Red Cedar Ceremony Signals 'Lights Out' for Sunshine

Some 900 students paused Monday to pay tribute to "Sunshine," who died that morning. "Sunshine" was a two-month old turtle.

A funeral procession of 15 cars, led by an 8-foot casket containing Sunshine's body, wound its way through campus and stopped to hold a rally for the deceased.

At the rally, 250 heard of Sunshine's record of accomplishments. The procession then moved on.

Burial took place on the banks of the Red Cedar River. The "preacher" told 700 who had stopped to pay their last respects that Sunshine had been purchased at a dime store and had a "heart of gold." "He came up the hard way, from common stock—but he went out like a champ," he said.

With the playing of taps, Sunshine's body was lowered into the Red Cedar. This was followed by a chorus of "The Saints Go Marching In."

Attending physician, chief pallbearer, and friend of the family, Roger Liss, Brooklyn, N.Y. sophomore, said that Sunshine died of claustrophobia of the shell—his heart was too big. He had been sick for two weeks.

Survivors are his brother,

Moonshine; friends of the family, Panther Man, Cobra Girl; and the owner Larry Steinberg, Southfield sophomore.

Herman's Demise Mourned

Let us all take a moment to silently honor H.H. Herman, who died Monday in Giltner animal clinic of leptospirosis, a kidney infection.

Herman was a Bassett Hound who resided at the Beta Theta Pi house, 225 Bogue Street. A loyal student of Michigan State,

HERMAN

Herman has been honored in the past for attending more classes than any other student.

Attending physician Don Sawyer of Giltner called Herman "one of the most understanding, helpful patients I have ever worked with."

Herman leaves behind a four-month old son Stanley.

'Riders' Pledge To Continue Challenge of Bus Segregation

France Proposes Laos Withdrawal

GENEVA (AP)—France called Tuesday for the withdrawal of all foreign troops from strife-torn Laos except for a French contingent to replace U.S. advisers.

This proposal—made at the international conference on Laos—was contained in a three-stage plan to pacify the Southeast Asian country.

The withdrawal provision would apply to U.S. officers advising the royal Laotian government and to the Communists from North Viet Nam supporting the Pathet Lao rebellion.

THE FRENCH called for a return to the military arrangements for Laos as an independent kingdom.

The 1954 agreements allowed the French to maintain 1,500 military instructors in Laos. The French also were authorized to maintain two bases with a total strength of no more than 3,500 men.

A handful of French troops remain in Laos but most of the military instruction and supplies received by the royal Laotian government now are being provided by the Americans.

The French peace plan for Laos is contained in three documents.

Two were submitted today by Ambassador Jean Chauvel. The third will be ready in a few days.

THE FRENCH offer a counterproposal to the plan for Laos introduced last week by Soviet foreign minister Andrei Gromyko. The Soviet plan would give the Communists a veto over peace machinery operations in Laos.

The French plan is in line with the thinking of various non-Communist delegations; informants said.

An American spokesman told newsmen that the United States delegation "thought the French document contains these provisions:

THE ROYAL Laotian government would proclaim a desire for neutrality. It would call on the 13 other nations at this conference to respect its territorial integrity and to assure "the free functioning of its national institutions."

The Laotian government would promise not to enter into any military alliances or tolerate the presence of foreign troops or foreign military installations on its territory other than the foreign military instructors foreseen in the 1954 Geneva accords.

The second French document specifies:

The other 13 governments in the conference would subscribe to the principles and conditions contained in the declaration of the Laotian government. They would agree "to abstain from any direct or indirect interference in the internal affairs of Laos."

Education Aid Bill Amended

Senate Increases Money for Buses, Janitors

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The Senate amended the $2.55 billion Federal Aid to Education bill Tuesday to cover buses, books, and janitors as well as teachers and classrooms.

By a 51-39 vote, the Senate adopted an amendment of Sen. Winston L. Prouty, R-Vt., to permit states to use federal grants for the general operating expenses of their public schools.

As the Senate voted, the House Education Committee took up a more explosive amendment to the bill.

Rep. Herbert Zelenko, D-N.Y., has proposed that the bill include federal grants for construction of private and parochial schools.

ADMINISTRATION leaders said its adoption might lead to defeat of the entire bill in the House. The Senate is expected to reject a similar amendment.

Several senators said the original Prouty amendment might have allowed some states to use federal funds for students of private schools.

At the suggestion of Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., the wording of Prouty's amendment was changed to assure that only public schools would receive the funds for operating expenses.

The bill, when it came to the floor of the Senate, allowed states to use the proposed grants only for teacher salaries, school construction or both.

SEN. JOSEPH S. Clark, D-Pa., a sponsor of the bill, opposed the Prouty amendment, saying "The money will be frittered away and we will not achieve our objectives."

Prouty said his amendment would give states real freedom of choice in using the $2.55 billion of federal funds.

MARTIAL LAW IN MONTGOMERY—National guardsmen patrol the street in front of the Greyhound bus station in Montgomery, Ala., Monday after Governor John Patterson proclaimed martial law to halt racial rioting. The first violence of the bloody weekend erupted here Saturday. (AP Wirephoto)

To Appeal Alabama Injunction

MONTGOMERY, Ala., (AP)—Undeterred by race riots which upset their timetable, battered "Freedom Riders" promised Tuesday to continue their challenge of bus station segregation in the South.

Others will come, too, their spokesmen told a news conference, and a State court injunction which seeks to stop the freedom journeys through Alabama will be appealed to Federal Court.

In Washington, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy told reporters "We have some ideas of what we are going to do" if the Freedom Riders go from Montgomery to New Orleans. He declined however, to say what form of action is being considered.

HE SAID there would have been "an extremely bloody and costly riot" in Montgomery, Ala., Sunday night except for the presence of deputy U.S. Marshals.

Kennedy referred to an incident at the First Baptist Church where a mob gathered while a group of Negroes were holding a meeting inside.

Newspaper reporters who were present said that if the marshals had not been present the church would have been burned to the ground with great loss of life," Kennedy said.

IN A TELEGRAM to Alabama Congress members who yesterday demanded withdrawal of the Federal officers, the Attorney General said the marshals will not remain "a minute longer than is necessary."

"What is needed now is action on the part of Gov. (John) Patterson and local law enforcement officers—not merely words of intention," Kennedy said.

The Attorney General said he sent the marshals into Alabama last weekend after he felt that State authorities had made a faulty appraisal of the situation, and after he and President Kennedy had been unable to reach Patterson.

He said the action was taken only as a last resort, and with great reluctance.

THE WHITE HOUSE said the President kept in touch with the situation during the day through talks, apparently by telephone, with Justice Department officials.

Asked about demands of Alabama authorities that he do something about curbing Freedom Riders going into Alabama, the Attorney General said he had no power to stop them. He asserted:

"Even if I could persuade this or that group, there would always be others. That means the basic responsibility for preventing future racial violence rests squarely with local and State police."

Meanwhile, with National Guardsmen and civilian police keeping a watchful eye on the still-tense city under martial law, a Nazi "hate bus" rolled into Montgomery, stopped briefly at a service station, then proceeded toward Mobile.

The swastika-marked 12 young men, bound ultimately for New Orleans in an avowed campaign against racial integration and Communism, had hoped to make a speaking appearance here, but it failed to materialize.

Tickets Available

Graduating students may obtain an additional commencement ticket today by presenting their ID card at the Alumni Records office, 253 Student Services. The same procedure will be followed Thursday if any tickets are left.

Congress Acts Tonight On Summer Term Bill

Student Congress will act on a resolution to establish a summer session at tonight's meeting in the House chambers of the Capitol building.

The summer session would not legislate but act mainly as an investigating body, according to Dale Warner, Eaton Rapids junior, speaker of Congress.

Tentative plans call for select committees to investigate housing rules and regulations, compulsory class attendance, a system of course and faculty evaluation, and to review the grading system.

A resolution to hold a fall referendum to amend the AUGS constitution to permit graduate student representation in Student government will also be considered.

If passed the resolution would outline voting procedure for the referendum vote with both graduate and undergraduate students voting on the issue.

Congress will also consider a resolution to establish a Student Traffic Appeal Court for summer term.

Tonight's session will start at 7:30 in the House chambers. The meeting is open to all students.

Repeat Exam Deadline Set

The office of evaluation services has announced that Wednesday is the deadline for permission to repeat final examinations in the University College.

Any student wishing to repeat an examination must obtain permission from the assistant dean of the University College.

Slow Drivers Cause Crashes

By JOHN DANCER, State News Staff Writer

Remarks made by traffic safety authorities at a recent training program for police officers give evidence of growing concern over the motorists whose morals may be good but whose automobile driving isn't.

The five-day program was conducted by the Highway Traffic Safety Center, the school of police administration and the Continuing Education services at the Oakland county campus.

William A. Mann, of the safety center, pointed a finger of guilt at the self-acclaimed "unusually safe driver."

"SUCH A DRIVER," Mann said, "may keep out of trouble himself but causes others to have accidents."

"He may be timid, or he may be expressing his hostility towards the world by holding up a long line of traffic and enjoying it," he added.

This is the type of driver who, by getting in everybody's way, causes the aggressive driver to take chances he wouldn't take otherwise, he said.

Another participant in the program, Robert Yake, chief of Michigan's driver licensing and central records, said the incompetent driver can be taken off the highway under the same law as any other violator.

"WHEN BROUGHT to our attention by a qualified person such drivers may be found unfit on re-examination even if they have had no traffic records," he said.

The continued licensing of the incompetent is due to the small number of persons and agencies authorized to examine and approve driver license applications in Michigan, he said.

Leslie R. Silvernale, assistant director of the Highway Traffic Safety center, spoke of efforts of high school driver education teachers to cull out the unfit.

"THESE TEACHERS refused certificates to 6,500 students in Michigan last year," he said. "In 5,000 cases it was not from lack of skill in operating an automobile but rather lack of mental and emotional stability on the highways."

But these same students at the age of 18 can still obtain licenses despite their potential menace, he added.

As more miles of high speed freeways are completed in Michigan and throughout the nation, the problem of the incompetent driver will become even more acute.

Peace Talks Begin

Algerian Rebels Stall Cease-Fire

EVIAN-LES-BAINS (AP)—France and the Algerian rebel regime buckled down to serious peace talks Tuesday as French authorities moved in elements of an anti-aircraft unit to strengthen already tight security measures.

Neither delegation would reveal details. A French spokesman described the atmosphere as "formally correct" and said there was a general discussion of the snarled Algerian issue. The spokesman would not say why security measures had been strengthened.

A HALF DOZEN half-tracks, each mounting a 50-caliber machine gun, appeared around this Lake Geneva resort town.

Troops manning the half-tracks joined scores of blue-uniformed republic security forces and policemen who have clamped a firm guard around the city and the conference site, the Hotel Du Parc.

Authorities obviously fear attempts at sabotage by French extremists who oppose independence for Algeria, a land torn by rebellion and other disturbances for nearly seven years.

Despite the French order for the army in Algeria to observe a cease-fire, there was no peace there as talks began.

FOURTEEN persons were killed and eight were wounded in continuing rebel attacks in Algeria in the past 24 hours, French authorities there reported.

The peace talks got under way Saturday with a formal opening session at which each side read a brief summary of its basic position. The nationalists want independence. The French want to protect their oil fields in the Sahara and would like to see Algeria tied economically to France after it is given self rule.

A French spokesman said agreements were reached Tuesday on two technical points.

ONE IS TO hold sessions every other day, giving the French and Algerian delegations time to discuss strategy with Paris and Tunis, respectively. The rebels maintain their provisional government headquarters in Tunis.

The second decision was not to disclose publicly the substance of the talks. The next meeting will be Thursday.

Heart Attack Kills Star Joan Davis

PALM SPRINGS, (AP)—Joan Davis, the lanky blonde whose cracked-voice capers made her one of the entertainment world's great comedienne, died of a heart attack Tuesday at 48.

She was stricken Monday afternoon at her desert home. Death came at 3 a.m. at a Palm Springs hospital. At her bedside were her mother, Mrs. Nina Davis, and a Catholic priest.

Often during her 35-year career she had said she wanted to quit. Death came just four years after she finally did.

IN HER last role she made her fortune and achieved her greatest success—as the trouble-prone wife of Jim Backus in the TV series "I Married Joan."

In movies and television, Miss Davis was the angular, wry-faced zany who could crack wise and take falls with a vaudevillian's precision.

Controversial 7 Point Plan Still in Experimental Stage

Two months ago President John A. Hannah first announced his now famous "Seven Point Plan." Since then discussion has raged pro and con regarding the proposals. The plan includes such measures as utilization of living units for academic instruction, increased use of television, film and other audio-visual aids, and encouragement of independent study.

These ideas are far from revolutionary but the cries that have arisen due to them indicate that some people think they are drastic changes. Some people view these ideas as cut and dried solutions to the crisis higher education is facing. And, they say, these solutions are doomed to failure, dragging the university down with them.

TELEVISION WILL take the teacher out of teaching. It will destroy the personal bond between student and instructor. Students will turn glassy-eyed viewers with their eyes continually glued to a screen.

Classes in resident halls will result in isolated, over-protected persons who never see the other side of the Red Cedar and do not know Grand River exists. They will spend four years in the narrow confines of one building—the extremists say one room.

Independent study will kill off half the student population. Freshmen are unprepared to take responsibility themselves and upper classmen are sufficiently ingrained with the old system to completely kill off independent study at a higher level. Thus, the bulk of the university will quit, leaving the Honors College members and a few determined individuals.

THESE CHARGES have been hurled back and forth the last few weeks with alarming alacrity. Most persons do not seem to understand the real significance of Hannah's plan.

It is not a cure-all or panacea for every educational ill. It is simply one step in finding a means to educate our swelling student population on a smaller proportionate budget.

The administration has wisely conceded that we may not have as much money per student next year as we have now. Realistically, it is planning for the future when we must change our system or leave thousands of talented youths without a college education.

The Seven Point Plan is merely one device, one area to be explored in finding a new system. It is not the pattern for all future action. It must be seen as a guideline, directing ideas and channeling them into workable forms. If these ideas prove impractical and poor, some other method will be tried.

THIS PLAN is a door opener to other plans. It is the accelerator to put hazy ideas into actual use and to debate their worth. Every course will not be taught via television. But perhaps we will find that it is valuable to teach basic subject matter, supplementing what the instructor has time to give in lecture.

We may discover that classes in living units actually do stimulate an academic atmosphere with less emphasis on worthless and time-consuming activities. It may promote interest in intellectual and valuable civic activities such as international organizations, AUSG, student publications, and discussion forums.

Independent study may not cause a mass exodus from the university. It may create a group of scholars who are vitally concerned with their intellectual development rather than their social status.

IF THESE DEVELOPMENTS occur, the plan will have been a success and probably will be adopted. If adverse effects result, these ideas will be abandoned and others tried.

But in any event—a university cannot remain static. Just as it must always be searching for knowledge, it must always be ways to present this knowledge. MSU must adapt to the 1960's and the problems the decade brings.

Hannah's plan is an excellent attempt to fulfill this aspect of a university's functions. If parts of it fail, they will be cut out. The successful parts of it will be used. But even they will not be the final answer. 1970 will present new problems and MSU must find new answers by the same method.

In Limpopo Hall

3 Ladies With Similar Thoughts Together in Contented Seclusion

By VIC RAUCH
State News City Editor

Once upon a time there lived three young maidens in Limpopo Hall at Greenuniversity on the banks of the Dead Letter River.

The three were very happy. They roomed together until they flunked out of school. But the joyous days of university life they will never forget.

It was a warm fall day when the three maidens first met.

"HI, MY NAME'S Mary Fuller. I guess I'm your room-mate this year."

"Hi, Mary. My name's Debbie French. Glad to meet you."

"Looks like we register the same day. Let's go register together. My major is home ec; what's yours?"

"Hey, mine's home ec too. Let's try to get the same classes."

Mary accepted this idea with extreme enthusiasm, for she had found a room-mate with interests similar to hers.

LINDA FROST entered the room a few minutes later, suitcase in hand, and introduced herself. What could be more surprising than to find that her major was home ec too. The three young maidens knew in their hearts that nothing could be more wonderful than living with each other and sharing the problems of being freshmen in a brand new way of life.

They all agreed to try and get the same classes at registration. When the dreadful, hectic day came, all was well with the three young maidens of Limpopo Hall, for they had found themselves as roommates of similar interests.

The three had identical schedules. What they found best was that their morning classes were right in Limpopo Hall with the rest of the girls living on the same floor, all freshmen home ec majors.

AND THERE WERE in these parts two groups which decided university policy. One day, the larger group, meeting in two houses, decided to build a huge wall around Limpopo Hall so no student from out-of-state could upset the many happy young maidens.

The three maidens were very happy because of this decision for it lowered the grade curve.

By this time, television sets had been installed on the wall of each room. The maidens never had to leave their rooms, except for supper with other freshmen home ec majors. Breakfast and lunch were served in bed while they watched closed-circuit educational TV.

What a happy, glorious life. Eat, sleep, watch TV and spend the live-long day with such wonderful roommates. In the custody of their room, they would talk of food, etiquette and the problems of being freshmen in a large university.

SATURDAY WAS the fun day of the week. Mary, Linda and Debbie watched the Greenuniversity Garters play twiddle winks in Garter stadium, a 76,000 seat horticulture lecture hall.

What excitement they found in seeing one of their Garter players twiddling as they lay in bed, viewing the game on TV. Great cheers would arise from the stadium as the volume was turned up on the Garter crowd sound record.

Then came the day the university asked them to leave. The three young maidens were very sad. They had failed to maintain a two-point all-college average. They had a four-point in all home ec courses, but had flunked all the rest.

Such was the fate of the three young maidens.

Letters to the Editor

On Carnival, Alabama Riots

Carry On

To the Editor:
I am so happy that Mr. Roberts has seen fit to clarify, for all of us, the plans, purposes and goals of Water Carnival.

It is so comforting to know that this production, with a cast of hundreds, does, in fact, build spirit and a sense of loyalty between classmates and to the university. I should like to attack his letter, not on personal grounds, but merely on the grounds that the logic of his arguments leaves something to be desired.

Classes and studies come first—period—no "buts"! Indeed if the student cannot learn the value of self-discipline and self-respect through the academic side of his university existence, it seems a bit pathetic; tending toward defeat, gain and loss is hardly justification (nor should it be) for Water Carnival's existence.

We should be more concerned with being individuals than with being well-rounded. Mr. Roberts. Let's learn now and adjust later.

Water Carnival has made possible rare books that are probably read even more rarely, windows in a chapel used principally if not almost exclusively for status weddings, a lounge in a library where lounging is all too often the principal pastime, an organ in the Union that gets played maybe once a week—and now the planetarium that will delight Michigan farmers, her high school students, her alumni and her friends.

Why not sponsor some student who won't be here in the fall because he or she can't afford it?

I've no doubt that there is satisfaction gleaned from Water Carnival; I've no doubt that it takes a year of planning and devoted effort; I don't even doubt that it involves all sorts of cooperative togetherness that literally exudes total citizenship adjustment and personal well-being.

However, I do seriously doubt and sincerely question that there is any merit to Water Carnival beyond that which any side-show sustains.

The 41 years of its noble or ignoble existence says nothing about its worthiness. Those 41 years, however, do reflect firmly upon the desire for students to be entertained and the willingness of someone else to commit themselves right out of their first and principal obligations for the sake of providing that entertainment.

Carry on, Mr. Roberts; by all means, do carry on!

Over Dramatized

To the Editor:
What is the matter with the American press today? Have they no respect for anyone or anything?

When we read about the funeral of Gary Cooper, it made us sick to think the press could stoop so low. Nothing could be more revolting than comparing one man's funeral to another. All through the article the comparison was made between Gary Cooper's funeral and those of former stars.

Why can't they let him go in peace? Do our stars have to have glamorous funerals in order to maintain prestige? Must funerals be rated as our television shows and movies are?

If they cannot give a man a decent obituary in the press, we would rather see it unprinted.

He Dug It

To the Editor:
Music, heard before, was heard differently last Sunday afternoon. The cats (and a chick) swung; they wailed and misted in still bright air. Behind their brows and golds (of metal, wood and skin), spring green accented like a good drummer. And the smells of ground and water were valve oil for the senses.

The musicians dug each other, and romped on the tarp in happy-child games inviting their audience to be hip to the joy. The ducks and the canoers, even the card players, must have dug some of the message.

A girl in blue with straight black hair blew jazz of her own. Her ax was interest, her notes were expressions, and her changes, in projection, were on understanding.

The wild wig and moustaches of a sturdy man, seen alone, but with a far out rhythm section, advertised that his song was of himself. These songs of understanding and of individuality merged properly with the messages of skill and joy.

The "Session by the Cedar" was a festival for the senses, a fit site to be repeated with each spring.

Many thanks to Beta Theta Pi for making the place available.

Henry F. Cooke

Not Communist

To the Editor:
In reading about the recent race riots in Montgomery, Alabama, I have become very much disturbed when the governor of Alabama said he believed them to be communist-inspired.

I do not believe that Americans protesting for their rights as citizens and human beings are communist-inspired. It is about time that the students of this university and other establishments for higher education throughout the country should do something about the fact that there are fellow citizens still struggling for their rights as Americans and human beings.

May I remind the government of Alabama that we are living in the 1960's, not the 1890's.

Older Traditions

To the Editor:
After reading Arnie Roberts' ecstatic praise of the Water Carnival in Monday's State News, I feel constrained to agree that this annual event is the culmination, the very apogee, the ultimate, in the beneficent socialization of the hapless student. As a yearly event, it easily ranks in significance and emotional power with the St. Bartholomew's Day Massacre, the Guy Fawkes Plot, and the White Sox Scandal.

However, when Mr. Roberts calls the Water Carnival "The oldest tradition on campus," I must enter a mild dissent. Among the older traditions on this campus are: the constant seeking of the truth wherever it may be found; the necessity to maintain one's intellectual integrity; the desire to use the results of scholarship in the service of humanity; and finally, the willingness to allow organized vacuity to float down the Red Cedar as long as it does not interfere with the serious goals of the University.

Editor's Life Far From Placid

By MARCIA VAN NESS
Editor-in-Chief

When you're "the new editor" of State News, you're friend or foe to everyone you meet... and either way, you know it.

It's like landing in the middle of a hurricane: Somewhere there's tranquility, but around you there's torment.

And nothing you can do can settle it. Because, after all, the editor's job isn't always a pleasant one. And good editors have few friends.

The purpose of a paper is to report the news whether those involved want to see it printed or not. After all, State News doesn't make things happen, it only tells about them.

On its editorial page, State News can explain how it feels about what's happening. It will probably not always agree that what's being reported is for the good of the university.

It will probably even stir up a controversy or two—but not just for the sake of rable-raising. It will probably be because we can see a plan for change or improvement in something we think could be better.

After all, the college paper is one of the few communication channels between students, the administration, staff people and employees. It maintains its freedom not only to print objective news accounts but also to comment on things editorially.

To abolish the editorial page would be to abolish one of the few ways the student voice can be heard.

There's a chance that State News might even manage a few pats on the back to things the paper feels deserve it.

It will be a friend to worthwhile causes and a foe to causes we see as unproductive.

Either way, State News will take a responsible position based on research and investigation.

Criticism never harmed a good cause. If it's constructive, that is. And controversy has often served to call attention to a problem which might otherwise have been overlooked.

Sometimes readers will agree and sometimes they won't.

"We, in this instance, isn't meant only in the editorial sense. The Newspaper "we" means some 150 persons who make up the staff—news editors, city editor, and the whole works. The editor, however, speaks for the paper. Staffers and readers won't always agree with what the editor says. But this is as it should be.

Swainson Vetoes Work Camp Bill

LANSING, (P)—Gov. Swainson Tuesday vetoed a bill which would have permitted counties to join together to construct work camps for delinquent minors, and signed into law the battle-scarred Seal of Quality bill.

The bill, which would permit Michigan farmers to label their above-average products, failed to pass the legislature for the past 12 years. It was a perennial favorite of former Gov. G. Mennen Williams.

The veto was the sixth of the session for the Governor.

SWAINSON said previous legislation in the field called for the hiring of professional people to study the delinquent minors and help them solve their problems.

Work camps would not lend themselves to meeting this objective, he said.

If such a program is contemplated, he said, standards should be set for the operation and programs of the camps.

Five other bills were signed into law by the Governor, all of a minor nature.

Swainson said he is sending the pen used to sign the Seal of Quality bill to Williams, now Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs.

NAACP Reviews Progress; McKee States Further Goals

Accomplishments of the local NAACP chapter were reviewed at a Forum on Current Affairs last Thursday by the outgoing president, Ernest Green.

Green said the aims as listed in a January 1961 State News article were:

1. To eradicate the misconception about the black man.
2. To fill in the factual details which have been omitted from the history of the American people, Negro history.
3. The removal from the category of innate racial traits those social characteristics distinguishing Negroes from the rest of society by indicating the manner in which depraved social emotions have forged those characteristics.
4. To provide means by which persons in the university have closer social contact with Negroes if they so desire.

According to Green, the fourth objective was approached by a dance, "A New Twist to Integration," which proved by the participation of nearly 500 students that inter-racial functions are possible on campus.

The first and second objectives were approached, said Green, by the capacity-crowd play "Man Called Nigger," showing Negro history within American history. It prompted the audience, said Green, toward eliminating racial problems.

He added that membership had increased 70 per cent since 1960 and that over 35 new members had been added in the last three weeks.

Green introduced Sam Harris, director of public relations and founder of the campus NAACP. Harris spoke in behalf of the campus NAACP in presenting Tom King, dean of students, with a plaque expressing the appreciation and gratitude of the organization for King's interest in students and his judicial fairness in student affairs.

Dean King expressed appreciation for the plaque and urged the NAACP members to visit him if they ever encountered difficulties and said that the organization would have his full support in their endeavors in the future.

JAMES B. McKee, associate professor of sociology and anthropology, was introduced by Green at the conclusion of King's acceptance of the plaque.

In his speech McKee said that the citizens of Clinton, Tenn., learned that unless the moderates took a stand, segregationists act as leaders and disorder reigns.

Little Rock, he said, was a test for segregationists in the south. The choice was desegregation or no public schools.

AT THE BEGINNING, according to McKee, most of the public in Little Rock stood behind the militant segregationist leaders, but lack of public education was too high a price to pay. Therefore, strict segregationists lost in a recall election.

Over the last seven years there has been much progress, he said, but he urged greater skill and understanding on the part of the federal government so that the Little Rock situation would not be repeated.

MCKEE praised the NAACP for compelling the courts to decide constitutional issues through lawsuits, which finally paid off in a 1954 decision inferring no constitutional basis for segregated, publicly supported schools.

HE SAID THAT Negro youths today are in a position to choose goals to work for and the kind of society in which to live. He urged middle class Negroes not to lose touch with the masses, for Negroes run the same risk of cleavage as any other people.

As it lessens, he said, Negroes will make a mistake if they feel all inequality is gone, for it springs up in another form when we think we have it licked.

He urged Negroes to commit themselves to a cause which helps all who are downtrodden, for Negroes are not the first who have suffered inequality.

"Men, it seems to me, need to have goals which are not practically attainable," said McKee, for only by reaching can we attain.

At the conclusion of McKee's speech, Green introduced the 1961-62 campus NAACP president, Joseph Saifax, and turned the executive's gavel over to him.

Schmitter 2nd In Midwest

Chuck Schmitter, Jr. placed second in epee in the midwestern championship of the Amateur Fencers League of America held at Marquette University last weekend.

Schmitter, a varsity fencer for Michigan State during the past three years, was defeated by Dieter von Oppen, a German from Chicago, for the title.

There were 24 contestants from throughout the midwest, including Minnesota, Wisconsin, Missouri, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Kentucky and Michigan.

In 18 bouts, Schmitter won 15 and lost 3.

According to Michigan State's fencing coach Charles Schmitter who accompanied his son, "Chuck fenced better Saturday than he has in the last two years."

U. S. Soccer League Predicted State Meets Old Foe in Irish

NEW YORK (AP)—A full-time Soccer League, with franchises from coast-to-coast operating eight months a year, was forecast today by Bill Cox, whose International League got its second season under way a few days ago.

Cox brought international competition to this country last year, and the games at the Polo grounds here proved to be big crowd getters once the idea caught on. The crowd appeal, reasons Cox, is something that has been lying dormant all over the country.

"OUR OBJECTIVE this year will be to start making Soccer a major sport in this country," he said.

"We want to get it to the youngsters and adults alike. We want them to see what a test of endurance and skill it is, and I feel we'll get our point across when they see the game played in two 45-minute halves without substitution." That was a big selling point last year.

He'll get his wish to have it shown all over the country this Thursday, when the game between Brazil's championship Bangu team and one of Germany's leading squads will be shown on CBS' "Summer Sports Spectacular" 6:30-7:30 p.m. EST, from the Polo grounds. It will be the first Soccer match originating in the US to be put on a coast-to-coast TV hookup.

COX FEELS Soccer will appeal to the boy who is not the Behemoth who can play in a football line. If he is agile and fast, he can still find a good outlet in soccer.

What Cox hopes to achieve soon is to have a Soccer team made up only of Americans that will play in the International League. He also wants more cities, but feels that will come in the expansion of the sport across the country.

"Right now we have New York, and have introduced the league into Montreal, where we feel it will make just as big a smash," he said.

"BUT THE BIG appeal is still with the ethnic groups, and that is probably one of the reasons why New York took to the sport so well," he went on. "Every nationality is well represented in this city and most of those around the age of 50 remember the sport as it was played in the old country during their childhood. We hope not only to keep them attracted, but hope that they will pass on a liking of the game to their youngsters."

What is holding back the sport's advancement, through normal means in this country?

"WE HAVE no room for advancement because of a lack of facilities and good coaching," Cox replied. "But if the sport is advanced all over the country, the next stage of development will be a demand to get the good coaches from Europe, where the game is played as it should be."

"It follows from this that there will be enough talent and popularity to foster a new league - one that will be in operation eight months a year instead of the present two-month setup," he said.

KALAMAZOO (AP)—Mid-American conference champion western Michigan scored six runs in the first four innings to beat Big Ten champion Michigan 7-5 in a warmup for next week's NCAA district 4 baseball play-offs.

RIGHT NOW there is only one American player in the International League. He is Ben Zinn, a New York University engineering graduate.

"We have great athletes in this country in every sport," Cox added. "But before a sport can contribute such great talent it must grow up. And that is what we feel will happen, beginning right now."

Michigan State renews one of its time-honored baseball rivalries Wednesday, hosting Notre Dame at Old College Field. Game time is 3:30 p.m.

The Spartans and Irish will be meeting for the 68th time in a series that started at Notre Dame in 1907. The game will be the second between the two clubs this spring, State having won earlier at the Irish diamond by a 6-3 score.

COACH JOHN Kobs' Spartans have completed their Big Ten slate, winding up with six wins and eight losses, good for a fifth-place finish. With the league sked out of the way,

State now will concentrate on mark, with the record now 20 bettering its over-all season wins and 10 losses.

Tigers Tie Record, Win 5-2

Successive home runs by Norm Cash, Steve Boros and Dick Brown broke up a 2-2 deadlock and gave Hank Aguirre his second victory of the year last night.

Al Kaline drove in the Tigers' first two runs with a single and his first home run of the season.

Jim Bunning started for Detroit and went seven plus innings, but was relieved in the eighth by Jim Donahue, Terry Fox and Aguirre. Bunning gave up both Minnesota runs.

The home run outburst came with none out in the ninth inning off two Twins pitchers, and tied a major league record.

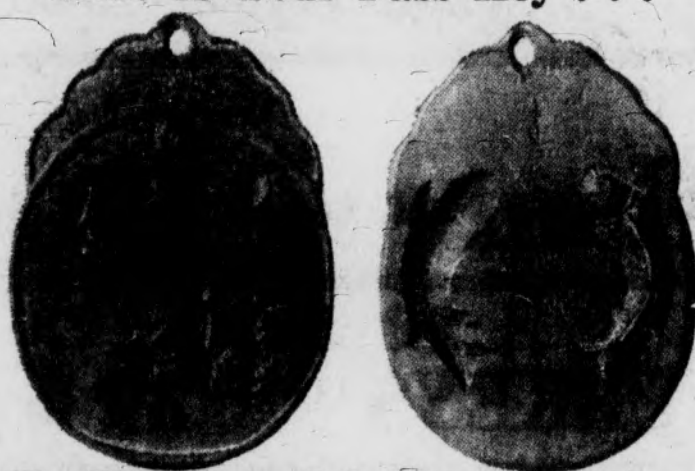

The victory, coupled with Cleveland's loss to Los Angeles, increased Detroit's lead to 4½ games.

Boros' home run put him in second place in the league RBI race with 33. Cash is third in the league with 32, and Rocky Calavito fourth with 28.

FORTUNES

... have been and will be made in the stock market by men who have brains and are willing to use them hard

INVESTMENT ANALYSIS must fascinate any thinking man. Whatever happens in any part of the world is related to the value of securities—upheaval in the Congo, formation of the European Common Market, Communist economic policies, military aggression in the East—all have an influence upon the value of stocks and bonds on the New York Stock Exchange and the Over-the-Counter markets. In no other field of investigation—not even journalism—can a man find such quick identification with world-wide affairs as in the stock market.

To a small number of men who are about to graduate from college and who have proved by their scholastic records that they are capable of doing hard, intelligent work, the Value Line Investment Survey, one of the world's foremost investment advisory services, offers the following:

(1) a six-months course of training in security analysis, taught by the head of the Value Line organization and its top editor-analysts.

(2) the following minimum salary schedules:

For three months during the tuition period from July 15th to October 15th—$300.00 per month.

For the next three months' apprenticeship, October 15th to January 15th—$400.00 per month.

The first year following . . .	$6,000.00
The second year	7,000.00
The third year	8,000.00
The fourth year	9,000.00
The fifth year	10,000.00
The sixth year	12,000.00
The seventh year	13,000.00
The eighth year	14,000.00
The ninth year	15,000.00
The tenth year	16,000.00
The eleventh year	17,000.00

The increases in pay are, of course, accompanied by promotions in title and responsibility as well. In perhaps no other securities research organization can the exceptionally able analyst advance so rapidly to a position of meaningful responsibility and stature.

If an analyst fails to receive the minimum advance indicated by this schedule, he will be on notice that his resignation is desired. It is probable that of those who are accepted most can and will go ahead faster than shown in this schedule.

In addition to the salary, the company provides a profit sharing plan which, under the minimum salary schedules, should result in providing a capital fund of around $35,000 to $50,000 (as a long term capital gain) at the end of the twelfth year of employment.

In addition, the company provides, entirely at company expense, the following insurance benefits: hospitalization, accident, major medical and life.

Only a few men will be selected for these positions. They will be selected from the tops of their classes, after psychological testing that confirms our own investigation of their aptitude for the work.

This is a challenging offer to men who seek security as well as fortune in the relatively near future.

A security analyst with the Value Line Survey is not precluded from investing for his own account, provided his investments are bought or sold in a manner that is not in conflict with the interests of the service's subscribers or its clients.

Not only will the candidates receive careful instruction, enjoy the opportunity to meet top corporate executives of the companies whose securities they study, and have access to all current reports and news-articles in our library, but they will also have the benefit of exchanging ideas with experienced and stimulating analysts within the organization.

Those students, men or women, who feel that they may be qualified for the positions described above and who are interested in careers in securities research, increasingly the heart of the whole investment business, are requested to forward brief resumes of their college records including marks, class standing, etc., and of any relevant work experience to:

Sixth Annual Awards Dinner Honors Fourteen MSU Cadets

Fourteen university Army and Air Force ROTC cadets received high honors for their past performances. Detroit's Sheraton-Cadillac hotel was the site of the Sixth Annual ROTC Awards dinner, sponsored by the Michigan Aviation Foundation.

AIR FORCE ROTC cadets receiving awards were: Robert F. Garvin, Jr., Beaver, Penn., senior, Detroit News medal; David E. Harmon, Lansing senior, Outstanding Military Achievement award; Ronald E. Holtz, Webster, N. Y., senior, University President's award; and Daniel S. Kasprzyk, Buffalo, N. Y., freshman, Kelsey-Hayes Co. medal.

Kurt J. Magee, Camillus, N. Y., sophomore, Michigan Aviation Foundation award; Robert P. Soutter, Culver City, Calif., senior, Ford Motor Co. medal; and Donald W. Stephen, Grosse Pointe sophomore, the Detroit Free Press medal.

ARMY ROTC cadets received awards were: James J.

Aitken, Eaton Rapids junior, Ford Motor Co.; Carl R. Anderson, Wayne senior, University President's award; Arnold E. Cheal, Lansing junior, Outstanding Military Achievement; John C. Laing, East Lansing sophomore, Michigan Aviation Foundation; and Richard N. Sinclair, Flint freshman, Kelsey-Hayes Co.

John E. Thurow, Augres sophomore, Detroit Free Press medal and James F. VanStee, East Lansing senior, the Detroit News medal.

Service caps of blue, white, green and black, some of them with gold and silver decorated visors, filled the Sheraton's hat-racks as award winners and high ranking representatives from eight Michigan universities arrived for the banquet.

Tables in the main ballroom were filled with mixed groups of Navy ROTC midshipmen, Army and Air Force cadets and officers of the various services.

WILBUR M. BRUCKER, former governor of Michigan and secretary of the Army under the Eisenhower administration, delivered an impromptu message that brought the crowd to their feet with a long roar of applause.

Brucker called the problems and crisis in Laos, Berlin, Cuba and the Congo a test of America's mettle and said we must demonstrate our perseverance to the enemy.

"Will America fight? Has she gone soft? Does she really know what is going on? These questions will be answered on the nation's campuses," he said.

He said that many of those present would be tomorrow's leaders and that the training and education they received now would determine how well America would be able to stand attack and criticism.

BRUCKER praised the United States and its freedom and told the audience "when someone is berating the U.S. for its problems, see how many troubles the other side has."

Maj. Gen. William S. Stone, superintendent of the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, was the featured speaker.

Addressing the group as inheritors of a "sick and troubled world," Stone said America had no choice but to lead the free world not only in maintaining a global military force as a deterrent to war but also in the "moral and spiritual rearmament of the world."
