Students Convene In NYC

By SHARON COADY (Of the State News Staff)

NEW YORK-More than 1300 college students, including eight from MSU, heard Prime Minister Jawaharal Nehru of India and various United Nations delegates call for total disarmament at the Collegiate Council for the United Nations conference this weekend. Nehru requested the meeting a month ago when he asked to meet with U.S. college students during his visit here.

The conference title was "1961: Year of Crisis," but the speakers from India, Ireland, the Soviet Union, the U.S., Nigeria and the Philippines dwelled almost exclusively on disarmament

Each said total disarmament is necessary if the world hopes to evade com-plete destruction.

Population Reapportionment Fairest But Not Possible

The reapportionment issue is bound to result in a hard and bitterly fought conflict before the Constitutional Convention draws to a close.

Opponents of reapportionment in Michigan have two basic arguments to support their stand.

First they argue that the United States is constitutionally organized to give population and areas equal representative power in order to protect minorities.

WOULD IT be fair, they argue, to bar Nevada's representation in the Senate? This would be true if both congressional houses were elected on a population basis. Nevada could not be barred, however, due to the very essence of our form of national government.

The U.S. government is the federal form wherein certain powers are granted to it and certain powers are retained by the states. The states are not merely admin-istrative agencies of the national govern-

Education Unplanned

One can dismiss Mr. Ribicoff's attack upon the leaders of higher education in the United States as an expression of disappointment by a man whose pet educational panacea had been rejected by congress.

Mr. Ribicoff believes in federal aid. He believes that the heads of American colleges and universities should have backed the Kennedy program more strongly. However, while money-whether Federal, state or private gift-is hardly irrelevant to the American educational dilemma, lack of it is certainly not the most important shortcoming of the corporate body of American educators.

MUCH MORE to the point is the criticism made by the new president of the American Council of Education. "Our collective endeavor," he told that organization, which represents more than 1,000 colleges and 145 educational organizations, "is being confused and weakened by vested-interest group pressures, splinter movements and fragmented ap-

Even more, the American system (if that is not a misnomer) of higher education is growing painles by in response to the increasing pressure upon its facilities.

New colleges are springing up; older ones are expanding. Prestige institutions are jacking up intellectual requirements, some others are just letting the flood of applicants wash through their halls.

THE VALUE, in educational terms, of an A.B. degree fluctuates wildly from college to college-like the value of dollars in the days when they could be issued by wildcat banks.

Diversity of educational opportunity in-a free society is extremely useful. Regimentation-even of educational standards-might be fatal. But surely there could be greater co-operation among institutions that profess common aims: surely there could be some way of assisting the weaker brethern in the educational community and reducing the pressures upon the stronger.

At the very last there should be broad collaboration to make known the opportunities available at lesser-known colleges to the student who has bruised his knuckles on the unreceptive doors of the well-known. Even the best universities are suffering under the impact.

Twist on the Twist

The twist is a dance which Lewis Caroll might have said should be taught in a school of reeling and writhing and rhythmatic. Some authorities on the dance, such as those who run the Roseland dance center in New York, disapprove of it so much that they have barred its performance...

They may have something in arguing that it isn't a dance at all but anyone who has seen it performed realizes that it is a valuable contribution to the nation's program for de-veloping physical fitness in the younger gene-ment but interdependent entities-although the last century of increasing federal activities and control have blurred this concept somewhat.

Opponents of reapportionment on a population basis in this state argue that the national government form is best at the state level also since it works to protect minorities and give low population districts "rightful" area representation.

These people forget that a state is not a federal government. It is, or should be according to Revolutionary War concepts, a representative democracy.

THE STATE senatorial districts for instance were not the original sovereign entities granting certain powers and authority to a central government and retain-ing other powers themselves. They are merely arbitrary areas created by the State of Michigan to elect senators who represent these areas.

These senatorial districts are only creatures of the state and are subserviant to it by virtue of their establishment,

The national federal government, however, is a creature of the states and therefore subserviant to them in designated instances.

It is not logical to organize the State of Michigan similarly to the United States on the argument that the U.S. government is the best form for the states and and therefore the best form of government within the state.

THE TWO are not intrinsically the same and the establishment of power is

The second apparent argument that reapportionment opponents advance is that minority rights will be violated.

As the wife of a student, a part time student myself, a full time teacher and mother of two, might I add to what has already been said by Ezra Berman in his letter. There is no need for a wife to lag behind her husband intellectually unless she is looking for an excuse to justify her doing so. Courses need not be taken to advance in learning. The only yield they give for many is a letter grade and a feeling of having changed scenery for a course, is not learning.

This seems to be very clearly the position of Prime Minister Nehru of India, who is presently making an official state visit to our country. Nehru is here to urge the United States to join Russia in a moratorium on nuclear testing.

BASIC DIFFERENCES in ideology between the U.S. and Russia do not allow us to make use of the neutrals' recommendation of compromise with any degree of confidence aspecially when by compromise the neutrals mean, "you give in because the Russians won't."

Usachev was the high point of the Friday program. He spoke briefly on disarmament, claiming the Soviet Union was forced into the tion of nuclear tests for its defense. He answered questions from the floor for an hour before the meeting

His frank answers captured the students. Many questions were designed to put him on the spot, bringing up such issues as Hungary and non-support of the Congo operation. Usachev, however, parried every question with an expert command of the English languages and an uncanny ability to age and an uncanny ability to recall black U.S. deeds to balance the Soviet sins.

He called the great powers disappointments to the smaller nations. His solution for the present "insanity" was complete disarmament.

Sen Clark, D-Pa., in the closing address Saturday afternoon, discussed the real possibilities of disarmament. Most of the other speakers, including Nehru, only called for it without presenting the practical problems involved.

Clark asked the students to help close the political gap which makes disarmament improbable at the present.

Roses Are Red and... The Spartans Are Blue

LAFAYETTE, Ind., - That one "big play" for a long gain is still an important part of college football and now the Michigan State Spartans are sure of it.

For the Spartans, the defeat was anticlimactic. After their loss to Minnesota last week, they were clinging to Big 10 title hopes only by their fingerone "big play" for a long gain

For the second straight week, Coach Duffy Daugherty's eleven didn't have that long gainer and for the second straight week they took a loss. Purdue inflicted the heartbreaking 7-6 defeat Saturday before more than 45,000 fans here.

But right until the bitter end Saturday, Daugherty and crew were still hoping for that big

Even the circumstances that deprived the Spartans of that vital point after touchdown were rare.

Biolermaker Tackle Don Brumm surged through the line and, as he fell from a block, deflected the ball.

Purdue got its score in the third period on a 15-yard pass from Degravio to Tom Boris, another sophomore in his first start. Boris waded through three State tacklers inside the five and dived into the end zone. DeGravio's conversion was the clincher.

The Spartans never got a good chance after that. In the late minutes they tried to posi-tion for a field goal, but even

"Just one more first down and we could have tried it," Daugherty said. They penetrated to the Purdue 40 with Smith passing exclusively to Brand-statter.

Then Smith was caught to intentional grounding and Dick Proebstle came in only to be tossed for a 10 yard loss. Then it was clear that the Spartan hopes were over.

"When you lose one, it's always easy to lose two,' Daugherty said.

But he didn't mention any thing about when you lose two, its always easy to lose three.

On Radios, Etc.

It was the style Saturday afternoon. Students went to the soccer game and they brought portable radios. That's how leval Michigan State students are to their teams. They came to root for the undefeated Spartan booters and they came to cheer for the gridders playing down at Purdue.

Soccer is a great game, the most popular sport in the world. But you really have to be in shape to play the game. They never stop running out the soccer game Saturday was a rough one. One brave Spartan caught from behind on the Spartan 25 with six blockers and a clear field ahead.

The list of Spartan chances could reach on endlessly. Wayne Fontes nearly had a score when he cut in front of a purdue pass receiver in the purdue pass receiver in the opening quarter.

The list of Spartan chances for the fans. It was all because St. Louis had a man standing in front of their net. Nothing got have counted to 100.

Another Spartan booter was sprawled out which brought this memorable comment from a Michigan State co-ed:

The should have taken a walk in the talence to be lock the kick of the fans. It was all because the form the fant of their net. Nothing got have counted to 100.

Another Spartan booter was sprawled out which brought this memorable comment from a Michigan State co-ed: He should have taken a walk a Michigan State co-ed:
for about ten minutes. "Oh, he's alright. His legs for about ten minutes.

Back in the stands the radios were bringing the tidings from Purdue. Now if there is one thing that drives the average human being crazy it is trying to listen to a football game which is broadcast on five different radio stations by five different announcers . . and they are all talking at the same

"Oh, he's alright. His legs are moving."

Immediately everybody in the stands knew that this girl was not a nursing major because when an athlete is laying on the field and moves his legs with Philadelphia in the Eastern Conference of the National Football League with a shocking been kicked in the stomach.

So you take the hint and reach for a handkerchief to stop the flow of blood. Yeh, you can feel that imprint as you rub your hand across the forehead. "Class of 1959," it says.

THUS YOU choose to listen to the game on the radio that the fellow sitting in front of you has. But funny thing, he's listening to the Chicago Symphony Orchestra playing Tschaikov-

WHAT DOES AN OLD GRAD LIKE BEST ABOUT HOMECOMING? Next to shaking hands, he likes reminiscing. About fraternity parties, girls, sorority parties, girls, off-campus parties, girls-and, of course, about how great cigarettes used to taste. Fortunately for you, Luckies still do taste great. (So great that college students smoke more of them than any other regular cigarette.) Which shows that the important things in college life stay the same. Parties. Girls. Luckies.

CHANGE TO LUCKIES and get some taste for a change!
