Kruger Takes Director Post

By MARCIA VAN NESS
State News Editor-in Chief

Dr. Daniel H. Kruger was appointed associate director in charge of the Personnel Management Program service in the Labor and Industrial Relations Center Thursday by the Board of Trustees.

He replaces Charles Rogers who was reassigned by the Board in June.

Rogers, who was denied a hearing on the controversial decision by the Board, will remain in his position as associate professor of personnel and production administration.

DR. KRUGER has been with the Center staff since June, 1957, when he was named assistant professor and coordinator in the personnel management program service.

He was appointed assistant to the director of the center in July, 1960.

Dr. Jack Stieber, director of the center, said Kruger, an active participant in the center's educational programs, should bring the vigor and imagination necessary to the position to make the program one of the best of its kind in the nation.

In other action Thursday, the board voted to spend $5,200 to install turnstiles and exit devices on the first floor of the library.

THE CHECK-OUT changes will aid in what Richard E. Chapin, director of libraries, described as "a critical problem of stealing and page-cutting" at the board's June meeting.

DR. DANIEL KRUGER

The board approved academic titles of associate professor and assistant professor, respectively, for Dr. John W. Truitt, director men's division of student affairs, and Dr. Eldon Nonnamaker, assistant director.

Alumni and Development Fund offices were changed to the jurisdiction of the Secretary of the University from the Dean of Students.

"Doesn't the Secretary already have enough to do without adding this?", Trustee Warren Huff of Plymouth asked.

"THESE AREAS run themselves—they just need a little direction," Secretary Breslin said. "Maybe I can just help stir up some enthusiasm."

It was announced that the university had received a certificate of distinguished achievement in the development of alumni support by the American Alumni Council.

R. L. Guice Found Dead In Grad Hall

Robert L. Guice, 43, New Mexico resource development graduate assistant, was found dead in his Owen Hall room at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday.

An autopsy performed Wednesday noon indicated he died of shock, asphyxia and an overdose of sleeping tablets.

The body was discovered by Osborne Parker, head advisor at Owen Hall, after two students had notified him of Guice's remaining in the same position for two days.

The door to Guice's room was partially open and the students could see his foot hanging over the edge of the bed.

Coroner Dorwin Hoffmeyer estimated the man had been dead for two days, according to Department of Public Safety officials called by Parker to the scene.

GUICE ATTENDED MSU during the 1958-59 school year and returned for the 1961 spring quarter to finish work on his MA degree. He received his BS degree from Louisiana State university in 1950.

Guice was on a leave of absence from the New Mexico soil conservation department.

He leaves the widow, La Verne, and two children of Las Cruces, N.M.

Draft Age Men—Are You Ready?

All twenty-one and twenty-two-year-olds should be watching the mails closely from now on for a note from Uncle Sam.

Col. Arthur A. Holmes, state selective service director, announced that all available volunteers for the draft in Michigan would be inducted on a special call before July 31.

Holmes also said physical examinations for 2,000 men would be ordered during August.

This will be the largest physical exam call since last year, he added.

THIS MEANS that 62,000 persons 21 and older who are registered but who have not been classified will be processed into priority categories as soon as possible, Holmes said.

He said this was not a change in policy, but that until now only men born in 1938 and before had been classified.

He also promised an increased induction call for August. Local boards will be expected to fill the August call largely with non-volunteers because the special July call will take most of the men who want to be drafted.

HOLMES ALSO warned possible draftees that if they don't inform their local board concerning changes in address they will be classified as delinquent and will be subject to automatic induction.

Deliberate draft dodgers face a sentence of five years and/or a $10,000 fine.

The draft increase seems to confirm speculation from Washington that President Kennedy will call for a buildup of the armed forces in his speech to the nation next Tuesday night.

Goodman Story Scheduled

"The Benny Goodman Story" will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Saturday only at Fairchild Theatre, not "Black Orpheus," which was shown last week.

This week's film is based on the life of the celebrated band leader and clarinetist who occupies such an important place in the history of jazz. Twenty-nine big song hits are featured in the movie which is part of the MSU summer film series.

Harry James, Gene Krupa, Lionel Hampton, and Ziggy Elman are some of the musicians who will appear.

Circle's 'Tartuffe'

A Long Ho-Hum

By FRED BRACK

State News Staff Writer

The total effect of the Summer Circle presentation of "Tartuffe" Wednesday night was a long ho-hum.

This was very disappointing in view of the two fine productions which preceded it. It also constituted a poor contribution to the Fine Arts Festival.

The blame must be shared among the cast, director and adaptor of this satire by Moliere.

THERE WAS an attempt, perhaps by the adaptor, most certainly by the director, to play it for comedy. This would not have been nearly so offensive had it succeeded. Unfortunately, the laughter rarely rose above a snicker.

The inherent weakness of the play must be laid at the feet of the adaptor. There was an attempt to make the characters believable in a modern setting. This too, failed. Moliere was obviously interested in the characterization of the religious hypocrite, Tartuffe, and the dupe, Orgon. The other characters were incidental and the adaptor would have been wise to be content with this.

THERE WERE some bright moments in the play, however. R. J. de Laubenfels did a competent portrayal of Orgon. He projected himself very well despite his spotty timing. Many of his faults can be attributed to the inferior cast with which he was forced to work. His scenes with Tartuffe were excellent largely because Frank Braman, who played the part, also is a fine actor.

Braman was every inch the hypocrite in his manner and his seduction scene with Mrs. Orgon provided one of the few enjoyable moments in the play.

Barbara Rutledge as the maid, Dorine, did her best to keep the evening from being a complete failure. It was only in her role that the director was able to achieve any semblance of comedy. This marks the second week in a row that a maid has stolen the show.

It would be unduly painful to dwell on the shortcomings of the rest of the cast.

Tons and Tons of Glass Cover Michigan Roads

The State Highway Commission is spreading 375 tons of glass on Michigan highways this summer but motorists needn't worry about their tires.

About the size of grains of sugar, the glass beads will be used as reflective agents for center-lines and no passing zones.

The beads will be applied as the yellow and white center-

Buses Coming to Married Housing

Lansing Suburban Lines will add bus routes serving campus and married housing areas beginning this summer and continuing through next year, it was announced Friday.

Jack Breslin, secretary of the university, said the bus will provide service to students at 10 cents apiece anywhere on campus or to married housing.

A bus ride downtown on either Kalamazoo St. or Michigan Ave. will cost more.

The bus company expects to begin the service in early August when routes and stops will be announced.

The operation will be financed entirely by Suburban Lines. Plans are being made by lines officials, Breslin and the department of public safety.

Arts Festival Offers Talent

Emphasizing the university's increasing interest in the arts is the week-long Fine Arts festival just ending. During this summer period devoted expressly to art, the dance, music, theatre and landscape architecture experts in all fields offer a portion of their talents to the university community.

What they leave here is a deeper appreciation of the importance of their disciplines. To the college student, it's a break in the summer activities and a chance to learn more about areas too often neglected.

PROBABLY best known of the visiting artists is Robert Shaw. His music has been recorded and widely-distributed. His Chorale has earned a reputation for perfection in musical performance. The evening he directs Verdi's Requiem may well be the highlight of the festival program.

In other musical performances, the world premiere of Dr. H. Owen Reed's "Overture for Strings," played by members of the American String Congress brings an exhibition of local talent. Dr. Reed is a professor in the university department of music.

Folk music by Leon-Bibb highlighted the Wednesday program.

During festival week and around it there were piano and church music clinics and classes in advanced conducting, opera workshop, and related areas.

BUT MUSIC isn't the only activity involved in the Fine Arts schedule.

Art, Dance, the Theatre and landscape architecture were featured in programs and class activities in individual schools

This is a university acting in an area where it should and must assume responsibility. Because of the reputation of last year's festival and its continuance this year, people are hearing about its contribution to the performing arts.

And, if this leads to more respect for the university's intellectual activity, it's well worth student, faculty and staff support.

Freeway Using TV Eyes

If you've had the feeling you're being watched while driving down the highway, you're right!

Particularly motorists on the John Lodge Freeway in Detroit where a new system of traffic control has gone into effect recently.

Television cameras are used to relay traffic conditions along the route to a central headquarters.

A series of overhead illuminated lane and speed signals are being installed to flash information to the motorists as to which lanes are closed and the speed limit.

Student Tells of Afghanistan

To the Editor:

For the past year I have been an exchange student in Horticulture under the ICA program from Afghanistan in MSU. I have met and visited many persons in this part of the United States. They knew a little about my country and people and had some misunderstanding probably because they have read some books or old stories which have been written by unqualified and enemies of the country, and all were incorrect.

I wish you would publish these words to the people of Michigan State:

First, I want to say, don't misunderstand about the people of my country until you visit the country and meet the people of that nation. Do you think all Americans are like those in the movies?

I will just copy the words of your one famous American who is a member of the U.S. Supreme Court, Justice William O. Douglas. He recently visited Afghanistan and gave this first-hand evaluation of the Afghan people.

"I had gone to Afghanistan with great misgivings. The literature I had read, the tales I had heard, made me very uneasy. I was told that it was a nation of brigands, and I was told that it was not safe to go unarmed into the bazaars; that unless one had an armed escort, he was tempting fate. This was rank libel. The Afghans are the most friendly and hospitable people I have ever met. One could go to any Afghan home and be warmly received. He will get the best food the family has to offer. The house would be his home though he was a total stranger. If there was only one room, it would be turned over to him. The Afghan men whom one meets in the villages are simple folk, honest and trusting. They are warm-hearted, generous and tolerant. I went among them alone and unarmed, with no badge to mark by rank or identify me. They knew only that I was an American, and I received nothing but kindness."

I hope such Americans will visit Afghanistan. Anything you want to ask me further about social and economic developments in the country I will be glad to tell you.

Thirteen Ways Found

WMSB Forced To Adjust

State News Staff Writer WMSB, the university television station, is busy adjusting to a 12 per cent reduction in its funds, thanks to the inadequate budget forced on the university by the state legislature.

But while the number 12 may be the unhappy figure for WMSB, the number 13 may prove to be unlucky for the people in the Channel 10 viewing area, the university, and the state as a whole.

WMSB has figured out 13 ways to adjust to its inadequate appropriation for fiscal 1961-62. Several of these adjustments will be noticeable to viewers, others will not.

The adjustments which may be noticed by viewers include:

A REDUCTION in the station's daily news and sports coverage. WMSB currently has two daily newscasts, but to adjust to the new budget, the noon newscast will probably be scrapped.

The cut in sports coverage may prove a real blow to Spartan fans as WMSB will no longer be able to videotape and replay the football games. However, some motion picture clips of the games will be used.

WMSB has been carrying "Meet the Press," "Watch Mr. Wizard," and special programs of the National Broadcasting Company. An N.B.C. special which WMSB carried recently was the official film record of Commander Alan Shepard's space flight.

The station will drop the regular programs, but hopes to show some special programs. In the case of events such as the flight of Astronaut Virgil Grissom, WMSB relinquishes time to WILX-TV so that the program may be carried. WILX-TV is the commercial station which shares Channel 10 with WMSB.

PROGRAMS produced by the station such as "Culver's Clubhouse," a children's program, and the Fine Arts series will operate on reduced budgets.

Also WMSB has a backlog of programs from National Educational Television, a distribution network, which supplies 10 hours programming to the station each week. Old series from this network will also be used.

The station will be forced, in some cases, to present the same program more than once, to fill in where more original material is not available during the broadcasting week.

Funds for securing legal clearances on music and scripts will be cut, forcing the station to use only materials in the public domain. Cancellation of music transcript services, the station predicts, will seriously restrict the use of music for production purposes.

WMSB has carried Associated Press and United Press International news wire services. At least one of these will be dropped, along with the Weather Bureau wire service which is used to provide weather information for the viewers.

Unless the station can get financial help from outside the university, two series which have been planned will never be seen. One was being designed for older people, the other series planned was daily live coverage of the constitutional convention.

Other adjustments the station will be making to fit the new budget which may not be noticed by the viewers include:

THE DROPPING of the station's Washington legal counsel, who provides the station contact with the Federal Communications Commission.

"Program Previews," the station's weekly program schedule, will be discontinued unless outside funds can be found.

Newspaper advertising for special programs will be discontinued and program information bulletins describing educational programming will no longer be sent to elementary and secondary schools.

Chances for many students to gain on-the-job experience will be reduced as funds to pay them are reduced. Assistantships for graduate students will be reduced and their research in operations, methods, management and communications will no longer be available to the station.

NEEDED equipment will not be purchased by WMSB during the coming year, but maybe in 1963 . . .

The station management is trying to adjust to the smaller budget with as few staff cuts as possible. Thus far, there has been only one such cut.

Overseas assignments were granted to four MSU faculty and administrative members in university's International Programs by the Board of Trustees, Thursday.

Dr. Raymond N. Hatch, professor and assistant dean for off-campus affairs in the College of Education; John D. Shingleton, assistant director of placement; Charles F. Doane, Jr., former administrative assistant on the Pakistan project, and Dr. Sheldon Cherney, assistant professor of continuing education were assigned to advisory and administrative posts on several of Michigan State's overseas projects.

Dr. Hatch will leave in mid-August to head MSU's advisory group at the University of Ryukyus on Okinawa. He will also serve as an adviser at the central administrative level on the broader aspects of teaching, research and extension programs.

IN ADDITION, Hatch will be working with a program to upgrade elementary and secondary teachers in the Ryukyu Island.

Shingleton will leave July 30 for a one-year assignment as administrative officer of the MSU Advisory Group in Madras, India.

Under a contract with the International Cooperation Administration, MSU is providing technical advice and assistance to India in establishing teacher-training programs at Guindy College of Engineering in Madras and Poona Engineering College at Poona.

In addition to working with these two institutions, Shingleton's administrative duties will also be related closely with the U.S. Technical Cooperation Mission headquarters in New Delhi.

The other assignments went to Doane, who will work as an administrative assistant in the university's Nigeria project and Cherney, who was named associate professor of continuing education and associate coordinator on campus of the Nigerian project.

Summer Skating School Will Present 3 Shows

"Talent On Ice, 1961" the first of three summer shows, will be presented Wednesday, July 26, at 8 p.m. in the MSU Ice Arena.

Colavito's Bat Paces Tiger Win

Detroit Tiger slugger Rocky Colavito and Baltimore's Jim Gentile, a rangy first baseman, staged a duel of power Thursday.

But Colavito had more support, and the Tigers moved back into first place by belting the Orioles, 15-8, before over 14,000 women and a hoard of children.

The Ladies' Day crowd watched Colavito rifle two homers into the left field stands and knock in five runs to help boost the Tigers past the idle New York Yankees by one percentage point.

GENTILE, who has now feasted on Bengal pitching for eight home runs, added two homers and four RBI's to pace the Baltimore attack.

The slugging rampage gave Colavito a total of 27 circuit blows for the season and Gentile 26.

Jake Wood also homered as Detroit rolled up 16 hits to Baltimore's 15.

The victory went to Hal Woodeshick (now 4-3), one of four Tiger hurlers. Steve Barber absorbed the defeat and now stands 10-8 for the year.

Detroit pitcher Hank Aguirre and Orioles' Manager Paul Richards almost battled in the ninth inning but umpires and players interceded. Richards charged at Aguirre from the dugout after the two exchanged words over a close pitch to shortstop Ron Hansen.

Shopping Centers Are Good Examples

Following the example set by shopping centers may be the only salvation for some downtown areas, according to shopping center officials meeting here last week.

"Downtown areas are not being killed off by shopping centers as many people are led to believe," remarked Albert Sussman, executive director of the International Council of Shopping Centers. "They are virtually committing suicide."

"This is the day of the explosion of our great metropolitan centers and the deterioration of their core," he said. "The only salvation for many of the downtown or core areas today is to provide the consumer with shopping center facilities," he added.

AN ICSC past president, Leonard L. Farber, pointed out that up to now, shopping centers generally have been built to replace old shopping systems.

But more and more, he said, the growth and shifts in population, coupled with an increase in automotive transportation and facilities, more disposable income and profound changes in family living and individual attitudes, make shopping centers not only a convenience, but a necessity.

Farber reported that there are about 5,000 shopping centers in the country today, and that this figure will be more than doubled in the next five years.

Downtown areas must realize that good parking facilities, lack of congestion and easy accessibility to shops are the attributes of shopping centers that the downtown areas must try to match, Farber said.

Things to look for in the future in shopping centers, Farber said, are new closed malls which are air conditioned in summer and heated in winter, more discount houses, and more parking area and nursery care for the children of shoppers.

Violinist Presents Recital

The American Federation of Musicians Congress of Strings and the MSU music department will present Louis Krasner, violinist, in a lecture-recital Monday at the Music Aud.

Krasner's recital will be divided into two parts. The first part, scheduled for 4:15 p.m., will be devoted to the Violin Concerto by Alban Berg. The second, at 8:15 p.m., the Violin Concerto by Arnold Schoenberg will be performed.

The recital has been divided into two parts to allow ample time for the discussion of the works and the possible re-playing of certain sections.

DR. JAMES Niblock and Dr. Paul Harder, of the music department faculty, will discuss the works prior to their performance by Krasner. After the performance, Krasner will offer further comments on the works and answer questions from the audience.

The Berg concerto was completed in 1935; the Schoenberg work, in 1936.

Krasner is currently at MSU as a member of the String Concert faculty. He was concertmaster of the Minneapolis Symphony under the direction of Dimitri Mitropoulos, and is currently professor of violin at Syracuse University.

This recital will be the first of a series to be presented by members of the String Congress faculty.

The public is invited.

Miles of Tunnels Underlie Campus

By RAY LEVY
State News Staff Writer

MSU is a city built on top of caves and tunnels— 32 miles of underground systems which supply the life blood of heat and electricity to every building on campus.

The yellow, catpillar-shaped exhaust fans found on various parts of campus do have a purpose but few know their purpose.

The answer lay with Ron Flinn, junior engineer in the engineering department. Flinn's office is filled with maps, designs for new buildings, drawings of the tunnels and caves beneath the school.

His department is responsible for the development and care of the miles of systems which house the different sized steam pipes heating and cooling the physical property on campus.

FLINN SAID the exhaust fans, which fit over the sewer covers, force cool air into the sewers and draw hot air out to keep the workers comfortable.

"Without these fans," he said, "the men would have to work all day in a small area where the temperature is always over 100 degrees.

Red, green and rust-colored steam pipes serve to define their purpose, Flinn explained. Each pipe either heats or cools the steam being forced through them.

THE LARGEST pipe carries steam back to a central unit where it is reconverted back to water and used again.

John Boyko and Tom Hayes, steam distribution engineers whose job is to maintain a constant vigil on the steam pipes, are also well qualified to comment on the system. Each man has spent 11 years on his job.

"We try to cover the entire system once a week," Boyko said. "Above ground it looks like a pretty simple thing to do. But, when you get inside the tunnels, which are only six-feet high and three feet across, things get tight."

HAYES MENTIONED that there are hundreds of man-hole covers around the university. Each cover leads to a section of tunnel. His job is to see that the pipes are operating correctly and that none are damaged from use.

In some sections of the tunnels are vaults which house the instruments which record the flow and heat degree of the steam passing through the pipes.

"Inside the vaults the temperature will range between 180 and 210 degrees. Without the exhaust fans work in them would be impossible," said Hayes.

FOLLOWING THE tunnels a person could reach any point on campus, Boyko said. But a person would be unable to enter any of the buildings since the exits are kept locked.

Inside the south campus power plant is a giant, coal-consuming furnace which is fed 24 hours-a-day.

"She stays at a constant twenty-eight hundred degrees, year round," said one of the custodians near the furnace.

Housed on the same floor as the furnace are two six-thousand-watt generators which supply electricity to the buildings on campus.

"WE CHARGE the university .0185 cents per kilowatt hour," Hayes said. "A business, like Consumers Power, would charge five-cents per kilowatt hour."

The generators receive their energy from the furnace and back-tracked steam. By means of an intricate process the generator converts both elements into electricity.

"The complicated system of tunnels, pipes, furnaces and generators are only a few of the elements which are functioning behind the scenes at MSU to make it a fit place to live and learn," said Boyko.

Biggie Munn Vacations

Biggie Munn, Michigan State's athletic director and outdoorsman is a man who practices what he preaches.

On rare occasions Biggie is seen leaving Lansing with rod and creel in hand to fish in the wilderness of the Canadian woods.

Biggie is the owner of a cabin on the Manitou chain of lakes in Canada.

His nearest contact with the outside world is a radio some three miles away.

"THE COUNTRY is as rugged as it is beautiful and can only be reached by canoe or air," he explained.

Biggie began canoeing when he was still in college back in 1930. He has been into the wilderness to find relaxation ever since.

Canoeing and fishing for the many lake trout and muskies is not the extent of his enjoyment, he said. He also derives pleasure from photographing the beauty of the wilderness.

"I'LL NEVER forget," he said, "the morning I was out fishing and dozed off when suddenly I felt a tremendous pull on my line."

"The first thing that came to my mind was Ernest Hemingway's "The Old Man and the Sea," and that the fish had me beat. As it turned out I had in my slumber hooked into a 36-pound lake trout."

Munn has recently returned from his cabin in Canada.

Studies Conducted On Seasonal Travel

Two mobile information centers will be used this summer to determine the value of seasonal travel information centers in Michigan, John C. Mackie, state highway commissioner announced this week.

The units will be operated at various locations throughout the state as a part of a three-month study by the highway department in cooperation with the legislature's new Tourist Industry Relations Committee and the Michigan Tourist Council.

"Providing helpful travel information to motorists is an essential part of our effort to assist tourists who annually spend upwards of $650 million while vacationing in Michigan," Mackie said.

As part of the research project, the highway department is making a comprehensive survey to learn more about tourist preferences and needs, especially of persons from other states vacationing in Michigan.

Celebrate Holidays

Teachers Come To Swing and Sing

By NORMA RUTKOSKEY
State News Staff Writer

France is celebrating its National Holiday this week. Monday 39 high school and elementary French teachers celebrated the eve of the holiday at Owen graduate hall.

Owen had an air of Spain when the Spanish teachers of the high school and elementary grades held a Spanish fiesta.

Singing, dancing, games and drama were all part of the programs planned by the 78 teachers attending the eight-week summer foreign language institute.

THE INSTITUTE, financed by the United States Office of Education, is one of the largest of 55 such programs conducted at universities throughout the nation.

During the session, the teachers speak only French or Spanish and try to incorporate the customs and culture of the countries into their every day living.

Dr. George J. Joyaux, professor of foreign languages, said the purpose of the program is to help the members of the institute to become better teachers of the language.

"THE PROGRAM has three parts," Joyaux said.

1. To give the teachers more facility and competence in the language so they may teach more effectively.

2. To give the teachers a greater understanding of the French and Spanish cultures.

3. To show the teachers new and better ways to teach the language to secondary and elementary students.

To fulfill this program, the teachers are speaking the languages in and out of class.

CLASSES ARE held from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Lunch and dinner find the teachers in small groups with a French or Spanish native to help the teachers gain competence in conversational French and Spanish.

Three times each week, special programs are held in the evening. A speaker, movie, lecture, or travelogue orientates the teachers to the cultural aspects of the countries.

The teachers represent various parts of the nation as well as Michigan. To qualify for the institute the teachers needed a bachelor's degree, scholarship, two years of college language courses in their desired area, three years of teaching experience, and evidence that the teacher is preparing to use his institute instruction upon completion of the course.

EFFECTIVE means of teaching are shown in demonstration classes at which the teachers listen while an instructor teaches the class.

"Once in a while they do the teaching," Joyaux said.

Parade Kicks Off Frandor Circus

Marshalled by Miss Lansing, new Oldsmobiles, and an old-fashioned calliope, a circus parade will kick-off Frandor's summer circus.

The parade will be held in the center at 2:30 Sunday afternoon.

Circus queens, clowns, elephants, lions and tigers — all will be on hand for the circus.

The same entourage will go into action again at 2:30 on Monday afternoon for the premiere performance of the week-long engagement.

"WE'VE SELECTED a wide variety of circus talents in building the show," said circus owner Robert Atterbury.

Coming to the center for the second consecutive year, Atterbury disclosed that he has a brand new circus. It features Garry Gaines who dives 50 feet into a flaming tank of water.

Eve Currie, well-known lion tamer, is also a main attraction.

THERE JUST aren't any words in the book to explain her courage," he insists.

The circus also includes acts by the Dewsburys, Count Wiswell, Sharanza and her elephants, Captain Tiebor and Sadie, plus a host of other acts.

Launching their biggest annual promotional drive, the merchants have scheduled their July clearance, the "Circus of Values."

Shaw Leads MSU Chorus

Robert Shaw displayed his directing ability to an appreciative audience last night as he directed the MSU Festival Chorus and Orchestra in Verdi's Requiem. Shaw has been on campus this month instructing the chorus.

Shaw's ability is highly respected by other musicians.

ROBERT UNKEFER, assistant professor of music, said:

"He's a superbly fine musician. You watch him and you are immediately aware of it. He knows exactly the kind of musical sound he wants from his musicians, and he knows how to get it in the most efficient and expedient way."

Unkefer added that Shaw has an extraordinary talent for describing to his choir the response he wants from them.

Shaw began his career while studying theology at Pomona College in Claremont, California.

THE DIRECTOR of the college took a leave of absence and Shaw, a junior, stepped in to lead the group.

For the remainder of his stay at college Shaw acted as assistant director of the glee club.

While still in college he was noticed by Fred Waring. He later worked for Waring and also Billy Rose.

In 1941 he formed a group called the "Collegiate Chorale" which favorably impressed critics and audiences.

From 1945 to 1948, Shaw directed choral activities at the Juilliard School of Music in New York.

IN 1948, he organized the Robert Shaw Chorale, consisting of 30 professional singers.

The group has conducted 11 nation-wide tours, and has performed in European and Mid-Eastern countries.

During the year, Shaw divides his time between directing the Chorale, acting as assistant director for the Cleveland Symphony, and making special appearance performances.

Employment Scarce for Students in Michigan

The recession and increased college enrollment have made specialized employment scarce for the student summer job seeker in Michigan.

Edwin Fitzpatrick, head of the student summer placement bureau here, said that due to the recent recession many of the industries that have employed college help for the summer are forced to cut back and cannot employ the usual summer help.

"Although it is not a proven fact," he said "we feel that the increased enrollment of college students in the area has created a much greater competition to fill the few available specialized jobs."

"The increase in unemployment has also had its effect on the summer job seeker," he said. According to Fitzpatrick, with industrial and technical jobs scarce the student will turn to labor and construction to find that the employers are hiring only full-time help.

Fitzpatrick reported that

Michigan camp and resort openings through his office have increased over last year from 1,280 to 2,027 and out-of-state jobs from 5,827 to 6,172.

"Although these jobs are relatively plentiful, they are low paying, usually in the neighborhood of $300 for the summer," he said.

With regard to door-to-door sales and those on a commission basis, he said students will tend to shy away from these and are not encouraged to take them by our office.

"There have been too many cases of misrepresentation in

Lard Lakers and Rozos in Playoff

The Lard Lakers won a softball play-off berth by defeating Highway Research, 5-4 Wednesday.

The Lakers had to come from door-to-door and commission sales to provide what we feel is a good summer job for students," he added.

Fitzpatrick feels that as a result of the cut in students' summer earning power many will be pressed for tuition and living money when the fall term rolls around.

behind in the fifth inning to maintain a perfect 5-0 record.

In block two, a tie could result if the Swampy Loggers lost and the Integrals won. Both teams were scheduled to play Thursday night. Loggers stand 3-0 and Integrals 2-1.

The Rozos (4-0) won block three by defeating MSU creamery, 11-4.

If any teams wish to compete in the second five weeks tournament, contact the IM office, ext. 2881. Play will begin July 31.
