WASHINGTON (AP)—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover says "Communist influence does exist in the Negro movement" and could play an important role in swaying masses without their realizing it.

In a closed session of a House appropriations subcommittee, Hoover also described efforts by the Communists to recruit American students to their views.

In Jan. 29 testimony made public Tuesday, Hoover said the Communist Party tries to expand its influence among Negroes and particularly has "sought ways and means to exploit the militant forces of the Negro civil rights movement."

The party, Hoover said, tries to use "what are often legitimate Negro complaints and grievances for the advancement of Communist objectives."

The number of Negro recruits who may be attracted to party membership "is not the important thing," Hoover said. He cited "the old Communist principle... Communism must be built with non-Communist hands" and continued:

"We do know that Communist influence does exist in the Negro movement and it is this influence which is vitally important. It can be the means through which large masses are caused to lose perspective on the issues involved and, without realizing it, succumb to the party's propaganda lures."

At this point, Hoover asked to testify off the record, so the hearing transcript does not show whether he was asked for, or gave, specific instances of Communist influence among Negroes.

Hoover said Communists have shown "considerable patience in recruiting American students," often referring to finance their college education, provided they would seek government employment after graduation and cooperate with Soviet intelligence, Soviet bloc intelligence personnel, he said, also have shown particular interest in scientists and emigres having relatives or property under Communist control.

Hoover said the U.S. Communist Party, directing an intensification program at youth, had spokesmen appear before 45 student groups, mostly in campus, during 1963. He said Daniel Rubin, national youth director, of the party, remarked in June that of the young people attracted in the last recruiting drive, 65 per cent were students.

Urges Care In Judging Movement

Robert L. Green, adviser to the campus NAACP, today urged that the entire civil rights movement not be condemned because of the alleged Communist influence attributed to it by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

Green, professor of education, acknowledged that a variety of motives might move people to join the cause of civil rights, but added:

"I am certain that the NAACP disavows all aspects of communism. Such Communist sympathizers are in the minority, and when they are exposed they are not tolerated."

Examines African University's Role

Universities in West Africa have become nurseries of nationalism, a distinguished international educator said Tuesday.

Speaking at a Provost lecture at the Kiva, Sir Eric Ashby, master of Clare College, Cambridge, examined the relationship between African universities and nationalism.

"African nationalism is a loyalty to the race and culture, and a rejection of foreign nationalism," Ashby said.

Universities must play an important role in African unity, but there is too much European cultural nationalism built into the African universities, said Ashby. "With the strength of the new African nationalism," Ashby said, "the two must come to terms."

According to Ashby it was not until after 1945 that universities were exported to Africa, and it has been the belief since then that colored races could never achieve the intellectual level of Europeans.

"This has led to a situation whereby 60 per cent of the teaching staff in African universities has been exported by European countries," Ashby said.

Some African political leaders have attacked the university pre-occupation with British methods. "What the British and others don't realize," Ashby said, "is that as western civilization penetrates Africa, it itself changes." Such a change requires a new adaptation, and this has only recently been realized by the British, said Ashby.

Ashby said that one of the biggest dilemmas in African education is the rigid standards set by the British for entrance into universities.

"As a result of this attitude, many Africans come to America to gain an education on a less advanced level as far as entrance requirements are concerned," Ashby said.

According to Ashby, no one can pretend that American higher education is not effective, and the question now is whether the British system concerning entrance requirements is the right one. Ashby agreed that many of the British methods were centuries out of date.

"What the African universities need is a freedom to determine their own affairs," he said.

His ground for hope lies with the African people themselves. Ashby believes that there will soon be a faculty of African intellectuals running the universities.

"African universities cannot remain facsimiles of British or American universities, because the African people must have a loyalty to their own indigenous culture," Ashby said.

Also, the Russians cannot meet on common grounds with the Chinese, so they have chosen the lesser of two evils in their easing of relations with the United States, Krzywoblocki said.

It cannot be said precisely what the Russians are thinking, since their Oriental background causes them to say one thing and quite possibly mean another, Krzywoblocki said.

He feels that Americans cannot understand this fact as well as Europeans because they are a more straightforward people, us-

City Council Monday night approved a request from Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity for permission to conduct the annual "Junior 500" pushcart derby on Saturday, May 23.

The pushcarts will race around West Circle Drive terminating at the Women's Intramural building. The parade, which precedes the race, goes down M.A.C. Ave. and proceeds until Abbott Road where it turns toward the University and stops at the IM building.

The City Council also approved a request by the Sigma Kappa sorority for a street light to be placed near their house.

The street light will total $150.00 and will be a bracket light placed in the alley behind the house.

As one put it, "everything is still up for grabs."

Johnson reportedly was making frequent telephone checks with several mediators who have been closed virtually around the clock with the negotiators for five unions and nearly 200 railroads.

"We think that collective bargaining is hard at work," Johnson said at an unscheduled news conference for editors and broadcasters visiting the White House.

Johnson won a voluntary 15-day postponement of a scheduled strike April 10.

NEW YORK (UPI)—A fire broke out Tuesday in a subway under 42nd Street, the main east-west thoroughfare cutting through the heart of Manhattan's business district.

Two trains were destroyed in the station two floors below street level, and damage is estimated at $1 to $2 million. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Shuttle service between Grand Central Terminal and Times Square, used daily by 127,000, has been disrupted.

Six firemen were injured in the six-alarm blaze.

Original estimates of attendance for the six-month seasons this year and next were for 70 million admissions. However, an advance sale of 28 million tickets led to speculation that the total might reach 100 million.

The fair is estimated to be about 90 per cent complete, but some pavilions fall a good deal short of that mark.

However, most of the major attractions, such as those provided by American commercial concerns, are ready.

NEW YORK (AP)—President Johnson will head a number of dignitaries on hand for dedication ceremonies of the New York World's Fair opening today.

Officials say the billion-dollar fair, four years in the making, is the most expensive and extensive undertaking of its kind, and probably will be witnessed by more people than any other fair in history.

One Good Turn

The elections commission has made at least one sensible move to avoid a repetition of last week's apparent tampering with votes in the counting area, and the farce that developed from it.

Plans are being made to have the re-election votes for All-University Student Government president tabulated by a machine scoring system that will eliminate most of the chances for dishonest practices and will compile results more quickly than can be done by hand.

This will eliminate most of the opportunities for deception in counting the ballots, but not all of them.

Ballots may still leak out while they are being counted by the election commission, unless precautions are taken to close off the sorting area.

Unauthorized persons may still get into the area and "play games" with the votes, unless extreme care is taken to keep "non-coms" away.

Fraud will still be possible on the dormitory and voting area level, unless unusually great care goes into the appointing of assistants and everyone involved is conscientious in preserving the secrecy and respectful nature of the vote.

There will still be a lot of room for error with the machine scoring method, unless the election commission is careful to observe all the rules of ethical elections, which it seems to have overlooked last week.

It appears that the new election will be set for some time next week, and this will provide sufficient time for the commission to organize itself and devise means of preserving the serious nature of this election, which remains crucial for student government in spite of the comic drama played out last week.

The future importance of AUSG will in large part depend on the prestige developed by this election and the competence and ability to command respect of the new president. The election commission can, by showing that the election is a serious display of democratic principles, inspire confidence and get the new year off to a good start.

Worthwhile Project

The Forum Committee lecture series is sponsoring the visit of Sir Eric Ashby, noted European educator, to campus this week.

His is the first talk in a series that will bring John Kenneth Galbraith here in October.

Other noted lecturers have been invited to speak.

Paul E. Varg, dean of the College of Arts and Letters, is in charge of the series. He said, "Our purpose is to bring the best minds available to the campus. We select speakers partly on the basis of contemporary interest, with the hope of provoking discussion and excitement of opinion, and especially to give students a chance to hear the best minds."

This is a noble goal, and a good way of stirring more of the intellectual controversy which is a hallmark of the University. The Forum series, like the other campus lecture series, is a worthy project and should be actively supported by both students and faculty.

The Joke Stopped Too Soon

It's a shame that Joseph David Oznot, the fictitious East Lansing High School senior admitted to Princeton University, was found out.

His friends from MSU, Princeton and Columbia Universities who enrolled him in this fall's freshman class, should have kept their hoax quiet a while longer.

Maybe Joe would have received full term grades--like the Hastings, Mich., miss who got F and N grades from the MSU registrar's office despite the fact that she was not a student.

McCarthy Era And MSU

By SUE JACOBY
State News Staff Writer

Today is the tenth anniversary of the beginning of the end for one of the most controversial figures in American political history.

April 22, 1954, was the opening day of the Army-McCarthy hearings, which eventually led to the formal censure of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin by his Senate colleagues. The Republican Senator had spent nearly four years as the head of an investigative subcommittee which attempted to uncover suspected Communists in nearly every area of American life.

McCarthy tried to dig up Bolshevik dirt around the roots of numerous American institutions such as the Army and the State Department. Universities were a prime target.

Teachers who were called to appear before the McCarthy subcommittee were sometimes dismissed from their jobs even though they had not been accused of any specific subversive or Communist activity. Many universities assumed "guilt by association" in desperate attempts to protect their public images.

During the McCarthy era, Michigan State was in a transition stage from a "cow college" to a major university. Economics professor Walter Adams thinks McCarthy might have directed accusations at MSU if President John Hannah had not taken a firm stand against his tactics.

Adams said that to his knowledge, no administrative action was ever taken against a faculty member for past associations with a radical or Communist group. Statements of past associations by the faculty to the administration were voluntary.

"In effect, Hannah committed the prestige of his position behind his faculty," Adams said. "Although this was the only morally correct position to take, it was an act of some courage in the context of the time. Other universities were not so straightforward."

Thomas H. Greer, chairman of the humanities department, pointed out that the McCarthy era created a sense of apprehension in students and faculty members. He said there was a general fear of making any statements or joining any organizations which might leave a person open to accusation.

"I believe that the fears of the McCarthy era have left a definite imprint on this generation," Greer said. "There is a hesitancy and a passivity about students and teachers which makes them reluctant to be identified with a cause. This is a broad social phenomenon which is not confined to political views."

Like Adams, Greer believes the attitude of the MSU administration was "very sound" in regard to McCarthyism. Greer said there was no reason to his knowledge for any faculty member to feel intimidated.

"However, this was not the case at every university," he said.

In one instance, the McCarthy furor may have had some effect on an administration decision. An editorial appearing in the June 22, 1950, issue of the State News criticized a mock trial held at the American Legion Boys State which depicted a defendant who perjured himself in reply to the question:

"Are you now or have you ever been a communist?"

The State News was suspended from publication for the remainder of the summer. A professor who was here at the time said he thought the paper might not have been suspended if it had not extended its criticism of the trial to the American Legion itself.

"If it had said that the Legion was a good organization but had gone off the track in this instance, I doubt the editorial would have raised such a storm," he said.

Greer said that McCarthy was part of a national phenomenon of fear and insecurity. He pointed out that McCarthy and others like him were able to diagnose the fears of people and use them to gain personal power.

Adams said: "World War II was supposed to be another war to end war. Then came the Cold War, which seemed to have no end. When problems seem to have no end, people are always susceptible to someone who offers an easy solution."

Adams and Greer said America's racial problems today might offer a parallel to the insecurity of the McCarthy era.

They also pointed out that fears of penalties for public expression of unfavorable viewpoints are often exaggerated.

"Since the end of the McCarthy years, teachers and persons in other walks of life have stated unpopular convictions publicly," Greer said. "The penalties are not as great as the fearful and timid would have us think. It is my hope that the last vestiges of this type of fear will eventually disappear."

Letters To The Editor

Behind Bars In Butterfield Hall

To the Editor:

Have you ever lived in a prison? Well, it would be heaven compared to Butterfield Hall. The restrictions placed on the girls that live in the dormitory are unjust and absurd.

Have you ever planned on a hayride and had it cancelled because your resident adviser associates all male - female relationships with nothing but sex orgies?

Have you ever been deprived of an open house for two terms with promises of a bigger and better one in May, only to have it restricted to the relatives because your resident adviser associates all male - female relationships with nothing but sex orgies?

Have you ever stood by your steps talking to your date only to have a resident adviser timing how long he is staying and in ten minutes sending the resident assistant to tell you both to take a long walk because he had been here too long?

Have you ever been given late minutes for not moving a tag on your sign-out card when other dormitories don't even bother with the tags?

Have you ever had your laundry mildew in a washer because at 11 p.m. all the laundry rooms are locked?

When I moved into this dormitory, I naturally expected rules to be made and had every intention of obeying them. Now it seems as if an impossible number are being made and for no justifiable reasons.

A girl is supposed to live in her dormitory, but with these rules she finds mere existence becoming increasingly impossible.

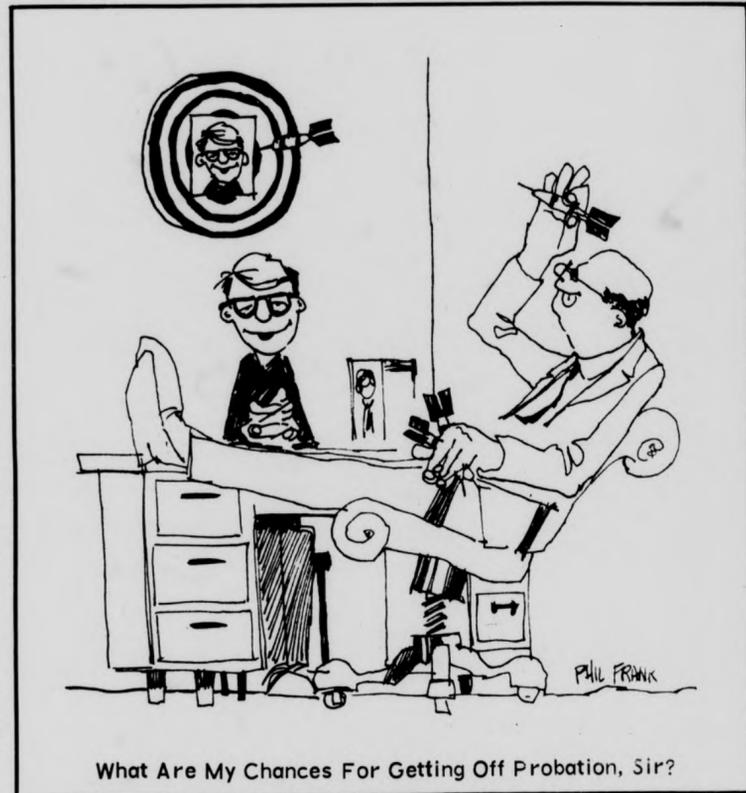

It's no longer just the rules, but the issue. When will they stop dictating to the individual? How much more absurd will they get? It's the principle I'm fighting for.

Why must Butterfield be different?

Why must we suffer?

Why can't they let girls live their own lives as they would at their own home?

Says Automation Has A Place In Elections

To the Editor:

I read the account of the election returns in the April 17 edition of the State News. I was amazed at the number of times the ballots were counted and on the fourth count there was still considerable doubt as to its correctness.

Has it ever occurred to AUSG to use voting machines? The student government of Old Dominion College has been using them since 1962. It seems that if a student body of 6,000 can obtain these machines that surely a university as large as Michigan State can do likewise. Not only do the voting machines make ballot counting more accurate and reliable, they also present the students the opportunity to become familiar with the voting procedures now being used by many areas. It was also found that the use of voting machines increase the student turnout at the polls.

If properly handled I think AUSG could convince the City of East Lansing to loan AUSG their voting machines for use in such large elections as the one last week. Samuel W. Tate

Point Of View

Students Shape Political Destiny

Editor's note: David George is a doctoral student from India in the political science department. He is a criminal lawyer in India.

Students in politics is a topic of interest to many social scientists and studies have been done on this topic in relation to the "developing areas" by many political and social scientists. I can recall two countries of relatively great importance in this respect. One is that of the Republic of Panama, and the other, my homeland, the Republic of India.

In Panama, the students have been as active in politics as any other political party or interest group. If the incumbents are not reformers coming forth with changes to the tune of their expectations, the students have been the first to strike out and flare up. The recent incidents in Panama, which ended in the severance of diplomatic relations between the United States and Panama, was begun by students.

In India, the scene is not much different. The student agitations almost closed down a university for more than a year. Student agitations developing into a public agitation threw out Communist rule in Kerala, one of the states of India. Student groups in the schools and universities almost divide in camps according to party affiliations.

At the national level the ruling political party, Indian National Congress, has given shape to a youth movement which embodies a good section of the student body all over India. Though started earlier, the Communist Party also has a similar youth movement for the students.

In the national elections, as well as in local elections, it is not unusual to see students leading rallies, and speaking on platforms before tens of thousands of people. It is also not unusual to find workers' unions enlisting the support of student unions for their strikes and picketings or agitations.

It is not true that students joining these groups are active in politics because the incumbents have alienated the students. It is a step to a process of change that is taking shape in the world around us. In the "underdeveloped areas" they represent the illiterate, the underprivileged, as well as the working class. They realize the inadequacies of the existing system and feel the necessity for change. Whether this means political change or only social and economic uplift, they want it fast. They are the restlessness of the society incarnate.

The over-production of the educated is only one reason for this change. As a basis of all these, there can be traced a definite shift in the attitude of students in politics.

The last few weeks of election squabbles on this campus is not an isolated phenomenon. I strongly feel that this is the beginning of a new life and a new step of things to come. Many political scientists have observed the political inactivity or disinterest of "American students as contrasted with the students of "underdeveloped areas." But the last few days or maybe weeks have then broken a record. Maybe "The winds of change" is fanning through here too.

Thanks, Landlords

To the Editor:

On behalf of the residents of Case Hall, I would like to take this opportunity to thank the administration for in essence evicting us from our home.

It is a shame that the University gave no consideration to the morale of the present occupants of this complex who have been given the ultimatum of either moving to new locations or being subjected to overcrowded living conditions in what is to become a freshman complex.

I sincerely respect the fact that the University is being forced to grow, but must it always be at the expense of the students.

Rather and Butterfield residents received the dictum to move so that coeds could break the Brody male stronghold in 1962. Last year the Snyder coeds ceded their dorm to men; next year Case charter members will bow to the "all-powerful" and leave the dorm they pioneered and developed into a successful "experiment."

Letter Policy

Letters should not be longer than 300 words, and should be typed double spaced if possible. Names and address should also be included. No unsigned letters will be printed, but names may be withheld if we feel there is reason.

Extending Special Privilege

To the Editor:

The principle which underlies the new parking regulations, that the affluent shall have special privilege, should be extended to other phases of campus activity. It would seem to me to be entirely suitable that the rest room facilities for the faculty should require an annual fee: $45 for a reserved space with name on the door, $19 for a general admission and a group of small structures south of the railroad tracks for those without tenure, or for the indigent.

Metropolitan Opera Baritone

Merrill To Appear Tonight

Robert Merrill, Metropolitan Opera baritone and television star, will sing at the Auditorium at 8:15 tonight. Merrill has appeared on such shows as the Ed Sullivan Show, The Voice of Firestone, and the Perry Como Show. He now appears on the Jack Parr Show at least twice a month. Born in Brooklyn, N.Y., Merrill's first ambition was to be a baseball player. After an unsuccessful tryout for the Dodgers, he turned to singing. To earn money for lessons, he tried a series of jobs. He worked with his father in the shoe business, and entertained on the summer resort circuit. Merrill's big break came in 1945, when he won the Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air, and made his debut at the

"Met." He was then awarded an RCA Victor contract, and became a regular soloist on the RCA Victor Show. Tonight's program will include selections from Don Giovanni, Carmen, and La Traviata. Merrill will conclude the program with "Witness," a spiritual by Hall Johnson. Tickets are still available at the Union ticket office for tonight's performance.

Faculty Parking Fee Tempts Riders

Profs Find Bike-Riding Safer, Quicker

By BOB AMES
State News Staff Writer

Once again the war between bikes and pedestrians is on. But a word to the wise—not all those mounted warriors are students, and that last one you impolitely called a road-hog may be the professor in your next class.

Of the 6,007 bicycles registered on campus, only a small percentage are owned by faculty members. But with the adoption of a faculty parking fee next year, many more professors may be tempted to leave their cars at home and join their bike-riding colleagues.

Robert Scigliano, associate professor of political science, said because of the parking fee he may ride his bicycle next year, "just as a matter of principle."

He has been riding his bike on campus since last year when he bought it at the University bike auction.

"Right now I use it as a shuttle between my office in Wells and my classes in Berkey," Scigliano said.

Maurice Crane, associate professor of humanities, has been using a bicycle on campus for the past three years. He said that this term he has classes and offices in both Bessey Hall and Wilson Hall and uses the bike to travel between them. He said the bike is faster than walking or driving and trying to find a place to park.

Bike riders have favorite paths they usually follow, Crane said. His route between Bessey and Wilson is through the Bessey parking lot, across the Computer Center bridge, down the path by the ducks, through the car pool by the stadium, behind the tennis courts, around the corner by Case Hall and into the Wilson bike racks.

One problem for the bike rider, Crane said, is that bike paths don't go everywhere and the sidewalks must be used.

"You whistle a merry tune and somebody jumps out of your way," he said.

David Gottlieb, associate professor of education, said he rides a bike because he enjoys it, and he can never find a parking place when he drives his car.

"I think it is safer than driving a car on campus," Gottlieb said.

However, his three years of bike riding on campus have not been completely uneventful. Gottlieb said he was once given a ticket by the campus police for speeding behind the stadium.

Stanley Idzerda, Honors College director, said he has been riding a bike around campus for over 12 years and did not even own a car until 1953.

John McNelly, associate professor of journalism, rides a bike to save time. He said he can make it to his office in the Journalism Building from his home in seven minutes by bike instead of the 10 or 12 minutes it takes by car.

He said he has had two bikes stolen in his seven years on campus, and once was hit by cars twice in the same day.

Compensation Meet Attended By Schmidt

Charles T. Schmidt, assistant professor of labor and industrial relations, attended the 20th semi-annual Conference of the American Compensation Association (ACA) at the Sheraton-Cadillac Hotel, Detroit.

Conference participants met in seminars where they heard presentations by authorities in the compensation field and discussed trends and practices in wage and salary administration. Highlighting the two-day conference was an address by Daniel H. Kruger, associate director of personnel management.

The ACA is composed of wage and salary administrators and executives which began in 1954 as the Ohio Wage and Salary Association.

The group's purpose is to further the exchange of information among members on current practices and research in the compensation field.

Warning—Cut Cable

A 480 volt cable located in the Water Carnival area east of the Farm Lane bridge was sliced through Monday night.

Police verified the report from Gilbert J. Spiegel, publicity chairman of the Water Carnival, that the cable had been cut.

Spiegel warned students that the voltage in the cable would be enough to melt a person who touched it. "Whether this is purposeful destruction or not, there is a definite danger in fooling around with the cable," Spiegel said.

He asked that students take care when they are in the area of Water Carnival preparation.

Governor's Address To Open Performance Budget Seminar

Gov. George Romney will give the opening remarks today at a seminar on performance budgeting at Kellogg Center.

The seminar will consist of about 100 state, county, and municipal accountants who will study the principles of performance budgeting, the adoption of which is being considered by the state of Michigan.

Performance budgeting is a concept by which dollars spent are measured by their overall accomplishments as opposed to the present system of budgeting through department purpose.

Romney has endorsed the new system and urged its acceptance.

Speakers for the seminar include Mark A. Alger, U.S. Bureau of the Budget; and John A. Donaho, president of a Baltimore management consultant firm.

'Future Music To Come From America'

By JUDY HOPPER State News Staff Writer

The important music of the future will be written in America. Vincent Persichetti, composer, conductor, and educator, told a group of young musicians here Monday.

Speaking at the Tri-State Orchestral Composers Symposium, which plays publicly the works of young composers from Indiana, Ohio, and Michigan, he told of his early experiences.

"When I was in my teens, learning to compose," Persichetti said, "my teacher told me never to write for orchestras, because I'd never get my works played."

"I wrote anyway, of course," he continued, "and since that time, things are so much better. We're on the uphill; we're in the beginning of a rich period of music in this country."

Speaking vibrantly and energetically, Persichetti said that programs like the symposium are one of the most important ways we have to give the young composer a chance to hear his music played.

"The majority of symphony conductors would almost rather that there weren't even new works composed," he said. "They haven't time to fit the works in their busy schedules."

"Here," he said, "we're covering five pieces in three hours, when the symphony orchestras would have to spend hours on each number. We still have a time limit, but we have enough time to cover them all pretty well, and the players are enthusiastic, and try harder."

Orchestral composing is particularly discouraging, Persichetti said, adding that there are more good concert bands in this country than orchestras.

"The young orchestral composer goes to a school," he said, "and all he gets to hear is chamber music and concert bands. We're trying to get good string players together in the schools now," he said.

So if the composer goes to a school with a strong orchestra, as MSU has, and most don't, they can hear their music played."

Four sessions are being held through today in Fairchild Theater. Today's, from 9 a.m.-12 noon, will be entirely of works by MSU graduate students.

The sessions consisted of reading periods, in which the music was practiced by most of the players for the first time, and recording periods, each number being recorded when the conductor felt the group had it well enough learned.

On the program, played by members, were four selections from University of Michigan composers, and one by Wallace DePue, MSU graduate student.

DePue's piece, the 2nd movement of his "Concerto Gross for Percussion and Orchestra" was very experimental and modern in scope, with many different meters and special instrumentation effects.

Each composer was called to the front of the theater, to be at hand for consultation and interpretation. Tensely each followed his scores, shook his head or nodded approval, as a particular part came to life in the orchestra's hands.

The acoustics of the theater are very fine, and the sound of each piece was good. The conductor's comments to the orchestra were clearly audible to the audience, as he coaxed and demanded each effect from the players.

Persichetti appeared contained and relaxed at all times, yet he conveyed a feeling of vibrancy and drive in his sweeping gestures. Always he gave a pat on the back or a word of encouragement to the composers.

"Some wonderful things are happening here," he commented during the break, "and when they do, that's when I really want to get down to work."

"It's a very exciting time for music in this country," he said. "Music is now an amalgam of many musical qualities, many techniques. You can hear serial and polyphonic, tonal and atonal music combined."

"You can hear almost anything now. Even the avant garde people are beginning to amalgamate their ideas into the music being written."

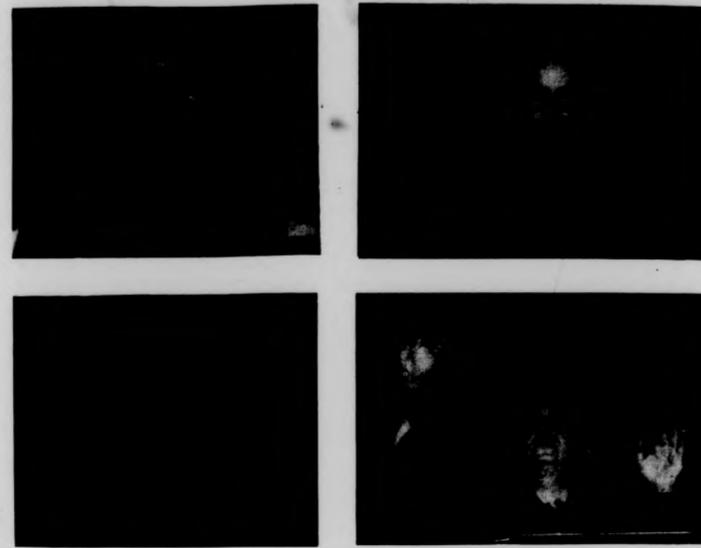

The tapes of the pieces being made will be distributed to educational institutions and radio, and to the composers.

The entire symposium, including shoptalks between the composers, is open to the public.

Rain Cancels Baseball Game

Baseball Coach Danny Litwhiler no longer has a game to "get ready" for the opening of the Big Ten season thanks to a state-wide cloudburst Monday.

The rains forced the cancellation of Tuesday's scheduled game between MSU and the University of Detroit, the only scheduled game this week before the Spartans plunge into league competition Friday and Saturday at Northwestern and Wisconsin.

Litwhiler said the game in Detroit was completely washed out with no chance for re-scheduling it. "We play the Titans at home later in the season," he said "and I tried to get them to agree to a doubleheader then but couldn't."

Junior southpaw Bill Collins, 2-2, who was Litwhiler's choice to start Monday's game, will pitch against Northwestern Friday, with John Krasnan, 3-0, and John Ellward, 3-0, expected to throw in Saturday's twin bill at Wisconsin.

Two Tennis Starters Disciplined

The Spartan tennis team will travel to Wayne State today with a new lineup and hopes of renewing their winning ways.

Meet time is 2 p.m. at Detroit's Palmer Park.

The Green and White will take an 8-3 mark into the meet after seeing their seven-match victory string snapped at Notre Dame Saturday.

Number two man Tony O'Donnell and number five man Tom Wierman will be out of action for the first time this season when the Spartans take on the Tartars.

Coach Stan Droback said he is keeping O'Donnell out of the lineup for missing practice and Wierman for poor court conduct.

Tom Jamieson retains his number one position, but Dwight Shelton is now second, Charlie Wolff third, and Dave Click fourth. Sophomores Mike Youngs and Laird Warner have been promoted to fifth and sixth positions.

Wayne State has captured the Presidents' Athletic Conference championship for the past eight seasons. This year the Tartars started out with a 7-2 victory over Eastern Michigan by capturing four of six singles events and sweeping the doubles.

Coach Droback hopes to find the strongest combination of personnel before the Spartans open their conference season at Michigan May 5.

Wayne State and Western Michigan are the only non-conference foes remaining before the meet with the Wolverines.

Last season the Spartans went 8-2 in Big Ten dual competition and earned a fourth place finish in the conference meet.

State Pistol Team Second In National

The varsity and ROTC pistol teams combined squads to enter the National Rifle Association Intercollegiate Pistol League and have shot their way to runner-up honors.

The league is composed of two divisions: eastern and western. Teams in the western division include the Air Force Academy, University of Oklahoma, the defending National Champion, and Arlington State College in Texas.

Among the teams in the Eastern division are Michigan State, West Point, Navy, Coast Guard and Ohio State.

West Point won the divisional title with a 9-0 record followed by State, with an 802 record. Navy (6-3) was third.

The match between the Spartans and West Point was fired on Jan. 17. State lost that match and the first Ohio State match but defeated Ohio State in a return match.

The Green and White also pushed victories over a strong Navy team, Coast Guard and the Royal Military Academy of Canada in route to the runner-up honors.

The shooting season began in late November and ended late last month. The champion and runner-ups in each division then fired in a match to determine

Spartan Booters Eye Title Defense

By RICHARD SCHWARTZ
State News Sports Writer

Football isn't the only things getting kicked around on campus these days.

The soccer team has been doing some booting of its own at the sports' site next to the secret practice field of Coach Duffy Daugherty's gridmen.

Led by soccer skipper Gene Kenney, the Spartan team, which captured the Midwest Collegiate Conference title with a 9-1 record last fall, puts in three practices a week for eight weeks spring term.

"Everybody's eager to get back into the swing of things next fall," Kenney said. "I think they all realize that it's a long row to hoe if we are to repeat the championship and go on to the NCAA playoffs again."

Graduations took a lot of fitness away from the Spartan backfield. State will be without the services of halfback Sam Donnelly, 1963 captain, and fullbacks Stan Stelmashenko and George Rendon.

The Spartans will also be missing the scoring punch of Bill Schwarz, who led the Spartan in goals with 14 and in assists with 11.

HEADS UP BALL -- Fullback Turgud Enustun practices the fine art of "heading" the soccer ball during team's spring practice sessions on the soccer field. Enustun played for the Spartans last year, but at fullback. Photo by George Junne Kenney, whose teams have amassed an amazing record of 60 wins against only seven losses and three ties over eight seasons, will be working with 11 returning lettermen.

A year ago this time Kenney was faced with a major rebuilding job after losing 12 men and having only three returnees who won monograms.

"While we won't have many of the problems of last season in finding the men to fill starting positions," Kenney said, "we still may be short on depth. This has always been a problem with us and probably always will be."

Kenney said he plans to try everybody at different positions to see whether there might be some versatility to compensate for the shortage of reserves. Defense work will probably center around junior Turgud Enustun, who will be making his debut as a starter at fullback, and seniors Louie Eckhardt and Dennis Checkett, who will hold down the halfback spots.

On the line State will have five of its six top scorers from 1963 back: George James (14 goals, 11 assists); Payton Fuller (11 goals, 8 assists); Van Dimitrious (9 goals, 1 assist); John McLane (4 goals, 3 assists); and Larry Christoff (4 goals, 3 assists). Other returning forwards are Clare DeBoer and Karl Thiele.

Back for his second season as Spartan goalie is Charlie Dedich.

Top sophomore prospects include Terry Bidiak, Boscoe Dittreich and Manny Ruschenski, all forwards. Back after being sidelined last season with an injury is halfback John Pierre.

Better Guidebook IM Meeting Goal

By JERRY MORTON
State News Sports Writer

Fifty of the most prominent physical education directors and administrators have become authors this week at Kellogg Center.

The National Conference on Intramurals convened Saturday, faced with the task of writing a guidebook for intramural athletics within a week.

The publication will serve as a guide for intramural programs in the upper elementary and junior and senior high schools.

MSU IM Chairman Frank Beeman and Women's IM Director Carol Harding are among seven delegates from Michigan to the conference. Beeman also served as a delegate to the conference the last time it was held at Kellogg Center.

Other delegates attending include directors from as far away as California.

The program is being conducted through a grant from the Athletic Institute. It also has the endorsement of 16 national organizations including the President's Council on Physical Fitness and the United States Office of Education.

The event is a working conference with the delegates dividing themselves into small groups to discuss their special fields.

Members include school administrators, supervisors, teachers, child specialists, health specialists, and physical education and intramural specialists.

Several national conferences have been held previously, but they are not necessarily an annual event. They are conducted to revise former publications and to keep delegates abreast of intramural trends.

MSU rates as a logical place to hold the conference since campus IM facilities rank among the best in the nation.

The conference will end Saturday.

Trio To Join Hall Of Fame

(UPI)--Three persons will be selected from a list of 20 candidates, to the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame.

Sports editors, sports writers and sportscasters employed in Michigan will pick the winners during the next ten days. Of the three to be selected, one will be a now-deceased athlete and the other two will be still living.

Three new names among the candidates held over from previous balloting are Fred Matthaei, of Ann Arbor, who has spent a lifetime trying to bring the olympic games to Michigan, Bobby Layne, quarterback for the champion Detroit Lions teams of the 1950's, and Heinie Manush, a Detroit Tiger star outfielder from 1923 to 1927.

Those elected to the hall of fame will be inducted May 20th at Detroit's Roostertail restaurant. The Michigan Sports Hall of Fame already has 45 members, including MSU Athletic Director "Biggie" Munn.

Bills Sign Lattimer

Former Michigan State star Earl Lattimer has signed a contract with the Buffalo Bills, of the American Football League. He's the fifth man off the Spartan gridiron to go with the Bills and joins George Saimes, Dave Behrman, Carl Charon and Herb Paterra on the 1964 Buffalo roster.

Lattimer was the Bills' 10th draft choice. He played fullback, guard and linebacker during his collegiate career and kicked three field goals out of five attempts last fall. He'll be tried out at the linebacker slot for the Bills.

N.Y. At Fair Time 'Nice Place To Visit'

William Moffit, assistant marching band director, Leonard Falcone, director of bands and Thad Haegerberg, Boyne City, junior marching band president go over plans for their upcoming performance at the Fair on Michigan Day, May 18.

One square mile filled with buildings of all shapes and sizes will greet an expected one million people today at the opening of the 1964-65 New York World's Fair.

Over 100 million people are expected to tour the grounds at Flushing Meadows, Queens, nine miles east of New York City. The fair will run through October 18 and reopen for another yearly stint next April.

The fairgrounds, with 28 miles of walkway, are a world in miniature with some 60 foreign nations and about 25 states represented. The most lavish of the fair's wonders, all of which can be seen free, are the creations of American industry.

Michigan is well represented by the automobile industry, with General Motors, Ford and Chrysler having the largest pavilions among the 150 at the fair.

In the GM "Futurama" visitors will be taken on a simulated trip to the moon. A visit to the city of tomorrow concludes the tour.

Chrysler has five buildings with indoor-outdoor exhibits on a six acre plot. Four islands represent various Chrysler operations -- styling, engineering, production, and products.

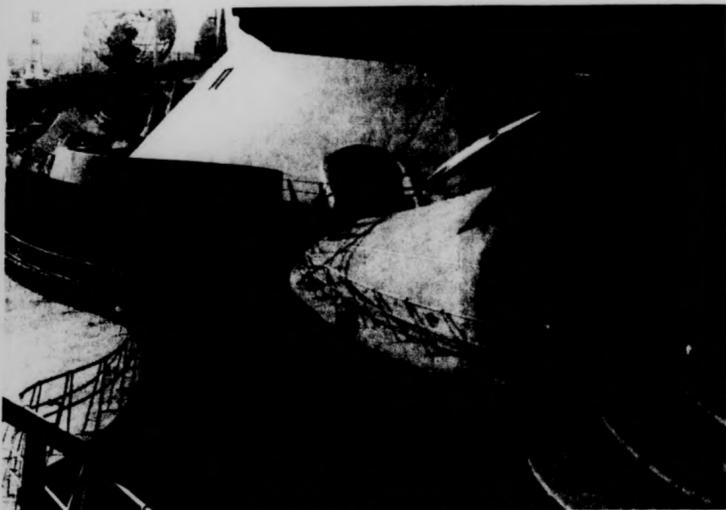

More than 400,000 Michiganders are expected to tour the fair this summer. From Detroit, the driving distance to New York is 673 miles by the Ohio, Pennsylvania and New Jersey turnpikes. Driving time is 13 hours.

Money spent at the Fair is expected to average $7.20 per adult. This includes food, a $2 admission fee and subway fare.

Michiganders visiting the fair can expect to see familiar faces with some 40 MSU students working as guides at the Ford pavilion as well as at other sites.

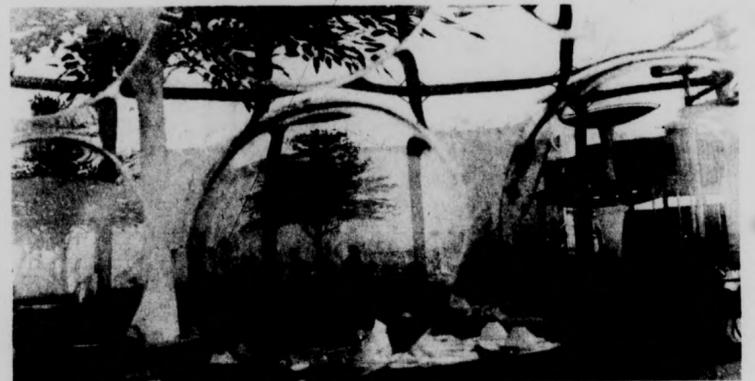

The Unisphere, built by U.S. Steel, is the fair's focal point, located in the heart of the fairgrounds. The $1 billion fair, a non-profit venture fostered by New York City and state, is dedicated to "Peace Through Understanding," and uses as its theme, "Man's Achievements in an Expanding Universe."

A moon-like atmosphere designed for photo bugs is the roof-top setting of the Kodak Pavilion. Liz Hyman, Baldwin, N.Y., junior, and Ken Roberts, Los Angeles, Calif., junior, look over the lunar setting which also proves to be an excellent observation deck for the Fair.

One of the many religious pavilions is that of the Mormon Church. The prefabricated temple rises 25 feet in the air and is topped by a gold painted statue of the Mormon patron saint.

The out-of-focus effect here will be a welcome treat to hungry tourists. It is the Schaeffer Beer Company restaurant which features a plexiglass domed building with a bubble effect. The Schaeffer restaurant is one of many located at the fair where a meal can cost anywhere from 50 cents to $15.

Patti Prout, Ken Roberts

The Ford pavilion, one of the largest and most expensive buildings at the Fair, features a tour in 1964-model cars for a trip through a time tunnel created by Walt Disney. The trip begins in the prehistoric past among full-sized animated dinosaurs and travels on through scenes of the present and future.

The New York State pavilion is topped by two 226-foot observation platforms where visitors can get an impressive overall look at the fair.

Weather Hampers Philly-Bound Trackmen

The track team heads for Philadelphia tonight and Coach Fran Dittrich hopes that the Spartans will be able to successfully defend their three Penn Relays titles, but he may be just hoping.

The Relays are scheduled for Friday and Saturday on the Franklin Field oval and any prac-ticating the Spartans had to do has never come about.

Rain and injuries have hampered the squad since the start of the season and this week has been no exception. Although the team had a brisk workout Monday, Tuesday's rains limited the running and there's no time for practicing once they arrive in Philadelphia Thursday night.

The Spartans are defending champions in the 440- and 880-yard relays, but they probably won't be the favorites. Bob Moreland is also the title holder in the 100-yard dash and his chances to repeat appear slightly better than the relay quartets.

The 440-team will be made up of regulars Sherman Lewis, Moreland, John Parker and Walker Beverly, but it's hardly at full strength. Beverly hasn't fully recovered from an early season injury and will be running in competition for the first time this season. Moreland also has a slight leg injury, although it doesn't appear to be bothering him too much.

The 880-team was supposed to be the same as the 440-squad, but Beverly's injury will keep him on the sidelines and Ayo Azikiwe will run in his place.

State will have men in 14 events during the two-day program. Azikiwe will also be entered in the 400-meter hurdles, while Fred McKoy will be in the 120-yard high hurdles.

Bill Berry, if he recovers from a knee injury, will be in the high jump along with McKoy. Dave Mutchler will be entered in the discus and shotput events.

State will have two other relay teams, besides the two championship squads, Dick Sharkey, Jan Bowen, Rick Zemper and Mike Kaines will run in the four-mile relay, while Joe Barnett, Ron Horning, Bob Fulcher and either Mike Martens or Kaines will be in the distance medley relay.

Green Splash

Green Splash pledges will meet at 6:30 tonight in the Women's IM Building lounge. Active members will meet at 7 p.m. Both groups should come dressed for taking down decorations.

Intramural News

The Embers-Emerald game was an entirely different affair, with a total of 13 errors, 27 hits and 37 runs. Embers won the wild swinging contest 21-16 although they committed 10 errors. In other games Carthage edged Cachet 9-8, Snyder 10 routed Snyder 11, 18-7 and West Shaw 7 walloped West Shaw 10; 16-3.

Arlington State successfully defended its title and the Spartans were second. Air Force Academy finished third and West Point fourth. The State finish was the highest ever by a University team in pistol shooting.

During the regular season, the team is composed of a maximum of ten shooters with the high five scorers counting in the team match. The firing is conducted on each school's home range and the results forwarded to the NRA in Washington, D.C.

High shooter throughout the year was Dave Shelley, with an average of 281.5 points out of a possible 300 points per each individual match. He was followed by Mel Mathias, with a 280.3 average, Cadet second Lt. George Spencer, averaging 277; Tom Oakey, team Captain with a 276.4 and Jim Mason, with a 275 average.

Rounding out the team were Paul Nelson, 274; Dave Babbitt, 271.6; and Mike Golden 271.4. Coaches are Capt. James L. McLain and Sgt. Harvey N. Barrows.

The Michigan State Pistol Team also won the NRA Intercollegiate Inter-sectional Championships earlier this year.

The State team defended its championship in this match and it was also during this match that the State team set a new Midwest League record of 1,115 points, breaking the old record of 1,096 points which was set by an MSU team in 1962 and tied by a State team in 1963.

Coach Talks At Grid Clinic

Michigan State football's offensive backfield coach Dan Boisture will be a principle speaker at the Motor City Football Clinic May 9 at Detroit Catholic Central High School.

Boisture is a former prep and collegiate football star from the Detroit area. He will join Dave Nelson, head coach of the University of Delaware, Doug Weaver, head man at Kansas State and a former MSU star and assistant coach, and Andy MacDonald, State University of Iowa skipper.

SONS they reacted at first with confusion. Each tried to persuade the others that he was the true Christ.
Later they began arguing with each other, and eventually were fighting so seriously that the meeting program had to be re-organized to allow for less rivalry.
Rokeach played tape recordings for the club of the three introducing themselves as Christ and later fighting among themselves.

3 Christs
He said his "three friends who happen to live at Ypsilanti State Hospital" are different from others only in the degree to which they have been affected by the tendency to feel guilt and inadequacy.
They are "suffering in the extreme from what we all suffer to a lesser degree," he said.
This is the significance of "The Three Christs of Ypsilanti" for others, Rokeach said. All mental illnesses are to some degree the result of a disturbance of identity.

Rights
nize the fact that there are individuals in the society who readily label the civil rights movement as left, Red or Communist-infiltrated in order to stymie such an organization in its attempts to achieve its objectives," he added.
"Leaders recognize that there are people who join the civil rights movement and are not really concerned with its goals, aims and objectives, but, in fact, are concerned with furthering their own cause," Green said. "But with 300,000 members, it is difficult to account for everyone's behavior."
Green said he firmly believes that the leaders of the civil rights movement are not swayed by Communist propaganda and said that he feels "it is unfair to say the entire movement is swayed by such a minute segment of its members."

Russia
usually saying what they mean. A nation does not change its ways overnight, he said. He cited Germany as an example--Germany was beaten in World War I but set out on the same course again in World War II. It is the same with Russia, Krzywoblocki said. No matter how friendly she sounds, she has not changed. If the Russians did not need U.S. goods to boost their economy, they would not be as close to the U.S. as they seem.
Greer says that the threat of a nuclear war is another reason for easing East-West tensions. Kruschew fears losing all the Soviets have built up in the destruction a nuclear war would bring, he said.
He added that building up consumer goods would mean a chance to influence people overseas through economic methods and this cannot be done effectively while so much is being spent on weapons.
U.S. interests are aided by cooperation with Russia while keeping the Soviets and the Red Chinese split, Greer said. Because of Russia's apprehension towards Chinese moves, she is less likely to antagonize the West.
Although the easing of the race is not as significant as it seems on the surface, Greer said, it could lead to further agreement.

Flights
enough on my hands now"--and added:
"It is essential that we maintain surveillance and know whether any missiles are being shipped into Cuba. We will have to maintain our reconnaissance and overflights. Any action on their part to stop that would be a very serious action."
The President said this information has been passed on to Cuba's "friends" too. He did not specify whom.
State Department press officer Richard L. Phillips said he knew of no warning note to the Soviets, but expressed belief that the Kremlin is aware of U.S. feeling on this matter.
The March 27 U.S. note was prompted, Phillips said, because of some militant statements by Castro at a Feb. 6 press conference.
Sunday night Castro implied in a speech that force would be used against American planes and accused U.S. marines of provocations at the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo in eastern Cuba. 18

University Theatre Unique Acting Plan

From a classroom project to a traveling theatre group--that's what has happened to the University theatre during the past year and a half, said Frank C. Rutledge, instructor in speech.

The tour of Eugene Ionesco's "Rhinoceros" to St. Joseph this month is only one in a series of trips to all parts of Michigan.

"The University Theatre was formed a little over a year ago," said Rutledge. "Before that, it had merely been used as an extension of classroom work."

Prior to the formation of the theatre group, the speech department had only 12 graduate assistantships available. An expansion program passed by the Board of Trustees gave the department new equipment and 12 more assistantships for qualified students.

The expansion program enabled the department to launch tours and permitted the theatre group to improve the quality of its productions.

"The University Theatre doesn't fit into any tradition that we know of," added Rutledge. "Wayne State has an arrangement similar to ours, but their work isn't year-round. The University of Michigan has contracted with the Association of Performing Artists, but professionals put on their plays, not students."

"Minnesota offers graduate assistantships where students act with the theatre, but our actors and technicians are working toward degrees."

The University Theatre still wants to expand, of course, but "we can't expand because we have no space," Rutledge said. Until we can get a new and better theatre of our own, our desire is to improve the quality of our productions and our undergraduate curriculum.

About 65 per cent of the roles are played by undergraduates majoring in theatre. The department would like to have more diversified participation.

"The only requirement for acting in a play is that you be a student," said Rutledge. "In a place of this size there is a great deal of native acting talent."

"We produce about 50 dramatic events a year, so there is ample room for employment."

"We are sorry that more undergrads don't try out."

Student Drinkers Warned

Could Jeopardize Future

Students who drink illegally or cause damages to property may jeopardize their chances of obtaining future jobs, Kenneth L. Preadmore, Mason County sheriff, said.

"Those arrested and arraigned in court will have a criminal record," Preadmore said, "and this will be with them for the rest of their lives."

Preadmore said a student who had been arraigned could be prevented from receiving a commission in the military in the future.

He also said a student in police administration may find it hard to get a job or might be expelled from his course of study.

"Those students interested in a scientific career may affect their employment after graduation because conduct and security weigh heavily in that field," he said.

University officials issued stern warnings recently following reports of student off-campus drinking activities.

Eldon R. Nonnamaker, associate dean of students, said: "Students are expected to obey state and local laws as well as University rules and codes."

Nonnamaker referred specifically to the several complaints received recently of littering and general destruction of property, especially in cemeteries surrounding East Lansing.

Students drive to the cemeteries thinking them a good place for grassers, and leave them littered with beer cans and broken bottles.

In an Okemos cemetery students were caught uprooting shrubbery and smashing bottles on tombstones. Another such party resulted in extensive damage to grass from spinning tires.

"Any student involved in activity of this type will be referred to student judiciary, and disciplinary action will definitely be taken," Nonnamaker said.

YD's To Hold Meet Tonight To Discuss State Convention

The Young Democrats will discuss the upcoming state convention at 7:30 tonight in 34 Union.

The Young Democrat State Convention will be held this weekend at the Fort Shelby Hotel in Detroit. It will include speakers, election of officers, the Kennedy Awards Dinner, and a dance.

Speaking Friday night will be G. Mennen Williams, assistant secretary of state for African affairs, and John Swainson, former governor of Michigan.

Also scheduled to speak Friday is Al House, chairman of the National Federation of Young Democrats.

Saturday's speakers will be Congressman Thomas P. Gill, liberal Democrat from Hawaii and Michigan congressman-at-large Neil Staebler.

Conference issues are state-federal issues, discussed by Sen. Philip Hart and Neil Staebler, and apportionment.
