STOLEN CAR LEFT IN LIBRARY POOL — This is the sight that greeted officers Thursday morning. The culprits have not been apprehended yet.

Auto Takes Nocturnal Dip Pranksters Drive Into Library Pool

August's sultry heat forces just about everyone to the nearby beaches and pools for a cool dip, but when a car is found floating among the lily pads in front of the library — well, that's a different story.

The auto, stolen from Horace C. Day, of 208 Milford St., was found partially submerged in the library's north pool at 4:30 a.m., Thursday.

Day, a food supervisor at Kellogg Center, told East Lansing police that he had gone to bed at approximately 10:30 p.m. Wednesday and that the car was parked outside of his home at that time.

THE CAR was discovered by Department of Public Safety officers who reported that the engine was running when they found it.

Safety officials also said that a quantity of beer bottles were found in and around the abandoned car.

Day was notified and came to the scene where he made a positive identification of the stolen car.

Safety officials said that the car had apparently been taken "as a prank."

THEY SAID that the car had been started by crossing wires.

A wrecker from an East Lansing service station was called and pulled the car from the pool.

Police are examining the car in an attempt to determine the identity of the thieves. As yet, there is no lead as to who might have taken it, they said.

Day reported that his battery was dead and that there was some water damage to the car.

"I'm not sure just what damage there is but I'm having it completely checked over," he said.

Lives In Glass 'House'

Popular Red-Head Sits for 71 Years

By FRED DICKINSON
State News Staff Writer

A wizened 8-year-old girl in need of a "toni" sits comfortably in a glass case on campus. She has been seated there for 71 years.

She was found in 1890 in an arid part of the Andean Mountains by Fenton R. McCreery of Flint, then U.S. Consul to Chile and presented to the museum here.

The auburn haired child, now located on the lower floor of the museum, had been hidden in a stone tower south of La Paz, Bolivia, for about 400 years. Estimates place her birth at about 1500 A.D.

THE LITTLE Inca girl was wrapped in a coarse, sack-type garment made of llama hair. The same garb drapes loosely from her shrunken body today.

A variety of foods were placed in gourds and pottery dishes by her shriveled feet. Corn, beans and fruits made up her diet in real life.

Fixed in one twisted hand is a charm bag filled with amulets to bring her "good luck." This small purse-like bag was made from a llama skin.

Lest she should have a lapse of memory, a "quipu," or memory string, was placed around one of her arms. The cord is thought to record by means of colors and knots, numbers and events. In her world there was no written language.

FOR HER protection she was given a sling and a gourd full of pebbles and also was expected to use them to hunt for game.

Her relatives prepared for a long life after death. The greatest care was made to provide for all her needs, said Victor H. Hogg, curator of exhibits at the Museum.

International Club Meets In Union

The International Club will hold a special meeting today at 8 p.m. in the UN Lounge of the Union for elementary and secondary teachers here for summer studies.

The program, designed to bring the teachers into contact with foreign students so that it might benefit their teaching, will include music, dancing, refreshments and, primarily, discussion, a spokesman for the club said.

Normally the club does not meet during the summer but there has been an interest expressed by the teachers for this type of a program, he said.

All teachers are invited to attend.

Union Leaders End Study Here

A greater responsibility in public affairs through informed labor leadership is the goal of a new program in continuing education which ends today.

Fifteen trade union staff men from 11 different unions in nine states and two foreign countries have spent 10 weeks at Kellogg Center in an intensive course studying the social sciences — economics, political science, sociology and psychology — and the history and philosophy of the American labor movement.

This program is designed to give the participants a better understanding of our industrial society, the problems and issues which confront it and the solutions which are being proposed, explained Prof. Fred K. Hoehler, Jr., of the Labor and Industrial Relations Center.

Highlights of the program were three day-long lectures by outstanding authorities on "Technology and Society," "Organizations and Men" and "The U.S. and the World Community." During the three weeks following each of the lectures, an economist, a political scientist and a sociologist related their various disciplines to the major topics.

Other program activities included discussions on the American novel and other subjects with broad cultural connotations, a weekend in Detroit arranged by the Wayne State University department of art to study the relationships of art and society and sessions on increasing reading comprehension.

Auto Tests Will Aid Underwater Escapes

A water-filled Williamston gravel-pit is being prepared for a series of submerged auto life-saving tests by the Michigan State Police, the American Red Cross and Indiana University.

The tests to be held Sept. 6 to 16, will be conducted to determine what action a motorist should take in the event his auto is submerged," Cpl. Bill Carter of the Michigan State Police said Thursday.

Skin divers will be submerged in automobiles to determine the volume of air trapped inside and the most practical means of exit. Cameras will be located both inside and outside of the autos to record the exact actions as they take place, Carter said.

"A total of 60 tests will be conducted using automobiles of different types, including a 1961 model," he said. The cars will be launched from a ramp to simulate actual accident conditions.

New Directory Available

An interim telephone directory for the numbers and dialing instructions of the new telephone system will be available today in the administration building.

The new centrex telephone system will be in effect Monday morning.

Carter said there has been only one other study of this type done and that was proved invalid.

Bernard Kuhn, graduate student at Indiana University will provide the technical direction at the test site. He will compile information on the tests for his doctoral thesis, Carter said.

Richard Brown, director of water safety services of the American Red Cross, will be on hand to coordinate the project.

Each year 400 people lose their lives in situations similar to those to be tested, the Red Cross said. Results of the tests will be made available to other countries through the League of Red Cross Societies.

Weather Report

The weather bureau reports that it will be fair and a little warmer today with a high expected of 84.

Saturday it should be partly cloudy with little change in temperature.

The low Friday night is expected to be in the low 60's.

The high recorded a year ago today was 86; the low was 58.

The highest temperature ever recorded on this date was in 1947 when the mercury soared to 95.

The record low for Aug. 18 was 42 in 1924.

Why Not Have Freedom Corps?

By DANIEL ARCHIBONG
(Third in a Series)

Man cannot sincerely hope for peace if he is not free; and progress has no real meaning to a slave. Unfortunately, the late twentieth century civilized man is proving to be the most phony creature alive. The proper use of his brain and accumulated wisdom seems to elude him forever. He talks so much about peace, freedom and progress and does so little to achieve them.

History tells us that since the dawn of human society four enemies have repeatedly threatened the life and happiness of man. These are hunger, disease, slavery and war.

TODAY, man is confidently curbing the tide of hunger and crippling diseases. But with greater confidence he is also doing everything to promote war and bring back the horrible days of slavery!

Listen: If we take a break from our daily chore, sitting over a good cup of coffee, and we think of the East-West modern weapon stock piling, of the Russian's and NATO's military build-up, of the ruthless killings of innocent civilians in Tunisia by the French soldiers, of the enslavement of Africans in Portugese Angola, of the imprisonment of freedom riders in free continental America, we cannot escape shaking our heads and shoulders and feet in confusion.

Where is the civilized man heading for? Is it true that his much learning is making him mad? Let's hope that he is not going to irreparable ruins and total annihilation. For this will be the second fall of man.

Peace Corps Drive, by virtue of the unfriendly period of its inception, will not hope to pierce through the iron curtain to reach the Russian peoples. Nor will this movement hope to make reasonable impact upon the minds of the uncommitted peoples of the world if its participants cannot help to put an end to all forms of colonialism, to the slaughtering of human lives in Africa, to the revolts in Latin America, and to the inequalities of opportunity to work and live happily in the western nations.

PERHAPS freedom corps will be the first logical step in the direction of achieving freedom, peace and progress. Perhaps such freedom corps will help to create an atmosphere of understanding, trust and brotherhood among the red, white and black races of mankind.

Here is what should be the aim of every freedom loving American: To prove to the entire world that when the American peoples talk of peace and freedom, they mean just the literal meaning of these words for the peoples in the subjected, exploited and helpless nations.

Although this proof should be arrived at through non-violent means, yet it should be unmistakable. This can be done through concerted effort of the American peoples by waging both moral and psychological wars against those nations that still exploit and enslave innocent peoples of the world.

IF THE AMERICAN peoples would work together to recognize the absolute equality and rights of all races, to free the enslaved, and to make life meaningful to all men, there is no reason why watching world should not focus illuminating light upon the American image and heritage.

As the champion of the democratic way of life and stern advocate of freedom for the peoples of the world, America should launch a freedom crusade.

This crusade should aim at winning freedom, dignity, and peace for the peoples of all races. The young Americans on college and university campuses should lead this crusade. These young crusaders should have for their dominant traits undaunted courage, open mindedness, and high sense of duty for their country and mankind at large.

Unlike Peace Corpsmen, freedom crusaders may not have to be skilled in a particular field of learning. But they should have enough ability to talk the inevitable philosophy of true racial unity and harmony into the heads of the racial segregationists, to persuade DeGaulle of France to stop the massacre of innocent and helpless Tunisians and Algerians, and to convince Dictator Salazaar of Portugal to give freedom to the peoples of his African colonies.

To be taken seriously, American peoples must talk and act seriously; And to talk and act seriously, the American public probably needs a new brand of courage, morale, a high sense of mission.

Letters to the Editor

'Apathy Cloak for Evasion'

Thanks Writer

To the Editor:

My first reaction to Mr. DeWitt's article, "Freedom Riders 'Pathetic'" was a vague uneasiness. Thanks are due to Mrs. Jaffe who intelligently and adroitly analyzed some of the ambiguities of the article. Rallying somewhat, I am able to articulate what may be an emotional response to thoughts implied if not expressed in "Freedom Riders 'Pathetic'."

True detachment, if that is what Mr. DeWitt is striving for in his article, is not achieved quite as easily as he would have us assume.

The kind of words he has tossed out to us, I am sure would not have come so easily from him if he had confronted the mobs in Georgia in this nostalgic Centennial of the Civil War. Exposure to mob violence, especially if you are on the receiving end, leaves you mute, bewildered, and anything but blithely detached. This is especially true if there is a principle involved that you are striving to protect and cherish. If you find yourself in the tragic position of seeing the right and wrong on both sides, the most you can hope for, when you begin to spell out its meaning, is that your words will somehow serve to restore a balance. Until it is possible to see issues as clearly as DeToqueville did and expound them as clearly, perhaps silence is the better part of wisdom.

Perhaps the sensible course for those not directly involved is a clearly articulated support for the good trying to manifest itself in North and South alike.

Valuing the friends I have in both races prompts me to caution Mr. DeWitt and all those who use a public medium as a sounding board that they cannot afford to be irresponsible. If Mr. DeWitt is guilty of nothing more than being "in love with the sound of his own words," he must not forget to realize that he still has his reader to consider. Believing that this is an obligation of any writer, I feel free to ask him why he puts freedom and civil rights in quotation marks. Quotation marks so used are a conventional warning that the word so quoted no longer has its original meaning. Since these words are still very meaningful to me, I cannot understand what Mr. DeWitt is trying to imply. I was similarly confused by Robert Kennedy's use of the term "so-called Freedom Riders." It seems to me that in each case a deliberate doubt is being cast on the meaning of these words. I cannot believe that I am a member of an uninitiated group which has not been aware of basic changes in words so fundamentally a part of our democratic ideals.

These ideals still require something more from me as a citizen than a passive acceptance of poorly defined opinions, and they require something more from Mr. DeWitt than a public admission of helpless resignation.

If Mr. DeWitt's longed-for someday when we will no longer need freedom riders is ever to arrive, it won't come as a result of apathy or lofty detachment—which is all too often a cloak for evasion of responsibility.

MSU Alum Support Is Among the Best

Outstanding alumni support has brought MSU an award from the American Alumni Council (AAC). Honorable mention was given for "distinguished achievement in the development of alumni support."

Robert C. Toll, director of the Development Fund, accepted the award for the University.

This was MSU's second award from the AAC. A similar award was made last year.

THE AWARD program is

Upsets Rule Western Jr. Golf Tourney

The ball took some crazy bounces yesterday in the 44th Western Junior golf championship at Forest Akers.

In the first round of match-play yesterday Jim Jamieson of Mi Moline, Ill. was upset by fellow Indian Ray Bernhart of Downers Grove, 3-2. Jamieson, former Illinois Jaycee Champ, shot a two under-par 69 in Wednesday's qualifying to bring his 36 hole mark to 141, a new tournament record. The 18-year old golfer earned the medalist honor.

Barnhard, who had just qualified for match play by 2 strokes with scores of 74 and 75 for Tuesday and Wednesday respectively for a 149 total, was then eliminated by Bobby Littler of Athens, Ohio, 5-4.

Littler had just made match bracket play, determined by the low 32 players of the qualifying rounds, with scores of 75 each day for a 150 total.

In the first round of play yesterday Littler defeated Fred Ewald of Birmingham, 1 up. Ewald had qualifying scores of 74-73 for a total of 147.

In other first round scores of yesterday Pat O'Brien, Baton Rouge, La., defeated 1-up Len Fiocca of Harvery, Ill. O'Brien had a 150 qualifying score while Fiocca shot a 146. Bob Hammer, Sarasota, Fla., one of the tournaments low shooters, defeated John Levinson of Illinois.

In a minor upset Bob Zender of Skokie, Ill. was victorious, 2-1 over Michigan's Jack Kurzynowski. Kurzynowski qualified with a 146. Kurzynowski was well in the top 32 with a 146. In another surprise John Peterson of Bunedin, Fla., upended Jeff Fisher of Dexter, 1 up.

One of the main victories in the second round of the tourney—sponsored by the United States Steel Foundation and is administered by the AAC, an organization representing about 1,000 American alumni groups.

Among public institutions in the United States, MSU ranks fifth in the total number of alumni contributing to an alumni fund.

Toll said that Michigan State is continuing its growth in alumni support. In the past year, total support among Big Ten schools increased by 6,400. More than one-fourth of this gain, 1,700, was made by State.

DURING the three years the awards have been given, six have been to Big Ten schools:

two to MSU, three to Ohio State and one to the University of Michigan.

The universities and colleges participating in the program competed in nine classifications. MSU is in the public institution group.

The top winners in this group were the University of Akron for improvement and Georgia Institute of Technology for sustained performance.

Honorable mention, the second award category, went to the University of Delaware and MSU for improvement, Douglas College, Ohio State and the University of North Carolina for sustained performances.

Vet Educators Hold Three Day Program

Veterinary school representatives from throughout the U.S. and Canada will convene here today for a three-day idea exchange and planning session.

The convention delegates, accompanied by their wives and husbands, will be hosted by the MSU chapter of the American Veterinary Medical Association and the Women's Student Auxiliary. They will stay at the Kellogg Center.

Activities for the convention, sponsored by the MSU chapter, the Michigan VMA, the national AVMA, and a number of pharmaceutical houses, will be centered around meetings and group discussions.

A national honor code among veterinary students will be a major topic of discussion. The College of Veterinary Medicine has had such a code for the last five years.

Included in the three-day program will be tours of the campus, the veterinary college and a banquet to be held at Kellogg tonight.

The delegates will leave Sunday for the National AVMA Convention to be held at Detroit's Cobo Hall Aug. 20-24.

Whitney Pitches IM No-Hitter

Softball pitcher Dan Whitney of the Village Men hurled a no-hitter last Wednesday in defeating the Orangutang nine, 6-1. Whitney, who struck-out 11 batters, allowed his only run in the first inning when he walked three men and then hit a batsman to force in a run. Two Orangutangs got on base on errors.

Other scores of Wednesday games are as follows: MSU Creamery downed "?", 12-3; Lard Lakers beat Rozos, 16-11; Kellogg Flakies defeated Ag. Econ., 6-3; and Highway Research nipped Gold Bricks, 14-13.

Tuesday: Toughies were victorious over Gold Bricks, 7-4; Integrals beat Dairy 15-12; Cherry Pickers downed Public ment yesterday was Bob Bond's (Jackson) come back (a 151 qualifying score) to oust Fred Henoch, La Porte, Ind.

After yesterday's results the record tournament of 218 starters will be down to eight golfers. Four players will be left by this afternoon, and two golfers will compete in the final championship on Saturday.

Lansing's golfers failed to make the 151 cut off. Doug Hankey of St. Johns was defeated in yesterday's first round while Dave Miller of Lansing just missed qualifying with a 152. Another local product, Deny English had 153.

Michigan Furnishes '61 Gridders

The 1961 football Spartans come from the east, west, north and south—but mostly from Michigan, according to a recent player survey.

Of the 33 players, or 55 percent of the squad, furnished by the home state, Detroit has nine representatives and East Lansing four.

Ohio has contributed 10 players, highest out-state representation, Pennsylvania five and Illinois four. Others come from New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Texas, Kentucky, Hawaii, Indiana and Arkansas.

Doug Miller, Jon Rinqvist and Bob Roop, all products of coach Vince Carillot, now assistant backfield coach here.

Soil particle size and compaction influence the rate of water loss from soil, say Michigan State University soil scientists.

PASS THE GAS MASK — The jet age has come to insecticides. A device utilizing a pulse jet to spray insecticides is now being tested here at the University.

Pulse Jet Apparatus Does Fogging Operations

A fog-producing machine, resembling a mechanical ant-eater and used to combat insects, is being tested here by J. R. Hoffman, associate professor of entomology.

The foreign produced machine, being marketed internationally, is called "Swing-fog." It is run by a miniature pulse jet engine similar to the type used in the German V-1 rockets in World War Two.

Hoffman, asked by the manufacturer to test the machine, is investigating the effects of several kinds of insecticides on bugs, shrubbery and grass both outside and inside greenhouses on campus.

The insecticides are mixed with a whale oil base, injected into a tube winding around the exhaust pipe where they are heated and vaporized and forced out in a heavy fog.

The machine, which weighs about 40 pounds and costs about $350, also has a flame throwing attachment.

The heat produced by the machine will break down some insecticides, Hoffman said.

Observers of the test said that the whale oil odor alone would seem enough to do away with any bug problems.

Revue Closes Season At Grand Ledge

The Ledges Playhouse will close its summer season with a musical revue, "Four for Tonight Plus One." The revue is scheduled to play August 21 through 26.

The show is basically the same one that was a great audience pleaser last year.

Harry Cauley, the writer, composer and director of the show, has added some new numbers to go with the best from last year.

Cauley shows his versatility by acting, singing and dancing in the show, also.

Appearing again this year with Cauley will be Bill Slout, Marte Boyle, Rose Marie Robinson and Carmen Decker. Of the cast, Miss Robinson is the only newcomer.

LP Record Illustrating Radio Moscow Distortions Released

Radio Moscow propaganda, a collection of material broadcast in English and beamed by high-power shortwave to North America during the past four months, has been released by

Cook Laboratories, Inc., of Stanford, Conn. The 12 inch long playing record, "Radio Moscow and the Western Hemisphere," includes Russian material collated by subject matter and arranged so as to point out deliberate deviation from fact and distortions of the truth. It includes a commentary to assist the listener in analyzing the material.

The record album carries liner notes of some 6,000 words setting out the purpose of the record, how it was made, and discussing the manner in which Russia makes use of the radio medium to further its political and prestige purposes.

Except for the significance of their words, the Russian news and political commentators speak idiomatic English and sound like typical Americans.

'Yum Yum Tree' Is Another Sex Comedy

By DAN WHITNEY
State News Reviewer

Are love and sex really inseparable?

This is the problem explored in "Under the Yum Yum Tree," a fast moving comedy written by Lawrence Roman which is now playing at the Ledges Playhouse in Grand Ledge.

The playwright never resolves the problem. He presents both sides of the problem, ostensibly to let the viewer draw his own conclusions.

On the one hand we have a couple who find love and sex are "homogenized." On the other hand we have Hogan, the landlord (Bill Slout) who finds sex and love have very little in common. To him sexual conquests are merely a job and his only contribution to the world.

THE COUPLE. Robin Austin, (Martie Boyle) and Dave Manning (Harry Cauley) find love and sex are but two sides of the same coin. Miss Austin is a college student who knows the sex mores of Eskimos, but not Americans.

She suggests that Manning move in with her and in this way they can find out if they are apt to have a happy marriage. She is afraid of divorce, being a product of a split home.

Carmen Decker played the part of Miss Austin's aunt. She changed her views on sex and love to fit the situation. She and Hogan were more than friends while she lived in his apartment house.

HOGAN LOOKS upon Miss Austin as a replacement for the aunt and here the plot thickens, and thickens and thickens.

Just as it seems almost impossible to bring the whole mixup to a plausible conclusion, the author pulls a few strings, sets forth a few improbable explanations and ends the play.

If the viewer found it possible to involve himself in the play at all, he is left cold by the ending, which is just too illogical.

BILL SLOUT gave a fine performance as the seemingly simple-minded, loutish landlord. He brought a naturalness and realness to the role which made it the most effective in the play.

Carmen Decker, as the aunt, called to mind an earlier performance of Pat Carroll, in "Marriage Go-Round." Miss Decker even bears a physical resemblance to Miss Carroll. "Under the Yum Yum Tree" added to the notion that just possibly sex and comedy are becoming inseparable in the theatre. Fewer and fewer plays are mere comedy. There has to be sex, it seems, to make the audience laugh. "Yum Yum" has plenty of both.

Japanese Prints Being Displayed at Kresge

You can take a fascinating step into Japanese history with a visit to Kresge Art Center.

Currently on display is a series of prints depicting life in early Japan before its westernization.

On loan from the Olsen Foundation in New York, the collection is mainly composed of an art form called "ukiyo-e" which was popular in Japan from about 1660 to 1860. Simple scenes of everyday life were portrayed in paintings and woodblock prints.

These paintings and prints, purchased by both rich and poor, have since become collectors' items.

In the collection are the works of two of Japan's most famous print artists, Hokusai and Hiroshige, who depict colorful scenes of homelife, travel, and the theatre.

The prints will be on display through the middle of September.

Gallery hours are from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

"Jane, my new phone number is"

Faster telephone service will start on the campus Sunday for those of you who are faculty members, staff and administrative people. Your business associates, friends and relatives in East Lansing, Lansing and many other places throughout the country will be able to dial your own telephone—direct.

You'll make it easier and faster for them to call you if you'll make sure they know your new seven-numeral telephone number.

This same improvement will be extended on Sept. 23 for families and friends of students in dormitory rooms. Each of them also will have a different seven-numeral telephone number.

The new telephone system meets the growing need for more and faster service. It is a milestone in Michigan State University's growth and expansion.

To speed your incoming calls, we suggest you tell your business associates, relatives and friends:

"My new telephone number is . . ."

Soil Directors Hold Meeting Next Week

The increase of the transfer of high grade farm land to non-agricultural purposes and the growing need for improved water management practices will be the subjects of discussion for 150 soil conservation district directors meeting at Kellogg Center Aug. 20-22.

Gov. John B. Swainson and Gordon Zimmerman, executive secretary of the National Association of Soil Conservation Districts, will be guest speakers.

The keynote address, "Today's Land Use—Tomorrow's Standard of Living," will be given by Dr. Henry Algren, associate director of the University of Wisconsin Co-operative Extension Service.
