Discuss Housing Change

By LINDA L. LOTRIDGE
Of the State News

The Faculty Committee on Student Affairs meets Wednesday to discuss possible changes in off-campus housing regulations and to decide whether graduate students should become a part of the University Student Government.

The committee, acting in an advisory capacity to the Academic Senate, may suggest that ages 18 to 21 living in supervised and approved off-campus housing be "aged." Dean John Fuzak, a member of the committee, said. The present regulations state that men from sophomore standing to age 21 may live in approved and supervised housing, and women from 21 to 25 years may live in approved and unsupervised housing.

Women from sophomore standing to age 25, may live in approved and supervised off-campus housing while women over 25 may live anywhere. Last spring, the student welfare committee of Student Congress recommended that males over 21 be allowed to live anywhere and that men over 21, with parental approval, may live in approved and unsupervised housing.

Women under 21 would be allowed to live in approved and supervised housing off-campus, the committee recommended. The welfare committee's proposal will be submitted to the Faculty Committee only as a recommendation," Fuzak said.

The Faculty Committee plans to discuss the recent amendment to the All-University Student Government Constitution, Fuzak said.

The amendment giving graduate students membership in AUSG was passed by both the graduate students and undergraduates.

"A group of graduate students protested the legality of the election and stating that they did not see any benefit in joining AUSG," Fuzak said.

He added that the Faculty Committee will consider the amendment carefully because it involves two large groups of students as well as a large sum of money since grad students would have to pay the 25 cent AUSG tax each term if they join.

"The committee chooses to reject the amendment thus limiting it from the AUSG constitution," Fuzak said.

Would Lower Off Campus Age Limit

The committee on education for women has recommended that the age requirement for women living off campus be lowered from 25 to 22.

The committee further recommended that lowering the age requirement for both men and women to 21 be considered in a report to the provost.

The committee also recommended that full-time women students be permitted to live in married student housing even though the husband is not a student.

The present rulings on off-campus and married housing discriminates against women, Paul W. Dressel, director of Institutional Research, said. They should receive equal treatment, he added.

Students' major expense is food and lodging, and they can save in this bill by living off campus, the committee said.

Lowering the age requirement to 21 was recommended by the committee because they felt that since society recognizes a person as an adult at 21 the university should also, Dressel said.

"A married woman's education is often dependent on the family financial resources as is a married man's," the committee said. Low cost housing, if needed, should be just as available to women students as to men, the committee said.

Mitchell To Talk Of Unions

Government intervention versus free collective bargaining will be one of the key issues which James P. Mitchell, former secretary of labor, will discuss Thursday in a public address at 8 p.m. in Kellogg Center Auditorium. The address is part of the MSU Labor and Industrial Relations Center's lecture series.

Mitchell, secretary of labor in the Eisenhower administration, will consider "The Role of Government in Labor Disputes."

He has wrestled with many problems affecting labor, management and the national welfare.

He, with former Vice-President Richard Nixon, was credited with settling the record-long steel strike in 1959 and with persuading the companies not to increase prices. He also set up the controversial Railroad Commission on Work Rules.

Mitchell has served as assistant secretary of the Army in charge of man power. He lost a close race for governor of New Jersey in 1961 and is currently a consultant to business and industry.

Mitchell will also be the speaker at a Thursday luncheon in Kellogg Center at a conference of some 200 representatives from labor and management, and attorneys and arbitrators from Michigan.

Lowering the age requirement to 21 was recommended by the committee because they felt that since society recognizes a person as an adult at 21 the university should also, Dressel said.

Rockefeller in Detroit

DETROIT, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller charged the Kennedy Administration Monday with doing an insufficient job for the nation's economy and also called for a "hard policy" by America in foreign commerce.

The New York governor, paying a 24-hour visit to Detroit, said in a speech to the Economic Club of Detroit it was "most unfortunate" that the administration could not present a tax adjustment program "adequate to the job" of spurring business at home.

"The fact is," Rockefeller said, "that the administration's tax proposals would at best stimulate about $2 to $3 billion additional business investment in 1962 -- less than half the increase required for a full-employment recovery."

Five Reps Needed For AUSG Posts

Five dorms and East Lansing, Lansing, fraternities and sororities still need representatives for All-University Student Government.

Three candidates were disqualified following their election Thursday when Student Congress voted not to allow them to run because of grade averages below the required 2.37.

Archbishop Rummel reserved to himself any appeal from the excommunication order. His statement said "this spiritual penalty may be remitted only by the ordinary (Archbishop).

Local high school students and other non-university students are no longer free to use Union Building facilities.

According to a recent student-proposed and Union Board-passed resolution, "All unauthorized persons... that is to say, high school or undesirable non-students... should be barred from the use of any one, or all of the facilities of the Union."

Such students may, however, take advantage of the facilities if accompanied by University personnel, students, faculty, or guests approved by the University.

The February 6 resolution lists the "inability of University personnel to use Union facilities to the fullest extent because of overcrowding by unauthorized persons" as its motives.

Because of a clamp down by local merchants on high school loitering, the unauthorized student population in the Union, and especially in the grill, has increased to the extent that some protective measure was necessary, said Michael Dmochowski, Union Manager.

Church Ousts 3 Racists

Archbishop Cites Disobedience

NEW ORLEANS, (AP)--The Roman Catholic Archbishop of New Orleans excommunicated three segregation leaders Tuesday, invoking a rare spiritual penalty only he can lift.

The order from Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel expelled long-time Louisiana political boss, Leander H. Perez Sr.; Jackson G. Ricau, a former real estate dealer; and Mrs. B. J. Gallot Jr.

The 71-year-old Perez was District Attorney of Plaquemines and St. Bernard counties, which adjoin New Orleans, for 20 years and has been the strongest voice for segregation in Louisiana.

Ricau is now executive secretary of the pro-segregation citizens council of South Louisiana.

Mrs. Gallot, 41, mother of two children in Catholic schools, heads a small segregation group known as "save our nation."

The fiery Perez termed the action "purported excommunications" and said they "are simply a move to frighten or terrorize the parents of parochial school children which will not work."

The excommunication order said the three had shown "flagrant disregard of his fatherly counsel" contained in personal letters to them March 31.

Mrs. Gallot acknowledged the letter with a public letter of his 'letter and asked for an audience with the 85-year-old Catholic prelate.

Ricau answered the Archbishop's letter with a public letter of his own and contended the Archbishop exceeded his authority by threatening excommunication to those who interfered with the Archbishop's order to desegregate parochial schools next fall.

Perez claims he never received a letter from the archbishop.

Faculty Awards Thursday

Prof's Will Receive $1,000 Each

A special convocation will be held for the presentation of Distinguished Faculty Awards of $1,000 each to six professors Thursday at 8 p.m. in Anthony Hall auditorium.

The awards will be made from the MSU Development Fund, which is supported by gifts from alumni and friends of the University. David N. Hess, assistant director of Honors College, said.

Alumni, faculty and students submitted nominations for the awards, and final selections were made by a faculty committee.

The selection of the six distinguished professors, according to Hess, is based upon each professor's outstanding achievement in teaching or research for the past year.

This is the third straight year that six professors have been awarded a prize of $1,000 each. Last year the six recipients were Robert E. Brown, professor of history, Rolland T. Hinkle, professor of mechanical engineering, I. Forrest Hundleson, professor of microbiology, Mary Lewis, a sociate professor of home economics retired, John F.A. Taylor, professor of philosophy, Malcolm G. Trout, professor of food science.

The annual Centennial Review lecture also will be given by professor Harold Hart of the chemistry department.

The lectureship was established to honor the member of the faculty who, in the opinion of the Review's board of directors and editorial board, best exemplifies the ideals of scholarship and style of the quarterly journal and of the disciplines represented by the editorial board.

Frederick D. Williams, professor of history, will present the award to the editor, Dr. Herbert Weisinger.

Dr. Useem To Give Kiva Talk

The first of the Provost's Lecture series will be given by Dr. John Useem, head of the department of sociology and anthropology at 4 p.m. Wednesday in the Kiva.

Useem was granted the Ph.D. degree from the University of Wisconsin. Before coming here he was governor of Palau, an American trust territory, and

The students cannot have dances at the University because there is no place to dance.

There are occasional social dances, but they are not held often. The twist is becoming quite popular in France, he said, but "I am not familiar with it at all."

Most French universities are located in the large cities. There are no dormitories and most of the students live at home.

The Sorbonne does, however, operate a student housing area on the fringe of the city which is called University City. This development resembles the American dormitory system, Scherer said, and is new to the French educational system.

The Sorbonne, which has over 20,000 students, does not have a student union, although there are special restaurants offering reduced rates to students.

The library at the Sorbonne is much larger than the MSU library.

In France, Scherer explained, there are no such things as class lists or schedules which the students follow.

Each student is free to attend any course he desires as long as he is able to handle the work involved and pass the examinations.

If a student decides to take a particular course, he merely goes to the lecture room where the class meets and sits down. Most students attend their

Laws Introduced in Senate To Curb Price Boosts

FLUTIST, CLARINETIST John Boulton, East Lansing, warms up before his Graduate Recital given last Friday evening in the Music Auditorium.

Washington, (P)—Legislation designed to curb general price increases was introduced in the Senate Monday as Democratic leaders pressed ahead with mopping-up operations after their battle with big steel.

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois spoke out against the "punitive spirit" which he said President Kennedy displayed in crushing out a price-rise movement started last week by U. S. Steel Corp. and other big producers.

Democratic legislative conference to create a special commission to study the steel industry, sending management and labor, plus economists, financiers and the general public, to make a nonpartisan study of the industry's pricing practices, its capital needs, its foreign competition, and "whether it is really competitive or whether there has been collusion on pricing."

$4,000 Grant To Provide 2 Scholarships

Establishment of two scholarships in Michigan State's executive development program in Food Marketing Management has been announced by the Independent Grocers' Alliance Distributing Co. of Chicago.

A $4,000 grant from the company to provide two scholarships during the 1962-63 academic year was accepted by the Board of Trustees Friday.

The funds will provide $1,500 for each of two recipients for a year. The remainder will go to the food marketing curriculum's library fund, research activities and other resources.

The scholarships will be available to deserving young men and women who are sons or daughters of owners, operators, executives and staff members of IGA Food Stores or IGA supply depots or young men and women who have worked part-time or full-time for IGA.

The winners may enter MSU as freshmen, junior, senior, special or graduate students. Application forms may be obtained from the Office of Admissions. Winners will be selected by the company from a list recommended by a faculty committee in Food Marketing Programs, headed by Dr. Edward M. Barnett.

The Hotel, Restaurant, and Institutional Management program is the oldest and most respected in the country.

The equivalent of a master's degree can be obtained in about three year's work in a French university, he added.

Film Produced at MSU Goes to Venice Festival

An imaginative low-budget film produced by Michigan State and covering the academic year 1960-61 has been selected for showing at the Venice Film Festival in June.

The selection was announced by the committee on international non-theatrical events (CINE) following its meeting in Washington.

The 22-minute, black and white film, "16 mm Report" will represent American non-theatrical films at the festival and will be shown in the cultural documentary category.

"16 mm Report" was produced by the Audio-Visual Center under the auspices of the Alumni Association.

Edward P. McCoy, head of the film production department, was the producer, director and script-writer.

"The film is more than just a catalogue of events," McCoy explains. "It takes the events of the academic year and attempts to synthesize them into expressions of the purposes, quality and atmosphere of Michigan State University."

A unique and important aspect, he stresses, is the original jazz sound track which forms the musical background. It was prepared by Maurice Crane, assistant professor of humanities; Owen D. Brainard, assistant professor of art; and Ronald J. English, a Lansing philosophy senior.

CINE, which selected the film, is an organization of American interests coordinated by the National Education Assn. It is composed of representatives from industry, education, medicine, television and religion.

CINE selects films to represent the U.S. in international festivals and was organized in recognition of the fact that motion pictures significantly influence world opinion.

Films chosen to represent the U.S. are selected on a basis of their artistic value. John Foley of the Eastman Kodak Company is chairman of the committee.

"16 mm Report" is one of only three university-made films selected by CINE this year to be entered in the June festival in the non-theatrical events competition.

CRAM COURSE NO. 2: BIOLOGY

The grisly shadow of final exams looms over us, so today in this column instead of merry quips and homely saws, you will find hard facts—quick cram courses to help you through the ordeal ahead.

Last week I gave you a rapid survey of Modern European History. Now let us turn to Biology.

Biology is divided into several phyla, or classes. First is the protozoa, or one-celled animal. All life stems from the one-celled animal. Over a space of millions of years, life slowly evolved until today we have animals with as many as 12 cells. Some larger mammals claim they have 14 to 16 cells, but you know how larger mammals lie.

The second class of animals is the periphora—a shadowy category that borders often on the vegetable. Take, for example the sponge. The sponge is definitely an animal. The vegetable on the other hand, is definitely not.

Next we come to the arthropoda, or insects. Most people of course, find insects fairly repulsive—and yet, if one will but look, there is exquisite beauty in the insect world. Who does not remember the lovely insect poems of William Cullen Bryant—such enchanting lyrics as "The Tenthredinid" and "The Mother Taught Me." Mr. Bryant has been inactive since the invention of DDT.

Our next category is the mollusca—lobsters, shrimp, and the like. Lobsters are generally found under rocky projections on the ocean bottom. Shrimp are generally found in a circle around a small bowl containing cocktail sauce. Mollusca Cigarettes are generally found at any tobacco counter or vending machine.

What have Marlboro Cigarettes got to do with biology? Well, actually, not very much. It must be remembered, however, that the makers of Marlboro pay me for writing this column, and they are inclined to get surly if I fail to mention their product.

Mind you, I enjoy singing the praises of Marlboro—and so will you once you try that flavorful tobacco, that fine filter which lets the flavor come through undiminished. It is a great pleasure to smoke Marlboros and a great pleasure to write about them, but sometimes, I must confess, I find it a bit difficult to work the commercial into the column. Some years ago, for example, I did a piece about Alexander the Great, and believe you me, it took a heap of stretching to drop in a plug for Marlboro. The way I finally managed it was to have Alexander conquer the world and tasted all its pleasures, but somehow I am not content. I know that somewhere there must be a joy I have not yet experienced. To which the Oracle replied:

"Yes, Alexander, there is such a joy, but, alas, the time is not yet. I refer to Marlboro Cigarettes which will not be invented for another 2500 years." Whereupon Alexander fell into a sick from which he never recovered. Well sir, there is no question I sold a lot of cigarettes with this ingenious comment, but the gang down at the American Academy of Arts and Letters gave me a mighty good razzing, you may be sure.

But I digress. Back to biology, and the most advanced phylum of all—the chordata, or vertebrates. There are two kinds of vertebrates—those whose backbones run horizontally and those whose backbones run vertically. Generally, there is no great difficulty in distinguishing the two varieties. A fish, for instance, has a horizontal backbone, and a man has a vertical backbone. Occasionally, however, you run into a problem—like a fish who swims upright and a man who spends most of his time in the sack. How, in such a case, do you tell one from another? Science struggled with this sticky question for centuries, but finally Sigalooos of M.I.T. came up with a brilliantly simple answer. Offer the creature a Marlboro. If it is a fish, it will refuse. If it is Homo sapiens, it will accept. In fact, the more sapient, the quicker the acceptance.

The makers of Marlboro, upright vertebrates all, remind you that their fine cigarettes are available in pack or box wherever cigarettes are sold in any of the 50 states.

Midget 'Big Mac' Shown

An exact replica of the Mackinac Bridge, the world's longest suspension span between cable anchorages, will be on exhibit in Lansing's Michigan theatre lobby from Tuesday through April 25.

The exhibit, sponsored by W.S. Butterfield Theatres, Inc., will be open free to the public between the hours of 10 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. daily.

The bridge model reproduces virtually every detail of Michigan's five-mile-long structure at the Straits of Mackinac, which the American Institute of Architects has called one of the seven man-made wonders of the modern world.

Every part is one-one-thousandth the size of the corresponding part of the actual bridge. The model is 25 feet long, Plexiglass enclosed.

Sleeping Bear Topic of Meet

Michigan's controversial Sleeping Bear dunes will be the topic of discussion at the annual meeting of the lower Michigan chapter of the Society of American Foresters, to be held May 18 and 19.

The meeting will be at Crystal Mountain, Mich.

The Sleeping Bear dunes area is currently the center of a controversy as to whether it should be made into a national recreation area.

Lester E. Bell, extension forester at MSU and chairman of the chapter, said that a field tour of the Sleeping Bear dunes area will be included.

Profs Abroad

Delta Phi Epsilon, the national professional fraternity for overseas government service and international business.

Adams attacked university technical assistance programs to foreign academic institutions as inadequate in four specific categories: quality of American professors, selection of foreign academic counterparts to share their work, selection of native "participants" to complete their training in America, and operations of American universities in providing "logistical support" to their overseas staffs.

"Most of these institutions set up to disseminate American know-how could not succeed even if staffed by angelic creatures with God-like tendencies," Adams said.

"All too often they are not set up to build mature, self-sustaining new institutions, strong enough to remain after the Americans withdraw, but are like a bonfire built on an iceberg--it keeps going only as long as it's fed."

Adams said a major explanation of the poor quality of the academic personnel overseas is the quality of the incentives--money and prestige.

"At home the man may be underpaid and unloved, abroad he's a VIP," Adams said. The less developed the country, the more deference and power the professor will have.

As an example of the professor who lets his perquisites and status go to his head, Adams cited one man who made a colossal scene in the dining room of an Istanbul hotel because a waiter "made too much noise" preparing the professor's crepes suzettes.

The native counterpart professor to work with the American visitor is often not provided at all, Adams said.

"Where he finds no counterpart he should develop one and not by sending him off to the United States."

"Selection of the native student 'participants' on the other hand is very often based on nepotism. These people lack the motivation to study, have language difficulties, and frequently have no commitment to remain in the field they study here once they return home. As many as 90 per cent of the participants in some projects have worked in entirely different fields upon returning to their own countries," Adams said.

Administrators both here and in the field abroad frequently lack any comprehension of the purpose of their own projects. "The motto is 'make up your own job as you go along, play it by ear.'"

When the administration tells a department head to choose a man for assignment abroad, the temptation is often to clean up the local staff by sending the incompetent or the troublemaker.

"The French used to have a label for the second raters: good enough for the Orient. And look what happened to France in the Orient," Adams said.

"A new figure has appeared on the American academic scene--the mercenary," he said. Universities lacking fiscal experts or linguists or other specialists for foreign aid jobs incestuous relationship" even from the Federal government itself.

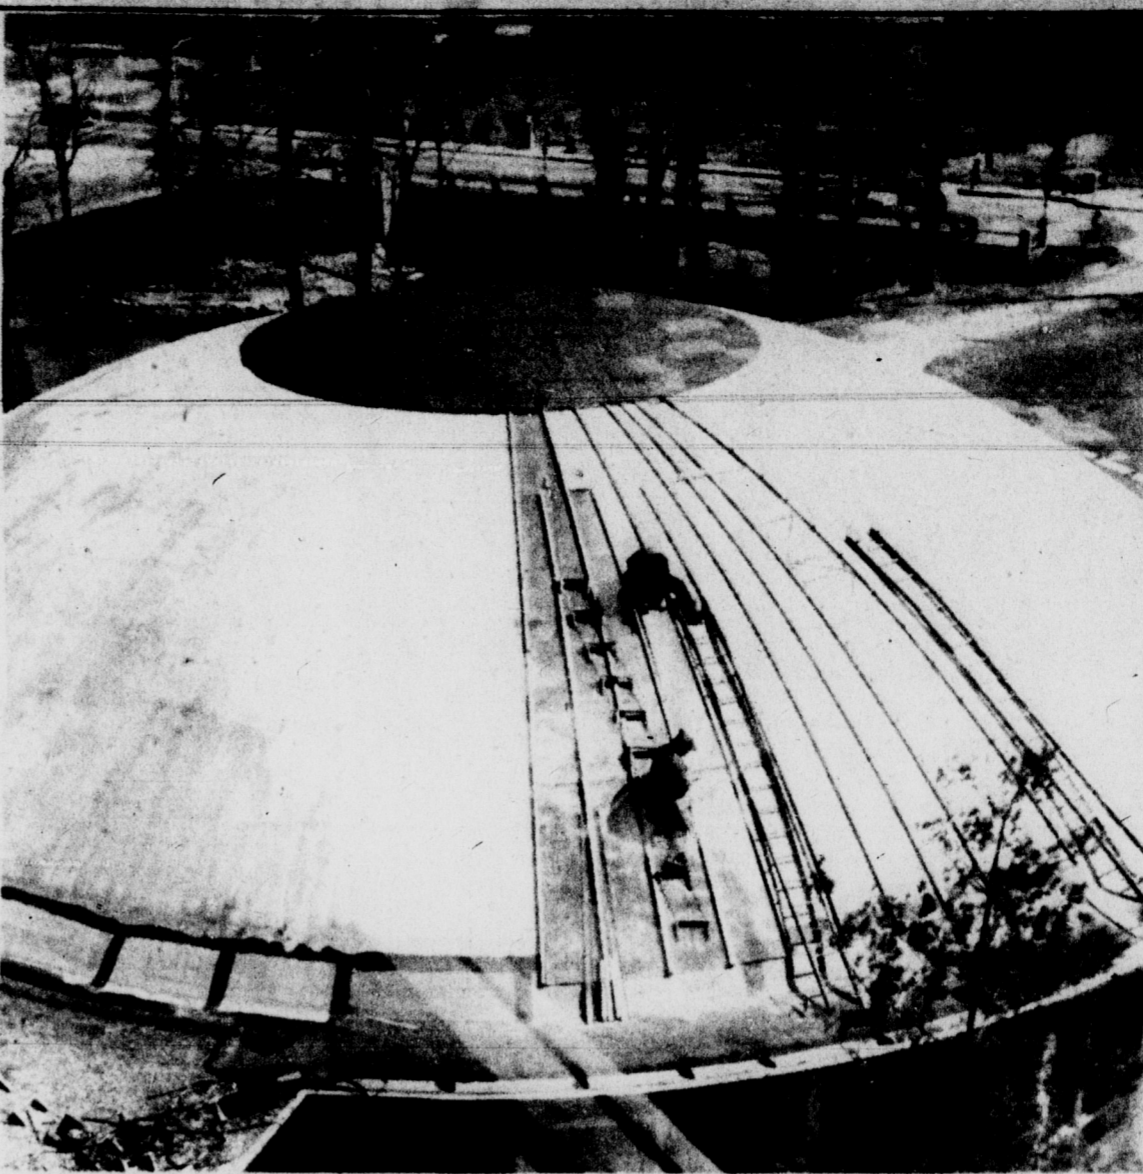

Other types include "the expatriate bum" who gets a particular region into his blood and stays over indefinitely, and "the wandering minstrel" who signs up over and over again with his own school or others for work anywhere.

"Where is the feedback to students, the impact on the home campus, when a professor is out of the country eight years of every ten?" Adams asked.

In accepting overseas projects, Universities are too often motivated by the profit motive or desire for a particular status symbol.

"These projects are also an admirable device for financing junkets abroad in the guise of inspection tours," Adams said.

"We already suffer here from too much academic bureaucratization, and we're exporting the vice. Many of the co-ordinators and administrators and exped-ers are simply engaged in a racket, corrupting the whole environment on both ends of the project," he said.

Adams recommended sending fewer and better men for longer periods of time, eliminating "the patent overadministration and bureaucratization," and recruiting men who "respond to the challenge of the job to be done and not merely the petty perquisites of position."

Professor Paul Varg responded that he was not sure that the professors who lose their values abroad, really have any values in the first place.

"Perhaps we should be thankful for a safety valve to get rid of them for even a little while," he said.

Varg recalled that as an undergraduate he had studied with economists until 1933.

"Then they all went to Washington, they've been going ever since, and perhaps we would be safer if they all went to Nigeria and the other places."

Referring to junketing administrators, Varg said, "Isn't it only fair that the underdeveloped countries should have to share the deans with us?"

Varg agreed with Adams that idealism should be an important criterion for selecting the overseas professors. Recalling the 19th century American evangelists who travelled abroad, he observed that Americans have long had a sense of mission, growing from national self-confidence.

"And after all, it took quite as much faith to believe the world would be changed by spreading the gospel, as it now does to believe it will be saved by spreading fertilizer," he said.

Criticism of the overseas projects that may appear to be destructive, may actually be constructive in offsetting "our frightful arrogance in assuming that we actually have the necessary know-how," he said.

"When we look at our people abroad, we really see ourselves and much more clearly. The real

Miss Rock Awarded Grant

Virginia J. Rock, assistant professor of American Thought and Language, has been awarded a Smith-Mundt grant to lecture on American literature at Jagiellonian University in Krakow, Poland during the 1962-63 academic year.

Only about 70 lectureships are awarded each year under the Smith-Mundt act. Final selection of candidates for the awards is made by the Department of State.

Miss Rock is currently working on a book about southern novelist and critic Andrew Lytle and has recently completed an appendix of biographical essays for the new Harper's Torchbook edition of "I'll Take My Stand", which is scheduled to appear in July.

Under the grant, Miss Rock is allowed to take an allotment of books and supplies to Poland to aid in her teaching. She plans to take several paperback books, she said, Polish students are interested in modern American authors, particularly Hemingway, Steinbeck and Faulkner.

Candidates will go through orientation period in Washington, D.C., before traveling overseas. Prior to taking her post with Michigan State in 1960, Rock taught at Montclair College in New Jersey, the University of Minnesota, the University of Louisville, Lake College, and the University of Michigan.

question we might be asking is what's wrong with us at home?" Professor Hunter pointed out that the overseas projects are still "an experimental business."

"On one extreme, there are the programs that universities are uniquely suited to handle. In the case of the University of Nigeria, I'd much rather see it set up by a university than by the Department of State."

"On the other extreme, sending university personnel abroad to advise foreign government in competition with our own diplomats is a disaster to be avoided at all costs," he said. "For example, one reason for the boondoggle in Vietnam was that the U.S. government clearly didn't want anyone talking economics to the Vietnamese but their own people."

"We are involved as a country in this business of technical assistance. We need trained, dedicated, experienced people who can make this kind of work a career, perhaps a technical assistance foreign service."

"This can be developed, and would be the solution to many problems, but for now the universities must fill the gap," he said, "and a major drawback is the short-term contract basis of many of the programs."

Brother-Sister Club Offers Orientation

Students interested in participating in the American Brother-Sister program next fall will meet Wednesday at 7 p.m. in 32 Union for an orientation meeting describing the program and its methods.

Application forms may be picked up and returned to the UN Lounge or the ICC Office, 318 Student Services. Those who have participated before must reapply each year.

The Brother-Sister program was formed by the International Cooperation Committee of AUSG to establish closer contact between American and foreign students. The program is designed to assist foreign students in learning about the University and America.

Students interested will attend two orientation meetings this term and will be assigned a foreign student who is entering the university fall term. Each student will meet his foreign brother or sister at a coffee hour sponsored by ICC on the first Friday of each term.

He is expected to help the foreign student adjust to the campus during the first few months and may attend social hours and field trips to business and industrial firms in the area with the student.

Students working on the reception committee may meet the foreign students as they arrive in Lansing. They may also work at a desk in registration or in Owen Hall to help the foreign students find their housing and to explain the activities of registration week.

There are also committees handling such areas as assignments, publicity, and social functions.

Board OK's Retirements

The retirement of 10 staff members of Michigan State University was approved by the Board of Trustees.

The names, departments and dates of initial employment of staff members to retire July 1, 1962 are:

Earl W. Henderson, assistant professor of poultry science, Sept. 15, 1939; Cecil R. Upham, associate professor of accounting and financial administration, Oct. 1, 1929; Forrest C. Strong, associate professor of botany and plant pathology, July 1, 1930; Miriam C. Strong, assistant professor (research) of botany and plant pathology, July 1, 1922; Floyd W. Reeves, distinguished professor of education, Sept. 1, 1953; Richard James special equipment operator, grounds maintenance, May 1, 1936.

In addition, the retirement of John Hekhuis, building supervisor in the auditorium, which was to become effective July 1, 1962, was deferred to Jan. 1, 1963. This is in accordance with the new retirement policy permitting employees to work beyond the age of 65.

Also under present retirement procedures, Earl Weaver, professor of dairy, and Burr K. Osborn, associate professor of electrical engineering, are entitled to one year of consultancy with agreed-upon duties and responsibilities for the year July 1, 1962 to June 30, 1963. This defers the previously approved retirement of Osborn until July 1, 1963.

Tahiti Travelogue

A travelogue on Tahiti will be presented by Bob Debolt, East Lansing Graduate student, to off campus students at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in 32 Union.

Debolt lived on Tahiti for six years and will relate many of his experiences.

US-27 Nears Completion

LANSING--The final layer of asphalt pavement will be put on early this summer on several short sections of US-27 Freeway now open to traffic in northern Michigan, the State Highway Department reports.

Deputy State Highway Commissioner Howard E. Hill said the work will be completed before the tourist season opens.

Hill said contractors were unable to put the top course on several sections of the freeway between Clare and Waters last fall before cold weather halted paving operations.

These sections, totaling about 30 miles, have the binder and leveling courses of asphalt and will be completed when a one-and-one-half-inch asphalt wearing course is put on the highway.

Hill said opening of the freeway the entire distance between Clare and Waters last fall has greatly reduced the number of accidents that would have occurred on old US-27, a winding two-lane highway.

"The added safety of the new highway justified putting it into use before the final course of asphalt was laid," Hill said.

Members of the Men's Hall Association and the Women's Inter-Residence Council attended the conference, held at Indiana University. Disinterest could be changed, conference members said, by providing literature from abroad to dorm members; by providing pamphlets and articles for American students concerning opportunities abroad; and by periodically offering films, displays, entertainment, and talks aimed at arousing interest in international activities. Delegates also discussed methods of making the residence halls more desirable to foreign students. At present, most foreign students, due to financial difficulties and dietary conflicts, live off campus. A financial program aimed at those students unable to afford to live in dormitories, and special meals for those who have dietary conflicts because of their religious affiliations, could relieve this problem, delegates said. An international Center, where students from all countries could meet in a pleasant social atmosphere, delegate said, should be a must for all campuses.

IFC Rush To Be Held Tuesday 7 to 8:30

Interfraternity Council committee rush will be held Tuesday from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in room 307 of the Student Services Building.

Peppy People Needed To Cheer

Cheerleaders are needed to cheer next years athletes on to victory. A total of twelve positions are up for grabs, six for men and six for women.

Cheerleading tryouts will begin Wednesday at 7 p.m. in 127 Women's I.M. Bldg. for positions on the 1962-63 cheerleading squad.

Miss Pauline Hess, the sponsor and coach, will judge primarily on pep, enthusiasm, personal appearance and skill. Although gymnastic ability will be considered, it is not a requirement.

The 1961-62 squad will assist during tryouts by teaching groups and by giving individual attention in gymnastics and tumbling. The tryouts will continue consecutively for several weeks and will acquaint the prospective cheerleaders with the methods, styles and patterns used by Michigan State.

"I hope to see many students, both fellows and girls, at tryouts this year. Being a member of the MSU squad has been a wonderful opportunity for me but I feel that the tryouts themselves are a valuable experience. Besides, cheering is a lot of fun," said Karen Abel, captain of the 1961-62 squad.

Two of last years squad had this to say about the tryouts and cheerleading.

"Boys are especially encouraged to tryout, even if they haven't had any previous experience," said Jerry Gross, Lansing sophomore.

"I truly like gymnastics and pyramid building, when I'm on top," said Sue Zachariason, Muskegon Junior.

The first session of tryouts will include a brief introduction by Miss Hess, a period of warm up exercises, and a demonstration of cheers and gymnastics by the present squad. This will be followed by participation of the whole group.

In addition to the regular practice the cheerleaders attend Aerobatics Club to further develop their individual skills.

The new cheerleaders will support the MSU teams during the 1962-63 season by cheering at all home games, traveling to away games, boosting school spirit and working in cooperation with Spartan Spirit on pep rallies, Homecoming and Old Timers Game.

All regularly enrolled students who have been at Michigan State for at least three terms and who have a two point all college average are eligible.

Rummel) or by his delegate."

The Apostolic delegate to the United States indicated earlier he would not pass such appeals on to the Vatican or the Pope.

The March 31 letter warned that "any further attempt by you through word or deed to hinder our orders or provoke our devoted people to disobedience or rebellion against the church will subject you to excommunication."

This censure will be automatic by virtue of the present monition.

The March 31 letter warned that "any further attempt by you through word or deed to hinder our orders or provoke our devoted people to disobedience or rebellion against the church will subject you to excommunication."

MSGR. Charles J. Plauche, Chancellor of the Archdiocese, read the excommunication order at a news conference minutes before noon.

It said despite the "paternal admonition" of the Archbishop, cautioning them against interference with the order to desegregate Parochial schools, the three "by flagrant disregard of his fatherly counsel have incurred the spiritual penalty of excommunication..."

Informed of the Archbishop's excommunication order by the associated press, Mrs. Gaillot said:

"His excellency has no right to make that official without notifying me first. His accusations are false. And the Vatican will have to intervene."

Mrs. Gaillot said she denied her plea to take two witnesses of her own selection into the audience. She said in a telegram to Archbishop Rummel over the weekend she would cancel the audience if denied witnesses.

The Archbishop's chancery issued a statement Sunday night noting the telegram and said as far as the Archbishop was concerned the matter of an audience was closed.

Ricaud said he had no official notification of the excommunication order and said, "I will continue to fight for segregation in Louisiana."

U.S. 16 Slated To Go

One of Michigan's best-known highway route numbers--US16--will be removed from the Detroit-to-Muskegon highway by the end of the year, the State highway department announced.

State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie said the route markers will be taken down late this fall when the final section of the new Detroit-Muskegon freeway is opened.

At that time, US-16 will disappear.

The Detroit-Muskegon freeway is known as Interstate 96 between Detroit and Grand Rapids and Interstate 196 from Grand Rapids to Muskegon.

The final gap of the 180-mile freeway--between Brighton and Lansing--is scheduled to be opened by late November.

Highways between Detroit and Lake Michigan via Lansing and Grand Rapids have had the number "16" ever since the State Highway Department began numbering routes in 1920.
