Global Glimpses

By the Associated Press

94 Die in Train Collision

WOERDEN, Netherlands. (AP)—Speeding through dense fog, a crowded express plowed into the side of a slow commuter train with terrific force Monday, killing 94 persons and injuring scores.

Firemen, police, soldiers, uninjured passengers, priests and nuns joined in bringing victims from the wreckage of the Netherlands' worst railway disaster.

The express was packed with weekenders returning to Rotterdam from the northern provinces.

Airliner Forced Down By MIG

ISTANBUL, Turkey. (AP)—A twin-jet Belgian Sabena airliner radioed Monday that it was being pursued by Russian MIG fighters, then veered from its Tehran-Istanbul run to land at the Soviet city of Yerevan. Sabena officials said it was forced down.

Belgium asked the Soviet Union, through the Belgium Embassy in Moscow, for an immediate release of the plane and the 27 persons aboard it—19 passengers and 8 crew members. The Soviet Foreign Office said it was investigating.

Among the passengers was one American, identified only as Mr. Howen, he was flying to Europe from the Far East.

No Combat, But To Aid Training

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The brother of the South Viet Nam President said Monday the United States offered two months ago to send combat troops to his country. But the report was quickly denied by the State Department.

Press officer Lincoln White said, "the United States is not sending combat troops except for training purposes—if you want to regard them as combat troops in that light."

U.S. officers on training missions in South Viet Nam have been given instructions to shoot if necessary if they are caught in a combat situation, however.

Money Pool To Protect U.S. Gold

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Ten free world countries are to build a $6-billion currency pool which Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon said Monday may well forestall a future rush on American gold.

The funds will be available in an emergency to buttress the stability of the dollar of any other major Western currency.

Going Still Slippery

Fraternity Rush Reopens Tuesday

After a day's intermission, fraternity houses on and west of Abbott road will again be holding open rush Tuesday for men interested in fraternity life.

Uncooperative weather started last Sunday's rush on a slippery foot, but with all houses furnishing transportation, the turnout was one of the best ever.

Open rush will continue through Wednesday when houses east of Abbott will be open. Following this, closed rush will begin with each house preparing its own schedule.

Formal winter rush will close next Tuesday when all houses will announce their new pledge class for the term. An informal rush will be held by all houses until the eighth week of the term, when rushers will begin taking the initiative and arranging visits.

All male students having a minimum 2.0 all-college average and being a second term freshman or higher are eligible to pledge winter terms.

Tuesday's and Wednesday's rush will last from 7 to 10 p.m. Those needing rides are urged to contact any house. Information on rush and its regulations may be obtained by calling 355-8250.

Moore to Fight Argentine in U.S.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Light Heavyweight Champion Archie Moore agreed Monday to meet Argentine Heavyweight Alejandro Lavorante in a 10-round contest in the Los Angeles sports arena in late March.

Matchmaker George Parnassus said the fighters agreed to terms after 10 days of negotiations. Parnassus said he had guaranteed Moore $35,000 with an option of 35 per cent of the gate. Lavorante will receive 25 per cent of the gate. The exact date depends upon television terms, Parnassus said.

Arctic Air Swoops on Midwest

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Stinging cold Arctic air surged out of Canada and put most of the Plains States and parts of the Midwest in a hard freeze Monday.

Heavy snow was piled high in mountain areas of Colorado and Wyoming, while winds up to 50 miles an hour brought blizzard conditions to the Dakotas. Cold wave warnings were out for most of the states as far south as Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle. The mercury started a downward plunge to well below zero in the North Central part of the nation.

The new major outbreak of cold air was accompanied by snow and strong northerly winds. The Denver airport measured seven inches of new snow before noon and six inches covered Akron, Colo., and Cheyenne, Wyo.

The temperature at Minot, N.D., was -13. It was 10 at Havre, Mont., and readings still were falling at midday. Pierre, S. D. reported wind gusts up to 52 M.P.H.

Scores of deaths and widespread destruction followed in the wake of the major snowstorm. Three persons were crushed to death in New Hampshire when their automobile collided with a skidding bus on an icy highway.

The new bitter cold wave contrasted with Sunday's 90-plus degree heat wave in California.

Scattered snow fell Monday from the Northern and Central Rockies into the adjoining plains and over Oklahoma and the Upper Mississippi Valley. Flurries continued over the Great Lakes and the Ohio Valley, while rain showers dotted Western New England. The Pacific Northwest was enveloped in fog and drizzle.

Noon temperatures Monday hovered near or below the zero mark through Montana, Wyoming, The Dakotas and Minnesota, and colder readings were due by nightfall. California had 60 and 70 degree readings as did Southern Texas and the peninsula of Florida.

Much of the Atlantic Coastal Plain and Gulf Coast recorded temperatures in the 50s.

Germany Will Stand With Allies

WASHINGTON (AP)—German Vice Chancellor Ludwig Erhard emerged from a conference with President Kennedy Monday with assurances that West Germany will stand staunchly with the Allies against Russia.

Erhard was questioned by newsmen at the White House on a reported Russian proposal that Bonn and Moscow seek settlement of the Berlin question in negotiations excluding the allies.

Erhard declared that if the "propaganda element" were deducted from the proposal, "little is left."

Erhard said he could not believe that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev could be so irrational as to think that West Germany would enter direct negotiations with the Soviets on Berlin.

Germany knows it can rely on the United States and the other Western powers to stand by it on the Berlin problem, Erhard said, and "the United States can be assured of our loyalty. We certainly will make our contribution to the common cause."

It is possible, he conceded, See KENNEDY Page 5

U. S.-British Plan

Stalemate on Berlin

BONN, Germany (AP)—Prime Minister MacMillan is to present new British-American ideas to Chancellor Konrad Adenauer here Tuesday for a sort of standstill agreement between East and West in central Europe.

British officials reported the essence of tentative London-Washington thinking as MacMillan took off from London for Bonn. Foreign Secretary Lord Home accompanied him aboard a Royal Air Force Comet.

U.S. and British authorities were said to believe that, if current attempts fail to settle the Berlin dispute, then there should be:

1. An implicit or explicit agreement with the Russians not to use force over Berlin.
2. An implicit or explicit undertaking by each side to avoid provocative actions in the two parts of Berlin.

London informants stressed that these ideas are intended to preserve things more or less as they are, even if the Russians go through with their plans to sign a peace treaty with communist East Germany. They said the new thinking may emerge as official policy only if it becomes clear a formal Berlin settlement is beyond the reach of East-West negotiators.

Adenauer told newsmen that, so far as he can determine, the probe toward East-West negotiations on Berlin is getting nowhere.

Asked what success is attending the talks U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson has undertaken with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in Moscow, Adenauer said:

"I cannot see that the talks are heading toward results."

The Chancellor gave his opinions at a tea for British reporters as he awaited the arrival of MacMillan.

They are to confer as part of a series of meetings between Western leaders during the Berlin crisis.

Adenauer, just turned 86, gave no indication that he was optimistic about a quick Berlin settlement.

Asked if he expected any solution in the foreseeable future, he shrugged and asked: "What is the foreseeable future?"

He dismissed a new, 20-page Soviet memorandum on the T-71 and German questions as a rebash of old, unacceptable proposals.

The memorandum was handed to Hans Kroll, West German ambassador in Moscow, Dec. 27. Its contents have not been made public.

"There is not a single word in it," the Chancellor said.

The Bonn government's press chief, Felix Von Eckardt, said the Soviet Union was attempting through the memorandum to lure West Germany into abandoning its allies and entering separately into negotiations along with East Germany.

Eckardt declared this will never happen. He described the tone of the memorandum as unusually mild and friendly, contrasting sharply with recent Soviet propaganda attacks on West Germany.

Topics of MacMillan and Adenauer are expected to include the Briton's December meeting with President Kennedy in Bermuda, Britain's bid to enter the six-nation European common market, and Bonn financing to offset the $190 million annual maintenance cost of the 51,000-man British Army of the Rhine.

Adenauer promised help on the army issue.

"Mr. MacMillan will get some relief from his worries on this matter," the Chancellor said. Adenauer said that, while financial help might be the prime minister's No. 1 item, his would be unity. He said:

"Premier Khrushchev lives off the disunity of the West."

'Ashcan' Headgear Just a Fez

The latest dance craze is reported to have come rushing on the college scene from the distant pages of history. But the latest thing in women's headgear goes the twist one better.

Whatever you choose to call this fashionable item, the "shaggy box," the "ashcan," or whatever, it seems to be on the college campus to stay at least for this season.

This shapeless piece of furry fad was first seen on the steppes of Russia as the Cossacks raced westward. Later the Turkish army officers adopted it to give them added height. They called their headgear fezes. This name also was used in Africa, where various tassels were attached.

The British further added dignity to the headpiece by adopting it, with alterations, for the Royal Guard.

But whether from the frozen steppes of Russia or from the pomp and pageantry of England, women of the western world have taken the fez over. Whatever the storied history, it is now a woman's hat. Style centers will name it later but until then it sweeps the American campus like the yo-yo or the hula hoop.

Domestic Issues Skipped at Session

WASHINGTON, (AP)—President Kennedy got together with Republican and Democratic leaders for a pre-congressional unit session on world trouble spots Monday.

Later the Republicans served notice they will continue to fight some of Kennedy's domestic proposals.

Specifically GOP Chairman William E. Miller said the Republicans will continue their opposition to the President's program for using the social security system to finance medical care for the aged.

Molotov Gets Vienna Post

MOSCOW (AP)—Molotov is returning to his post in Vienna despite violent condemnation by the Communist Party Congress in October that seemed to mark him for oblivion.

To the astonishment of diplomats in Moscow, the Foreign Office announced Monday the old Bolshevik left by train during the weekend to resume his job as permanent Soviet representative with the International Atomic Energy Agency—the Atoms-For-Peace organization.

"Why not?" said a Foreign Ministry spokesman, "he never retired from that job."

Diplomats had firmly believed the Foreign Minister of Stalin's day never again would hold a public post even if he escaped the party attack alive.

Senior Kennedy Leaves Hospital

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy left St. Mary's Hospital Monday to recuperate in his winter home from a pre-Christmas stroke.

A spokesman said the President's father was accompanied by Lola Hennessey, a long-time family nurse, who planned to stay with him at least until the end of the month.

Unofficial reports said a hospital bed and oxygen tent had been installed in his home.

Hospital sources said his right arm and leg remained partially paralyzed and his voice still was affected as a result of the Dec. 19 stroke.

Kennedy was ambassador to England during President Franklin Roosevelt's administration.

Those who attended reported afterward that there was a thorough briefing by administration leaders on global affairs, but virtually no discussion of domestic legislation.

All apparently was cordial, however, at a two-hour White House breakfast meeting between Kennedy and the opposing leaders of Senate and House.

Those who attended reported afterward that there was a thorough briefing by administration leaders on global affairs, but virtually no discussion of domestic legislation.

A much more down-to-cases approach is expected Tuesday morning when President Kennedy confers privately with the Democratic leaders of both houses. At that time, it is assumed there will be an exchange of ideas between the Chief Executive and his legislative allies over ways and means to obtain passage of the administration program.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois called Tuesday's meeting a "definitely worthwhile" session and added that "it should be done more often."

"This is the way we have to get documented information instead of the rumors and undocumented reports that we get so much of," Dirksen told newsmen.

House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana said the White House session provided "a very fine and complete briefing." When newsmen asked Halleck to give "the Republican side" of it, he said "there was no Republican or Democratic side about it."

Later Halleck told reporters See GERMANY Page 6

Washington, (AP)—Persons who build fallout shelters are gambling that a nuclear blast will not hit them directly, a civil defense official said Monday, and a "justifiable expenditure" for such a gamble should be about $30 to $40 per person.

Paul Visher, director of technical operations for the office of Civil Defense in the Department of Defense, told a luncheon meeting of Washington construction men:

"I personally don't think the gamble is justified in terms of $2,000 or $3,000 per shelter."

He said $200 shelters for housing four or five persons will be on the market soon.

He said the office of Civil Defense will take advantage of construction programs in schools, hospitals and welfare institutions and offer aid if fallout shelters are added to building plans.

He gave three reasons for emphasizing fallout shelters in the Civil Defense program:

1. Regardless of the size or nature of a nuclear attack, it is certain fallout will occur and many persons could be saved if there is a fallout shield.
2. Techniques of fallout protection have been developed.
3. After warning of a nuclear attack there will be at least 15 minutes during which persons can get into shelters.

Says China-Soviet 'Feud' Exaggerated

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

Dr. T. F. Tsiang, who assumed new duties recently as Chinese Nationalist Ambassador to Washington, says he believes Americans are inclined to exaggerate the importance of the Peking-Moscow ideological dispute as it affects the face presented to the world by the Communist bloc.

The veteran diplomat, who is also a former ambassador to Moscow and for the last 15 years to the United Nations, a post he will retain, says the noises being made in Peking really represent political pressure to attain economic ends.

The Reds, he said, are not getting the Soviet economic aid they were led to expect. The economies of the two countries are not supplementary, China cannot offer to pay in goods which the Russians really need, while herself needing the very things of which Russia is short in her campaign for better living conditions at home.

Peking, the theory is, therefore amplifies a political campaign in the hope of being bought off by Russia for the sake of Communist unity, and also in the hope of getting aid from non-Communist sources by creating the idea that there is a Moscow-Peking split which can be exploited. But in the East-West fight her position remains the same.

The problem of Western diplomats, the ambassador said, is to avoid giving the Communist enemy any relief from the troubles he has created for himself through false approaches to Chinese development, even to the extent of unhappy refusal to help the innocent Chinese people.

"A diplomat," said the former director-general for all China of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Program immediately after the war, "must promote the self-interest of his government, but also meet the pressures of momentary passions in such a way as not to interfere with fundamental long-term objectives."

Dr. Tsiang expressed pleasure that he will now work more closely with men in Washington for whom he expressed great respect, such as Dean Rusk and Averell Harriman, and said he believed Adlai Stevenson was developing real leadership through a display of open-mindedness in the United Nations.

Dr. Tsiang was educated in the United States at Park Academy and Oberlin College and took his doctorate at Columbia University.

He taught history at Nankai University in Tientsin for some years, later headed that department at the National Tsinghua University in Peking, and for a time edited the Chinese Social and Political Science Review and the Independent Critic, a liberal weekly.

Before the war he was director of political affairs in Chiang Kai-Shek's cabinet, and afterward represented China on the United Nations Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East. He is 66.

Bruce Bandurski and Jean Hume

Seniors of the Week

Jean and Bruce Interested In Africa, South America

Underdeveloped countries hold the interest of Seniors of the Week Jean Hume, Alexandria, Va., and Bruce Bandurski, Long Beach, Ind.

Miss Hume participated in Crossroads Africa last summer and Bandurski plans to conduct a study of the effect of increased economic activity on the wildlife in Ecuador starting next fall.

A political science major, Miss Hume has been student congress secretary a member of the Junior Council, the Fresh-Soph Council, and the Campus United Nations. She has also served as corresponding secretary of her sorority, Alpha Gamma Delta.

Last spring she was tapped for Mortar Board, senior women's honorary. She is also a member of Phi Sigma Alpha; political science honorary.

In Togo, West Africa, with Operation Crossroads, Miss Hume lived among the natives and helped them build a school out of the raw materials in the area. She believes that projects such as this and the Peace Corps should be expanded because of the need for more understanding between the people of different cultures.

She said that she felt this was by far the greatest experience she has gained from college.

Miss Hume tells of two natives she met. One thought that all Americans were Negroes, the other that all white people were trying to kill all Negroes.

She also stressed the lack of communication the people have, even from village to village.

A sidenote is that her mother, a teacher, has applied for the Peace Corps.

Plans for the future include travel to many countries, including several underdeveloped ones, and taking jobs where she can be of help.

Bandurski, a wildlife management and zoology major, enjoys working outdoors. For the past two summers he has been both a ranger and lookout at Yosemite National Park.

An Honors College student he has represented Ecuador in the Campus United Nations, been a member of IFC, Agriculture Council, the Spartan Pistol Club, the Fish and Wildlife Club, and the Rifle Club.

He was a member of the freshman-football and tennis teams before he injured his knee and could no longer participate.

Honors have come to Mandurski in many fields. He is Chancellor of Alpha Zeta, and a member of Beta, Beta, Beta and Green Helmet. Both as a freshman and sophomore he was named the most outstanding Army ROTC cadet. He also won the ROTC Rifle Team medal.

This year he was one of 13 students in the United States to receive an undergraduate fellowship from the National Wildlife Federation.

For hobbies he likes photography, tennis, football, golf, riding, baseball, fishing, hunting, swimming, and camping.

Applications Due For Tri-Delts' Two $100 Awards

Delta Delta Delta sorority will make two $100 awards available to undergraduate women. The award money will come from the Tri-Delts service fund.

Applications may be obtained at the women's division in the Student Services building and they must be turned in to Patti Coleman, 634 M.A.C. by January 26.

All undergraduate women are eligible to compete, but special consideration is given to applications of juniors and seniors.

Applications are judged on the basis of the student's academic achievements, needs, and potential for future service to society.

Since the program began, the sorority has awarded 2,650 awards totaling $356,092.

U. S. Kids More Honest

More often than in other parts of the world, American children react with expressions of honesty, responsibility and a sense of fair play to difficult situations, report two Michigan State University researchers.

Drs. Harold H. and Gladys L. Anderson, a husband-wife team, have asked 10,000 children in eight countries to complete stories involving social conflict situations.

For instance, one story presents a situation in which two boys were playing football on a secluded forbidden lot. A window is cracked.

The three samplings from the continental U.S. were at the top of the list in the percentages of children who said the boys communicated with the owner and volunteered to pay for the window.

Towboat Aids Stuck Truck

WYATT, Mo. (AP)—Dutch Volker received help from an unexpected source when his truck became mired in mud.

Volker was standing alongside the truck on the edge of the Mississippi River wondering how he might extricate it, when a towboat pilot eased over gently and nudged the truck with his barges.

Name of the obliging towboat pilot? "I don't know. I just got in my truck, waved at him, and took off," Volker said.

All-Woman Wins In a Man's World

NEW YORK (AP)—The way to succeed in business in a hurry is not to be just a woman in a man's world, but all-woman in a man's world.

This advice which fashion writers may now pass on to career girls promises to put office morale at a new high this spring, at least among the boys at the water cooler.

During the spring style shows sponsored by the New York Couture Group, designers George Carmel, Ben Reig and Bill Bloss of Maurice Rentner showed the fashion press how it is done.

Avoiding the white collar girl look was one of Carmel's methods. He sent his trim little models onto the runway in pastel suits crisp enough to be bristling with efficiency, but with jackets molded in a very ladylike way.

Further feminine touches are added by dazzling bright pinks and blues and yellows, or soft neutral collars with blindingly brilliant silk pocket linings and matching blouses.

His pencil-slim skirts, however, offer something of a challenge to a well-known occupational hazard, secretarial spread. But Carmel has made a variety of big-shouldered, shaggy, swingy coats to keep the nine-to-five breathlessly beautiful when she's late for work.

A man concerned with the dilemma of the high rising skirt is Ben Reig, who has created some suits that are efficiency experts' delights.

Jackets are long, softly belted, modestly feminine. Skirts bounce with pleats and flares and side panels that emphasize the shapely miss on her way to the pencil sharpener, and eliminate the need to tug miserably at riding hemlines while taking dictation.

Sure to disrupt the working force, though, are some other Reig specialties, revealing handloomed knit dresses.

While a career girl with taste knows she shouldn't be a seductive vamp on office time, she can make up for it on her own with an alluring after-hours wardrobe.

Designer Bill Bloss, who is recuperating from a recent auto accident, wasn't on hand to tell the conservatively dressed fashion writers that he is a man of divergent moods. But he is.

Along with his passion for floaty, fluttery fabrics, Bloss likes starkly simple evening gowns. His sleek, sheath dinner gowns, with brief jackets, low necklines and no backs are equally as feminine as frills in this season of femininity.

But frilly, or plain, daytime or not, the dresses this year are destined to catch a man who will change a girl's mind about wanting to work in a man's world.

Wives Will Tour Crime Lab, Wed.

The Engineering Wives will hold the first business meeting of the term Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Spartan Hall. After the meeting, members will take a tour of the state police crime laboratory before returning to Spartan Hall for refreshments.

Prof. Meyer To Discuss Communists

Alfred G. Meyer, professor of political science, will discuss current developments in political relations between the Soviet Union and the East European nations of the communist bloc Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in 22 Union.

The talk is sponsored by Delta Phi Epsilon, the national professional fraternity for overseas government service and international business.

Meyer, who is on leave this term to complete a book on the Soviet political system, is well known for his books, "Leninism," and "Marxism: the Unity of Theory and Practice." He was director of Columbia University's research program in the history of the Soviet communist party before coming to MSU in 1957.

After the talk, the fraternity will hold an open rush coffee hour for all undergraduate and graduate men interested in international affairs or planning careers in government service and business abroad, and in related professional fields.

Navy Grows Vegetables Under the Sea

GROTON, Conn. (AP)—Fresh vegetables 20,000 leagues under the sea?

No daydream out of Jules Verne, they are a part of everyday life for the men of the Navy's Polaris submarine fleet.

Nothing beats a fresh serving of salad or a piping side-dish of peas and carrots while cruising under the ocean for 30 days, says the Navy.

And to make sure Polaris crewmen get these delights during their long voyage, a method of growing lettuce, carrots and green peas on board the submarines has been developed by the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp.

The vegetables are grown in hydroponic garden kits—three-foot planters that look like large window flower boxes.

The seeds are planted in a chemical growth base and lettuce, fluorescent lights are kept on them, Electric Boat explained.

The gardening experiments were conducted by Electric Boat under a contract from the Office of Naval Research.

How long does it take to raise a fresh crop of greens under the sea?

General Dynamics researchers say ruby lettuce can be grown in about three weeks, and carrots and dwarf peas in about four.

Anyone for salad, mates?

Spartans Lose Thriller, 83-78

By Gary Rosenberg
State News Sports Writer

Michigan State, after overcoming a 14-point first half Wisconsin lead, lost out in the thrilling 83-78 in a thrilling Big Ten basketball clash Monday night at Jenison Fieldhouse.

The Badgers recorded their second consecutive conference victory and are now 8-3 overall. State is now 0-3 in Big Ten action and 5-5 for the season.

Wisconsin's leading scorer Ron Jackson, finished with 23 points to pace both teams. Joining him in double figures were Badgers Ken Siebel with 18, Tom Gwyn with 14, and Don Hearden with 13.

The Spartans were led by Ted Williams with 14, Pete Gent with 13, Bill Schwarz and Stan Chandler with 12, and Capt. Art Schwarm had 10.

State had trailed 31-17 with 18:16 to go in the first half but managed to draw within four, 41-37, by halftime.

The Spartans went ahead for the first time at 11:56 of the second half when Jack Lamers tallied on a fast-break lay-up to make it 54-53. From then on in the 7,247 fans were treated to a rip-roaring crowd pleaser with the lead exchanging hands seven times.

State's Bill Schwarz knotted the count 74-74 with 2:48 left, but Gwyn wished an eight-foot jumper to put the Badgers ahead to stay, 79-74. Jackson sank two layups and a free throw to make it 81-74 with 50 seconds to go.

With the Green and White pressing, Bill Berry scored twice to make it 81-78. Berry intercepted a pass with seconds left, and missed a short jumper, but Chandler and Sanders both missed rebound efforts. In a wild scramble for the loose ball, Gent fouled Gwyn and a fight nearly broke out between the two. Order was restored with one second left and Gwyn's pair of free throws iced it.

Michigan State was hurt immeasurably by fouls. Schwarm and Lamers both fouled out with nearly seven minutes left in the game, and when Sanders picked up his fourth personal at 11:48 of the second half, he was forced to be careful from then on.

A dejected Fordy Anderson said: "The team made too many mental errors. They never quit, but they just don't think. This was one of the most disappointing losses of my career."

He said State really missed Schwarm and Lamers at the end of the game.

Wisconsin's John Erickson was elated at his team's win. "This was our greatest win of the year," he said. "State has a fine team and we did not underestimate them."

Fordy and his team never quit fighting, but the loss of Schwarm and Lamers on fouls unquestionably hurt them.

The Spartans truly didn't give up and it was a shame such a fine comeback effort wound up in the loss column.

Schwarz, Gent, and Sanders led the surge against the Wisconsin lead during the first half, and Williams played one of his finest games in the second stanza—getting 12 of his 16 points when they really counted.

Michigan State's next game will be at home against Illinois Saturday night at 8 p.m.

Ability Tests Set For Paddleball

This term the Intramural Office is initiating a new type of individual competition in paddleball. Designed to allow every entrant to play an opponent of his own ability, the tournament will consist of three ladders of competition.

The tournament will be held from January 22nd to March 9th. Entries will be accepted for this tournament beginning Monday, January 15th in the Mens' Intramural Office. Results will be posted as matches are played and positions kept on the bulletin board next to the Intramural Office.

The Ladder System is composed of three Ladders; Novice, Intermediate, and Championship. The novice ladder is composed of participants who have not previously entered IM competition and are at the novice level of competition. The Intermediate ladder consists of participants who have won in the first or second rounds of previous IM competition and those of intermediate ability.

The championship ladder is for the participants who have reached the quarter finals of previous IM competition and those who have demonstrated a high level of ability. Winners and runners-up of their respective ladders will receive appropriate awards. Participants on the top step of their ladders as the tournament closes will be the winners and those on the second step the runner-up.

A copy of these foregoing rules and complete challenging rules may be picked up in the Intramural Office prior to the tournament. Game rules are determined by the IM Office.

SPARTAN GOALIE—John Chandik, responsible for heading up the rugged Spartan defense which, according to coach Amo Bessone, is greatly responsible for the great improvement in the hockey team's record.

Hockey Team Much Improved

By ED KOTLAR
State News Sport Writer

After 11 games the Spartan hockey team possesses an overall 9-2 record, 3-1 in Western Collegiate Hockey League competition.

Last year at the end of 11 games the Spartans were 5-6 over-all and 1-6 in WCHL action.

Why the big improvement? Coach Amo Bessone has a couple of answers to this question, one of which is balanced scoring.

Bessone has three forward lines, the No. 1 or "French Line" of Claude Fournel, Real Turcotte and Bob Doyle. The No. 2 Line of juniors Tom Lackey, Walt Johnson and Art Thomas.

The third line is composed of Marfy Quirk, Pat Baldwin and Gus Hendrickson or Tony Elliot.

Bessone feels that he can put any one of the lines on the ice with confidence that the attack will not be weakened. A good example of this is the Minnesota series last weekend. State scored 10 goals in the two games, three by the "French Line" and two by the third line. The other two were scored by defensemen.

Another reason Bessone sites for the better record this year is improved defense headed by goalie John Chandik.

Chandik took over State's net minding chore for the final 14 games last season, made 405 saves and was runner-up to George Kirkwood of Denver in the balloting for the league's top goalie. Bessone rates Chandik's work this year as "outstanding".

In front of Chandik is a defense that is greatly improved this season and gets better with each game.

Leading the defense are seniors Carl Lackey and Jim Jacobson. Bessone spoke highly of these first year men at the start of the season and they have lived up to his expectations.

The Spartans have 12 games left and it will be a rough road. They tackle Colorado College here Thursday and Friday and then play six games against the three top teams in the league, Minnesota, Michigan and Michigan Tech. Five of the six games are on the road.

Spartan Officials Fill Olympic Posts

Five Michigan State athletic figures, headed by Athletic Director Biggie Munn, have been named to important posts in Uncle Sam's Olympic picture.

Munn himself has three capacities. He is a member of the board of directors of the U.S. Olympic committee, member of the NCAA committee for the Olympics and a member of the NCAA Olympic boxing committee.

The other four, all Spartan head coaches, are members of the NCAA Olympic committee in their respective sports. They are: John Kobs, baseball; Charles Schmitter, fencing; Charles McCaffree, swimming, and Fendley Collins, wrestling.

Doctoral Study Important Ryder Lauds Grad Degree

A major objective of the College of Engineering is to increase opportunities for graduate study and research. Dean John Ryder told the Board of Trustees recently.

A $200,000 grant from the National Science Foundation already accepted by the Board of Trustees, he said, will aid the University in improving its doctoral program in engineering.

day when the engineering graduates is a well-rounded citizen, he said, and when our colleges are more concerned with quality than quantity.

Ryder said that most of MSU's graduates take positions with the "blue chip" industries and that they are among the most sought-after graduates.

an abandonment of many things and promised in the campaign and in the Democratic platform." He mentioned civil rights and school-aid measures as examples.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said the White House decision showed that the international situation remains critical. He said it "bore out what the President said in his message a year ago, that the 60's will be a decade of crises, that this year and the years to follow will call for both tightening and a facing of the facts of international life."

Mansfield and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., both said the emphasis was entirely on international questions and that the controversial parts of the President's domestic program were omitted.

Dirksen's version coincided. The GOP leader said there was no discussion of the Kennedy tax program, the health care for the aged plan, or other purely domestic issues.

The administration's budget, which is expected to set a new record high for peacetime, was mentioned only in connection with military spending problems, Dirksen said.

From all accounts, Kennedy mostly sat back and let his top aides lay out the problems. Among those conducting the briefings were Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, John A. McCone, Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, and Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Some of the Senate leaders later joined Rusk at lunch for a further review of the State

STARTS FRIDAY "PURPLE NOON"

De Mille To Speak On Theatre

Agnes de Mille, choreographer, dancer, writer, and director, will appear Tuesday night in the Auditorium at 8 o'clock to speak on "The Theater and the Student."

Miss de Mille has said that college students of today will determine the future of the theater. She will discuss the and other connections between the student and theater in her lecture.

Best known for her choreography, Miss de Mille has arranged the dance numbers for such shows as "Oklahoma," "Carousel," "Brigadoon," "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" and one of the latest Broadway musicals "Kwamina."

Early in her career, Miss de Mille studied ballet in England, returned to this country, and choreographed major works for both the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo and Ballet Theatre.

More recently, the busy dancer has found time to contribute articles to Vogue, Atlantic Monthly, Good Housekeeping, and the New York Times. She also wrote two selections for her autobiography entitled "Dance to the Piper," and "And Promenade Home."

Because of her interest in college students and their interest in theater, Miss de Mille will speak as a guest in the Lecture-Concert series.

Tickets for the lecture may be obtained at the Union Ticket office in exchange for an activity book coupon. ID's must be presented at the door.

Supreme Court Rules Against Sex Magazines

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court refused to hear appeals from six Baltimore newsstand operators fined for selling magazines featuring pictures of nude and semi-nude females.

The tribunal, which in past years has upheld other state laws limiting the sale of sexy magazines, gave no reason for its action in this case. Thus it offered no new guidelines as to what constitutes obscenity in publications.

The decision lets stand a Maryland court of appeals ruling that the magazines were obscene within the meaning of Maryland law.

The magazines—Candid, Consort, Sextet, Cloud 9, and Torrid—were purchased by Baltimore police. The prosecutions then were carried out under a state law which makes it a misdemeanor for any person knowingly to sell any lewd, obscene or indecent books, magazines, drawings or photographs.

Attorneys for the newsstand operators relied on a 1957 milestone decision which upheld convictions under state laws but did not close the door on sales of sex magazines.

That ruling declared: "Sex and obscenity are not synonymous. Obscene material is material which deals with sex in a manner appealing to prurient interest—that is material having a tendency to excite lustful thoughts."

The attorneys told the court in their brief that this guideline meant "only hard core pornography is obscene." But the Maryland law, they said "has been given unlimited scope" to permit prosecution and conviction for the publication and sale of any magazine which has a tendency to excite lustful thoughts.

Maryland said the interpretation that the Supreme Court ban was only against "hard core pornography" was a distortion of the tribunal's test of obscenity.

Thomas B. Finan, Maryland

magazines a product of the "dirty book industry" and declared:

"On the face of the record these exhibits could qualify as trade magazines for the waiting room of disorderly houses."

Saying the Maryland court of appeals had found itself "loosely referring to lewd exhibits as 'purely magazines,'" Finan said:

"The hawkers of filth, in order to give their trade an air of respectability... create new words and new definitions which are bandied in the courts and briefs with the hope that their quotation in some (court) opinion will establish an authoritative basis and legitimize their birth."

The Supreme Court handed down no opinions but issued attorney general, in a brief opposing the appeal, called the only orders agreeing or refusing to consider appeals.

Two major appeals which the high court turned down involved the 1958 arrest of two Negro ministers in Birmingham, Ala., who refused to sit in the back of a bus as ordered by the driver under a city law.

The justices did not explain their reasons but they apparently were not ruling on the merits of the appeals. They seemed to be accepting the city's contentions (1) that the appeals were filed too late under state and federal court rules and (2) that federal constitutional questions were not raised soon enough in the lengthy proceedings for the high court to consider them.

During the 1958 campaign to end segregation in Birmingham buses, the Rev. J. S. Phifer was sentenced to 30 days and the Rev. F. L. Shuttleworth got 90 days. Each also was fined $100. Eleven other defendants also accused of disorderly conduct received suspended sentences.

In another decision the Supreme Court denied a hearing to singer Gordon MacRae who appealed a decision that he was deficient $102,582 in income taxes for 1952 and 1953.

Westerners Come Out To See Old-Time Cattle Drive

WINNER, S.D. (AP)—Stinging winds of 45 miles an hour and temperatures near zero didn't stop Don Hight's cattle from munching on rich winter wheat today as the huge herd of 1,000 animals trundled across the prairie.

Hight, a rancher of Westover, S.D., and his hands are driving the animals 65 miles to market here and were only 13 miles from their destination at noon. Snow was knee-deep in places as the caravan of beef continued the fifth day.

The drive bogged occasionally as packs of cattle strayed from the herd to graze.

"We just have to keep after them," said Earl Siebers, one of the drivers at the rear of the herd.

Hight's problem is he will suffer weight loss by pushing the animals too fast. But if the herd moves too slowly, the cattle will eat too much expensive winter wheat.

A 40-year old ex-paratrooper with two children, Hight has disdained trucks and is driving his rugged herefords to winner, about 28 miles north of the Nebraska line.

He was still on schedule and claimed he has not lost one head of beef. He started the drive Thursday morning and is slated to bring the $360,000 worth of beef to the auction block this morning.

Despite the disagreeable weather, the herd is still a huge attraction. Winner residents by the dozen have motored out to side roads to gaze at the two-mile long string of cattle as it moves by.

"They just keep coming," chirped one woman as she leaned from a car window to take pictures.

To old timers, the great herd recalled early days of the century, when the government ordered the cattle barons off the grazing lands on Indian reservations.

At that time a drive of 5,000 cattle was not uncommon.

Germany

that Khrushchev had believed he might gain something by proposing the opening of Soviet markets to Western German businessmen. But Germany is not taking the bait.

He said the question of the Russian note—still not published—had not been discussed by President Kennedy and himself. But he said it was touched on in his conference earlier in the day with Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

Rusk indicated his conference with Kennedy dealt at length with the President's proposals for greatly liberalized American trade and tariff policies. He compared the potential impetus to the free world economy from Kennedy's proposals to the great lift given Europe in 1948 by the Marshall Plan.
