Ex-Dishwasher Admits Illinois Park Slayings

OTTAWA, ILL. (AP) — A stocky ex-dishwasher confessed today that he bludgeoned three women to death last spring in a canyon of Starved Rock State park.

The slayings first were told by Chester Otto Weger, 21, of nearby La Salle, in a semi-hysterical, sobbing confession. Then afterward, showing almost exuberant relief, he re-enacted the killings of last March.

They happened, he said, because his victims wouldn't cooperate in his attempt to rob them.

In a series of swift moves to wind up the 8-month-old case, evidence against Weger was presented to a grand jury late today.

AUTHORITIES RELATED that the web of accusing circumstances had been closing around Weger slowly for many weeks. He had worked in the Starved Rock State Park lodge at the time of the slayings.

In rapid sequence, after Weger began to tell his story between sobs at 1:45 a.m., he was arraigned on three murder charges and eight lesser charges involving other cases.

Then, taken in chains to the state park, he led authorities along St. Louis Canyon, re-enacting the killing of Mrs. Lillian Oetting, 50; Mrs. Mildred Lindquist, 50, and Mrs. Francis Murphy, 47, all wives of business executives who lived in Riverside, a Chicago suburb.

The three women had gone together to the park for a brief holiday on March 14. After lunch at the lodge, they set out for a hike which took them to the canyon, a steep, narrow defile in limestone strata at the park's west edge.

WEGER, WHO has a wife and two small children, told how he spotted the three women in the canyon on a foray to snatch a purse and get some money.

He approached the women and made a grab for what he thought was a purse. As he tore it from Mrs. Murphy, breaking the strap, he saw that it was a camera. Then, he pleaded with the incensed women to go farther into the canyon and give him a chance to escape.

They finally acceded to the stocky, tousle-haired Weger. But he stalked them, still intent upon robbery. At the closed end of the canyon, he menaced them with a heavy piece of tree limb, then herded them to a small cave and tied them together with twine he had taken from the lodge kitchen.

Up to that point, Weger said, he had not thought of killing.

I TIED THEM so they wouldn't follow me," he said. "But Mrs. Murphy decided to fight him. Apparently, she parted the kitchen twine with her hands.

"When I started back, she came after me on the path," he said. "She hit me on the back of the head with the binoculars. I reached for the club as she hit me, and I turned and struck her on the back of the head.

He carried the unconscious woman back to the cave where the other women, partly free of their bonds, tried to fight him.

"One tried to scratch me. I don't know which one," Weger said. "I laid the club down, but I picked it up and hit them so they couldn't identify me. They lay back. I kept striking them."

BUT MRS. MURPHY, badly injured, got up and fought fiercely again.

"She hit me with the binoculars. They broke, and cut my chin," he said. "I grabbed the binoculars and clubbed her. She fell back, and I beat her until I killed her."

He told of feeling the pulses of his victims to make sure they were dead, and then, because he thought a circling plane he saw above the canyon rim might spot the crime, he dragged the women's bodies back into the cave. The death fight took place just outside.

Weger was one of the first persons questioned by investigators after bodies of the three women were found March 16. They found some of the same kitchen twine used to tie the victims in his pocket.

BUT, HE SAID, it was common for employees of the lodge kitchen to use the twine, and others probably had some — if they hadn't gotten rid of it. He said he was in the lodge writing letters at the time the women were believed to have been slain.

He didn't have an alibi witness. He had a fresh cut on his chin. He said he nicked it with a razor.

There were scores of possible other leads, and investigators found no firm grounds on which to hold Weger at the time.

A lie detector test administered to all lodge employees was evaluated as inconclusive in Weger's case. Two months ago a second test was administered by Stephen J. Kindig, of a Chicago lie detector operating office.

Heart Failure Takes Actor

'King Gable' Dies in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Clark Gable, whose crackling voice, 20-acre Encino ranch where the star had lived for his last 23 years.

She had spent the entire time of his illness with him at Hollywood Presbyterian hospital and had been certain of his recovery.

He had been heartened by good wishes from President Eisenhower and hundreds of fans. Wednesday had been his best day since he fell ill.

NEWS OF GABLE'S death drew a flood of sorrowful comments from fellow stars. "My God, I'm terribly sorry," said Lana Turner. "He was always a wonderful man," said Heddy Lamarr. "A decent human being," said Marilyn Monroe, his last co-star.

"I was sadder than I can tell," said Vivien Leigh, with whom he starred in "Gone with the Wind."

His loss was as keenly felt by ordinary people, too. Virtually every American could feel on close terms with Gable through years of association with him on the screen.

Perhaps more than any other film star, he projected a sense of communication to moviegoers — not by acting, because he was admittedly no great actor, but by the electric charge of his personality.

On Segregation Issue Schools Ask 'Cool-off' Period

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Shaken by disorders that swept through this tense city, the New Orleans School board today sought federal court permission for a recess to integration of public schools.

One-third of the white public school students in New Orleans played truant today, 12,666 of a total white enrollment of 36,725.

A growing boycott of the two elementary schools integrated last Monday just about reached 100 percent at school opening this morning. Three white students reported at William Frantz school; none at McDonogh No. 19 school.

DOWNTOWN New Orleans went about its workaday business today, free of the roaming masses of unruly teen-agers that forced police to call on fire hose and mounted officers yesterday. But, the aftermath of yesterday's violence died slowly during the night.

Police rushed cars throughout the city last night, arrested nearly two-score youths for fights and rock-throwing.

The school board's move to return to segregated schools until differences between city and state can be ironed out came on a motion filed by Samuel Rosenberg, the board's attorney.

The motion did not ask that the integration order be vacated. It asked time to ease tensions, to work out a solution to the bitter dispute between segregationists and the court order.

Campus UN Debates on Red China

The MSU UN will complete its debate and vote on admission of Communist China to UN membership tonight at 8 in the Union ballroom.

Delegates representing France and Germany have already spoken at the Campus UN General Assembly in opposition to the Red Chinese, and their seating has been supported by the United States, Bulgaria, and India.

Other delegates will speak for and against the proposition tonight, in conference with actual policy of New York UN member nations.

THE CAMPUS UN credentials committee will meet in the UN Lounge at 7 tonight to consider further applications for membership in the collegiate international organization. Forty UN member nations still have no representatives in the MSU General Assembly.

The next topic for the organization will be a resolution of the Indian delegation asking the Assembly to go on record condemning "the Portuguese government's atrocities in Goa, the denial of political rights to its people, and the illegal continuation of occupation of territory that is an integral part of India."

Secretary General Mohammad Tausif, Iranian graduate student, will announce latest developments in preparations for the intercollegiate Model UN to be held here next February.

U. S. Must Up Exports, Commerce Secretary Says

By LINDA LOTRIDGE
State News Staff Writer

The United States, in order to stimulate business and continue expenditures abroad, must increase its exports, says Frederick H. Mueller, secretary of commerce.

Mueller spoke Wednesday afternoon in the Union ballroom at a lecture sponsored by the graduate school of business.

"Opportunities are open in Europe as well as Latin America for the exporting of American-made products," he said.

SINCE THESE countries want a higher standard of living the United States has had an increase in exports during the past decade.

"Therefore, an export program has been set up between the federal government and private businesses to help sell more goods abroad.

"In 1959, there was a 16 per cent increase in commodities exported than the year before," Mueller said.

The secretary of commerce said that investments by private concerns which the private sector of the country can benefit from has been encouraged by the Eisenhower administration.

ALTHOUGH foreign trade accounts for a deficit in the 1960 budget because of the short-term outpour of capital, the increase in exporting aids in the struggle against Communism, he said.

"The market is large in Europe for American-made products, especially the unique ones, but the competition is stiff and there are barriers.

"Because of the increased cooperation between the government and the private sector, the patent office is receiving over 350 applications everyday.

"Twelve billion dollars are invested yearly by the government and private business in inventors and technological developments," he said.

AMERICAN INDUSTRY has accounted for the growth in the economy both abroad and in the United States during the past few years.

Mueller has been secretary of commerce since August of 1959 after serving for a year as the under secretary of commerce. A native of Grand Rapids, Mueller graduated from Michigan State and served as a member of the governing board for 13 years.

Ike Orders Units Into Caribbean

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—President Eisenhower has rushed U.S. Navy warships and air units into position to defend revolt-threatened Guatemala and Nicaragua against any communist-led attack.

The vacation White House announced the emergency action Thursday in a clear warning to Cuba's Prime Minister Fidel Castro to keep hands off both Central American Republics.

THE PRESIDENT acted amid mounting tension in the Caribbean after Guatemala and Nicaragua fought off anti-government revolts and charged Castro with helping the rebels.

Swiftly answering written appeals for help, Eisenhower ordered Navy Fleet units, including at least one aircraft carrier, to "seek out and prevent" any outside invasion.

"Our ships are now on the high seas," said Press Secretary James G. Hagerity who reported Eisenhower's decision.

The President's spokesman refused to identify the fleet units sent into the trouble area or to pinpoint their exact location.

(IN WASHINGTON, the Navy said the carrier is the Shangri-La which with four destroyers from Mayport, Fla., is patrolling the Caribbean between Cuba and the coast of Central America.)

U.S. warships often carry Marines aboard. But Hagerity said the warships sent to help Guatemala and Nicaragua did not have any Marine infantry units with them, so far as he knew.

Eisenhower personally ordered the naval move late Wednesday, Hagerity said, after an urgent telephone call from Secretary of State Christian A. Herter in Washington.

Herter advised him that both Guatemala and Nicaragua, alarmed at the possibility of more anti-government uprising, had sent formal, written requests for U.S. naval assistance.

Eisenhower then gave his instructions by phone to Defense Secretary Thomas S. Gates at the Pentagon.

Electoral College Faces Extinction

WITH the state of California now swinging into the Nixon camp at the time of this writing, the distinct possibility that President-Elect Kennedy may gain his office by a minority of the nation's votes looms steadily larger and larger.

With scattered returns still to be heard from, it appears that the Vice President stands a good possibility of garnering more votes than his opponent, yet still losing out in the so-called electoral college vote.

Why is this? The answer is simple enough. The crux of the issue seems to stem from the fact that when a man is elected president his victory is inevitably made possible because he gained more electoral votes than his opponent. Naturally, this fact makes him extremely fond of the whole idea.

THEREFORE, the presiding president attempts to crush any cry of "foul" from the opposition during his administration. And because of the relative power he wields, the president has been successful every time down through the years. Careful observation of the situation will probably reveal the same thing happening in the next four years. Republicans, who feel that they were cheated out of the Presidency, will be crying "foul." And Democrats, with Kennedy at the helm, will be shouting "sour grapes" with an equal volume.

All of this is petty and serves to only disfigure the major issue — that being whether or not an electoral college is necessary at all. We think it isn't. At least not in its present form.

THE electoral college was originally set up by our aristocratic friends, Alexander Hamilton and John Adams. With an eye out for their Federalist-leaning contemporaries, these people devised an ingenious system whereby the more sovereign powers in government could serve as a check against the whims of the uneducated peasants who made up a good proportion of the electorate at the time.

A quick glance at the educational standards of the electorate today serves to prove how ridiculous this system is in our present society. Although some pessimists may disagree, the United States population in 1960 is relatively far superior in intelligence to its colonial ancestors when it comes to grasping world and national problems. Being the shrewd politician that he is, we have a feeling that Kennedy will give at least token support to any move to abolish the "college" during his administration.

SINCE he will have four years to prove his worth to the people that elected him, we earnestly hope that he will allow these same people to make a free, unhindered decision via a popular vote in the 1964 election. If he has done a good job, he will have nothing to fear. If he has failed, the possibility of another "electoral victory" could well sour our citizens into political apathy.

Questions U.S. Election Set-up

To the Editor: Does the president always represent the majority vote? If you were to ask the average United States citizen this question, you would probably get an affirmative answer. But the fact is that most citizens do not really know how a president is elected.

If this is a country of states that are united, then why can't we have a national election and unite for this, the most important decision the American voters make? I am writing this letter in the hopes that other voters will express their feeling on this unfair manner of election.

type of person is produced under this sort of system. We can get this sort of necessary insight only by listening to, and intelligently evaluating those who believe in this system, and not from those who are slanted against it.

The Spartan Speaks

Thumbs Down on Dorm Blocks

By CATIE MAHONEY State News Staff Writer When MSU students were asked "Do you think the present dorm 'block system' promotes Spartan spirit?" it was surprising to discover that eight out of the 10 informally polled were against the system that has become popular this year.

Ken Peck, Bay City sophomore, said "Having many individual blocks only defeats the purpose for which they were formed: to promote school spirit. Instead there is only residence hall spirit." He went on to say that dorm spirit now is merely each hall trying to outdo the other without regard to cheering on the team.

Dave Shoub, Chicago senior, also felt that the new system is merely "competition between dorms and doesn't reflect or promote the school spirit on the whole." "The competition between dorms is not only juvenile because of the throwing of toilet paper, but it is detrimental to the spectators in the lower stands," commented Judy Chiger, a freshman from Fair Lawn, New Jersey.

Still another view was taken by Katherine Zimmerman, Homewood, Ill. freshman. Kathie feels that the only kind of spirit shown is to win the prize offered for block representation.

Paul Wright, a junior from Stuart, Iowa, feels that the present plan results in no improvement in school spirit. "MSU has a tradition of apathy that just can't seem to be broken. And this competition between dorms doesn't help any," he said. Margo Nelson, West Branch sophomore, had still another attitude. "The dorm-block system is only a mad rush for better seats by the underclassmen," she said.

A junior from Royal Oak, Jim Howell, sarcastically said: "Congratulations to Bryan Hall for starting some enthusiasm at our football games. Their spirit was especially appreciated at the Ohio State game. During the second half when the supporters and apparently the team—gave up fighting, Bryan Hall gave the 76,000 plus audience something to watch and cheer for." "I hope this Saturday we have some real Spartan Spirit—or else snow—so we won't have to waste toilet paper for sideline entertainment," he quipped. Suzie Davis, Coldwater junior, stated that she thought as long as there was someone cheering it didn't matter whether it was Spartan spirit or the so-called dorm spirit.

Also favoring the new system was Betty Argo, Pontiac sophomore, who feels that the spirit of the students in the blocks promotes enthusiasm among the other students. "Naturally," Betty said, "there are dorms that are bound to excel in spirit because of their size but this is good because they promote even more enthusiasm."

But the general attitude toward the dorm-block system was well-represented by Pete Detarimo, Milford junior: "Down with dorm blocks if the blocks continue to compete with one another," he said. "Let's have more group support with combined blocks, if we must have blocks at all." "Personally," he continued, "I'd like to see blocks done away with and a return to real Spartan spirit directed by the cheerleaders with all the students cheering for the team and not trying to out-yell each other."

Sessions in 'Capitol Playhouse'

'Really Big Shew' Back Again

By CHUCK RICHARDS State News Capitol Reporter Arrangements were completed about a week ago to stage a return engagement of the famed vaudeville troupe which took the state by storm last season.

Local patrons of the theater will be delighted to hear that the group, polished with a year's experience under their belts, will return to treat observers to more hilarity and gay frivolity. Sessions will be held weeknights in the capitol building (the cast has arranged, as usual, to take a four-day vacation once a week). Generally, the format has not been changed. The group, known as the Legislative, will concentrate once more on its efforts to ridicule and lampoon the state of Michigan.

The cast is divided into two groups, one known as the Senate and the other the House of Representatives. A professional organization known as the Republicans boasts of a majority in both groups but another club, the Democrats, is only two shy in the House.

A new director, John Swainson, has been named to attempt to lead them. But critics have theorized that he probably will have no more authority than his predecessor, Menner Williams, who is currently concentrating on greater endeavors in the theater. The House presents an act which has been slipshod in the past because of the dissension of the two acting groups.

But the Senate is more organized. It is led by comedian Carlton Morris, who has a nautical act called "Torpedo that Income Tax." For a change of pace, the Democrats follow Morris' number with a satirical ditty entitled, "We Don't Give a Damn for the Use Tax."

Both groups, incidentally, are seeking donors to finance their gay and witty presentation. The treasury was full a few years ago but operating expenses have been climbing. Raising funds would be simple but the groups are in disagreement over whether a bake sale or a carnival would raise the money

Did American Tourists Cause Cuban Trouble?

The following question has been submitted to our Cuban staff writer, Ramon Valdes, by Angelo Lucia, assistant professor of landscape architecture and urban planning: Are we suffering a deterioration in international relations with Cuba because of the fact that too many of our citizens who visited Cuba recently have failed to conduct themselves properly while in that country?

Answer: During the first two months of his regime, Fidel Castro drew the hatred of the Cuban people upon American tourists. Havana, known during the Batista tyranny as the "hot spot of the Caribbean," was virtually an open city. American tourists, attracted by the gambling halls, modern hotels and "red light" districts, flocked to Havana by the hundreds. They spent money lavishly while Cubans were fighting against their countrymen in the streets.

the tourists were to blame. He made several radical changes. Although he did not close the casinos, he put a curfew on their operation. Gambling was made illegal outside of approved places and curbs were placed on the "red light" districts. Soon the wave of tourists declined. However, once he had consolidated himself in power, Castro, presumably under orders from Moscow, turned his hatred upon the entire United States. He attacked American business, government policies—even the American way of life.

The idolizing people of Cuba believed his absurd statements and turned their hatred toward the United States as a whole, not only specifically against the tourists. Therefore, I believe that the present deterioration between this country and Cuba is not primarily due to the conduct exemplified in the "Ugly American," but rather to a Communist campaign whose goal is complete domination of Cuba and the complete breakdown of relations with the United States.

Slams NAACP

In your issue of November 14, you printed a letter from the MSU chapter of the NAACP, in which they point-blank accuse the Southern states, bar none, of refusing to permit 3 million Negroes to vote, for one reason and one reason alone—their color.

Southerners realize that everything in regards to racial matters is not all "peaches and cream," as the NAACP would have it. But to state publicly and without reservation, that color and only color was the deciding factor in not letting 3 million go to the polls appears to border on libel in my opinion.

Perhaps the NAACP had a good reason for failing to state that the decisive factor was that the 3 million could not probably read or write, and, as illiterates, should not have been permitted to vote, and would not have been permitted to do so in the Northern states also. There is a possibility that, if the NAACP would spend some of the time they use in crying "Prejudice" in teaching people to read and write, there might be 3 million more Negro voters in 1964. The Editor's Corner

Coed's Dilemma

BY SUE PRICE, EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

WITH the rapid growth of the university this fall, many problems have arisen over hours in womens' dorms. One dorm has found it necessary to limit the hours men may call for women to 10:30 p.m., the closing hour for freshman and upperclass women with less than a 2-point all college. (Upperclass women above 2-point have 11:30 hours.)

The reason given for the change in hours was that too much confusion was caused by freshman women coming in at 10:30 and upperclass women leaving at 10:30. In short, no one could tell who was who and upperclass women wound up being deprived of having callers because of freshmen who could not get out of the lobby on time or couldn't be trusted to be in on time.

WHILE there does not seem to be many complaints stemming from this action, the problem is, none-the-less one to be considered.

First, one might say, "What difference does an hour make? The women can go out at 10:30 and stay until 11:30."

However, many students find they have to study until 11 and need a half-hour break. Then, too, why should the freshmen women have the privilege of having their dates escort them into the dorms when the upperclass women, who have "earned" an extra hour, can come only to the steps with their dates?

Many universities and colleges have decided to institute dormitories for freshmen, particularly coed living units. With a system like this, all problems of who is coming and who is leaving are solved. No one has to worry that a freshman will try to keep upperclass hours. Upperclass women hold on to their right to have the later hours, too.

AN obvious question to a system like this is: "Don't the freshmen women need some upperclass women for advice in the living unit?" Of course they do, but there is a simple solution to this.

In the colleges that have tried the system, upperclass women selected on an honor basis live in the freshman dorms as resident advisors, much like the RA's in MSU dorms. However, these women are selected for their leadership ability alone; they do not have to show financial need in addition. In some schools the women receive room and/or board in return for their services, but in most the women want to have the position because it holds more honor.

THE idea of having separate dorms is good scholastically, because the freshman definitely requires more study time until he becomes oriented to the university program. When upperclass students are coming into the dorm, just about the time freshmen are settled down to study, confusion results. And let's face it—if you don't acquire good study habits in your freshman year, you never will.

Freshman dorms for men would be a good idea for the last reason: acquiring good study habits. If the freshmen were in separate dorms they would not, in most cases, even think that upperclass students were out while they were trying to get through "nat sci" and social science. This might also help raise the all-university mens' average up to, or above, the all-university womens'.

Curbstone Comments

A Comeback?

By LARRY MILLER, Editorial Editor

A campus organization that almost died last spring seems to be making a strong bid for a comeback this term. We're speaking of Fresh-Soph Council, a group that came in for more than a few nasty words on these pages last year when it appeared that they were accomplishing nothing except occupying valuable office space. (Nasty rumor had it at the time that the Fresh-Soph officers were engaged in a power struggle for possession of the one desk with the telephone.)

But it looks as if this year is going to be a different story. Faced with extinction, the organization seems to be pulling itself up by the bootstraps by offering expanded programs of assistance for the University College student at MSU.

Foremost among these endeavors is their attempt to stage a "brush-up" session for students of social science and humanities in the Kiva of the Education building before final exams.

Any student who is "clutched" at the mere thought of his or her first final exam in one of these "basics" will, no doubt, thank them wholeheartedly for this opportunity to get important facts and concepts straightened out by a qualified faculty member before the firing begins.

Other council plans call for increased aid to the so-called freshman who is attending a large institution of learning for the first time, as well as a 10-cent tax on all incoming freshmen beginning next year. This latter contribution should put an end to the dreaded one dollar collection that seniors have sprung upon them at registration in previous years.

Though there may still be much work to be done, Fresh-Soph council seems to be winning its fight to stay on campus. They've done it with a supply of fresh ideas and re-defined goals, with even a dash of concrete action thrown in for good measure. For this we give them credit.

In fact, the whole thing seems to be working out so well that we're thinking of expanding our criticism to other campus organizations as well. Let's see how we can constructively attack next.

Library Head Says Building Will Be Outgrown in 3 Years

By BOB STEWART
State News Feature Writer

With the addition of 50,000 new volumes per year, Dr. Richard E. Chapin, director of libraries, said in a recent interview, "We will outgrow our present library in three and a half years."

The library, with a total capacity of 1,000,000 volumes, now has 750,000, Chapin said. Circulation is up 30 per cent over last year.

and total yearly circulation is about 700,000.

It has been estimated that one third of the student body uses the library every day of the year, he said.

THE LIBRARY has individual study chairs to accommodate 2,125 students at one time.

"We will have to sacrifice this study space if we try to put more than 1,000,000 volumes in the present library," Chapin said.

The library, one of the largest in the country, moved to its present location in 1956. Since 1922 it had been located in the building which is now the museum.

The original library was situated in what is now the Administration building.

"We are a service agency," Chapin said, "and our purpose is to serve the student."

Chapin's goal is to have available for the student a copy of every book, document, and magazine ever printed.

He has almost reached this goal, for if the library doesn't have a copy of the book, it can, in most cases, borrow from another library, buy it from another collection, or arrange to have it photographed and the film sent to the university.

IF A BOOK is on reserve, or if certain passages of a book must be copied for later use, the library has a Thermo-fax machine which will copy any page. Chapin said the charge of 10¢ a page is for the special paper which is required.

More than 500,000 volumes and documents are in the open stacks, readily available to every student.

The library subscribes to 8,000 special magazines and journals. Through several exchange programs, it has been able to acquire many magazines from behind the Iron Curtain.

The library has a staff of 268 persons. Chapin said this includes 41 professional librarians, who have a masters degree in Library Science, and 175 students.

"With the acquisition of more funds, we have been able to complete the fourth floor this year," Chapin said.

This floor now includes a faculty lounge, a 150 seat auditorium, and 115 faculty carrels. A carrel is a small room with a desk and book case. It is assigned for the use of faculty members for research projects.

TO MAKE available copies of rare and deteriorated books, magazines, and newspapers, and to conserve storage space, the library uses micro-forms. Micro-forms include microfilm reels, microcards, and microprint on cards.

Chapin said 2 weeks of the New York Times can be put on one microfilm reel, an issue of Newsweek on one 3 by 5 inch microcard, and an average book on an 8 by 5 inch microprint card.

"We are now acquiring on microfilm, a copy of every book published in the United States from 1639 to 1820," Chapin said. "A file of 200 foreign newspapers are now on microfilm."

Chapin reorganized the library in 1959 to include four basic divisions. These divisions are humanities, education, science, and social science.

Special facilities of the library include a reading room for the blind which uses books printed in Braille plus tape-recorded material, a lounge for Honors College students, and a reference room containing encyclopedias, indexes, and bibliographies.

Here Invade Campus For Look at Agriculture

Over 600 high school students will be on campus Saturday to attend an open house entitled "A Look at Modern Agriculture" in the College of Agriculture.

The students are scholastically outstanding juniors and seniors from 50 high schools in Michigan. They are being brought by county club agents, vocational agriculture instructors, counselors and parents, said Dick Arnold, chairman of the open house.

The agriculture career opportunities in 15 fields will be discussed with the students. Instructors and students from the agriculture college will be on hand to answer questions on a personal basis. They will also have an opportunity to tour the campus.

"We want to point out to the high school students what is happening in agriculture today. The purpose of the open house is to broaden their horizons in this area," said Vern Freeb, faculty coordinator of the program.

The visitors will be welcomed on behalf of the student body by the president of the Agriculture Council, Bill Harrison, Middleville senior.

Dr. Richard Swenson, director of resident instruction, will speak on the value of going on to higher education and will point out some of the things happening in agriculture today.

The students then will be broken up into small groups to see scientific demonstrations within the college.

The program is being sponsored jointly by the Agriculture Council and the Agriculture Education club with the cooperation of all the various departments in the college of agriculture.

Registration will take place at the Livestock pavilion Saturday at 9 a.m.

Kennedys Plan for Holiday

WASHINGTON, (AP) — A small, quiet Thanksgiving dinner at home-plus a birthday celebration-is planned by President-elect John F. Kennedy and his wife.

Kennedy will fly here from Palm Beach, Fla., vacation spot Wednesday to spend the holiday in his Georgetown home.

And the occasion will include a birthday party for his daughter, Caroline.

Caroline will be three years old Nov. 27.

There was no information from Kennedy aides as to whether any other Kennedys will be on hand for the Thanksgiving dinner.

Originally, the Kennedys had planned to spend Thanksgiving at their Cape Cod home. But, Mrs. Kennedy expects her second child in mid-December and was felt it would be easier for her to remain in Washington for the holiday.

Mrs. Kennedy has a date with her doctor to have the baby by Caesarian section Dec. 15 in a New York hospital. Her first baby, Caroline, was delivered by Caesarian.

It is possible Mrs. Kennedy may go to New York a little before the due date but there has been no indication of just when.

Tatro Receives $53,400 For Science

A $53,400 grant from the National Science Foundation was received this fall by Dr. C. A. Tatro, professor of applied mechanics.

The grant will last two years and will cover the purchase of materials and apparatus and pay the wages of student help for research concerning the acoustic emission from crystalline materials subjected to external loads.

This is a process by which certain materials such as steel, iron or similar products are subjected to loads or pressure to determine how they behave under such conditions.

BY APPLYING a steady pressure called "creep" a material tends to stretch and by applying an alternating pressure or "fatigue" it will fracture or break, Tatro said.

This an electronic technique and does not destroy the materials after they have been subjected to these pressures, he said.

"We are attempting to develop new techniques, apparatus and theories," Tatro said.

"Research paves the road for the development of materials that are lighter, stronger and that can be produced in smaller quantities than before. The more you know about the materials, the more efficient machines, automobiles, airplanes and similar products you can make."

'Novelists Desire Identity'-Nye

Contemporary American novelists are in a search—both for personal identity and for compassion.

Those, according to Dr. Russell Nye, head of the division of languages and literature, are two of the major themes in recent American fiction.

Nye spoke Tuesday night in the Union ballroom on current developments in American fiction to an estimated audience of 100 persons in the Union ballroom.

"OUR NEW NOVELISTS," Nye said, "ask, 'Who am I, where do I belong?' This is not a completely new theme in fiction, but the search has become more frantic.

"This is the first generation of novelists who have to live with the idea of instant annihilation." The other search, for compassion, Nye said, leads the author to ask the reader to understand and sympathize with characters in his book, but not to judge them.

NYE SAID many authors now see as their purpose in writing, as one of their number put it, "to send a reassuring flash of feeling to all those out there."

"Perhaps they ask for sympathy and not judgment or reform," he said, "because they either don't see much chance for reform or at any rate do not think there are any good answers now to the chaos and confusion around them."

Nye pointed out, however, that there are some exceptions to this and some authors do think they have found the answers.

AMONG THE trends in novels of the last decade or two, Nye said, is to make the story a "series of moments."

"They tend to explore, not arrange," he explained, "although the books may be written in chronological order."

In line with this trend, he said, the recent novel often does not have the finality or "ending" to it of the more traditional fiction.

Again, this "no climax" trend is in line with another trend, he said—a change in the view of looking at life itself.

"The recent fiction writer generally sees life as filled with ambiguity, inconclusiveness and without any visible authority."

"THE MAN WHO IS NOT WITH IT," by Herbert Gold, is a good example of this belief, Nye said.

"A recent novelist has more kinship with poets than his grandfathers," Nye said, "because he is integrating symbols more and making language help carry the story."

Language is used powerfully in "Catcher in the Rye" by J. D. Salinger, he said.

Nye said he believes that "the level of contemporary fiction writing is amazingly high" and that "there has not been such a ferment of fiction activity since the 1920's."

He briefly listed some new authors which he said he feels are doing some of this noteworthy writing.

Among them were Gold, Mark Harris, William Styron, James Purdy and John Updike.

The lecture was the first in a series of New Voices in Contemporary Literature talks sponsored by the Union board and the English department.

Next lecture in the series is "current developments in American poetry" Jan. 17 by Professor Hazard Adams.

French actress Simone Signoret listens to British star Laurence Harvey in a scene from "Room at the Top," showing tonight at 8 and 9 p.m. in Fairchild theatre as part of the Foreign Film series.

Salinger Topic For Viewpoint

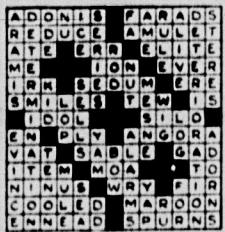

"The Splendid Squalid World of J. D. Salinger" will be discussed on Viewpoint over WKAR Sunday by Prof. Sam Baskett of the English dept. and Prof. Maurice Crane of humanities.

Major John Barron is the program's host.

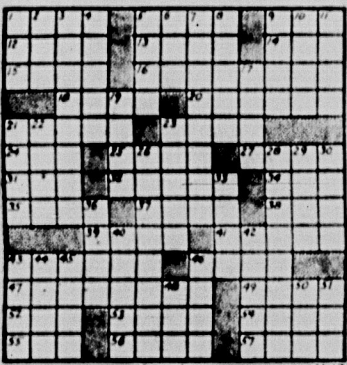

Salinger is the author of "The Catcher in the Rye," and several short stories which have appeared in the New Yorker. Among these are "A Perfect Day for a Bananafish," and "For Esmé—With Love and Squalor."

Pleas for Congo Seat

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Congo President Joseph Kasavubu said Thursday "It is absolutely indispensable" that the United Nations seat him in the General Assembly before it sends a political conciliation commission to his country.

He said that a plan for the 15-nation Asian-African commission to leave for the Congo Tuesday was "very simply an imposition" because "we believe that our agreement must come first."

The commission scheduled a meeting Thursday afternoon to make plans for the trip. The tentative date was set last night by Secretary-general Dag Hammarskjöld's 15-nation advisory committee on the Congo.

Dances for Military, Greeks

Blue Angel, the IFC-Pan Hef dance, and the Coronation ball highlight this weekend's festivities. Many fraternities will be holding dinners before the semi-formal dances.

Kappa Delta sorority will hold its annual all-Greek open house, from 4 to 6 p.m. on Saturday after the football game.

Entertainment will be furnished by Bill Hart and his combo and refreshments will be served.

BETA THETA PI will hold a "Saterical 60's" bundle party Friday evening at the chapter house. The Betas will exchange bundles with their dates after dinner, and return dressed in the imagination of their dates.

Music for the party will be provided by the new stereo the Betas won in the Marlboro contest last week.

Kappa Kappa Gamma will hold its annual fall term party Saturday evening. The Kappas theme is a Gay 90's Beach Party, complete with bloomer bathing suits and ukuleles. Jay Parks and his band will perform from an oyster shell.

Both Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Delta Delta Delta will hold pajama parties in their chapter houses this weekend.

THE SAKS and their dates will be expected to attend in traditional nightshirts and caps. Tri-Deltas entertainment will be provided by Bill Hart's band, and their decorations will include pajamas covering the walls.

Alpha Delta Pi will go Florida style to their house party Friday evening. Palm trees and an artificial aquarium will help carry out the theme, "Florida Dress Rehearsal."

The Alpha Phi's fathers will be honored at a Dad's Day open house from 11 to 12:30, and 4 to 5:30 Saturday.

The Catholic Student center is furnishing a variety of entertainment for both MSU and Detroit University students.

FRIDAY evening, a British comedy, "Doctor at Large," will be shown, followed by a dance. The movie begins at 9 p.m. and admission is 25 cents for both.

St. John's Student parish is having a post game coffee hour from 4 to 5 p.m., as well as an open house from 7 to 9 p.m.

"Titan Twirl," a stag or drag dance will be held at the CSO Saturday evening from 9 to 12 p.m., with Al Nosal's Jazztet providing the entertainment.

Admission to the dance is 10 cents for members and 50 cents for non-members.

"IS THIS SHORT enough?" Connie Zekit (right) Birmingham senior, and Jeanne Lambros, (center) Kalamazoo junior, ask Carla Warman, Woodland Hills, Calif., senior, about the length of her cocktail dress.

White Cocktail Dresses Top Fashion List

Fashion minded coeds know that white and bright colors are high in the fashion book for cocktail dresses this year.

White is being featured in almost every imaginable fabric, including brocade, velvet and chiffon.

Shocking colors have taken over pastels, which are little in demand this year. Shades like "lustrous pink" have been combined in wood and chiffon to create an entirely new effect in cocktail dresses.

FASHION also boasts of many new mysterious styles to tempt any taste. High preference has been shown for the bouffant or bubble skirt, but the sheath and full skirt are still very much in demand.

Subtly sophisticated lace sheaths are leaving "just enough" to the imagination of your favorite male. These are especially bewitching in black.

Other combinations featured this year include velvet and taffeta, cocktail dresses with sweaters (some even have fur collars), and silk organza, over printed skirts, which lends a very pleasing effect.

Skirts are still as short as ever, and will probably stay that way throughout the fall and winter season.

Take Someone To Church With You This Sunday.

Jerry Norman, Steve Moorhead and Herman Weber of Penn State hope to help Penn State duplicate their ICIA victory this Monday at the NCAA championship here in East Lansing.

Top Harriers Gather for NCAA Meet

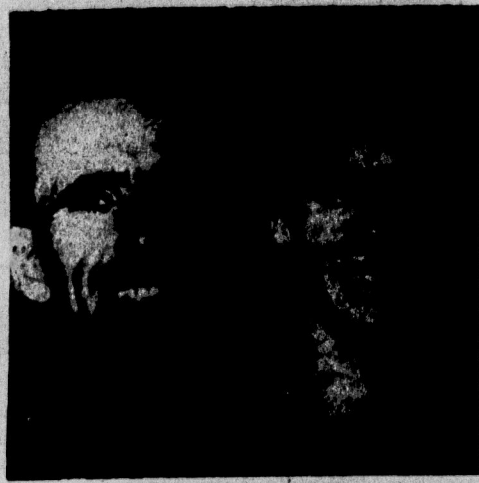

A field of 189 athletes from 36 colleges and universities will converge on Michigan State's campus Monday for the 23rd running of the NCAA cross-country championships. Every section of the nation will be represented in the four-mile race for individual and team honors. The huge group of runners will compete on the hilly Forest Akers Golf Course layout, with race starting time set for 11:30 a.m. Among the individuals entered in the championship run is Al Lawrence, 27-year-old junior from the University of Houston, who won the 1959 title on the same course. Also due to start in the race is the host Michigan State team, which won the title last year with a low total of 44 points. Botes Loses Chance LIVERPOOL, Eng. (AP)—South African Welterweight Champion Johnny Botes' hopes of earning a shot at the British Empire title took a pounding tonight from the body blows of Tony Smith, 23-year-old gravedigger. Smith, 144½, a local boy, out-pointed Botes, 116½, in a 12-round bout at Liverpool stadium.

The meet has been conducted at East Lansing every year since its inception in 1938. The host Spartans have won the most team titles over that span of time, with a total of eight. Next in line are Drake, Indiana and Penn State, with three each. If Houston's Lawrence is successful in his title defense, he'll be the fourth runner ever to win two titles in a row. Those who've turned in the feat are Fred Felzer, of Drake, in 1944 and 1945; Robert Black, of Rhode Island State, 1948 and 1949 and Herb Scemper, of Kansas, 1950, and 1951.

ROTC Rifles Open Fire At Eastern

Michigan State University's AFROTC rifle team will open its 1960-61 season Saturday in a match against Eastern Michigan University at Ypsilanti, according to Sgt. Glenn Tracy, rifle team coach. Last year the team won the University of Illinois Pershing Rifles Invitational meet in competition with 14 other teams. They placed second in the year's matches against 11 league teams and won second place in the annual League Tournament. Firing against Eastern this week-end will be Ronald Haugen, Jerrold Nye, and John Lilley, all juniors; sophomores Bruce Behrmann, Howard Ozeran, Robert Tomlinson and Bill Gresco and three freshmen, Carl Behne, Neil Vierson and Gary Link. Major Morris Tague, team advisor, and Sgt. Tracy will accompany the team.

John Macy runner up in last years NCAA and Al Lawrence winner of the meet last year will both be here this Monday to try and pull a repeat of last years feat in the NCAA. Both run for the University of Houston.

Rather 2 Defeats Rather 3

A third-down gamble paid off with a pass from Bob Schultz to Jim Peterson touchdown connecting to bring Rather 3 a 6-0 sudden death victory Wednesday over Rather 2. A scoreless four quarters saw two of the victor's touchdowns nullified. Tied 0-0 with a dramatic block championship having in the balance, Rather 3 was faced with a third-down-and-30 situation and 30 seconds remaining in the overtime. Schultz, who had been passing effectively all evening, hit Peterson down the middle and he raced for the only score in the game. Rather Two crossed the midfield stripe under its own power only four times and once did it penetrate the winners' 25 yard line. Bob Schultz, Jay Stephens & Co. repeatedly marched inside Rather Two's territory. A keeper play and a lateral from Barry Holmes to Stephens was good for 30 yards. But the drive was stalled as the third period ended.

Powerful 6 ft. 212 pound back Ron Hatcher.

As Northwestern Knows

Ron Hatcher MSU Back

By DERWOOD HAINES, State News Sports Writer. "Oh diddle diddle," the defensive linemen of Northwestern University mocked, "Let's see Hatcher he's coming up the middle." Up the middle he went and twice he wasn't stopped. It was his two long jumps that gave the Spartans their come-from-behind victory over the Wildcats last Saturday. RONALD HATCHER 20 years ago joined from Carnegie Pennsylvania came to MSU with the reputation of a notorious power runner in high school. He played his high school ball at Carnegie high he captained his team the year he graduated, 1938. He also earned All-American and All Pennsylvania honors, while in high school. A lot was expected of the big back when he came to Spartanland and he has done a good job of fulfilling these expectations. Including the Northwestern game Nov. 12, Ron has taken over as the leading Spartan runner with 321 yards gained in 59 of his bull-like thrusts for the line for an average of 5.4 yards per carry. He has grabbed six passes for 12 yards and an average of 13.6 yards per grab. Hatcher has two touchdowns and a total of 12 points with the season a game from over. AS A SOPHOMORE, the powerful Spartan, 212 pounds and an even six feet tall, played 12 times and gained 75 yards. He scored one touchdown, a ten yard slant around end against Notre Dame. Ron has good speed and his coaches say that he is an intense competitor who will keep on driving for that extra yard. Off the field, Ron is quiet and reserved. He has a quick wit and once in a while he lets

Last Game for 9 Seniors

Gridders to Face U. of Detroit

By BEN BURNS, State News Sports Editor

The Spartan football team will meet the U. of D. gridgers for the first time in 24 years, this Saturday at 1:30 in Spartan Stadium. The Titans bring a strong 7-1 record into the contest while the Spartans hold a 5-2-1 record. University of Detroit has overcome such opponents as Xavier, Cincinnati, Boston College, Marquette and Villanova. DETROIT'S big weapon is their quarterback Jerry Gross, who came up from the second string to replace Bob Lusky, who was injured in mid-season. Gross has the advantage of having a couple of fine ends, each 6-3 in Larry Vargo and Steve Stonebreaker. Stonebreaker has grabbed 21 passes and scored two touchdowns and Vargo has caught 18 which were good for four touchdowns. Gross has passed or carried the ball 142 times for 1104 net yardage in the past four games. This is the best Titan mark in the past decade. FIRST STRING halfbacks Tom Shanahan, who leads in scoring with 36 points and Ted Karpowicz is second with 30. Strongmen from the interior line include 6-3, 215-pound center Frank Jackunas, and Tony Asher, a guard at 5-9 and 205-pounds. Ron Hatcher has taken over as the Spartan's top rusher with his 320 yards and an average of 6.4 yards per carry. GARY BALLMAN is now second in line with 256 yards and an average of 6.2 per carry. Both Hatcher and Ballman broke away for long runs to elicit last weeks victory over Northwestern, 21-18, and fat-tailed their net rushing averages. Ballman blasted 74-yards for a third period tally and Hatcher had touchdown runs of 32 and 51 yards. ART BRANDSTATTER is State's leading scorer with 30 points. He has gotten 15 of his points with his talented left foot and the only conversion he hasn't completed so far this season, was blocked. The rest of Brandstatters points come from hitting 3-5 field goals and one touchdown pass from quarterback Tommy Wilson. The last game between the two squads, in 1934, was won by Art Brandstatter, Sr., who booted the Spartans to a 7-6 win with his extra point conversion. This game will tilt the all-time record in favor of one or the other of the two squads as it presently stands at six wins apiece and one tie. Several Spartan first team players will be playing their last collegiate game for Michigan State. These are the tri-captains, Herb Adderely, halfback Fred Arbanas, end, and guard Fred Boylen. WILSON, who has developed into a fine quarterback in his final year of play, will also be lost to the squad due to graduation. Others include Jason Harness, who grabbed the TD pass from Wilson to tie the first game of the season against Pitt, 7-7, and Jim Chesney, Ike Grimaldy, who intercepted a pass and ran it back for a score in the Notre Dame 21-0 win. He indicated the battle shapes up as a rugged test of Army's key Walker also will graduate.

Lucky Bet

Albany, Calif. (AP)—The daily double at Golden Gate Fields paid $8,711.40, the largest in California racing history. Orlo won the first race and paid $228.20 to win. Covinan captured the second at $44. Five $2 tickets were sold on the winning combination. The payoff was the third largest ever in racing history.

Army, Navy to Meet Next Week

Annapolis, Md. (AP)—Army will be the best defensive team Navy has faced this season and its only shortcomings on offense is the lack of a breakaway runner, Navy scout Phil Monahan reported today. Monahan, a Marine officer and former captain of Navy's famed 1954 "Team named Desire," has scouted the cadets in all nine of their games this season. "ARMY is a better football team than this time last year," he told a news conference at Navy. "They don't have individual stars like Bob Anderson, Joe Caldwell and Bill Carpenter, but their sophomores and juniors came of age against Syracuse and Pitt and they will be tougher as a team." Monahan, currently an assistant backfield coach at Navy, discussed the service classic coming up in Philadelphia Nov. 26 as the eighth-ranked Navy football team formally opened practice following a four-day layoff. The team is idle this Saturday. He indicated the battle shapes up as a rugged test of Army's defense against Navy's offense.

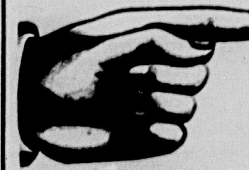

Coach Wayne Hardin agreed that Navy's No. 1 problem for the game "will be getting across their goal line." DEFENSIVELY, Monahan said, Army guard Al Vanderbush is "as tough a linebacker as you'll see in the country." He said the cadets were also strengthened defensively by the Syracuse and Pitt games by the return of guard Mike Casp, who was injured earlier this season and who plays the other linebacking spot.

"They don't have a breakaway back." "Like Bob Anderson?" he was asked. "Like Joe Bellino," Monahan replied with a grin. Bellino is Navy's top scorer and ground gainer and has reeled off 17 touchdowns in nine games this season, including a 96-yard run against Virginia last Saturday. He scored three touchdowns against the Cadets in Navy's 43-12 victory last year.

Class of '61
Senior Slants

BY SUE PRICE, EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Carving initials in wet cement is a frivolity enjoyed by many children and oldsters. You carve your initials or name in the cement and when you come back years later, there are the initials, cemented for posterity.

But carving initials is not just a childish pastime, as members of each senior class prove when they gather to carve in an old oak table in Old College hall of the Union. Each table is sanded and shellacked after the carving is finished and the tables are hung on the walls of Old College hall.

There are presently 7 tables on the walls of the hall, which is located next to the grill. Included in the carvings are sayings as well as initials and names. Some students appear to have given John Hancock competition, as when signed in five-inch high letters.

The table for the class of '61 will be ready for carving the beginning of winter term. The carving will be held in Old College hall and will be limited strictly to seniors graduating by December, 1961.

Old College hall, while not limited to seniors alone, has traditionally been the meeting place of seniors. The hall is named after one of the first three buildings on campus.

The present hall was built as part of the 1949 addition to the Union. Supposedly, some of the original timbers from the old hall are in the room.

This year, seniors will find information on senior activities in the hall. The organization of Senior council will be shown in diagram and the agenda for the year will be available for all to see. There will also be information on the Development Fund.

Musicians' Conference Attracts 2

Dr. Walter Hodgson, director of the division of fine arts, and Dr. Roy Underwood, head of the school of music, will attend the annual meeting of the National Association of Schools of Music which will be held at the Palmer house in Chicago on Nov. 25 and 26.

Some 250 schools will be represented by the deans of the departments of music in universities and colleges and by administrative heads of music conservatories.

The National Association of Schools of Music has been designated by the National Commission on Accrediting as the responsible agency for the accreditation of all music degree curricula with specialization in the fields of applied music, music theory, composition, music therapy, musicology, and music as a major in liberal arts programs. Dr. Underwood is a member of the Commission on Curricula division of NASM. He has been a member of NASM since 1934.

One of the general topics for discussion at the convention, will be "Our Music Culture." One of the highlights of the convention is scheduled for Friday afternoon when the entire group will attend a Chicago Symphony orchestra performance as the guests of the Chicago Orchestral Assn.

The World Travel series will present "Italy, Sicily and Sardinia" Saturday at 8 p.m. in the University auditorium.

Carl H. Thomsen will take the viewer on a guided tour of Venice, the Isle of Capri, Sorrento, and Lake Maggiore, the "Jewel of Italy."

A trip into the crater of Vesuvius, a visit to the ancient caves of Syracuse and a ride through the Italian Alps in a small airplane will be featured in the film.

For the artistic-minded, Thomsen will describe Rome, the Wagnerian Music Festival at Ravenna and the home of Italian composer Giuseppe Verdi.

'House of Intellect' May Be in Trouble?

By VIC RAUCH
State News Staff Writer

"The 'house of intellect' is in trouble," said Dr. David Gottlieb, assistant professor of education, sociology, and anthropology, in a speech Tuesday afternoon in the Kiva.

Speaking of the need for both researchers and teachers, Gottlieb told a group of 75 instructors and graduate students that students are being "pushed" into research and away from teaching.

"The top students," he said, "in terms of their own grades and urging of faculty, go into research."

This is where he said that education, or the "house of intellect" runs into trouble.

"RESEARCH IS essential, but so is teaching," said Gottlieb. "People are needed in both of these."

He reported a feeling among graduate students was that the lower the number of teaching hours, the better the job.

Gottlieb, a young, dark haired man, did his graduate work at the University of Chicago before coming to MSU.

HIS SPEECH, titled "The Academic Parking Place," pointed out three variable barriers to education of graduate students:

1. Finance.
2. Fertility.
3. Faculty.

Gottlieb reported statistics from each of these areas in a study he made of graduate students.

"At least 24 percent of those receiving Ph.D. degrees take a cut in salary when they go into the academic world," he said.

While in school, he said, the largest support for graduate students is from scholarships.

BUT MANY ARE dependent on income from other sources, he said.

For example, Gottlieb found that a graduate student who is married and has no children has a great advantage. The wife can work, while the student studies.

"Get married, don't have any children, and send your wife out to work," he mused in advising graduate students.

The second barrier, fertility, becomes a factor when there is a loss of income because a wife cannot work because she has a baby, he said.

THE RESULTING DROP of income and increase in expenses may cause the student much difficulty because he may have to begin full-time work, said Gottlieb.

The third barrier deals with the affect of faculty upon the decisions of graduate students. Faculty advice, said Gottlieb,

Present System Outdated 'Need Social Security Change'

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted a social security plan with built in safe-guards that would eventually pay for itself, which indicates that he was a small spender," Arthur J. Altmeyer said to the conference commemorating the 25th anniversary of the Social Security Act at Kellogg on Wednesday night.

Altmeyer is the former U.S. Commissioner for Social Security, chairman of the National Youth Administration, Chairman of the American delegation to the Fifth Inter-American Conference on Social Security, and chief of the appliance division of NRA.

This year he was chairman of the Advisory Committee on Social Legislation to the Democratic Platform Committee.

MSU WAS chosen as the site of the conference according to Mr. Altmeyer, because it is one of the three best schools in the nation for social research and the variety of courses offered in Social Work. The U. of M. and Wayne State comprise the others.

History as he lived it was the picture Mr. Altmeyer presented in his speech. "It was inevitable that we have some program of Social Security, as today it exists in 125 nations. But certain key personalities played an important part in when and what we have now," Mr. Altmeyer announced.

Mr. Altmeyer reviewed his experience with congressional committees on the problem of having a flat rate program of social security paid by the government or the present program of contributory insurance.

"Bob Taft always felt there was something intrinsically wrong with a contributory pension, and a flat rate program would be better. One flat rate program was geared to the rise and decline in the business cycle. When there is inflation, the rate of social security would be lowered; during recessions, it would be increased. But how does the plan encourage security?" he remarked.

F.D.R. was the great key figure and with Frances Perkins and Harry Hopkins pioneered in establishing the present federal system of social security," he continued.

"The reason we did not set standards for the states to meet to qualify for federal grants for unemployment insurance is that we had difficulties with the Congress, the Supreme Court and our own inexperience," he reported.

"We must now re-appraise the present system and make some changes, since what we have today relates to the problems of 25 years ago," he explained.
