Plant O.K. Expected In A Week

Legislative passage of MSU's power plant bill is expected early next week, according to Secretary Jack Breslin.

"The power plant resolution was introduced Wednesday and should pass the House this week," he said. "The Senate will probably act on the measure next week."

The House concurrent resolution will make $800,000 available for MSU to start work on a new power plant two-thirds of a mile south of Spartan Stadium. Total cost will be known when plans and bids are submitted.

Reps. Charles Davis, R-Onondaga, and William Copeland, D-Wyandotte, sponsored the bill, Breslin said. Since it is a money bill, it must be passed by both houses.

"The money will be available when the University requests it," he said. "Work will begin just as soon as architect's plans and construction bids are approved by the Board of Trustees in two or three months."

The south power plant, located near the stadium, will continue power production, but the north plant, near Agriculture Hall, will gradually be phased out when the new plant is completed. Two high pressure boilers and two 12,500 kilowatt electrical generators are on tap for the new plant.

Physical Plant Department officials have expressed concern that present heat and power facilities will be inadequate to handle the new buildings opening on campus each year. Benjamin Woodhouse and Guenther, Inc., architects and engineers from Detroit, explored MSU's needs last year and presented its findings to the Legislature.

Several legislators argued that the survey was biased and advocated that an independent study be made by A.M. Kinney, Inc. of Cincinnati, Ohio. The Kinney report, released last week, was even more favorable than the report MSU had presented to the legislature.

Group Probes AUSG

A committee is being formed to investigate whether AUSG is adequately reflecting the voice of the students.

According to Andy Rogin, Bryan Hall president, AUSG is not informing students adequately. "It is our intent to constructively criticize AUSG in hopes that it will pull itself out of the hole it has created," he said.

"Bob Kerr, AUSG president, should welcome this committee," he said, "because on April 8, Kerr said that vital areas of student interest have suffered because people within AUSG have not had the courage nor the determination to attack the problems facing them."

"It is our hope to stimulate AUSG so that it will look at the problems. If it doesn't, I'd like to see the students of this campus find someone who will—in effect, impeach AUSG President Bob Kerr," he said.

Rogin said that bills are not being brought back to Bryan or to other dormitories.

"Bryan is going to find out more about the issues. Then our representative will be specifically informed that he is to vote the way the men of Bryan, through General Council, want him to vote," he said.

"There is no justification for these remarks," said Bob Kerr. "I would have commented before, but I didn't feel it was necessary."

Kerr denied charges that the Basic Action Party controls AUSG. "However," he said, "my personal beliefs coincide with what B.A.P. is trying to accomplish."

"The students of AUSG are elected. It's beyond me how I can be accused of making them into 'puppets,'" he said.

Illegal Parking Ticketed

Students should check the sign before entering a parking lot to see if it's reserved, said Lt. Allen Andrews, of the department of public safety.

Officers have been ticketing vehicles illegally parked in reserved lots.

"Parking Lot V across from Eppley Center is giving us the most trouble," Andrews said. "This is reserved for teachers, faculty members, visitors with permits and residents of Shaw Hall."

Shaw had its lot taken away for the construction of the new parking ramp to be put in use early next year.

"Only 250 Shaw Hall residents have permits to park in Lot V," Andrews said. "This is roughly one half of the cars registered at Shaw Hall."

Ben Bella Aide Charges

'US Being Dragged Into War'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—An Algerian special envoy said Monday that Morocco is trying to drag the United States into the Moroccan-Algerian war.

Mohammed Yazid, sent here by President Ahmed Ben Bella 10 days ago, said his impression after talks with U.S. officials was the United States will remain neutral.

Yazid talked with reporters after seeing U.N. Secretary-General U Thant. He said that he told Thant Algeria hopes a four-nation African conference beginning today in Mali will settle the dispute.

"I told the secretary-general that my government is hoping that an African solution will be achieved there," Yazid said. "Our position is that this is an African problem that has to be solved between Africans and that is why we don't ask U.N. intervention."

Yazid commented on reports that a Cuban ship has arrived with soviet tanks to reinforce the Algerians.

"As a sovereign nation we have the right to use arms anywhere," he said.

"We have never objected to Morocco having U.S. Army advisors, tanks, planes, artillery and other equipment, and Moroccan soldiers wearing U.S. uniforms. "But Morocco also has Soviet planes. There were seven MIG 17s on the airport when Mrs. Kennedy landed at Marrakech for her vacation. Morocco is not using those planes in the border area for an obvious reason."

"Morocco is trying to present itself as defender of western ideals and to create conditions for western intervention... we are defending African ideals."

Meanwhile, the Moroccan government said today royal Moroccan troops have moved into the Algerian-held Sahara, pushing close to the ore center of Tindouf. The move was seen as a bid to strengthen the hand of King Hassan II at peace talks in Mali tomorrow.

Fear mounted among western diplomats that the undeclared frontier war between Algeria and Morocco might turn into a conflict between East and West. Western embassies in North Africa have dispatched alarming reports of sizable arrivals of Soviet weapons in Algerian ports aboard Cuban and Egyptian freighters. Some observers believe the arms were part of deals made by Algeria before the border conflict erupted two weeks ago.

AHMED BEN BELLA

Both Morocco and Algeria openly seek peace. King Hassan is reported to have assured western diplomats his immediate concern is to obtain a cease-fire in the Sahara where his troops nevertheless were reported pushing forward. U.S. Ambassador John Ferguson was among those received by the king in his Marrakech winter palace.

Business College Cuts Graduation Credits

The College of Business is the latest college to change graduation requirements to 180 credits plus the required physical education credits.

The college announced the action Friday. Three other colleges have reduced graduation requirements to keep in step with requirements of other land-grant institutions, said Herman L. King, assistant provost.

Both Arts and Letters and Social Science have reduced required loads to 180 credits plus the required physical education course work. The College of Engineering reduced credits to 206 for students entering fall term 1962 or later.

"Various departments within the colleges are now studying curricula and will arrive at a college-wide agreement within the next few months," he said. "The Academic Council set the requirement at 180 credits, but the individual colleges were left to decide when the change would take place."

Graduation requirements used to be 192, including 6 credits of physical education and 6 credits of military science, he said. Then it was changed to 192 credits and three credits physical education with the same number of credits for military science.

Military science was made optional two years ago and finally total required credits were reduced to 180 plus three credits physical education.

The colleges and departments have been holding meetings for the past month, he said, but much time is being spent in arriving at a satisfactory conclusion.

"The college has the choice of offering fewer electives or fewer required courses to the student," he said.

"In some cases they have chosen to reduce both electives and required courses proportionally."

"It is a hard decision for the colleges to make because they do not want to completely eliminate electives and yet they must offer sufficient courses in the major area."

There will be a good deal of compromise in getting the proper balance between liberal arts courses and course work in the major area, he indicated. He said the colleges that have acted may make adjustments next term.

King estimated that the reduction will save some 243,000 University credit hours. This will save money, the instructor's time and classroom space in the face of increasing enrollments.

"The reduction will keep MSU in line with other colleges and universities operating on the semester system," he added.

Students, Don't Sell Grid Ticket!

University Ticket Manager Bill Beardsley warned students Monday not to sell their tickets for the MSU-Wisconsin football game.

"Several people were refused admittance to the Indiana game two weeks ago because they had student tickets, but no student identification," he said.

Student tickets, obtained by activity book coupon redemption, do not have stubs on them.

"Regularly purchased tickets have two stubs on them," Beardsley commented, "and student tickets do not."

A student ticket holder is admitted to the game only upon presentation of his ticket and his validated identification card.

"Students don't seem to realize that their tickets admit only them," Beardsley added.

Beardsley said he expected a sellout crowd of over 70,000 for the homecoming game, barring bad weather.

"There are still seats available, but they're going fast," he said. He assured students that there would be tickets for them on their regular coupon redemption days.

"Adjacent seats can be purchased on Friday, and only on Friday," Beardsley said. "Tickets will be available at Booth 2, on the northeast corner of the stadium, Saturday morning, but I strongly suggest that students get their tickets during the week," he said.

Seniors and graduate students were in line as early as 5:30 a.m. Monday at Jenison Field House ticket booths.

Juniors can redeem their activity coupons for seats today, while sophomores are eligible Wednesday and freshmen on Thursday. The ticket booths in the outer areas are open until 4:30 p.m., including the lunch hour.

Campus Chest Nears Goal

Campus Community Chest has reached 88 per cent of its $93,589 goal.

At a meeting held in the Civic Center Monday, divisions reported the amount taken in so far is $82,080.

Starr Kessler, Chairman of Campus Chest, said the group expects to reach the goal. The campaign will continue until Nov. 5.

Money received from Campus Chest money will help support 57 Lansing area agencies.

HOMECOMING QUEEN DONNA BEUKEMA

Donna Beukema Is Homecoming Queen

Donna Beukema, a blonde, blue-eyed Holland junior, will reign as queen over the 1963 MSU Homecoming this weekend.

The 20-year-old coed was selected from a field of 10 finalists. The nine runners-up will comprise her court. A member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority, Miss Beukema is a social science major who plans to specialize in secondary education.

The queen and her court will make their first official appearance of the weekend at a pep rally Friday night. They will lead a parade scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. at the Physics-Math Building.

The parade, new feature of Homecoming this year, will include nine mobile floats built by sororities, torch-carrying runners from all MSU fraternities, Sparty, the Delta Upsilon bell and the marching band. It will end in a pep rally and bonfire at the IM field.

Dottie Ellis, Birmingham junior; Pat Morrow, Detroit senior; Judith Lamparter, Detroit junior; Hanh Phung, Saigon, Viet Nam, junior, and Paula Altman, Hinsdale, Ill., sophomore.

The queen and court will also be presented to fans at the MSU-Wisconsin game Saturday and at intermission at the homecoming dance that night in the Auditorium.

New members for Excalbur, senior men's honorary, will also be tapped at the dance.

Republican Support Needed

From Our Wire Services

WASHINGTON--Partial agreement was reported Monday as the Kennedy administration battled a deadline only hours away in an attempt to win support for a compromise civil rights bill.

Behind the scenes maneuvering was intensified over efforts to find the formula for a bill that would attract bipartisan support of Congressional leaders as well as from their impatient junior colleagues.

The negotiating was between key House Republicans and administration representatives.

"It's not signed, sealed and delivered, but I'm hopeful," said Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee.

The committee is to meet at 10:30 this morning for a decisive vote on an omnibus rights bill which neither the administration nor Congressional leaders believe can be passed.

Celler was busy late Monday talking with committee Democrats following the reported Republican agreement. Several of the Democrats said they refused to change their stand until they see the Republican agreement in writing.

It was reported that one price of Republican agreement would be removal from the strong measure of a provision giving the Attorney General broad powers to intervene in civil rights cases.

The dispute began when a judiciary subcommittee approved the civil rights program proposed in mid-summer by President Kennedy, but added major items not asked by him.

The subcommittee tacked a fair employment practices proposal onto the omnibus bill and expanded the proposal banning racial discrimination in public accommodations to include any business licensed by a state or city.

Phone Books Ready

More than 12,000 student directories will be distributed free to all students in residence halls and married housing by the end of this week, said Registrar Horace C. King.

Directories will be available to off-campus students for 85 cents at the Union Bookstore, he added.

Copies will also be distributed to administrative offices and departments for faculty use.

If an error has been made in a student's telephone number, he should call 355-1855 to have it corrected.

Red Cross Is 100 Years Old

From Our Wire Services

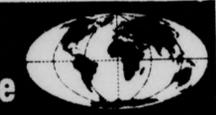

The Red Cross is one century old today.

The national humanitarian organization was born in Geneva, Switzerland, on Oct. 29, 1863, in the materialization of a 35-year dream by Henri Dunant.

With four other citizens of Geneva, Dunant inspired 16 nations to adopt a general agreement embodying the rules of an International Red Cross movement.

The agreement stemmed directly from Dunant's experiences as a civilian in 1859 at the battle of Solferino during the Italian War of Independence.

Amy Coup Seizes Control Of Dahomey

COTONOU, Dahomey (AP)—The commander of Dahomey's 800-man Army seized control of the government Monday following workers' demands for the ouster of the West African nation's first and only President, Hubert Maga.

The workers, in the fourth day of a general strike, had succeeded in forcing Maga to dissolve the government but the President, his Vice President and another minister formed a provisional government Sunday. Col. Christophe Soglo, armed forces Chief of Staff, had proclaimed his loyalty to the provisional government.

Senator Connally Of Texas Dies

WASHINGTON (AP)—Old Tom Connally of Texas, one of the most colorful, powerful and razor-tongued Senators of them all, died Monday at the age of 86.

The former Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, who had lived quietly in Washington since he quit the Senate in 1953, had been ailing for years. His wife was at his bedside when he died.

Tall, courtly, with his bow tie and rumpled suits, his careless, flowing hair, his wit that could hit the mark as neatly as an icpick or as cruelly as a meat ax--Tom Connally seemed born for the Senate.

Producing Power Economically

Michigan State is close to winning a round in the battle of university-owned versus private-owned facilities.

A power plant bill is now before the Michigan House of Representatives and is expected to pass with little opposition.

The legislature, it would seem, has little choice but to pass the bill, which is based on a feasibility study conducted this summer.

Rejecting the University's own study last spring as being biased, the legislature wasted $16,000 and delayed the power plant five months in order to obtain a study that is even more favorable to the University's position than was the University's report.

Opposition last spring to the power plant came from two sources--those who felt that a state-supported institution should not be allowed to compete with private enterprise in producing electricity, and those who questioned the amount needed.

The University can produce electricity much more economically than it can purchase it because of the dual use of steam. The steam that the University manufactures for heating is used to generate the electricity.

The University has a responsibility to the taxpayers to save them money wherever possible. If it can light the campus more economically by producing its own power, it should do so.

The Campus UN And You

Last week the Campus UN celebrated United Nations Day, and it is fitting that a word be said on behalf of this fine organization.

The various Campus UN's exist as affiliates of the American Association for the United Nations. They have their own national headquarters in New York City, and work in close cooperation with the AAUN to keep Americans informed as to the objectives and operations of the world organization.

On campus, UN members occupy an office in the Student Services building from which they organize their periodic Friday night meetings. These are conducted in the same style as the United Nations in New York, with an agenda of pertinent international questions drawn up to be debated at the mock general assembly sessions.

More important than the debating sessions, however, is the opportunity the Campus UN provides for getting to know not only the world we live in a little better, but also the people in it. Anyone who spends four years at MSU and doesn't develop some friendships with our visiting foreign students does himself a disservice. He passes up a great chance to truly widen his horizons.

For their part the foreign students are very willing to talk about their countries. Just let them know you are a little interested and they will give you some insights that a textbook could never furnish.

There are still some countries, mostly African, that are not represented. There is a place for you. If you have an interest in meeting some future world leaders and would like to learn more about a world that's drawing ever closer to you, stop by the UN room and introduce yourself to some of the nicest people on campus.

Letters To The Editor

AUSG—Cuba—McDonel

To the Editor:

Rather Hall has thrown up their hands and tossed in the towel, in a move that could be the end for AUSG. They have called it "passive resistance", which is another way of saying "No one else in AUSG is doing anything constructive--why should we try? We quit!"

They say they do not want to abolish AUSG or cause an uproar. They do not seem to realize how easily a move like this could snowball. With the current discontent with AUSG, this move could be quickly duplicated by other well-meaning dormitories across campus, crippling our student government beyond all repair.

But is AUSG worth saving? My answer is yes! AUSG may be doing little or nothing of benefit to the University at the present. But this does not mean that AUSG cannot be an effective and useful organization in the future.

Statements like President Kerr's promise to abolish AUSG if he cannot make it effective, are as ridiculous as abolishing the national government if the present administration cannot solve the unemployment problem.

The trouble with AUSG is lack of constructive ideas and lack of interest, a problem that can only be solved by the contribution and support of constructive ideas by interested members of AUSG. Not by criticism, argument, and meaningless debate.

AUSG can prosper only when the Congress learns to say something constructive or nothing at all.

We as students can help our student government most by following the same principle.

As for Rather Hall, let's call a spade a spade. Well meaning though they be, let's not call it passive resistance, let's call it apathy.

Some Facts

To the Editor:

There are certain highly relevant facts concerning the recent Rather Hall AUSG which I think should be brought to the attention of the student body.

First of all, Rather's "withdrawal" from Congress which was "not made in haste" was approved by the General Council without ever having attended an AUSG meeting and without ever having a representative of Congress attend one of their meetings to explain the "other side." Therefore, the only evidence they had to go on was the testimony on Sharon Ries, testimony which shall be proved not to be innocuous.

Miss Ries joined the All-University Student Government in Spring, 1963, and, from the beginning, began to compile an attendance record which was, at best, spotty. In committee meetings, her attendance was nil. In her letter of resignation, Miss Ries stated that "Student Government needs student leaders who are willing to work for the student body and not for their own private interests." Miss Ries, may I publicly accuse you of the very thing you accuse Student Government. You have shown irresponsible use of public office. You have shown disrespect for the women of Rather Hall.

Miss Ries, methinks thou dost protest too much.

more objective I could go along with FALN terrorist activities in Latin America.

If I knew the "truth" I might be happy for the Cuban people living under a totalitarian Communist government. Perhaps if I had not discussed Castro with Cuban refugees I would not have been so badly duped and could also openly support the Communists.

I can appreciate why one who supports a Communist government would be opposed to the HUAC, but I wonder how objective our open minded graduate student is when he considers this committee as vicious and unconstitutional.

Somehow I feel that most Americans do not have a distaste for the truth. I will grant that in this country the facts are hard to ascertain due to the many conflicting reports we get from our "controlled" press, radio and television.

Too bad I do not subscribe to a Cuban newspaper, do not listen to the "free" Cuban radio, or do not care to go to Cuba and play ping pong with Castro. I could then get the "facts" and be objective like our open minded graduate student.

Still Sheltered?

To the Editor:

I read with interest the letter from one of our open minded graduate students regarding the Cuban situation. This student openly supports the Communist government of Cuba but considers himself objective in his analysis. The rest of us poor uninformed souls who may support our government are considered imperceptive and uneducated.

I realize I have lived a very sheltered life for the past 36 years, but somehow I feel a certain obligation to my country when it comes to dealing with Communist Cuba. Maybe if I were

Poverty Threatens Brazil

From Our Wire Services

One of the worst problem areas of Brazil is the region of sugar cane plantations on the northeast coast near the city of Recife. Significantly this is also one of the most active areas for Communist agitation.

The cane farms are worked laborers who earned until recently about $120 a year. They live in small shacks around the cane fields. An American official visiting one of the farms found two families totaling 17 housed in two tiny rooms.

The laborers and their families, about a million in number, are mixtures of Indian, Negro and European stock. Their chief foods are beans and manioc flour. They are illiterate and for generations they passively accepted their misery.

Within the past year there have been riots in the region. Armed workers in several instances marched on the sugar cane mills and forced them to close down. Tension between the farm owners and their laborers is high. The United States has a ma-jan aid program operating in the northeast area. It cooperates with a Brazilian agency called Sudene, the organization for development of northeast area.

American experts were assigned to study the plight of the sugar cane workers and the farm owners. One of them summed up: the sugar cane farms can produce as much sugar on half the present acreage if they will adopt modern methods of cultivation.

Communists have been active in the northeast for more than a quarter of a century. They got a big boost in prestige and morale when Fidel Castro seized power in Cuba and became a hero of the underdog.

Following Castro's example, Francisco Juliao, the northeast Communist leader, branched out of his home area and began stumping the country. He aspired to make himself a national political leader, but his big forerunner failed and he subsided into relative unimportance.

The governor of the state of Pernambuco, Miguel Arraes, is an extreme leftist who has admitted to Marxist leanings but denied he is a Communist. Political observers classify him as a leftist nationalist. The practical meaning is that he opposes U.S. influence in Brazil.

When Arraes took office last January he called for breaking U.S. aid contracts in his state, but the arrangements were made with the federal agency and were beyond his control.

Poverty is one source of Communist power in Latin America. Dictatorship is another. The Reds got their foothold in Brazil, and built up considerable numerical strength, during the dictatorship of Getulio Vargas, 1930 - 1945. They attracted many intellectuals then because they proclaimed outright opposition to dictatorial rule.

Brazilian officials say the country has only about 30,000 hard-core Communists. These officials find loyalties split between Moscow and Peking with the majority following the pro-Moscow line of Luis Carlos Prestes, secretary-general of the Brazilian Communist Party.

Grill Packs 'Em In On Tuesdays, Sells Over 3,000 Soft Drinks Daily

By LINDA MILLER
 State News Staff Writer

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second part of a three-part series on the Union Grill.

Union Grill activity is at its peak on week-days during lunch hours, mid-afternoon and early evening. Hot food sells steadily from 11:15 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Fountain orders are heaviest from 2 to 4 p.m. and 8 to 10 p.m. Business declines on week-ends, largely during the day hours, except when the football team is playing at Spartan Stadium. "Football Saturdays are our heaviest days," said Robert Traub, Grill manager. Religious groups meeting in the Union on Sunday sometimes bring many customers.

The Grill is open from 7:15 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, until 12:30 a.m. Friday and Saturday night and from 10 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. Sunday.

About 30 dozen students eat breakfast in the Grill on an average week-day morning. Nearly 150 students trail through the cafeteria line from opening until 9 a.m. Then the pace begins to pick up.

Often Grill business coincides with class schedules. Union Manager Michael Dmochowski said that the Grill fills about 10 minutes after each hour and empties at 15 before.

Although the tables and booths normally seat 480, Traub said that the number of patrons exceeds this during busiest hours. From 550 to 600 are in the Grill at lunch time.

Fall term to Thanksgiving is always the busiest time of the year. "I guess the kids realize that finals are getting pretty close," Traub said.

Late afternoon slows down Grill operation as most students have gone back to the dorm or home for dinner. From 4:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. mostly off-campus students are in the Grill.

In reference to the frequency of off campus students, Dmochowski termed the Grill "a home for the homeless."

Although off-campus students spend more time in the Grill, the ratio of on- to off-campus students is about 50-50 at any given time.

Students seem to agree that they frequent the Grill more on Tuesday than any other day in the week. Thursday and Friday are also popular days. No reason other than class schedules could be given for this.

Coke is the biggest seller in the Grill, even during winter term. Traub said that 3,000 12-ounce cups of Coke, root beer and Sprite, are served each day.

Students report that their favorites on the Grill menu are Coke, coffee, hamburger, french fries, pop corn, potato chips and apples. When one coed said that the hamburgers were always cold, her companion offered that "they have to make up the lunch orders ahead of time because this place is packed at noon."

Even though the Grill, which opened with the Union Building in 1925, was extensively expanded in 1948, it has never been big enough, said Dmochowski.

With the number of students increasing, the cafeteria line has become inadequate, especially at noon.

Profs Comment On Border Dispute

Some world leaders have expressed concern that the fighting might cause a major world conflict. Najjar, who listens to Radio Cairo on a short-wave radio, says Egypt is not ready to commit herself to a long conflict with Morocco. "I seriously doubt that this border war will break into a world war," he said.

"Algeria is economically and militarily lacking and can't fight a major war, even with the support of Nasser."

"Besides this, Nasser has too many other affairs that need his attention at home."

"Morocco could be assured of aid and support from Tunis, and if Algeria received aid and arms from the Soviets and Egypt the United States would probably intervene for Morocco. Algeria has already accused Morocco of trying to drag the United States into the conflict," he said.

Humanity Series Tonight

The main danger in a situation like this is the threat of the Russians, Najjar said.

"I doubt very much if the United States will stand by and let matters fix themselves. It will most certainly become an internationalized affair. What will probably happen is that an international police force will intervene and freeze the affair as was done in the Kashmir-India situation," he said.

Charles Hughes, director of African Studies, says the conflict is an expression of a problem that has existed for a long time among Arab states.

"There is a possibility of a major world conflict. North Africa has had a long history of discord, and the U.A.R. is a major factor," Hughes said.

"The situation is based as much on history as it is on modern ideas," said Hughes.

"Basically it is Communism versus anything."

There will be four phases to the program, Cumberland said. The first is designed to examine the problem from a humanist point of view. The second will be the viewpoint of the social scientists; the third of the scientists; and the fourth of the various university presidents.

The three persons contributing to this set of meetings will spend Tuesday and Wednesday in meetings with the faculty of the College of Arts and Letters and other people in the university interested in the study.

The tournament was the first this year for the MSU debaters. They will compete with 35 other schools in the Yearling Debate Tournament next weekend at Milwaukee, Wis.

Debaters Win 6-Way Tourney

MSU took first place among six other colleges and universities in a discussion tournament here this week-end.

Members of the winning team are all sophomores: Jim Hudek, Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Robert Imler, Frankfurt, Ind.; Harlan McGhan, Flint; Jim Robinson, Grand Rapids; and Kermit Terrell, Derby, Kan.

The topic discussed was, "Should the federal government guarantee opportunity for higher education for qualified high school graduates?"

Other schools to receive trophies were the University of Michigan, second and third places, and the College of Wooster, fourth place.

Trophies were presented by Jerry M. Anderson, MSU director of forensics and tournament director.

An Insurance Company Career?

Talk it over with an E.M. interviewer

One of the major industrial insurance companies in the United States, Employers Mutuals of Wausau offers interesting, rewarding careers to hundreds of college men and women.

Some who joined us majored in insurance, but most were unaware until they talked with our interviewers that their education could be applied and their aims realized in an insurance company.

Talk with our representative about the opportunities we can offer at our home office and in more than 100 cities large and small throughout the country.

"He will be on the campus Monday, November 4 to interview senior men for positions as claim adjusters, underwriters, auditors, actuarial trainees, and sales correspondents, and senior women for positions as audit reviewers. Information on appointments can be obtained from the placement office."

Greek Breakfast

Alpha Xi Delta women were treated to a breakfast Saturday morning by the Phi Mu's at their house at 301 Charles St.

It was held to promote spirit between sororities, said Liz Clark, Birmingham senior and Phi Mu president.

Bleed Best

The 190 short course students in Armstrong Hall set the pace in the hall's first place finish for dormitories in the blood drive.

The House of Ares and the House of Arch Dukes both had 100 per cent participation and have been promised certificates by the Red Cross.

Dorm Rules Show Trend

Women's Lot Slowly Easing

Late minutes, study tables and house rules have been a part of coed life at Michigan State since 1870.

Before 1925 the Women's Student Council was the women's governing group. This board enforced such regulations as required study table for all coeds below a 2.0 all-University grade point average and 7:45 p.m. week night hours.

During the 30s the regulations were much the same, except that women were governed by Associated Women Students (AWS). Mid-week hours for upperclass women were raised to 10 p.m.

Smoking was still prohibited in all women's residences.

Dress regulations were numerous and well enforced. Women were required to wear hostery on campus fall and winter terms; below-waist coats had to be worn over riding pants; and shorts, slacks and ski-pants were worn only for sports.

Sportswear had to be covered by a full length coat when worn on campus.

In the 40s permissions for visits to servicemen became a necessary procedure.

Visits were permitted if the coed's parents sent a letter of approval for the weekend leave to the Office of Student Affairs giving the time of departure and return. The Dean of Students or one of the women's counselors granted the final permission and the coed signed out in the usual manner.

During the 30s and 40s the point limitation system was used to limit participation in campus activities. It was believed that this system would relieve a few of the heavily burdened individuals and would offer others the opportunity to develop leadership while on campus. The provisions of the system were carried out by a Point Limitations Board made up of members from women's organizations on campus. Points were assigned to each activity on the basis of the time and responsibility involved in the various activities. Freshmen were limited to 20 points and upperclassmen could not exceed 50 points.

The early 50s relaxed the smoking rules and extended Saturday and Sunday night hours by a half hour. However, smoking was still prohibited in living rooms, lobbies, phone booths and stair cases.

During the late 50s hours were extended: 11 p.m. Monday through Thursday for upperclassmen, and 10 p.m. for freshmen; 1 a.m. Friday and Saturday nights for all women and 12 midnight for all women on Sunday. Smoking rules were set by the individual houses.

The 60s have brought 11:30 midweek hours for all women students and the current dress regulations set by the Student-Faculty Committee on Social Affairs. Penalties for infractions of the rules are no longer automatic.

Prof Sees Jobless As Critical Problem

The continuing high level of unemployment in the United States is the most serious economic problem facing this country, Charles C. Killingsworth, professor of labor and industrial relations, told an Employment Security Conference Saturday at Kellogg Center.

"The proper diagnosis and treatment of the unemployment problem is the most important task to which statesmen and scholars in the field of economics can address themselves," he said.

Killingsworth said that despite a steady, but slow, improvement in the average educational level of the work force, the change in the pattern of demand for labor has created a large surplus of poorly educated workers and a serious shortage of highly educated ones.

"The Council of Economic Advisors continues to insist that the general pattern of unemployment has not changed significantly and that there is no danger that shortages of college graduates block the path to full employment," he said.

Smelly Coal No Danger

Odors around the coal pile at the North Power Plant are at a minimum, said Jesse M. Campbell, superintendent of power plants.

The odor is methane gas created by oxidation of overheated coal in the pile. All the overheated coal has been consumed, Campbell said.

Water is pumped from the Red Cedar to the power plant condensers to make steam for heating and electricity. After condensing, the water is used to cool the coal.

Much of the coal arriving in railroad hopper cars is used immediately but a stockpile is kept. Campbell said the campus has enough coal stockpiled to last three months.

Delta Zeta Names Actives

Seven Delta Zeta pledges went active Sunday at the sorority house.

The new actives, all sophomores, are: Candy Carman, Houghton Lake; Chris Dolan, Hickory Corners; Barbara Sahrney, Dearborn, and Joan Hoff, Dowagiac.

Also, Nancy Todd, St. Clair Shores; Diane Trazciak, Unison; and Gail Warner, St. Ignace.

L-C To Present Folklorico

A DANCER of the Ballet Folklorico de Mexico goes through a part of her performance with the widely-hailed company. They will appear in the Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday.

President Kennedy gave the dancers a standing ovation. The dancers applauded him. And the audience turned from the President to the dancers, clapping their hands enthusiastically.

That was about two years ago when President and Mrs. Kennedy visited President and Mrs. Lopez Mateos in Mexico and attended a performance of the Ballet Folklorico de Mexico.

Wednesday, MSU students and East Lansing residents will have an opportunity to watch the Ballet perform on campus.

The company of 75 dancers, singers and musicians will appear at 8:15 p.m. in the Auditorium as part of this year's Lecture-Concert Series.

The troupe will present an array of Mexican folk dances and music amid colorful stage settings designed by two of Mexico's leading artists, the late Miguel Covarrubias and Robin Bond.

Elaborate costumes for the company are by Dasha and are based on authentic sources.

Amalia Hernandez, founder and director of the company, began her career as a dancing teacher. She left the Instituto Nacional de Bellas Artes to compose ballets on folklore themes for presentation on Mexican television.

In 1959, with a company of 50 dancers, she prepared a program for the Pan-American Games in Chicago under the sponsorship of the Office of the President of the Republic.

Following this performance, the group became the official national company, and has since appeared in Europe, Canada, the United States and all over South America.

Among the dances to be performed here are: "Wedding in Tehuantepec on the Isthmus," "Old Songs of Michoacan," "Dance of the Quetzal Birds of Puebla," "Christmas in Jalisco," and "Wedding in Huasteca-Potosina."

Dancers and singers will be accompanied by several groups of musicians, including Mariachos (wandering minstrels), Marimbaists and Veracruzanos.

Tickets for the Ballet Folklorico performance are available at the Union ticket office. Students may exchange coupon B from the student activity book for a ticket to this performance or the Nov. 6 appearance of the Cleveland Orchestra.

Hannah Names 5 Honorary Alumni

President John A. Hannah named five honorary alumni-designates Monday.

"The award is given to friends of MSU who have been helpful to the University over a period of years," Secretary Jack Breslin said. "Those designated to receive the award have never attended MSU and so they received the title of Honorary Alumni."

The awards will be presented Friday at the Alumni Presidents Dinner in Kellogg Center's Big Ten Room.

Receiving awards are Steven Nesbit, Fremont trustee-elect; L. A. Davidson, Lansing contractor; Louis A. Weil, Lansing, publisher of the Lansing State Journal; Rep. Arnell Engstrom, R-Traverse City and chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee; and Frank Manley, Flint, head of the Mott Foundation.

"The award will be presented on behalf of the Alumni Advisory Council and the Board of Trustees," Breslin said.

Prof To Talk On History Wednesday

Professor Emeritus Herbert Heaton of the University of Minnesota will speak Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Erickson Hall Kiva on "Clio's New Frontiers," an assessment of trends in historical study.

He is on campus as a guest of the Honors College and the departments of economics and history.

Author of works in the field of economic history and a past president of the Economic History Association, he has served as visiting professor at Princeton, Johns Hopkins, and Pennsylvania State Universities and the University of British Columbia.

A native of Yorkshire, England, he studied at Leeds University, Birmingham University and the London School of Economics.

Insurance Deadline Extended

The deadline for enrolling in the credit union's family group life insurance plan has been extended to Dec. 1.

After this date any Credit Union member desiring the insurance will have to submit a statement of medical insurability.

Until Dec. 1 the only restriction is that the applicant work full time for the University when he applies for the insurance.

More than 1,000 University employees have already enrolled in the program. It provides $2,000 of term life insurance on the Credit Union member, $1,000 on his spouse and $1,000 on each of his children six months or older. Children under six months are insured for $250.

Credit union members should contact the Employees' Credit Union, 1405 S. Harrison Road.

Big Ten Knotted

Duffy Sees No Easy Winner

By JEROME CAPLAN
 State News Sports Editor

It is almost inconceivable that one of the three undefeated but tied teams now leading the Big Ten will make it through the rest of the season without a loss, according to Spartan Coach Duffy Daugherty.

Daugherty said he thinks that "there are a lot of good teams in the conference" and that the championship is far from decided.

This week the Spartans will face another top quarterback, Wisconsin's Harold Brandt. "Brandt is left handed and he's got a quick arm," said Daugherty. "He's a big boy, too, and he has fast backs, like we do, to complement him. Wisconsin's big and strong and they're the most powerful running team we've faced all season. They're also the strongest physically," Daugherty added.

Chuck Lowther, a freshman from Royal Oak Shrine High School, will be impersonating Brandt during this week's scrimmages. "Lowther throws left-handed and we will use him to test our defensive patterns," Daugherty said.

The MSU coach thought the Spartan's pre-season depth problem still is not solved. "We are four deep at center, three deep at quarterback and in pretty good shape at end, but we are weak at tackle and guard.

"The guards are the key to our offense and we've just been fortunate that the situation there has worked out so well," Daugherty referred to the many problems at the guard spot, which have been partially solved by the great play of Earl Lattimer.

"There isn't a finer guard in the conference than Lattimer. Ron Goovert is turning into a fine linebacker to help us out on defense and John Karpinski is doing a good job on the right side on offense, but we still need depth there," Daugherty said.

Daugherty announced that defensive back Don Japinga will be running through plays this week, but the decision on whether he will play against Wisconsin won't be made until late in the week. Japinga suffered a concussion in the game with Michigan three weeks ago. Scheduled to be ready to play is tackle Dave Herman. Herman was injured in the first half of play against Northwestern.

Daugherty continued praising halfback co-captain Sherman Lewis for his fine play. "There certainly hasn't been a back in the country who has performed better than Lewis this year. I have to rate him with the great All-Americans from State. He's an all-around player too, not like some who have just played offense or defense.

"What makes him even greater is that the other teams key their defenses on him and he has to run past an extra man every time he gets the ball," he added.

Sherman's mother and twin sister watched the Northwestern game. Mrs. Lewis will be back this weekend. Sherman's sister used to race with her brother when they were growing up in Louisville, Ky. Until they reached high school she could even beat him.

Looking at him after the Northwestern game, she said she could probably beat him again. That CHUCK LOWTHER was after Lewis had gained 104 yards rushing, caught four passes and returned a punt 84 yards.

Goalie Dedich 'Only Wants To' Do Job

CHARLES DEDICH

"I've always liked soccer, and since I wasn't big enough for Big Ten football, I came out for the sport."

Few will dispute the results: With an average of 0.43 goals per game in seven outings this season, Dedich is a serious threat to the 0.66 record set in 1961 by Ted Saunders.

And with four shutouts under his belt, Dedich challenges the mark of 6 established by Bill Onopa last year.

Two teams, Ohio University and NCAA champion St. Louis, plus the possibility of playoff foes, stand between Dedich and these distinctions.

and still is getting experience in a hurry.

"I've learned a lot since the first day in the goal," said Dedich. "First game I was kind of shaky and scared. Now I feel like I've been in the goal all my life."

"Practice has been rougher than game experience," he said. "The only matches where I've had to work hard have been Akron and Ball State."

He is looking forward to the match with St. Louis, two weeks from Saturday.

"We know they're an aggressive team," he said. "I hope I won't be too busy that day. If I get a good workout, all I can hope is to do the job well."

Asked whether he had any regrets about his move to soccer, Dedich said no, but qualified it by saying:

"But sometimes, with the ball coming at you 30 or 40 miles per hour, it gets a little hectic."

By RICHARD SCHWARTZ
 State News Sports Writer

For Charles Dedich, goal tender of Michigan State's soccer team, "learn by experience" is more than a well-worn cliché, it's an apt description.

Although a senior student of Spanish, Dedich is a freshman to varsity soccer.

"I didn't play soccer 'til I came to State," explained Dedich. "Football was my sport in high school. I was a linebacker and guard."

"Never in my mind did I have any idea of breaking any record," Dedich said. "If I can do a good job, I'm satisfied."

Record or no record, Dedich feels it a honor to be compared to all-Americans Onopa and Saunders.

MSU Gets Millions For Nigeria U.

A grant of $2.1 million awarded to MSU by the U.S. Agency for International Development was accepted Friday by the Board of Trustees for continuation of the Nigeria program.

The grant, the largest AID education contract for Nigeria, will aid the Nigerian project over the next two years.

George H. Axinn, professor of agriculture, is coordinator of the program.

With the cooperation of MSU and the University of London, Nigeria is developing its university at Nsukka. It is one of the fastest-growing institutions of higher learning in the world today.

Chief of party for MSU is Dr. George M. Johnson, who is vice-chancellor of the University of Nigeria.

The new AID grant will allow an increase in staff and purchase of additional research equipment for the university, according to Axinn.

At present, 27 MSU faculty and staff members are assigned to the University of Nigeria in advisory and research capacities. Three more will be added with the additional funds, and new equipment for agricultural research and for engineering will be acquired, Axinn said.

The University of Nigeria was opened for instruction in October, 1960. MSU has been involved in the program since its inception. The University graduated its first students last June. Purpose of State's participation, Axinn said, is "to help Nigeria build a viable university which is expected to be wholly self-sufficient by 1971."

"However," he said, "MSU hopes to continue its scholarly association with the University of Nigeria long after completion of our present project there."

The Nigerian government has invested the equivalent of some $14 million of its own funds in establishing and developing the University of Nsukka, Axinn said.

The University includes the faculties of arts, science, social science and technology, as well as a general college similar to MSU's undergraduate University College.

There are 37 departments within the university, with a faculty of 200. Student enrollment now stands at more than 1600. In 1960 the University opened with 13 on the faculty and 220 students.

All classes are taught in English, the official language of Nigeria.

Among recent contributions of the MSU party to the University of Nigeria, Axinn pointed out, have been a continuing education program patterned after the off-campus educational activities of Michigan State, and an economic development institute.

Howard R. Neville, acting provost of MSU, and H. John Carew, chairman of the Department of Horticulture, will be in Nigeria during the next two weeks for a meeting of the Joint University Advisory Committee. They will return to campus Nov. 8.

The committee, representing the universities of Nigeria and London and MSU, advises the governing body of the University of Nigeria on such matters as academic standards, degree programs, faculty strength and library facilities.

Organ Music Concert Set For Tonight

An unusual program of music for organ and solo instruments will be presented tonight at 8:15 p.m. in the Peoples' Church sanctuary.

Corliss Arnold, church music director and assistant professor of music here, will be accompanied by several University music faculty members in a recital on one of the largest organs in this area.

Playing with him will be Byron Autrey, trumpet; Lyman Bodman, viola; Edgar Kirk, bassoon; Louis Potter, cello; and Daniel Stolper, oboe.

The concert will consist entirely of works from the Baroque period, a time of a wealth of organ music.

It will include works by English church music composer, Henry Purcell, Handel, Vivaldi, and Krebs.

"One rarely gets to hear this type of music, unusual because of its combinations of solo instruments with the organ," said Arnold.

Chess Players Gather Tonight

The East Lansing Chess Club will hold an open meeting at 7 tonight in the Inn America, 2736 E. Grand River Ave.

Free instruction for beginners will be offered.

New Billiard Parlor Opens Here Nov. 25

East Lansing will soon have its own billiard parlor. The establishment, to be called the Golden 8-Ball, will be at 224 Abbott Rd.

Opening is scheduled for Nov. 25, according to co-owner David O'Leary, of Lansing. The 8-Ball will have 25 tables, including two for snooker and two for three-cushion billiards.

A gaslight decor is planned for the interior. The owners say women will be welcome.

JC Survey To Study Lansing's Attitudes

The public's attitude toward Lansing's police and fire protection, school and recreation programs, and garbage collection service is being probed by the Lansing Junior Chamber of Commerce in a community attitude survey.

The survey covers job opportunities, medical and dental services, and news and postal services.

Community attitude surveys, which originated with the National Association of Junior Chambers of Commerce, have been tried in cities across the country.

However, Lansing is the largest city to attempt such a survey to date.

The survey covers 10 per cent of the 34,000 occupied dwellings in the core of the city, so 3,400 families will be interviewed.

It is estimated that more than 3,000 man-hours will be needed to complete the job. Interviewers will wear orange armbands.

Data collected from the interviews will be coded and tabulated by IBM machines.

"This is the first community service project the Jaycees have sponsored which will affect the entire community," according to Sam Milstein, president of Lansing Jaycees.

He estimated that such a survey would cost Lansing more than $50,000 if a private firm were hired.

Sign-Up For 'Bowl' Extended

College Bowl registration has been extended to Nov. 17 to allow all interested living units time to enter, said Frank Russ, Dowagiac junior and AUSG academic benefits chairman.

"There were enough dormitories without officers to warrant the extension," he said.

The first matches will be Sunday from 3 to 4 p.m.

Registration for the College Bowl must be turned in to the AUSG Academic Benefits office in Student Services Building. It may be made on any slip of paper and must contain the signatures of the respective house presidents.
