Dissertation Wins Award For New Prof

A doctoral dissertation by Dr. Frank H. Blackington, newly appointed assistant professor in the College of Education, has been submitted for national honors.

He is serving as coordinator for the university student teacher program in Saginaw, Mich.

Dr. Blackington's dissertation, "A Philosophical Analysis of the Construct Life Adjustment and Its Implication for Education," was recently selected as the outstanding research study in the field of education by a Michigan State Phi Delta Kappa member for the period July 1, 1960, to June 30, 1961. He received the MSU chapter award.

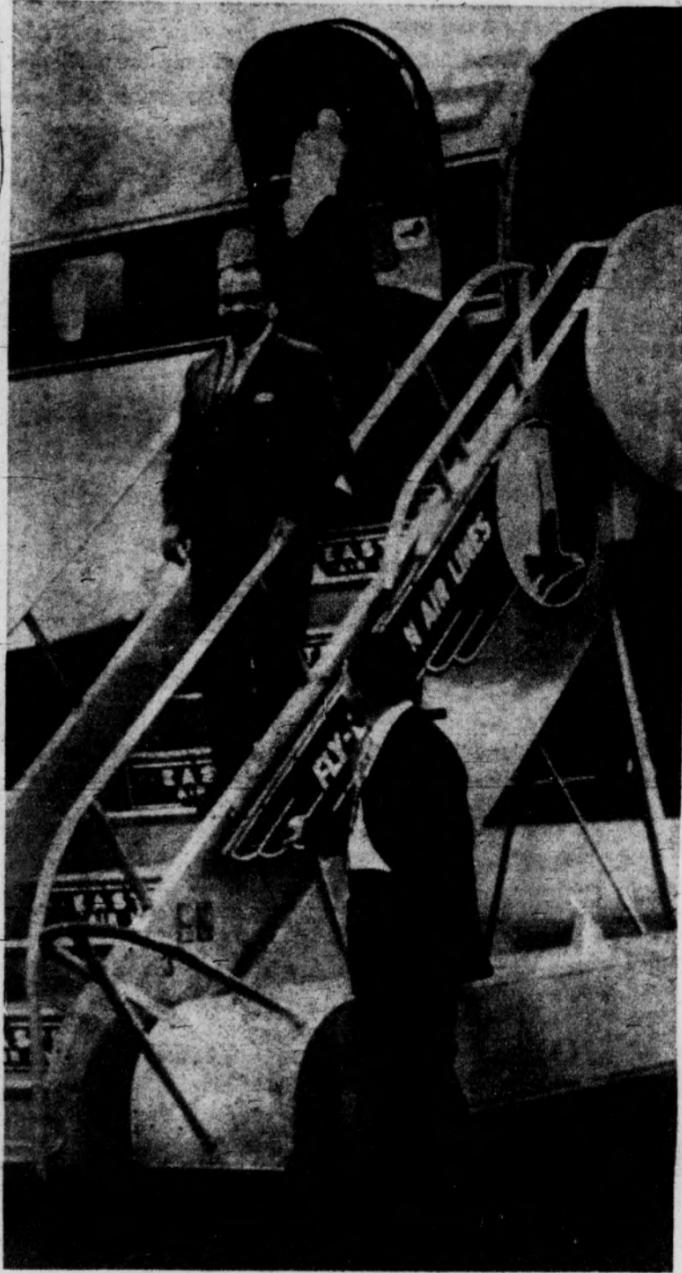

The selection was made by a faculty committee and the criteria for judging were the significance of the subject, quality of the analysis, importance of the conclusion and readability.

Phi Delta Kappa, a national honorary fraternity in education, sponsors the yearly national contest to select the best doctoral study by a member of the fraternity.

EX-CUBAN ARRIVES — Albert Gandero disembarked from his plane at Willow Run Airport Wednesday. He was met by Art Boettchler of radio station WMRT which is sponsoring Gandero's tour of this area.

Cuban Exiles' Leader Here

Says U. S. Should Aid In Castro's Overthrow

By LARRY WALKER
State News Staff Writer

The United States, with the support of the Organization of American States (OAS), should go into Cuba immediately and overthrow Castro and Communism.

This is the opinion of Albert Gandero, a leader of the exiled Cubans now in Miami.

Gandero arrived here Wednesday afternoon from Miami to "awaken" the people of Central Michigan and to tell the story of Castro's Cuba.

He will make a tour of the area, giving talks on campus, in East Lansing, Lansing and over radio and television during the coming week.

GANDERO WAS vice president of the Banco Nacional, (the National Bank of Cuba) until Castro took over. He is now broadcasting from Miami to the Cuban people.

"There are many sufficient reasons for the United States to enter Cuba now," Gandero said.

He cited the killing of Americans in "mock trials"; the burning alive of an American woman, Helen Borgman Jones, on the Isle of Pines; the stealing of United States property, the nickel mines, not to mention the private property that was lost.

Then there is the immense danger of foreign missile bases so close, he said. The Monroe Doctrine and policies set up by the OAS are supposed to prevent any intervention from non-member governments, Gandero said.

IF THE United States does not go into Cuba the situation will grow worse and it may not have the chance, he said.

"Right now Castro has more arms than all the countries of the rest of Latin America put together," he said, "and most of them are Russian made."

"Castro has over 40 MIG-17 jets and their Cuban pilots are being trained in Czechoslovakia," Gandero added. "In fact, with the exception of the figurehead Ramiro Valdez, the Czechs run the police force in Cuba."

Now is a good time for the United States to act because Castro has alienated any of his earlier followers. He has only the support of about 25 per cent of the people in Cuba today. The rest have to go along or get into trouble, Gandero said.

THE PEOPLE of Latin America will follow America when she shows that she is a leader and gets some gall and goes to show the way," Gandero said.

"The main reason for my talks on this trip is to make you aware of the danger. In America lies my last hope of making Cuba a free, democratic state," he said.

Gandero has spent 25 of his 50 years working in the United States. At the age of 18 he worked for an export firm in New York. He later became interested in radio and served as the director of a Los Angeles radio station and then, during World War II, he was the manager and a commentator for NBC's Latin American Division of the Voice of America.

After the war he returned to Cuba and entered into radio and television where he was soon recognized as the "Arthur Godfrey of the Caribbean."

Then the Cuban Electric Co. "borrowed" Gandero for the Purpose of promoting foreign trade. Upon his return to Cuba the Banco Nacional elected him vice president.

Dormitories to Feature Classrooms This Fall

By DICK ROBINSON
State News Staff Writer

Women, be prepared to put on your walking shoes and to disregard all visions of social etiquette this fall.

A total of five dormitories will contain classrooms this fall with the addition of one other in winter, 1962. The Brody group dorms will hold two classes of American thought and language, military history and reading improvement classes.

The Brody men will have a distinct advantage in that they will not have to leave their dorm while their female counterparts will have to travel possibly the length of the campus if they are scheduled for these particular classes.

"WE BELIEVE that the majority of the students will be men, but we do not intend to segregate the sexes," stated Dr. Edward A. Carlin, Dean of the University College.

Work will soon begin in converting multi-purpose rooms C and D in the main Brody building into classroom space for 400 students. Previously these rooms were used for TV viewing.

THE NEW rooms will not deter the students' enjoyment since there are various other rooms for this purpose, according to Lyle A. Thorburn, manager of residence halls.

The change-over in the Brody group involves minor construction changes, including partitions and lighting improvements. The rooms will be so arranged that they can be converted back into lounging areas if necessary.

BUTTERFIELD Dormitory for men, one of the Brody group buildings, will have two study rooms in section A arranged for discussion groups. Another housing unit of Brody, Armstrong, will have two living precincts set aside for business administration students, according to Thorburn.

Another of the men's residence units, East Shaw, will have space available for a seven o'clock reading improvement class. Another new feature of the housing unit will involve the assigning of sophomore, junior, and senior business administration students to two precincts.

Thorburn said that he believes this living arrangement will be expanded to other housing units if the students feel that they like the system. It is believed that this experiment will bring together students of similar interests.

CLASSROOMS located in the dormitories will be an advantage to the students," Thorburn said, "in that they will not have to travel across campus for meals and then back again for classes. Classes will be scheduled so that they will not conflict with lunch hours."

Women's dormitories will also have classrooms for certain subjects. Abbot Hall, at the east end of campus, will have evening reading improvement classes and a limited number of elementary education courses.

East Yakeley Dorm, near the Union building, will have space for a reading improvement course and a religion class. West Landon, next to Yakeley, will contain a room for French.

Sabine Helps Dedicate Frandor Display Shelter

Gordon A. Sabine, university vice president for special projects, will lay the cornerstone for a public-display fallout shelter in Frandor Monday at 10 a.m.

Along with civic and military officials, Sabine will participate in the dedication of the 12' x 12' simulated basement-type shelter equipped to facilitate four people.

The shelter will be constructed by Standard Block and Supply Co. in cooperation with civil defense authorities. It will be supplied with emergency necessities, including food, bedding and a radio, by the Frandor merchants.

Construction will begin Monday and will be open to public inspection by the end of the week. It will be located adjacent to Kiddie Land in Frandor.

Delay in Library Turnstile System

Installation of the turnstile system at the library has been delayed.

Materials were ordered July 9 with delivery promised within four days. Workmen are still waiting for the shipment.

No explanation was given for the delay.

Gypsy Rose Lee Keeps It On; Suggests Audience Take It Off

By DAN WHITNEY
State News Reviewer
Gypsy Rose Lee finished the show with her clothes on. But the show was still interesting and held the audience's attention. Her show was so different in fact, she suggested to the audience, "Why don't you all take off your clothes." This suggestion was somewhat typical of the racy comments made by Miss Lee during the program.

MISS LEE is presently appearing at the Ledges Playhouse, Grand Ledge, in "A Curious Evening With." She wears elaborate costumes for the show. She appears at the opening of the second act wearing over 90 pounds of clothing. She wears a 48 pound baby gorilla coat over a 42 pound rhinestone dress.

Famous stars from Miss Lee's past parade before the audience on the moving screen. Miss Lee keeps up a running narration which proves interesting and at times fascinating.

THE TRANSITION from burlesque to narrator proved a difficult one for Miss Lee. Of her own program, she said, "This takes a hell of a lot of nerve."

Miss Lee, however, said she has enjoyed her summer tour. There is a stronger feeling of intimacy in the summer theatres, she said.

"Summer audiences like to laugh," Miss Lee said. This explains why such plays as "Marriage Go-Round," "Nina" and "Under the Yum Yum Tree" are so popular in summer circles.

"A Curious Evening With Gypsy Rose Lee" is playing at the Ledges through Saturday night.

IM Schedule

Softball games slated for Monday are: field 1, Kellogg Flakies vs. Rozos; field 2, Ag Econ vs. Abbott; field 3, "?" vs. Orangatangs; field 4, MSU Creamery vs. Sarfers.

Tuesday's games are: field 1, Gold Bricks vs. Toughies; field 2, Integrals vs. Dairy; field 3, Public Safety vs. Cherry Pickers; field 4, Botany vs. STEP; field 5, Haudas vs. Highway Research.

All games are at 6:00 p.m.

MEA Gives Reports On Testing of Youngsters

Tests of intelligence, achievement, aptitudes and interest given elementary and secondary school students are often confusing to parents, the Michigan Education Association reports.

The student is often faced with as many as a dozen of these standardized tests in addition to the hundreds of informal quizzes and examinations given by classroom teachers to evaluate his progress in the regular course of study.

One of the confusing factors is the terminology involved, such as "scholastic aptitude score," "intelligence quotient" or "inventory of interests," the MEA reports.

OTHER PARENTS worry about the test scores and their meanings and greater emphasis must be placed on informing the public about such tests, they said.

Most of the questions and doubts can be cleared up in a talk with the school staff—teacher, counselor or principal.

A standardized test is only one method used by the teacher seeking to know and understand the child. Many other methods are used and the results of tests and observations give them a background for better instruction, the MEA said.

The number and types of standardized tests given children throughout their school years varies widely from school system to school system.

"READINESS TESTS" are given in kindergarten and at the beginning of the first grade to determine whether the child is mature enough for first grade work.

Tests in performance of certain selected mental activities involving the child's knowledge of vocabulary and his ability to reason are often given during the early education years. These are the so called "mental ability" or "intelligence tests."

Tests designed to measure mechanical, clerical, musical, writing, teaching, or stenographic aptitudes are usually given at the junior or senior high school level. These "aptitude tests" attempt to identify and evaluate abilities believed to be associated with success in these occupations.

"Achievement tests" seek to measure the student's knowledge and skill in a specific subject field as compared with the accomplishments of similar age groups. A special type of this test is diagnostic in that it helps the child and teacher locate particular strengths and weaknesses in a specific subject.

IN SENIOR high school, where the student's interests and attitudes have become relatively definite and stable, "inventory tests" are often given. One type compares the interests of the student with those of successful people in various occupations. Another type explores personality, especially attitudes and biases. See MEA REPORT Page 5

Attorney General Gives Warning of New Salesman Stereo Racket

If you're approached with a stereo "deal of a lifetime," take a good, hard second look.

Con artists are currently working the old "referral" technique—where the sharp operator asks the victim to buy a commodity just to prove his sincerity—in recruiting salesmen for expensive tape recorders, stereophonic equipment and other audio-visual equipment, Paul L. Adams, State Attorney General, said.

"It sounds so good that many fall for it. The catch is that the victim signs a contract, containing a note, which obligates him to make installment payments on his purchase. The note is sold to the bank, the salesman disappears, and the victim is stuck with the payments," Adams said.

This system offers the sharp operator the double advantage of getting his work done by innocent dupes and of providing a strong incentive for the victim to buy an expensive machine, the Attorney General said.

Vacuum cleaners, floor waxers and magazine sales have all used this fake employment offer in the past.

Dormitory Fire Causes Minor Damage in Phillips

Fire caused minor damage to the basement of Snyder-Phillips hall at 8 o'clock Wednesday night.

East Lansing firemen, who were called to the scene, said that the fire started when a quantity of cleaning rags ignited through spontaneous combustion.

The materials had been dried and packed in a container while still hot, they said.

Former Davis Cup Captain: 'Tennis Has Great Future'

By TOM DEWITT
State News Staff Writer

What's the future for U.S. tennis? From an expert's point of view "It's great."

So said Bill Talbert, 1957 Davis Cup team captain, who was on campus Thursday for a tennis clinic at the International Jaycee Tennis Tournament.

Talbert, who has since retired from active play, is now a vice president of the Security Columbia Banknote Co. of New York.

"YOU KNOW, being a good tennis player is just like anything else—it takes lots of practice and excellent instruction. You can't be a good doctor without first going to medical school and it's the same deal with tennis," he said.

Talbert had just finished playing several exhibition sets that were the climax of his clinic to demonstrate some of the pointers he gave to some 500 young hopefuls and spectators.

"These tournaments are healthy for the sport," he said. "The Jaycees are doing a great job for these kids and I help them out when I can."

HE SAID that he thought the competition here at the tourney was a good tough test for the kids but that more tennis schools and more good teachers are needed.

"The distance between a good kid tennis player and a great one is only a thin line. What these kids need is a Harry Hopman (Australian Davis Cup team captain and one of the greatest coaches in the world) and men like that are hard to find," he said.

SOME STYLE — In returning the ball to his opponent, Arthur Ashe of St. Louis displays the form that enabled him to win his match 6-1, 6-1 Thursday. Ashe was a member of last year's Jr. Davis Club team.

MEA Report

In addition to these tests given by local school systems, several nation-wide testing programs are available to high school students.

These tests are given by non-governmental agencies for such purposes as measuring a student's ability to cope with college instruction or to select candidates for scholarships, the MEA said.

Early Practice Scheduled for Returning Spartan Gridmen

Spartan football coach Duffy Daugherty has invited a 60-man squad to return for early drills beginning Sept. 1. The group will be the smallest in years.

Jim Eaton, promising back from last year's squad, was supposed to be no. 61 but he has been knocked out for the season by injuries suffered in a recent auto accident.

Twenty-six letter-winners, including 17 seniors, are on the roster. Nine of the seniors have won two letters.

The squad, down 18 from that of last year, includes ten ends, nine tackles, ten guards, six centers, five quarterbacks, six left halfbacks, four right halfbacks, six fullbacks and four defensive specialists.

"Despite its size, this squad has quite a bit of talent, we feel, and if we can remove a lot of question marks by the end of September, there is no reason why we can't have a strong team," Daugherty said.

"The letters I sent to the players during the summer emphasized a program of conditioning which should bring them back to the campus in shape for a fast start," he said.

"They had better be in shape for I can promise them a rough and rugged program of work in early practice," the Spartan mentor added.

Those invited to the early practice are:

More of the Same Or More Books?

Buying books for the library is a choice between purchasing 50 copies of one book or 50 different titles, Richard E. Chapin, director of libraries, said Thursday.

Chapin said it's always a problem to decide whether to buy more copies of the same book or more books.

Forced to work within the limited budget allotted to the library, Dr. Chapin said:

"Some 25,000 different books would meet most of the demands of the undergraduate program but many thousand more are needed to adequately build a library that will provide research materials for the graduate student."

In answer to the question

why more than one or two copies of magazines are not purchased, he answered

"We do buy multiple copies of magazines but often from dealers after the magazines have appeared on the newsstands. The cost is far less. We then have these magazines bound so that they will be available."

Size of present day classes also pose a real problem when a certain periodical is recommended to be read by an instructor, Dr. Chapin said.

"Today when one class may number more than 100 students, it would be impossible to furnish enough copies of the 'Harvard Business Review' to that class."

Prof to Study in Belgium On Fulbright Grant

Dr. Max M. Mortland, professor of soil science, has been awarded a Fulbright educational exchange grant by the U.S. Department of State to conduct research in soil chemistry in Belgium.

His research on the mechanisms of potassium release and fixation in soils will be conducted at Louvain University, 13 miles from Brussels.

Dr. Mortland is in the field of chemistry of soil colloids. He has earned four degrees from the University of Illinois, including master's degrees in chemistry and agronomy (soil and plant science) and a Ph.D. in agronomy.

Dr. Mortland, who will be on sabbatical leave beginning Sept. 1, and his family plan to arrive in Rotterdam on Sept. 30. He plans to return here at the end of the 1961-62 academic year.

Department of Public Safety Holds 200 Silent Prisoners

By HOWARD GATES
State News Staff Writer

There are 200 prisoners enclosed by a stout, barbed-wire fence at the rear of Quonset 104, headquarters of the Department of Public Safety.

They are forced to stand in rigid rows through wind and rain, and have never once been given the privilege of exercise, but, to date, there hasn't been one complaint.

These model prisoners are victims of neglect and carelessness, nothing more, for you see, they are but a fraction of the bicycles abandoned or stolen on campus each year.

AT PRESENT, 200 strong, they await their turn on the salvage yard auction block, a fate meted out to all of the "wheels" that find their way to this unusual prison.

Department of Public Safety officials estimate that nearly 500 bicycles become captives during the course of a year after being either abandoned by their owners or recovered after a theft.

The inmates are held in the secure fencing until Jan. 1 or July 1 at which time a public notice is posted on campus. If they are not claimed within 21 days after posting, they are turned over to the university salvage yard for public auction.

The silent prisoners, who come in a variety of sizes, shapes and ages, are classified as abandoned and brought in for a number of reasons, according to Public Safety officials.

IN MANY cases they are abandoned because they are unserviceable. In others they have been found in places other than designated parking areas. Some are even fished from the river.

Most of the bicycles recovered after their theft receive short sentences, according to Department of Public Safety officials, because they are quickly "pardoned" by their owners.

Still, approximately 200 make their way to the salvage yard every year where Fred Kletke, salvage yard supervisor, sells them to the highest bidder.

Kletke, who dons the auctioneer's hat twice a year, said that some of the bikes receive a last minute "reprieve" after their arrival at the yard.

"If they can prove that the bicycle is theirs, even ten minutes before the sale, they can have it," he said.

AN AUCTION is scheduled for the week of fall registration and the bicycles will be on public display for at least three or four days prior to their sale, Kletke said. Recalling the sales that have been held over the past five years, he said that sale prices seem to be on the rise, and remembered one that sold last year for $36.

The auctions are open to the public and the sales are strictly cash, he said.

Safety officials are certain that the number will increase again this year and are wondering if their "prison" will be large enough to hold the new influx of "silent inmates."

WHEREIZIT? — Officer B. K. Yarrington of the Department of Public Safety shows Molly Kivilaan the collection of two-wheelers behind the Quonset 104. Molly hopes that her bicycle is among the five hundred that come to the attention of the Department of Public Service each year.
