

By JOAN MILLAR, State News Staff Writer. Vice President Richard M. Nixon told Michigan crowds Thursday that the Republicans are going to win the state of Michigan on Nov. 8.

He made the statements as he whistle-stopped through seven Michigan cities in a 14-hour sweep across the state.

Nixon spoke heavily from a cold acquired the day before. But his discomfort seemed to disappear when he was informed his crowds were nearly twice those of Kennedy's in his Michigan campaign.

THE VICE PRESIDENT cautioned against reports that he is losing ground to Kennedy. Kennedy, however, was informed through Detroit Wednesday.

But if Nixon was bothered, he gave no indication that his campaign was lagging. He appeared buoyed by the warm and friendly crowd that gathered at depots despite a cold, raw overcast day.

His best showing was at Grand Rapids in late afternoon where an estimated 40,000 persons turned out in the square alone. This is the stronghold of the Republican party in Michigan.

IT IS ALSO the home of Republican National committeeman John Martin and GOP National committeewoman Ella K. Oese.

They had been particularly anxious after Kennedy drew up

Nixon lashed at Kennedy for his spending proposals, criticism of the national defense, and inexperience in foreign affairs.

"We're going up, our opponents are going down," Nixon said at Monroe, as he began his tour. Audience excitement reached a peak at Ann Arbor, where an estimated 12,000 turned out to see the Republican nominee.

For minutes after Nixon had stepped on to the platform in front of the station, the crowd kept chanting "We Want Nixon." NIXON SAID, after the shouting had died down, the way to progress is not through tearing everything over to the federal government, but to bring the best out of 150 million individual Americans.

Nixon admitted that there were things wrong with this country and that the United States has to move ahead.

"But economically we are being as productive as the Soviet Union and we're going to stay true to our principles."

The vice president said the United States is ahead over all in both science and education as well.

"And we'll stay ahead if we don't ape their atheistic, scientific materialism in the United States," Nixon said.

At Jackson, the vice president was met at the train by a sheriff's patrol mounted on horseback.

ABOUT 10,000 persons waited to greet the vice president. Many cheered in the increasingly chilly drizzle of the late morning.

While the crowds there seemed for the most part as enthusiastic as at other stops, one incident caused a slight disturbance within the press area.

Four eggs reportedly fell near the platform just as Nixon began his speech. It was not believed that Nixon was aware of the disturbance.

Two of the eggs splattered at the feet of George Engel, a Jackson TV man. Another hit a state trooper and the other missed its

Presidential Candidates Go Barnstorming

State News Wire Service

The biggest show on earth is now barnstorming around the United States.

The show features two orators battling before thousands of people in crowded theaters, streets, halls and anywhere an open ear will listen.

The orators, of course, are the Democratic and Republican nominees for the office of president.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon arrived in the state Thursday with the help of the Democrats, for John F. Kennedy, was cheered by hundreds of thousands in New York city.

Kennedy was applauded by more than 100,000 in Detroit Wednesday.

Kennedy plowed through a day of Pope, frantic crowds in voteless New York, Times and again he vowed to "pick this country up and move it forward."

He drew a mammoth crowd at a noon time rally in Manhattan's garment district, and got an emotional reception at Staten Island and Brooklyn tonight.

Kennedy added a new dimension to his campaign by moving along computers on a Staten Island ferry boat. At a rally in the ferry terminal, he apologized if any Republicans had got caught up in the crush.

At the motorcade wound through Brooklyn Thursday, Kennedy was brought to a standstill several times by thousands who rushed in along the streets. Each time he stood up on a special seat made back of his convertible and talked briefly.

Some of the stops were scheduled and others were not.

At Union Square and again in Times Square, police barricades did not budge, and Kennedy was almost mobbed in the ferry terminal by swarms of teen age girls.

Kennedy repeatedly told his cheering audiences that the president should "give the truth to the people, and the truth is we're not doing enough."

Several times as he stumped through four of New York City's five boroughs, Kennedy hammered at the theme that the Republican administration has been "compelled to suppress surveys that show our prestige is dropping abroad."

At Union Square, historic sanctuary for anyone who wants to speak his mind, Kennedy said only three Republican leaders in this century were forward-looking and progressive.

Theodore Roosevelt—they drove him out of the party.

"Wendell Willkie—they rejected him in 1944.

Kennedy told the garment district crowd their choice is between those who want progress and those who want to stand still.

Officials estimated the mammoth turnout along the streets and at five outdoor rallies at half a million persons. Many more thousands phoned down from windows from which "Welcome Kennedy" signs were draped.

The 500,000 estimate was made by Frank Doyle, executive secretary to Mayor Robert Wagner. He said the largest single crowd—an estimated 250,000—attended the garment district rally.

Model UN Talks on Red China

UN membership for Communist China will be the topic for this year's first debate session of MSU's Model UN, tonight at 8 p.m. in the Union ballroom.

Delegates representing 60 nations have been approved by the Model UN credentials committee, according to Secretary General Mohammad A. Toussi, Iranian graduate student. In most cases, at least one member of each delegation is a citizen of the nation represented.

"We have more than 40 UN member nations still to be represented," Toussi said, "and hope all interested students will come to the Red China debate to see our organization in action."

THE RED CHINA question, proposed by the Bulgarian delegation, will be deliberated by delegates presenting the actual viewpoints of UN member nations. Almost all the New York UN missions furnish complete texts of UN speeches for use of MSU delegates.

"The Red China question should provoke special controversy and add to the timeliness of our celebration of UN week," Toussi said.

This week, the fifteenth anniversary of the founding of the United Nations at San Francisco, was marked by a special proclamation by Governor G. Mennen Williams, which will be read at tonight's meeting.

AUSG Bares ROTC Plan; Committee Asks Action

AUSG reaffirmed its position against compulsory ROTC, Wednesday night by adopting a resolution recommending voluntary ROTC.

Rep. Roy Gilbert (East Lansing) was the first to move that Congress amend the ROTC resolution to provide for a return to compulsory ROTC if the advanced program did not receive 75 percent of the number of advanced cadets in 1962 and 1963 as it did in 1961.

Reps. Boughton and Tripp (Lansing and East Lansing) questioned the necessity for the amendment, raising the objection that such a clause might affect the purpose of the resolution, asking for improvements in the program.

THE AMENDMENT proposal was defeated by a nearly unanimous vote of Congress.

REP. BRUCE LASSMAN (East Shaw) questioned Warner as to the source and validity of various statements in the Committee report.

Other representatives who took part in the debate were Chris Cummins (Bailey), Mark Graves and Bob Howard (Bryan), Jeff Hack (Butterfield), Rick Delsall (Rafter), Ken Hance (Fraternities), Bill Hartwig (Married Housing), Arnold Hoffman (East Lansing), John Lange (Lansing).

After the discussion the motion to adopt the Select committee's resolution was accepted by a vote of 27 for, 4 against, and 2 abstaining.

AMONG OTHER business, Student Congress approved the appointment of Dale Warner, Eaton Rapids Jr., as chairman of the Committee for Voluntary ROTC, and Norm Fishel, Rockville Center, N.J. Jr., as chairman of AUSG Public Relations.

The resolution adopted by stu-

- 1. That the Board of Trustees make ROTC voluntary beginning in the fall of 1961.
- 2. That the Congress of the United States review and revise the National Defense Act of 1916 in order to

Campaign Invades Block 'S'

The presidential campaign will even invade Spartan stadium Saturday when Block "S" gives its interpretation of the leading candidates.

Members will flash silhouettes of Richard Nixon and John Kennedy. Sparty, that inimitable candidate of MSU students, will also be shown.

In its final performance of the year, the block will show George Washington, Abraham Lincoln and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The parties will be symbolized by an elephant and a donkey. An obscure minority party will have its symbol shown, too... a play-boy bunny.

The winners of the living unit competition for Block "S" attendance will be announced this week-end.

OSU-MSU Big Bands To Perform

The MSU marching band and the Ohio State university band will blow their horns at each other when they meet in Spartan Stadium Saturday.

The MSU band will present a pre-game show of such tunes as "Begin the Beguine," "Jazz Me Blues," and "Across the Field," the Ohio State school song. This will be followed by the MSU Fight Song and alma mater.

At half-time, the band will present a show entitled, "The Swing of the Thing." It will consist of familiar dance tunes with appropriate routines, maneuvers and constantly evolving patterns. The selections include "Lover," "Intermission Big," "Mississippi Med." and "Peanut Vendor," which will be done in true "Kenton style."

The 120 piece OSU band is performing our campus for the first time. It is the only all-brass band in the Big 10.

The two bands will attend a reception in the Music building after the game.

"QUEEN MARY" Berles rehearses her part as queen of weekend homecoming festivities by entering the stadium with Bruce Struble, Saginaw senior, and member of the homecoming committee.

40,000 Nixon Fans Greet Campaign Train

By JOY F. SOKEITOUS, State News Staff Writer

A crowd estimated by the police, at 40,000 greeted Vice President Richard M. Nixon at the railroad station in Jackson, Thursday morning.

When Nixon's train pulled into the station the crowd was singing "Here comes Nixon" to the tune of "Merrily We Roll Along."

Nixon was introduced by Paul Bagwell, Republican candidate for Governor.

AFTER TELLING the people of his confidence in Bagwell as governor, Nixon continued, "This is an appropriate place to pay tribute to the Republican party, which was born here in Jackson 106 years ago."

Fans represented their presidential choice by the hundreds of Nixon slogans that waved in the air. Signs with the names of Republicans running for other state offices were also present.

Democrats for Nixon signs were shop and followed.

Pep Rally First On Activity List

Bacchanalia, alumni, jazz and "Shades of Sunset" claim the center of campus attention for the next two days.

It's Homecoming weekend and the schedule of events planned for students and returning graduates indicates that the traditional custom will be observed with proper fanfare.

Bob Eberhart and his 18 piece orchestra will conduct a free jazz concert tonight in Jensen following Bacchanalia, the Homecoming pep rally.

Eberhart's group will provide music for the Homecoming dance Saturday night.

Betty Reynolds will sing several of the orchestra's selections ranging from "Thou Shalt" to "Younger than Springtime." The orchestra will also play two original numbers by Eberhart.

Homecoming displays built by living units will be judged at 8:30 a.m. Saturday and the winner will be announced during the football game.

Ohio State's marching band and Men's Glee Club will travel to East Lansing to take part in the activities. The band will be given equal time with that of Michigan State to present a show before the game and during intermission.

The Glee Club will stage a joint concert with Michigan State's group at 7:15 and 9:15 Saturday night in the Kiva.

Following the football game all alumni will meet on the playing field around their respective class standards for class reunions.

Bob Shackleton will be MC for the Homecoming dance, "Shades of Sunset" which will be held in the Big Ten room of Kellogg Center.

Mitchell Explains Rush Rules

Deferred rush procedures for men were explained by Bill Mitchell, IFC president, at the IFC rush convocation at Brody hall Thursday night.

Talks explaining rush and the fraternity system were given by Eldon Nonnamaker, assistant director of men's division and George Hibbard, fraternity advisor.

A second convocation for the men of Shaw hall will be held Tuesday at 9 p.m. in the lower lounge of Shaw. All off campus men are invited to attend.

WKAR to Air Game

Starting at 1:15 p.m. Saturday, WKAR will broadcast the game between the Spartans and the Ohio State Buckeyes. The pre-game and halftime band shows will be on the air and play by play announcing will be done by Bob Shackleton and Larry Frymire, of the WKAR sports staff.

Television To Carry Grid Tilt

The MSU-Ohio State football game, which will begin at 1:15 tomorrow afternoon, will be seen by 60 per cent of the nation's TV audience according to American Broadcasting Co. officials. Its coverage will include the East and Midwest.

The producers of the ABC program met with Spartan Spirit Board of Directors yesterday afternoon.

Bill Myers, Junior Class vice president, told of the plans of Block "S" which will be in red or black and white for the TV coverage.

Leonard Falcone, band director, discussed the bands performance of constant movement. Norm Danzik, West Shaw vice president, stated that E. and W. Shaw will have the world's largest block of residents from a single living unit: 1,900 students.

Kappa Alpha Theta, Phi Kappa Psi and Butterfield hall will form human tunnels for the team.

Hall of Fame Picks Four Americans

NEW YORK (AP)—The names of Thomas Alva Edison, Henry David Thoreau and Edward Alexander MacDowell were added Thursday night to the roster of 86 in the Hall of Fame for great Americans at New York University in the Bronx.

Edison, an inventor; Thoreau, a poet, essayist and philosopher, and MacDowell, a composer and educator, were selected from the 1960 hall of fame ballot containing the names of 242 Americans nominated by the public.

Bronze busts of the winners will be enshrined in the open air colonnade of the Hall of Fame.

The shrine was founded in 1900 by Henry Mitchell MacCracker, then chancellor of New York University. Selections are made every five years.

Biggie Predicts Big Blood Drive

By JESS MAXWELL, State News Feature Editor

A large turnout for the Alpha Phi Omega blood drive was predicted by Director of Athletics Clarence "Biggie" Mann, chairman of the Ingham County blood program.

The drive, under the direction of the American Red Cross, will be held Monday through Friday, on the fourth floor of the Union.

"Michigan State has always been one of the leading institutions in the area in the support of local blood drives," said Mann.

"The fall drive, under the sponsorship of APO, is completely voluntary. APO is a national service fraternity. It is being conducted in the drive by the Spartan Women's League and the Sea-Ops, a student nurse's organization.

"PARTICIPATING in a blood drive is like belonging to a team," Mann said. "The drive has a coach and leader, and the contributors are the members of the team."

Mann said that this year's goal is 2,000 pints. Last year, the APO drive collected 1,042 pints of blood.

"Along with education, one of the greatest thrills of life is helping other people in need of emergency," Mann said.

MRS. CAROLL BORGMAN, blood recruitment secretary for Ingham county, said that Michigan State's blood drives are an asset to the community and a source of pride for the school.

"We are very happy to have 'Biggie' Mann as the director this year," she said.

Faculty members are scheduled to donate blood on Monday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., but students may still arrange appointments. BLOOD MAY BE GIVEN Tuesday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Wednesday and Thursday from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. On Friday, blood may be given from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Trophies will be awarded to organizations with the largest percentage of contributions.

All-College Mixer

Armstrong Hall is sponsoring an All-College informal mixer to be held in Brody Hall from 8-12 p.m. Saturday.

Students, alumni, and parents are invited to attend. There is no charge.

Homecoming Really 'Snows' Us!

THE frenzied, last minute preparation of living unit displays is mute testimony that the annual phenomenon of Homecoming is once again upon us.

This means that thousands of Spartan alumni are winding their way toward East Lansing today, eager to catch another glimpse of the "happy, carefree college student" they used to be not so very many years ago.

Students, already aware of the deadline for Homecoming displays, will be up until the wee small hours of the morning, getting their displays into a presentable form for the judges' critical eyes.

Ah yes! All is happy in Spartanland as far as the alumni are concerned.

As for the student? Well, that just might be where that happy picture begins to fade out.

SURROUNDED by a stack of outside reading and with the threat of four mid-terms staring him in the face, Joe College shouldn't surprise anyone if he appears a little less than enthusiastic about all this Homecoming business. In fact, it also shouldn't seem surprising that he is more than willing to take a long, careful look at the plans for next year's festivities in the hope that they'll offer improvements in both scheduling and organization.

We doubt whether those responsible could have picked a worse time for Homecoming weekend this year. Coming smack in the middle of mid-terms, the scheduling has caused much grief to students who feel that they would enjoy participating in the setting up of displays, but also feel that they would enjoy staying around to see another Homecoming, too.

As things now stand, it is nearly impossible to enjoy Homecoming and still devote enough time to the preparing for mid-terms, which just happen to have popped up in droves this past week.

GRANTED, there were scheduling problems this year because of the fact that there are only four home games. The only other alternative would have been the Iowa game and that came on only the third weekend of the season.

But how about next year?

With five home games once again, it would seem that some provision should be made now for the student who freely gives of his time and energy in order that Homecoming may be the success it is.

With increasing academic "touchness" comes a correspondingly increased emphasis by the responsible student on the utilization of his time. If university officials are going to tighten the requirements of the curriculum, they must also realize that such "extras" as Homecoming should, whenever possible, be scheduled during relatively "free" periods in the term.

THIS is not a condemnation of Homecoming. It is an old and honored tradition that deserves the students' enthusiastic support.

But "support" in October has never been known to help anyone in December when the madman makes his rounds with Holiday "greetings" from the Office of the Registrar.

With this thought in mind, some students have had to shy away from Homecoming preparations this year. We hope this won't be the case again next year.

Criticizes Herblock Cartoons

To the Editor:

I was interested in your "Curbstone Comments" column regarding Kennedy vs. Nixon. I had to agree with your thoughts regarding the space allowed, especially your comments on the one-sided coverage of the State Journal.

However, you have taken a stand of news slanting that I think is most deplorable. I frankly find Herblock very disgusting—not because he is not a Republican but because he sacrifices truth and honesty to make his point and he is so clever that I'm sure many people do not realize this.

I admit that there is little point to having cartoons by a person like Reg Manning where everyone cannot help but agree with every thought expressed, but Herblock's are so cleverly and so constantly slanted the same way that I find them objectionable.

If a newspaper is going to have cutting, biting, hard-hitting cartoons such as done by Herblock then I think it is their duty to see that they use cartoons that are just as strong, showing the other position, or at least that are against bigotry, evil and corruption, not just one political party.

Round Three!

To the Editor:

Mr. Pember rests his case (Oct. 17 State News) with two short excerpts from Mr. La Palombara's speech—and then convicts himself.

An important aspect of the proper use of the English language is the ability to understand precisely what another person is saying, and it is that ability Mr. Pember appears to lack.

He asserts that it is Mr. La Palombara's claim "that our prestige abroad is solid." However, the cited excerpts show that the claim being made is a different one—that Americans overseas have been unduly criticized.

The State News' report of the original speech stated that Mr. La Palombara claimed that "U.S. diplomats and development personnel abroad have done amazingly well considering..." In other words, in currently existing conditions, U.S. overseas personnel were performing "amazingly well," not necessarily as well as possible.

Mr. La Palombara further suggests "we have been overly concerned with ourselves and with the way in which our fellow countrymen have behaved abroad." In so doing, he is not saying that Americans abroad may not be criticized, but saying instead that there has been more of such criticism than is warranted.

Briefly, then, it seems that Mr. La Palombara is affirming that the performance of Americans abroad is much more praiseworthy than the "Ugly American" school of thought believes, although that performance is not all that he, Mr. Pember, or most Americans might wish. He is in the "gray" area between the "black" of the "Ugly American" view and the "white" of the ideal of "solid prestige."

It is regrettable that the tendency to think in terms of "black" or "white" blinds Mr. Pember and many in our university and society to the contributions of those who take a position in the "gray."

A New Cheer?

To the Editor:

In reply to Miss Vallender's letter in the October 14 issue of the Michigan State News concerning spirit at the home football games, we wish to say that although her intentions seem valid, she goes somewhat overboard in criticizing conformity and also the cheer. "Retard them; retard them; make them relinquish the ball."

Firstly, about conformity. What is wrong with it?

Nothing insofar as the smooth functions of society are concerned.

But let us not make worse the situation. Our generation is characterized by look, think, and act-ahkeness. It is not a known fact that freshness and ideas do not result from this? And we are not Ginsbergian howlers nor do we attempt to be.

The above quoted cheer was presented by the "Emperors of Emmons Hall" at the Iowa game. The surrounding area, after a short while, began to share our enthusiasm and we were without doubt one of the most spirited groups present. We also supported the cheerleaders in each of their cheers. So for this we are in the wrong?

Undaunted, we will present two new cheers at the Homecoming Game. We urge all spirited and loyal students to join us. They are: "Progress the ball; progress the ball; deposit it over the goal," and after a good defensive play, "Engage them; engage them; hinder their progress again."

'Spelling' Errors

To the Editor:

I have been receiving the State News for over a year now and although, on the whole, it is quite well-presented, there is one item I would like to draw your attention to.

Why do you print so many glaring spelling errors?

I was not educated in this country and so many times I spell words differently from the common usage here, but when I read an article about cyclists "peddling" instead of pedaling, and when I read an editorial about American "hypocrisy" instead of hypocrisy, and the Eiffel "Tower" instead of Tower it makes me wonder about the educational system here.

Are you not taught correct spelling in your High Schools and Colleges? Or are your articles printed without being proof-read?

Rita Herman

Poster Satirizes

To the Editor:

A good editorial is a credit to any newspaper, and I have been reading the editorials in the "State News" with a great deal of interest.

There are times, however, when an inexperienced young editorialist will run to his typewriter at the slightest hint of what may be good material and rattle off a desk-pounding article without first making use of his God-given power to THINK.

Such was the case, I am sure, in the Oct. 17 story entitled "Student's Greeting," where the poster portraying the Ku Klux Klan and the Quorum question was denounced as "one of the most disgusting displays seen recently on campus."

Certainly we look upon the Ku Klux Klan with disgust, and true, it is up to this generation to help erase it, but the fact remains that ignoring a recurring atrocity is no way to erase it.

My hat goes off to the artist who departed from the mental inertness of "Experience Counts" or "A Time for Greatness" and produced a satirical poster which should cause us to wake up to the unfortunate realities that exist, and THINK.

Boell Eastwood

Hits 'Experience'

To the Editor:

In the coming presidential elections the issue of "experience and training" has been raised by Mr. Nixon who claims the office of the president, rather solely on his "experience and training" (even though he doesn't have any worthwhile achievements to recommend him) as Vice-president for the last eight years.

This line of thinking gives rise to a very simple and bright solution for presidential elections: In the future every vice-president should get the office of the president by virtue of his associations with the work of the president in power, except that he would be required to change

Late Arrivals Present Problem

THE Mantovani concert last Friday began at 8:30, 15 minutes after the scheduled curtain. At 8:45 many ticket holders were still arriving at the Auditorium. When a program is scheduled for 8:15, this means all ticket holders should be in their seats at this time.

The Mantovani concert was not the first program at which people arrived late. This has been the case in many university events. And it is not only the students who come late, but also person ticket holders, including faculty and staff members.

Late comers not only cause entertainers such as Mantovani to interrupt their programs, but also give a very poor impression of the university.

One could easily see how impatient Mantovani was when he was forced to pause and wait for everyone to be seated.

In addition to arriving late, many people left their seats and crowded into the aisles before the last number was finished. This again showed considerable rudeness. The noise of people getting up and going down stairs disturbs listeners and entertainers.

A concert, play, lecture or other similar program is to be enjoyed by all ticket holders. We hope the next program will see everyone seated at certain time and remaining seated until the conclusion of the program.

Spotlight on Cuba

Cubans Awakening to Castro?

BY RAMON VALEDES

Why is Fidel Castro in his present position in Cuba?

To get at the answer, to think you have to first analyze the measures which he has used to obtain power, such as the agrarian reform, the land laws and other legislation intended to "red" the country.

The agrarian reform, known as the INRA, an organization which was supposed to control the agrarian reform, has taken over the agricultural and industrial production of the country.

The farmers, who were supposed to receive titles to the land, are working in INRA cooperatives and only a few hold titles to relatively worthless land.

INRA co-operatives have failed to equal the agricultural quotas of previous regimes because of a lack of trained personnel, a basic lack of incentive and motivation on the part of the farmers. Concrete proof of the failure of these co-operatives is evident in the scarcity of food in Cuba today.

The INRA pays the majority of its farmers with "coupons." These coupons are exchangeable only in the "stores of the people" (INRA stores). Because they do not pay taxes, these stores have already driven all other competitors out of business and are thus able to price their goods exorbitantly high.

The agrarian reform in Cuba has not compensated the people whose interests were hurt when the law went into effect. It has not allowed former owners to keep small portions of land as they had been promised, but has instead seized all the land and accompanying farm equipment. It has created, however, a monopoly through which all products are made and sold by the INRA. It has destroyed the principle of private ownership.

The INRA and the Labor Ministry now control practically all of the industries in Cuba, as well as the transportation and communication systems. All belong to the government and have been expropriated under a variety of pretexts.

Cuba needed an agrarian reform, but it certainly didn't need this premeditated, Communist-infiltrated plan.

I believe that the people of Cuba are awakening to this fact. And because they are awakening, I believe the Castro regime is headed for serious trouble.

It's That Time Again!

BY SUE PRICE, EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

GET the hammer over... hold on to the chicken wire while I get some staples... watch out, it's falling over... oh, no, it's raining, what will we do, the paint is running all over the display!

Yes, it's Homecoming again and the hustle and bustle of last minute work on the display is filling everyone's time. The sound of hammering, the echo of voices in the air, the smell of paste and paint and a general desire to build the best display—these are all part of Homecoming.

Yet Homecoming means much more than building a good display. For alumni it means a chance to return to campus, see a football game and renew many old acquaintances. For students, Homecoming is a chance to see the "old grads" and to get just a little more spirit into cheering at the game.

NOR is Homecoming merely a chance to select a queen and court or to enjoy a tremendous pep rally.

This is not to say none of these things are important. Without any of these ingredients Homecoming would not be Homecoming. But it is the underlying motive of Homecoming—the idea that alumni return in hopes of finding the spirit they had still evident—that makes Homecoming what it is. And it is up to the students to show that spirit is still here.

EACH year it seems as if more and more queens are elected on campus. Contests are held at the rate of one or more a month. First comes Harvest ball, then Homecoming the Coronation ball, then Miss MSU, then Engineering exhibition. Mix in a few fraternity queen contests and you have a perpetual contest.

What is the purpose of all these selections? Frankly, I think it is downright foolish. It takes time and wastes a most all this time. The women selected reign for one evening and then their names are forgotten. And there can be just so many pretty coats, particularly when many contests have a rule prohibiting anyone who has been a queen to enter.

Many universities have decided to do away with queen entirely. I feel this is going a little too far.

It would be much better to reconsider all the contests we have and decide just which ones are really important. Homecoming and Miss MSU will probably be the only two

Along with the queen contests, why has it always been the women's units that nominate the candidates? Why are the men deprived of the privilege of nominating? The men are the ones who normally say a woman is good looking or not, and women usually remark about a man's looks. Why not follow this reasoning in a queen contest?

Curbstone Comments

And Now It's Here

BY LARRY MILLER, Editorial Editor

AND now it's Michigan's turn! Any hopes that our state might be spared from an anti-Catholic campaign before the November 8 election seem to have gone out the window on the heels of the occurrence last Sunday.

It was on that day that worshippers of three Protestant churches in Allegan found pamphlets stuck to their windshields when they returned to their cars from Sunday services.

The pamphlets mentioned Senator John Kennedy by name and asked "whether or not a Catholic president would always put America first."

As mature university students, the majority of us will, no doubt, give lip service to a condemnation of such goings-on.

ANOTHER segment of students will probably withhold condemnation, choosing to hold fast to genuine religious convictions that traditionally have questioned the distinct separation of church and state.

The remainder will accept such an occurrence as merely "tough luck" on the part of Senator Kennedy.

It is to this last group that I would like to direct the following questions:

1. With the fate of our country hanging in the balance, why should citizens be encouraged to pick their next president on a purely emotional basis? What about foreign affairs, the farm problem and segregation?
2. Why has not the President spoken out against the anti-Catholic literature? Being the divisive force that it is, it surely can not be for the good of our country's unity.
3. On the other hand, why was the President so quick to speak out against the "Liberty or Bigotry" slogan in the UAW publication last week? Didn't he realize that the same thing was happening in reverse all summer?
4. If a Catholic is to be discriminated against in this election, who's to say that another minority group won't be the victim next time?
5. If religion IS such a vital issue, why isn't Mr. Nixon's questioned? By stretching an imaginative mind, couldn't he also come into conflict with his Quaker church's traditional leaning toward pacifism in time of war?
6. Won't all this engendered hatred only hasten the formation of political parties based on religious leanings, rather than political issues?
7. Will you be proud to say that you voted for Nixon because he's not a Catholic, or for Kennedy because he is?

There will never be any way of knowing, but if either Kennedy or Nixon is elected entirely because of religious support, our country will spend a long time licking its wounds. Unfortunately, it looks as if this will be the case. It now looks as if our next President will be picked on the basis of where he does or does not spend his time of Sunday morning. For THIS we should be proud of America!

Mort Sahl in His Moods

Deadline Set For European Flight Trip

People who are interested in transportation in Europe during summer vacation have until next Wednesday to express their interest, said Terry Davis, Union board member at large.

The trip can be made available to interested students, faculty and staff, and their families, he said. Any child under the age of 2 will be able to go free when accompanied by an adult.

The flight is mainly to determine how many people think this service should be provided. They will not later be obligated by expressing interest now, said Davis.

Each plane will accommodate 20 people. If the planes are not entirely filled, the passengers to be may either cancel the flight or pay for the remaining seats, providing the number of seats is insufficiently small, he said.

The cost of the trip would cost approximately $275, said Davis, or about half the cost of a regular flight. The trip will be first class, traveling via a jet-propelled plane, the second fastest going across the ocean. The flight would be completed in about eight hours.

Only the trip will be provided by Union board, he said, if the service is adopted. Any plans after arriving is up to the discretion of the individual.

The chartered flights for university personnel has been tried and been successful at neighboring universities.

Students Wanted For 'Players' Trip

The MSU Players are tentatively planning two trips to Detroit to see "An Evening with Beethoven" and "Five Finger Exercise."

"An Evening with Beethoven" will be held at the Riviera Theater on November 18 and 19 at 8:30 p.m.

The "Five Finger Exercise" with its original Broadway cast, will be shown at the Shubert Theater on Saturday, November 26 or Saturday, December 3. It will be a matinee performance on both dates.

The two trips are open to all students. Any student interested in either or both of the trips can obtain further information in Room 40 in the Aud.

If enough students show an interest, a sign-up list will be posted for those definitely going.

CAMPUS CLASSIFIEDS... LOW COST... HIGH READERSHIP...

'This Is Really My Life': Sahl

after meeting the men personally. It is obvious he does mean them.

Sahl is currently on tour and will appear at the Civic Center Saturday at 8:15 p.m. in Lansing.

He routine now centers around the election. He spent the whole evening throwing well-aimed verbal darts at both Kennedy and Nixon.

"The great debate," he laughed. "They turned into two men because Nixon says a bad thing about Jack. Jack says 'do you' and Dick says 'do does your daddy'."

Sahl also has his private remedy for the presidential election.

"Vote 'NO' FOR PRESIDENT. It won't hurt to keep the White House empty for another four years," he quipped.

Sahl hit both candidates for their lack of humor.

"Khrushchev is the only leader in the world who uses humor," he said. "He does it because he knows where he's going and what he wants."

Sahl strolled onto the stage at 7:30 p.m. dressed in his "uniform" of grey slacks, a sloppy yellow V-neck sweater and a white Ivy League shirt open at the neck.

HE CALLED THE sweater an affectionate hangover from his campus days which reminds people he is an educated comic.

He touched on nearly all international topics ranging from the United Nations to Cuba.

"Castro sits down in the morning and says 'we'll seize a sugar refinery at 11 a.m. and what can we take after dinner?'"

Sahl, in an exclusive interview in the State News, proved he knew his business. He knew the positions of every major newspaper in the country and spoke intelligently on all the current news stories.

Sahl is accompanied in his act by the Lighthouse, a talented trio who sing and play the guitar, banjo and harmonica.

They concentrate on old folk songs which they splice up to meet the demands of modern society.

One touching ballad mourned the plight of a suburbanite who was in trouble with the law for entering the wrong house in his housing development.

Algerian Position Presented

The Algerian's position in the world's only "hot" war, the Algerian revolt, will be presented next week on campus in a series of programs sponsored by the International club and the Arab Club.

"The week's main purpose is to inform the American people about the true situation in Algeria," said Walid Khadduri, Iraq sophomore, director of Algerian week.

Two features of the week will be a movie entitled "Algerian Flames" and a series of talks by Fawzi Abu-Diab, midwest director of the Arab Information Center and former member of the Lebanese delegation to the UN.

The movie, in color and narrated in English, shows the Algerian revolutionaries' everyday life, training and combat with the French. According to Khadduri the film has never been shown in the midwest before.

Abu-Diab will talk to the International Relations club, the NAACP, Lansing area civic and church groups and make a television appearance during the week. Khadduri explained that while Abu-Diab will discuss the refugee problem, segregation and minority groups in Arab countries his main emphasis would be on how Americans can help end the revolution.

"A display open to the public will be set up in the UN lounge with pamphlets about the revolution for interested students," Khadduri said.

For Homecoming

20,000 Alumni to Return

By CHARLOTTE DALTON State News Staff Writer

Traditionally, Homecoming is the day when alumni rule and this year will be no exception when an estimated 20,000 old grads return to their alma mater.

When the custom of Homecoming actually began is a matter of some mystery. According to the earliest sources, it began in 1915 when the Alumni Association reorganized as the M.A.C. Association and opened membership to all former students.

AT ITS FIRST autumn meeting held on the day of M.A.C.'s game with Oregon, the Association designated the game as "alumni game." Notre Dame's appearance in 1916 was publicized as the "annual fall Homecoming."

Lyman Frimodig, retired business manager of the athletic department, who was graduated from M.A.C. in 1917, recalls the days when students held pep rallies in Swope Hall, now known as Landon Field, built bondures and marched to the Capitol building in Lansing.

This custom was eventually discouraged by police who often found the celebrating students unruly.

"OF COURSE," Frimodig said, "in those days the student body was much smaller and more united and the demonstrations seemed to start spontaneously. Someone would holler 'let's do something' and you could hear it all over campus."

"I remember one year in particular when Secretary Brown had an old barn on what is now Grand River ave. After the game a group of students got together and burned the thing down. It was an old building and probably needed burning, but luckily someone had sense enough to get the cow out first."

New Scholastic Trophy Activated

The Inter Co-op council announced that it will retire its scholastic trophy and activate a new one.

Elsworth House, which has had the trophy for 14 straight terms will retain permanent possession, according to ICC vice president Jerry Spangler, Defiance, Ohio, Junior.

Elsworth achieved its highest average last spring term, getting a 2.93, which was also the highest average for any undergraduate living unit.

Humanities professor, Dr. Thomas H. Greer, the academic adviser to Elsworth House said this was the first time to his knowledge that a men's living unit has done better than the sororities.

A FRAT TO REMEMBER

Every year, as we all know, the Benevolent and Protective Order of Collegiate Fraternities awards a highly coveted prize to the fraternity house which, in its judgment, has done the most to promote and enhance the fraternity way of life.

The award this year is exceptionally well deserved, for the Sigma Phi Nothing house is the very model of all a fraternity should be. It is, first of all, a most attractive home physically.

The outside walls are tastefully covered with aquaria. Running along the upper story is a widow's walk, with a widow stationed every three feet. Moored to the chimney pole is the Great Zeppelin.

Indoors, the house gives an impression of simple, casual charm. The chapter room is furnished in honey maple and shins, with a dash of veneer provided by a carp pool three hundred feet in diameter. A waterpout rises from the center of the pool with the housemother lounging on the top.

Members' rooms are gracious and airy and are provided with beds which disappear into the wall—permanently. Each room also has a desk, a comfortable chair, a good reading lamp, and a catapult for skeetshooting. Kidney-shaped desks are available for kidney-shaped members.

Perhaps the most fetching feature of the house are the packs of Marlboro stacked in heaps wherever one goes. If one wishes to settle back and enjoy a full-flavored smoke, one needs only to reach out one's hand in any direction and pick a pack of Marlboro—soft pack or flip-top box—and make one's self comfortable with a filtered cigarette with an unfiltered taste—that triumph of the tobaccoist's art, that paragon of smokes, that some of cigarettes, that employer of mice—Marlboro!

The deer, the goat, the Marlboro, all combine to make Sigma Phi Nothing a real gas of a fraternity. But a fraternity is more than things; it is also people. And it is in the people department that Sigma Phi Nothing really shines.

Sigma Phi Nothing has among its members the biggest BMOCs on the entire campus of the South Dakota College of Dentistry and Renaissance Art. There is, for instance, Wilbur Makepeace Sigfoos, charcoal and bun chairman of the annual Stamp Club outing. Then there is Duv Rova, winner of last year's All-South Dakota State Monopoly Championship, 125 Pound Class. Then there is Rock Schwartz, who can sleep standing up. Then there is Tremblant Placabe, who can crack pecans in his armpits. Then there is Ralph Tanyques, who went bald at eight.

But why go on? You can see what a splendid bunch of chaps there is in Sigma Phi Nothing, and when one sees them at the house in the end of the evening, all busy with their tasks—some picking locks, some playing Jacks-or-Better, some dipping Playboy—one's heart fills up and one's eyes grow misty, and one cannot but give three cheers and a tiger for Sigma Phi Nothing, fraternity of the year!

And while you're cheering, how about a huzzah for the newest member of the Marlboro family of fine cigarettes—unfiltered, mild, delightful Philip Morris king-size Commander! Make a Commander—welcome aboard!

Lodge, Students Argue Over Civil Rights Plan

CLEVELAND, (AP)—Henry Cabot Lodge engaged in a heated exchange with a group of students Thursday on the Western Reserve university campus.

He roused his fist and shouted loudly—and finally drew cheers from the 2,000 students when he said he favored strong civil rights legislation.

The rapid-fire exchange came at the end of a question-and-answer period, following the Republican vice presidential nomination's talk to students from Western Reserve and Case Institute of Technology.

A persistent heckler, bearing a placard for Sen. John Kennedy, Democratic presidential nominee, turned the sign around and waved it at Lodge. The reverse side bore this notation: "What about Fayette county?"

Lodge was turning to leave, but pointed at the sign and said: "I answered that. I said that we ought to enact a civil rights program."

Some students roiled back at Lodge. He replied that he did not know enough about the details in that particular county. Someone in the crowd asked him why he didn't know about it.

"It's all I can do to know what I do know and run for vice president," Lodge snapped. Then pointing the heater, the former ambassador to the United Nations said hoarsely:

"I WANT to get at the question of civil rights from the standpoint of voting, from the standpoint of voting, from the standpoint of voting."

Other students shouted that Fayette county was important, and Lodge retorted: "Oh, lots of things are important!"

When someone said something through the hubbub of noise that negroes were starving in that county, Lodge replied:

"Then I'm with you. I'm with you. There's no argument."

He left at that point, to the echo of cheers.

Battled in Michigan

"We need people who can lead this country without making costly mistakes that come from inexperience," the alert, but nervous third campaigner, said.

AT SEVERAL points in his campaign speeches, Nixon denounced Kennedy's reversal of his Democratic stands on Quemoy, Manila and aid to anti-Castro factions in Cuba.

"He wouldn't have a second guess if he were president and we can't afford mistakes."

At Battle Creek, Nixon said "America's government must spend every dollar necessary for education, defense, and other areas. But he pointed out that the president can't give in to pressure groups when it wouldn't be in the best interests of all the people."

Nixon added that if he became president he would not own his residence in any boss whether in labor or management.

The president of this country owes his allegiance to only one law and that's the American people," he said before a resounding cheer from the crowd.

THE REPUBLICAN candidate for president wound up his tour in Muskegon Thursday night with a whitewashing tirade on his opponent.

"For weeks, Mr. Kennedy has been making trouble abroad by belittling the tremendous military and economic strength of the United States and grossly magnifying our shortcomings."

"He's an all-time expert at seeing only the hole in the doughnut."

Nixon's crowds were estimated by most people traveling with him who had also traveled with Kennedy as being twice as large as those attracted by Kennedy.

MUSKEGON is the only town along the tour where the two party factions agreed to be evenly split if the number of political posters can be used as a basis.

Very few Kennedy posters were seen at any stop along the way except at Muskegon, where they were about even.

Nixon spokesmen say they are trying to win Muskegon county from the hands of the Democrats by this final and vigorous speech at the rally in Muskegon. Nixon also dedicated a new Muskegon ice arena in a non-partisan speech.

AUSG Report Favors Voluntary Training

By JODY HOWARD
State News Staff Writer

The AUSG select committee on ROTC submitted a report to Student Government last Wednesday on the ROTC situation.

Since the resolution passed by Student Government last year, recommending the abolishment of compulsory ROTC, the local and national picture has changed substantially.

With these changes as grounds, the select committee has asked for action upon the ROTC question by Student Government.

The recent reworking of MSU's ROTC program, especially that of the Air Force, was commended by the select committee. However, these changes questioned whether the program had for improvement.

DURING THE summer, the committee corresponded with other universities on the problem.

Private university officials said that the compulsory program was essential to the nation's welfare and complementary to the academic aims of the university.

Other schools, however, seriously questioned the need for compulsory ROTC. The University of Iowa felt that any compulsory program which applies to all students must be very strongly justified, and wondered if the ROTC program has such justification.

Ohio State, Illinois, Oklahoma, and the University of California, while they have not taken a stand in either direction, are carefully studying their ROTC programs to see if they meet the needs of the times.

OTHER UNIVERSITIES, on the other hand, have long declared themselves in favor of a voluntary program. Among these are Minnesota, Wisconsin, Buffalo, Rutgers, Penn State, and Cornell.

Another significant development bearing on the MSU ROTC program is the U.S. Defense Department's official stand on the compulsory program, which is nearly diametrically opposed to the Department of the Army on some important issues.

Assistant Secretary of Defense Charles Finucane said, "In order for the Defense Department to support a compulsory policy, a military need should exist. The compulsory basic ROTC, however, is not needed to meet the quality standard or the quantity of officers required."

Dowey Short, Assistant Secretary of the Army for Manpower and Reserve Forces, claims that without the required basic course, the Army cannot meet the minimum peacetime officer requirements.

THE SELECT COMMITTEE said that the Defense Department has the greater perspective of the whole problem, and is legally and militarily above the Army Department.

In the light of these and other developments and studies, and because of student demand for a renewed investigation, the select committee feels that the ROTC question must again be submitted to Congress for rediscussion and reanalysis of its most pressing problems.

The committee, with Dale Warner as chairman, made recommendations on the following questions:

1. Should ROTC exist? The committee unanimously felt that ROTC is essential to our national security, and should definitely be continued.

2. Is compulsory ROTC necessary? What bearing does a compulsory program have on our national security? The committee sided with the U.S. Defense Department in discrediting the necessity for a required basic program.

IT REPEATED the Army's claim that compulsory ROTC inculcated ideals of patriotism, sacrifice, and service in those who take it. It said that a student in ROTC is not necessarily any more patriotic than his male classmates who has not.

Also the committee doubted the value of basic ROTC in its claimed development of discipline. They said that "the discipline needed in a democracy is self-discipline arising from a commitment to the highest values of mankind, not the slavish submission to order that breaks down into unruly behavior as soon as the external authority is removed."

A university staff art exhibition will be held through Nov. 6 in Kresge Art Center.

Paintings, sculpture, and prints from permanent collections are on display, including Zubarana's vision of St. Anthony.

Other reasons for doing away with compulsory ROTC were mentioned by the committee.

The compulsory program, claimed the committee, creates an image of the university as a servant of the national government, rather than a free institution.

ANOTHER REASON is that compulsory ROTC may cost MSU brilliant and dedicated individuals who choose to enroll at other institutions where military training is not required.

The most significant point of all, said the committee, is that ROTC wastes the uninterested students' time, time that might better be devoted to studies more appropriate to a university.

The final reason the committee advanced was economy. The current program, it claimed, is wasteful and expensive, since less than 5 percent of those students taking the required basic course ever receive their reserve commissions.

With these considerations in mind, the select committee could see no reason for not making ROTC voluntary immediately. It urged the Board of Trustees to declare that, beginning in the fall of 1961, ROTC will become voluntary.

Kresge Hosts Art Exhibition

A university staff art exhibition will be held through Nov. 6 in Kresge Art Center.

AUSG Bares ROTC Plan

A. Maximize the number of eligible other candidates by allowing greater flexibility in the individual institutions with regard to the number of military contact hours required per week, the number of weeks allowed for summer camp and the number of years of required contact with military personnel;

B. Make it reflect the modern methods of war and modern conditions of education;

C. Make it take cognizance of the importance of ROTC by making the completion of any portion of ROTC take the place of a proportional length of time required service in the Armed Services;

D. That the military heads of ROTC and the faculty cooperate in the reorganization of the ROTC program on campus to conform to the two year voluntary pre-professional program (as outlined in the report), including:

A. A vigorous academic program,

B. A faculty policy coordinating committee to guard the academic strength of ROTC;

C. A utilization of civilian instructors wherever possible and well trained military instructors where they are necessary;

D. A system of accreditation comparable to other courses, and

E. A counseling service concerning officer candidacy;

4. That the military heads of ROTC

A. redefine the goals of ROTC to conform to its functional purposes and reorganize ROTC to conform to these goals;

B. place all instruction completely military in nature into the summer camp, including everything pertaining to uniforms, drill and military courtesies;

C. reorganize ROTC so as to increase the number of officer candidates by making more flexible the time allowed for decision and entering the program;

D. organize a post-graduate form of ROTC;

E. accept the full financial support for all facilities and supplies;

F. offer scholarships and loans to deserving and needing officer candidates; and

G. increase compensation of summer camp to conform to normal summer earnings.

And He It Further Resolved that Committee for Voluntary ROTC be organized by Congress whose members shall consist of interested faculty members and students and whose purpose shall be that of:

A. informing the students, faculty and public of the situation;

B. keeping the issues alive before the students, faculty and public;

C. coordinating student, faculty and public action toward achieving the above changes; and

D. seeking cooperation with public groups who desire the above changes.

Adams Attends Seminar In Denmark On Econ

Dr. Walter Adams, professor of economics, recently attended the annual meeting of the Foundation for the Study of the Culture in Copenhagen, Denmark.

He was invited to attend the seminar by H.E.R. The Prince of the Netherlands, President of the F.S.C. One American and one European were invited to participate in debate and discussion for each subject.

Adams spoke on "Economic, Ideology and American Politics." The theme of the seminar was the economic basis of politics.

He discussed the factors which explain the cooperation, competition and lack of class consciousness in American politics.

THREE FACTORS Adams said include the structure of the American government, the tradition of individualism and the traditional American preference for the immediate and the practical.

"The system of American politics," he said, "has worked to create the spirit of modernization within the modern structure and the consequence of many plagues."

The economic problems confronting America's students have been dealt with successfully and the people have been satisfied with the performance," Adams said.

"Content with the general functioning of the economic mechanism," he said, "they have been disinclined to inquire into its theoretical structure."

Alfred Messer, of Bruxelles, Belgium, was the European representative in this seminar. Lord Kennel of Kent, a governor of the foundation, was the chairman.

OTHER TRENDS discussed in the week long session were cultural interaction between Europe and the USA and the rift between the two cultures, humanitarian and scientific.

English, French and German were spoken at the seminar. Improving devices, such as those used in the United Nations, were employed.

The Council of Governors of the foundation are outstanding cultural leaders from Western Europe.

The foundation's major objectives, to gain a better understanding of the cultural leaders in different countries and to gain a better understanding between the arts and sciences.

News Calls For Lens Recruits

Want to be a press photographer? State News is looking for recruits for its photo staff. No previous experience necessary.

Experienced news photographers and photo editors on the State News staff will train applicants, according to Sharon Coody, managing editor.

State News photographers take pictures on and off campus of a vast variety of news events including football games and high school news stories as well as presidential candidates to the campus.

STATE NEWS shares a fully equipped darkroom with other student publications. Staff photographers work under the direction of a photo editor and darkroom manager.

No previous experience is necessary, although those who are familiar with cameras or a darkroom will of course, learn faster.

Both men and women students are eligible to try out for the photo staff.

Interested students may see Miss Coody any week day after 2 p.m. in the State News office, 241 Student Services.

Veterinary Study May Reduce Disease Spread

Research now being done by members of the College of Veterinary Medicine may result in a reduction of disease spread in humans and animals, according to officials.

Dr. Clyde Smith, assistant professor of veterinary medicine, and Dr. W. C. Whitehair, professor of veterinary medicine, are heading separate studies in the raising of disease free and germ free animals.

Smith's work is centered on raising germ free mice.

WHITEHAIR HAS concentrated on raising both germ free and disease free pigs in the college's new laboratory west of Mt. Hope road on Hamilton road.

Work began in the new laboratory last April, said Smith. He reported that facilities there were not yet complete.

He expected that the laboratory would be complete's ready for use by the first of the year.

THE TOTAL COST of the new laboratory, as estimated by Dr. W. W. Armstrong, dean of the College of Veterinary Medicine, was $45,000.

By experimenting with germ free mice, Smith said, discoveries can be made as to the exact cause of certain diseases in both animals and humans.

WHITEHAIR SAID that his work, if successful, will lead to improved and more efficient growth rate of swine, elimination of certain diseases, and increased profits from the raising of swine.

Assisting Whitehair are Dr. Glen Waxler and Dr. Don Schmidt. Both are instructors in the college of Veterinary Medicine.

Tea Honors 50 Language Majors

Fifty Honors College students majoring in English or foreign languages and high-ranking freshmen intending to enter those studies were recognized at a tea in the library lounge Thursday afternoon.

The Honors B. Nye, head of the division of language and literature, said the purpose of the tea was to honor those students who have already done well in the college and to encourage others planning to enter the majors.

Employees Given Savings Plan

A new educational savings plan has been announced by the University Employees Credit Union.

The plan makes it possible to save a small amount per month over a ten year period by payments of from $5 to $50.

The educational fund can be separate, if the depositor wishes.

Kind Goblins Work Monday

Trick or Treat this Halloween for 55,000,000 children and mothers in 107 countries will not mean witches, goblins and jack-o-lanterns, but food, shelter and medical aid given to them through the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF).

American boys and girls participating in UNICEF's version of Trick or Treat will ring doorbells Monday night to gather "treats" of coins to help combat the diseases and malnutrition of needy children around the globe.

Ten years ago several Sunday school children donated their Trick or Treat pennies, nickels, and dimes to UNICEF, and last year's total of $1,500,000 secured extensive aid for suffering children.

Money donated to the Trick or Treat for UNICEF funds is money used to fight malnutrition, aid basic maternal and child health and welfare services, help governments control and eliminate diseases affecting large numbers of children and send emergency supplies to children affected by floods, earthquakes, and famine.

Young Americans ringing doorbells this Halloween for UNICEF will not be looking for personal goodies, but money to help millions of underprivileged children around the world according to the United States Committee for UNICEF.

Fire engine and all, Sigma Chi's ready for tonight's pep rally.

Fire Truck Represents Past Glory

No, there isn't a fire at the Sigma Chi house.

It's the same run-away fire engine that was seen on campus back in 1953.

This fire truck, delivered Wednesday afternoon, is the same one that welcomed incoming freshmen and led student parades during MSU's long football winning streak.

In fact, because of a parade, it hasn't been around for these past seven years.

Leading a parade to welcome the football team back from a road trip, the overcrowded fire engine caught fire. The football team helped put out the fire and fans pushed it along so the parade could continue.

After that it was retired.

The rejuvenated fire truck is now being used by the Sigma Chi's for stirring up Homecoming spirit. So far it has picked up costs from sororities for hot chocolate, acted as a bus and generally caused confusion.

Picking up students at Berkeley hall Wednesday afternoon, the fire truck carried them to the opposite end of campus. Students with classes in Berkeley hall were then brought back on the return trip.

'U.S. Economy Best in Months,' Management Club Learns

The U.S. economy currently will present a better picture than it has in the last four months, said Walter A. Edwards, deputy assistant secretary of commerce, before the Management Club Wednesday night.

"I line up with those who believe," said Edwards, "that the outlook for our economy is favorable for the coming months and for years to come, barring some international catastrophe, which I do not anticipate."

THE ECONOMY, on the whole, has operated at a record rate this year, he said. There have been substantial gains in civilian employment and personal income has also been greatly expanded, commented Edwards.

"And while unemployment is higher than we like to see it," he said, "those in the ranks of the unemployed were fewer by 400,000 in September than in August."

For the first time in twenty years, said Edwards, businessmen find themselves in a new environment, which is a community learning to live without inflation.

"We are witnessing the economic consequences of the bewilderment and hesitation of people no longer afflicted by the fear of the fact of chronic inflation," he said.

There has been an upturn in our foreign trade, said Edwards. In the second quarter of last year our trade had almost reached a balance between imports and exports, he said. This resulted in a disturbing deficit in our balance of payments, Edwards continued.

"I AM HAPPY to report," he said, "a strong upswing in our exports since the middle of 1959 which today tops imports by over four billion dollars at an annual rate."

Housing starts have been a little disappointing, said Edwards, but the total of new construction has climbed steadily since January.

"I have sincerely attempted to present a balanced picture of our economy," said Edwards. "It has many strong points and some obvious weak spots."

To achieve economic growth with price stability, he said, is the major problem. This will depend on balanced judgment in forming effective policies of both government and private industry, added Edwards.

"HOW CAN WE INCREASE sales?" asked Edwards.

He answered this question by stating that we must build more value into the item. This means by improving the item, Edwards said, at the same price or by lowering present prices.

"But how can this be done if rising costs of production preclude putting the item on the market?" he asked in the speech.

We need more efficient machinery and personnel to achieve higher purchasing power, Edwards said in reply to his question, not constant wage increases that become cost increases.

"AND THIS MEANS a stepping-up in the rate of investment," added Edwards, "for which a general overhaul of tax policy is an obvious means."

"It is our greatest economic asset," Edwards said, "because better than any system ever devised, it motivates and rewards hard work, individual initiative, and the human desire for a better life."

Latin President Ousted

A six-man junta seized power today from President Jose Maria Lemus and sent him fleeing to neighboring Guatemala.

The capital and the hinterlands of this smallest nation in the Americas were reported calm after the lightning military coup.

It followed weeks of student demonstrations against the nation's social and economic inequalities. Lemus had retaliated with a police crackdown. The Salvador University faculty accused the police of brutality and shut down the school for a time.

The junta that seized control is composed of three civilians and three military men. Some elements of the military were believed alarmed at the extent of Lemus' measures to stop agitation, which he blamed on communists.

A REPORT to the Inter-American Press Association this month said Lemus had prohibited the local press from reporting the disturbances.

(Reports outside the country said several members of the Salvadoran National Guard appeared to be plotting against Lemus.)

State Meets Indiana Tech

Michigan State's soccer squad will play host to another undefeated, unbeaten Saturday when they take on Indiana Tech. The game will be played at the Spartan's field at 10 a.m.

This will be the Spartans' second game this week with an undefeated ballclub. Last Wednesday they defeated Ohio U. 10-0. Ohio came here with a five and two record.

INDIANA TECH's record for the season is four wins, no losses, and one tie. Two weeks ago they tied the U. of Illinois at Chicago, 2-2.

Gene Kenney, Spartan coach, is looking for a tough game Saturday. He has been trying different positions of his players and he has high hopes for the combination he used last Wednesday.

"I think I've found a good combination for the rest of the season," he said. "As you can tell, I've been experimenting and I think I've got it now."

KENNEY said that he would like to see more fans get out to the games. The Spartans have only two home games remaining and Saturday's is one of them.

"I'm sure that the fans will see a good game," he said. "Indiana Tech. has a wealth of talent and has a very able coach in Bob Luffers."

MSU In Contention

By Curt Rundell

By CURT RUNDALL
State News Sports Writer

After witnessing MSU's soccer team swamp Ohio U. 10-0, I returned to the office to write my usual game story. When I came in I found a bulletin that had been mailed to me from the NCAA soccer association.

The bulletin informed me that MSU, Ohio U., Akron, and St. Louis were being considered for the berth to the NCAA championship playoff to be held in December.

Considering the tremendous score that State had racked up against Ohio, I felt that the Spartan's coach, Gene Kenney, should be asked about our chances of getting the berth.

I called him and told him what the bulletin said. Then I asked him what he thought of our chances. He answered: "Well, as the bulletin said, we aren't out of the running yet. We have a chance to go all the way and get the NCAA berth if we can win our remaining four ballgames."

When I asked him what he thought our chances of winning the last four games.

He said that he couldn't say, but that Indiana Tech, the team State plays Saturday, would be a tough ballgame.

He pointed out that Indiana Tech. was one of State's toughest ballgames last year when State beat them 4-3.

As I see the coming game, it looks like a real close one. State has a fine ballclub, but Indiana Tech's undefeated record can't be ignored. No team can have such a record without being good.

Last Wednesday State looked like it couldn't be beaten, but their going to have to continue to play such fine soccer if they want to beat teams like Indiana Tech.

Decker Picks

By TOM DECKER

Homecoming weekend should find the Spartans in top form and ready to take Ohio State in one of the outstanding games in the country Saturday.

Last week's predictions found our crystal ball right 14 times and wrong four times. For the season, the record is 60 right, 18 wrong and two ties for a .769 percentage.

Here are this week's picks:
MSU over Ohio State 14 points;
Michigan over Wisconsin 12 points;
Minnesota over Kansas State 17 points;
Purdue over Illinois 14 points;
Northwestern over Indiana 17 points;
Iowa over Kansas 11 points;
Navy over Notre Dame

- Penn State over West Virginia
Pittsburgh over Syracuse (1st part of THE WEEK)
Army over Miami (Ohio)
Auburn over Florida
Texas over Southern Methodist
Minnesota over Nebraska
Rice over Texas Tech
Colorado over Oklahoma
Oregon State over California
Washington over Oregon
Arizona over Texas A&M
UCLA over North Carolina State
The top 10 ratings this week:
1. Iowa

 10. Purdue
 11. Ohio State

Syracuse To Face Pittsburgh

N.Y., Oct. 28 (AP)—Syracuse puts its 16-game winning streak and No. 3 national rating on the line tomorrow against a sturdy Pittsburgh team which has been beaten twice and tied twice. A sellout crowd of 40,000-plus will watch at Archbold Stadium.

Although Pitt's record for the season is 2-2-2, a difference of just six points would have swung the balance to 6-0. They lost to UCLA and Oklahoma, each by one point, and were tied by Michigan State and Texas Christian University.

Coach Ben Schwartzwalder expects to have his regular starting backfield in top shape for the first time this season.

Delts Aim To Keep Grid Title

Delta Tau Delta who won the All University football championship last year by defeating the independent team of Uncle Tom's Boys remains undefeated and unscored upon this year.

The Delts who have a full returning team plus many new recruits have been successfully quarterbacked by Jim Draves, Saginaw senior.

Top contenders for the Fraternity Championship include Zeta Beta Tau, Lambda Chi Alpha, Alpha Tau Omega and Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Sport Shorts

The Spartan barriers, who have dominated cross country throughout the nation for the past few years, have won more Big Ten titles than any other team at MSU.

Michigan State's cross country team won an unprecedented five straight NCAA championships from 1933 to 1937.

The end of the football season brings no rest to Michigan State gridder's Art Brandstatter, Tommy Wilson and Lonnie Sanders. All switch to duty with the Spartan basketball squad.

Spartan Harriers to Test Strength Against Ohio U and Notre Dame Teams

By IVANROE DONALDSON
State News Sports Writer

Michigan State's cross country squad will take on Ohio State and Notre Dame today in its first home meet of the season. The triangular meet will be run at 4 p.m. on the Forest Akers Golf Course.

The starting lineup for the Spartans will be Capt. Billy Reynolds, juniors Gerry Young and Clayton Ward, sophomores Frank Weaver, Roger Humbarger and Don Castle, and senior George Tate.

COACH FRAN DITTRICH feels confident that his harriers will do well. State is making good progress toward the NCAA, according to the successful member.

Young, Reynolds, Ward, Weaver, and Humbarger ran excellently in an intrasquad meet held last Friday. Sophomore Don Castle also had a good day and will be getting his first starting chance today.

Ed Graydon, who has been out most of the season due to an injury, might also be a possible starter today. Graydon who has been improving rapidly in the last few days could push senior George Tate, who has not been running up to par lately, off the traveling team.

NOTRE DAME, who lost their last two meets to Indiana and Western Michigan, will be seeking their first win against State in many years.

Ron Gregory, who was 17th in the NCAA last year, will be the number one man for the Irish. Joining him will be Tom Demsey, Bill Yaley, Dan Korke and Terry Jones.

OHIO STATE will also be seeking a win against the Spartans due to their loss to Ohio University last week. James Massey will be the pace setter for Ohio. James Davis, Larry White, Jack Knoll and Dan McCormick will be joining him on the starting line.

Richards or Rigney to Pilot Tigers?

DETROIT, Oct. 27 (AP)—The Detroit Free Press said tonight that the Detroit Tigers were trying to sign Paul Richards as manager of the club to replace the departed Joe Gordon.

Richards is manager of the Baltimore Orioles and has a 1961 contract.

Earlier today, the Detroit Times said it had learned that Bill Rigney former manager of the San Francisco Giants, would be named to manage the Tigers.

THE TIMES SAID confirmation of Rigney's selection at $30,000 a year would come shortly from John E. Fetzer, who owns controlling interest in the Detroit Baseball Co.

Rigney previously had been mentioned by the Associated Press as a likely successor to Gordon, who quit Detroit to become Kansas City manager at the end of the 1960 American League Season.

The Detroit News, however, said Harry M. Sisson, Executive Vice President of the Tigers, claimed no one had been picked yet for the job, adding Sisson "declared that there was no truth in a report that . . . Rigney . . . had been signed for the Detroit job."

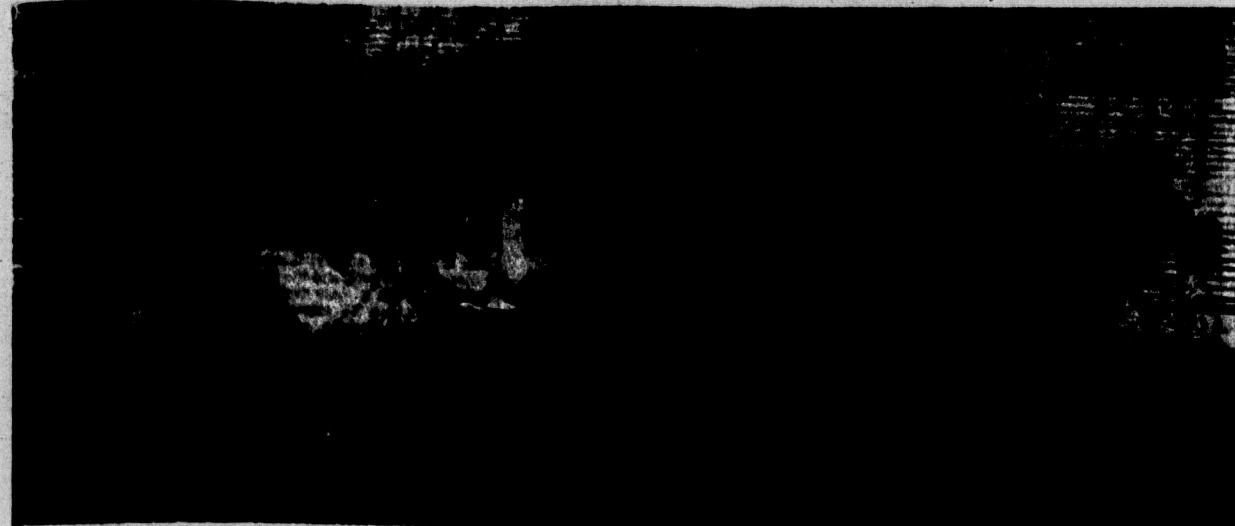

LYALL SMITH, Detroit Free Press Sports Editor, said that Rick Ferrell, acting Tiger General Manager, and James Campbell, a club Vice president have left Detroit for Phoenix, Ariz., "to try to woo Paul Richards into stepping out of his contract to manage Baltimore next season in exchange for a lush five-year pact at Detroit."

Richards owns property in Phoenix.

Smith said Ferrell and Campbell "alighted out of Detroit quietly. They didn't even tell their wives where they were headed. Nor did they tell anyone at Briggs Stadium (home of the Tigers.)"

"But I discovered that they flew from here to Chicago and then left O'Hare field for Phoenix."

"They do not own property there. But they hope to have a valuable 51-year-old piece of baseball merchandise signed, sealed and wrapped up for 1961 delivery at the local ball park. Richards, that is."

Title Contending Spartans Clash With Ohio State

Ohio State and Michigan State, two nationally-rated clubs seeking to stay in contention for the Big Ten title, clash at East Lansing Saturday in what could be one of the great games of the year.

The kickoff will be at 1:30 p.m. EST.

A sellout crowd of over 76,000 is virtually assured.

The game will be the NCAA game of the day on television to viewers in the Eastern and Mid-Western areas of the country.

The winner will stay in close pursuit of front-running Iowa and Minnesota for the Western Conference championship and could take the laurels should they stumble. The loser will drop into the middle of the pack and relinquish any title chances.

THE BUCKEYES have won four and lost one, including two of three in loop play.

The Spartans have three wins, one loss and one tie, including one win and one loss in the Big Ten.

The Buckeyes and Spartans have met four times before, all of them at Columbus, and every one of them has been a barn-burner.

The very close scores tell the story: 1912—Michigan State, 35; Ohio State 20. 1951—Michigan

State 24, Ohio State 20. 1953—Michigan State 28, Ohio State 13, 1959—Ohio State 30, Michigan State 24.

MORE OF the same kind of rousing, even stephen action is considered a certainty.

Stars are as numerous as at a Broadway "First night."

BUCKEYE fullback Bob Ferguson, a 220-pound bulldozer, is one of the brightest. Just last week he led the Bucks crushing assault which resulted in a 34-7 rout of Wisconsin by personally scoring twice. This same Ferguson was a sharp thorn in Michigan State's side last year.

Quarterback Tom Matte has developed into one of the best anywhere. He took a big step in that direction by tossing three touchdown passes in the Bucks' 1959 victory over Michigan State.

Up front are such top hands as tackle Jim Tyrer, and guards Don Young and Gabe Hartman.

Both teams have strong, productive offenses and stingy defenses. Michigan State has scored 102 points in five games, while giving up 51. Ohio State has registered 133 and yielded only 38.

The Spartans will seek to counter this powerful combine with a team which will be sub-par physically for the first time this fall.

Fullback Carl Charon, the team's leading rusher and scorer, is a doubtful participant. A sprained knee which he suffered in the Indiana game may keep him on the sidelines. Another fullback, George Salinas, also may be held to limited action due to a bruised knee.

The Spartans will look to quarterback Tommy Wilson, a veteran player who has found his way to stardom in the last several games, to pace the attack. Just last Saturday he completed seven of 11 passes for two touchdowns against Indiana, and did a magnificent field general's job.

Heavy responsibility will fall on junior fullback Ron Hatcher in the possible absence of Charon. He has been the offensive team fullback while Charon has been the No. 1 defensive unit fullback.

The Spartan line, led by such men as Fred Boylen, Mickey Walker and Dave Behrman will have a major test in trying to contain the Buckeye power.

The Spartans will have back again all of the men who scored against the Buckeyes last year. They are touchdown scorers Gary Ballman, Herb Adderley and Fred Arbanas. Junior end Art Brandstatter kicked a field goal and three straight extra points.

The game will be the Homecoming Day feature at Michigan State.

Powerful Lushes Play Puny Politicians

By LUTHER ARDFARB
State News Lush Writer

Saturday morning Lushes from all across the country will arise for the annual Shovel Bowl Classic played at Landon Field.

Capacity crowds are expected for the big game and temporary coach, athletic director, star end and waterboy Ben Burns said in an exclusive interview at temporary Lushwell Headquarters, McDonald's Drive-In, "we stand a good chance of winning this year."

"We have bought some referees and the NCAA hasn't been watching our recruiting procedure and we have several definite prospects for the Lushwell All-American awards."

According to other high standing Lushwell officials the reason the temporary headquarters is at McDonald's is because very few of the new regime are 21.

Black Lush has been formed and is ready to stage a demonstration if the Stupid Goobs, popular title of Student Government should by some freak accident get ahead.

According to inside spy reports from Lushwell men in Student Government, the politicians have been worrying all week.

Goob leaders Dan Riedel and Chuck Herbert tried several maneuvers to gain an early lead over the Lushes but they were ruled out of order by Burns according to Lushwell version of parliamentary procedure.

Herbert in a desperation gesture even tried to insist that the Goobs get to furnish one of the refs. The Lushes didn't consider this proposal sensible enough to consider.

So for the students who would like to see their government in action can come out to Landon Field Saturday morning and find out why constructive legislation never gets passed.

According to Lush veterans it is interesting to watch government officials throw off filibustering tactics for one hour and get organized enough to play a football game.

When facing a well groomed athletic machine like Lushwell it is said to be extremely ludicrous.

LUCKY STRIKE PRESENTS: DEAR DR. FROOD:

DR. FROOD'S THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: Early to bed and early to rise is an excellent way to avoid people.

Dear Dr. Frood: Don't you agree that every college man has the right, in fact, the duty, to stand up and speak out for the things he believes in? Tomorrow I am going straight to the college president and tell him, politely but firmly, what is wrong here—the inferior teaching, the second-rate accommodations, the bad food. My friends think I am wrong to do this. What do you think?

Dear Dr. Frood: What should I look for first when I look for a wife?

Searching

DEAR SEARCHING: Her husband.

Dear Dr. Frood: Our son has been in college three months, and we haven't heard a word from him. Not even a post card. I don't want him to think I am too demanding or overprotective, but frankly I am worried. What should I do?

Worried Mother

DEAR WORRIED: Why worry after only three months in college? He's still learning how to write.

Dear Dr. Frood: I am six feet five, 225 pounds, handsome, tanned, muscled, a good athlete. But I can't get along with girls because I can never think of anything to say. What do you suggest?

Brainy

DEAR BRAINY: "Be Terman, you Jane."

Dear Dr. Frood: I am puzzled by the Lucky Strike slogan: "Remember how great cigarettes used to taste? Luckies still do." I've been sitting here for hours, thinking, thinking, thinking, but for the life of me I can't remember. What should I do about this?

Forgetful

DEAR FORGETFUL: I suggest you lean back, relax, and light up a Lucky Strike. I'm sure it will all come back to you—who you are, what you want, where you live, everything.

FROOD FAD SWEEPS COLLEGES! They laughed when Dr. Frood started the new college craze of enjoying a Lucky while hanging from a coat rack. But now everybody is doing it! Smoking Luckies, that is. Today college students smoke more Luckies than any other regular. Reason: With or without coat rack, Luckies deliver the greatest taste in smoking today.

CHANGE TO LUCKIES and get some taste for a change!

South African Press Urges Repeal of 'Heartbreak Law'

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—South African newspapers have urged repeal of a law which forbids publication of the full names and addresses of accused persons.

This was no joke, but a serious headline which became part of a campaign for repeal of what some call South Africa's "heartbreak law."

This is a series of criminal laws commonly referred to as the immorality act. It forbids sexual relations between whites and non-whites (blacks, mixed-bloods or Asians).

The incident that produced the headline occurred when a young white man impersonated the police to gain entrance to the lodgings of a Negro woman. He made advances and managed to kiss her before she called for help and had him arrested. The man was charged under the immorality act but his lawyer got him acquitted, pleading that to convict an indocent under the act requires sexual relations.

A leading South African jurist says this country, a white supremacist government, stands almost alone in the world with this law. The maximum penalty of seven years in prison has never been imposed. But there is so much shame attached to a conviction that it can ruin a man's career or break up a family. Recently the Afrikaner-Communist government let it be known that it is considering restricting the press to publishing only the initials of persons prosecuted under the immorality act. Some English language newspapers charged that this was only a maneuver to avoid embarrassment, because many of the men caught in inter-racial sexual relations are Afrikaners.

One of the sharpest blasts against the immorality act was fired by the Johannesburg Sunday Express, which declared editorially: "This shameful law should be scrapped since, without stopping the so-called 'crimes of miscegenation, it has caused untold misery and invited the danger of a particularly revolting form of blackmail. The suggestion that the press should be allowed to publish only the initials of accused persons instead of the full names and addresses is especially dangerous."

In small communities initials would be no protection for the accused. In large centers there would be the grave danger of a terrible injustice being done to innocent people who happen to have the same initials as the accused. If we insist on keeping this shocking law on the statute books we must have the courage of our convictions and endure the communal shame that goes with it.

Prosecutions under the immorality act are increasing. Judges in Johannesburg dealt with 50 in 6 months. Most of these involved white men and African women, although there have been some cases of white women involved with Indian men.

South Africa has a population of about 15 million. Three million are whites, nearly 10 million black, nearly 1.5 million coloreds (mixed bloods) and 441,000 Asians. The coloreds include some of the most beautiful people in this country. They belong neither to the whites nor to the Bantu (blacks), but are the product of inter-racial relations dating back to the discovery of this land by white explorers from Europe.

In 1927 the Roosa act outlawed any sexual intercourse between white and black. This did not touch the colored people or the Indians. In 1930 the prohibition was extended to include all classes of nonwhites. In 1957 the law was further strengthened. It now penalizes immoral or indecent acts across the color line.

Oh! Dick What Did You Say?

NEW YORK, (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon said Thursday, "I am not a natural politician."

On a taped CBS television interview, he told his audience: "You think of somebody in political life as being an outgoing, backslapping type. I must admit that I am somewhat reserved, and I think that is the result of my background and training."

"On the other hand, I do have a liking for people — a great affection for people — which I think in the long run is the most essential factor in political life, and that's true however we may feel on issues. You have to like people to be able to go through a campaign."

Nixon appeared on the "Person to Person" television show, moderated by Charles Collingwood.

With the Republican presidential nominee was his wife, Pat.

CBS arranged for a televised exchange between the Nixons and their two daughters in Washington, Tricia and Julie.

The children were able to see and talk with their parents via the screen.

Nixon's Democratic rival for the White House, Sen. John Kennedy, appeared with his family on the same show Sept. 24.

Tomatoes For Dick

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—Tomatoes were hurled at Vice President Richard M. Nixon's car today as he rode through a surging crowd in a motorcade to a rally in the Grand Rapids business district.

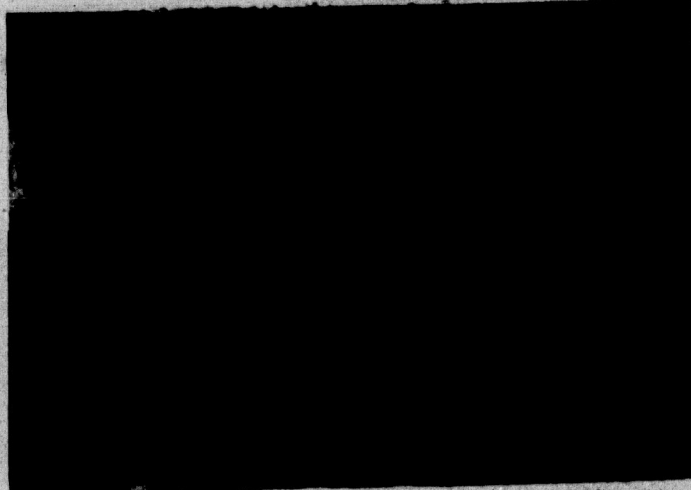

Police guarding the car said neither Nixon nor his wife was hit although one tomato splattered against the car and another fell into it.

Don Decker, a Grand Rapids policeman who was running along the right side of the vice president's convertible, said one tomato struck him. Another hit a photographer riding in a truck in front of the Nixon car.

BLIND TOUR SHIP

CORONADO, Calif. (AP)—Pacific fleet amphibious force headquarters got word from the attack transport USS George Clymer about an unusual visit of children to the ship.

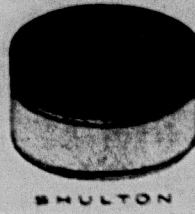

It was anchored at Hong Kong and the 39 children were all blind and spoke only Chinese. They toured the ship just the same and its details were described to them by interpreters. They were guests for lunch and received gifts of clothing from the crew.

Nixon Target For Egg Toss

JACKSON, Mich. (AP)—Three eggs were tossed toward vice President Richard M. Nixon Friday as he spoke here from the rear platform of his train during a whistle-stop tour of Michigan.

Police Chief Roscoe V. Gray said one of the eggs splattered over a little girl after striking a railroad signal post, and the second missile hit a state trooper, George Engle, a TV cameraman for WILX-TV, Jackson, said another egg landed at his feet.

All three fell far short of reaching the platform where the Republican presidential candidate was speaking.

Nixon gave no sign of noticing the incident.

No arrests were made, Gray said.

Friday's incident was the second involving the presidential candidates in the past week. Nixon's Democratic opponent, Senator John F. Kennedy, got a glass of whiskey in the face. It was thrown by a woman as he campaigned through the Midwest.

Arnold Air Unit Honors ROTC Men

On hand for the presentations were Col. Thomas J. Barrett, FAS, Major Bernard J. Reagan, asst. director of education, and Capt. Donald K. McClure, advisor for AAS.

Papers Say U. S. Image Blurring

NEW YORK (AP)—Two newspaper surveys showed U. S. prestige in Britain and France declined after the collapse of summit talks in Paris last May.

The New York Times and the Washington Post disclosed the survey in Thursday's editions.

The Times, which published the text, said the survey showed Nixon also lost prestige.

The accounts fed new fuel into a raging campaign controversy over whether U. S. standing in the world is slipping—of Democratic presidential candidate John F. Kennedy contends—or is at an all-time high—has Republican candidate Richard M. Nixon says.

The Times is backing Kennedy. The Post has endorsed neither Kennedy nor Nixon.

The Post said the survey was compiled by USA's office of research and analysis and furnished to the National Security Council. As vice president, Nixon sits with the highest policy-making council. The survey still is classified as secret.

The Times said the survey was based on an opinion sample of 1,100 British citizens and 1,100 Frenchmen late in May.
