They Hold The Line On Football Tickets

WILLIAM BEARDSLEY
... Ticket Manager ...

By JOE CUROSH
Of The State News Staff

Although everyone can't sit on the fifty-yard line, Bill Beardsley, MSU's Ticket Manager for Intercollegiate Athletics, and Dunc Lectka, Assistant Ticket Manager, do their best to satisfy everyone with the best seats available.

From their office in Jenison Field House, these men handle in excess of one and one-half million dollars worth of tickets.

The major part of this revenue comes from football and basketball, which is a very distant second. These two sports ironically support the entire intercollegiate and intramural program at State.

Since they have every season ticket holder's seat charted, the next year they either try to give him either a better seat or his same seat back. Some season ticket holders go back as far as having seats for thirty consecutive years.

A vast number of the fans are season ticket holders. Consequently athletics, both intercollegiate and intramural, owe their life blood to the season ticket holders.

As ticket manager Beardsley has other duties also. He travels with the team on road trips. Frequently he acts as a public relations man and speaks and shows films at banquets or other gatherings.

Beardsley sees to it that the ushers, ticket sellers, police, and others, are on the job at home games.

Both Beardsley and Lectka have long athletic backgrounds.

Beardsley played fullback and lettered at MSU in his sophomore year in 1942. He sparkled on defense in the big upset of Great Lakes.

Great Lakes was football power during the war years, due to the fact that a number of ex-collegiate and pro stars, who had joined the service, played for them.

Great Lakes anticipated an easy victory over the Spartans, but to their surprise and thanks to Beardsley's fine defensive play, they were upset 14-0. Bill was described as a hard hitter, fast, a fine open-field runner, and a good tackler.

This was the only year Beardsley played for MSU because the next year he joined the service where he served in the Pacific. Bill received his degree from MSU in 1948.

Beardsley, a native of Beaverton, Michigan, previously was the branch manager for the Sealtest Ice Cream Firm in Kalamazoo. Beardsley is married and has four children. His wife, Jean, is also a graduate of State.

Lectka scouted for the Detroit Tigers for four summers

MSU Awaits Robert Shaw

By SUSAN JACOBY
Of The State News Staff

Famed choral and orchestra conductor Robert Shaw arrives in East Lansing Monday morning to participate in MSU's third annual Fine Arts Festival.

The 43-year-old Shaw will conduct the A.F. of M. Congress of Strings next week in conjunction with the festival.

String Concert Set Tonight

John Barnett, director of the National Orchestral Association, New York City, will conduct the Congress of Strings in its second public concert tonight at 8:15 in Fairchild Theatre.

Sponsored by the American Federation of Musicians, the 100-member Congress extends from July 17 through August 11. Barnett has been conducting the group since July 2.

Tonight's program will open with "Suite from the Fairy Queen" by Purcell Reed. Following will be Paul Creston's "Gregorian Chant for String Orchestra," Mozart's "Symphony in D Major," William Mayer's "Adante for Strings" and Henry Cowell's "Hymn and Fuguing Tune No. 5."

"Scherzo for Strings," by Harry Somers, will open the 2nd half of the program, followed by "Cavatina," from Vaughn Williams' "Symphony No. 8 in D Minor."

"Serenade for String Orchestra, Op. 11," by Dag Wren, will conclude the concert.

Shaw's musical career began in 1938, when he attracted the attention of choral conductor Fred Waring. The 18-year-old college student began conducting Waring's Glee Clubs that year, a position he would hold through 1945.

The young conductor burst into musical prominence in 1941, when he presented his Collegiate Chorale in New York City's Town Hall. The Chorale won critical acclaim from music experts throughout America.

Shaw was named Outstanding American Conductor of the Year in 1943 by the National Association of Composers and Conductors. Desiring proficiency in orchestral as well as choral conducting, he devoted the entire following year to musical study under a Guggenheim Fellowship.

The famed Shaw Chorale and Orchestra was organized in 1948. The Chorale has made over 100 recordings for RCA Victor and has performed in 20 Near Eastern and European countries. The group toured Soviet Russia in 1962 as part of the US-USSR Cultural Exchange Program.

The Lecture-Concert Series sponsored a performance of the Shaw Chorale at MSU in 1960. Shaw was awarded an honorary degree here at Commencement, June, 1960.

A chorus and orchestra concert under Shaw's direction in cooperation with the Congress of Strings will climax the Fine Arts Festival. The program will begin next Thursday at 8:15 p.m. in the University Auditorium.

Singers, Dancers, Perform

By SUSAN JACOBY
Of The State News Staff

The third annual Fine Arts Festival which opens Monday in the MSU Auditorium will attract outstanding cultural personalities from every part of the United States.

The nationally acclaimed program was originated by Clair Taylor, former MSU Summer Session director, and Wilson Paul head of the Lecture-Concert Series.

According to Paul, the festival was designed with a three-fold purpose in mind. "We wanted to coordinate all the creative arts on campus," he explained. "More important, we wanted to make a cultural impact in summer comparable to that of our Lecture-Concert Series in winter." Noted ballet and concert impresario Sol Hurek has called MSU's Lecture-Concert Series "the best of its kind in the world."

"The festival's third purpose," said Paul, "is to bring famous performing artists to the MSU campus. These performers not only afford MSU students and the people of Michigan an unparalleled opportunity to see the best in the arts, but they come to observe our activities in the cultural area. It's a two-way program."

Artists who will participate in the festival include choral and orchestra director Robert Shaw, pianist Bruce Simonds, artist Angelo Ippolito, modern dancer Katherine Litz, and Japanese art expert Ansei Uchima.

WJIM radio Lansing recently devoted an entire program to the cultural opportunities offered by these artists at MSU's summer festival.

Opening ceremonies Monday at 4 p.m. in the Auditorium will be presided over by President John A. Hannah.

The A.F. of M. Congress of Strings will present an original composition, "Trigon," by James Niblock of the MSU Music Department. Michel Piastro, former concert master of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra and radio conductor of Longines Symphonette, will conduct the Congress.

An address by President Mason W. Gross of Rutgers university will highlight the opening ceremonies. "Gross was selected for this address because of his

LIRC Heads Defend Role

The following is a letter to the State Journal in reply to a letter which appeared in that newspaper which was reproduced in the State News last week.

Editor, The State Journal:

We request an opportunity to reply to your lengthy editorial of July 1 concerning the MSU Labor and Industrial Relations Center. Although we are, respectively, the former director and the present director of the center, we write as individuals and not as spokesmen for MSU.

Your editorial represents a conscientious effort to reach reasonable conclusions on a confused and sensitive question. It is exceedingly unfortunate, therefore, that some of the main points of the editorial are based on misinformation and misunderstanding concerning the center, its organization and its operation. Regrettably, much of the misinformation has previously appeared in your new columns.

The editorial is in error when it states that the center was set up "outside the academic structure of the university." The editorial compounds the error when it states that the University of Michigan - Wayne State program is "the opposite extreme" because "it is a part of the academic structure." The fact is that the organization of the Michigan - Wayne Institute and its relationship to the academic structure of those universities are identical in all important respects with those of the MSU center.

The MSU center is controlled by a policy board composed of the provost (the chief academic officer of the university), three academic deans, and the director. The Michigan - Wayne Institute is controlled by an executive committee composed of a vice president, academic deans, and a few faculty members. This practical identity of organizational patterns is no accident. Both units followed the general pattern of other major universities with similar centers or institutes because faculty committees at all three Michigan universities concluded that this was the most effective way of achieving the academic integration which your editorial advocates.

We should add that there is no significant difference between the policies and procedures of the Wayne - Michigan Institute and the center. The main distinction between the two units is the greater emphasis on scholarly research by the MSU center which is conducted by faculty on joint appointment with academic departments. Publications by center staff members include some nine books and more than fifty articles on almost every aspect of industrial relations.

Your criticism of "imbalance" between labor and management programs has a degree of merit. It is markedly unfair, however, to ignore the fact that the present controversy arose directly out of the center's efforts to remedy what it recognized as the inadequate quantity and quality of its management programs. That was the reason for the reassignment of Charles A. Rogers, the man in charge of those management programs. Rogers, who was recruited from industrial management, was a foe of "academic integration." He was unwilling to use faculty members in his programs. Furthermore, he did not devote sufficient time and effort to the development even of the "how-to-do-it" kinds of programs, taught by outsiders, which he advocated. When months of effort to persuade him to change his approach and step up his activities failed, he was removed, and this prompted Senator Francis' charges. Each of us, as director, devoted far more time and energy to efforts to develop management programs than to labor programs. During the past year the management program, under the direction of a competent and vigorous new associate director, has shown great improvement.

Your reference to a "motion picture produced for the AFL-CIO" is also in error. The project did not originate with the Michigan AFL-CIO but with the center's labor program service. The film portrays the functions of a typical state federation and is intended to serve as an educational aid for general use. It is offered for sale or rental by MSU to universities, to the fifty state labor federations and to other organizations. The Michigan AFL-CIO underwrote about 50 percent of the original cost; the remainder of the money came from income derived by the center from programs for foreign labor teams brought to this country by the U. S. state department. No state-appropriated funds were used and a large part of the cost has already been recovered by sales of the film.

This film was in circulation for many months before it came to the attention of Sen. Francis. In that time, hundreds of teachers, university representatives, businessmen and others saw the film. Not a single person detected in it the "class warfare" which Sen. Francis claims is so blatant. Now, of course, nobody in Michigan views the film with an open mind. In fact, most of those criticizing it have not even seen it.

Sen. Francis' charges against the center were thoroughly discredited last fall in an open hearing with sworn testimony. One newspaper observer of that hearing wrote that "a businessman would need the imagination of a four-year-old child before he could find any danger in the evidence turned up by the senate committee." It is indeed a sad commentary on the legislative process as it operates in Michigan that Sen. Francis could persuade a majority of both houses to vote for an admittedly unconstitutional provision based on discredited charges. If your editorial had proceeded from fact rather than misinformation, perhaps your conclusions would have been different. We do not presume to advise the MSU board of trustees as to what conclusions they should reach concerning the exercise of their constitutional authority and obligations. We hope and believe, however, that their conclusions will be based on more accurate and more complete information than that which prompted your editorial.

outstanding leadership in developing fine arts at Rutgers," said series director Paul.

Monday's opening ceremonies will be the only formal convocation of the festival for summer school students.

A piano concert by Bruce Simonds of the Yale School of Music at 8:15 p.m. in Fairchild Theatre will conclude Monday's activities. Simonds directs the MSU Summer Piano Workshop.

The program will include Arne's "Sonata in A Major," Chopin's "Sonata in B Minor," "Three Mazurkas," by Szymanowski, and Ravel's "Gaspard de la Nuit."

Angelo Ippolito of the University of California, Berkeley, will lead a discussion on contemporary art at 10 a.m. Tuesday in Kresge Art Center.

A lecture-dance recital, "Peopling a Broad Canvas," will be presented by modern dancer Katherine Litz at 4:00 p.m. in Fairchild Theatre.

Miss Litz, who has appeared in Broadway shows such as "Oklahoma" and "Carousel," is one of America's most important contemporary dancers. John Martin of the New York Times says that "she has made it manifest that we have a new 'school' to contend with, and probably the most challenging and vital one in a generation."

Tuesday's program will continue with a MSU summer band concert conducted by Leonard Falcone, Professor of Music. The concert will be held on the Following the concert, the Art Center will feature landscape architecture and art exhibits at an open house.

Robert Hall of Alameda State college will present a discussion on "Art in Non-Theatrical Cinema" at 10 a.m. Wednesday in Fairchild Theatre. Hall is a former director of the University of Southern California Cinema Department.

A lecture-demonstration on Japanese printmaking by Ansei Uchima of Sarah Lawrence college will be held at 4 p.m. in the Kiva of the Education Building.

Nina Dova, soprano-guitarist, will highlight Wednesday's activities with a concert of folk songs at 8:15 p.m. in the Kiva.

Lauded here and abroad, Miss Dova has starred on radio and television and has appeared in New York City's Town Hall.

Thursday's activities will begin at 10 a.m. in the Kresge Art Center with art films.

The Congress of Strings faculty will present a concert of chamber music at 4 p.m. in the Music Auditorium. The Congress faculty is largely affiliated with symphony orchestras and seldom appears in concerts of this type.

The climax of the Fine Arts Festival will be a choral and orchestra concert under the direction of Robert Shaw at 8:15 p.m. in the Auditorium. The concert will be presented in cooperation with the Congress of Strings.

The English film "Song Without End," which tells the romantic life story of composer Franz Liszt, will be shown "The Grand Concert," a film dealing with Russian culture, will be run July 13 and 14. It will be shown in conjunction with the prize-winning Japanese film, "Children Who Draw."

Both movie programs will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Fairchild Theatre.

The MSU Summer Circle will present "The Queen and the Rebels," by Uge Betti, July 18-21 in Demonstration Hall.

The Fine Arts Festival is sponsored by the Lecture-Concert Series in cooperation with the departments of art, landscape architecture, music, speech, television-radio, the audiovisual center, and the dance section of the department of health, physical education, and recreation.

All events are open to the public. Admission is charged for Miss Dova's concert, the Shaw concert, foreign films and Summer Circle performances. Tickets may be purchased at the Union Ticket Office.

"The success of the Fine Arts Festival has exceeded our expectations each year," said Paul.

Three Athletes All-A During Spring Term

Two fencers and a basketball player, each with an all-A record, head the list of Michigan State varsity athletes who compiled outstanding performances in the classroom during spring quarter.

John Pelletier, Southfield junior and Lou Salamone, Beloit, Wis., sophomore, are the fencers with straight A's. Dave Cox, Winemuccas, Nev., junior is the cage performer with the perfect record.

The trio is among a dozen members of varsity teams who made the dean's list for academic achievement. Twenty-four other varsity men attained averages of B or better.

Pelletier majors in advertising, Salamone's major field is marketing and transportation administration, and Cox majors in mathematics and physical sciences.

Grouped at 3.7 are trackman William Mann, Traverse City, junior, urban planning and landscape architecture, and Michael Jolley, Mt. Clemens, sophomore, university college. At 3.6 were swimmer Doug Rowe, Fremont, Calif., senior, industrial arts, and trackman Warren Ochs, Dearborn, sophomore, in university college.

Rounding out the dean's list at 3.5 are baseballers Joe Porrevecchio, Chicago sophomore, television and radio, and Dick Jones, Baginew senior, marketing and transportation administration; basketball player Art Schwarm, Evanston, Ill. senior, social sciences; fencer Alex Blumenthal, Huntington, N.

Y. junior, social sciences, and footballer Herb Paterra, Glassport, Pa. sophomore, university college.

Safety Officials Seek Fire Cause

Campus safety officials are attempting to determine the cause of a fire last Saturday which must have sent up a "real smoke screen."

An estimated $5,600 worth of window screens for Wilson Hall were damaged in the blaze. Large double screens in wood and cardboard cartons caught fire near the new dormitory.

Officials said the 30 cartons of screens were covered with tarpaulins.

Shaw

Series director, said that the concert will be "one of the most outstanding events of the Fine Arts Festival."

The program will include Bach's "Magnificat," Schubert's "Mass in G Minor," and Stravinsky's "Symphony of the Psalms." Over 300 musicians will participate.

Concert soloists will be Martha Bender, soprano; Rachel Hoskins, second soprano; Ethel Arnsperg, contralto; Loren Jones, tenor; Benny Middleaugh, baritone.

Like all Fine Arts Festival events, the Shaw concert is open to the public. Tickets at substantial savings are available at the Union Ticket Office.

People Lose To Robot

It isn't too difficult to imagine one computer machine saying to another, "People are all right, but they're awfully slow, and they make too many mistakes."

They might be forgiven the condescension. The fallible human struggles along with his eraser and apologies, measuring his progress by minutes and hours and days.

The lordly machines whip through their work in micro-seconds, with a margin of error somewhat less than one-thousandth of one per cent.

Backed by these sparkling credentials of speed and accuracy, machines are shouldering their way into important positions in American business.

"Machine-to-machine conversation may be the predominant business communication in the future," said A. Louis Charny, retired former head of facilities for Bell of Pennsylvania. "In a few years, there may be more business conversations between machines than between people."

"Of course, we wouldn't want people talking directly to the 'dataphones,'" he said. "People make mistakes."

Charny, who also headed the Bell Engineering School, Philadelphia, Pa., is serving on the staff of a Telephone Engineering Conference at MSU now to July 20.

Illustrating the way in which machines are already serving, Charny gave an example of an executive needing an airline ticket to another city.

The dataphone is given the information and connected to the airline's machine. The airline dataphone takes the request, scans the schedules, finds an open seat, makes a reservation and sends the information back. The printed ticket is delivered to the executive in seconds.

The same sort of procedure can be used for locating parts for manufacturing, Charny said, with machines "talking" back and forth, placing an order, taking the order, transmitting it to the stockroom and making up the order automatically, ready for shipping.

Skirting close to science fiction, Charny said that machines can actually be made to talk, if needed, reporting their information in English.

"One such machine has been completed," he said. "But the voice was not pleasant. It had an unearthly quality, like a voice from the grave."

"They can do repetitious 'idiot work' brilliantly and at great speed," he said, "but they are also very stupid. They can do only what man programs them to do and tells them to do. They have no spontaneous thoughts."

But he set no limit for what they might be made to do in the future.

"The mathematics for these machines were developed 100 years ago," he stated. Engineers are still 100 years behind the mathematicians. If the engineers ever catch up, there truly may be some miracles."

IM Pool Rules

By SUSAN JACOBY
Of The State News Staff

"We have certain standing rules which never change. All the students know what they are," sighs Don Smith, head lifeguard at the Men's Intramural pool.

Rule No. 1: No smoking will be allowed within the pool confines. A female sun-worshiper puffs vigorously behind a huge straw beach hat. As smoky straw begins to hiss ominously, the offending cigarette is surreptitiously crushed on the grass.

Rule No. 2: Absolutely no food will be eaten within the walls. A melted chocolate bar suddenly appears in the grubby hands of an MSU male. When reminded of the rule, he replies, "You call this food? What happened to M and M's?"

Rule No. 3: Showers must be taken before using the pool. The intricate process of spreading droplets around one's bathing suit requires intense concentration. It cannot be observed by lifeguards.

Rule No. 4: The lifeguard is in complete authority at all times. Throngs of female sun-goddesses display respect for the rule by surrounding the male lifeguards three deep. One rugged individualist merely worships from afar, shyly lowering her eyelids as she catches the Olympian figure's eye.

A brazen beauty, patting hair which has never touched chlorine, beckons to her favorite guard. "Don't you ever go swimming?" he asks. "Heavens! It would take the rats out of my hair."

Rule No. 1 for lifeguards: Never forget that your duties are serious ones. One girl lifeguard is pressed into holding a boy's false teeth while he dives.

"This is just a typical day at the IM," says Smith. "But everyone knows the rules," or do they?

Grad Wins Fellowship

Ernest I. Hanson, DeKalb, Ill., graduate student, has won the H. B. Earhart Fellowship Award.

Hanson will use the award of $2,800 given by the Reim Foundation, Ann Arbor, to finance the completion of his doctoral dissertation in accounting at Michigan State.

James D. Edwards, chairman of the MSU department of accounting, and Professor Emeritus William A. Paton of the University of Michigan recommended Hanson for the award.

Hanson has previously won the Graduate School of Business Administration Scholarship Award and a National Defense Fellowship.

E. Shaw Head Leaves State

Keith McDonald, head advisor at East Shaw Hall, has been appointed Assistant Dean of Men at Northern Illinois university, DeKalb, Ill. He will also serve as an assistant professor of education.

The young advisor received his B.A. in 1951 at Ripon college, Ripon, Wis. and his M.A. in 1958 at Marquette university, Milwaukee, Wis. He earned his Ph.D. at MSU in 1962.

McDonald worked as a social studies instructor and guidance counselor from 1953-60 in Millsboro, Wisconsin, Dells, and Menomonie school districts, Wisconsin. He has been head advisor at East Shaw since 1960.

Shaw's Dentist Is Romantic

By UTE AULD

Of The Spot News Staff

In his light comedy, "You Never Can Tell," the third production of the University Theatre Summer Circle, George Bernard Shaw has done what no other playwright has attempted before or since: he has chosen a five shilling dentist to be the romantic hero.

The result is a play that turns out to be pure, brilliant mischief armed with the wittiest dialogue and some of the most endearing characters ever. The director and cast of "You Never Can Tell" have uniquely captured the flippant gaiety of the play and provided an evening of delightful theatre for the Wednesday opening.

Written in 1895-96, "You Never Can Tell" was first professionally produced in America at the Garrick Theatre in New York in 1905. Considered by many critics to be one of Shaw's best "well-made plays," it certainly does prove the playwright's talent as a master craftsman of form and dialogue.

The plot line of the play concerns the problems that arise when a head-strong wife and an equally stubborn husband meet after 18 years of legal separation and he suddenly demands the custody of his two younger children claiming that they were not brought up right. Superimposed upon this already complicated situation is the romance between the young dentist, Valentine, and the Clandon family's older daughter, Gloria, who is the "incarnation of haughty highmindedness."

Mrs. Clandon, the famous authoress of the family, who, despite her supposedly progressive ideas, is "distinctly old fashioned for her age in dress and manners," is ably played by Helen Shaw of WMSB.

Blessed with a natural knack for timing and deep, resounding voice, Caroll Hawkins, associate professor of political science, does complete justice to the role of Mr. Crampton, the atrociously ill-tempered husband.

Mary Ellen Fincuan as Dolly, the daintily pretty daughter of the family, who has a flair for using her quick tongue too often and too truthfully, is simply charming.

Dick Reynolds of WMSB as Dolly's twin brother, Phil, a young man "with whom suavity and self-possession are points of honor," somehow does not convey the sophisticated flamboyancy of his lines. Whereas Miss Fincuan plays the sister with the natural humor of a fine actress, Reynolds seems to take his part too seriously.

Vainly struggling against the Life Force, as did the lovers in "Man and Superman," are Linda Herr as Gloria, who "unlike her mother is all passion," and Don Caillez as Valentine, the young dentist in search of "amusing adventures." Both Miss Herr and Caillez are superb performers who know how to get the most out of a line and their spirited love scene in Act II may well be the highlight of the play.

Charles Cioffi as the imposing and disquieting lawyer Bohun, one of Shaw's richest comic characters with his powerful, menacing voice and impressively articulated speech, completely dominates the action as soon as he appears on the scene and leaves the audience in stitches.

Dick Murray as the cheerful waiter and Gordon Lawrence as Finch McComas, the family friend who while trying to help only manages to muddle things up, in every way, complete the cast.

What Then Are We To Do?

This question is asked every Sunday in the worship service of Central Methodist Church, Lansing. In fact, "What Then Are We to do?" Sheets are prepared for every sermon. The minister offers five or six suggestions for study and application during the week. Approximately half the congregation takes a sheet home.

If you wish to worship where persons desire to "Apply Christianity," we invite you to worship with us next Sunday.

Typist To Exhibit Here

How is it possible for a person to type 140 words per minute?

Franklin H. Dye will demonstrate that he can Monday in the Kiva at 1:30 p.m. He is a speed typing expert and business educator.

He will show the correct techniques for operation manual and electric typewriters. These will include correct reading habits, posture, paper handling, rhythm, key stroking, space bar and shift key operation and electric typing controls.

Dye, a native of Hawaii, began working as an insurance clerk-typist when 14.

He has a Masters of Education
