

Stan Kenton Workshop Begins Fourth 'Session'

Nearly 250 jazz enthusiasts from the United States and Canada are participating in the Stan Kenton Jazz Workshop at Shaw Hall this week.

Kenton and his band arrived in East Lansing Sunday, sponsored by National Band Camps, the Kenton workshop has visited MSU each summer since 1959.

According to Eugene Hall of the MSU Music Department, the workshop is being held at Shaw Hall so that it will not conflict with other music programs. The High School Youth Music Program and A. F. of M. Congress of Strings are also being held at MSU this summer.

"We are fortunate in that we have facilities to carry on several music programs at once," said Hall.

Anyone over 14 is eligible to participate in the workshop. "A large percentage of the students are ages 16-20," said Hall. "However, there is a complement of adults ages 25-

50. Last year we had two ladies in their sixties who were interested in jazz. They were two of our most enthusiastic students."

Students who arrived Sunday were auditioned for proficiency in their instruments. They were also given short tests in music harmony and theory.

Classes in jazz arranging and improvisation began 8 a.m. Monday. Bands of various proficiency levels were organized at 10 a.m. Students were placed in bands on the basis of their audition performances Sunday.

Classes resume at 1 p.m. with a clinic session on jazz performance and culture. The afternoon bands rehearse from 2 to 4 and morning bands rehearse from 10 to 12. Each band has sectional rehearsals while the other has its full practice session.

The workshop attracts many noted jazz performers and educators in addition to Kenton and his band.

"We try to achieve a balance between those who are top jazz performers and those who understand jazz education," said Hall.

According to Hall, most of the instructors at the workshop are from New York City and Los Angeles. Among the six saxophone instructors are Charles Mariano, well-known tenor with the Kenton band, and John LaPorta of the Berkely School of Music, Boston.

Another jazz authority attending the workshop is Eddie Safranski, who plays with Skip Henderson's band. Safranski is head contractor for NBC. He instructs bass students at the workshop.

Two trumpeters teaching at the Kenton workshop are Donald Bird and Dalton Smith, head trumpeter with the Kenton band.

The workshop boasts several unusual classes, including one in jazz piano for people who are classically trained.

A forum for students on all aspects of jazz is held each 7 p.m. A panel of experts led by Kenton is open to questions in any area.

Following the discussion, various bands play till 10. According to Hall, Kenton's band will play occasionally. These sessions are open only to workshop students.

A public concert of all student bands will be held Friday at 7:30 on the lawn in back of Shaw Hall. In case of rain, the concert will be moved inside Shaw Hall. Indoor seating capacity is approximately 3,000. No admission will be charged for the concert.

Final Ice Show Is Wednesday

The 17th annual MSU Summer Ice Session will present its final show of the season Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. in the Ice Arena.

The program features a cast of nationally known amateur skaters. Albertina Noyes, 1962 Eastern Senior Ladies' Champion and Joya Utermohlen, 1962 North Atlantic Senior Champion, will both perform in tomorrow's revue.

Miss Noyes, of the Skating Club of Boston, is coached by Montgomery Wilson. Miss Utermohlen, of the Skating Club of New York, is coached by Pierre Brunet.

Other highlights will be performances by Lee Lamprecht of the Cleveland Skating Club, 1962 Mid-Western Junior Runner-up and Gary Visconti of the Detroit Skating Club.

Several local champions will also perform in the show. Janet and Nic Burhans, a brother-sister dance team, will be featured.

Voters to Select Candidates Today

East Lansing votes today to select party candidates for the November elections.

Forty-nine candidates for county convention delegate appear on the ballot for the first time.

Legislation passed in 1956 requires county convention candidates to petition to have their names placed on the ballot when the county has more than 180,000 population.

Eleven precinct polling places will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Only one Democrat and four Republican positions are contested. James J. Cavanaugh, Okemos, assistant professor of business services at Michigan State, will oppose Howard L. Jones, constitutional convention delegate Webberville, for the state representative nomination from the second district.

On the Republican ticket lieutenant governor, state senator, state representative from the first district and county treasurer are contested.

Democratic Governor John B. Swainson, seeking a second term, and Republican challenger George W. Romney are unopposed in the primary.

Lt. Governor T. John Lesinski is also unopposed for the Democratic nomination and will seek a second term.

A three-way race has developed in the Republican party for the lieutenant governor post.

Clarence A. Reid, Detroit, who held the office in 1953-54; Sen. John H. Stahlin, Belding businessman and Rockwell T. Gust Jr.,

New Chapel Here For Lutherans

The board of directors of the Martin Luther Chapel, Missouri Synod, in East Lansing has announced plans for a new student chapel and recreation center.

"The new facilities will be considerable larger than our present ones," said housemother Marian Lindquist. Plans call for a chapel to seat 300 and a basement recreation area.

Groundbreaking at the corner of Abbott and Elizabeth roads is slated for next spring.

Pastor Theodore Bundenthal will direct the center.

Last String Concert Thursday

James Robertson of Wichita, Kan., will conduct the Congress of Strings final concert of the summer Thursday at 8:15 p.m. in Fairchild Theatre.

Robertson conducts the Wichita Symphony Orchestra and heads the University of Wichita Orchestra Department. He also conducts the university orchestra and opera.

A graduate of Columbia university and the Juilliard School of Music, New York City, Robertson received a Rockefeller grant

Grosse-Pointe Farms constitutional convention delegate. Alvin M. Bentley, former Republican U.S. representative from Owosso and Neil Staebler, Democratic national committeeman, will run unopposed for the U.S. Congressman-at-large seat.

Charles Chamberlain, Republican incumbent, and Don Hayworth, U.S. representative from 1954-56, will run unopposed in the Sixth Congressional district primary. Hayworth is a speech professor at Michigan State.

FOUR IN SENATE RACE

Three Republicans -- Ted Swift, Okemos attorney; Paul Chien, East Lansing management consultant and Larry V. Munro, Fenton business man will compete against incumbent Paul C. Younger, Lansing attorney, for his 14th district senate seat.

Marie L. Hager and Harold W. Hungerford will seek to retain their seats as representatives from the first district. They are opposed by William J. Mahoney, retired Oldsmobile executive and George B. Phillips.

Mrs. Hager was elected to the House in 1960 and Hungerford has served the district since 1946.

Bruce S. King, Lansing attorney, and Manfred Lilliefors, former director of the state commission on aging are unopposed in the Democratic primary for the first legislative district seats.

Incumbent Republicans Leo A. Farhat, Lansing, prosecuting attorney; Kenneth L. Preadmore, Mason, sheriff and C. Ross Hilliard, Mason, county clerk, are seeking to retain their positions and are unopposed in the primary.

COUNTY TREASURER BATTLE

Hubert J. Ellison, Lansing, and Harry A. Spenny, Mason, will compete for the nomination for county treasurer on the Republican ticket.

Other Republican incumbents Mia Bell Humphrey, Mason, register of deeds; Gerald L. Graham, Mason, drain commissioner; Dorwin E. Hoffmeyer and Jack B. Holmes Lansing, county coroners and William C. Berryman, Lansing, county surveyor, will run unopposed for their positions on the primary ticket.

Unopposed Democratic challengers for county posts include: Max R. Murphy, Lansing attorney for prosecuting attorney; William A. Barnes, East Lansing teacher, for sheriff; Robert K. Wilson, Lansing carpenter, for county clerk; Constance S. Knolton, East Lansing teacher, for county treasurer; Marie Miller, steel company employee, for register of deeds; Glenn H. Hurford, tool and die maker, for drain commissioner and Marvin S. Ray, Lansing businessman, for county surveyor.

Con-Con Taxation Rules Cause Furor

(There's nothing in government which is closer to the average citizen's heart than money. That's why the subject of taxes brought on some of the most heated discussion of the Constitutional Convention. AP newsmen Gene Schroeder and A. F. (Pete) Mahan tell in this, the seventh of nine stories, what the proposed new Constitution includes in the way of finance and taxes.)

LANSING (AP) -- Hot and heavy are most apt words when describing debate on the finance and taxation article of Michigan's proposed new Constitution.

Some things were voted out, then voted in or maybe voted in and then out. But major earmarking provisions were kept for highways and education.

The new finance and taxation article is highlighted as much by what it prohibits as what it permits.

It would prohibit a graduated income tax by the state or any governmental subdivision; prohibit raising the sales tax above its current four per cent level; prohibit after Jan. 1, 1966, assessment of real and personal property at more than 50 per cent of its true cash value.

At times debate on various sections of the article cut sharply across party lines, but a coalition of 35 Democratic co-sponsors lost 43-100 a last-minute bid to rewrite this and a series of other controversial articles on which the Republican majority among the Constitutional Convention's 144 delegates had reached compromise.

"Fair," "honest" and "workable" were words applied to the over-all articles by Republican advocates. They insisted the convention merely lay the ground rules for a tax structure to be built by the Legislature.

Democratic dissidents, however, asserted in a statement:

"The taxation provisions of the proposed new document present no improvements over existing tax provisions and in some instances are more restrictive and regressive than those now in effect.

"Over our vigorous objections the convention has consistently refused to include the principle of taxation according to ability to pay . . . the proposed document demands that in times of economic crisis the State budget must be cut, even though it will cause serious hardship to millions of citizens . . ."

The article begins with these words:

"The Legislature shall impose taxes sufficient with other resources to pay the expenses of State government."

Then it moves into requiring that property tax assessments be uniform, but not assessed after Jan. 1, 1966, at more than 50 per cent of its true cash value--thus making mandatory what is now practiced by the State Board of Equalization without a constitutional limitation.

After once taking it out, the convention reinserted the now existing 15-mil general limit on property taxes, but provided a local option feature that would permit local units in a county to agree on separate limits which could total as much as 18 mills. The higher limit, however, would be subject to voter veto.

It was provided additionally, too, that the limitation "Shall not apply to taxes imposed for the payment of principal and interest on bonds or other evidences of indebtedness."

The general limitation would not be effective, either, in cities, villages or townships where tax limits are fixed by charter.

Prof Leaves For Taiwan

Merle L. Esmay, professor of agricultural engineering, has left on a two-year assignment to head MSU's technical assistance project on the Chinese Nationalist island of Taiwan.

For the past two years, Michigan State has been assisting and advising two schools on Taiwan in strengthening their agricultural, research and extension programs.

The project is supported by a grant from the International Cooperation Administration, now known as the Agency for International Development.

The two institutions with which MSU advisers are cooperating are the National Taiwan University at Taipei and Chung Hsing University, the Provincial College of Agriculture at Taichung.

As chief of party, Esmay heads a team of five MSU advisers representing the areas of agricultural engineering, entomology, extension and education. He succeeds Howard F. McColly, professor of agricultural engineering who will be returning to the East Lansing campus after heading the Taiwan project for the past two years.

Esmay's assignments extend from Aug. 4 of this year to Sept. 15, 1964. His wife, daughter and son are accompanying him.

Anti-Litter Campaign Started

Keep Michigan Beautiful
This is a new drive which is receiving enthusiastic statewide support. According to state highway publicity director, John Murray, the drive, opened by Gov. John B. Swainson, is an organized volunteer effort to alert the citizenry to participate in a nationwide Keeping America Beautiful anti-litter campaign.

"There is no budget or paid personnel for the movement," Murray said, "but the newspapers, television, and radio are actively cooperating and bringing the problem into each home."

Murray said that solving the litter problem will be a long term haul and it will involve influencing public opinion to the point when the litter bug will be held up to public contempt.

The highway commissioner, John C. Mackie, said that an estimated $322,000 was spent by the state highway department in 1961 to clean the debris scattered along public highways.

This is almost $1,000 a day and does not include clean-up costs of counties, cities, and villages.

Each citizen could save scarce tax dollars by not discarding his refuse along the highways.

"Michigan's new freeway system," Mackie said, "will attract thousands of persons who will visit the state for the first time. Many of them will decide whether or not to come back next year."

"Their decision, I am sure, will be greatly influenced by whether or not our highways and roadside parks are kept free of trash and other debris."

Mackie encouraged motorists to cooperate in Swainson's Keep Michigan Beautiful program by not throwing rubbish out of their autos.

"It will make our job easier and make Michigan more attractive," he said.

Mackie pointed out that in addition to the clean-up cost, litter on highways causes accidents when drivers swerve to avoid striking or running over it. The national death total caused by these accidents is estimated to be from 750 to 1,000 people a year.

for study abroad in 1955. He studied music in Vienna the following year.

Robertson has conducted symphony orchestras in San Antonio, Dallas and Buffalo. He organized a symphony orchestra in Springfield, Missouri.

Earlier this summer Robertson made a recording in conjunction with the American Symphony Orchestra League. The orchestra performed a ballet suite by Wynn York.

The conductor arrived in East Lansing Saturday. His daughter Jan attended last year's Congress of Strings as a cellist.

The 100-member Congress will open its final concert with "Concerto Grosso, Op. 6 No. 5 in D Major" by Handel. The program will continue with "Con tus Anima et Cordis" by American composer Richard Yardumian.

"Adagio and Fugue K546" by Mozart will open the program following intermission. Other numbers for the second half of the concert include "Introduction and Allegro Op. 47 for Quartet and String Orchestras" by Elgar and "Prelude and Fugue" by Vittorio Giannini. Both Giannini and Elgar are American composers.

In addition to the highway department, the conservation department is also involved in the mounting battle to keep beer bottles, tin cans, aluminum foil, wax papers, and other garbage from engulfing state parks, camping sites, stream, and lake frontages.

"In general, public assistance to keep our outdoors clean is good," John Gray, supervisor of conservation publications and information, said, "but it is the small, careless minority which is causing the trouble."

He said that the number of conservation department personnel for clean-up operations is too small.

"Full public cooperation," Gray said, "is the only answer to the trash problem."

Gray pointed out that beaches and river banks are not always littered by summer time users. Much of it is done in the winter when ice fishing is going on.

Ice Glaciers Caused Lakes

Just a few years ago, geologically speaking, a glacier passed this way, and that's why the Midwest has the Great Lakes.

Vouching to this are glacial deposits or "drifts" which, on the average, are piled 200 to 300 feet thick on ancient bedrock formations in Michigan. In places, the thickness of drift measurer more than 1,200 feet.

Perhaps the most spectacular evidence of glacier movement over this region is in the ice-inflicted carvings and scorings in pre-glacial bedrock surfaces. They are most prominent on fresh bedrock surfaces, such as those exposed when the overburden is stripped in stone quarries. Frequently, this "glacial pavement" is polished to a luster.

In parts of the upper peninsula, small protruding irregularities in the old hard rock formations have been ice-sculptured and streamlined so they now appear to be "elephant backs" emerging from the soil.

The glaciers that shaped the face of Michigan and gouged out the Great Lakes basins had their beginning about one million years ago; climatic changes caused winters to lengthen in the northern part of the continent, and snowfall to increase but not melt in the short, cool summers.

Four times, great masses of ice accumulated in the Hudson Bay region to form continental glaciers similar to the two-mile thick ice caps of Greenland and Antarctica.

As the last glacier, the so-called Wisconsin, approached the Great Lakes carrying an increasingly enormous volume of rock debris, it moved into the old river valleys, and divided into major lobes or ice tongues. The advancing lobes deepened and broadened these valleys into basins.

The ice pushed over all of Michigan--the only state completely covered--and pressed southward into the watershed of the old Mississippi River system. Its advance was finally halted short of the present Ohio River, when new climatic changes made cold give way to warmth.

Then started a grand retreat that gave rise to the most complex succession of lakes known to geologists. The retreat was not continuous, but was marked with many halts and occasional re-advances.

As the ice lobes withdrew into the basins they had carved during their advance, tremendous volumes of meltwater were ponded between the glacier front and the northerly sides of an earlier moraine. Thus were born the first ancestors of the Great Lakes--Lake Chicago and Lake Maumee.

After the ice had withdrawn completely from the lower peninsula, waters in the Michigan and Huron basins rose to form vast Lake Algonquin which discharged at Chicago and Port Huron.

Prepsters Studying Languages

By SUSAN JACOBY
Of The State News Staff

Lansing-area high school students experienced a unique opportunity to talk and live another language for six weeks at MSU's High School Foreign Language Honors Institute this summer.

In its fourth year, the institute was originally financed by an anonymous foundation in Lansing. It is now supported entirely by school systems in Lansing, East Lansing and Okemos.

Students are selected partially on the basis of recommendations from their high school language teachers. Their reasons for attending the institute are also considered.

Director Donald Yates said that some students study at the institute with an eye to majoring in foreign languages. Hoping to travel in foreign lands, other high school students seek a working knowledge of languages.

Yates added that some teenagers simply wish to "broaden their perspective" and "feel that languages are a basic part of any education."

Classes are conducted from 8 to 12 a.m., entirely in Spanish or French. The morning's work begins with an hour drill. Sue Plesscher, East Lansing high school senior, said that the drills did not emphasize verb conjugations or other formal grammar forms.

"We became familiar with the grammar by learning to speak in conversation," she commented.

The second hour of class is devoted to work in MSU's language laboratories. Students are able to hear their own voices played back on tape.

The final two hours of class include cultural lectures and conversation. Native speakers discuss the life and culture of their countries.

Janne Rutherford, Okemos high school junior, said that the lectures "gave us a real insight into what goes on in other countries."

Miss Plesscher said that there is "no comparison between the institute and a regular high school

MSU Benefactress Dies

Mrs. Grace S. Wonders, wife of a long-time MSU benefactor, Wallace Wonders, died July 25, in Detroit.

A new dormitory being erected in the Case-Wilson group is named for the late Mrs. Wonders and her husband. The dormitory is scheduled to open in the fall of 1963.

A letter from MSU concerning the new Wonders Hall was read to Mrs. Wonders shortly before she died.

Wonders graduated from MSU in June, 1902.

"Wallace Wonders has been an extremely generous patron of the University for many years," said Vice-President Philip May.

Donations to MSU from the couple include a summer home at Port Sanilac, located near Port Huron.

Mrs. Wonders was buried Saturday, July 28 at Elmwood Cemetery in Detroit.

HOLE OF 'WONDERS'--Construction of this 1,100 capacity educational dormitory, named after Grace and Wallace K. Wonders of Detroit, was begun early this summer. The $5 million dorm is west of Case Hall. Wilson Hall, which opens this fall, is seen in the background.

Focuson Sales, Income Taxes

Next comes the prohibition against an income tax "graduated as to rate or base," which means it would have to be a flat percentage of your income and the next fellow's, regardless of the size of that income.

After that comes the prohibition against a sales tax of more than four per cent. Some Democratic delegates tried unsuccessfully to exempt drugs and food altogether from this tax, which now applies to them as well as other items sold at retail.

And after that comes what appeared for a time might be eliminated -- earmarking of revenues for specific purposes.

The convention decided to continue dedication of fuel (gasoline) taxes and auto license fees for highway purposes.

It continued earmarking but changed the apportionment of the sales tax, providing that one eighth (instead of one half cent) should go to cities, villages and townships on a population basis.

It also provided that one-half of the total sales tax shall go "exclusively for the support of public education and school employees' retirement systems" and that "payments from this fund shall be made in full on a scheduled basis, as provided by law."

The current Constitution, except that, it doesn't require a scheduled system of payments and thus permits the State to hold back division now and then, provides approximately the same on a four cents per dollar tax.

It specifies that "one-half cent (which amounts to one-eighth of four percent) shall be returned to local governments and that two cents (instead of one-half) shall be set aside for education.

The earmarking for highways, figured on current revenues, amounts to $200 million; that for schools to $210 million, and that for cities, villages and townships $55 million.

Reversing its field, after earmarking in three areas, the convention then voted to do away with the so-called primary school interest fund.

Under the present Constitution taxes such as the inheritance tax, ad valorem taxes on railroads, telephone and telegraph companies and taxes on foreign insurance companies went into this fund, but the Legislature had been required to supplement it annually to meet school needs in excess of earmarked money.

Despite abolition of the fund, the taxes would continue. They yield an estimated $60 million a year.

A $250,000 straitjacket on state borrowing powers is unstrapped by the proposed new Constitution.

The new limit is "15 per cent of undedicated revenues received by the State during the preceding fiscal year," but whatever debt is incurred must be repaid within the same fiscal year the money is borrowed.

This short-term money could be borrowed by the Legislature for general operating purposes without a vote of the people, but for the State to issue bonds for specific purposes the Legislature first must give approval by a two-thirds vote of each House and then a majority of the people must approve in an election.

DEAN LOOK

Football Grads Shift Roles

Destinies of two 1959 Michigan State football stars seemingly have changed and are heading in different directions after events last week.

Dean Look, All-America quarterback, appears to be heading for better things with his trade from the Buffalo Bills to the New York Titans of the American Football League.

"Look will be a great asset to the Titans," predicted club president Harry Wismer.

Meanwhile Bob Bercich, MSU's first and probably best defensive specialist, hurt a knee while practicing last week with the Dallas Cowboys at their Northern Michigan College camp.

Early reports said Bercich, who has been a regular with the National Football League team three years, was sent back to Dallas for examination and possible operation on the knee.

If the injury is as serious as it appears, it could end his football career.

Early this summer Look quit baseball in the White Sox chain and joined the Bills as a defensive back. Then came the trade to the Titans Tuesday.

Look joins another former Spartan, Al Dorow, who played here last in 1953, in the Titan quarterback corps. Wismer hopes Look can take the starting role from Dorow, who coached the Old Timers this spring.

Wismer said: "It could be that Dorow is washed up . . . some days last year he couldn't throw the football 15 yards . . . we want a guy who can throw every Sunday."

The trade came a few years after Dorow left the Titans' East Stroudsburg, Pa., training camp for a personal conference with Wismer.

Horace (Bones) McKinney, basketball coach at Wake Forest, is an ordained Baptist minister.

Over 500 young musicians participating in the MSU Youth Music Program will present a public concert on the music grounds at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The concert will feature performances by the orchestra, chorus, symphonic, concert and festival bands.

Michael Bistrizski of Cass Technical High School, Detroit, will direct the orchestra. George Cripps of Jackson will conduct the chorus.

Harry Begin of Cass Technical and Gerald Winters of Holt will direct the symphonic and concert bands, respectively. The two festival bands will be headed by Rex Hewlett of Mt. Pleasant and Ronald Philips of belding.

The 17th annual Youth Music Program, now in its 2nd week, offers instruction in music theory, composition, literature, conducting, accompanying, instruments and voice.

Donna Gardner, 15-year-old East Lansing High School junior, has attended the program two years. "A choir or band major is required to take one hour of music literature, one hour of theory and two of choir or band," she explained. "Students majoring in more than one area can skip literature or theory."

Students are placed in theory classes on the basis of a test given the first day. Literature classes include a study of both modern and classical composers. Miss Gardner is finding the study of modern composers particularly interesting.

She mentioned that one of the greatest rewards of the Youth Music Program is the opportunity to "meet other people your own age who are seriously interested in studying music."

Miss Gardner is studying in the chorus division. "All the classes are such a challenge," she said. "Our three weeks of theory are equal to three months study in a college freshman class."

The Youth Music chorus is performing "Lullaby," an original composition by James Niblock of the MSU Music Department. The composition has never been performed by a chorus. According to Miss Gardner, a type recording is also being made of the composition.

Another original composition by Niblock, "Trigon," was performed at the opening of MSU's recent Fine Arts Festival by the A. F. of M. Congress of Strings.

Craig Dykstra of Grosse Pointe, who plays the organ, is here on a scholarship from Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. According to Sidnell, about 60 per cent of the students received scholarships from local organizations.

Dykstra is taking private lessons in organ. Private instruction is offered in all areas. An optional course in conducting is also offered.

Both Dykstra and Miss Gardner mentioned the high quality of the instructors. "The instructors put so much into the courses and expect so much out of the students that you can't help but improve," said Miss Gardner.

UFL Team Boasts Spartans

FRED BOYLEN

BOB RICUCCI

Fred Boylen, who lettered for three years at MSU, signed his contract July 28 with the Grand Rapids Blazers of the United Football League.

Boylen led the Blazers to the top position in the UFL defensive statistics last season. He was also named to the all-UFL team.

The middle guard joined the Grand Rapids squad last year after being cut by the New York Titans of the American Football League. He was drafted by the Titans after he graduated from MSU.

Other ex-Spartans who now play on the Blazers' squad are Bob Ricucci, Donald Cutler, Ike Grimsley, and Jim Myers.

Ricucci, who last played for the Spartans in 1959, was selected as the Old Timers' most valuable player in last spring's Alumni game.

Since his fine showing against the varsity last May, he has requested that the Blazers try him at the offensive halfback position instead of his regular defensive slot.

Grimsley, who plays a defensive back position for the Blazers, graduated from MSU in 1960 with Boylen.

Cutler lettered in 1952 as a sophomore and Myers was out for the team but failed to receive a letter.

Practice started for the Blazers July 30.

Ohio State has compiled a 17-7 won-lost mark in post season NCAA basketball tournament play.

Foreign Classes

course. The best thing about the Institute is the fact that all classes are conducted in Spanish.

"I think the main idea is to become more familiar with the practical uses of another language. Before I attended the Institute, I could hardly put together a sentence in actual conversation. I am a great deal more sure of myself now, and I think this is due to the fact that we spoke Spanish all the time."

Miss Plesscher feels that she learned nearly a year of Spanish in the six weeks period. She hopes to skip Spanish II at East Lansing high school and begin in Spanish III. Her one criticism of the Institute program is the fact that no formal credit transferrable to high school courses is given.

"You learn so much during the course that it is waste to return to a regular class in the fall. For this reason, I think some credit should be offered," she argued.

Miss Rutherford also agreed that "six weeks is nearly equal to one year."

A former Institute student for two summers, Bob Buchanan of Okemos said that the "best result of the Institute was the encouragement to study."
