

Tax Cut Prospect Dim; Budget Deficit Possible

Washington, (AP)—Prospects for any early tax reduction were pronounced pretty dismal Tuesday by House Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex.

Rayburn implied, after a meeting with President Kennedy, that instead of the budget surplus forecast by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, there may be deficits this year and next. "Wisdom would not be to cut a tax cut," Rayburn said, "unless it would be to see that would encourage business to expand."

Asked if a business-stimulating reduction is under consideration, Rayburn said, "Well, it is not known whether the administration would agree."

Sealing Navy Secrets

Spy Ring Caught By British Agents

LONDON, (AP)—A London suburban bungalow was described in court Tuesday as the center of a fantastically plotted spy ring that stole naval secrets for the Soviet Union.

They are charged with conspiring to steal, themselves and with other persons unknown, between June 1950, and January 1951, to commit breaches of Section 1 of the Official Secrets Act, which deals with spying.

To Work Through Annual Boosts

WASHINGTON, (AP)—President Kennedy Tuesday sent to Congress—with a plea for "prompt consideration"—a bill to boost the $1 minimum wage to $1.25 and give 4.3 million more workers the protection of a wage floor.

The higher minimum, Kennedy said in a message to House Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., would be achieved by a series of annual rises "to which employers can readily adjust."

Your Tax Return Due Soon

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The Internal Revenue Service said Tuesday it is distributing more than $4 billion in income tax refunds as rapidly as possible in an effort to stimulate the economy.

However, Mortimer M. Caplin, the new IRS Commissioner, said the job could be done faster if more taxpayers filed their returns early.

Library, Student Responsible For Assigned Reading Setup

The purpose of our library is service to students and faculty members. In order to avoid the financial expense of several textbooks, instructors assign library reading to supplement text material.

But the inconsideration of students and the inefficiency of the present library setup has turned library reading into a hindrance rather than a help.

Stop in at the assigned reading desk of the library some night. You will probably find a multitude of students clamoring for one particular book which is not available. Sometimes the book is checked out; sometimes it is missing.

FREQUENTLY THIS situation is the fault of the students, who put off library reading until the last minute, in the futile hope that everyone else has completed the reading, and that the book is theirs for the asking.

But the many students who want the book are not always to blame. Instructors often assign lengthy outside readings to large classes, knowing full well that there is only one or two copies of the book in the library. In this case, the book is hard to come by at almost any time in the term.

The frantic scramble for books which results from insufficient copies produces desperate actions detrimental to students, instructors and library alike.

We find reference and assigned books with relevant pages torn out, never to be returned.

We find monopoly groups in possession of the book, passing it down from friend to friend, allowing little chance for someone outside the group to get hold of it.

We find students more conscious of their own desperation than that of others simply walking out with the coveted book. Sometimes such books are not returned until the exam is over; often they are never returned.

Naturally we condemn the actions of such students. But we feel that those who might have the inclination should never have the opportunity to walk off with books. The library should maintain a stronger check on its books. A central checkout system, similar to U. of M.'s efficient check, would alleviate much of the problem. Thus far it has not even been given a try.

As far as the instructor's role is concerned, we strongly urge instructors to check the number of copies of a book in the library before dealing out lengthy assignments to large classes.

IF THE SUPPLY of books is inadequate, mimeographed readings can be made and handed out for a charge most class members are more than willing to bear. This is a superior means of study for the student and is less of a burden on the overworked library.

The present library system is inefficient and inconvenient for all concerned. Instructors can alleviate the situation by mimeographing assigned readings; students can help by acting with more consideration for the needs of others.

But the main responsibility for correcting the situation lies with the library. We strongly urge them to institute a central checkout system as soon as possible.

"None Of You Fellows Strong Enough To Swing 'em?"

In Supreme Court Factors Behind Censorship Vote

By DON PEMBER
State News Columnist

A significant issue today is the recent decision of the U.S. Supreme Court on the censorship of motion pictures.

In a decision handed down January 23, a majority of five justices upheld the censoring movies before they are shown.

I talked with Dr. Sidney Ulmer of the science department about why things came out the way they did. Ulmer, one of the most astute members of the Supreme Court in this part of the country, has made a study of the Court's decisions on civil liberties claims since 1953.

"THE MOST IMPORTANT factor in the making of a civil liberties decision, in my opinion, is the attitude," he said. "By attitude, I mean the degree of sympathy the justice has with the claimant."

He pointed out that some justices voted for the claimant, and some consistently against the claimant.

You can set up a sort of pattern for the decisions and see that there are generally two which vote the same each time," he said.

For convenience, we will call them the generally votes for the claimant and the generally blue which votes against the claimant.

When asked what caused this attitude, he replied, "Who knows? That is like asking why a human being behaves as he does. It is his affiliation, we know that. And it doesn't seem to have anything to do with who appointed the justice."

It is more likely something somewhere in the background of each of the justices which makes him have this sympathy for or against the claimant. But this is only a speculation and can't be proved."

ULMER HAD NOT READ the complete record of the court, since they were not available, but the press reports found this recent decision to have significance.

"This is the first time the Court has ruled whether censorship of movies per se is constitutional," he said.

In the past the Court has always sidestepped this question and based their decision on the legality of a certain facet of the particular censoring procedure in question.

In this case the Court did not sidestep the Chicago censoring methods were unconstitutional or not. What they did say was that censoring motion pictures was constitutional. Ulmer pointed out.

Concerning future censorship legislation, he made this comment:

"WE CAN'T PREDICT the next decision of the next few. But if we were to look at the 50 cases we could make an educated guess as to the composition of the court, since the two blocs would continue to vote as they have in this decision and as they have in the past."

It is quite valid, Ulmer said, to assume that the junior member of the court will vote the conservative bloc as did Justice Brennan in the past.

Some people have said the Supreme Court has trumped up this case. Mr. Justice Stewart thought Stewart would vote with the liberal bloc or that the attitude of the whole court was favorable to a decision for their claim. In any case, the censored censorship would never pass the test.

This is one case where a bad guess would be quite costly.

Portuguese Angola Sees Revolt, Fear

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA—Portuguese Angola, capital of Portuguese Angola, is in a state of fear after last week's abortive attempt to overthrow the Salazar regime.

By official count, 21 persons were killed in the uprising that followed closely the seizure of the luxury cruiser Santa Maria in the bay of Luanda by the forces of the Salazar regime.

Secret police moved quickly to stamp out the revolt in Angola and to keep the news from the outside world.

Cable and telephone communications were most completely sealed off.

Few news dispatches—and these mainly from government communiques—are reaching the world's press from Luanda.

The secret police have imposed a most complete censorship. Luanda post office officials, who are in the telegraph office, do not conceal the fact that foreign correspondents present in Luanda for transmission. They know the dispatches never get out of the post office.

Defend Class Officers and HUAC; Criticize Dormitory Food

'C's or Athletes

To the Editor:

The large total of ten lines (one column wide) were devoted to the 1961 A's of fall term. Another 24 lines were devoted to the speaker at the all-A dinner. Who was being honored? Who were the 1961 A's?

How many lines are devoted to the process of how many athletes per term? How many athletes appear in the state News per term? How many lines are devoted to them? Is this a university or a professional athlete club?

On Class Officers

To the Editor:

I believe you should keep class officers. Student Government, with the aid of the dormitory, can do a great deal to help the off-campus and part-time activities under MSU.

The biggest reason for keeping them is simply that they are doing the job. The case that I am most familiar with is that of the Junior Class. The J-Hop made almost $5000 this year and there surely will be no Junior "loss." I am convinced that the dormitory can make a great deal.

Block "S" next year's well organized by the future of other dormitory classes, also pick up Block tickets in the dorm. We had an unprecedented fall block and by the last game through improvements were made to please the TV viewers.

Under the able guidance of hard working people, these good arrangements produced good results and can do it again.

Class councils seem to have some prestige because of the campus-wide officer selection. I believe that this prestige can be used to help the off-campus and part-time activities under MSU.

Campus politics are much like the real thing. It is an experience that many will never have again. Both candidates and campaigners should be better citizens because of it. Class officer elections certainly provide a training ground for off-campus activities. Note that AUSA president Don Riedel was vice president of his sophomore class.

Yes, classes are providing services and benefiting the University.

Defends HUAC

To the Editor:

During a two-day Communist Party meeting in Chicago, June 11-12, 1960, extensive wars and rumors were discussed by which using communists could expect such "controversial" issues as communism as civil rights, academic freedom, and other so-called peace issues.

It is unfortunate that such and student groups in our country are totally unaware of the extent to which they can be victimized and exploited by the Communists.

APPROXIMATELY twenty-five percent of the spectators in the House Un-American Activities Committee hearing room in San Francisco in May 1960 were individuals under suspicion and their relatives, friends, attorneys and sympathizers. These persons were the "super-patriots" to whom your editorial refers. The noise created outside to students became so bad that a judge in a municipal court was unable to hear testimony and ordered the mob dispersed.

You refer to students refusing to obey police orders to leave the building as "legitimate protest." Defiance of law and order is never legitimate.

IMMEDIATELY after the affair ended, Gus Hall, national chairman of the Communist Party, congratulated the student demonstrators for the individual and collective role displayed at all stages of the demonstration.

The Communist attack on the HUAC in San Francisco was in line with a long standing party line to destroy, not only the HUAC but also the Senate Internal Security Sub-Committee and every other "enemy" seeking to expose the threat which Communist activities represent to the security of the nation.

On Dorm Food

To the Editor:

In a letter which appeared in Monday's issue of the State News, Delores Turbault expressed her opinions about dormitory food.

We wholeheartedly agree with her. Management has been negligent time and again with respect to the dormitory food. In the dorm, the only answer we receive is, "We'll look into the matter."

And we still have to face cold, wet, and moldy food. Can a cold sandwich suffice on a cold winter day?

We realize that the dorms cannot provide meals like we are accustomed to getting at home. When busboys have to run to neighboring dorms for extra food because the kitchen has run out— isn't this going a little too far?

Is it too much to ask for food which is warm? Is it too much to ask that management count the number of girls in the dorm and prepare a sufficient amount of food? We do not think so.

Is a food strike the only way we can show management that we are dissatisfied with the meals? We are beginning to think so—meetings with management lead to nowhere.

If the food situation improved, the cafeteria and restaurants in East Lansing would soon lose a lot of business. These restaurants survive from HUNGRY students.

When a student is reprimanded and humiliated because she felt the need to express her opinions in a student newspaper, we feel her freedom of expression has been violated.

We also believe a student should sign his name to a letter which professes his beliefs and opinions. However, because we do not want to be threatened with a visit to the dean of women and get a black mark on our records, we wish to remain anonymous.

To the Editor:

One more in a seemingly endless series of impotent attacks on the cultural tendencies of our society has been directed toward you and me, the modern day products of American higher education.

Undoubtedly the author of "Bad Songs" realized that his bit of journalistic offal would not go totally unnoticed by a majority of the enlightened readers.

A majority of our students are proud of their discriminative faculties. It is a vital part of their nature. They will not allow its free exercise to be unimpeded by self-appointed guardians of the soul or preventers of corrupt morals. Your cultural pursuits will not be degraded by them. Why then, do you persist in seeking to revolutionize their mode of existence?

Many Kinds of Love

'Exodus'—Powerfully Emotional Film

By E. JONES
State News Feature Writer

"Exodus," the latest of the spectacular movie series, opened this week in Detroit.

"Exodus" might well be subtitled "Love Conquers All." Love here is the love of the Jew for his homeland, of a man for recognition, and respect from his fellow men; a loving, fraternal, and sometimes coarse love, embodied principally in the leading character, Ari Ben-Canaan, excellently played by Paul Newman.

Love is however unrequited in the form of British apathy, the Presbyterian "differences" between ethnic groups as seen by American Kitty Freemont, the vengeful hatred of Dov Landau and Akiva in Barak Ben-Canaan, and the unforbearing brother and finally in Taha, the dear Arab friend of Ari who must choose between his friend and his own people.

ARI AND 600 JEWS escape from a Cyprus ghetto and board the ship "Exodus." Governing British soldiers blockade their exit until a hunger strike by the Jews on board receives worldwide attention, and thus the "Exodus" sails on to its destination, Palestine.

Later, in Palestine, they are opposed by the Arabs until the UN votes to establish Israel as an independent nation, but not graded by them. Why then, do you persist in seeking to revolutionize their mode of existence?

You claim to be an "average American youth." How can you possibly advocate increased policing of our entertainment facilities under such an assumed identity? Certainly there is room for improvement, modification and new elements within the entertainment media, but since when do you shave off your hair to rid yourself of scandal?

Down With...

To the Editor:

Congratulations to Roland Scott whose letter on "Bad Songs" appeared in Monday's State News. Now that we are proud to say we removed magazines from the stands, he brings to light another field which is detrimental to our youth, and which we must stop.

He stated that the removal of pornographic literature was just the beginning of the job that has ahead of us. Now, children, we must attack popular music because it is suggestive, and brings many evil thoughts into our innocent minds.

Why not also work on the complete elimination of sex, which I'm sure we all know is the basis of everything "dirty" and "immoral."

GE, Westinghouse, Fined for Antitrust Law Violations

PHILADELPHIA, (AP)—Twenty-two American electrical manufacturers and 44 electrical distributors were fined $24,500 as a result of a federal antitrust law violation in the electric utility industry.

The fine, which was levied by a federal grand jury, was the result of a probe into the industry's alleged collusion to fix prices and rig bids.

The grand jury, which was headed by Judge J. Cullen and the judge immediately appointed a receiver to take over the assets of the companies. On the same day, the judge ordered the companies to pay the fine.

The companies, which include GE, Westinghouse, and others, were fined for violating the Sherman Antitrust Act. The act prohibits companies from conspiring to restrain trade and from fixing prices.

The grand jury's findings were based on evidence that the companies had agreed to fix prices and rig bids for electrical equipment. The companies were also found to have conspired to divide markets and territories.

HEAVIEST penalties imposed on the two giant electrical companies. GE and Westinghouse were each fined $12,250, which includes $10,000 for each of the 14 indictments against them.

The grand jury also ordered the companies to pay the costs of the prosecution. The total fine is $24,500.

The companies were also ordered to pay the costs of the receiver. The receiver will be responsible for the day-to-day operations of the companies.

The art show is open to all interested students according to Center. Applicants are to fill out two. Sue Steady art show chairman.

Positions Still Open for UN Conference

Several delegate positions are still open on MSU's Soviet delegation to next week's inter-collegiate UN conference here, according to Fred Hebel, Detroit senior, who is chairman for the USSR group.

Students qualified and interested in arguing the Red viewpoint are welcome at a delegation meeting Thursday night at 7:30 at the Union Art room.

Five delegates and five alternates will argue against the U.S. delegation composed of West Point cadets, Hebel said.

In the conference, debates, questions of special importance will probably include UN membership for Red China, immediate disarmament, and immediate freedom for all colonial territories.

Advisers for the delegation include Arthur Adams, professor of history, Alfred Meyer, professor of political science, and Donald Uquidi, lecturer in political science.

The delegation is being coordinated by Delta Phi Epsilon, professional fraternity for diplomacy and international trade.

Campus Notes

The campus NAACP announces that tickets are now on sale for its play "The Man Called Nigger." They may be purchased at the Union board ticket office in the lobby of the Union building.

The play, which will be presented February 16 at 8 p.m. in the Union Ballroom, is given in accordance with Negro History week.

According to NAACP president Ernest Green, the play is an original written by students on campus. The play will briefly cover the life of the American Negro from pre-slavery to the present day.

The Dairy Club will present an audio-visual documentary, "Communism on the Map" tonight at 7:30 in 110 Anthony hall. The showing is free of charge.

The film traces the inhuman history of this so called "peace loving" organization from its beginning up through the overthrow of Cuba.

Phi Beta Lambda will meet tonight at 7 in 35 Union Herbert R. Shaw of Michigan Bell Telephone, will speak on "A Telephone First for MSU." Shaw will explain the new telephone system now being built on campus in dorms, administrative office and married housing.

'D-Jango' Dance Friday

The men of Alpha Phi Alpha will sponsor "D-Jango," an all university dance, Friday in the Union ballroom at 9 p.m.

According to Alpha president Dave Wynn, the dance will feature all of the latest dancing modes.

As a special attraction Derek Hodges' steel band "The Buccaneers" will play during the dance. The steel band is the only one of its type on campus, and will give an exhibition this Thursday or Friday in the lobby of the Union building at 4:00.

All faculty and students are cordially invited to attend. Admission is 50 cents.

AUSG Asks Change In Drinking Rules

Student congress tonight will consider a resolution which would modify the penalties in the current drinking regulations. The resolution, if passed, contains a provision that the AUSG president will take all possible steps to present the resolution to the Board of Trustees.

A resolution concerning class officers, one concerning cheating, and this terms AUSG budget are among other business to be considered, according to Chuck Herbert, speaker of congress.

"This should be student congress' most productive evening of the year so far," aided Herbert.

Spartans Deflate Irish; Break Winning Streak

By JOHN SCHNEIDER
Associate Sports Editor

SOUTH BEND, Notre Dame—The Spartans again fell victim to the Irish on Monday night as MSU defeated the Irish in basketball, 67-74.

The Spartan victory broke a 12-game home winning streak of the Irish which began over a year ago. The last team to beat Notre Dame at home was Butler in a 41-32 score.

Coach Freddy Anderson had his team utilize a full-court press from the beginning of the game, which caught Notre Dame by surprise. The tall but slow-footed Irish found it almost impossible to get the ball over the center court line and on many occasions, Dave Fahn, Art Schwarm and Jack Lunsford broke through to steal the ball and drive it for a layup.

THE NOTRE DAME student spirit, which according to many sources is worth a 20-point advantage for the home team, failed to rattle the Spartans. Just as the Irish began to get into the "spirit" and the students roared a fevered pitch, Fahn, Schwarm and Lunsford set up a long drive to again increase the lead.

Dick Hall, who had the first scoring sign of his college career, poured in 34 points during the contest. Fahn, Schwarm and Lunsford all hit a double digit score to give the Spartans a successful scoring attack.

The lead wavered back and forth during the first half, with State holding a small margin most of the time. State trailed 31-29 with five minutes remaining in the half when the full-court press again proved to be effective. State scored 14 points while holding the Irish to three during the remainder of the half.

DURING THE first half, Notre Dame hit on 39 percent of its shots, while State hit on but 41 percent. The difference was due in the fact that State with its full-court press, managed to take 12 more shots in the first half.

The same pattern continued during the second half, with the Spartans gradually increasing their lead. Three times State held the margin to 10 points. The closest Notre Dame could come was after 32 minutes, 52-47.

Following the 32-minute mark, "We were really surging for this," stated coach Anderson in a TV interview following the game. "I was pleased at the way we held our position, even when the student spirit was highest."

During the contest, State hit on 31 of 84 shots for a 37 percent shooting average. Notre Dame had a better average, 43 percent, but made only 29 baskets in 66 attempts.

The box score:

MSU Pistol Team Loses to OSU By Seven Points

The University's varsity pistol team lost its match against Ohio State Saturday by seven points.

The Ohio team scored 1,328 with MSU marksmen a close second with 1,321 points.

Art Belding was the high scorer for State with 367 of a possible 400 points, according to Capt. Robert L. Chamberlain, team coach.

Following Belding were Gerald Mauer, scoring 363, and Mike Belding, with 191.

The Army ROTC pistol team also fired in the match with Robert Hirsch and Al Kanonen scoring 778 and 770 points respectively.

The varsity team will meet Ohio State again this Saturday in Madison, Wisconsin, when teams from several universities will meet for the Mid-Western Sectional Tournament matches. Army ROTC marksmen scored 1,343 points in their win over the University of Toledo last Saturday. The opposing team fired a 1,344-point score.

Nicholas Steen scored 282 points, according to team coach Sgt. L. T. Stennett. Other members of the team fired as follows: Lew Palouk, 278; Arkel Cook, 271; James Allen, 269; and Fletcher Manning, 263 points.

The team will be matched against Bowling Green University this Saturday.

Bill Mazononi of the Pittsburgh Pirates was the only National League second baseman to take part in more than 87 double plays last season. Mazononi had 127 DP's.

'Crossroads Africa' Aim: Peace Through Understanding

By MARILYN BECKER
State News Staff Writer

"One becomes closely identified with the Africans through personal interest and understanding of their problems," said Betty Junk, MSU student, who spent last summer in Liberia.

Miss Junk, a member of the Operation-Crossroads Africa project, flew to New York City where, with the 100 other students who took part in this project, she attended one week of orientation sessions on Africa.

From New York City she journeyed to Paris, France, for three more days of briefing before she continued on to Africa.

MISS JUNK, along with thirteen other students, were assigned to go to Liberia. They were met at the airport by the president of the University of Liberia, the director of the YMCA and members of an African tribe which entertained them with songs and dances.

After a week of traveling and discussions with government officials, the group went 223 miles into the interior of Liberia where they made their home for about 5 weeks.

They lived in a dormitory at one of the grade schools. "Students in this school ranged in age from 5 to 18," said Miss Junk. "This is the first chance that some of the older students have had to go to school."

"I taught geography for a while in one class," she explained. "The students were all well behaved and interested in school."

"THE SCHOOLS use textbooks from the United States and some of these books assume the children know more than they actually do," she said. "It is hard to present material to people who have had no background for it."

"There is a great need for more development in the schools," Miss Junk said. "The schools on the coast are very good, but there are few schools and few teachers in the interior of Liberia. Most of the university students come from the coastal region."

Miss Junk explained that while they were at the school they lived and worked with a group of African students. They talked together about problems in both countries.

With these African students, they built the first library in the interior of Liberia, according to Miss Junk.

"THE AFRICAN students had heard and read about our segregation problem in the South and thought this was typical of the entire nation," Miss Junk said. "They were amazed that we would come over and work and live with them."

"Several of the people in the group were prejudiced," Miss Junk explained. "Some disconnected Africa and the United States — they didn't feel against the Africans what they would feel against the Negroes in the United States. And for some this experience changed their opinions."

Another problem in Liberia, according to Miss Junk, was health. "There are very few doctors and hospitals in the interior of Liberia," she said.

"We had to take precautions to boil our water and cook our food well, wear shoes and sleep under mosquito netting. Even after taking these precautions, eight people in the group got malaria, which is quite prevalent there," said Miss Junk.

THE PURPOSE of this project

according to Miss Junk, was "for the American to understand the African and his aspirations and for the African to understand the American ideals."

Asked about how this experience would benefit her future work, Miss Junk said, "I plan to counsel foreign students. Children and people are basically the same all over and I hope this experience will help me know how they feel being transplanted into another country."

Lighting Fixtures Bring Fireman

East Lansing firemen had only light work on campus Monday; namely fluorescent lighting fixtures.

A burned out light was reported at 9:48 a.m. in the third floor hall of Student Services. At 6:18 p.m. another light was reported out of order in fourth floor B wing of Emmons.

No fire was reported in either case and damage was confined to the fixtures.
