Dietrich Named EDP Director

John E. Dietrich, professor and chairman of speech since 1959, has been named assistant provost and director of the Educational Development Program (EDP).

The appointment was approved Thursday by the Board of Trustees.

EDP calls for intensive study of the University's curriculum with the ultimate purpose of providing maximum use of teaching talent and resources.

Dietrich, the first to hold the title of program director, has B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Wisconsin. Before joining the staff he taught at Purdue, Wisconsin and Ohio State Universities.

He has been a member of the University Graduate Council since 1960, the Academic Council since 1960 and the Educational Policies Committee since 1962. He is chairman of the latter committee and a past chairman of the Committee on Committees.

Herbert J. Oyer, professor of speech, was named to succeed Dietrich as chairman of the speech department.

Oyer, a graduate of Bluffton, Ohio, College, holds a master's degree from Bowling Green University and a Ph.D. degree from Ohio State.

Before joining the staff in 1960, he taught at Bowling Green and Ohio State.

Provost Howard Neville said that Dietrich was picked from a list of 60 persons to serve as EDP director.

"From the list of 60 names given by a Senate ad hoc committee, 22 names were selected," Neville said. "The list was reduced to seven and Dietrich received unanimous approval."

Board: It's Official, No Kennedy Center

The battle is over and the building has been christened.

For almost six months the University and student protest groups waged a verbal war over the naming of the new international center for the late President Kennedy.

Despite student demonstrations, organizational resolutions sent to University officials urging that the building be named the Kennedy Center and sign painting, the final curtain was rung down.

The new building is simply the Center for International Programs.

The Board of Trustees acted at the monthly meeting at Kellogg Center Thursday morning.

The Board acted on the advice from the University Council of Deans and decided the Kennedy name would be inappropriate. The Center for International Programs will house the international programs offices. The $1.9 million building will be completed this summer on Shaw Lane, east of Spartan Stadium.

In other naming action, the Board honored the late Miss Elisabeth W. Conrad, the first dean of women at MSU, by naming the new library-auditorium building to serve Akers, Fee and McDonel residence halls after her.

Miss Conrad served as the first dean of women and as a professor of French from 1928 until June 1945.

Miss Conrad, who died Jan. 13 in Washington, D.C., was described by President Hannah as one who "had done much to change the attitude of many segments of the University toward an increasing emphasis on academic excellence and standards of personal conduct."

Hannah said the University lately has not given as much visibility to women who played key roles in the University as it did before.

However, he cited Yakeley, Mayo, Landon, Gilchrist and Campbell dormitories for being named after influential women leaders connected with the University.

Johnson Asks Rail Action By Monday

WASHINGTON (AP)—Federal mediators working under President Johnson's personal direction stepped up the pace of railroad bargaining talks Thursday in an effort to win concessions from both sides and avert a nationwide strike.

The mediators, headed by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, called for continuous day and night sessions in an attempt to settle the five-year-old quarrel before the postponed strike threat resumes at 12:01 a.m. April 25.

The accelerated talks, in or near the White House, resulted from increased pressure by Johnson, who wants a "definitive" report by Monday.

This would give him five days before the strike deadline to consider other action if the talks fail, although the President has carefully refrained from saying what he might do in that event.

Lifetime Job Offered To Hannah

The Board of Trustees gave President John A. Hannah a vote of confidence Thursday and offered him a lifetime job as its administrative head.

The offer came in the form of a resolution passed by the Board waiving the University's mandatory retirement age policy where the president is concerned.

The resolution was sponsored by Stephen Nisbet of Fremont.

"The affairs of the University have assumed an ever increasing complexity with the passage of time," Nisbet said. "The knowledge and experience of the principal administrative officer have been invaluable to the present development of the University and will continue to be required for the future success of the institution."

Hannah will be eligible to continue in office at the pleasure of the Board for such terms as he shall be able to serve effectively.

He is 61 years old, six years away from the mandatory limit of 67.

"I greatly appreciate this vote of confidence," Hannah said. "I make no commitments, however, because someday I do hope to retire."

DeGaulle Defends Nuclear Force

PARIS (AP)—President Charles De Gaulle said Thursday night France must have its own nuclear armament to maintain its independence and to avoid becoming an American protectorate.

Speaking to the nation on the French radio-television network, De Gaulle defended his French nuclear force and large-scale aid to underdeveloped countries, particularly former French colonies in Africa.

This emphasis indicated public criticism of both policies may be hitting close to home.

De Gaulle said that France remains in danger of destruction and invasion, "without any certainty that our American allies, themselves directly exposed to POLICE-RESCUE TEAMS IN ACTION -- A coed's illness brought first-aid and rescue teams from the University police and East Lansing Fire Department to Bessey Hall early Thursday. An everyday occurrence, the screaming sirens still bring multitudes of curious onlookers.

A. Harris, J. Miller, Borosage Capture Class Presidencies

A. J. Harris, Walled Lake, junior; John Miller, Bangor, sophomore; and Bob Borosage, East Lansing, freshman, won the class presidencies Thursday.

Harris won senior presidency with 703 votes.

Miller polled 936 for junior president.

Borosage took sophomore presidency with a freshman vote landslide of 1,653.

In other junior class elections Ron Kirk, Detroit, sophomore, won vice president.

Frannie Frei, Dearborn, sophomore, ran unopposed for secretary with 1,496 and Ed Wallis, Clinton, Iowa, sophomore, also unopposed for treasurer, 1,503.

In other senior class elections Art Block, Brooklyn, N.Y., junior took vice president with 845; Pat Dougherty, Hamburg, N.Y., junior, 600. A recount for secretary will be held today along with the AUSG recount. Sue Smith, Highland Park, junior led at press time with 764; Edie Freeman, Brooklyn, N.Y., junior, 629. Treasurer is Pete Wade, Birmingham, junior, Peters, Aurora, Ill., junior, 373.

death, will be able to prevent this for us."

The president assumed that a French nuclear force can dissuade a Soviet attack, then declared that for France to sacrifice such an arm "would be to attract the lightning while renouncing a lightning rod."

"But even more, it would be to hand over entirely her defense and with that her existence and, in the end, her policy, to a foreign and, in the last analysis, uncertain protection," he said.

Adams Doubts Soviet Control Mao Sends Birthday Greeting To Nikita

The Soviet party will probably never re-establish world control over communism, nor is it likely that China and the Soviet Union will ever reach a complete reconciliation of their differences, Arthur E. Adams, professor of history, said Wednesday.

Speaking at the Provost Lecture, Adams also said the decline in world communism directed from Moscow could be attributed to "fractionalism" both in ideologies and nationalism.

"Over the past two or three years an extensive propaganda campaign has stressed the growth of world communism, the dedication of the party, and the high degree of unity among the leaders," Adams said.

"It is a myth to accept this nonsense as fact," he added. From the beginning, Adams said, fractionalism in the Communist blocs has been the rule. "The bitter struggle between rivals has always been there," he said. "There have been con-

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Khrushchev got a 70th birthday greeting Thursday from China's Mao Tse-Tung that expressed a conviction their differences are only temporary.

The greeting came as Khrushchev gathered around him the top leaders of Eastern European communism to help celebrate his birthday today—and to pool their thoughts about Mao, who is 71. Only Wednesday Khrushchev assailed Mao by name for the first time.

Calling the United States the leader of the "imperialists" the Chinese message said: "In the event of a major world crisis, the two parties, our two countries, and our two peoples will undoubtedly stand together against our common enemy."

The decline of world Communism can be broken into five stages, he said.

Lenin's influence and guidance of the Soviet Union marked the first stage. Adams said Lenin wanted an international party which was unified, and he wanted to run that party the same

AUSG constitution states there must be at least a 2 per cent majority in the first count for the election to be valid. If there is no 2 per cent majority, then there must be a recount.

"There was just too much pressure on elections employees to get the vote in quickly."

Falkenstein spent about 15 minutes conferring with AUSG advisor Louis Heckhuis before announcing his decision.

In the first count which ended at about 8:25 p.m., Harris polled 2,804 to Jesse's 2,784. The election was thrown into a recount because no candidate had a majority over 50 per cent of the votes cast.

Another onlooker had a different view: "The elections office has been open and there were ballots there," said Howard Wilchins. "Many persons who have not been authorized, have been going in and out of the tabulating room. I don't have any authorization to be in here myself."

He said he does not blame Falkenstein for the election recount differences. He said he thought the elections commissioner was doing as good a job as possible.

Many of those disgruntled viewers interviewed by State News reporters declined to be quoted directly but many seemed bitter in their criticism of the whole procedure.

North Wonders and East Wilson had the widest discrepancies with as many as 30 votes between the first and second counts.

"I've seen most high school elections run better than this one was," one said.

"When a vote changes as much as this one did, there must be something fishy, although I'm not saying that this is what positively went on, but it seems so."

"I've seen recounts before, but this is one that tops them all, said Brian Walsworth, Muskegon junior, and head of the student rights and welfare committee.

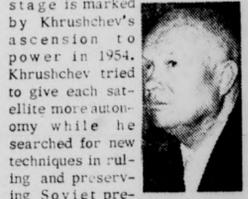

"I think the totals were counted too fast and that the workers were not careful enough in counting," another said.

"There was just too much pressure on elections employees to get the vote in quickly."

Earthquake Felt Near Kodiak

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—A strong earthquake centered about 300 miles southwest of Kodiak Island was recorded by the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey here Thursday.

Officials said the shock at 9:29 a.m. (2:29 p.m. EST) had an intensity of more than 7 on the Richter scale and could create seismic waves.

Demand Recount

Who really won Thursday's elections? Nobody really seems to have the answer to that question.

Recounts showed differences of up to 165 votes. Harris won on the first count for the AUSG presidency by 20 votes, Jesse was the victor in the recount by a 145 vote margin.

On top of that, some people were seen walking around outside the room where votes were being tabulated with valid ballots.

We cannot accept ballots tabulated in such a haphazard fashion as valid. The only way to determine the real winners is to recount the ballots for every single office until two recounts come out reasonably close.

Time To Sound Off

Last November the idea of a campus "Hyde Park" where students and faculty could make soap-box speeches aroused interest but failed to materialize into a platform, a speaker or a public commitment.

A similar program sputtered five years ago but died before coming an MSU tradition. Again two years ago, "Operation Sound-Off" was passed by All-University Student Government, but student leaders did not or could not get the program off paper, even though AUSG President Bob Kerr said that it would be started before he left office.

The program apparently failed because of lack of initiative and leadership by any student group.

Balmly spring weather offers the opportunity for some group to sponsor an open-air forum near Beaumont Tower in the tradition of Hyde Park, where a Londoner is free to grind an ax publicly on any subject.

In a university of this size, there are as many opinions on every issue from campus sexual morality to civil and states rights as there are thinking students and faculty.

But other than a letter or a "Point of View" column in the State News, the majority of students have no newspaper space or radio time to make public their beefs or bouquets, to attempt to sway opinion, to challenge the status quo, to offer new ideas.

Many students undoubtedly would hesitate to mount a platform, but if student leaders would set an example, many who believe strongly enough in a personally-held conviction would forget their self-consciousness.

Last fall a few students questioned whether this open platform would prompt any speeches. But we optimistically disagree with them and with Marya Mannes who condemned American apathy and non-commitment in "More In Anger."

Here on campus we hope tomorrow's leaders will speak their minds today, take stands and answer Mrs. Mannes's challenge and accusation:

"I think we have been suffering for some time from a sort of spiritual leukemia: an invasion by the white cells of complacency and accommodation. . ."

Parking Lotta Confusion

Things are looking better in the Great Parking Confusion.

President Hannah is beginning to announce something that sounds like a reasonably definite plan for instrumenting the new on-campus driving ban that will be instituted fall term.

For an inordinately long period, no one seems to have known just what would be done about parking problems.

So it is good to see Hannah announce a plan for specific locations of parking lots, and, at long last, some more or less definite information about the proposed increase of bus service.

However, this is not an endorsement of all aspects of the plan. There are still several flaws, such as the total restriction of driving even on Friday afternoons, for instance, when students may want to go home and will have to prepare almost a full day in advance to move their cars.

President Hannah has suggested that student leaders take this problem up. It is one way in which the new government may prove itself more effective than the old.

We have some doubts as to the wisdom of choosing the parking lots Hannah named for residents of each dorm complex. The lots mentioned for West Circle dorm residents, for example, seem almost as bad as no lot at all.

There are many more details of the parking-driving proposal that must be taken up, and must be planned specifically with both faculty and student consultation, before it will be wise to make final decisions on any aspects of the plan.

This is a problem of major concern for everyone in the University, and is a fine chance to test the promises for greater cooperation between student government and the administration in the coming year.

Letters To The Editor

Blasts Editorial Policy

To the Editor:

I have been reading the editorials concerning the elections in the April 14 and April 15 issues and am convinced after four years that page two of the State News is a thoroughfare for trash.

The editors are hypocrites and outstandingly guttural in their unethical and biased practices related to their articles. Excuse me! Since 2+2=4 I cannot assume that you understand.

I am discontented with what you have done in respect to the elections.

Following the I Love Jesse article of April 14 is an editorial explaining the "why" of the previous article.

Being editorially independent or not is not the question, True, you are allowed to print any article favoring any position that you wish, but here is where I question your ethics.

The University is not a free society, and the students subscribe to the dictates of the administration. This being true, the students necessarily must subscribe to your paper.

We do not have the freedom of choice to select another campus paper because there is none. Since another paper does not exist, and because of the timing of the article, it was impossible to refute any of the statements made or to allow any other candidate equal space.

The article was entirely subjective and presented the picture of a perfect man. Show me the perfect man and I will show you to be insane. No such person exists.

You may say that you did not do this and I ask, where do you describe his faults? Do you like to play God or portray the father image by overseeing and prescribing what is good and bad for your children?

The student body does not need you to do our thinking for us. We are completely capable of deciding for ourselves and making our own value judgments.

Concerning your depiction of the character of Mr. Robert Milne in "The Cowardly Way": it is Bob Milne since he is the only new candidate mentioned on the front page.

This could be interpreted as slander. His campaign is a sad comment on the candidates more so than the way in which you state the situation.

Again, your value judgments are totally irrelevant and unnecessary. Please refrain from projecting your immaturity onto the student body by implying that we are incapable of thinking through a situation.

I am in no way connected with any of the candidates and the opinions expressed here are not singular by any means.

I extend to you an invitation to entertain the men of West Shaw with a defense of your position at an open meeting but do not feel that you have the fortitude to except such an invitation.

Campus AAUP Objects To U-M Charge

To the Editor:

The Detroit News for April 5 printed an article in which Marvin Niehuss, Vice-President of the University of Michigan, is quoted as accusing Michigan State University of "academic pitchmanship" and of watering down academic values because it has succeeded in attracting 195 new National Merit Scholars, (almost as many as Harvard, MIT and Stanford) to bring the total on campus to 227.

The Michigan State University chapter of the American Association of University Professors takes this accusation as a slur on the integrity of the scholars and teachers responsible at our University for the maintenance of high academic standards, and has instructed me to express its resentment in its name.

For a responsible official of the University of Michigan to condemn Michigan State University because it has succeeded in bringing to our state many of the best young students is to confess pedagogical and social failure.

If Mr. Fritz Crisler, of the University of Michigan, were to abide by the principles of recruitment which Mr. Niehuss demands of Michigan State, Mr. Niehuss would shortly ask for his resignation.

It is indeed a strange kind of teacher and public official who would decry the fulfillment of the responsibility of all public universities to assist in the growth of the state which supports it by attracting to the state the fine young minds upon which the future growth of Michigan depends.

While the University of Michigan devotes its time and energies to attacking its sister universities, other state universities have taken the educational leadership which the University of Michigan once held. My chapter calls upon the University of Michigan to stop this useless fratricide and to concern itself instead with showing how Michigan can once more lead in research, teaching and educational cooperation.

Nigeria Economy Gets MSU Boost

Editor's Note: This is the last of a series on the University's project in Nigeria. It is by John P. Henderson, associate professor of economics, who is now completing project tours as an economics adviser. The article was prepared to reflect the activities of all MSU advisers to the University of Nigeria.

Reflecting in part the emphasis Nigeria must now place upon economic development, and the problems associated with it, are the five economists in the Michigan State Advisory Group, four connected with the Economic Development Institute on the Enugu campus.

General Studies Program

Headed by Glenn L. Johnson of the department of agricultural economics here, the institute has only recently opened and is concerned with research and teaching directed to solving some specific problems associated with economic change.

Research is being carried out in rice and rubber production techniques, palm oil extraction and cultivation, the uses of coal deposits, rural unemployment, the future utilization of petroleum, one of Nigeria's major resources, and the economics of education.

Staff economists conducting this research, with the assistance of institute fellows studying for doctorate degrees, are Carl K. Eicher of Michigan State, David L. MacFarlane, head of the Department of Agricultural Economics at McGill University, and Phillip C. Packard from the University of Maryland.

John P. Henderson, the fifth economist in the advisory group, is teaching in the economics department at Nsukka, and carrying on research in the area of wages and employment in several Nigerian industries. In addition, he has the major responsibility for administering the AID Participant Program through which Nigerian faculty members are sent to the United States for graduate study.

At present there are 13 such participants studying in nine American universities, and next year it is anticipated there may be up to 25. Several Nigerian faculty have already returned from training under this program and resumed their duties at the University of Nigeria after acquiring advanced degrees.

Guiding Student Affairs

A very large percentage of the students who enter the University of Nigeria have not attended any secondary school. Admission may be granted on the basis of a General Certificate of Education, earned after passing a series of examinations taken in correspondence.

Those who enter with the GCE in humanities, for example, have usually taken advanced exams in English, art history and religion, and know little science or mathematics, while those in natural sciences have little knowledge of the humanities or social sciences.

In addition, Nigerian secondary schools, for those who enter by that route, are more specialized than they are in the United States, with the result many students enter the university with little background except in their area of concentration. Once they enter college, moreover, they will specialize much more than they would in America. The typical student goes outside his department only once or twice in three years to take other courses.

Because of these factors, it was agreed very early in the development of the university that there should be a General Studies Program, with courses being offered in humanities, natural and social sciences and English.

Until December 1963, Joseph L. Druse of MSU headed the general studies program and taught the humanities course, while Lewis Zerby is now in charge, teaching in the social sciences. The English course in the general studies program has been under the direction of Robert M. Lumianski, and Jack C. Elliott has taken charge of natural science.

Like Druse, all of the advisers in general studies hail from the East Lansing campus, where they are members of the University College faculty.

Conclusion

Of all the advisers in the Michigan State group, perhaps none has had a more difficult task than B. L. Perry, Dean of Student Affairs. It has been his responsibility to supervise the housing and feeding of the students on both campuses, as well as to handle the problems of student relations in a situation where cultural conflict is inherent.

Perry has probably received more brick-bats than any other adviser because he is in a position where students let their feelings be known.

Elwood P. Lawrence, adviser in English, has had the major responsibility of running the department of English as well as teaching a large number of courses.

Edward Hammarskjold, of Ann Arbor, has developed a curriculum and taught in the College of Architecture, and Edward C. Lawson has done the same in Engineering. Barry N. Floyd has taught for two and a half years in the department of geography and has almost completed an atlas of Eastern Nigeria which will make a lasting contribution to the understanding of the regions diverse resources.

Vice Chancellor Johnson, has for four years been administratively responsible for the over all development of the University. He is criticized by some British advisers for allowing too much American influence and by American advisers for the continuance of British patterns of higher education.

He is a member of a vigorous University Council that makes academic policies, and Chairman of a thirty member Senate with strong feelings as to its special competence in the realm of academic policy.

'100 Megatons Senseless'

Pentagon Research Director Testifies

WASHINGTON (AP)—Harold Brown, Pentagon director of research, says there is no military need for a 100-megaton bomb.

"It does not seem at this time to make sense to do such a development," Brown told a House appropriations subcommittee in secret testimony released Thursday.

With his remarks, Brown put himself against the views of the Air Force chief of staff, Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, who has told Congress many times that the United States needs such a bomb. This was one reason cited by LeMay for opposing the administration's nuclear test ban treaty.

May and Brown were underscored by the subcommittee questioning at the hearing:

Q: You are aware of the fact that some people in the Air Force have a contrary view?

Brown: Yes, but it is rather hard to get them to explain why.

Q: Do they not say that the reason we ought to have it is because the Russians have it?

Brown: It is a psychological reason. That does not mean it is not a good reason, but it is hard for me to evaluate it technically.

Brown told the subcommittee "there is no question that the bombs we have now... will destroy the biggest cities in the world."

"The question," he continued, "is whether you can do it better with a larger number of those than with a smaller number of 100-megaton bombs."

To reinforce his argument,

Brown said that "if you spent the same amount of money on developing and deploying a larger number of smaller weapons, you could do more damage."

Soviet Premier Khrushchev said in January, 1963, that the Russians have developed a 100-megaton bomb.

The biggest strategic bomb in the U.S. arsenal is a 24-megaton hydrogen bomb carried by the B52 bomber.

Must Fill Vacancies Before Tennis Match

The Spartan tennis team will be faced with the task of defeating Notre Dame Friday at South Bend, but before that, some important decisions have to be made at home.

Coach Stan Drobac is still in the process of deciding who should fill the number six singles and third doubles positions, and the decision is expected to be made at the end of tonight's workout.

The first five places in the singles lineup will remain intact with Tom Jamieson, Tony O'Donnell, Dwight Shelton, Charlie Wolff and Tom Wierman holding down the posts.

After that, it's a wide-open race for sixth spot among Dave Click, Mike Youngs and Laird Warner. Click stands 2-5 in singles play this season, with Youngs standing 4-0.

Jamieson and Wolff remain the top doubles team, with O'Donnell and Shelton forming the number two duo.

The Spartans are hoping to find the combination that will enable them to extend their seven-match victory string.

MSU is 8-2 for the season, but they can expect a stiff challenge from the Irish netters.

"Notre Dame is in a class with North Carolina," Drobac said. "They don't have the stars Carolina has, but they have the depth."

If North Carolina can be used as a standard of comparison, the Green and White should be in for a real battle. The Tar Heels dealt the Spartans their only defeats this season while MSU was on the southern tour.

The Irish have lost only one man from last year's team which compiled a 15-6 record.

Last year the Spartans registered a 5-4 decision over Notre Dame, and close matches have been traditional between the schools through the years.

After Friday's match, Wayne State will provide the Spartans with their next contest, a meet Wednesday in Detroit.

Same Old Story

Tough Pitchers To Test 'S'

Something's got to give Saturday as the baseball club hits the road for the first time in regular season play this spring, traveling to Mr. Pleasant for a double header with Central Michigan.

The Spartans enter the game hitting a robust .342 for the season and boast perhaps one of the best hitting collegiate combinations in left fielder Joe Porrevecchio and first baseman Jerry Sutton.

However, the Chippewa pitching staff has been extremely stingy this spring, allowing just 26 hits in 60 innings for a microscopic .142 average. More important, Central moundsmen have given up only nine earned runs and two extra base hits--both doubles.

In a twinbill against the University of Michigan, the Chips got route - going performances from junior lefty Doug VanderWall and right handed senior Jim Boron. VanderWall hurled a two hitter in the opener and won 6-1 while Boron allowed only three singles while losing 2-0 in the nightcap.

VanderWall has an impressive 0.53 earned run average while Boron holds a steady 2.57 mark in leading the Chips to an 8-2 record.

Coach Waldo Stauter is expected to call upon this pair for the doubleheader and Coach Danny Litwhiler will go with his two aces, lefty John Krasnan and right hander John Ellward.

The Spartans, undefeated in three home games this season and 10-3 for the season, including spring training games, will open with the regular starting lineup with the possible exception of Captain Mal Chiljean. The senior shortstop is still bothered with a sore hand and is scheduled for X-rays today.

Litwhiler said he would wait for a report from team physician Dr. James Feurig before deciding.

The NEWS In SPORTS

First Relays For Trackmen

Spartan trackmen will be competing against a clock for the first time since the end of the indoor season when they take part in the Ohio Relays at Columbus Saturday.

Unfavorable wind conditions at the MSU track site behind the Men's IM building have prevented Coach Fran Dittrich from running time trials this week.

Dittrich, who is looking ahead to the upcoming Penn Relays April 24-25, feels the Ohio meet will serve mostly as a testing ground and conditioning experience.

Eight of the Big Ten schools will be on hand along with Western Michigan, Loyola of Chicago, Miami of Ohio and Notre Dame.

State's top entry will be in the 440 and 880-yard relay where the quartet of John Parker, Walker Beverly, Captain Sherm Lewis and Bob Moreland will attempt to repeat championship performances of last year.

Other events in which the Spartans will compete include the one-mile, two-mile, and distance relays.

Entered in individual races are Jan Bowen, Eric Zemper, and Kaines in the mile; Fred McKay in the high hurdles and high jump; Dick Sharkey and Ron Berby in the three mile; Dave Muehler and Tom Herbert in the shot put and discus; Ayo Azikiwe in the intermediate hurdles and Bill Berry in high jump.

The Spartans will take part in ten meets between the Relays Saturday and the NCAA championships June 18-20.

Ohio State Lacrosse Opponent

The Spartan lacrosse team travels to Columbus, Ohio, today to face Ohio State in the first of a two-game weekend series.

Saturday the stickers play Denison in the second game. Last week State dropped the opening contest of its ten team schedule.

The rest of the schedule is as follows:

- April 25 Kenyon (H)
- May 2 Notre Dame (A)
- 9 Denison (H)
- 13 Bowling Green (H)
- 10 Columbus L. (H)
- 16 Ohio Wesleyan (H)

Martyrdom Significant

By Linda Miller

Western Reserve University lost its Presbyterian pastor last week. A minister's death in itself is not unique; clergymen are subject to "dust thou art, and unto dust thou shalt return" as is every mortal. The circumstances surrounding the death of the Rev. Bruce W. Klunder, 26, are significant enough to merit retrospective comments.

The Rev. Mr. Klunder was crushed by a tractor during a protest at the construction of a public elementary school in Cleveland. He reportedly threw himself in a ditch behind the machine. The driver said he was harassed by demonstrators prostrated in front of the tractor and did not see the minister when he backed up the tractor.

The crowd of 500 was protesting the construction of the school in a Negro neighborhood on the grounds that it would perpetuate de facto segregation.

Let us assume for the moment that the driver of the tractor is innocent of any intent to kill. And it must be acknowledged that the demonstration was justifiable, since the Cleveland School Board refused to delay construction even at the request of top Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish leaders.

The Rev. Mr. Klunder and the demonstrators are criticized by some students for their actions. The pastor did not intend to become a martyr, nor did his fellow demonstrators derive any joy from the sacrifice. The real tragedy, comes if the young minister's act is passed off as nothing more meaningful than an impulsive fanatic's gesture.

He was not one of those closed-minded individuals who hold that "demonstrations never do any good anyway." He recognized the merits of public protest and could not, as do so many WASPs (White Anglo-Saxon Protestants), ignore his obligation to uphold the freedom banner.

The pastor was one of those tragically few who realized not only that equality for all men is morally, spiritually and legally right, but that he must move to vigorous action to combat racial injustice. There should be more men (and women) like the Rev. Bruce Klunder.

One does not have to die as the minister did. It was not his purpose to surrender his life. But it is significant that he stood up to be counted, when so many "white" Americans sit.
