Careers Displayed In Union

Carnival Ends Fun Tonight

Just vice plentiful Monday night in the Union when the 12th annual Career Carnival held its opening night.

Over 70 companies were represented by such displays as a model of a Chrysler built for the future and a model of a 1960 automobile.

The year's Carnival ends tonight. It has had television coverage and nationwide publicity.

The majority of the displays are arranged on the second floor of the Union. A $5,000 display showing an accounting machine made by the Burroughs company.

A model of the world's first steamship, which was launched Aug. 12 by the G. T. Scholfield company, is also on display.

Career Carnival, which is aimed for the freshmen as well as the senior this year, features booths by the Michigan State Police, the Trane company, Ford Motor company and Detroit Edison.

More time will be available during the day if the student wants to discuss his future with various company representatives at the Carnival.

Freshmen will be aided in planning their four year curriculum in a particular field while seniors can choose from the jobs offered by each company.

Career Carnival will be open from 8:30 a.m. until noon, 1:15 to 4:30 p.m. and 7:30 to 10 p.m. today.

LOOKING AT THE FUTURE — Two students stop at one of the Career Carnival booths in the Union to discuss topics of interest in a career which might interest them. The Carnival will continue throughout today.

K. Tells Hammaraskjold To Resign UN Position

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Premier Khrushchev let fly a powerful blast Monday in his determined attempt to drive U. N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold from office.

Khrushchev challenged Hammarskjold to resign. He also threatened to ignore U. N. peace-making machinery unless Hammarskjold's job is abolished and replaced by a three-man executive armed with veto power.

Hammarskjold, to a tremendous ovation from most of the members in the 96-nation general assembly, retorted in a fighting speech.

"I shall remain in my post during the term of my office as a servant of the organization, in the interests of all those other nations, as long as they do not stress the word 'they' with me to do so."

Applying the heaviest of pressures, the Soviet leader threatened to ignore future U. N. peace-making machinery unless Hammarskjold resigns. U. N. sources said the attack may have made it increasingly difficult for Hammarskjold to hold on to his office.

Khrushchev also contained alleged neutralist efforts to bring about a meeting between him and President Eisenhower.

BUT INDIAN influential Prime Minister Nehru rejected Khrushchev's proposal to shake up the U. N.'s organizational structure. The Indian leader also told the 96-nation U. N. Assembly that President Eisenhower had only to a major policy speech which would reject the idea of a meeting with Khrushchev.

The door is still open for consideration, and the president has expressed his deep anxiety to help in the lessening of international tension, Nehru said.

While Nehru defended the structure of the United Nations against any changes in its charter at this time, he failed to offer an all-out defense of the secretary-general, himself.

In fact, Nehru even suggested that the General Assembly might well consider sending a delegation to the Congo to find out what foreign troops or other personnel (apart from those sent on behalf of the United Nations) are still there and how far they are interfering in local affairs.

There seemed a hint of criticism of Hammarskjold's peace-making activities in the Congo in the Nehru proposal.

These were the major developments at the historic 1972 General Assembly session, attended by a parade of world leaders in their third week of policy debate.

Khrushchev took the offensive once again to promote his idea for a three-man executive, each member wielding a veto, to take the place of the secretary-general. His speech, unopposed, and he spoke under the U. N. "right of reply" procedure. This time, the Soviet leader stuck to his prepared text and there was no repetition of the extemporaneous shouting following performance of Saturday. But his words were tough.

To avoid misinterpretation, the Soviet leader told the assembly, "I want to confirm that we do not trust Mr. Hammarskjold and cannot trust him."

UB Presents Bridge Playing (Not in Grill)

The Union Board will present bridge playing in the Union, Miss Baker, UB student societies chairman, said Monday.

The UB Board is presenting weekly classes of instruction in bridge playing. Dr. Albert Drury of the veterinary department will be the instructor. Classes will be held Thursday on the fourth floor of the Union, starting this Thursday.

Campus Notes

Blue Key Petitions — Blue Key petitions for juniors and seniors will be available in the Union concourse Wednesday through October 14.

Photographers Meet — All staff photographers are asked to attend a darkroom meeting tonight at 8:30.

Tickets Available — Tickets for the Michigan State-Iowa football game may be picked up at Jenison between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Union tickets are available today; sophomore Wednesday, and freshman Thursday.

Correction Made — The Royal Ballet will perform Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, not this week as stated in Monday's State News.

Presidential Candidates Present Soft Spots in Opponent's Party

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon invited the south again Monday in a new appeal for Dixie votes while his rival, Sen. John F. Kennedy, sought to woo the former Vice in the Illinois corn belt.

Each concentrated on complimentary regional as big soft spots in the opposition armor.

Trustees Award Center, Lab Building Contracts

Contracts for the construction of two buildings on campus were awarded last week end by the Board of Trustees.

The buildings are the Eugene C. Epley Center for graduate study in the service industries and a bovine tuberculosis research laboratory.

Work will begin immediately on both projects.

THE EPPLEY CENTER, to be completed by September 1961, is financed by a $1,500,000 grant from the Epley Foundation of Omaha, Neb.

The building will contain offices, classrooms and facilities related to graduate programs in business administration. The building site is Shaw Lane, between Shaw hall and Van Hoosen hall.

Low bidders on the center were: Granger Construction Co. of Lansing, general contractor, $925,000; Shaw-Winkler, Inc. of Lansing, mechanical contractor, $307,900, and Hazel and Buelner of Lansing, electrical contractor, $148,966.

THE BOVINE TUBERCULOSIS research laboratory will be financed by a $100,000 state appropriation for a cooperative program of the College of Veterinary Medicine and the federal and state departments of agriculture.

The lab will be built on Hazard road south of Mt. Hope. It will house the study of techniques for detection of tuberculosis in cattle, the methods of growing responsible bacteria and research on reactor cattle.

Low bidders were: Bud Reniger of Lansing, general contractor, $43,745; J. A. Dart of Mason, mechanical contractor, $41,900, and Lansing Electric Motors, electrical contract, $4,600.

Completion date has been set for early next year.

Local Coed Admits Check Forgery

Alma Robinson, Detroit junior, has admitted forging $1,000 worth of checks, according to East Lansing police.

The coed admitted the forgery Friday after she was confronted by detectives and state police handwriting experts who had traced the forged signatures to her.

She said in a signed statement that she stole two checks from Renee Latzer, Detroit freshman, in Snyder hall Sept. 18. One check was for $100 and the other was signed but blank.

She took the checks to the East Lansing State bank where she made out the blank check for $900, opened a savings account, and took the balance in cash, Miss Robinson said.

After spending about $100, she deposited the rest of the money in the First National Bank of East Lansing where police say it has been removed.

Miss Robinson waived preliminary hearing in the East Lansing justice court and was freed on $1,000 bond, pending circuit court arraignment Oct. 7.

MSU Players Plan Coffee Hour For Hugh Miller

MSU Players will sponsor a coffee hour with Hugh Miller as his guest Tuesday at 4 p. m.

Miller will speak informally at the reception which will be held in 40 Auditorium, traditionally known as the "green room."

Anyone is welcome to attend the gathering to hear and meet with Miller who will present a dramatic reading, "Bare Board and a Passion" Tuesday at 8:15 p. m. in Fairchild theatre.

This will be the first of many receptions planned for this Lecture-Concert season, at which time people interested in meeting theatre personalities may talk with them offstage. Last year the MSU Players held similar receptions for the Canadian Players and the Chicago Opera House Company before their appearances on campus.

Queen Finals Scheduled

Five finalists will be selected from candidates representing all women living units for the 1960 Harvest ball queen tonight at 7 in the large auditorium of Anthony Hall, according to Joy-Marie Johnson, Junior.

Final selection of the 1960 Harvest Ball "Aldie" queen will take place Oct. 9, at 7 p. m. in the Student Services lounge.

Announcement of the selection of the queen will be at the intermission of the Harvest ball in-Kelllogg center, Big 10 room, where the new queen will be crowned. Last year's queen was Gay Firth, Detroit sophomore. This event is annually sponsored by the Agriculture Council.

Judges will be Dr. Richard Swenson, director of resident instruction; Dr. Charles Beer, asst. prof. of agriculture economics; Verpe Freeh, coordinator of student programs, College of Agriculture; Dr. Robert Deans, asst. prof. of animal husbandry; and D. Marion Neiderpruem, assoc. prof. of textile clothing and related arts.

The expedition was made in National Museum.

One Year ROTC Not Predicted

Would Burden Summer Camp

By JODY HOWARD
State News ASUC Reporter.

Hours formerly devoted to map reading and weapons instruction in ROTC have been largely transferred to more advanced tactics courses, Lt. Col. Albert Goudreau, ROTC department, said Monday.

Goudreau made Monday before the ASUC Student Committee on ROTC, an annual hearing. Other army and air force officers appeared at the meeting to discuss recent changes in the program and to answer questions.

The most significant change, according to Goudreau, is the taking over of the one term military history course by the history department, and the opportunity for one term of elective study in the physical and social sciences for ROTC "departments," he said.

Asst. Loyalty, committee member, asked whether in view of the decline now being experienced by the army, the entire ROTC program couldn't be suspended in one year by simply eliminating students.

GOUDEAU ANSWERED NO stating that such a move would put too much burden on the summer camp.

Goudreau refused to comment on the compulsory ROTC voluntary controversy.

The strongest objection to the problem was called by Jeff Mark, Lansing sophomore. An engineering student, he claimed the present ROTC program, particularly with an engineering education.

THE THREE-CREDIT COURSE required in basic ROTC, said Mark, restricts freshman engineering students either to take 20 credits for one term or to drop one of their freshman courses, thus disrupting their schedule for two years.

Mark suggested that the military ROTC course be given credit for the elective, but scheduling for the ROTC course, but reducing the number of ROTC credits by three. He said as a result of the present ROTC, engineering advisors would recommend that engineering students take AF-ROTC rather than ROTC.

Officers attending after the hearing to discuss the issue with individual students. Goudreau strongly opposed the compulsory ROTC program because "the significance of having men trained as an emergency reinforcement of the standing army cannot be over-emphasized," he said.

The result of the hearing, along with several significant developments of the summer will be presented in a report to ASUC according to Dale Wampler, chairman of the Student Committee. Essentially significant in the official policy announcement of the department of defense, which is opposite to the compulsory stand of the army.

ESO Officer To Be Here

Carvel Painter, a foreign service officer in the Department of State, will be at the Placement Bureau Monday and Tuesday to explain to interested students opportunities available in the United States foreign service.

This year the closing date for filing application to take the foreign service officer written examination will be Oct. 24, and the date of the examination is Dec. 10. The foreign service is particularly interested in students with backgrounds in economics, public and business administration, as well as those whose major courses of study include history, political science, language and area studies, geography and international affairs.

Students interested in seeing Painter should sign up for a scheduled time at the Placement Bureau and also pick up a booklet on the foreign service training programs.

Theta Sig Meet — Theta Sigma Phi will meet tonight at 7 in the Journalism bldg. library. Pledges and actives must attend.

Iowa Tickets Going Fast

Tickets for next Saturday's Michigan State-Iowa game have started to move fast as a result of last Saturday's football scores.

Iowa thumped Northwestern 42-0 and Michigan State beat arch-rival Michigan 24-17 to set the stage for a great battle at East Lansing.

"We're really going round and round today," said Michigan Warren Buntt as the new week's State Ticket Sales Manager business opened on Monday.

"Across the counter ticket sales are heavy and so are the phone calls. The malls haven't had a chance to reach us yet." Before the sparkling Iowa and Michigan State victories of last Saturday a crowd of some 60,000 was expected for the Hawkeye-Spartan meeting, so some 15,000 seats remain available to first comers.

Religious Bias Must Go

Most of the religious bigotry and hate mongers working against Senator John Kennedy because of his religion rationalize their stand by saying they are just doing their duty as patriotic Americans. These characters have a warped sense of patriotism. The patriot should love his country because he believes in and supports its institutions and ideals and has faith that these will best secure his rights and those of his fellow citizens. But today we find many whose support is based on a "my country, right or wrong" philosophy. These people have not the slightest comprehension of the rights and obligations of American citizenship.

THIS LATTER group claims to be patriotic. Yet using patriotism as a rationale for their actions, they repeatedly march on the flag waving motto to demand some of the very ideas the American patriot most supports if he is to be deserving of the title.

This has happened often in American history. In this campaign these phony patriots are again on the march, first by being American institutions and civil liberties in a growing tide of religious hate compounded by singularity and bigotry.

Phony patriots are a grave threat to what is valuable in our American democracy. They think so little of their franchise that they would waste it by voting for the candidate they think best, as they should, but in this instance, against the candidate whose personal religious affiliation they don't like.

THE FACTS that the candidate swears his independence of thought and has given evidence of it publicly for nearly a generation, that he is an avowed foe of the pressure groups connected with his religion, and that he has steadfastly refused to do them anything while others not of his religion in Congress have done so, all still do not dislodge the phony patriots. Each day they fill mails with their disgusting smears, lies, innuendos, and half truths to incite the ignorant. Not only do they seek to deny freedom of thought but also freedom to speak publicly or by establishing discriminatory qualifying criteria based on factors Constitutionally irrelevant to a candidate's qualifications for office.

The Constitution expressly states that there shall be no religious test applied to candidates for any national office. But the Constitution means nothing to these men when they are not trying to hide behind one of its protections.

In denying rights to one man the phony patriots invalidate any claim to themselves based on universal inalienability. Thus they deny the basis of American democracy—the natural rights of man. If, as they are saying by their conduct, they are a false premise, then there is no basis for our democracy and the United States has no reason to resist the encroachments of totalitarian systems.

IF WE ARE to preserve what personal liberty we do have, we must fight every attempt to weaken it. No loyal American can tolerate the religious bigotry now festering within this nation, or even suggest that a person has a right to vote against a candidate's religion.

The rising tide of religious hate is a threat to the convictions of every person, every minority group, and to the nation and the very existence of our democracy as well.

These phony patriots must be defeated. America can and must be the refuge of the radical and the truthseeker, but never the bigot.

Vote to End Complacency!

The coming presidential election arrives at a crucial point in American history. Every American eligible to vote November 8 should realize this and make certain his vote will be cast. October 10 is the last day for Michigan voters to register. Other state deadlines are fast approaching.

The State News urges all who are eligible to vote and who have not yet registered, to do so. Voting is one of the primary rights and obligations of American citizenship.

IN THESE crucial times it is more important than ever that this obligation be met. The United States can no longer handily assert its superiority to every other nation in every field of endeavor. The permanence of Western democracy is in real danger. History is closing in on the United States.

American influence in the world is collapsing. In Asia, Latin America and Africa, the Soviets are moving in with a time-tested campaign of what former President Truman once called "stomach Communism."

A few years ago the United States talk ed of massive liberation of Eastern Europe and a roll-back of the iron curtain, but we find ourselves in an embarrassing position of retreat.

AMERICA must get back into the stream of history before she becomes incapable of meeting the rising tide of hate being directed against the nation. We must gain friends. There is little sympathy in the world today for Western democracy because we have refused to use that democracy in an effective way to earn respect.

We cannot continue to use complacency. We need a new generation of national leadership that, instead of doing little, will roll up its sleeves and get down to work. By voting for candidates you feel will do this job best, you will be adding the job of the new generation.

We cannot continue our disengagement from history. BOTH of the major candidates for President realize this to varying degrees. The man who will best face the facts, admit inadequacies, and put first things first, should be selected. The choice is up to the people, and we insist that these considerations be foremost in their minds on election day.

"Sir, What Are You Doing In My Boudoir?"

Decision: 1960

This They Promise

It's not what you do, it's how you do it. That is the basic difference between the goals of the Republicans and the Democrats in the forthcoming election, according to their spokesmen. They assert that their goals are similar, but the means toward achieving these goals are different and important.

DEMOCRATS

- FOREIGN POLICY
 - Shift the emphasis from military aid to economic assistance to other countries.
 - Provide long-term aid directly to nations showing the ability to use it.
 - End immigration quotas based on nationality.
- ECONOMIC POLICY
 - Aggregate government spending to decrease budget surpluses.
 - Increase public works programs as a means to full employment.
 - Cut taxes.
 - End trade barriers, discrimination against American goods, and unfair labor standards in exporting countries.
- LABOR
 - Repeal "the anti-labor and restrictive provisions" of the Taft-Hartley Act and the Norris La Guardia Act.
 - Increase presidential influence and leadership in labor disputes.
 - Raise the minimum wage to $1.25 an hour.

REPUBLICANS

- FOREIGN POLICY
 - Vigorously continue military aid to U.S. allies through the mutual security program.
 - Extend capital and technical aid to the United Nations Special Fund for underdeveloped countries.
 - Base immigration on individual merit and at least double immigration.
- ECONOMIC POLICY
 - Reject massive government spending and maintain the stable dollar.
 - Encourage individual enterprise rather than government projects.
 - Initiate tax reform.
 - Bitto through the Trade Agreements Act.
- LABOR
 - Support the Taft-Hartley Act and the right for labor and management to bargain collectively under the provisions of the act.
 - Lessen government intervention except by mediation and conciliation.
 - Increase the minimum wage and extend its coverage.
- AGRICULTURE
 - Strengthen the farmer's bargaining power through marketing agreements and cooperatives.
- EDUCATION
 - Provide federal aid to school construction but leave primary educational responsibility to the community and state.
 - Extend the federal student loan program and the graduate fellowship program.
- CIVIL RIGHTS
 - Without delay enforce the Supreme Court decision to desegregate schools.
 - Accept completion of six grades of school as evidence of literacy.
 - Ditto.

The aims of the two parties seem definite and simple on paper. But the task the next administration must handle is not going to be as easy as it looks. For instance, the next president will be faced with a rapidly growing population and the problem of feeding, clothing, educating, and employing the increasing millions of Americans. The next president will have to keep America strong in what promises to be a world of increasing tension. At the same time he must be able to carry out his plans for civil rights and economic growth. This year, probably more than ever before, it is important for the voters to be well-informed about the issues and the candidates. Next Tuesday: The Michigan Platform in Perspective.

Voters Confused By ConCon Issue

By CHUCK RICHARDS
State News Capitol Reporter

One of the most popular issues to face the people of Michigan is, unfortunately, probably also the most confusing. It is almost easy to excuse the average voter who wonders just what is at stake when he votes for or against holding a Constitutional Convention.

Lined up against Con-Con are Gus Scholle, one of the UAW-CIO heads, and Carlton Morris who quit after a brief challenge to Paul D. Bagwell in the Republican gubernatorial race.

Scholle and Morris, who ran as the man who "topped the Michigan state income tax" are about as far apart ideologically as Harry Goldwater and Hubert Humphrey. Yet both oppose Con-Con for entirely opposite reasons.

James M. Hart, current Secretary of State and unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, is for it along with Governor G. Mennen Williams (who has changed since his 1958 opposition). Their Republican adversary, Bagwell, also has come out strongly for Con-Con despite the fact that they disagree on most other issues.

African Freedom Celebrated

President and Mrs. John A. Hannah, Dean and Mrs. Glen L. Taggart, and other faculty members joined 200 American and foreign students at the Union Ballroom Friday night to celebrate the Independence Day of the new African republic of Nigeria.

Nigerian chemistry graduate student Abraham Adedire, elected new president of the International club "earlier" Friday, told guests that "back home my countrymen are already feasting and dancing."

Adedire was the choice of a new International club board composed of the presidents of foreign student nationality clubs. He also called for more informal social functions, were American students can become better acquainted with the nationality groups.

Under a new International club constitution, being worked out with AUSA help, policy and program decisions will be the responsibility of the nationality presidents as well as the club chief.

World Now In Greatest Revolution

"We are living in a period of revolution, the scope of which is greater than any previous period of world change," Dr. Alfred Meyer, professor of political science, said in a speech to the freshmen seminar Thursday.

Speaking to over 100 freshman honor students, Meyer discussed the African independence movement, and said that the U. S. foreign policy must "swim with the current" in order to maintain our present world influence.

He criticized the campaign platforms of both the Democratic and Republican parties for their failure to give a true picture of the world situation and for their lack of a definite stand on controversial issues.

In reply to a question, Meyer proposed a reorganization of the American political party system, to be embodied either in a third party or in the greater divergence of the platforms of the two present parties. He suggested that a two-party system would be far more efficient if one party were strongly radical, the other firmly conservative.

Meyer also spoke briefly on the purposes of a university, stating that our schools should make us more aware of the situations and relationships existing in the world around us.

The next seminar will be October 12 at 22 Union at 7:30. Dr. Sam Baskett of the English department will discuss J. D. Salinger's novel, Catcher in the Rye.

Basie, Kenton Plan Lansing Appearance

The Count Basie band and the Stan Kenton orchestra will appear at the Lansing Civic center Oct. 10 at 8:00 p.m.

Bob Gordon, Civic center representative, said advance tickets are good. Gordon also said more tickets had been sold in the first four days than were sold in the first two weeks for the Kingston Trio concert held at the Civic center last spring.

Featured with Kenton will be Jim Richards, M.A. Stan Kenton Basie will feature blues and Joe Williams.

Dog Scares Chickens

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP)—How can stray dogs kill 104 chickens without touching them? The answer to that is simply that chickens are chicken.

W. C. Howard told the Guilford county commissioners that stray dogs chased a rabbit from his chicken houses last week. The barking scared the chicken chickens.

Howard said the chickens went berserk and "piled up" on top of each other. No one was around to see them pile up, and 104 chickens smothered.

Howard said the county should pay him for the chickens under a law requiring the county to pay for property destroyed or killed by stray dogs.

The commissioners took no immediate action on the claim.

Hitchcock, Wells Run True to Form

By BILL DOERNER
State News Movie Critic

Having climbed down from the presidential portrait at Mt. Rushmore, Alfred Hitchcock is back with another successful attempt to scare people on his latest movie, "Psycho."

As the title indicates, it's a mixture of Freudian nomenclature and Hitchcockian suspense, centered around a psychopathic schizoid.

Since I can't substantiate my opinions from context (without giving away the plot secrets), it's a slightly difficult film to review.

UNSUPPORTED, then, here goes: Anthony Perkins and Janet Leigh both give good performances. Perkins, especially, is ominous and menacing from his first entrance.

But it's obvious that Hitchcock, more than any other good director, is his own best trademark. Having picked better story material than usual, he is especially deft in editing this picture.

In several sequences he shows an event (usually a murder) by juxtaposing seven or eight strips of close-up shots in very rapid succession. Thus we see a leaping figure, a poised knife in a rusted-hand hand, a face twisted in fear, the hand shooting down, etc., in the space of four or five seconds. This magnifies the emotion, and helps keep identities a secret. SEEING HITCHCOCK, though, is a little like visiting a horror house: you go in determined to be scared. Not that you wouldn't be anyway, for he is an extraordinary craftsman, but maybe some of that "cold stark terror" is fear of being afraid rather than fear itself.

The other show in East Lansing is H. G. Wells' "The Time Machine." While no one is going to react to this in the same manner as "Invasion from Mars," it is nonetheless entertaining speculation of the improbable.

IT'S ABOUT A SCIENTIST at the turn of the century, who invents a contraption capable of breaking into the fourth dimension. He naturally chooses to journey into the future.

He is a responsible chap who wishes to help the present dilemma by bringing back the future's progress.

Imagine how horrified he is, then, when he finds humanity's future in the hands of two separate species. The Marelacks, descendants of people who set up a subterranean civilization after the last atomic war, "lay back in the twentieth century," who control the other group, and the Eloi, progeny of those who remained above the ground. The Marelacks look like creatures and think like men, the Eloi, vis a versa, have lost all and we all learn another lesson about atomic wars.

Even though modern electronic computers work at almost unbelievable speeds, the scientist is way ahead of them.

Put quite simply, scientists have been thinking up complex problems faster than even the fastest computers could handle them. To close this gap, IBM created STRETCH, the world's fastest, most powerful computer.

The first STRETCH system will go to the AEC at Los Alamos to aid in nuclear reactor design. This goliath can do a million additions or subtractions a second. It can "read" the equivalent of four million characters per minute from magnetic tape. It can print the equivalent of three good sized novels every hour. It can perform all these operations simultaneously, and if necessary pause midway in the problem and tackle a more important one.

Creating such tools and putting them to work for science—or for business, industry, or government—is exciting, important work. It calls for talents and skills of every kind, from liberal arts to Boolean algebra to astrophysics.

So whatever your particular talents and skills, there may be just the kind of job at IBM you've always wanted. The IBM representative will be visiting your campus this year. Why not ask him about it? Your placement office can make an appointment. For further information about opportunities at IBM, write, outlining your background and interests, to:

Big 10 Showdown Seen In MSU-Hawkeye Battle

Ballman Running With Offensive Unit

By JOHN SCHNEIDER, Associate Sports Editor

With the exciting victory over Michigan under their belts, the Michigan State Spartans began preparations for the battle against powerful and speedy Iowa Saturday.

Ditmar, Law Set To Pitch

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—Pittsburgh's Vernon Law and New York's Art Ditmar, a pair of young high-achievers, went competing Monday as the starting pitchers in the first game of the 1960 World Series between the Pirates and Yankees starting Wednesday.

Both camps breathed confidence. Ditmar, Pittsburgh's senior pitcher, was named the starter because he beat the Yankees in a 1959 game. Law, the Yankees' ace, was named the starter because he won the 1959 World Series. Law, 23, is a right-hander who has won 17 games and lost 10 in 1959. Ditmar, 22, is a left-hander who has won 15 games and lost 10 in 1959. Both pitchers are expected to pitch in the first game of the series Wednesday.

The Yankees also are the odds-on favorites to win the series. They should outperform their most troublemaker, pitcher Don Larsen, who pitched the last game of the 1956 World Series. Larsen pitched the last game of the 1956 World Series.

Anyone interested in working as a basketball manager, report to Coia Miller at 206 Jenison, Wednesday at 4 p.m.

Coches Cautions On Abuse of Wild Card

Engle Says Rule Not Meant As Messenger System for Teams

NEW YORK, (AP)—Charles (Rip) Engle, Penn State Football coach and president of the American Football Coaches Association, Monday warned his colleagues that abuse of the "wild card" substitution rule, by turning it into a messenger system, could mean its abolishment.

"The wild card rule was not made with the intention of setting up a messenger system," he told the New York football writers. "The coaches feel that abuse of the rule in this respect will take it away."

Engle specifically said the rule was not intended to be used as a messenger system, but as a way to substitute players. He said that if the rule was used as a messenger system, it would be abolished.

Iowa Hawks in Preparation For MSU Battle Saturday

IOWA CITY, IOWA, (AP)—Three starters in the Iowa football team suffered injuries in the Hawks' 42-0 victory over Northwestern but team officials said Monday all would be able to play against MSU.

Fullback Joe Williams suffered an abdominal bruise, End Felton Rogers has a leg bruise and halfback Jerry Mauren injured a shoulder that hampered him in 1959.

The team physician said the three might be showed against Michigan State but would be able to play.

Coach Forest Evashevski closed the gates to the public Monday and said closed practices probably would be held all week.

The hawks went through an hour and one-half drill in sweat clothes, polishing both their offense and defense.

Police Probe National Football Betting System

ANN ARBOR, (AP)—Police Saturday probed the possibility of nationwide betting syndicate was involved in the attempted bribe of an Oregon football player. It was the second unsuccessful attempt to fix a major college game this season, and police said the two cases may be connected.

Carl Robinson, Michigan State police lieutenant, described Friday an attempt to influence the result of last Saturday's Oregon-Michigan game here. Robert Robinson, Michigan State's Oregon representative, said Mike Bruce, Webber, a halfback, offered the state by offering him $5,000 to fix the game.

Robinson, chief of the state police, said of the state police was offered $5,000 to let a pass picture racket squad, said Bruce receiver get behind him and induce quarterback Dave Grose to call the wrong plays.

The lieutenant said a David Budin, 21, a Brooklyn, N. Y., school teacher and former college athlete was arrested, but could be charged only with registering at a hotel under a false name. Robinson said two gamblers apparently were tipped off and fled before police were able to raid the nearby Dearborn inn, where the men and the Oregon team were registered Sept. 23, the day before the game.

Athlete Nabbed

Budin pleaded guilty to the racketeer charge against him and was fined $110.

Budin was captain of the Brooklyn college basketball team two years ago.

He apparently was a go-between for the gamblers, Robinson said. The officer said Budin told him he didn't know the gamblers by name, but thought they were from Miami. They had registered under the names of Frank Grossman and R. Pelton of Chicago. Both names

Alpha Phi Omega, largest service fraternity in the United States, will hold open house tonight at 7:30.

Escapes Injury

A six-year-old boy escaped injury Saturday when he ran into the path of an oncoming car.

The student class and Kappa Alpha Mu, national post-graduate society, are sponsoring the 1960 annual selection of the Homecoming Queen and Court.

All women's residence groups are invited to nominate a candidate for this event. Each candidate will attend a dinner held at the Delta Tau Delta fraternity house Monday night at 6 p.m.

Candidates will next appear before a board of judges Oct. 10 between 2 and 10:30 p.m. The judges will pick 10 finalists from these candidates.

The 10 finalists will then proceed to the final judging in this stage the week-end preceding the Homecoming Queen, and the first runner-up will receive the title Miss Ohio State.

In connection with MSU's interest in Big 10 football, the queen and court will wear special uniforms during the MSU homecoming celebration.

The queen and her court will be crowned in the gymnasium Oct. 11 at the Civic Center.

Positions are available for all students interested in writing scripts, films and audio narratives for special program segments for WMSB-TV.

All students who work with professional television personnel. Further information may be received by contacting Bob Rowland, Ext. 2281.

Lawson Jones To Give Recital

Lawson Jones, the first U.M. candidate to receive a doctorate in performance and literature, will give a piano recital Friday night in the Music Building.

Five contemporary compositions by Shostakovich, Scriabin, Prokofiev and Prokofiev will be played. Sonata No. 4, Op. 30 by Scriabin will conclude this portion of the program.

'Scenes from Childhood' by Scriabin is a series of short mood pieces depicting childhood. Sonata, Op. 111 will close the Jones recital.

SHELLEY BERMAN To Appear in Lansing

Shelley Berman Show Scheduled

Shelley Berman, night club entertainer who has ventured into the recording and TV areas, will make his Lansing debut Oct. 11 at the Civic Center.

Berman is on a tour of 85 theatrical appearances which will end up his calendar until May, when he will go for an engagement in the New York Waldorf-Astoria in January.

AN ACTOR TURNED COMEDIAN, Berman studied at a drama school after his discharge from the Navy after World War II, and appeared in several plays after graduating, both in summer stock and on TV.

He started in small night clubs, advanced through the Jack Ruby, Ed Sullivan and Steve Allen TV shows, went back to the night club circuit and into the recording field.

Berman's trademarks are a high stool and an imaginary telephone. With those props, and with his tongue firmly against his cheek, he examines the foibles of men in a humorous way.

Iran Sets Birthday Celebration for '63 2,500 Year Anniversary Ceremonies 2 Years Late

TEHRAN, IRAN, (AP)—Iran has waited 25 centuries to celebrate its founding as a monarchy, but the birthday has grown so big it won't be ready on time.

Massive parades and celebrations scheduled for 1961 will probably not be fully prepared until 1963, says Palace Cultural Attache Shojadin Shafa.

The date was originally set to mark 2,500 years from the time Perseus Cyrus the Great overthrew the Babylonians, but his warriors under the dry river bed and captured Babylon with hardly the thrust of a spear.

CYRUS PROCLAIMED the world's greatest empire 2,500 years before Columbus discovered America. In 539 B.C. the Persian Emperor was a forerunner of Alexander the Great and the Romans who later drove him to the middle east.

Iran is also waiting out another postponement — formal installation of its ruler, Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi. He has reigned since 1941 without a coronation.

The 40-year-old monarch must first produce an heir for the peacock throne, and he and Queen Farah Diba are hoping the royal child due late this month will be a prince.

THE CORONATION and monarchical celebrations might thus be staged together, with the Shah being crowned at the colossal ruins of Persepolis, seat of Iran's ancient glory.

Iran, which changed its name from Persia in 1935, claims its monarchy is the oldest in the world.
