

Akapo Fears Sit-Downs, Shoot-'Em-Ups

By JO KLEVENBERG
State News Staff Writer

"I think America is big enough to accommodate all law-abiding citizens," commented Akapo, who looks up to America and expects her to live up to her expressed beliefs and ideals.

"Happily, your government has the right attitude and is trying to do something about the problem of racial discrimination," he said.

Akapo has been visiting MSU as a member of the International Cooperation administration, part of the Point Four technical aid program.

Since he is the 50,000th participant in ICA, he was welcomed personally to the United States by President Eisenhower.

After a semester studying community development at the University of California, Akapo is beginning two months of touring and field study. When he leaves East Lansing, he will continue on to Jamaica and Puerto Rico.

and will then visit the United Nations and return to Washington.

While on campus, he has been working closely with the Institute of Community Development. Akapo also traveled to the upper peninsula to study programs in land use, zoning, and extension work, especially in relation to youth.

"The approach to home economics in extension work is outstanding," Akapo said. "By having specialists help leaders who go back to teach others, more people can be reached in a shorter time."

He also admired the idea of getting city agencies to work together to plan new developments.

"This way," he said, "there are fewer conflicts because the decisions are the people's own."

After beginning his education in Abadan, the capital of the western region of Nigeria, Akapo continued at the Baptist Academy in Lagos.

He began teaching kindergarten and progressed through all the grades into secondary school, where he taught geography, mathematics, English, and his favorite subject, religion.

For 10 years he taught at the Lagos Baptist Academy in Nigeria's federal capital. He served as headmaster of a branch of the academy for six years.

During this period he attended the University of London Institute of Education.

In 1948, Akapo joined the Ministry of Health and Social Development, training field workers in adult education, especially in the art of literacy, and doing youth and community work.

"At present, 33 percent of Nigeria's adults are illiterate, but both men and women are learning wonderfully well to read and write," Akapo said.

Today, the last states there must be a school within a maximum of three miles of every child. There may be as many as 30 primary schools in a single village.

Children must begin school at six or seven and continue until they are 12 or 13. After that, a youngster may continue to a secondary grammar school, a secondary modern school, or a trade school.

The secondary grammar schools are strongly academic and are basically college preparatory. A graduate of a modern secondary school might go into elementary teaching, nursing, or some higher trade occupation," the Nigerian educator said.

All secondary school courses are taught in English. The child begins to read in English in his second or third year of school. Instead of in such native tongues as Yoruba, common in western Nigeria.

Akapo feels that the Nigerians are doing all that they can to prepare for independence in October. Actually, governmental offices are already in the hands of natives and only ceremonial functions remain to be represented by Europeans.

Special Programs Raise Science's Status

Three special programs designed to improve the status of science and mathematics began recently at MSU.

All are sponsored by the University and the National Science Foundation.

Top high school students, 102 of them from 16 states, are going to college for six weeks as participants in a high school honors science institute.

An 11-WEEK institute is being conducted for 84 high school and college teachers of science and mathematics. It will feature a series of lectures and demonstrations by guest scientists and leading members of the MSU staff.

For the second year, MSU has been designed as one of the nation's four centers to conduct a traveling science teacher program. A special training program for 24 teachers is now in session.

Twelve of the participants will be utilized by the specific school systems which are sponsoring them in the training program. The other twelve will give demonstrations during the coming year at high schools in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, and Wisconsin.

MSU's TRAVELING science teachers last year visited 372 schools in the seven-state area, giving presentations before 306,112 students and 2,123 science teachers.

The summer science programs are being carried out in MSU's Science and Mathematics Teaching center, directed by Dr. Frederic B. Dutton.

Dr. Jerrold W. Mahen is coordinator for the Traveling Science Teacher program. Dr. Isabel Blyth directs the institute for high school students and Dr. Wayne Taylor is director of the program for high school and college teachers.

A FEATURE of the institute for high school students is a series of Saturday morning lectures by leading MSU figures. Subjects being covered include genetics, radioactive tracers, cyclotrons, and the philosophy of science.

Speakers in the series include Dr. Carl Kenty, General Electric company; Dr. Abraham Hues, University of California at Los Angeles; Dr. Josef S. Gratz, Institute of Physics, University of St. Louis; Dr. Stanley J. Stein, head of MSU's Honors college; Dr. Julius Miller, El Camino college, Calif.; Dr. Dutton of the Science and Mathematics Teaching center; and Dr. E. E. Moore of the University of Michigan.

MSU Student Killed Over 4th

Richard E. Denlow, 20, of Ludington, was killed in a traffic accident June 30. He was a MSU student.

Denlow was killed instantly in a multiple vehicle accident while driving a truck near Pontiac. He was working as a conservation officer during the summer.

Funeral services were held July 4 at Ludington.

First Concert Wednesday

Young Musicians To Perform

Almost 500 outstanding high school musicians are slated to perform on campus this month.

As part of the summer Youth Music program, concerts will be presented July 13 and 23.

Jack M. Pernecky, assistant professor of music at MSU, is director of the program, now in its seventeenth year.

The current Youth Music program has enrolled 436 high school students from Michigan and other states as far away as Texas and the Dakotas.

THOSE ATTENDING may major in piano, voice, organ, theory, band, orchestra, or chorus. There are also 10 harp majors. "MSU is one of the few schools to offer summer work on this instrument," Pernecky said.

In addition to actually playing or singing, each student must study theory and music literature in his chosen field.

DR. FRED J. VESCOLANI

He's The 105th!

Vescolani Elected MEA Prexy

Dr. Fred J. Vescolani became the 105th president of the Michigan Education Association recently.

Vescolani, an associate professor in the college of education, has served as an elementary and secondary teacher, superintendent, college professor, and consultant to a number of colleges.

As president, Vescolani will head a professional organization of some 55,000 educators.

Dr. Vescolani received his M.A. from MSU and his doctorate from Columbia.

The M.E.A. annually awards eight $500 scholarships to juniors and seniors majoring in education.

Dr. Robert G. Webb of the University of Kansas will join them.

TWO TRUCKS of camping and curatorial equipment will be used in the expedition.

The group plans to go first to Black Gap Game Reserve in Big Bend National Park in western Texas, Baker said.

They will be hunting for all characteristic desert plants, mule deer, rodents, and other small desert animals.

AFTER TWO weeks, according to Baker, Hogg and Klippel plan to return with the collected material.

The other men will continue to the states of Durango and Sinaloa located in eastern Mexico. The men chose this area because it has not been worked and because of the wide variation in topography, Baker said.

The men plan to return the middle of August.

Baker said he hoped the desert life habitat display would be ready by next June.

BIG LEAK

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)—A leaking tank truck sprayed 5,000 gallons of oil over 50 miles of highway near here. It cost the highway department $2,000 to lay sand over the oil streak.

4-H Week Will Go 'Foreign'

Flags of 12 nations will be flying during Michigan 4-H Club Week, July 12-13, on campus.

Nearly 1,000 members and leaders from 100 foreign countries are expected to take part in the program designed to explore career opportunities and to further world understanding.

Miss Annette Vasek, assistant state leader, said the 1960 4-H Club week program will have an international flavor.

DELEGATIONS from the various countries will be organized into 12 national groups. Each of the groups will be advised by an International Farm Youth who is either from that country or who has lived in that country as an IFYE.

The groups will represent Austria, Australia, Chile, Denmark, Germany, Ireland, Russia, Mexico, Nepal, Norway, Switzerland, and Turkey.

At 10:15 Thursday, at the Auditorium, Frank M. Liddle, youth counselor from Empire, will discuss "Youth's Three Great Decisions." He will also serve as coordinator of delegate participation in the career discussion classes.

CLUB WEEK delegates will have a chance to attend career classes in 25 different areas of employment," said Jung Wilkinson, assistant state 4-H leader.

"These sessions are designed to help the young people take a look at the career opportunities available and to learn what preparations they will need to make in order to enter the field of their interest."

Career classes will be conducted with the help of various subject matter departments at MSU.

THE ANNUAL dress revue, in which top winners are selected to take part in the final state 4-H show dress revue, will take place in the Auditorium at 1:45 Thursday, July 14.

In addition, 12 district achievement award winners will be selected from among nominees suggested by six extension districts. Personal interviews and evaluations of the nominees' records will determine the final selection, to be announced at the Friday morning meeting.

MARY WOODWARD, assistant state 4-H leader in charge of state award programs, said that state winners of the Danforth and Prairie Farmer scholarship programs will be announced at special delegate assemblies.

Arden Peterson, 4-H recreation specialist, announced plans for an outstanding recreation program, including a "fun night" to get all of the delegates acquainted the first evening. Other events will include outdoor recreation of all sorts and a "sock hop" at the IM building beginning at 7:30 on Thursday.

Bus tours to the Capitol, Oldsmobile plant, John Deere company, and Sealtest plant will be available to all of the delegates.

Some 15,000 people saw the East Lansing fireworks display Monday night. Chamber of Commerce officials estimated, Aerial displays were fired without mishap in the East Lansing city park while spectators craned their necks. State News photo.

Weather

A gradual warming trend is beginning today, with the high low set for about 48 and the high reaching 74.

The five-day forecast calls for normal daily highs of 80-85 and lows of 58-63.

The rain is expected, with occasional inch or less rain showers over the weekend.

Falk Foundation Sends Students to Conventions

An MSU faculty member and five graduate students will attend both political conventions as recipients of Falk fellowships.

Dr. Ralph M. Goldman, associate professor of political science, has already left for Los Angeles and next Monday's national democratic convention.

STUDENTS who will attend are Florence Avakian and Murray Frost of New York, Thomas Stevens of Oregon, Robert Ross of Iowa, and Jerry Waters of Kansas.

The Maurice and Laura Falk Foundation enables political science teachers and students to take practical political activities.

In 1955, MSU's political science department received a grant from the foundation. Groups were sent to the 1956 national conventions and to state conventions in other years.

THE FALK foundation also promotes the National and Michigan Citizenship Clearinghouse which prepares programs for Party day and Legislative day to interest and train students in the political arena.

Four Here For Workshops

Four professional landscape architects and teachers are conducting workshops in the design of urban planning and landscape architecture this summer.

THEY ARE William Johnson of Ann Arbor, Eugene Martini of Atlanta, Ga., Garrett Eckbo of Los Angeles, and Brian Hackett of Durham, England.

Each instructor takes charge of one week of advanced training in the department.

JOHNSON was graduated from MSU in 1953 and from the graduate school of design at Harvard university in 1957. He is a site planning consultant at Ann Arbor and an instructor at the University of Michigan.

Principal landscape architect in the firm of Martini and Associates in Atlanta, Martini was graduated from the University of Illinois in 1939.

Eckbo will present an illustrated lecture on "Design for Living" July 18 as part of the MSU Fine Arts festival.

HE HAS written two books on landscape architecture and is a partner in the firm of Eckbo, Dean and Williams, with offices in Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Seattle.

Hackett is senior lecturer in landscape architecture in the department of town and country planning at the University of Durham.

He is a visiting professor at the University of Illinois.

Telephone Callers Boost Alumni Development Fund

It can be as close to the alumni as his telephone. Especially when alumni begin calling former students to ask for gifts to the development fund. This is one of the most effective new canvassing methods, says C. Toll, fund director.

The basis of increased effort is a "challenge" made to the school by an alumnus who prefers to remain anonymous.

He has offered to donate $100 to the fund for each full percentage point of increase in the 1959 per cent participation figure of 1959.

In addition, for every gift of $50, the average donated by alumni in 1959, the challenge is to contribute $2.

Telephone workers in Michigan communities are actually training volunteers trained by the MSU.

He will describe the new challenge at a meeting of the Michigan Alumni Assn. July 14 at Washington, D.C.

This is MSU's third year with the program. Leaders in the alumni are MSU and the University of Louisville.

"Does it work?" The development office appoints alumni as "challenge" men in Michigan communities. A letter is sent to alumni living in the area asking them to call.

When alumni call, they begin making each person, telling the fund, the challenge offer, suggesting gift amounts. There is a list of each person's name, and if necessary, pledge cards are sent to persuade them to give.

Last year, some 3,500 alumni were contacted. More than one of them pledged.

"It is one of the least expensive methods we have," Toll said, "and seems to be one of the most productive."

Promenaders 'Hoe Down' Each Week

The MSU Promenaders get together every Wednesday evening from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Women's Intramural Building, room 34, for a real down to earth, old fashioned hoe down. Everyone is welcome and the admission is free.

The purpose of these Wednesday night sessions is to promote and enjoy round and square dancing. The Promenaders also train callers and teachers.

The sessions are colorful affairs. The women swing about gaily in bright equal dresses or full skirts, and the men complement them in dark pants and ties and long sleeve shirts.

Members do their own calling and music is provided by records.

During the year the Promenaders hold many social activities. They hold ice skating and swimming parties, an Alumni dance in the spring for all past members, and a dance show.

Some twenty Promenaders make up the well known Demonstration team. They perform at school assemblies, women's clubs, conference groups and the Y advisory council.

Last year, a spring workshop was held with Flint Junior college, which is one of the very few other schools that has a group of this kind. During the fall, they attend the Flint Folk festival.

So how about it, "Dosey-do your partner and everybody swing" at the Wednesday sessions of the Promenaders.

Visiting Language Teachers Improve Speaking Facility

Fifty-eight elementary and secondary French and Spanish teachers from all over the United States are enrolled in a six week foreign language institute June 21 to August 5 on campus.

SPONSORED by the National Defense Education Act, the course is designed to familiarize foreign language teachers with their language and culture.

Georges J. Joyaux, associate professor of foreign languages, is director of the program.

The institute has a three-fold objective, according to Joyaux. GREATER speaking facility and competence is provided through 11 hours of practice each week in Morrill hall's language laboratories, Joyaux said. Understanding the foreign country's culture is arranged through discussion groups six hours weekly.

CLASSROOM demonstrations and practice teaching seven hours weekly instruct the participants in more effective teaching methods, Joyaux said.

Participants are living in dormitories according to language groups. Attendance at meals is required at French or Spanish tables with native speakers.

THE institute's staff consists of professors from the MSU foreign language department, outstanding visiting professors, and special lecturers, Joyaux said.

60-61 Catalogue Now Available

The 1960-61 MSU catalogue is available and may be picked up at the Registrar's office in the administration building.

The new catalog "should answer all questions" about the university for both old and new students.

Time schedules should be ready for distribution before the end of the month, according to the Registrar's office.

Seeks Seat In Senate

G. B. Phillips

G. B. "Jack" Phillips, Lansing attorney, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for the state senate from this district. He is opposing incumbent Sen. Paul C. Younger. Mr. Phillips says that "it is time for a new and more responsible attitude to be injected into our state government at the legislative and executive levels. The state of near stagnation that has existed in the capitol during the past two years — which bordered on governmental rigor mortis at times, and was punctuated by eruptions of political bickering at other times, — was and is inexcusable. It has eclipsed the inherent greatness of Michigan, which can be restored through better legislation and administration."

Mr. Phillips is a graduate of Michigan State University and the Wayne State University Law School. He has practiced law in Lansing for the past six years.

Talbot Talks On Asia at 8

Dr. Phillips Talbot, executive director of the American University Field Staff, will speak on foreign policy in India and Pakistan at MSU today.

THE SECOND of three special lectures to appear before the Summer Institute on Asia, Talbot will speak at the Kiva at 8 p.m. The public is invited.

Talbot began Indian studies in 1938 under the auspices of the Institute of Current World Affairs. Since then he has spent 15 years in India and Pakistan on various assignments including work with the American University Field Staff.

The Field Staff is a non-profit organization for the study of nations and cultures. It is supported by MSU and nine universities and colleges.

The third and final special lecture on July 14 will be Dr. W. W. Hall, an outstanding American authority on Zen Buddhism and other aspects of Asian culture.

Loudermilk Injured in Car Accident

A leading candidate for the 1966 MSU football quarterback position was injured in an automobile accident over the Fourth of July weekend.

Loudermilk, a member of the football team, was injured Friday at 4 p.m. in an accident on U.S. 16 west of Lansing.

LOUDERMILK, 20, of 1110 Duke St., Lansing, was a passenger in a car driven by Warren Goodwin, 24, 944 Logan St., Lansing, which left the highway while traveling at an excessive rate of speed and rolled over four times, according to State Police.

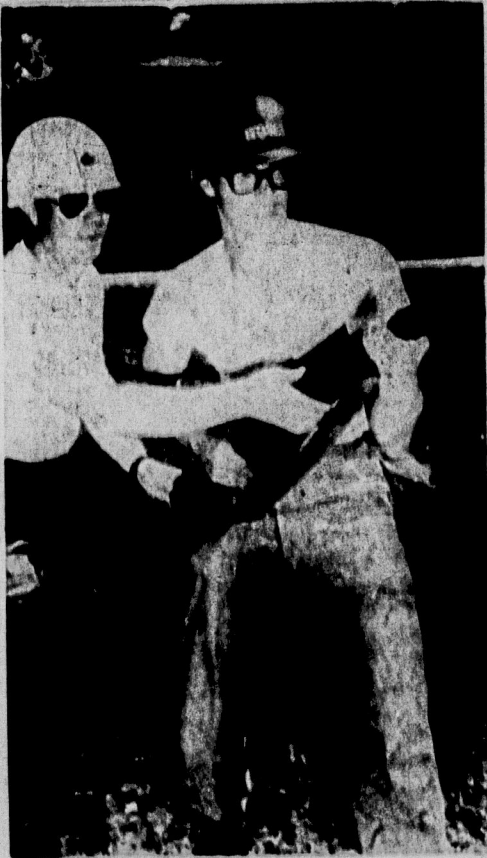

The automobile burst into flames which were soon extinguished by State Police. Both Loudermilk and Goodwin were thrown from the car.

Goodwin was ticketed for reckless driving.

LOUDERMILK is in Ohio Memorial Hospital and is listed as being in good condition. He has multiple cuts and bruises and a concussion. It is feared that if Loudermilk's football career will be hampered. Dr. Ralph H. Hunsicker said.

GOODWIN is in St. Lawrence Hospital in Lansing, where his condition is listed as fairly good. He suffered multiple cuts, bruises and internal injuries.

State Police estimated the car was traveling in excess of 75 mph when it left the highway.

Study Halls Summer IM Softball Begins

Duffy Daugherty and his football staff are breathing much easier this summer, due to the fact that only six of their players are attending summer school.

Last year, 30 attended the summer session.

"This reduction is primarily due to our study hall program which we adopted last spring," said Bart Smith, defensive line coach.

THE PROGRAM is designed to help out the player who is below a two-point grade average or who has some academic deficiency.

Each player has an academic progress card on which the instructors write the grade, number of absences, and attitude of the student. This is done every two weeks.

THESE CARDS are picked up on Thursday and returned the following Monday. There is a penalty for losing the card, failing to pick it up, or not getting it in on time.

Any player showing a deficiency on his progress card must attend the study hall which meets every Tuesday and Thursday night in Jackson Fieldhouse. The study hall is supervised by a member of the football coaching staff, Smith said.

A FEW of the rules which govern the study hall are:

1. All men who show an absence in a class will be required to report to study hall.

2. Excused absences are considered the same as unexcused absences.

3. Anyone cutting study hall will be subject to disciplinary action. The study hall is considered part of the practice and rules governing missed practices are applicable to the study hall.

THE SUCCESS of this program is primarily due to the cooperation of instructors and faculty in taking time to fill out the academic progress cards," Daugherty said.

MSU's summer intramural softball program is now in full swing. Fifteen teams are taking part according to Robert Gowans, assistant program director.

The teams are MFD's, Bio Research, Phillips, Highway Research, Luther Hall, D. P. S., Ag. Econ. Abbott 23, B.B.s, Lumberjacks, Dairy, Math, Left Dye, Cryptogens, and Abbott 21.

TWO GAMES will be played on the 1M field simultaneously beginning at 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

League games will end July 28. Any teams continuing after that date will become part of a new league.

NEXT WEEK'S schedule is as follows: Monday, July 11, Abbott 21 versus Lumberjacks; Tuesday, July 12, Highway Research vs. Luther Hall; Wednesday, July 13, Ag. Econ. vs. Abbott 23; Thursday, July 14, Cryptogens vs. Abbott 21; Friday, July 15, Bio Research vs. Highway Research.

OTHER EVENTS too, are shaping up, according to Dick Griffin, intramural student supervisor. At a date to be announced later, an 18 hole Golf Ball golf tournament will be held at the Forest H. Akers Golf course. The Callaway Handicap system will be used.

There will also be a Faculty-Student golf tournament. The event will be 36 holes and each foursome will include a faculty member and three students. Faculty scores will be computed with student scores.

ALSO AVAILABLE to the student body are the facilities of the intramural building, indoor and outdoor pools, and other outdoor areas.

Further information on any of the activities may be obtained by calling the intramural office, Extension 3881.

No further educational intramural sports are to be offered this summer.

Lutherans To Get In Swim

Marlin Luther Chapel and Student center will hold a swimming party at the 1M outdoor pool Sunday, July 10. The group will leave from the church center at 2 p.m.

A supper at the center will follow. All students are welcome. Bring student ID cards.

Special Education Week Observed Here

Special Education week is being observed at MSU this week. The challenge of teaching children who are physically handicapped and mentally retarded will be highlighted during the week.

Displays of special education materials and therapeutic equipment are on exhibit in the lobby of the College of Education building, said Philip B. Kline, being student chairman of the program.

Activities throughout the week are being sponsored by the council for exceptional children, the materials center, and the curriculum area of special education.

SPECIAL EDUCATION supervisors throughout the state along with students are invited to view the displays.

The displays, under the direction of Dr. James Crowner, curriculum head of special education, are divided into three major types.

Student exhibits, materials produced by companies such as wheel chairs and brace types, and materials sent by associations, are being displayed.

THE CEREAL Dairy association and the Michigan Association for the Blind are two of the main associations contributing to this year's exhibit.

Experts estimate that there are between 350,000 and 400,000 physically or mentally handicapped children who need specially trained teachers.

In most large cities, special classrooms are set aside for the training of handicapped children. Very different from ordinary classes, these classes are small and often ungraded.

However, an inadequate supply of qualified teachers means that thousands of children will not be provided an opportunity for a basic elementary education.

A teacher of handicapped children must help his students realize and accept their physical limitations and plan attainable goals.

EDUCATIONAL objectives for the physically handicapped are the same as for normal children. Only the methods by which these objectives are reached differ.

Special education majors who choose the blind and partially sighted as their area, learn braille and the techniques for teaching braille.

Speech training, sometimes called lip reading, is the special tool which enables those who are deaf to work and play in the world of sound.

TEACHERS of the crippled must have special medical insight before they can deal with the classroom problems presented by their children's handicaps.

Students interested in special education are urged to visit the display of special classroom materials and therapeutic equipment in the lobby of the Education Building.

Faculty members and special education majors will be on hand to answer questions.

Prouty Gives Paper At Danish Congress

Dr. E. E. Prouty, head of the geology department, will take part in an International Geological Congress in Copenhagen, Denmark, Aug. 13 to 23.

He will present a paper on rock formations in the Appalachian area of the United States.

THE CONGRESS, held every four years, attracts delegates from all areas of the world as well as the United States.

"These meetings and world understanding," Dr. Prouty said, "increase when delegates meet on common grounds of science they forget political differences."

20 Men Mow the Lawn

Hard Work Keeps Campus Beautiful

By SHARON ROBINSON
State News Staff Writer

Ever wonder how Michigan State maintains its reputation as one of the most beautiful campuses in the United States? Reasonable for keeping it beautiful is the MSU Grounds Maintenance department under the supervision of Bert Ferris.

THE CAMPUS, including botanical gardens, serves as a source of inspiration and enjoyment in addition to being a complete classroom for those studying landscaping, botany, horticulture, and art.

Campus maintenance includes roads, walkways, shrubs, trees, plants, athletic areas, lawns, snow removal, and rubbish collection.

THE TOTAL campus includes 13,000 acres.

The campus proper includes 880 acres of grass which is mowed from twice weekly to once every 10 days during the summer season, Ferris said.

The 45 miles of sidewalks and 26 miles of roads must be swept, kept clear of snow, and maintained year around.

THERE ARE 3,300 different species of shrubs and plants. Some 13,000 trees include 2,000 elms, according to Ferris. Approximately 100 machines valued at $40,000 and 20 men are involved in keeping the grass mowed, Ferris said.

THE CAMPUS is divided into approximately 14 areas with one man in charge of each, he said.

Each man, with seasonal help, is responsible for keeping his area attractive by picking up paper, caring for plants, removing snow, and cutting grass.

FOUR MEN are employed to mow because of recent high mowing charges during winter.

HEAVY rainfall this season has helped keep the lawn green. Rain can cause spots of fungus, but during the past week has been sunny and hot, which helped keep the lawn green, Ferris said.

SNOW removal equipment is stored at $10,000. Includes 37 tractors, lawnmowers, rollers, snow blowers, and a snow blower.

Tractors from his work and owned it to the lawn at the time. Ferris said that 25 trees were dead when he arrived. The line damaged and had to be replaced.

At Ledges

Boston Symphony

The Gazebo, a comedy musical, opens at the Ledges playhouse Thursday and runs through July 17.

Bill Slout will play the role of Walter Slout, who did the Broadway version, and Buzzie Slout, played by comedian, will be the role of Jane Meadows.

The Gazebo, a high-spirited Broadway musical, was a success last year. The Slout family presentation will be a hit for all who love it.

THE STORY concerns a divorced woman who is a successful businesswoman. She is a successful businesswoman who is a successful businesswoman.

The play gives the entire company of Slout players an opportunity to show through a large variety of characterizations such as the Duke, a sophisticated, highly skilled, pseudo-nobility Englishman, played by Harry Gable, a Damon Runyon character portrayed by Bob Hargis, and colorful vignettes by Marie Boyle, the late Dan Perry, and Jerry Luch.

CURTAIN TIMES for The Gazebo are Tuesday through Friday, 8:30 p.m.; Saturday, 8:40 p.m.; and an earlybird curtain at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

The Ledges playhouse is on 3-43 Fitzgerald park, Grand Ledge.

Get the Coffee Perkling!

To the Editor:

It seems unlikely, at times, that these times when some of our political speeches, articles and summer TV reviews have been making, that any person would deliberately attempt to harm additional work on the part of another.

BEST I introduce myself. I'm the guy who blows my friends' noses while at 2 or 3 in the morning as I read by.

Anyway, the other day, and several of my friends were working the day shift out of Lansing, and happened to cross the road by Spartan Village just before 3 am.

The gates went down and the lights flashed, so we went across while traffic waited. I guess most of the people in the cars had 8 o'clock classes or else had to get their wares to work.

Anyway, just as we were in the middle of the highway, it got to be time for our morning coffee break, so we took it. After all, coffee breaks are prescribed in every industry, you wouldn't think anyone would get mad about it.

Anyway, all the people waiting in the cars started blowing their horns, even those way back on Mount Hope road. We thought they were being friendly, so we waved and smiled at them. Some of those spoiled college kids wouldn't even wave back.

Anyway, after we moved off the road and let the cars through, the people that were sitting there in their cars went to work and called up my boss. They said they were there for at least 15 minutes, but he assured them it couldn't have been more than five, because that's all we are supposed to take.

Anyway, those four or five hundred people got mad just because the railroad fellows get a coffee break, but that's ridiculous. So my boss told me if we wanted a coffee break in the middle of the road, we should at least use instant coffee.

Anyway, you wouldn't think all those people would get mad, especially since we waved and grinned at them.
