Peace Corps Vet Studying Here

An MSU graduate student comes to Sparta from a two-year stay in Sierra Leone, West Africa, with the Peace Corps. Ken Wylie lived in Freetown, the nation's capital, where he taught history and English at the Schlenker Secondary School, once an Anglican mission.

He has traveled through a great deal of West Africa, and has gained an understanding and knowledge of the area and the people.

He says that the current racial crisis in the United States has made an impact on the people of Africa. First of all, Wylie said, most Africans equate a white skin with colonialism and Europeans. They are slow to learn to differentiate between Europeans and Americans.

Many Africans who have learned of the situation in this country believe that Americans are racists. Only those in the back country who have not been exposed to news accounts are free of this belief. When Africans see how the Peace Corps works with the local people, Wylie said, they frequently change their conception of Americans.

He estimates that there is a 90 per cent illiteracy rate in Sierra Leone, but education is spreading rapidly and within two generations illiteracy can be wiped out. Schooling beyond the primary level costs more than most people can afford, he said. "We (Peace Corpsmen) were considered rich," Wylie said he re-

Valeo To Succeed Baker

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The Senate Monday promoted Francis R. Valeo to the powerful post of Secretary to the Democratic majority, succeeding Robert G. Baker who resigned under fire.

Approval was by voice vote, with no word of dissent, after Valeo had appeared before a conference of Democratic senators and given them an outline of how he intends to handle the office.

Legislators Fear Invasion

'Foreigners' Here In Legion

By JACKIE KORONA
State News Staff Writer

"She's a foreign student," whispered the legislator to a colleague. "She's one of them." "Where are you from?" asked the second legislator. "Massachusetts."

Question after question followed.

Why would a coed from the East Coast, attending Michigan State, be called a foreign student? What caused the questions? The Michigan legislature, as well as the taxpayers of the state and officials of state-supported colleges and universities, are involved in seemingly never-ending discussions of the pros and cons of out-of-state students in Michigan schools.

Debate centers around money and facilities, cultural advantages of out-of-state students, and possible solutions to the current situation.

Some of the legislators consider anyone from outside of Michigan a foreign student and someone to be wary of from a financial point of view.

"Students coming to Michigan to school don't pay the full cost of their educations here," says Rep. Richard Guzowski, D-Wayne. "They're a tremendous burden on the taxpayers of the state."

Rep. Russell H. Strange, R-Clare-Isabella, believes that Federal grants for higher education do contribute to the support of Michigan's state universities, but even with this aid the out-of-state students are not fully paying for their educations.

MSU officials report that the out-of-state student does pay the full cost of his freshman and sophomore education here, but that the higher he goes, the more his education costs the university.

According to Paul V. Rumpfs, University controller, "It is hard to figure the actual cost of a student's hourly classes. I would say the out-of-state student does pay the cost of his freshman and sophomore education."

During the current academic year Michigan students will pay $324 for three terms, while out-of-state students pay $870. Guzowski attacked the lack of reciprocity in higher education, emphasizing that the out-of-state student's four-year education at a state-supported university is a financial burden to the taxpayers.

"Many more students come into Michigan to school than go out," he said.

Figures taken from the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admission Officers' report on Home State and Migration of American College Students, Fall 1958, show about 14,000 Michigan students enrolled in schools outside the state.

More than 21,000 non-residents are enrolled in Michigan schools, making a difference of 7,000.

Of this number, more than 5,000 men and women from all other states and many foreign countries were attending Michigan State during the 1962-63 academic year.

"Our responsibility as legislators is to provide the best type of education for our own student. There's no sense in building facilities to provide education for the whole nation," Guzowski said.

Government Relaxes Curfews; Viet Nam Returns To Normal

Deny Student Court Favoritism

By SUE JACOBY
State News Staff Writer

Rumors that favoritism was shown by Student Judiciary to a prominent student leader involved in a recent drinking party were denied Monday by Dean of Students John A. Fuzak. Student Judiciary met twice to consider the cases of several persons involved in a party Saturday, Oct. 19, in an East Lansing apartment. The case was investigated by the Dean of Students office after a formal complaint was filed that night by a person who was disturbed by the party.

The first Student Judiciary meeting held Thursday, Oct. 24, had arrived at decisions concerning the cases of five students. However, the meeting was disrupted at its outset when the first witness became seriously ill and had to be taken to Olin Health Center. The following day, Chief Justice Frazier Alexander, St. Louis, Mo., senior, asked that the judiciary reconvene because he and several other justices felt it had been impossible to reach an unemotional and unbiased decision due to the il-ness of the student the night before.

Jamie Blanchard, Royal Oak senior and president of the Senior Class, and four other students had appeared before judiciary which had decided that Blanchard would be placed on warning probation and four other students would be suspended.

When Student Judiciary met again Monday, Oct. 28, the decisions concerning Blanchard and three students involved in renting the apartment were not charged. One student was placed on strict disciplinary probation rather than suspension.

Fuzak said both he and Associate Dean of Students Eldon R. Nonamaker had made it clear to Student Judiciary that they were not under any pressure to change decisions concerning the students.

"Several members of the judiciary simply felt the case should be reconsidered because of the unusual circumstances the night before," he said. "This is not the first time judiciary has reconvened to consider unusual cases."

Alexander concurred with Fuzak's statement that no pressure had been applied to reconvene. "Several other justices and I were simply unsure of our capacity to make a rational and objective decision because of the disturbing emotional impact of the one student's illness," he said.

Fuzak refuted rumors that Blanchard had been given a lighter penalty because he was a student leader. He said Blanchard had happened to walk into the party while a member of the SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—The military government relaxed martial law curfew in Saigon Monday but tightened rules for government workers. It said those who fail to report to their jobs without good reason will be charged with desertion and be punished.

Torn by bloody fighting for 18 hours Friday and Saturday, Saigon was returning to normal. Hours of curfew, established for 7 p.m. to 5 a.m., were eased to the period between midnight and 5 a.m.

Off-Year Elections May Give '64 Hint

WASHINGTON, P.—Politicians look for possible handwriting on the wall—though perhaps sketchy—in scattered elections across the country today.

Attention centers on a warm fight for the Philadelphia mayor's chair, and headline contests for the governorships of Kentucky and Mississippi. In each of these campaigns the subject of Negro civil rights has figured, though in different ways.

Besides these elections, hundreds of mayors are being chosen, along with other city or state officials, and members of four state legislatures—Kentucky, Mississippi, New Jersey and Virginia.

In Philadelphia Democratic Mayor James H. J. Tate is favored to win over Republican challenger James T. McDermott, though probably by a much smaller margin than Democrats usually enjoy. Some analysts figure the decisive edge might prove to be as small as 20,000.

In Kentucky, a big question is which gubernatorial candidate—Democrat Edward T. Breathitt Jr. or Republican Louie B. Nunn—can build up the state economically. Nunn has said also, "I am running against the Kennedys and what they stand for."

See More Merit Scholars

MSU will give some 157 scholarships to National Merit scholars in 1964.

Last year 149 scholarships were sponsored by MSU through donations by alumni, staff and faculty. Out of a total of 228, 79 receive outside help. The University first made an agreement with the National Merit Scholarship Corporation to sponsor high school students interested in attending MSU in the finalist scholarship competition.

At least one scholarship has been reserved for each of the 50 states. The amount of each award will be decided by the scholarship corporation.

Michigan State was the first American university to take advantage of a rules change by the corporation to allow institutions of higher learning to sponsor scholars.

"The National Merit finalist listing represents the top one per cent of high school graduates in the United States each year," said Stanley Idzerda, honors college director. "A university would be less than dutiful if it did not try to attract as many of these scholars as possible."

Last year's total of 195 National Merit scholars coming to MSU is more than double all other Big Ten Schools and was the highest single campus total in the history of the scholarship program, said Gordon A. Sabine, vice president for special projects.

Arctic Strategically Important, Says Prof

John Hanessian, visiting professor for the American Field Staff, said that the Arctic is strategically of major importance to our defense.

The North Pole is a key to our defense since it would be the path for aircraft and missiles from Russia, he said.

Both the United States and Russia have spent huge amounts of money on building radar and defense equipment in the Arctic.

For Russia the Arctic is more important, he said, because her borders are right on it. The United States has Canada between its borders and the Arctic.

Antarctica is quite the opposite. There has been a remarkable degree of cooperation between the United States and Russia, according to Hanessian. The results of the International Geophysical Year study in which the United States and Russia did a great deal of work in the Antarctica, were of major importance.

In 1959 the two countries signed the Antarctica Treaty. One of the points of the treaty completely outlawed all nuclear explosions in the Antarctica led to the recent nuclear ban in Moscow.

Hanessian said that it would probably end up with cooperative study in space research in spite of the recent action by the United States government.

Need Civil Rights Body —Hannah

DETROIT (UPI)—John A. Hannah, chairman of the Civil Rights Commission, said Monday night that the Commission should be made a permanent body under the authority of Congress.

Hannah, speaking on a Detroit television program (WJZ-TV's Town Meeting), said the Commission was performing work vital to the nation's interests.

He said the main mission of the Commission when it was established was to determine if minority groups were being denied their rights because of race, color or creed.

One member of the audience asked Hannah if there would be any advantage to giving Negroes their rights as guaranteed by the constitution.

Hannah said there would be no disadvantage and in fact it "would be a great advantage to the nation if all minority groups were treated equally."

Another member of the audience asked if civil rights were guaranteed under the constitution, why was it that there was constant debate in Congress over civil rights legislation?

Hannah replied: "A good many political figures make speeches about civil rights but don't do very much about it."

Civil rights, he said, should not be a debating point for politicians.

Hannah also made the point that the Commission should be a prod to the conscience of the nation over the evils of discrimination.

Apathy Again?

Should students be able to cast an automatic "no" vote when they will not take the time to go to the polls? Student apathy should not be allowed to tie AUSG's hands as it does under the present constitution.

The constitution says that for any change in student assessment to pass, a majority of the student body must vote. This means that the student who does not vote automatically casts a "no" ballot. It also means that, no matter how justified a change in assessments might be, the proposal is doomed. To pass, 14,000 students would have to vote while the average turnout for an AUSG election is about 5,000.

The proposed change in the

Ngo Goes At Last

Eight years ago, with the blessing of the United States, Ngo Dinh Diem installed himself as the leader of South Viet Nam.

Now, eight years later, Diem has been deposed, again with the blessings of Washington.

The situation in South Viet Nam had in recent months become virtually untenable.

Therefore we are not shocked at the recent course of events. The Indian newspaper, the New Delhi Statesman put it aptly: "The only surprising aspect of the army coup in South Viet Nam is that it did not take place sooner."

With his nation's fate periled by Viet Cong insurgents raging throughout the countryside, Diem went on to antagonize the majority of his people and most of his friends.

His forces raided Buddhist pagodas and imprisoned those who expressed opposition. The latter even included high school students.

He accused member of the U.S. press corps of unfair bias and inaccuracy. He accused Washington of intrigue and attempts to unseat him. He Organized Confusion?

There's another aspect to last week's confusion with respect to the Homecoming Dance and late permission for coeds. If the Dean of Students knew the dance couldn't qualify for late permissions, the chairman of the whole weekend, Jack Kinney of the Alumni Office didn't.

As of Friday afternoon, Kinney thought the dance was to have late permissions. He, like most others, concluded as much because it seemed to be such a central part of the weekend, that they couldn't conceive of it as not being an approved function.

The point to ponder is just why two administrative offices, both located in the same building, could be so far apart in their understanding of the operating rules.

Last spring when the student-faculty committee met to grant special permissions for all-University dances, there was no application on behalf of the Homecoming Dance. A partial explanation might be that the sponsoring Alumni Club didn't know they had to have an application at that time, and Kinney, new in assessment clause. Proposal 2, which is before the students today and Wednesday, would allow such a proposal to pass with a simple majority of the votes cast in an all-University election.

True, every student would be directly affected by a change in assessments, but, it is also true that a student can protect his rights simply by voting. If he is unwilling to do this, then he cannot be worried about how the outcome of the vote will effect him.

The present constitution is still in effect which means that for Proposal 2 to pass, 14,000 must cast ballots. AUSG should be given a chance to remove its shackles by having a majority of the student body turn out for the election.

claimed that those who disagreed with him were aiding the Communist cause.

His land was not a democracy and he did not have the full support of his people. He ruled sternly and always at his side was his brother Ngo Dinh Nhu with his elite police corps on the alert.

The barest logic tells us that to wage a successful war against the Viet Cong rebels the whole nation must unite against the common foe.

With Diem this was impossible as he made his land one torn by religious and political dissension.

We feel that Diem was tragically mistaken in most of what he did, and while we regret his death, the presence of a new government in Saigon is welcome.

The recent coup, from all that we have been able to gather from the hectic array of rumor and fact coming from Viet Nam, will benefit the U.S. cause. But far more important is the renewed hope which it must give the people of that small, ravaged land.

the job as head of the Alumni Office, was bogged down in the detail of "organized confusion."

General coordination seems to have suffered with the growth of the MSU bureaucracy. Too often the right hand doesn't seem to know what the left hand is doing. And what is worse, different departments seem to pursue their own work without an inquisitive interest into just how it will affect someone else's plans.

Add to all this a growing tendency to forget the reasons why rules were made, and instead to let the rules become reasons in themselves, and you have what could be the birth of a malfunctioning bureaucracy.

We've got more faith in the "officials on the first floor" than that.

In this case, the question of student sponsorship was very much a technical one. And unless for some reason the technicality was serving a desirable end, the committee

McDonel Council Speaks

To the Editor:

During the past few weeks, many persons have taken the liberty to criticize McDonel Hall and its advisory staff, namely Mr. Emery Cummins. The most prolific of these antagonists has been the AUSG Congress -- both its leaders and its members. With McDonel Hall flat on its back, AUSG, instead of offering a helping hand, took this opportunity to step all over us.

We do not deny that Mr. Cummins' decision to postpone the AUSG election was arbitrary -- but we entirely and wholeheartedly supported his position then and still do. McDonel Hall was barely ready for occupancy, let alone political activity when it opened. No thanks to AUSG we are finally starting to shape up.

We at McDonel are not at all impressed or awed by the magnificent AUSG Congress. It has been two-faced in this entire matter. Two-faced because in one breath they are calling for cooperation and communication between AUSG and the students; in the next breath they alienate 630 students by calling its resident advisor on the carpet for doing what he, his staff, and the presidents council think was right and proper.

If the AUSG Constitution is so rigid that it can't make allowance for such extenuating circumstances as the opening of a residence hall four weeks before it is ready, we suggest AUSG do some investigating of itself.

What is the role of AUSG-- is it to support and help a new hall become an integral part of MSU, or is it to harass and hinder it in every conceivable way? Is its purpose to educate the students on vacancies in AUSG, or to rush through an election before necessary machinery is established? Is its purpose to represent the students on campus or simply to represent itself?

One last note: we recall that last year, when Wilson Hall opened, a similar situation developed. We wonder, what will AUSG do for excitement when there are no new residence halls being opened?

Defeatism

To the Editor:

Too much is asked for when people are told to accept traditional beliefs and current ideas on God without doubting or questioning.

The discussion on God has been very confused and I submit that a different outcome would have been a miracle. We do not have the necessary thought processes and language with which to do so. I suggest it will be to the advantage of everyone participating in the discussion to bear this in mind.

One disappointing thing is that the do believers have always resorted to answers and methods which even they must feel obliged to question, unless belief and faith in God excludes honesty. Must one have faith and believe in God for God to exist? Suppose one has an unquestionable faith and belief that God does not exist? Why quote from sources which presuppose the existence of God, the very thing which is questioned?

I highly doubt whether those who accuse others of "sophomorphism" do not exhibit the worst trait of blind "freshmanism." To accuse agnostics and atheists of scornful negativism just because they do not conform to traditional beliefs is a reflection of infantile defeatism which negates the positivism Miss Miller would like us to cultivate.

Sororities Group Studies Grow Into Big Homes

Many of the Greek organizations on campus now find that they have more members than room. Two sororities, Alpha Chi Omega and Alpha Delta Pi, are solving the problem by building new houses. Kappa Alpha Theta has another answer to the problem, a new annex.

This spring the small house which has served as an addition to Kappa Alpha Theta will be torn down. Construction will begin on the new annex, to be attached to the present house. The addition will almost double the size of the old house, adding 14 bedrooms, a kitchen, and a dining room.

By next fall the annex will be finished, and 303 Oakhill will be big enough for Kappa Alpha Theta.

A special committee to study the problems of school dropouts will probe the effects of a one-year raise in the compulsory school age to 17.

Lynn Bartlett, state superintendent of public instruction, said Monday that the committee will send questionnaires to the school superintendents throughout the state polling the changes anticipated by such a program.

The present law requires youths to attend school until the age of 16.

Alex Canja, administrative assistant, said that this is the first time in 50 years that there has been a proposal to establish the compulsory school attendance age at anything other than 16.

Should the one-year increase be put in effect it will definitely cost more money, Canja said.

The answers to the questionnaires should hint at the probable cost of the venture for each district, he added.

"Even now we have a problem of getting enough good and qualified teachers," Canja said. "If the proposal is effected we would either have to get a lot more teachers or enlarge the classes."

Canja said that the State Bar Association felt the extension of the compulsory age for attendance would bring a student so close to graduation that he may choose to stay until he gets his diploma.

The main concern of the committee at the moment is to poll the reactions and the changes that would develop as a result of the program, Canja said. "We want to get figures on the situation and the changes that it would require, so we can present something concrete to the legislature and the State Bar Association," he said.

John X. Jamrich, associate dean of the College of Education, said that there is a very sharp dropout after the age of 16. The extension of the compulsory school age is one of the easiest ways of tackling the problem, he said.

"However, this in only step one of a series of three or four steps involved in solving the problem," Jamrich said.

Jamrich noted as two major reasons for dropout: the lack of required attendance after the age of 16, and the fact that some students don't find their place in the school program.

"This is a tough problem," he said. "We must find a quality program and at the same time an interesting one to encourage them to stay in school."

Drilling Rig Nears 11 Trapped Miners

BROISTEDT, Germany (AP)—Eleven German miners Monday night were sweating out their 11th day in a narrow underground prison while a giant bit drilled a rescue shaft overhead.

Their lifeline was a narrow shaft, drilled Sunday to the mine chamber where they are trapped 196 feet under the surface.

Throughout it they were being fed grated carrots, chicken broth, porridge and tea with glucose. They also got lamps, underwear, warm socks and air cushions. They are in touch with the surface through a telephone link.

With them are the bodies of 10 of their comrades, killed when the mine flooded Oct. 24. Nineteen other miners are missing and presumed dead, 86 escaped when the flood hit and 3 others were rescued after a shaft was bored to them last Friday.

"They are laughing and joking. They are just like little boys," said Mrs. Siegfried Ebeling, 27, wife of one of the trapped men. She spoke with her husband through the telephone link Monday.

On the surface, rescuers pressed efforts to get them out, possibly by Wednesday. A giant, American-built drilling rig stopped work on a rescue shaft after reaching a depth of 135 feet and work was begun on lining the shaft with concrete. Then boring was being resumed.

Plans were laid to start another shaft, through which the men could be supplied with tools in case the rescue shaft misses its target. The trapped men would then work from below to reach it.

The trapped 11 were given up for dead last Friday along with 29 others.

The 11 were contacted early Sunday through the narrow shaft after miners had insisted there was a possibility of more survivors. The rescue touched off a bitter dispute between miners and management. The workers were asking why it had taken so long to discover additional survivors.

Mine Manager Rudolf Stein said drilling was started as soon as management became aware of other possible survivors on Saturday.

The men below were said to be in good spirits. A spokesman said they were working in two shifts to reinforce the roof of their chamber with steel rods and layers of plastic lowered through the small shaft.

Morocco, Algeria Calm After 3 Days Of Shelling

FIGUIG, Morocco (AP)—Both sides ceased firing on the disputed Morocco-Algeria frontier Monday. A precarious calm settled over this Moroccan oasis where three days of artillery and mortar shelling took 20 lives and wounded 20 civilians.

Monday morning, Algerian troops on surrounding mountain ridges received a radio order to stop shooting. The order was issued after the arrival of a Mali Republic staff officer dispatched to supervise the truce.

In Rabat, the Moroccan government appealed for a quick meeting of the Organization of African Unity (OAU) after the heavy fighting at Figuig.

Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, instrumental in working out a cease-fire agreement in Bamako, Mali, last Wednesday, arrived in Cairo for talks with President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic. There were indications Selassie would try to discourage any further U.A.R. military help for Algeria.

Both sides blamed the other for truce violations and demanded that the matter be investigated by the neutral truce commission of officers from Mali and Ethiopia.

Two Mali commission officers began functioning in the front lines Sunday, but the Ethiopian members have not yet reached Algeria. The Mali officers happened to be in Algeria as members of a Mali delegation to the Nov. 1 Algerian independence celebrations, and were quickly pressed into service as truce observers.

The cease-fire was only a part of the Bamako agreement. There still was serious doubt when and how the other provisions of the agreement would become operative.

Moroccan Foreign Minister Ahmed Balafrej called for a meeting of African foreign ministers in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, to consider the border dispute. Such a meeting, long demanded by Algeria's President Ahmed Ben Bella, was provided for in the Bamako agreement.

Democrats Urge Speedy Fiscal Reform

A resolution urging quick action on fiscal reforms in Michigan and reiterating the Democratic party's position on Michigan's financial condition was passed by the Michigan Democratic Central Committee Sunday.

At a meeting in the Union, the committee turned its attention to fiscal reform after first passing a resolution endorsing a campaign to provide tenure to all teachers in Michigan.

The fiscal resolution reaffirmed the party's support for true fiscal reform and urged the legislature to take action on the present tax bills.

An amendment to the resolution was also passed which said that any tax program should include a state income tax, repeal of the sales tax on food and drugs, repeal of the intangible tax, repeal of the business activities tax, and state wide reform on real estate assessment procedures.

Geist and Laurel Leuhrig, English department, and Daniel Rider, American Thought and Language department, will begin planning an integrated course of English composition and teaching for education majors planning to teach in high school, she said.

Miss Rusk said the program will have three parts; the first year will be designing the course, the second will be evaluating the students.

Viet Nam Government

(continued from page 1) had committed suicide in captivity of rebel troops. But more credence was given to unofficial accounts that said Diem was shot and Nhu stabbed to death by the rebels.

Saigon was beginning to bustle again with normal, everyday activity. Businesses reopened and government offices functioned again.

Reports circulated in Saigon that a third Ngo Dinh brother-- Ngo Dinh Can--was killed over the weekend at Hue, 400 miles north of Saigon. The reports could not be confirmed. Under a mandate of President Diem, Can ruled over the central Vietnamese provinces.

Latest official reports said only that Can's mansion in Hue was under heavy military guard and there was no indication of his fate.

Nguyen Ngoc Tho

Two managed to hang on in the Diem regime, despite his generally moderate political views. He was respected and liked even by bitter opponents of the government.

An economist, career civil servant and experienced mediator, he seems to meet the test of key officials laid down by the new military junta: "They must be technicians, not politicians."

Tho is 55, very short and balding. Although he used to have to attend certain public Roman Catholic masses with Diem, he is a Buddhist.

Tho became a civil servant in South Viet Nam under the French colonial regime in 1930 and rose slowly through the ranks. The French named him chief of his home province in 1948, and he continued in the post until Viet Nam fought its way to independence in 1954.

When Ngo Dinh Diem formed his first interim cabinet on July 6, 1954, Tho was named interior minister. He held the post for two months, then was sent abroad as ambassador to Japan. On May 16, 1956, Diem appointed Tho minister of economy and on the following Dec. 24 raised him to the vice presidency.

There were some who said Diem had two prime tools for use as the situation demanded-- his brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu, for use when direct force was needed, and Tho, for use when moderation and conciliation were needed.

44-Yarder Did It 'New' Job For Lattimer

By JEROME CAPLAN
State News, Sports Editor

Somersaulting guard Earl Lattimer has himself a new job. Actually the ex-fullback's job isn't exactly new, but now it's permanent and official. "I'll use Lattimer first on field goal tries," said Spartan Football Coach Duffy Daugherty Monday afternoon. Daugherty had been giving the first chance in each game to soccer-style kicker Lou Bobich. "Lou has been trying too hard and his kicks are going off to the left," said Daugherty commenting on Bobich's two field goals in nine attempts. "Lattimer is much better in games than he is in practice sessions," Daugherty added. "Last spring Bobich was kicking longer and with more accuracy. He even kicked a 57-yard field goal—that's one yard further than the pro records—during a scrimmage," Daugherty said. While Lattimer's foot may have earned him a new job, it may also keep him from working at the new position. "We don't know how it happened, but his foot began to swell after the Wisconsin game. I just hope he's ready by Saturday," said Daugherty. Lattimer booted a 44-yard field goal against Wisconsin and a 47-yarder against Northwestern two weeks ago. He has missed on just one attempt. Bobich will continue to handle punting and kick-off chores, as well as playing in the defensive secondary. Lattimer, who has been somersaulting out of the State huddle on several occasions, has been a standout on offense, at guard, and on defense, at linebacker, all season. Last week Daugherty said he didn't think there was a better guard in the conference than Lattimer.

"Earl exemplifies this team's desire and hustle," said the coach. "This team has to hustle to win and hustle has made them a fairly decent team." "I've never had a team at State with more enthusiasm than this one. The co-captains, Dan Underwood and Sherman Lewis, are

Annual IM Trot Wednesday

The annual Turkey Trot is scheduled for Wednesday at 5 p.m. on Old College field. Men may run on a team or individually. The teams will represent residence halls, precincts, fraternities or any independent group of individuals. Any number of men can run for a team and the first four men of any group across the finish line will be considered the team of that group. Last year a total of 23 teams and more than 200 individuals participated in the run. Each team must provide a name card or a sign at least 3" x 5" to be worn by each runner. All teams entered must be present at a scratch meeting to be held this afternoon in 208, Men's IM Building at 4:30 p.m. The Turkey Trot course is one mile in length. The Intramural Department urges all participants to run the course at least twice, and would also like to remind all students that they must receive a physical examination, or have had a physical examination no later than September of 1963. The Health Clinic will give physicals to any student reporting that he is running in the Trot. All entries are due in the IM office at 4:30 p.m. today. All participants are reminded that no track shoes or warm-up shoes are allowed. In doubt of eligibility contestants should contact the Intramural Office. Spectators are requested to stay behind the green fence in front of the bleachers. Fans can see the start and the finish from the stands. The prize will be awarded as follows: The first three individual finishers will receive a 20 lb. turkey, as will the first team winner. The second and third team finishers will each receive a 15 lb. turkey. The four members of teams one and two will each receive medals. The last individual completing the course will receive a Goose Egg.

Varsity Wins A-V-F Homecoming Swim

The eighth annual Michigan State Alumni, Varsity, Freshmen Homecoming Triangular Swimming Meet held last Saturday ended with the Varsity holding the upper hand. The final score was Varsity 124, Alumni 113, and freshmen 106. Nine records either fell by the wayside or were tied in the friendly, but spectacular Spartan contest, which wasn't decided until the last event. Jack Seibold tutored the Alumni, swimming coach Charles McCaffree had the Varsity, and Richard Fetters was in charge of the freshmen entrants. Varsity members who broke or tied existing meet records were Jim MacMillan, in the 100-yard Individual Medley, with a 57.9 timing; Lee Driver, 50-yard Breaststroke, :29.6; Mark Hunt, 50-yard Flying Fish, :27.8; and

Kenny Mindful Of Soccer Finale

Everybody has his one wish, including soccer Coach Gene Kenney. Kenney, who has guided Spartan booters to an amazing seven-year record of 59 wins, six losses, and three ties, longs for still another victory—his first over St. Louis. Five opportunities and five defeats have passed, leaving the M-U head man hankering to see what Saturday's meeting with St. Louis on the home soccer field will bring. "I would think that we are a decided underdog in this game," said Kenney. "In fact, I don't know of any game St. Louis has played in five years of varsity competition in which they haven't been favored. "But I've never gone into a match thinking we're going to lose," he said, "and I surely won't Saturday." Kenney feels his outfit will be up for the game but it'll take 100 per cent effort by each and every man. "I'm sure the boys want this game as badly as I do," Kenney said. "I think beating St. Louis will help this young team quite a bit. "We've come along quite fast, much faster than I expected," said Kenney. "Plus this year's team has the best spirit of any we've ever had."

Aid For Olympics Coming To State

The East Lansing Post Office may be handling $350,000 more than usual in the next few months. That is the amount that the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) has agreed to raise as their contribution to the fund to send the United States delegation to the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo, Japan. The money is coming to East Lansing to the office of Clarence "Biggie" Munn, Michigan State Athletic Director, and Natural Chairman for the drive. The Olympic teams are not supported from government funds in the United States. Donations, which are tax deductible, may be sent to the NCAA Olympic Fund, East Lansing, Michigan. "We are not limiting our appeal to college students and alumni," said Munn. Contributions are sought from all those who enjoy watching sports and who wish to further America's athletic programs. "Michigan State has always been a leader in bringing in contributions," Munn said. "In the last campaign for the 1960 Olympics in Rome, State was second only to Southern California in the amount given."

Puff Game Upcoming

The annual Delta Gamma-Gamma Phi Beta Powder Puff Football game will be played on Nov. 16 at 10 a.m. The place for the game has not yet been decided.

This contest, a ten year tradition, is played on a 60 yard field. The girls are coached in the IM football rules by Beta Theta Phi and Sigma Chi fraternities.

The game is held as a part of Dads' Day for both houses. The fathers of the senior girls in both houses choose a queen from boys dressed as girls submitted by fraternities on campus. This "lovely" queen is crowned at halftime ceremonies.

Boilermaker Preview For 'News' Readers

Jim Lopeman, sports editor of the Purdue Exponent, reported late Monday afternoon that the Boilermakers are showing no sign of a letdown following their 41-21 loss to Illinois Saturday.

Lopeman will be writing a preview of what MSU fans can expect from Purdue for Friday's edition of the State News.

According to Lopeman, Purdue quarterback Ron DiGravio will be ready for action come Saturday afternoon. DiGravio twisted his ankle during the Boilermaker-Illinois game and is taking it easy during practice sessions this week.

Expected to be ready for action is senior right end Don Brooks. Brooks also was injured in the Illinois game.

Lopeman attributed Purdue's bad showing against the Illini to several factors, including the weather. "It was the first time this season that it was so cold and this may have been the cause of some of our fumble problems," he said.

The Boilermakers fumbled five times during the game and Illinois converted four of the miscues into touchdowns.

Emmons 'Parents' Aid Chinese Boy

Last February Emmons Hall "adopted" a six-year-old Hong Kong boy through the Foster Parents Plan.

Today Chow Wai Sun is attending first grade and hopes to become a doctor through the students' support.

"We consider this one of the most worthwhile things Emmons has done," Bill Blackburn, Em-mons special projects chairman, said. "We are the first and only group on campus to do this."

The youngster writes to his "parents" through the translation services of Foster Parents Plan.

Through the plan, Emmons provides Wai Sun with clothing, blankets, linen, food packages, medical care and education, plus $8 in cash every month. His family also receives clothing and household equipment.

Wai Sun and his two younger sisters live with their parents in a 6 by 7 foot shack with an attached 3 by 4 foot cubicle for cooking purposes. Their father works in a plastic factory, earning $19.25 a month, while their mother makes plastic flowers and sews gloves at home for an additional $5.20 a month.

CHEATED BY YOUR MEMORY?

A celebrated publisher in Los Angeles reports of a new and simple system for you to acquire a memory so powerful that it works like magic to give you greater popularity, stimulating self-confidence, and solves problems of business, financial, and social success.

According to this publisher, most people do not realize how much they could influence a vast majority of others simply by remembering and retaining accurately everything they read, see or hear. Whether in business or at social gatherings, even in every-day conversations with old and new acquaintances, there are ways you can command each situation by your ability to recall everything from memory.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing the art of remembering names, faces, words, numbers, long lists of difficult data or even endless lines of important information, the publishers have printed full details of their exciting self-training methods in a new book, "Adventures to Remember," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Simply send your request to: Memory Institute, 661 Crenshaw, Dept. 713, Los Angeles 5, Calif. A post-card will do.

Dean of Students staff was there. "Because he is a well-known student leader, he was recognized and asked to appear before student judiciary," Fuzak said.

"Generally, students who rent the apartment are held primarily responsible for a party unless another student is specifically recognized by a staff member. Because he is a prominent student leader, Blanchard was recognized."

Fuzak said his party received by Blanchard was not at all unusual in many cases. "We try to leave the Student Judiciary the widest latitude possible in determining cases. You simply cannot have a blanket rule, although it would be easier in making judgment. For example, would you say that someone who merely attended a party was just as guilty as someone who supplied all the liquor?"

Alexander said the decision concerning Blanchard was "probably the most unbiased of all."

"As a matter of fact, the judges received many abusive phone calls over this particular case. About a third of them wanted us to let him off without any penalty, and a third said to 'get' him. The other third told us to stand up for our rights against the Dean of Students office. We dealt with this student just as we would with any other."

Both Fuzak and Alexander emphasized that Blanchard's case had absolutely nothing to do with the reconvening of Student Judiciary. "I think this is illustrated by the fact that the only decision which was changed involved another student," Alexander said.

The release of information by Fuzak on this Student Judiciary case was unusual because of a policy which states that disciplinary matters are confidential between the student and the University.

"This policy is a good one, because it protects the student and allows him to say what he wants to," Fuzak said. "However, the information was released in this case because of certain rumors which cast doubt on the integrity of the Student Judiciary. It was necessary to dispel these rumors with the facts."

Rutledge To Speak

Aaron Rutledge will speak on "Human Need and Personal Conflict" at 4 p.m. Wednesday in the Erickson Hall Kiva, in the second Provost Lecture of the term.

Rutledge is Head of the Counseling and Psychotherapy Program of the Merrill-Palmer Institute of Human Development and Family Life in Detroit.

Currently American Association of Marriage Counselors president, Rutledge is also past president of the National Council on Family Relations.

MSU Language Studies Tops

Michigan State has emerged as one of the nation's foremost centers of foreign language study, especially for the languages of Asia, Latin America, and the new nations of Africa.

This year 5000 students are enrolled in foreign language courses, said Stanley Townsend, chairman of the foreign languages department. The biggest jumps, he said, have been in the African languages, and perhaps ironically, Greek and Latin.

"Three of the world's outstanding African language authorities are on the MSU faculty," said Townsend, "and the University's Oriental language program is noted for its comprehensive training in Chinese."

Jack Berry, formerly professor of West African languages at the University of London, is a new member of the MSU African Studies Center. He teaches the newly offered course in Twi, a Ghanaian language.

Charles H. Kraft, who joined the MSU faculty last summer as assistant professor of foreign

Scale Model Cattle To Be At Museum

Plaster scale models of 10 breeds of beef cattle are soon to be on exhibit at the University Museum.

The models, scaled two inches to the foot, are the first of a planned series of reproductions of all major breeds of livestock, including horses, swine, sheep and goats. This project is in cooperation with the department of animal husbandry.

Breeds of cattle represented are Black Angus, Short Horn, White-faced Hereford, Polled Hereford, Red Poll, Santa Gertrudis, Brahma, Texas Longhorn, Aurochs, and Ankol.

There is a great variation in facial characteristics, horns, and history of these breeds.

The Aurochs, for example, is now partially extinct. Although many modern day domestic cattle were bred from this strain, only a few true specimens are left.

They are protected in Germany much as the American bison is protected here.

Carlton Angell made three of the plaster models. Angell, a retired sculptor from the University of Michigan, died in 1961.

John W. Hope, MSU Museum staff artisan and sculptor then completed the remaining seven.

Alumni, through the MSU Development Fund financed this project.

Wylie said the present socialist movement in African countries is misunderstood by Americans as a movement towards Communism. He says it is a social revolution in an emerging society.

He said the Africans want independence, to "take their own course."

The present pro-Soviet and pro-Chinese movements arise from fear of a "neocolonialism" that could replace the European rule of the past. Wylie said the Africans want their own economy and a voice in the world market.

Wylie said living standards, especially outside the cities, are low. Infant mortality is greater than 50 per cent, and is only slightly higher after 5 years. The government supplies free medical care, but often the people do not know about it and consequently do not get proper treatment.

Peace Corps life in Sierra Leone is not easy, he said. Living conditions in the city are crowded, and the bush worker, the Peace Corpsman who does manual labor, lives in native houses five days of the week and carries what is called a "p.c.," a kit that contains the necessities for remaining alive under strenuous conditions.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—A California family traveling through Arizona took a nose count and came up one child short.

They back-tracked 12 miles and found one of their five children waiting at a service station where the family had stopped earlier.

Business Booming For Xerox

Xerox, the library copying service, has made an average of 15,000 copies a month during the two years it has been in use.

At the beginning of a term the average is about 6,000 copies a month, but it jumps to as high as 20,000 by the term's end.

On of Xerox's main uses is copying a chapter or article from a book or magazine which is not circulating.

Students and faculty alike use the service.

The cost is 10 cents per page. Only one chapter per book or one article from a magazine may be copied and only one copy may be made.

Students who rush in to have their driver's license, passport, or class notes copied will be disappointed because Xerox is limited to library materials only.

The time involved in making a Xerox copy is negligible. All a student must do is take the book or article to be copied to the Xerox desk and have the attendant copy it. It takes about a minute. After signing a paper which states that the holder of the copy will obey all copyright laws and paying the 10 cents per page, the student may go home and read at his leisure.

Counselors Talk Here

What are the influences in a child's life which result in his choice of a career?

How is a child prepared for a world in which career possibilities are continually changing?

These questions, and others, are being discussed at a two-day meeting of 650 Michigan school counselors at Kellogg Center.

Donald E. Super, Professor of education at Columbia University, will speak on "Vocational Development at Age 14, 17 and 25" this morning.

The conference is being sponsored by the Michigan Counselors Association.

Grand Slam The King Of Chi Omega

A coed pushes her chair back from the dinner table. "Someone for bridge?" she asks. The response is enthusiastic, for the place is the Chi Omega sorority house.

The bridge fad at the house "has gotten so, to make you feel like one of the crowd, you just have to learn to play bridge," according to Sue Read, LaGrange Park, Ill., sophomore.

The Chi Omega sisters play a few hands of bridge as a study break, before sorority meetings, before dinner, and about an hour after dinner every evening.

Karen Gaubis, Detroit senior, explained that during dinner the girls make signals across the tables and before the meal is over they know who they will be playing with that evening.

One coed believes bridge is a good social skill to learn. When men and women do not know each other and do not know what to say, they can play bridge. Occasionally, when the house visits a fraternity for a desert, a bridge game is started.

While most of the girls play for pleasure, some take the game very seriously. A few of them have played in bridge tournaments. Some Chi Omega sisters watch the bridge championships on Sunday and have read Goren's books on the subject.

One group in the sorority is trying to think up some new rules for their bridge game. They are considering a handicap of some kind to make the game more difficult.

The girls don't feel that the game interferes with their studies.

YR Organization Meeting Tonight

The Young Republicans will hold an organizational meeting tonight at 7:30 in Old College Hall at the Union.

The purpose of the meeting is to organize the club along more democratic lines, said Jim Dewey, president.

Certain groups in the past have felt that the club was too monolithic, but after the reorganization, the power will be distributed more evenly, he said.

FOURTH FOR BRIDGE, ANYONE?—Studying hands are Bonnie Peters, Evanston, Ill. sophomore; Jennifer White, Detroit junior; and Jan Woodburne, Bay City junior.

cs. "When it is time, girls will begin to leave for the study room," said Miss Gaubis, "but my conscience still bothers me sometimes."

Some feel the bridge fad grew out of the pinocle fad of a few years ago. "It's almost like a disease once you get started on it," according to Miss Read.

One girl said that Chi Omega plays bridge instead of sitting around drinking coffee or some other pastime. Another felt that it acted as a nervous release. The girls smoke and talk while playing.

Bridge is played upstairs in the girls' rooms, where they sit on the floor and play without a table. There may be as many as six games going at one time, and one girl may play with as many as 14 or 15 others during a week.

Pledges are not required to play, but find they are soon learning. Newcomers are taught by sitting in with another girl.

Education Talk Tonight

John X. Jamrich, professor and associate dean of education, will speak on "The Problems of the Growing University" in the Erickson Hall Kiva at 4:15 p.m. Tuesday.

Jamrich will consider the decisions which the growing demand for higher education is forcing Michigan colleges, and MSU in particular, to make. He will include the problems of administrative structure, student recreation and housing, and instruction.

Jamrich was among the first to urge State to consider the problems of a growing college-eligible population. This past year he spoke to the academic council on the need for a progressive Educational Development Project.

The lecture, one of the programs sponsored by Kappa Delta Pi, student education honorary, has been opened to the public because of its interest and pertinence to the student body.

SHAW WINNER: East Shaw Hall won first place in the men's residence division of the homecoming float competition with a scene depicting a Wisconsin Badger in a Spartan trap. Case Hall took top honors in the co-educational residence division with a Badger in a guillotine.

Revamp Job Recruiting To Meet Ph D Demand

Doctoral candidates who will earn their Ph.D.'s by the end of summer term are urged to take advantage of fall interviewing at the Placement Bureau.

Donald Harden, assistant director of education for the Placement Bureau, said the supply of doctoral students being interviewed this fall has not been equal to employer demand.

During the first three weeks of fall recruiting, nearly 35 percent of the 198 companies interviewing at the Placement Bureau have asked for doctoral candidates as well as students of other degree levels. Harden said only 12 per cent of the employers had been able to interview doctoral candidates because of the short supply.

"The demand is particularly great for Ph.D. candidates in the technical fields from the Colleges of Engineering and Natural Science," Harden said. "However, we urge that doctoral students in all fields take advantage of the fall interviewing. The best jobs for next year will be filled during this interviewing period."

Ph.D. candidates can make an appointment for interviewing simply by calling the Placement Bureau. Unlike other students, they are not required to visit the bureau in person to make appointments.

Harden said this term is the prime interviewing time for doctoral students. The interviewing will taper off winter term, he said, and become practically non-existent spring term with the exception of employers from education.

Noted Orchestra Here Wednesday

The Cleveland Orchestra under the direction of George Szell will appear in concert in the Auditorium, Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. The distinguished 100-member orchestra, which has been called the finest in the nation, is a lecture-concert presentation.

George Szell has been musical director of the orchestra since 1946. Under his baton, the orchestra has performed throughout the United States and Europe to wide critical acclaim.

In his appearance at Michigan State, Szell will present the orchestra in a performance of Mozart's Symphony No. 41 in C major, K.551, "The Jupiter"; William Walton's "Variations on a Theme by Hindemith"; and the Moussorgsky-Ravel "Pictures at an Exhibition."

The "Jupiter" symphony, written three years before his death, was Mozart's last symphony, written three years before his death, was Mozart's last symphonic composition. In its majestic formality and marvelous contrapuntal finale the symphony reveals the "final subtlety of an immensely experienced artist, in the words of British music critic, the late Sir Donald Tovey.

Discuss White Collar Unions

The future of white collar unionization will be discussed by about 30 business, industrial and public employment personnel officers at a Kellogg Center conference Wednesday.

Albert A. Blum, associate director of the School of Labor and Industrial Relations will report on a survey. Marshall Garvey, Kalamazoo attorney, will present a business and industry viewpoint, and Nicholas Buian of Detroit Michigan, Civil Service Commission supervisor, will give a public employer's view of the unionization of white collar workers.

The conference is being sponsored by the School of Labor and Industrial Relations.

Friendliness Here Stands Out

MSU Impresses Foreigners

American friendliness, basic college courses, and racial problems are among the things that impress foreign students at MSU.

Carlos Arias, Costa Rica graduate student, who is working on a masters degree in communication, said, "My family and I have been pleased to find the American people so friendly that we feel as if we have only moved to another town in our country."

"I also have been surprised by the interest in Latin American and its problems and the desire to learn Spanish. This will aid in breaking down the barriers between countries," he added.

A graduate assistant in the Accounting and financial administration department, Hub Johan Muller of The Netherlands, was surprised to find that MSU undergraduates take basic college courses. In Holland, student's specialize immediately.

Muller hopes his country will attempt to start a graduate assistant program similar to that at MSU.

An Indian born in South Africa, Kogila Moodley, is here on a fellowship with the Institute of International Education. She is working on a masters degree in sociology.

Miss Moodley was surprised to find the racial problems of South Africa and the US so similar, although the South African situation is worse.

Sahebeh Mohseny-Ghuipayegani, a petite brunette from Iran, is here studying English for three months. She has found her work in the Brody cafeteria helpful because she is able to practice English and learn the names of American foods.

Deogratias Kamatari, Burundi, Africa, freshman in political science spoke only a few words of English when he arrived in the US. At the American Language Institute, Washington, D.C., he learned to speak fluent English in 10 months.

Out-Of-State

Both Fuzak and Idzerda stressed the lack of adequate facilities for higher education in many other states.

Do out-of-state students take places that belong to Michigan students when they attend Michigan's state-supported schools? Part two of this series will examine this question.

The Michigan students here learn a great deal from those who come from other states and foreign countries, he said.

However, the state-supported schools in Michigan do owe allegiance to the taxpayers of the state, he said.

Stanley J. Idzerda, director of the Honors College, said he feels a great land-grant university should have a national function as well as a state function.

"One must ask whether or not a major university doesn't have a legitimate national and even international role," he said.

Refreshments will be served.

SOC Meets Tonight

Students Off Campus will have their third general meeting at 7:30 tonight in 33 Union.

All committees and their chairmen should meet at this time.

World Carnival Ball

"World Carnival" will be the theme of this year's international Club Ball, Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Union Ballroom.

The theme will highlight some of the festivals and holidays celebrated around the world.

Native dance music, such as the limbo, the highlife, and Latin American numbers, will be played by Bob Barube's band.

The ball, which is an annual event, was initiated by the club to bring the customs and costumes of other countries to the campus.

Faculty and guests are asked to wear native dress, as a costume fashion show will be held during the evening.

Tickets for "World Carnival" are on sale at the U.N. Lounge, the Union ticket office, and Owen Graduate Center.

The International Club, which functions as an organizing agency for the individual nationality clubs on campus, is observing its 20th year of service.

The club is the largest voluntary group on campus.

Arena Theatre Transforms Coed To Young Duchess

One week a student, next week a highly sophisticated duchess.

The young lady who is making this change is Christine Bergstrom. Her sudden change in character stems from the fact that she has the lead role in "The Duchess of Malfi" to be presented Wednesday in the Arena Theatre series.

Chris finds the part "challenging, because the portrayal of the Duchess as a woman of earthy quality is hard for me to do on stage."

It is difficult to acquire the right amount of spontaneous actions needed to make the Duchess seem real.

"Because I have done so little with the theater, the experience of working with the Performing Arts Company has been invaluable to me. They are marvelous actors and very stimulating. I have been working hard to arrive at the same level of these people."

Mike Bloom of the University Theatre said, "Chris has definitely arrived at this level."

Chris is thrilled with her costumes in this play. First, she will appear in a lilac ball gown. The cotton and chiffon dress is accented by a low neckline and is floor length.

Later Chris will wear a pale green floor length negligee covered by an emerald green taffeta lounging coat.

This robe will also be floor length and have pale green panels for accent. Chris will wear a severe simple black dress at the play's end.

The idea of doing the play in modern dress and style appeals to Chris. "Even though the Shake-spire is played down the play has not lost its beauty," she said.

"Working with Farley Richmond and the company has been the best theatrical experience I have had and I owe at least half of what I do in the show to these people," says Chris.

A junior in retailing, Chris, originally from Massachusetts, now lives in Bloomfield Hills. Currently, her main interest is the theater and to date she has appeared in "Electra" for the University Theatre, and "Twelfth Night" for the Lansing Community Circle Players.

For her role in "Electra" last spring she received the Theta Alpha Phi best acting award.

The curtain goes up on "The Duchess of Malfi" Wednesday, at 8 p.m.

Poetry Reading In Kellogg

Arthur J.M. Smith, professor of English and poet in residence, will read some of his poems at Kellogg Center tonight at 8:15.

Smith, a Canadian, has contributed many works to the Oxford Anthology of Canadian Verse. The program is part of the Kellogg Center Series.

Three Beta Pi Girls Go Active

The Beta Pi chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority activated three new members recently.

They are Connie Parker, Winnetka, Ill., sophomore; Betsey Schmeck, Birmingham sophomore; Carol Schindhammer, Grosse Pointe Woods sophomore.

ASME Meeting

A meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers (ASME) will be held today in 146 Engineering.

Fred Johnson from Collins radio will speak on the position of mechanical engineers in the electronics field.
