Breslin Sees Quick Budget Approval Managers, Unionites To Meet

Secretary Jack Breslin predicted Wednesday that Michigan's $131 million higher education budget will sail through the senate pretty much intact.

The bill, which will come to the floor next week, was recommended by Gov. George W. Romney and his department of administration.

It was reported out of the senate appropriations committee late Tuesday. The committee action came as a surprise to most Capital observers.

Until about noon Tuesday, Republican Senate Caucus Chairman Stanley Thayer of Ann Arbor had predicted sharp cuts would be made in both the MSU and University of Michigan budgets. If passed MSU would get $39,566,833 and U-M $44,086,139.

"I believe this bill will pass the Senate intact," Breslin said. "This is a very generous budget recommendation and we need every penny of it."

After passage the bill must go to the house ways and means committee, he added.

"I am hopeful the committee will take the Senate's recommendations," he said. "I don't know if it will be cut so we will just have to wait and see what happens."

The budget increase of $44 million is increase of $7,205,000 over last year's MSU budget allocation.

The MSU budget is divided up three ways. Increases of

Enrollment Prompted Approval

By OYARS BALCERS State News Staff Writer

Recognition of the significance of increasing enrollment at the state's universities prompted the senate appropriation committee to recommend complete adoption of Gov. George Romney's budget for higher education, a leading Republican senator said Tuesday night.

Sen. Frank D. Beadle, R-St. Clair, said that there was increasing feeling that greater recognition must be given to the booming enrollment.

The state senate Wednesday moved the budget bills to priority consideration by moving them to the head of the senate discussion calendar.

Beadle explained his action: "In the past we have had complaints that there wasn't enough time to consider the budget."

After taking this action, the senate laid over debate on the bills to at least today.

Beadle said that the recent feud waged between MSU and

Managers, Unionites To Meet

Wage Dispute Major Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson stepped into the lengthy railroad work rules dispute Wednesday after the threat of a nationwide strike erupted amid a flurry of bitter charges between unions and management.

Johnson directed Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz to call top negotiators of both sides into conference Wednesday night in an attempt to halt the threatened walkout of more than 300,000 workers on nearly 200 railroads.

The strike threat, mostly over wage issues, grew out of a surprise strike by four train operating unions against the Illinois Central Railroad early Wednesday.

Chief railroad negotiator J. E. Wolfe called it "typical of the unions' continued irresponsibility in the featherbedding dispute." He announced the railroads would respond by imposing disputed work rules changes across the country, effective one minute after midnight today.

"The employees won't work under these rules," a union spokesman said in Chicago.

The spokesman, Assistant Grand Chief Engineer A. F. Zimmerman of the Independent Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said imposition of the work rules on a nationwide basis would "amount to a national lockout and we have only one defense--to cease working."

"It would be our position that the carriers by promulgating these rules are themselves precipitating the possibility of a nationwide strike."

Wolfe, who has insisted that negotiations be carried on at a national level, said "neither the

Long Strike Could Have Effect Here

The threatened nationwide rail walkout scheduled for 12:01 a.m. Friday could seriously affect MSU food, power and heat services if it continues long enough. "I hope the strike doesn't come," said Jesse M. Campbell, superintendent of the power plant. "We will be in a grave situation if the strike lasts any longer than 60 days."

Campbell indicated that MSU has about a 30-day supply stored at both the north and south power plants. After 30 days, coal from piles located south of Shaw Lane and the MSU spur would have to be used.

Robert Herron, food stores manager, said that the strike would not have a serious effect on MSU food shipments for some time.

"Any carload of food which is on the way must be delivered," he said. "When these deliveries are received, we will then have any new orders sent by truck."

MSU receives about 55 carloads of canned commodities and frozen foods each year by rail. Enough is stockpiled to handle any immediate problems caused by the strike.

Before the 1950 nation-wide rail strike was settled, Campbell said, MSU's coal supply got to the point where it only would have lasted another two days.

Hearing Set On Campaign Charge

All-University Student Government presidential candidate Jerry Wallace, Cedar Springs junior, will be given an open hearing by the Elections Review Board to answer a charge of slander and libel against Elections Commissioner Gary Falkenstein, Sturgis sophomore.

Wallace had demanded that Falkenstein, a fraternity brother of AUSG presidential hopeful Bob Harris, Bryan, Ohio, junior, resign his post, charging that "Falkenstein cannot be an impartial official while his roommate is Bob Harris."

Falkenstein denied that he and Harris are roommates. Wallace also attacked the present AUSG administration, calling it a "clique which uses student government for its own purposes."

Both Harris and Falkenstein are members of the present presidential cabinet. Wallace must also answer charges of alleged campaign violations in residence halls. Falkenstein said Wallace has campaigned for more than the allowed length of time in several dorms and has also campaigned in dorms at unscheduled times.

Falkenstein also charged that Wallace failed to sign campaign handouts as required by the campaign rules.

The hearing will be held in

Econ Prof Sees Steel Trust-Busting

The federal indictment of eight giant steel companies comes as no surprise to Walter Adams, professor of economics.

U.S. Steel and other producers were accused of conspiring in secret hotel room meetings to fix prices in the carbon sheet steel business.

Adams said that the guilt or innocence of the defendants is for the courts to judge. But he believes that if they are found guilty they will "simply be fined and a few executives may even be jailed."

This will not change much, however, he said, as long as the structure of industry remains as it is.

"The only solution I see is some old-fashioned trust-busting," he said.

The steel industry has never basically been a competitive industry, according to Adams. "It has consistently followed a high, rigid, administered price policy."

Major steel companies have always played follow-the-leader and now have succeeded in pricing themselves out of world markets in opening the U.S. market to erosion by imports.

326 Student Services at 8:30 to-night.

David Harris, Benton Harbor junior, and a candidate for senior class president, will also come before the board to answer charges at 8 p.m. The meeting was closed at his request. He is charged with giving false information about himself in the campaign and with destroying campaign material of other candidates.

SOC Hears Views Of AUSG Hopefuls

The five announced candidates for the presidency of All-University Student Government spoke at a Students Off Campus meeting Tuesday night. Each pointed out several difficulties confronting AUSG in the past several years, and each offered his own solutions. The five are Bob Harris, Bryan, Ohio, junior; James Jesse, Buchanan junior; Tom Partridge, Swartz Creek junior; Jerry Wallace, Cedar Springs junior; and Herb Wingo, Buchanan sophomore.

All candidates emphasized the need to work closely with the University administration in achieving the ends of AUSG. Wingo said, "I think the administration is here for the benefit of the students. Certainly there are going to be conflicts, but the administration has shown a willingness to cooperate when there is a true representation of student opinion."

Several candidates pointed out

Romney To Reveal Redistricting Plan

Gov. George Romney has scheduled an open meeting for today to unveil his proposal for redrawing the boundaries of Michigan's 19 congressional districts.

"I'm presenting a suggested plan as a basis of discussion," the governor said at his daily news conference. "It is a plan I believe is fair; it is based on the population principle of apportionment and the districts are contiguous, of course, and as compact as can be achieved while giving primary consideration to population."

Romney would discuss no details of the plan Wednesday but said he believed "it should command public and bipartisan support."

Michigan's legislature must reappoint the Congressional seats within the next few weeks or face the prospect of an at-large election for the 19 congressional jobs.

Three U.S. district judges ruled two weeks ago the reapportionment act adopted in 1963 by the legislature--which has a population gap of more than 190,000 between the state's largest and smallest districts--was unconstitutional. They said the boundaries must be immediately redrawn to make the districts as equal as possible in population size.

Project Gemini Rocket In Orbit

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—An unmanned Project Gemini capsule was propelled into orbit by a Titan 2 rocket Wednesday and the United States got a flying start toward a goal of launching two astronauts into space in a similar craft late this year.

Analysis of data on the flight and a second unmanned firing scheduled in the summer will determine whether the manned mission will be achieved in November or December as planned.

Halls To Use 4-Man Suites

Fee, Akers Sign-Up Starts

By SUE JACOBY State News Staff Writer

Students may reserve suites in Fee and Akers Halls, Michigan State's two newest residence halls, beginning Monday.

The $6 million dorms, first buildings in a complex located at Shaw Lane and Hagadorn Road, will be the only campus residence halls to provide separate areas for sleeping and study in one suite.

Each four-man suite in the co-educational dorms will be divided between study rooms and bedrooms. Lyle Thorburn, manager of residence halls, said the plan received enthusiastic support from students who were consulted before the dorms were designed.

"Many fraternity and sorority houses successfully utilize the dormer plan, where students sleep together in one large room and have individual rooms for living," Thorburn pointed out.

"Although the plan is not entirely the same because students do not sleep together in a communal room, the idea is based on a similar principle. This is the first time it has been tried in University-owned residences." Students who already live in dormitories will have priority in signing up for suites in Fee and Akers, which will both house 1,224.

A model of the suites has been circulated in all of the residence halls on campus for student inspection. The new halls will have complete academic facilities, including a library, auditorium and classrooms.

The Colleges of Arts and Letters and Social Science will both have faculty offices in Fee and Akers.

Courses in art, English, foreign languages, history, philosophy and religion will be offered by the College of Arts and Letters.

Coup Rumors In Saigon

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—Coup rumors are circulating again in Saigon, which has seen two coups in the last five months.

One of the most vocal Saigon politicians, who declined to be identified by name, said Wednesday he would favor an entirely new government, "with none of the holdover personnel and traditions of the Ngo Dinh Diem regime" deposed last November. He said there should be a shift in power either by a coup or a national revolution.

Soviets Cite Border Violations

MOSCOW (AP)—The smoldering Soviet-Chinese border quarrel flared up Wednesday. The Russians accused the Chinese of provocatively breaching the border.

"The Chinese side," said the government news agency TASS, "has for some time continuously and systematically been violating the Soviet-Chinese border, often in a crude and provocative form."

Johnson Pays Tribute To MacArthur

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson, the last Commander in Chief of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, saluted his memory with an impressive tribute Wednesday as the celebrated soldier's body was carried to the capitol to lie in state.

It was placed on a black-draped bier in the high-domed Rotunda of the U.S. Capitol, where, last November President John F. Kennedy's body lay in state.

The Shame Of Silence

The refusal of 16 of 45 East Lansing residents to answer a State News inquiry Monday about their opinions of a proposed city fair housing ordinance seems sadly representative of a failure of too many Americans to speak out for their convictions.

Those persons who remained silent declined to take a verbal stand for various reasons--because of jobs, neighbors and friends, because housewives didn't want to discuss the issue without talking to their husbands first, because some were "undecided."

But these reasons all boil down to a greater concern for their personal images as held by others than to a belief in standing up--on one side or another--and being counted in a controversial issue.

Robert Stewart, assistant professor of sociology, offered this explanation of why many people would not discuss the issue, and in the process, pointed out a desire of so many Americans to straddle the fence on anything outside of the "safe" topics of motherhood and Americanism.

In a nation that proclaimed freedom of expression a right of every man nearly 200 years ago, it is sad that jobs and friendships might be jeopardized if people give honest opinions on sensitive subjects. It is sad that personal images count for more than honesty.

And it is indeed sad to find Americans hedging on a moral issue, discrimination, for these reasons.

The East Lansing residents who turn their backs on the controversy about a fair housing ordinance are, in the process, turning their backs on a solution to this country's great disgrace.

Controversy is inevitable in an issue as emotional as discrimination, but the exchange of beliefs in any controversy will eventually lead to understanding and, perhaps, a solution.

Merit Mix Up

The dispute between MSU and certain poorly informed critics over the National Merit Scholarship program here, in addition to being foolish and pointless, indicates a severe lack of understanding of the scholarship program's purpose.

The National Merit Scholarship Corporation employs its annual testing of high school seniors to identify the most "intellectually able," and names about one per cent of those tested as Finalists in the Merit program.

"Although NMSC considers every Finalist worthy of receiving a Merit scholarship, further selection is necessary because funds are limited," a recent NMSC report said.

Last year, approximately 1,500 Finalists were named Merit Scholars because they had been selected from the total group on the basis of certain characteristic aspects of their record.

One of the considerations was the institution which each student had named as his first choice. Many sponsored Merit Scholarships are available only to students planning to attend specific schools.

MSU and several other colleges began in 1963 to sponsor scholarships of their own through the Merit program. This was fully in line with NMSC's goals, to "serve as a meeting place where students who have demonstrated ability and determination in their quest for intellectual excellence can be introduced, as it were, to some colleges who, in their turn, are in quest of intellectually excellent students."

The charges made by the University of Michigan that MSU's sponsorship of scholarships "waters down" the value of the scholarship program are in exact contradiction to fact.

Many Finalists, all eligible to be named Merit Scholars, chose Michigan State as their first choice school. The subsequent sponsoring of scholarships was strictly according to the rules, and has worked to the ultimate achievement of NMSC's goal of providing recognition for all eligible scholars.

Activity Book Set-Up

To the Editor:

I would like to bring something to the attention of those individuals involved with the issuance of activity books--you know who you are. You are the ones with big red faces scurrying into hiding or remaining in your big offices which are protected by miles of red tape.

When I returned this spring, I began to prepare my room for a new term as I and most other students usually do. This involves filing papers, storing previous term's books and trashing the previous term's schedule as well as other obsolescent material. As I have done for the last three years, I included my activity book in this last group. Whoever thought that this term... Yes, to my extreme disgust, it was true!

Without warning from the University, our winter activity books were to be used for spring term also. Was this done purposely so that fewer students would be eligible to attend the many spring events requiring coupons?

Was it believed that this would alleviate the ticket distribution problem and simultaneously accommodate a greater paying audience? Was it a typical gross blunder on the University's behalf or, better yet, doesn't the University care? (Take your pick, any one sounds reasonable).

Needless to say, I am highly disturbed. I have been wanting to both see and hear the Detroit Symphony Orchestra concert for some time now and am extremely disappointed that I have missed it.

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra is gone, but the issue is not. I am a registered full time student and therefore am entitled to benefits. How many more activities will I miss? Why should I, as well as many other students, be penalized on the account of an unreasonable procedure of the University.

A Device For Library Safety

To the Editor:

A new invention recently developed could help MSU reduce its theft of books and magazines from the library. It is almost impossible to steal books from the Grand Rapids Ryerson Library, because an electronic sentry stands guard at the door.

Books and magazines are now "energized" at this library. Patrons must leave through a special gate, and if they leave with an energized book or magazine, a buzzer sounds an alarm.

Only when a book has been checked out at the circulation desk and "de-energized" can the patron take it through the gate without sounding the alarm.

The system, "Sentronic," was invented by E. M. Trikalis of Columbus, Ohio, president of General Nuclonics, Inc. Its use in the Grand Rapids library is reportedly the first such installation in the world.

When books are returned, they are "re-energized" before being placed back on the shelves. The process can be repeated time and time again without damaging the book or magazine.

The installation in Grand Rapids will help the library cut a $2,000 annual loss from theft. What about MSU?

Supports Brazil's Goulart

To the Editor:

While all of the Brazilian students here, and almost everyone else who is familiar with the "revolution" in Brazil is in favor of that "revolution," I am thinking that there is something very wrong with Latin-American politics in general. Because, although the United States does not "officially" intervene in their affairs, it still intervenes in other ways, not the least of which concerns the CIA.

It would be erroneous to believe that the Brazilian military was not constantly "helped" by United States' interests in Brazil, for those interests are too many and too powerful to keep out of anything which is so basic to the maintenance of those skyscrapers which hover over the slums.

To call the revolution "anti-Communist" is merely to put a label on the situation, without caring how inaccurate the label might be. The million Brazilians pouring through the streets of Rio in tumultuous celebration proves only that Brazilians love carnivals.

I should say that Goulart was the best thing that had happened to Brazil in a long time. He was politically courageous, just as Castro was, but the beard and the army uniform were not a part of his character. Brazil, the world's fifth largest country, is poverty-stricken.

Mazilli, the new leader, is a "quiet, hard-working, respectable man with conservative views"---in other words, a proponent of the status quo. United States' interests will enjoy him, but Brazil will suffer a "little left of center" under this "respectable man with conservative views" who will not have the guts to institute reforms.

The General's Words On Future Challenges

Editor's Note: The following are excerpts from the June 1961 commencement address delivered by the late General of the Army Douglas MacArthur.

The thrust into outer space of the satellite spheres and missiles marked the beginning of a new epoch in the long story of mankind--the chapter of the space age.

We deal now not with things of this world only but with the illimitable distances, and, as yet, unfathomed mysteries of the universe. We have found the "Lost Horizon." We have discovered a new and boundless frontier.

We speak now... of space ships to the moon; of the prime target in war no longer the armed forces of an enemy but instead his civil populations; of ultimate conflict between a united human race and the sinister force of some other planetary galaxy; of such dreams and fantasies as to make life the most exciting of all time.

If I were permitted but one word of advice, it would be to hold inviolate the immutable principles upon which has rested our hallowed traditions of liberty and freedom. I realize well that it is in the very nature of things that the restless spirit of youth seeks change.

But change should not be sought for the sake of change alone. It should be sought only to adapt those time-tested principles to the new requirements of an expanding society.

And overshadowing all other problems you will face, intruding upon every thought and action, encompassing all that you hold most dear, dictating not only the past but your very future, is the master problem of global war.

Now electronics and other processes of science have raised the destructive potential to encompass millions. But this very triumph of scientific annihilation--this very success of invention--has destroyed the possibility of war being a medium for the practical settlement of international differences.

The enormous destruction to both sides of closely matched opponents makes it impossible for even the winner to translate it into anything but his own disaster.

Global war has become a Frankenstein to destroy both sides. No longer can it be a successful weapon of international adventure. If you lose, you are annihilated. If you win, you stand only to lose. No longer does it possess even the chance of the winner of a duel--it contains now only the germs of double suicide.

The great question is, can global war now be outlawed from the world?

If so, it would mark the greatest advance in civilization since the Sermon on the Mount. It would lift at one stroke the darkest shadow which has engulfed mankind from the beginning.

It would not only remove fear and bring security--it would not only create new moral and spiritual values--it would produce an economic wave of prosperity that would raise the world's standard of living beyond anything ever dreamed of by man.

It may take another cataclysm of destruction to prove the bald truth that the further evolution of civilization cannot take place until global war is abolished. This is the one issue upon which both sides can agree, for it is the one issue upon which both sides will profit equally.

And until then we must be fully prepared, whatever the cost or sacrifice, lest we perish.

Democracy--Variety Of Meanings

There is one word the American people will hear and read more than almost any other in the next six months. It will fall from the lips of politicians seeking election and re-election and will be faithfully reproduced in our media of communication.

That word is democracy. What is democracy? When you think about it, it's rather difficult to define.

Democracy is one of those words whose existence is abstract. It can't be seen, heard, felt, tasted or smelled. And yet, it is a symbol of many things which can be sensed by us.

Webster defines democracy first as "government by the people, either directly or through elected representatives." Further down the list in the dictionary you can find it defined as "the acceptance and practice of equality of rights, opportunity and treatment."

What does democracy mean to you? Does your definition fall into the category of the first one in Webster, or the second, or both? Is democracy the way we are governed? Or is it the way we live? Is it the rules of government we have chosen? Or does it have within it a definite set of values, ethical values?

If democracy implies a set of moral values that a democratic society must "accept and practice" what are they? Do "democratic societies" follow them?

Democracy implicitly involves the idea that men have within them the power to reason and to act according to their reason. Do they?

Democracy is our inheritance. We owe it to ourselves to think about it. We should challenge American democracy in our minds, and then try to answer our challenges.

We should acquaint ourselves with its strong and its weak points. We should compare, contrast and analyze it in light of the world as it is.

To preserve what we believe in we must do this. What is democracy?

66-Pound 'Infant' Walking

Mom, Daughter Doing Fine

MSU Miss Vine is an unusual child. The 66-pound lass with curly black hair was already walking, although wobbly, one-half hour after her birth at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Her mother, Ankonian L. Vine, is a mere 2 1/2 years old and the little lass is her first child. Her father, Ankonian Jingo II, was the champion bull at the Denver National Western Livestock show in 1963.

The little lass had a backwards start by being born tail first, but with Amos Fox, foreman of the beef cattlebarns, and four animal husbandry students acting as midwives, both mother and daughter were reported doing fine.

Mother, father and daughter are registered Aberdeen Angus cattle. The mother was purchased by MSU from the New York Ankony Farm.

TUESDAY'S CHILD--Ankonian L. Vine poses with her first offspring, MSU Miss Vine, who was born at 5 p.m. Tuesday. The proud papa, absent from this family scene, is Ankonian Jingo II.

For about the last 15 years the people of the United States and the Soviet Union have been living in a period of religious warfare not unlike the wars during the 16th Century, an expert on the Soviet Union said Wednesday.

Alfred G. Meyer, professor of political science, currently on sabbatical leave for a year, spoke to over 200 students and faculty members in the inaugural address of this term's Provost Lecture Series.

"Communism and democracy are secular religions," Meyer said. "They too are looking for the salvation of man."

Religious wars are often phony wars, Meyer said.

"It occurs to me that religious wars often occur after the religious faith has been exhausted," he explained.

"The two major clashing ideologies, communism and democracy, are very much alike," Meyer said. "They are in fact mirror images of each other."

"Both societies are pursuing the accumulation of material wealth."

"Yet both describe the other in evil terms. The other is always dictatorial, causing all evil, using police-state methods and living under a war-psychosis." The result of such an opinion of each other has been a mutual theory of containment, Meyer said.

"The conservatives view things strictly in terms of the Cold War. They are intensely interested in prosterilizing. Their values are stability, order and authority."

"They suspect revolution at all times and fight against it." The liberals on the other hand, Meyer added, tend to take a larger view; they are willing to see shades of grey and to negotiate on points of contention.

Meyer questioned the fact that ideologies were playing a significant part in motivating the competing countries in any particular direction.

"In fact, I think ideologies are dead, empty rhetoric," he explained. "Soviet ideology is to a large extent only salesmanship or public relations."

"The Soviet Union is a conservative nation which has evolved a revolutionary ethic into a dogma and finds it embarrassing to live with."

Humanities and Social Science will both be taught in Fee and Akers.

Courses in science, mathematics and education taught in McDonel Hall will also be open to the residents of Akers and Fee. Students who sign up for Akers and Fee this year will be assured of assignment to rooms of normal occupancy with only four persons.

Although dormitory residents have priority, off-campus students may register for the new halls in H2 Brody.

Both dormitories will be completed by next September, according to Thorburn. They are slightly behind schedule now due to bad weather.

The library is also scheduled for completion next fall.

Thorburn said at least one other dormitory will be added to the complex by fall, 1965.

Ground-Breaking Friday For Packaging Building

President John A. Hannah will preside at the ground-breaking ceremony at 9:30 a.m. Friday for the new half-million dollar school of packaging building.

The ceremony will mark start of construction on the first of four units planned for the school of packaging to be located on Wilson Road, south of the Engineering building.

The single-story structure, which will house offices and laboratories for the packaging school, is expected to be completed by the end of this year.

Funds for construction of the building were provided by donations from more than 100 industrial firms to the Packaging Foundation, Inc., a nonprofit organization formed to support packaging education at MSU. Also scheduled during Friday's ceremony is presentation of a $25,000 check from General Foods Corp. to the foundation's building fund.

In addition to President Hannah, MSU's representatives at the event will be Philip J. May, vice president for business and finance; Dr. T.K. Cowden, dean of agriculture; Dr. A. J. Panshin, chairman of forest products; Dr. James W. Goff, professor of packaging; and Dr. Harold J. Raphael, associate professor of packaging.

Some 50 students from the school of packaging also will attend the ceremony.

MSU's packaging school, which offers the nation's only four-year program in packaging, is currently housed in temporary buildings on the south campus.

AUSG Candidates

that communications between the student body and AUSG have not been very good or very complete. Jesse said, "I believe the students know very little of what is going on in AUSG and the other governing bodies."

Harris proposed a regular newsletter to be published by AUSG including news of all major governing bodies on campus. Jesse and Wallace proposed similar plans.

Partridge, who is running on a reform platform, said, "We need something new. We need a program that will meet the needs of an expanded campus." He suggested holding meetings in dorm complexes and other areas where more students could attend conveniently. He proposed suggestion boxes be placed in each dormitory so students could feel they take an active part in government affairs.

Several candidates said a student discount service which would give students benefits in East Lansing stores is both feasible and necessary. Harris said he has worked with faculty members in working out a discount plan modeled after that adopted successfully at Ohio State University.

Wallace promised that within one month of his election to the presidency he would conduct a referendum to see what students think of all-University government.

Jesse outlined three steps which he would go through to improve the condition of AUSG. They are reorganization, communication and coordination. He said, "I intend to improve all AUSG services."

Wingo pointed out the "downward spiral" which has resulted from the loss of respect both of students and faculty members. He said, "AUSG has got to realize that it works within a framework as a recommending body."

Major Rail Strikes Brought Wide Change

American history has been marked by a number of railroad strikes, two of which reached such alarming proportions that federal troops were ordered to intervene.

The first began in 1877 over a wage cut on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and spread across the country to California. The young labor unions were weak, and their defeat taught the strikers the necessity of collective action.

broken by federal intervention. Although there was no immediate change in conditions, the strike produced some long-range effects. The necessity for strong organization was again demonstrated to labor; management realized the power of court injunctions in labor disputes; and the power of the federal government to remove obstacles to interstate commerce was defined.

A government attempt in 1946 to prevent strikes by seizure of the railroads failed, for engineers' and trainmen's unions throughout the nation went on strike, completely paralyzing rail transportation.

Although it lasted only 48 hours, the effects of the strike were sufficient to demonstrate the large extent to which the United States depends on its railroads despite the emergence of competing means of transportation.

In peacetime, there is no statutory means of preventing a strike provided the procedures of the Railway Labor Act have been met.

The Railway Labor Act, adopted in 1926, created a permanent board of mediation with power to mediate any dispute at the request of either party or on the board's own motion. Failures by these means to prevent a strike either go to an arbitrator, or are taken over by the President of the United States.

a national rail walkout would put some 6 million persons in related or dependent industries out of work within a month.

Wirtz called a meeting in his office at 8 P.M. (EST) Wednesday night with Wolfe and his advisory group made up of nine railroad heads, and the chiefs of the five unions involved in the five-year-old work rules dispute.

The five unions have a total membership of more than 300,000 but if they refused to run the trains, another estimated 500,000 non-operating employees would also be idled.

Such a strike would tie up virtually all the nation's trains and cripple many other industries that use the railroads.

The Commerce Department estimated in the face of a similar strike threat last year that

Registration Open Today For Leadership Conference

Registration for the student leadership conference to be sponsored by J-Council April 18 is still open today.

Principal speakers at the workshop will be Zoltan A. Ferency, chairman of the State Democratic Central Committee and James Hare, Michigan secretary of state.

Education Budget

the University of Michigan over the proper basis for appropriations did not enter into committee discussions.

Recommendation of acceptance of Gov. Romney's higher education budget as the governor had presented it, took most persons by surprise. Rumors had circulated earlier Tuesday that both MSU and U-M were to have their budgets slashed.

Another surprise move was the $1 million set aside for scholarships and loans.

"This is a trial program," Beadle said. "We want to see if it works. We believe that able students should not be prevented from attending a college or university because of lack of financial support."

The loans and scholarships would be available for students entering either state supported or private schools, Beadle said. The program will be operated under the State Higher Education Assistance Authority, he added.

"We did not want to create a special department to handle the program," Beadle said, "and decided to have the program administered by the existing authority."

The appropriations committee reported its bills to the legislature Tuesday afternoon. Tuesday midnight was the deadline for reporting bills out of committee.

According to the bills, MSU would receive $39,560,833; U-M, $44,086,139 and Wayne State, $20,127,662.

MacArthur Blamed British In Korea

NEW YORK (AP)—The late Gen. Douglas MacArthur, in a secret interview, was quoted Wednesday as saying the Chinese Communists entered the Korean war "after being assured by the British that MacArthur would be hamstrung and could not effectively oppose them."

Jim Lucas, in a copyrighted story for the Scripps-Howard newspapers, said MacArthur told him in 1954:

"On several occasions during the Korean war he had the communists in the 'palm of my hand' and could have crushed them but was circumvented by the perfidy of the British and by constant harassment and interference from Washington." Lucas added: "He referred to this as the great betrayal, a story he said was unmatched in history but 'will never be told while I am alive.'"

"He said every message he sent to Washington and every message Washington sent to him was shown to the British by the State Department and that, within 48 hours, was relayed by the British, either through India or through the Russian embassy in London, to the Chinese Communists."

"At Wake Island in October, 1950, Gen. MacArthur said, he told President Truman that if the Chinese Communists intervened in Korea, he would let them cross the Yalu River and then bomb their bridges behind them, cutting their supply lines and causing them to starve a while before being destroyed.

"He insists this strategy was relayed by the British to the Chinese Communists with assurance he (MacArthur) would not be permitted to do any such thing."

There was little immediate comment on the MacArthur interview. State Department press officer said, "I would not think of making a comment on this purported statement at any time and particularly at this time."

Civil Rights Talk Today

Ross has served on the Detroit mayor's Committee on Equal Opportunity, the Detroit Advisory Council of the American Arbitration Association, and the governor's Commission on Higher Education. He is past national treasurer of the American Council to Improve Our Neighborhoods (ACTION), Inc.

All those wishing to work on various committees and other interested persons are invited. ## Teachers To Get Higher Salaries

Voters in the East Lansing school district Monday approved a 3-mill tax increase for higher salaries for the school system's 333 fulltime employees.

"This tax increase is entirely for salary boosts for teachers, secretaries, and custodians," MacDonald, superintendent of schools, said.

The bulk of the more than $400,000 in salary increases will go to the district's 210 teachers to keep East Lansing competitive with the Lansing and Okemos systems.

The new millage increase is for a three year period, MacDonald said. Every year school costs go up. Approval of the millage increase will enable the district to continue its extended school year program and keep its teachers, he said.

The pay increases will go into effect in September after receiving formal approval from the Board of Education next Monday night. The Board also must approve a schedule for the distribution of salary increases.

The raise will increase salaries for beginning teachers with bachelor degrees to $5,100; those with master's degrees will earn $5,300. Previously the respective salaries were $4,600 and $4,800.

Teachers holding bachelor degrees will be eligible for a maximum of $7,400 after 10 years compared to $7,350 after 13 years, and masters degree holders may receive up to $9,000 after 16 years, compared to $8,600 after 21 years.

The two-day meeting will also consider the major problems of integration facing schools in the North and West, and the effects of segregation and integration upon Negro and white students and groups.

Theme and primary focus of the symposium is "Social Science and School Integration; Research and Action."

The program opens at Kellogg Center on May 8 with a paper by Kenneth Clark, department of psychology, City College of New York, on "The Effects of Segregation and Integration on Children's Personality."

An afternoon paper on "The Organization of Integrated School Districts" will be presented by David Salten, superintendent of schools, New Rochelle, N.Y.

"The Changing Attitudes of Community and School Personnel" is the title of another afternoon paper, to be given

The Saturday morning session May 9 will feature a paper on "Alternate Strategies for the Achievement of Integration and Quality Education" by Frank Riessman, Urban Studies Center, Rutgers University.

Discussants are Edmund Gordon, graduate school of education, Yeshiva University, and David Gottlieb, associate professor of education and sociology.

The final speaker will be James Nabrit, Jr., president of Howard University, who will discuss "The Courts, Social Scientists and School Integration."

"The organization serves as an incentive for leadership, citizenship, and service within the women's residence halls and promotes friendship and understanding among women in halls," said Susan Vigneault, Ferndale senior and Circle president.

Among the activities planned by Circle are a tea for graduate advisers in women's dorms and some

A FIRST EDITION!

That Special Grace

by BENJAMIN BRADLEE

"John Kennedy was a wonderfully funny man," writes the author of this brief and memorable book, "but historians are prone to stifle laughter in formality." THAT SPECIAL GRACE does what history books cannot do: pays tribute to Kennedy the man - his zest for life and his boundless capacity for enjoying it; his pleasure in his family; his drive; his gift for loving and forgiving; his humor, as often as not directed against himself; and "that special grace of the intellect which is taste."

Campus NAACP To Meet Tonight

The philosophy of campus NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People) and its plans for action will be outlined in a presidential address by Melvin Moore, Inkster junior, tonight at 8 in the Union.

Moore, who takes office this term, is presenting the special address to "make clear the objectives of the organization," he said.

"We will concentrate on discrimination in off-campus housing this term."

The meeting is open to members and interested students and faculty. Memberships are available at the meeting or by calling Henry Hagood, 337-9472.

Phi Sigs Pick New Officers

The members of Phi Sigma Delta fraternity have recently elected new officers. New officers are president, Daniel Zides, Brookline, Mass., junior; vice president, Leon Myers, Oak Park junior; secretary, Thomas Levin, Detroit junior; treasurer, Arnold Adler, Brookline, Mass., junior.

William Behrman, Oak Park junior, and Michael Haber, Detroit sophomore, were elected members at large.

Budget

$237,788 are scheduled for cooperative extension, $374,221 for the agricultural experiment station, and $6,094,496 for general operating expenses, Oakland University, MSU's affiliate near Pontiac, and the traffic safety center.

Some $250,000 has been planned for restoration of the highway safety center. This is included in the general operating expenses.

Breslin said he could not explain the sudden change of attitude of senate appropriations committee members.

He said MSU and U-M spent long hours at the capitol so they would be available if the committee wanted to call them. The call never came, but the education budget got through anyway.

NEW UNIFORM—Former MSU end Ernie Clark, now with the Detroit Lions, and Spartan trainer Gayle Robinson, chat with Pete Gent at State's first spring workout. It was Gent's first campus performance in a football uniform.

Gent Receives Football Offer

By RICHARD SCHWARTZ
State News Sports Writer

Michigan State basketball Captain Pete Gent told the State News late Wednesday that he has been offered a bid to play professional football by the Dallas Cowboys of the American Football League.

Gent, whose last experience in football dates back to Bangor high school, where he earned all-State honors as defensive offensive end and offensive halfback, said he was first approached three weeks ago by Cowboy Personnel chief Gil Brandt.

The Cowboys' interest in Gent, who can not sign until after graduation in June, stems from the success of Cornell Green, a former Utah State basketball player, who made the conversion to football after a draft last year.

"They have a belief," Gent said, "that basketball players can be good defensive backs. This stems from the sport's emphasis on man-to-man defense."

Gent said he had thought of playing football for the Spartans but felt he could not handle two sports.

"I had been approached several times by Coach Duffy Daugherty since I came to State," Gent noted. "The thing that turned me against college football was the fact that it was cut-throat, very cut-throat."

"However, I do feel that it's a better sport and I look forward to being able to devote my full time to it," he added.

Gent was first seen here in football togs Monday when Coach Duffy Daugherty's gridmen began their annual spring drills. He engaged in workouts along with former Spartans George Saines, Ernie Clark, and Lonnie Sanders.

Saines, all-American fullback on the 1962 Spartan team, is now with the Buffalo Bills of the AFL. Clark, also a graduate, is now with the Detroit Lions of the National Football League where he plays end.

"I'd like to pick up as much stuff before I go to summer training camp as I possibly can," Gent said.

The Cowboys are due to begin workouts in July at their practice site outside Los Angeles, California.

Sophomore Pitcher For Delayed Opener

Danny Litwhiler's home debut as baseball coach was set back a day as snow and cold temperatures swept across the Michigan State campus, forcing the postponement of the scheduled doubleheader with Albion College.

Instead the Britons and the Spartans will tangle today in a single contest starting at 2 p.m. on Old College Field weather permitting.

Litwhiler announced that sophomore pitcher John Krasnan will get the starting assignment. The 5-10 left-hander had been scheduled to work on Wednesday along with John Ellward.

The rest of the starters are: Dennis Ketcham at second base, Bob Maniere in center field, Joe Porrevecchio in left, Jerry Sutton at first base, Dick Billings in right, Bruce Look behind the plate, Steve Juday at third and Captain Mal Chiljean at short-stop.

The Spartans compiled a 7-3 record during their pre-season southern trip. They won seven straight and then dropped a pair to Florida State and a single game to Wake Forest.

Seven of the Spartan starters are hitting over .300 and a trio (Billings, Look and John Biedenbach) are tied for the home run lead with three round-trippers apiece.

Football Tickets Go Fast

While Coach Duffy Daugherty and his staff are putting the Spartans through their paces during Spring Practice, another form of preparation is going on almost unnoticed in Jemison Fieldhouse.

Under the direction of Ticket Manager Bill Beardsley, plans are being made to seat the thousands of people who will pack Spartan Stadium on the four home dates next fall.

The order for 250-300 thousand tickets was sent to the printer some four weeks ago. The tickets will be delivered in early May and will then be audited by Beardsley and his staff for possible errors in the printing of section, row and seat numbers.

"If we didn't do this," says Beardsley, "someone might wind up sitting on somebody else's lap."

Later in the month, applications are sent out to faculty members who have had seats in previous years. At the same time, those who have not held tickets previously may put in applications for them. All of these are due back in the ticket office by May 15.

Late in May, 5,000 season renewal forms are sent out to other individuals who have held season tickets in the past.

Before June 1, 70,000 applications are sent out to alumni and friends of the University, and orders begin to pour in in great numbers.

All these applications are processed during the summer months, with all season ticket holders being located on large charts as to section and seat numbers. Applications are filled on a first in-first filled basis. Tickets are then mailed out during the first week of September. Says Beardsley, "We have a few complaints, but not many."

The big game next Fall shapes up to be the one with Michigan. Beardsley feels that it might be sold out by July 1, one of the ear-

The NEWS In SPORTS

Sunbathers Too

Athletes Crowd S. Campus

It took chilling temperatures and occasional snowburst to put a damper on the flurry of activity taking place on south campus this week.

The hub of activities has been the so-called secret practice field where the Spartan football team is engaged in a series of 20 two-hour workouts in preparation for the 1964 fall season.

Directly adjacent to the football headquarters is the MSU soccer field where Coach Gene Kenney's booters are also preparing for a September schedule. State soccermen will be putting their Midwest Collegiate soccer title, which they captured this season, on the line.

At the southern end of the gridiron is the one-year old lacrosse site where the Spartan club is busy readying for varsity competition.

By its side is a softball diamond where residents of the Case-Wilson-Wonders complex can be found almost any afternoon. Enhancing the scenery in this location have been sunbathing coeds who find it a vantage point for observing the various teams at work.

For the men, it provides an opportunity to take their mind off what they're doing and put their eyes to work instead.

A hop, skip and jump across Shaw Lane--a sport in itself any time of the day--leads to where two other varsity outfits work out.

Immediately behind Spartan Stadium the onlooker will find Coach Stan Droba's netmen busy preparing for the opening match with Ohio State and Purdue Friday and Saturday at Columbus.

This same location, which is paralleled by some thirty public courts, will also be the site of the National Collegiate championships, June 15-20.

No more than twenty yards westward sandwiched between the tennis layout and the IM football and softball fields opposite Wonders Hall is the MSU track and field site. Spartan cindermen are in the process of preparing for their season debut, April 18, in the Ohio Relays.

State Prep Host

Michigan State will play host to the Class B lower peninsula high school track championships on May 23.

Class A finals will be held at the University of Michigan with C and D competition taking place at Central Michigan University.

Sailors Shun Daytona For St. Pete

Michigan State sailors participating in the St. Petersburg Intercollegiate Invitational Regatta found the warmth of the people made up for the lack of sun in the "Sunshine City."

The four-girl, one-man team from State, was one of 16 teams from the Deep South, Ivy League and Midwest which chose intercollegiate sailing competition over nights on the town.

State finished fourth out of ten entries in the Flying Junior class. Flying Juniors are 13-foot, sloop-rigged boats which will plane in a 10-knot breeze.

Each of the three classes, Fish boats, Tech Dinghies and Flying Juniors, were set up so that the teams sailing these boats would not have been previously familiar with them.

Brown University, took top honors in the Flying Juniors, with 62 points, followed by St. Petersburg Junior College with 61, Holy Cross, 54.4; Michigan State, 50; Dartmouth, 39; Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 38.8; Cornell, 38; University of Florida, 29 and Georgia, 16.

First place in the Fish class went to Harvard skippers, who said they won only because Florida State University was disqualified in the final race of their class.

The 22-foot gaff-rigged sloops were new to the crew from Cambridge, but like the Michigan State team in their Flying Juniors, they enjoyed the challenge of a new craft.

State's team, of skippers Bob Worrall, Milford senior and Kathy Kennedy, Marshall freshman, plus crew Kirsten Johnson, Flint junior, Marcie Potter, Wal-led Lake junior and Margie Bauman, Newark, N.J. senior arrived three days before the regatta to practice sailing the Flying Juniors.

Things started with a splash, when Kirsten fell out of a Flying Junior during a practice session. When the St. Petersburg Times printed her picture and a story about her twenty-minute swim in warm, salty Tampa Bay, she became somewhat of a celebrity to the city's senior citizens.

Skipper Kathy Kennedy, with Kirsten as her crew, took one first, one second and two thirds in shifty breezes from 10 to 12 knots over several all-male teams.

All of the collegians were impressed by the number of senior citizens in St. Petersburg, one of whom told the Michigan State crew that "we haven't seen any young people since October."

State's team captain, Bob Worrall, said he thought St. Petersburg was awfully quiet, but that the sailors were having their own fun, sailing.

Most of the 16 crews present agreed that they wouldn't be spending their vacation in St. Petersburg if it weren't for the regatta.

"All those kids in Daytona and Fort Lauderdale are lost," one coed said. "It's just one big party with everyone doing the same thing day after day. Here there's something to do, and when you have a purpose it makes things much better."
