheduled to slug it out Aug. 28 in San Francisco for the NBA-vacated middleweight crown. Johansson and Patterson stage their return Sept. 22 in New York.

Featherweight king Davey Moore and flyweight champ Pascual Perez are also expected to schedule matches.

And even old Sugar Ray Robinson still recognized by most commissions as middleweight champ, might fight Moore or Gustav Szolty by September. This, however, is doubtful.

All of these, with the exception of the first Johansson-Patterson slug, were or are expected to be financial successes. But the heavyweight rematch should more than make up its deficit with the biggest gate seen in boxing since the days of Joe Louis.

Boxing in the doldrums?
 Well, not this summer anyway.

SPARRING SIDELIGHTS—Patterson, crowned at 17-10 to beat Johansson, accompanied earlybird bookmakers. Yet no heavyweight has ever regained his crown. Jim Carter, Fitzsimmons, Jim Jeffries, Jack Dempsey, Schmeling, Joe Louis, Ezzard Charles and Joe Walcott have all tried. And only one of the nineteen heavyweight kings have been titles in their first defense. They are Beccera, Jim Braddock, Max Baer and Rocky Marciano's tentative plans to return to the ring and regain the crown also meet with disaster if precedent means anything.

But then I was the guy who picked Pat to beat Johansson in their first one

60% Have Doctorates

Hannah Praises Faculty's Quality

Fifteen years ago, only 34.6 percent of MSU's faculty held doctorates. Now, over 60 percent have this degree. This sudden rise in the scholastic qualifications of our faculty is equalled by few if any of this country's universities, says President John A. Hannah.

The members of the faculty, one of the highest caliber professions in the nation, are internationally recognized in their field. Many hold positions on scholarly journals, governing boards of professional organizations and others receive grants from various foundations and agencies for research.

According to President Hannah in his speech to the faculty, has been a rare meeting of a major professional or scholarly organization that has not at least one member of the faculty represented on the program.

The government has also used MSU's academic attainments. In 1946, the federal government did not grant the university any money for research outside agricultural. Last year, research grants from the government totaled $799,888.

In 1948, industry and one foundation contributed a total of $191,350 for research here. This figure jumped to $1,858,000 last year with five foundations contributing.

Business has not overlooked MSU's improvement either. Interviews with 1,000 of our graduates were granted by only 100 organizations in the 1940's. Last year, 714 employers interviewed 1,244 MSU students, an increase of about 700 percent.

The recognition of MSU's academic progress has resulted in its ranking among the top 15 universities in total enrollment of foreign students. It has also drawn an increasing number of high school graduates who are National Merit finalists and Westinghouse Science Talent Search winners.

Oral Parks, graduate student in political science, has been awarded a Fulbright scholarship for study at the University of the Philippines.

MSU Press Prints Texts, Some Fiction Books

The MSU Press was established July 1, 1947, for the purpose of printing certain university textbooks. The first non-textbook publishing began in November, 1957, and since that time the MSU Press has developed as a scholarly press, publishing both scholarly monographs and books of general interest.

Most books published are either non-fiction or academic. Scholarly books in all areas of study, including agricultural sciences and books of regional and general interest, are published. All textbooks for Basic College are published by the MSU Press.

Fiction is published occasionally when the work is of the highest literary merit and the author has been unable to find a commercial publisher.

Approximately 20 books are handled by the MSU Press for publication during the year. When the manuscript is accepted, the editorial work is usually done by the MSU Press unless the manuscript is well written. Upon completion of the editorial work the manuscript is sent to Haddon Craftman in New York for publication. Some of the most recent publications include: "Oscar Wilde" by Frank Harris, "Midwestern Progressive Politics" by Russell Nye and "Bush and Backwoods: A Comparison of the Frontier in Australia and the United States" by H. C. Allen.

Lyle Blair is director and chairman of the board. John Stone is president and John Gallagher is managing editor.

Doyle Made MEA Head

Dr. Louis Doyle, assistant director of Continuing Education Service, has been elected president of the MSU chapter of the Michigan Education Assn. for 1959-60.

Dr. Calhoun Collier, assistant professor of teacher education, was elected vice-president and Dr. Isobel Blyth, assistant professor of mathematics, is secretary-treasurer.
