

Pickets Protest Bricklayers' Union Pickets Rejected Story Halt Campus Construction

All Others Expected To Be At Jobs Today

Wage Dispute Believed To Have Triggered Strike

Picketing by local bricklayers halted major campus construction projects Friday and Monday, but all unions except the bricklayers will be back on the job today.

The strike began Friday when a contract ran out between the Bricklayers, Masons,

Newsman Awarded Pulitzer

NEW YORK (AP)—Three of the 1964 Pulitzer Prizes in journalism were awarded Monday for newspaper attacks on fraud and corruption.

The St. Petersburg, Fla., Times received the Pulitzer Gold medal for public service for a year-long campaign to uncover fraudulent spending of public funds in the Florida State Turnpike Authority.

Norman C. Miller of the Wall Street Journal won the general prize for local reporting for his story of a multimillion dollar fraud in vegetable oils.

The award for special local reporting went to reporters Al V. Gaudiosi and James V. Magee and photographer Frederick A. Meyer of the Philadelphia Bulletin, for their exposure of a numbers racket and police collusion in South Philadelphia.

Additionally, Mrs. Hazel Brannon Smith of the weekly Lexington, Miss., Advertiser, won the prize for editorial writing for the "whole volume of her work during the year, including attacks on corruption."

and Plasterers of America Local No. 31 and the Michigan chapter of Associated General Contractors of America. Area construction management is handling all negotiations through the contractor's association.

The hidden dispute seems to center around wages.

No unions working on MSU projects crossed the bricklayers picket lines, but the union decided they will not hold them to this any longer.

"Our committee met Monday and we felt we were penalizing other trades by picketing their jobs," said Robert Misener, chairman of the negotiating committee for the union. "Tuesday we will have pickets only on those jobs involving bricklaying."

Construction was halted on the Bio-Chemistry Building, Chemistry Building and Fee and Akers residence halls.

Wesley Jeltema, secretary-manager of the contractor's association, said federal and state mediators had been called in, but he did not know when union and management would get together to mediate the contract dispute.

Jeltema and the union spokesman said little about the wage dispute.

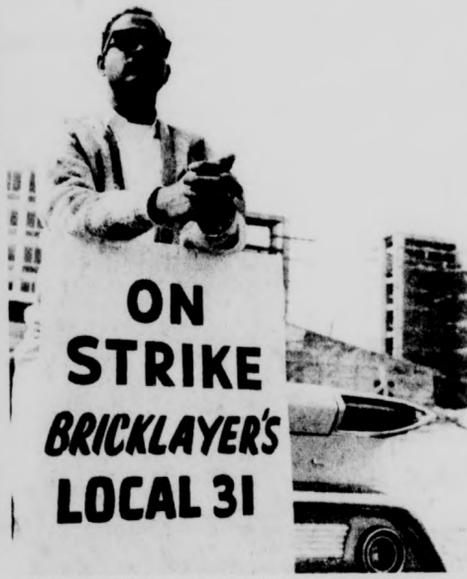

"The present rate for journeyman bricklayers is $4.43 per hour," Jeltema said.

The present wage rate seemed like a "healthy package," he said, but he conceded that construction workers were off much of the time in bad weather.

STUDENT PROTEST—Concerned over the recent alleged censorship of the campus literary magazine, Red Cedar Review, students picketed Morrill Hall Monday. Students picketed Morrill Hall Monday in protest of a story which did not appear in the Red Cedar Review, the campus literary magazine.

A fiction piece involving homosexuality was written by an MSU sophomore and submitted to the Red Cedar Review for approval. The author received word that her story had been turned down.

The story had been written for the coed's creative writing class, and the professor, Virgil Scott, adviser to the Review, suggested she submit it to the magazine.

The staff members of the Review read the story and submitted it to the editor, Jim Cash, Grand Rapids Junior. Cash liked the story and found it "worthy of publication."

The protesting students handed out printed statements to passing students which claimed, "both the faculty adviser and the Dean of the College of Arts and Letters agreed that the story was worthy of being printed. The Provost of the University agreed. However, these men, fearing of possible legislative disapproval, insisted that the story be killed."

Cash said Scott approved the story. Another adviser, Carl Hartman, associate professor of English, recommended that Cash obtain the support of a "higher official" in case anyone should protest the story on moral grounds, Cash said.

Cash went to Provost Howard Neville, who told Cash that the decision rested between the staff and advisers of the Red Cedar Review.

Money seemed to be the problem. The question was whether or not to take the chance of printing the story and having it received so badly that the appropriations for the Review for next year would be nil, or throwing caution to the wind, Cash said.

He said he was willing to print the story but understands Hartman's position. "Actually, he was the only one who was really thinking of the magazine," Cash said.

However, Cash resigned his post as editor last week "because there wasn't enough support for the story."

5 Sailors Killed At Guantanamo

WASHINGTON (AP)—Five Navy enlisted men were killed at the Guantanamo Naval Base Saturday after they walked into a mine field, the Navy announced Monday.

They were on liberty from their ship, the amphibious assault vessel Boxer, which is at Guantanamo for what the Navy called "routine fleet training exercises."

"Authorities at Guantanamo can only speculate as to the cause of the tragedy, since there are no known witnesses," the announcement said.

School District Case Denied Court Review

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court refused Monday to upset a ruling that school boundaries need not be revamped to force integration when they are honestly drawn with no intention to segregate the races.

While only the Gary, Ind., school system is directly involved, the court's action may have a broad impact on other cities where compliance with integration demands could force many students to be transported by bus across town.

The high court's refusal to hear the Gary case does not necessarily mean it agrees with the lower court's decision. Thus, this inconclusive status is a disappointment to many on both sides of the issue.

The question could return to the tribunal on other appeals and the justices might decide then to hear arguments and lay down their own views.

The court refused also to review a decision that Negro pupils are entitled to have their entire school system on a non-racial basis, including assignment of teachers, principals, supervisors and supporting personnel.

The Duval County, Fla., school board had contended that the court's 1954 and 1955 integration rulings dealt solely with admission of children to schools on a non-racial basis and not to school employees.

Monday's two orders, one a setback for school integration forces, the other a victory, come almost 10 years after the court handed down its historic ruling that public schools must be racially integrated. That decision was announced May 17, 1954.

The Gary decision let stand a ruling by the U.S. circuit court in Chicago

Report Will Restrict Grasser Petitioning

Coeds who were campused after the April 25 grasser will be able to petition their case only if they were not at the parties in Shiawassee County.

The incident is being investigated now to determine who was at the grasser and who was not. The final report will be accepted as the determining factor.

In addition, students who were arrested and did not consume liquor, and students who were over 21 and attended the party may not claim that they were "illegally detained," as far as the University is concerned.

Varied Issues On Ballots In Seven Elections Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Voters in six states and the District of Columbia will cast ballots today on subjects ranging from a presidential preference to a right-to-work law.

Most of the attention is on Indiana where Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace is challenging a stand-in for President Johnson with a vigorous campaign against the administration's civil rights bill.

Also drawing attention are some sharply contested Senate nomination races in Ohio and Oklahoma, a scramble for Florida's Democratic gubernatorial nomination and the issue of unpledged presidential electors in Alabama.

There are no contests of national significance in the New Mexico and District of Columbia primaries.

In all, nominations will be made

Harris Chooses Four As Cabinet Members

New All-University Student Government President Bob Harris, Bryan, Ohio, junior, has named four members to his cabinet.

Sink is a former AUSG treasurer, and Buchholz is former elections commissioner. McQuitty is past president of the sophomore class. One of the chief duties of Puryear in his newly created position will be corresponding with other schools. Puryear is on the executive council of Fresh-Soph Council and is on the executive board of Career Carnival.

Harris and former AUSG President Bob Kerr, Washington, N.J., senior, will attend the Big Ten Student Body Presidents' Conference at the University of Wisconsin this weekend.

Harris said he hopes to discuss and exchange information on issues such as civil rights, speaker policies, student court systems, and academic evaluations.

General Motors Picketed By 300

DETROIT (UPI)—About 300 civil rights demonstrators showed up Monday to picket the General Motors Corporation headquarters building.

Negro leaders of the march accused G-M of racial discrimination in employment.

State Officials Study Arrests At 'Grassers'

Final decision by the state attorney general on whether to take action against Shiawassee County officials should be made by Wednesday.

The attorney general's office received complaints Thursday from several MSU students arrested in police raids on three "grassers" April 25 near Morrice in Southwestern Shiawassee County.

The students protested the manner of their arrest and the way their arraignments were handled.

"The students came in Friday to meet with a representative of our criminal division," said Leo S. Cohan, deputy attorney general.

Cohan said he would review the recommendations and follow the case up if the report indicates there is a clear abuse of civil liberties. A decision should be made by Wednesday.

Johnson To Visit Poverty Areas

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson will extend his on-the-spot studies of poverty-stricken areas to five more states this week. The White House announced the President will visit Maryland, Ohio, Tennessee, North Carolina and Georgia, in that order, on Thursday and Friday. Except in Ohio, his inspections will be in Appalachian Mountain areas.

Britain Says UAR, Yemen Stir Uprisings

LONDON (AP)—Britain accused Yemen and the United Arab Republic Monday of fomenting uprisings inside the South Arabian federation. It asked the United States to investigate reports that the heads of two slain British soldiers were put on public display in Taiz, diplomatic capital of Yemen.

Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home made the statements in the House of Commons, where he served notice Britain would fight back, and pull troops out of West Germany if necessary.

Soviets Claim Chinese Seek To Isolate

MOSCOW (AP)—The government declared Monday the Red Chinese are trying to isolate the Soviet Union from Asia and Africa because they aspire to become "either leaders or unerring instructors" of all nations on the two continents.

In an unusual move, the Soviet government took its quarrel with Red China directly to the Asian and African governments with a message made public in the government newspaper Izvestia. Previously the Moscow-Peking quarrel was conducted on a party basis.

Some Are More Equal

The students who were arrested at the grasser in Shiawassee County are enduring the distinction which sometimes singles out citizens of a democracy.

All students, according to the hallowed land-grant philosophy, are equal in their right to an education and in their treatment within the educational system. But some, it turns out, are more equal than others.

All students are granted the same privileges, or lack of them, in the organization of University life. All students are expected to flourish in roughly the same manner and degree under this system.

And all students are expected to buck the system occasionally, by staying out after curfew, by driving on campus when they shouldn't, or by drinking when the rules say not to.

This is part of the game, and the fun comes in getting away with it, and sometimes in getting caught.

Until recently, everyone seemed to be playing by this set of rules, and everyone was getting along with roughly the same degree of success.

But now, some students are being granted greater equality within the system than others.

Some students now are expected to adhere to the rules more steadfastly than their equals.

Some students, for infractions of the rules equal to those of their compatriots, are being punished unequally. They seem expected to develop a more than equal moral dedication to the system, accentuating their greater equality.

These students, equal to thousands of others, only more so, are being granted criminal records for an offense which hundreds of others, less equal, commit regularly. Some are being locked into their dormitory rooms, with an unreasonable punishment ordered in an unreasonable and unequal way.

The dormitory women among the group are being given treatment distinct not only from that of their off-campus and male friends, but unique within the dormitory system. For those women are more equal, and the usual mild and perfunctory punishment would not do for them.

The entire group is being threatened with a kind of stigma--"Oh, he's one of the ones from that grasser"--which will remain with them, and which no other students guilty of similar offenses must endure.

This is all in the nature of the democracy in which we live, for sometimes a few people are singled out from among the ranks and are granted greater equality. That's the way the system works.

Three In A Row

Without blowing our own horn too loud, we would like to note that the State News has won its third consecutive Pacemaker award, the highest honor in collegiate journalism.

The Pacemaker is given to five college papers each year by the American Newspaper Publishers Association, in recognition of general excellence and fulfillment of journalistic goals.

The State News was cited for its "professional journalistic approach," the only winner to be so designated.

The temptation is to say we are grateful to everyone for this honor, or to say we are proud and will continue to do the same job in the future. Avoiding this temptation, we will just note that professional standards are only appropriate when there is a readership that expects and demands them.

We have been fortunate thus far in having this type of readership, and hope it will continue.

Highway To Peace

We of earth are marching
Toward the morning,
Toward the dawning
Of a bright new day.

Why?

The peace and quiet of the early morn was shattered this June day, by a great roaring bird of prey; like some giant unicorn spewing his hot and evil breath, alike on innocent and guilty, relentlessly he winged his way above our parks and gardens, as frightened birds sought refuge in protecting trees, puzzled, sensing all was not well with their world--God's world, usurped by man in his desire for creature comforts, resting the devices of his mind, to prove his knowledge and his power, little dreaming of the reckoning in that last tragic hour.

Alchemy

Al, Nature, such a clever dame,
She makes each bird and beast,
With but a tiny speck of yeast;
But to perpetuate the human race,
With finesse and grace,
She finds it most expedient
To add a fool-proof ingredient;
'Tis love that does the trick,
'Tis love that makes them tick;
Sly Nature's little game!

Long the night and dark,
And filled with constant strife;
With war and fear of war
Along the blood-stained way.

Oh, Father of mankind, how
Grievously have we sinned;
Brother against brother
Venting hate and greed.

But now the mists are lifting,
With vision clear, we bravely
March hand in hand, our Father,
Forgetting color, race and creed.

Unorthodox Beliefs

To the Editor:

In reference to the letter from Miss Kapetan concerning the editorial "There Is More To Morality Than Sex." Quoting from her letter: "It is intuitively obvious that such habits (sex, cigarette-smoking, . . . departure from religious traditions) are all manifestations of this widespread spiritual rot."

I cannot see how cigarette-smoking could be more spiritually "degenerating" than bubble-gum chewing or drinking Cokes. Just because an excess of them will cause injury to the physiological being does not necessarily mean that the morals of the being will degenerate.

And secondly, why is departure from religious traditions a manifestation of "this widespread spiritual rot?"

Every Christian religion, whether Southern Baptist, Unitarian, Roman Catholic, Russian Orthodox or what-have-you, is the result of the departure from the established religious tradition. Just because a person cannot or will not follow an established religion does not mean that he is immoral. Christ, Luther, Calvin, Wesley and others were criticized and persecuted in their day because they went against the established church

Yet we no longer criticize them; why should we criticize and persecute those who may be doing the same today? We no longer think Martin Luther was immoral. Why should I be called immoral simply because my religious opinions and beliefs are opposite to those now expressed by all Christian churches.

There is a lot more to morality than sex, but I do not think you should name those who deviate from accepted beliefs on the Supreme Being immoral.

Answers West's Moral Questions

To the Editor:

Last Monday night Rep. Daniel W. West, D-Detroit, suggested that a special legislative committee should be formed for the purpose of investigating recent incidents of illegal drinking by college students. Although he did not single out MSU, the implication was there.

Rep. West said that he wants to know the answer to such questions as: "What are the students trying to prove?" "Who is behind all this?" and "Who is supplying the liquor and why?" I think that the old adage "stupid questions deserve stupid answers" certainly applies in this situation. The results of such an investigation would probably prove to be quite comical and entertaining.

In the interest of saving the state legislature a lot of time and money, I will try to answer Rep. West's "intelligent" questions.

What are we trying to prove? We're trying to prove that beer has the 86 vital nutrients necessary for a strong mind and a healthy body.

Who is behind all this? Needless to say, it's the distillers of America who are behind this, in an effort to prove, once and for all, that alcohol does not saturate the brain.

It's unfortunate that the actions of so few reflect on the character of so many. Rep. West is only echoing the thoughts of so many other citizens of this state. People should realize that as long as there are college students under the pressures of academic competition, the grassers and "beer busts" will continue.

I am not condoning the actions of these students; however mass arrests is not the solution to this problem. If Rep. West and others like him want to bring an end to this situation, then they should see to it that Sheriffs like Clifford Porter spend their time enforcing the laws among liquor store owners.

It is also unfortunate that MSU with its "Playboy" reputation of the past, has and will continue to receive the brunt of this criticism. I'm sure that if our collegiate counterparts in Ann Arbor had a Sheriff Porter on their backs, the arrests would number in the thousands instead of the hundreds.

'No' Vote Asked On Hall Ballot

To the Editor:

The men of West McDonel Hall are going to vote May 5 on their proposed dorm constitution. We urge them to vote NO. We are opposed to this constitution for two reasons.

The first is the proposed method of electing the hall president. We feel that there should be a general election in which all the residents of the dorm are given a chance to vote for the candidates for the office of dorm president. We don't want an electoral convention to vote for us. We want a direct voice in our choice for president.

The other objection to the constitution is the number of voting members in the General Council. We feel there should be at least three voting members from each house so that the men will have a chance of better representation. We feel that the "feed-back" from the General Council would unify and inform the members of McDonel Hall.

We again urge the men of West McDonel to vote NO this Tuesday.

'Absurd' Bus Idea

To the Editor:

A good portion of faculty time and emotions has already been wasted on the new parking proposals, e.g., acrimonious debates, veiled threats and letters to the editor (including this one).

This is sufficient to discredit the whole system. Faculty members are supposed to be concerned primarily with their academic and research functions and not with petty matters such as crowded buses, parking space and the like. It is by this yardstick and not by money that a proposal like this should be measured--what in the ultimate analysis is conducive to the promotion of the essential function of a university!

Visualize this situation: a faculty member in Anthony Hall having to rush to a class or to a meeting in Morrill Hall; it is raining hard or snowing and the bus is late or crowded. Assuming that a bus is available, the poor professor may have to ride across campus via Kellogg Center and Michigan Avenue to get to his destination. What kind of morale is he going to be in when he finally appears before his class? Gentlemen, this is absurd!

Point Of View

Through A Glass Darkly--P.U.S.

By John Hunt

P.U.S.. That's right. PUS! That's what it said. A tiny, unobtrusive monogram. PUS!

I opened both eyes and read in entirety--CAMPUS. The Campus Theatre was situated directly across from the campus. How sweet. The Campus Drugstore, The Campus Inn, The College... now there's an original theme... "Aw! God's chi'lin sing the' song!" Beautiful!

Now, I was at that time on The Campus. Yes, the famous Campus of legend and song. That famous epithet that has been usurped through the ages by every fair merchant in every fair university town, and who by the brilliant cleverness of their ingenious guile and cunning try to entice the students into their shops and stands. The competition is fierce, but nobody suffers too much.

To return to my plight, I am or was at that time on the campus. I was, to be more specific, interred in the campus hospital. To be very explicit, my room was directly opposite the Campus Theatre and my bed was in a perfect diagonal in line with the window. Every morning at six we were nudged from slumber to undergo another day of blissful contemplation. On these lovely mornings the first image that would come into focus would be that section of the theatre marquee which supported the name.

Thus it was, with an eye like a zoomer lens and the help of a venetian blind, that PUS had come into view. Actually, I wish that everyone could view the marquee from that supine position even when on the sidewalk or in their cars or perhaps from the inside of the building itself. Fantastic!

You know, it reminds me of, well--the University or college is very often termed the campus. Very good. This loving term comes from, I guess, the Roman plain used for a military camp site--campus martius. Today this spot is the site of present day Rome. Ah, the wonders of evolution. A poor analogy? But was it not in this same light that our fine University evolved. An enlightened campsite on the plain of ignorance and bigotry.

The significance of this evolution is not fully recognized as isn't the significance of the earth rotating around the sun and not losing itself a few billion light-years out in some place or another.

Perhaps another poor analogy, seeing as the sun is steadily losing brilliance instead of gaining it. Well, no matter. Even the Romans lost their lustre. I imagine this was the result of two forces passing each other in opposite directions--one going up and the other descending.

Well, enough for today. I have to fill out my application for permanent residence here in the hospital. Of course I'll be in the same room so I can keep an eye on that marquee across the street. It looks much better through the venetian blinds. P..U..S....

Parking Plan Lacking

To the Editor:

I should like to comment briefly on the proposed plan for MSU faculty and student parking and driving regulations for the 1964-1965 academic year.

I have been an undergraduate and graduate student at MSU on and off since 1958, and have seen the University grow considerably during this time. Like most of us who drive and commute to school, I have long been aware that some day the parking situation would get out of hand, and some degree of limitation would have to be imposed upon student and faculty drivers.

However, the proposal to eliminate all student automobiles from the campus until 6 p.m., to permit faculty drivers the privilege of driving on the campus during the day for a set fee, and finally to sell specified, personalized parking spaces for the faculty at an annual rate, seems to me to be highly unrealistic and partial.

Firstly, I believe the proposal is unrealistic as it relates to students, since students who own cars and live on or near the campus do not generally need their automobiles until evening, while students who commute (I live in Lansing; I am one of them) will have to drive to the campus perimeter and then attempt to secure transportation to the center of campus.

I understand that a proposed system of buses will be enlisted to distribute students every five minutes from the outlying areas to the main campus. I am wondering if this will really work. I think there might be some serious overcrowding of buses between classes, and empty buses at other times.

Secondly, it seems to me that this proposal is partial since the faculty would clearly be considered a privileged class. After all, one of the prime reasons for the existence of the University is, as I understand it, to serve the student. I feel the proposal is partial especially as regards the allocation of personalized parking spaces for faculty members at an annual fee.

This is good for the University in the form of more revenue, I'm sure. Yet, I am of the opinion that it is lacking in principle because it would tend to create an artificial social class level between faculty and students. Also, many professors renting such spaces would certainly not occupy them all day, thereby wasting "valuable" space.

I sincerely hope that the University has not made its final decision on this matter.

Whiskered Profs Debate Pros, Cons Of Hair On Their Chinny-Chin-Chins

"To grow a beard you must go away," said visiting professor of psychology Ardie Lubin. "It's impossible to grow an adequate beard with people you know around you."

"I went to Guadalajara, Mexico, for six weeks. It was a painful process for the first few weeks.

Painful or not, most of MSU's bearded professors feel anything is better than shaving.

"I don't like shaving," said David Streatfield, instructor in urban planning and landscape architecture, who has had his beard for three years.

"I have a rather sensitive skin. The beard is practical."

A beard is also practical for Harold Fields, associate professor of history. It keeps his chin warm.

One faculty member disagrees with everybody. Rolf A. George, assistant professor of philosophy, had his beard until the end of last term.

"I found that I missed the morning ritual of shaving," he said.

A beard may eliminate shaving, but the beard itself requires combing, washing, and codding.

"Mine is trimmed once every two weeks, combed several times a day, and washed once a day," said Lubin. "If you don't bother, other people object."

"I don't spend any time on mine," said Carroll J. Hawkins, associate professor of political science. "One thing I don't like about it, though. It came out gray, grayer than my hair. That hurts my ego."

Hawkins has found that people find his beard distinguished. "That's nice to hear, particularly when beautiful girls tell me this. Unfortunately, they pass on."

Whether a beard is distinguished or practical, people object anyway. Associate professor of humanities Joseph Druse, who's had his beard for six years, said he's been warned that his beard might be a drawback to professional advancement.

On the other hand, Lubin grew his in part to fulfill the image of the college professor. "But I must admit it also evokes images of Castro and Santa Claus."

Druse feels more men want to grow beards, "but don't because of female antipathy."

Fields considers his beard as a means of identification. "I'm mistaken for other people less often." But he has been criticized.

"With certain exceptions among the female sex," he explained, "one thing a man can do and a woman can't is a very rare thing these days.

"For the most part, a man can be pretty sure a woman can't imitate him here."

'Entire Senate Responsible'

Rights Bill Failure Discussed

The entire Senate, not just Southern segregationists, is responsible for its failure to pass civil rights legislation, an MSU sociologist said recently.

James B. McKee, professor of sociology and anthropology, believes the lack of legislation in the Senate from 1870 to 1954 cannot be blamed on the filibustering of Southern senators.

"Congress makes its own rules," he said. "If the senators had any strong desire to legislate civil rights, Southerners would not hamper them."

The 13th, 14th and 15th amendments adopted from 1865 to 1870 specifically provide that Congress had the right to pass legislation concerning civil liberties. It was expected that it would do this, McKee said.

Other senators, not of Southern background, have not been enthused about civil rights legislation, he said, "and it has been convenient to have southern senators filibuster."

McKee said filibusters which invariably accompany civil rights legislation are "invited by the allowance of the filibuster and the seniority system."

"Congress has made the decision that the filibuster technique is more important than civil rights legislation."

Most Southern senators have been in Congress so long that they have been given influential chairmanships.

McKee thinks the Senate will agree to a bill, but also that Northern conservatives like Dirksen will agree to weaken it.

"The danger is not of no bill, but of an ineffective bill," he said. "An ineffective bill is worse than no bill, because it will create disenchantment and cynicism within the Negro movement."

He also believes more delay will give time for the "crystallization of anti-civil rights legislation" in the North.

The Southern senators could easily be outvoted, McKee emphasized. "They will get away with destroying the bill only if others let them."

Duke Prof Comes For Chem Talk

The Renaud Lectures, one of the outstanding events of the year for MSU chemists, will be given today and Wednesday by Charles Tanford, professor of physical biochemistry at Duke University Medical Center.

Tanford, a noted researcher, is author of 75 papers and an advanced text on "Physical Chemistry Macromolecules."

The lectures will be given in 122 Kedzie as follows: 4 p.m., today, "Protein Structure and Denaturation"; tonight, "Chemical Basis for Antibody Specificity"; and 4 p.m. Wednesday, "Unfolding of Globular Proteins in Aqueous Urea Solutions."

Bricklayers

are paid 25 to 30 cents less than members of other Michigan locals. The scale in Flint is $4.75 per hour and a new contract in Detroit will bring scales to $5.31 plus a 2 per cent vacation allowance in two years.

"Our wages are not really much for the living costs of today," he said. "The average yearly wage for bricklayers is $5,500 because we are off a good deal of the time during the winter months, in bad weather and for the holidays."

He added that no meeting with the contractor's association had been set up, but he expected one soon.

Lyle A. Thorburn, manager of residence halls, fears that a prolonged strike may hold up opening of the 2,448-man Feel-Akers Dormitory Complex. It is scheduled to open this fall.

"The University is not directly involved in the negotiations so we have not entered into the dispute," he said. "I do not believe either side wants to delay the project and I am hoping for an early settlement."

The MSU contract with the construction companies has no penalty clause for not completing buildings on time because of strikes.

Bids are scheduled to open this month for Residence Hall No. 5, to be located east of McDonel Hall. The dorm, to house 1,260, must be approved by the legislature before bids can be let, however.

Kerr Leads Drive For Memorial

Former All-University Student Government president Bob Kerr, Washington, N.J., senior, has been named state chairman of the student drive to establish a memorial to the late President John F. Kennedy in the Kennedy Memorial Library in Boston, Mass.

The drive, to be held May 4, to 10, will seek donations from students and signatures in a participation book. The book will be a permanent part of the memorial.

When completed, the library will be turned over to the federal government to be operated as a part of the National Archives.

Jamie Blanchard, Royal Oak senior and former senior class president, has been named drive chairman for Michigan State.

Talks Begin On Open World Trade

GENEVA (AP)—The Kennedy Round of talks on breaking down world trade barriers opened Monday with a pledge from President Johnson for U.S. help for a fruitful conclusion. But right off the bat, the 75 nations at the conference were at odds on how to go forward.

Johnston's pledge was read to the formal opening session by former Secretary of State Christian Herter. Then Herter appealed for speedy negotiations. President John F. Kennedy, who initiated U.S. efforts in easing tariffs, had expressed the hope that the negotiations would be the greatest effort of their kind in history.

The speech after Herter's brought a warning against hasty decisions. It came from Belgium's minister of foreign trade, but there is still no agreement on rules for negotiating freer exchanges of goods among nations involved.

The goal is to cut most industrial tariffs by 50 per cent, to attack other types of trade barriers, to increase and stabilize trade in farm products and to give special help to underdeveloped countries.

The first aim has run into trouble from countries outside the two biggest trading units--the United States and the Common Market.

19 Housing Units Honored For Blood Drive Cooperation

The ROTC spring term blood drive netted 2,006 pints with 19 awards to be made to living units and precincts for their contributions.

Bower House co-op will receive an award for 100 per cent participation.

Three fraternities--Phi Sigma Delta, Theta Delta Chi, and Farm House -- will receive awards for topping the 100 per cent level. East Shaw with 32.6 per cent donations will receive the award for men's dorms. West Mayo with 17 per cent will receive the award for women's dorms.

Thirteen men's precincts will receive awards with East Shaw 6 topping the list with 75.5 per cent donations.

Three women's precincts will receive awards, lead by Butterfield 3A with 53 per cent.

Sororities failed to top the 100 per cent donation level and will not receive awards. Alpha Kappa Alpha was the top donating sorority with 62.5 per cent.

Pulitzer Prizes

Ruby shooting Lee Harvey Oswald, Kennedy's accused assassin.

A special Pulitzer citation was made this year to the Gannett Newspapers for "The Road to Integration," a program of success stories of people and communities that are solving racial problems. The series was developed through the reportorial, photographic and editorial resources of the 15 Gannett newspapers in 1963, as well as its news bureaus in Washington, Albany, N.Y., and Trenton, N.J. It was the first Pulitzer citation to a newspaper group.

The 1964 award for newspaper cartooning went to Paul F. Conrad, for cartoons published in the Denver Post. He recently moved to the Los Angeles Times. His $1,000 prize was based on his work during the entire year, and no cartoon was singled out for special attention.

For the first time since 1917, the first year of the awards, there were no prizes bestowed in the fields of fiction and drama. Each award has been omitted in past years, but not both in the same year since the initial year. No explanation was given.

Also omitted without explanation was the Pulitzer Prize for music. It was the first time in more than a decade there was no award in that field.

British Film Studies Delinquent's Life

The British film, "Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner," will be shown at Fairchild Theatre tonight and Wednesday at 7 and 9 p.m.

Produced by Tony Richardson, who also made the award-winning "Tom Jones," the film stars Tom Courtenay and Michael Redgrave. A mixture of drama, comedy and rich satire, the story centers around a teenage delinquent's life in reform school and his revenge on prison "management."

Tickets can be bought at the door for 50 cents.

Faculty Group To Play

Two chamber music compositions for woodwinds and strings will be presented by a faculty ensemble tonight at 8:15 in the Music auditorium.

Performers include Romeo Tata, violin; Lyman Bodman, viola; Louis Potter Jr., cello; Virginia Bodman, bass; Daniel Stolper, oboe; Elsa Ludwig, clarinet; Edgar Kirk, bassoon; and Douglas Campbell, French horn.

They will perform the "Quintet, Op. 39" by Prokofiev and the "Septet, Op. 20" by Beethoven. The concert is open to the public.

Morality Lectures Begin
Fresh-Soph Council is sponsoring a lecture series on the problem of morality on the campus. Harold Walsh, professor of philosophy, will present the first lecture at 7:30 tonight in the Anthony auditorium.

Walsh will speak on "Changing Values, 1964."

Other speakers include Rev. Truman A. Morrison, Edgewood United Church on May 12; and William Crissy, professor of marketing, on May 19. On May 28, the series will feature a well known guest speaker.

Swedish Geographer To Talk

Stig Nordbeck, Swedish geographer, will address the geography seminar today at 3:30 p.m., in 409 Nat Sci. He will speak on "Sweden, the Geography of a Welfare State." The meeting is open.

YR's Hear House Speaker

Reapportionment, the MSU budget and other legislation pending in the Michigan legislature will be discussed by house speaker Allison Green, R-Kings-ton, here Tuesday.

He will address the Young Republicans Club at 7:30 p.m. in the Tower Room of the Union. The exact room number will be announced Tuesday in the State News.

A short business meeting will precede Green's talk and delegates to the Young Republican's State Convention in Kalamazoo on May 16 will be chosen.

Business Prof To Leave

Arthur E. Warner, professor of business, will join the University of Tennessee faculty as dean of the College of Business Administration on Sept. 1.

Warner, a native of Garrett, Ind., is current president of the Council for Professional Education on the faculty here since 1953.

University of Tennessee president Andrew Holt said Warner will succeed Frank B. Ward, who will retire as Dean Emeritus after 35 years at the University.

Homecoming Post Open

Petitioning opened Monday for chairman of the 1964 Homecoming.

The duties of the chairman are to coordinate the queen contest, the display contest, the homecoming dance, half-time ceremonies and other week-end activities.

Petitions are available in 334 Student Services.

Face Irish Today

'S' Niners Seek 19th Win

The potentially dangerous Irish from Notre Dame University meet Michigan State's streaking baseball team today in South Bend.

Notre Dame has only a lackluster record so far, notching six wins, ten losses and a tie.

and has run into hard luck this season.

Top left hander and only letter winner on the mound staff, Ed Lupton, was injured early in the year and appears lost for the season.

The untested pitching crew has held up adequately, despite the injury, but the major problems for the Irish have been the hitting and fielding—departments viewed as stable in pre-season thinking.

Leading the somewhat weak (.242) hitting attack is Shaun Fitzmaurice, a junior center-fielder with a .363 average. The only other regular above the .300 level is shortstop Rich Gonski at .335.

The main trouble for Coach Jake Kline has been the erratic fielding of the Irish. Forty-two errors in the first 17 ball games has led to 22 unearned runs against the pitching staff.

Junior right hander Frank Karazim has replaced Lupton, who has not responded to treatment of a pulled ligament in his back, as the number one hurler. Karazim has compiled a 2.09 ERA in rolling to a 2-2 season record.

The Spartans, 5-1 in league play and 18-4 over-all, have to be ruled the favorite in the contest. State is on a current give game winning streak and is tied with the University of Minnesota for second place in the Big Ten behind Michigan's perfect 6-0 record.

Dennis Ketcham, State's regular second baseman, will miss the contest as a result of a knee injury suffered Saturday against Purdue and will probably be out for seven to ten days.

Litwhiler will use three pitchers in the afternoon contest which starts at 3. Dennis Erickson, Doug Miller and Fred Deveroux, who turned in a tremendous relief job against Detroit, are scheduled to work three innings each.

Spartan Netmen At U-M

It will be strictly business from here on out for the Spartan netters, who travel to Ann Arbor today for a conference encounter with Michigan.

The Spartans hold a 2-1 record in Big Ten play so far, but they've had three non-conference matches since their last league meet with Ohio State and Purdue more than three weeks ago.

There will be no more non-conference matches this season for the Green and White who will play eight loop matches before the Big Ten meet at Champaign May 21.

MSU will enter today's match with a 10-3 mark overall with hopes of repeating last year's win over the Maize and Blue.

Freshmen and transfer students wishing to try out for the State tennis team should meet in 215, Men's IM Building at 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Michigan is a veteran unit with five letterman back from a squad that finished second in the Big Ten meet last season.

The top man for the Wolverines is Harry Fauquier who has been a member of the Canadian Davis Cup team.

Last year the Green and White decided on U-M 5-4 at East Lansing, with Fauquier falling to MSU's Tony O'Donnell.

O'Donnell will be at number two position today when the Spartans take on the Wolverines. Number four man Charles Wolff remains the Spartan scoring leader with an 11-2 won-lost mark.

First man captain Tom Jamieson stands 10-3 for the year, with reserves Mike Youngs (5-0) and Laird Warner (2-0) remaining unbeaten.

The Spartans will make their first home appearance of the season Friday when Iowa, Illinois and Michigan invade East Lansing for a two-day meet.

Grid Captain Out Of Action

Charley Migyanka, 1964 football captain and defensive backfield specialist, has suffered a badly sprained right knee which will sideline him for the rest of the spring training session.

The accident occurred during a defensive scrimmage when Migyanka was clipped from behind.

Team physician Dr. James S. Feurig says no surgery seems indicated. Rest and an exercise program later on should bring the knee around okay. Migyanka now is in the University's Olin Memorial Health Center.

Pete Gent Chosen By Baltimore

(UPI)—Michigan State basketball star Pete Gent was selected by the Baltimore Bullets following the 10th round of the National Basketball Association player draft in New York Monday.

The Detroit Pistons pulled a surprise in the pitching contest and chose Joe Caldwell, a 6-5 Olympic team member from Arizona State University as its first choice.

The No. 1 first round choice was made by the New York Knickerbockers, and they took Jim Barnes, Texas Western College. The Baltimore Bullets chose "Player of the Year" Gary Bradds of Ohio State; the Cincinnati Royals chose George Wilson of the University of Cincinnati and the Los Angeles Lakers took Walt Hazzard of UCLA.

Other first-round choices were Lucious Jackson of Pan American by the Philadelphia 76'ers; Jeff Mullins of Duke by the St. Louis Hawks; Barry Kramer of New York University by the San Francisco Warriors and Mel Counts of Oregon State by the champion Boston Celtics.

The Pistons came up with another surprise when they chose Loyola of Chicago's Les Hunter on the second round.

In the third round, the Pistons took Wally Jones of Villanova. In the fourth through eighth rounds, the Pistons picked Jim Davis of Colorado, Ray Wolford of Toledo, Gary Phillips of Rice, Jerry Jackson of Ohio University and Ralph Telken of Rockhurst. Detroit passed the ninth and final tenth rounds.

Detroit's Bill Chmielewski, who quit Dayton University two years ago, went to the Royals on the second round.

Crew Club Posts Win; First Time In 4 Years

The Michigan State crew club Friday accomplished what few thought would ever be done.

The club, after four futile years, won a race. The varsity crew defeated Culver Academy by one length on the Academy's lake to reverse Culver's one-half length victory earned a little over a week ago on the Spartan's Lake Lansing course. State rowed the 1600 meter course in 6:23 on rough water.

Saturday the crew lost to Wayne State on the Detroit River, but only by three-fourths a length. Wayne had defeated State by three lengths the week before.

The Green and White defeated the Wayne junior varsity crew, preventing a Tartar sweep, such as occurred the first time the two crews met.

Next Friday and Saturday the varsity crew will take part in the annual Dad Vail Regatta in Philadelphia.

Fem Netters Top U-M, 8-1

Beating Michigan in anything is usually a man-sized job, but it proved a breeze for MSU's coed netters who defeated the Wolverine women's tennis squad 8-1 here Friday.

The Spartans (3-0) captured all but the number three singles event in chalking up their third consecutive victory.

Kay Forrest topped U-M's Bonnie Ellis 6-4, 7-5 in first singles, with Jane Vedejs stopping Karen Knowles 6-3, 6-3 in second singles.

Sue Thomson scored the only Michigan triumph of the day with a 6-1, 6-0 win over Penny Carver.

In other singles matches, Sue Thomson defeated Holly Fry 3-6, 6-1, 6-1, Patti Conger bested Elaine Cummins 6-1, 6-1, and Margo Gilson dethroned Suki Drainard 6-1, 2-6, 6-3.

The Green and White swept doubles play with Kay Forrest and Jane Vedejs earning a 6-3, 8-6 verdict over Bonnie Ellis and Karen Knowles.

Maureen Strait and Sue Thomson teamed to win the second doubles match and Margo Gilson and Marcia Strait won the third.
