By JOAN SOLOMAN
State News Staff Writer

Charges were dismissed last week against five MSU students arrested in last spring's "grasser" raid in Shiawassee County.

Circuit Court Judge Michael Carland signed the petition acquitting Richard Anderson, Riverview senior; Terry Connolly, Flint senior; Mike Hoffman, Bloomfield Hills junior; Frank Maxwell, Rosemont-by-the-Sea, Pa., senior; and Molly Morris, Toledo, Ohio, junior. They were among the 11 students arrested in the raid last April on charges of illegal possession of intoxicating beverages and contributing to the delinquency of minors.

Dorms Vie In Prizes For Blood

The fall term blood drive, sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega fraternity, will be Nov. 2 through 6.

A goal of 1,500 pints has been set by Kirby Hansen, general chairman of the drive.

The drive will be held in Demonstration Hall. On duty to assist the Red Cross will be Alpha Phi Omega and the Spartan Women's League.

Students under 21 who want to give blood must have written parental permission. The State News will print forms that can be clipped from the paper and sent home for parents' signature.

Student participation in past years has been very good, said Mrs. I. Bergman of the Lansing Red Cross.

"MSU has one of the finest records of any campus in the nation," she said.

However, Hansen spoke of a definite lack of faculty participation. An attempt will be made by Alpha Phi Omega and the State News to encourage better contribution by the faculty.

There will be competition staged between dormitories, sororities, fraternities and co-ops based on percentage of pints given in relation to the size of the living unit.

Awards will be presented during halftime at the Purdue game Nov. 7.

lawyer for the five students, said there was a "complete defense for the case."

Austin said he and Shiawassee County Prosecutor Raymond Basso agreed that there was a lack of sufficient evidence to prove the crime.

"We both agreed charges against these students were unfairly made," Austin said. According to Hoffman, the five were driving home from a party held near the one that had been raided.

They were nabbed in a roadblock that had been set up and were ordered by police to go to the Shiawassee Courthouse.

At the courthouse, Hoffman said, they were given the choice of pleading not guilty and spending the weekend in jail or pleading guilty and paying $100 for women and $35 for men.

The five students pleaded guilty to avoid staying in jail, Hoffman said, but they decided to retain a lawyer to appeal the case.

"We knew we were innocent of the charges," he said, "so we each posted a $100 bond and contacted Attorney Austin to make our appeal within the 10-day limit."

In order to dismiss charges, the prosecuting attorney must dictate a petition to the judge for signature.

After charges have been dismissed, the bond money is returned.

The four men are members of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. Miss Morris is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

Summit Conference Asked By Red Chinese Premier

WASHINGTON, 4.—Communist China's Premier Chou En-Lai has sent a direct message to President Johnson proposing a world summit conference to outlaw nuclear weapons, the State Department disclosed Wednesday.

While no formal reply has been made, both President Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk have emphatically rejected the Peking proposal.

Rusk has termed the Chinese effort a propaganda smoke screen to divert world public opinion from blaming the Red Chinese for nuclear testing.

The message from Chou was received in Warsaw by Chinese Communist Ambassador Wang Kuo-Chuan and delivered last Monday to U.S. Ambassador John G. Bunker.

It was the first time State Department officials could recall that the Warsaw channel had been used for a direct communication between the heads of the two governments.

In the past any such messages have been routed through London by the British ambassador in Peking or through friendly neutrals such as India and more recently Pakistan.

State Department press officer Richard L. Phillips, acknowledging receipt of the Peking proposal, discounted this approach as signaling even tacit recognition of Communist China by the United States.

Asked if acceptance of the message would mean changed U.S. recognition of Communist China, Phillips replied "No."

Phillips also discouraged the idea that his represented any up grading of the ambassadorial talks which began in Geneva in August 1955 and later were switched to Warsaw.

Viet Military Dictates New Rule By Tuesday

SAIGON, Viet Nam (P)—The ruling military triumvirate decreed Wednesday night that South Viet Nam's promised civilian government must be formed before next Tuesday.

Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, the caretaker premier, and his partners in the triumvirate held to the deadline Khanh established after widespread rioting in late summer by Buddhist and student critics of the Khanh administration.

The order was directed to the High National Council, a 17-man agency named last month to steer this Communist-plagued nation from military to civilian control. It said:

"The High National Council of the nation has the right and duty to install the organism of state, including the immediate election of the provisional chief of state, and thus the council must choose immediately in forming a civilian government before Oct. 27."

Signing the decree with Khanh were Maj. Gen. Duong Van Minh, the current chief of state, and Lt. Gen. Tran Thien Kiem, the former defense minister who is reported slated to become ambassador to Washington.

There was speculation that the council may name its chairman, Phan Khac Suu, as the new chief of state if the popular Minh is not retained in that post. The council scheduled a news conference for Friday.

A U.S. embassy spokesman said the American government welcomes the provisional constitution proclaimed by the council Tuesday "as the first step in the creation of a strong, effective government that will continue to prosecute the war" against the Communist Viet Cong.

Old Ways Reach Saturation

Registration Overhauled

Announcement Monday of a totally new way to enroll and register MSU students was the outgrowth of a series of registration experiments which began Winter Term, 1963.

Registrar Horace C. King said the experiments were necessary because "the saturation point had been reached in the existing registration system and facilities."

Experimental activities included early registration, early distribution of class cards in departments and residence hall academic programs and use of mark sense (machine sense) cards in processing enrollment changes.

Exploration was made of a total early registration plan, extension on the present centralized registration procedures and registration by a computer.

King noted the following results of these experiments:

"The student body was enthusiastically in favor of early registration. However, the early payment of fees is considered a minus factor because some students experienced hardship."

"Academic advisers and departmental chairmen expressed concern that best use be made of faculty time."

"Departmental chairmen were also concerned that a way should be found to project more accurately enrollment demands on courses."

"The University Business Office expressed concern that fees should be paid at the time a student registers."

King said that the office of the registrar is working toward a registration system that will service a growing enrollment and complete registration activities in a period of two days. The system he announced Monday to be implemented winter term is the beginning of such a system.

More Space Needed For Married Students

Expansion of Spartan Village is under a two-month study by married housing officials amid reports that the waiting list is higher than ever before.

The Board of Trustees agreed at its meeting last week to have married housing officials study the need for expansion and report their findings to the administration in two months.

Ray D. Lamphear, manager of married housing who will work on the study, said last week that there are now 265 couples waiting for apartments compared to 158 last year at this time.

"The waiting list is at its highest," Secretary Jack Breslin admitted, "but it is still not too bad."

Breslin said that it would be "almost next to impossible" to start construction now and have new units ready by next fall because of a labor shortage and lack of time.

If the study shows that the new apartments will be needed by fall 1966, construction will have to start this spring, Breslin said.

He said that neither the estimated cost nor the number of units to be built will be determined until after the study is unveiled.

The University now maintains 2,056 apartments for married students at rents of about $90 a month.

"The problem of financing," Breslin said, "is that we can't build for the big peak in fall term alone."

"A waiting list is necessary to insure that the apartments will be filled all the time, in June as well as in September."

The expansion would take place on the west side of Spartan Village elementary school or in front of the present units on Harrison Road.

Big Ten Polling Elects Johnson

President Lyndon B. Johnson scored a nearly 2 to 1 victory over his opponent Sen. Barry Goldwater in a mock election Tuesday involving five of the Big Ten schools.

Johnson polled 14,111 to his Republican opponent's 7,553 in the Midwestern contest sponsored by the University of Illinois' Daily Illini.

Michigan State students gave Johnson a 3 to 1 margin over Goldwater, 6,610 to 2,822. Over 9,000 voted, an unusually high turnout for MSU's enrollment of over 31,000.

Ohio State University held its mock election Wednesday and the University of Indiana's election was invalidated.

At Illinois, Johnson had 3,570 to 2,084. An Illini staff member blamed the low voter turnout on inclement weather. The University has about 27,000 students.

The Daily Illini reported the following results for the other three schools:

University of Minnesota with a 38,000-plus enrollment: Johnson 485 and Goldwater, 353.

Northwestern with a 15,000 enrollment: Johnson, 1,270 and Goldwater, 1,172.

University of Iowa with over 12,000 students: Johnson, 2,226 and Goldwater, 1,122.

Joe McNally, campus editor of the Indiana Daily Student, said

invalidation of his school's election resulted from "lack of communications between the Student Election Commission and the Young Democrats and Young Republicans."

The Young Democrats objected that no inspectors were provided at the polls. The Student Senate will decide today what to do with the ballots cast in the two hours before the polls closed.

In a similar Big Ten mock election in 1960, Nixon had 21,034 to Kennedy's 15,058

Freedom Of Speech Abounds

BERLIN (P)—Unrest is spreading in East European Communist party ranks over the ouster of Nikita Khrushchev, and in East Germany party meetings were reported Wednesday to have been disrupted by unruly demonstrations.

Communist organizations rarely admit their views are anything but unanimous.

A communique issued Wednesday by the official East German news agency, ADN, suggested that unusual freedom of expression

Information Bureau West, an unofficial Western intelligence agency, said its East German sources reported visible unrest over last Thursday's fall of Khrushchev among the middle and lower ranks of the Communist Party.

It said there had been an unprecedented flood of questions at seminars and several had to be broken off because the discussion leaders lost control of the meetings.

Humphrey Says U.S. 'Can't Afford to Gamble'

GARY, Ind. (P)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey declared Wednesday the voters will decide 13 days from now whether "a small faction of political extremists will hold the destiny of the United States in their inexperienced, fumbling hands."

Humphrey said in prepared remarks here he came to warn Democrats, Republicans and independents that "America and the world cannot afford to gamble with government by amateurs, nor with government by extremists."

Red Chinese Bomb Said to be Low-Yield

WASHINGTON (P)—The Atomic Energy Commission said Wednesday evidence indicates that last week's Red Chinese nuclear test was a low-yield explosion of a conventional—not an H-bomb—type. The commission said in a terse statement:

"Additional evidence on the Chinese Communist test of Oct. 16 indicates that it was a fission device employing Uranium 235. This conclusion is based on a preliminary analysis of airborne radioactive debris."

U.S. Viewed Construction of China Bomb

WILMINGTON, Del. (P)—Rep. Harris McDowell, D-Del., said Wednesday that the United States watched step-by-step construction of Red China's atomic bomb site.

McDowell told a news conference of a briefing given him and three other Democratic members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee Tuesday by Secretary of State Dean Rusk in Washington. McDowell quoted Rusk as saying that U.S. spy satellites took photographs so clear that the State Department could see the erection of the tower from which Red China exploded its atomic bomb last week.

'Morality' Film Scrapped by Goldwater

WASHINGTON—A controversial "morality" film aimed at wooing the women's vote has been scrapped by Republicans on order of Sen. Goldwater. The film was sponsored by the Mothers of Moral America and had been scheduled for broadcast at 2 p.m. today. Earlier, two scenes had been deleted at the request of the network (NBC). The film implied President Johnson, symbolized by beer cans being thrown from a speeding limousine, was responsible for decaying U.S. morality.

State Department Indicates Ban Plan is Sham

WASHINGTON—The U.S. State Department indicated Wednesday Red China's proposal for a summit meeting banning nuclear weapons is a sham. The Peking regime messaged President Johnson urging the conference and the scrapping of nuclear weaponry. The proposal was made by the way of the U.S. embassy in Warsaw. State Secretary Rusk labelled the proposal a "smokescreen."

Policeman Tippit's Widow
Given Nearly $650,000

DALLAS (P)—The widow and children of policeman, J. D. Tippit, killed by the believed assassin of President Kennedy, have officially received a nation's gift of nearly $650,000.

They were given the money yesterday in a three-way court proceeding. Mrs. Tippit, 34, and her two children, 10-year-old James and 8-year-old John, are tied up in a trust fund for the children.

This was the first cash Mrs. Tippit had actually received from an outpouring of donations which followed the officer's death last Nov. 22. She, along with sons Curtis, 5, and Allen, 14, and 15-year-old Brenda, had been living on his $225 a month police benefits.

The pretty widow didn't say what she planned to do with the money, but a new car seemed high on the list of family needs. She pointed out recently that Tippit's 1961 blue station wagon had a faulty generator.

"Besides, everytime I see it in the driveway, I think J.D. ought to be inside."

Tippit was killed by a man the Warren Commission said had

More important than money, however, as far as Mrs. Tippit is concerned, is maintaining a normal family atmosphere—raising the children "like J. D. would have wanted."

The Tippit residence has an unlisted telephone, and she ventures into the public eye only for such occasions as receiving citations awarded posthumously to her husband.

The children are seemingly too involved with their activities to worry about the years ahead. The Dallas A&M Club has offered the boys scholarships to Texas A&M University, but no decision has been announced.

Romney Centers Campaign
Around State Issues Only

By WILLIAM R. PRITCHARD
State News Political Writer

Gov. George Romney is running his campaign on state issues alone and will not bring national controversies into it.

That is the word from the Republican State Central Committee and Romney's assistant press secretary George Trumbull.

The governor wants to "center the campaign where it belongs," James Hayes, State Central's public relations director said, because the people of Michigan want to hear about state issues from Romney, not national ones.

Trumbull said the governor does not endorse the national ticket because the Republican platform is not strong enough on civil rights and extremism, two issues whose acceptance Romney and other top Republicans fought for at the convention.

Romney has said the platform is more important than the nominee.

Both Hayes and Trumbull said the Republican party welcomes divergence of views within its membership.

Trumbull said a news story which quoted Romney as saying he would not endorse Goldwater because the Republican party is not one of "goose-stepping conformists" was taken out of context.

When Romney was speaking before the Wayne State University Republican Club, a student asked him how he could expect Republican support if he did not endorse Goldwater. The governor answered with "I will tell you why, it is because the Republican party is not a part of goose-stepping conformists."

Trumbull said Romney is a man of strong principles.

MSU Republican Club president, Al Harnisch said Goldwater is unpopular in Michigan and by endorsing him Governor Romney might "go down with the ship."

Study In Contrasts:
Budapest, Moscow

BUDAPEST, Hungary (P)—Moscow and Budapest are both seats of Communist power. But Budapest is scarcely like Moscow.

Outwardly it is as different from the Soviet capital as London or Copenhagen.

Why the contrast in two capitals ruled by the same political ideology?

To Hungarians, the answer is simple: They are Russians. The Russians are Russians.

Where young Muscovites are told western music is decadent, Hungarian teenagers crowd into shops to buy the latest tunes.

Compared to chic and stylish, Budapest still looks dowdy.

Moscow bans nightclubs but in Budapest the twist is danced in a club complete with a floor show.

Why does Budapest just feel so different? Why is the atmosphere so relaxed and carefree and Moscow's so sullen and watchful?

"You forget," said one Hungarian, "that we are a Western culture, a long tradition of Western standards of style, fashion and food.

When you are in Moscow you can never forget that you are living in an intensely politically-minded state.

Budapest even has some privately owned stores. There's a restriction on the number of people an owner can employ, three or four is tops, so he can't build up a capitalistic empire. But the stores do a thriving trade and pay taxes like businesses in any capitalist capital.

None of this means that Hungary is going capitalist, though some people here say the country is beginning to take a more liberal line in its domestic politics. A party member said:

"We'll never return to the multi-party system. What is planned is that people will be free to pick candidates of their choice at elections. There will be free elections, with several candidates contesting each seat. Of course, all candidates will be Communists."

How does he do it?

That's probably the question that's been keeping you awake nights for the past week.

How does Super Sampler's Student Sample Book offer over $150.00 worth of goods, services, and entertainment for the ludicrous price of $5.00? Well, here's the big picture gang, in 5 easy-to-follow steps.

1. You are a market.
2. E. Lansing is a market place. (Still with me?)
3. Advertising, the commonly accepted way of acquainting market and market place (see 1 and 2 above) is expensive.
4. The Student Sample Book is not only cheaper for the merchant than newspaper advertising, not only more permanent than newspaper advertising, but it actually gets the customer (you) right into the store. The idea being for the merchant to impress you enough with his product on your initial free or discounted visit to retain your patronage.
5. In other words the merchant saves more than enough in advertising value to compensate for his initial offer, and he hopes to keep your business.

Now isn't that crudely obvious? Can't you see it clearly in all its spinning reasonableness? Aren't you moved by the absolute simplicity of the plan? Don't you feel like a big boob for not already buying your Student Sample Book? If not, reread 1-5 above. Then get hot gang. This thing won't last forever.

LBJ Campaigns In Ohio, Draws Crowds And Cheers

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—President Johnson told a cheering throng at University of Akron Memorial Auditorium Wednesday that campaign "muck raking and slander" will not deter him from pursuing a course of trying to find an area of agreement toward solution of world problems.

The President, greeted by friendly crowds on a five-mile motorcade from the airport into Akron, said that his reception in 42-degree weather had given him "mighty warm feelings in my heart."

Johnson, who permitted crowds to press in on him, was wearing a bandage on his left hand as a result of previous vigorous hand-shaking.

Johnson said that he had heard many ugly statements made about him by his Republican opponent. He said that while these disturbed him temporarily, he was not going to resort to Billingsgate in return.

"I am not going to say anything ugly about my opponent," he said. "I don't believe in muck-raking and slander."

"I have never been so far behind that I have had to cling to a sinking raft. I think the people are wise enough to judge what they see and hear."

"I want to appeal to your intelligence and not to your emotions."

On a five-mile trip from the airport to downtown Akron and the University of Akron hall where he spoke, Johnson stopped his motorcade three times to stand up and let the crowds press in on him.

Akron streets were lined with large crowds, including many school children.

At a couple of stops, Mrs. Johnson got rousing cheers when she also stood and waved to the crowds.

Before the noon meeting, Johnson paced the 4,000-seat hall, Charles Arnold, district chief of the Akron Fire Department, estimated 7,000 persons were outside and unable to get in.

They listened over loudspeakers. A teen-aged girl lifted a sign which read: "Johnson Baby, You're So Cool."

There were cries of "yee, Lady Bird", when Mrs. Johnson was introduced to the crowd.

Barry Pays For TV Time; Hits Foreign Policy 'Failure'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater said Wednesday night that the Johnson administration has created a grave threat to national security by helping to rebuild a once-divided and economically strained Communist world.

He called for a bold new policy of confrontation, based on rebuilt alliances, strength and resolution, and full recognition that "communism is our enemy."

Goldwater, replying to President Johnson's address to the nation Sunday, spoke in a nationwide telecast (ABC-9:30 p.m. EST) keyed to the fall of Soviet premier Nikita Khrushchev and Red China's explosion of its first nuclear device.

The address, taped in advance, was paid for by the Republican party after Goldwater was refused free time on radio and television.

The Republican presidential nominee, taking aim at the "momentous" events in Russia and China, charged the foreign policy of the administration has been "an utter failure," and stressed that now:

"The Communist threat to our security has become more grave. The dissent in Communist ranks ... is being repaired. Red China and the Soviet Union seem to be patching up their differences ... and we must look forward to being faced by a more unified Communist movement."

The administration is to blame for this, Goldwater said, partly because it is too soft on what he termed Khrushchev's soft sell policy of peaceful co-existence-- "which is simply the Communist strategy for world conquest"--and partly because it took the position there are good Communists like Khrushchev and bad Communists like the Chinese.

"The only difference between 'good' and 'bad' Communists," he said, "is a disagreement on how to bury us."

"But never mind those things," he continued. "This administration embarked on the dangerous policy of being nice to the 'good' Communists."

"If their economy fails, sell them wheat at bargain prices. If they are short of cash, give them credit. If they promise not to blow up any more nuclear bombs, sign a treaty giving our solemn and faithful word not to do the same."

"If they object to our armaments program, cut it back unilaterally."

"If our pursuit of national interest in Cuba makes them nervous, promise never to rock the boat as long as Communism reigns."

"In these and other ways we helped Khrushchev over his difficult times ... this man who did not hesitate to remind us that he intended to bury us..."

Goldwater lashed the administration on grounds it did not properly read "many signs that something was afoot," that changes were imminent, in the Soviet Union.

"This administration was caught completely by surprise when Khrushchev was deposed," he charged, adding:

"The administration was undoubtedly caught even more by surprise when the leaders of Red China immediately congratulated the new rulers of the Soviet Union and forecast a new era of friendly relations."

Extension Agent Wins Award For Michigan

Margaret Foster, Shiawassee county home economics extension agent, has been named 1964 winner of the Distinguished Service Award for Michigan by the National Home Demonstration Agents' Association (NHDA).

The award will be made during the annual meeting of NHDA on Nov. 18, at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D.C. Mrs. Foster will represent the Michigan Home Economics Extension Agents' Association as a voting delegate during the week of Nov. 15-19.

Distinguished service recognition goes to agents in each state who have served over 10 years and who have conducted home economics programs considered outstanding by NHDA and their own state association.

Mrs. Foster joined the NHDA Cooperative Extension Service as a specialist in home furnishings in 1948, and in 1951 she was named home economics agent in Shiawassee county since 1957. Born in Grand Ledge, Mrs. Foster received the B.S. degree from MSU in 1926 and the M.A. degree from the University of Missouri in 1931.

Her first position at MSU was that of supervising teaching in home economics education from 1939 to 1941. Prior to this, she taught in Eaton Rapids and at the State Teachers' College in Buffalo, N.Y. She is a counselor and past-president of the Michigan Home Economics Association.

The Distinguished Service Award recognizes not only her leadership to the home economics extension groups, but also her pioneering in the development of "short courses" for homemakers--series of classes in which such topics as "Use of Credit" are studied in depth. These classes are an important part of the Shiawassee county home economics extension program and are based on the particular needs of the families in the county.

Freedom Democrats Seek Help

Mississippi's Freedom Democratic Party has sent an appeal to all summer project volunteers to enlist members from now until

Robert Hargreaves, Bakersfield, Calif., graduate student, who worked on the summer project in Mississippi, reported that the Freedom Democratic Party is having a "freedom vote" Oct. 31, Nov. 1 and 2 in which all Mississippians over 21 can vote.

The letter he received from the party headquarters in Jackson, Miss., said that "for future challenges against the regular Democratic Party of Mississippi, we must get more votes in the free vote than the incumbents get in the regular election."

The "freedom vote" is an attempt to nullify the election of the regular party candidates for the Senate and House.

The volunteers called to work on the "freedom vote" must provide transportation to and from Mississippi and money for food. Housing will be provided by the Freedom Democratic Party and the Council of Federated Organizations (COFO).

Conference Attendee

A world food conference will be held Oct. 23-26 at Ditchley Park, Easton, Oxfordshire in England and an MSU professor will participate.

Lawrence Witt, professor of agricultural economics, will take part in the meeting devoted to world food surpluses and aid through food.

The conference, sponsored by the Ditchley Foundation, is one in a series dealing with problems involving Anglo-American cooperation.

Golden Opportunities In Jewelry, Antiques

To O.O. Sickles there's no gold like old gold, not the tobacco variety, but the metallic species.

Since his retirement, Sickles has been supplementing his Social Security benefits by salvaging as much used gold as he can find and selling it to the United States Treasury Department.

Sickles learned how to buy and sell the old gold 30 years ago when he worked for a company that bought and sold old gold on a large scale basis, to the Treasury Department.

At that time and with a large supply of the gold which passed in the transactions, a license was required, but today he needs none.

Old gold is any piece of gold of any karat value that can be refined into pure gold by the Assay Department of the Treasury.

Sickles gets his gold anywhere he can find it: junk yards, antique shops, anywhere where old rings, watches, jewelry, chains can be found.

He also buys and sells silver to the Treasury Department, but silver is harder to come by and is not as easy to sell as the gold, he said.

Ticket Sales End In Dormitories

Today is the last day for ticket sales in Akers, Wilson and Brody halls for Friday and Saturday evenings' Homecoming festivities.

Tickets to Friday night's Homecoming at Jensen Gym and Saturday evening's Homecoming Ball in the Auditorium will be available only at the Union and the International Center.

Marilyn Cohn, tickets chairman and Syracuse, N.Y., junior, says "At present, it seems as if both events will be sellouts."

Senior Wins Scholarship

The MSU Aves Scholarship in advertising has been awarded to Donald L. Minard, Midland senior.

An Honors College advertising major, Minard was elected on the basis of his superior academic standing and excellent promise for a career in advertising.

The scholarship, covering a year's fees, is sponsored by Wesley Aves, president of Aves Advertising, Inc., Grand Rapids advertising agency.

Top N.Y. Mobster Kidnaped

NEW YORK (AP)—Two men in dark clothing reportedly overpowered Cosa Nostra Joseph (Joe Bonanno) Bonanno at gunpoint on a rain-swept Park Avenue sidewalk Wednesday. He was sped away struggling in a car.

Bonanno, one of the nation's mobster leaders, was to have appeared before a crime-probing federal grand jury later in the day.

Almost immediately the FBI stepped into the case, and the suggestion of a hoax was raised. However, there was no trace of Bonanno and fears were expressed that he may have met a gangland execution.

Attorney William P. Maloney told police Bonanno was a client of his and that they were together when the crime syndicate leader was seized. He added, "Any suggestion that this was a dodge to get him out of appearing before the grand jury is utterly ridiculous."

Maloney said one gunman fired a wild shot at him.

As the day wore on with no trace of the sunnanned, ruggedly handsome Bonanno, police were inclined to agree with Maloney that the kidnapping was not a hoax, said Asst. Chief Inspector Walter F. Henning. "These people usually don't invite attention to themselves."

A year ago, Senate investigators heard testimony from mobster Joseph Valachi that Bonanno was the head of one of five Cosa Nostra families that control New York graft, labor rackets and dope.

Girl Fools Males On 'Chest Checks'

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Coed Candy Hughes disclosed Wednesday that she passed two "chest checks" to gain entrance to an all-male smoker at the University of California over the weekend.

Candy is a girl--36-25-36 in fact. Miss Hughes, a 19-year-old junior in political science and a reporter for the campus Daily Californian, took up the challenge when a sign was hung outside the gymnasium where the smoker was held:

"Men's smoker--absolutely no dames!" Doug Patterson, chairman of the Associated Students Rally Committee, sponsor of the smoker, compounded the challenge by promising, "I guarantee there will be no women at the smoker. The chest checkers will take care of that."

Candy stuck her long brown hair under a man's black wig, applied a theatrical stubble beard, put on trousers, tennis shoes, a baggy sweater and a stocking cap. Then she wrapped herself in a large piece of elastic to get past the chest checkers.

The effect, Miss Hughes wrote in the Daily Californian, was that she had a figure "redistributed by an Ace bandage."

Thus disguised and accompanied by male friends, she infiltrated the smoker and spent two hours there unnoticed. She described the smoker as "a complete waste of time."

It was too noisy and too rowdy, she complained.

Candy now agrees that girls should be barred from all-male smokers.

"In fact," she wrote, "even the men should forget about them."

White House Workers Take Security Tests

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the wake of the Walter Jenkins case, all staff employees of the White House have been asked to fill out new security applications.

From high ranking aides down to stenographers, they were asked to fill out standard forms entitled "Security Investigation Data for Sensitive Position."

Applications of this type routinely are sent to the FBI for checking against its files. Ordinarily, the FBI makes no independent investigation in the absence of derogatory information in its files.

Questions on the form include dates and places of residence back to 1937, and any arrests other than for traffic violations, and anything that happened before the employee's 16th birthday.

Except for traffic violations carrying a fine of $30 or less, the employee is asked to list any arrests, even for investigation and questioning and for which no formal charge was filed.

Security has become a particularly sensitive matter since recent disclosure that Walter W. Jenkins, one of President Johnson's closest aides, was arrested in 1959 and again Oct. 7, 1964, on morals charges. Jenkins resigned at Johnson's request. Johnson asked the FBI to conduct an investigation of the matter.

In 1963 the 231 dairy farms associated with MSU sustained a $3,200 increase in average total costs over the 1962 figure, according to John A. Speicher, agricultural economist.

The increase in average total costs was offset, however, by increased milk sales per cow of 500 pounds to 11,932 pounds. Dairy product sales per cow increased by $16 to $496 during 1963.

East European Reactions

...bragging...and unwillingness to take into account the achievements of science and practical experience."

The new Soviet leaders, party secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, have tried to reassure the restless Communist parties abroad. Both pledged ceremonies Monday welcoming the three Soviet cosmonauts to continue policies laid down by Khrushchev.

These policies let up on the pressure imposed on the Soviet bloc in Stalin's day, allowing the various Communist states a little more freedom to act on their own.

In the restless Soviet bloc, Premier Janos Kadar of Hungary, for example, praised Khrushchev for his "outstanding merits in the fight against the Stalinist personality cult and in the maintenance of world peace."

East Germany's Politburo expressed confidence in the new Soviet leaders but said, "it is known that Comrad Khrushchev has also won merits in carrying out the Marxist-Leninist policy."

Outside the Iron Curtain, Communist parties were stronger in their criticism of the Kremlin move.

Luigi Longo, chief of Italian Communists, told a rally:

"The way in which Comrade Khrushchev has been replaced leaves us worried and critical. This way indicates the process toward the restoration of the Leninist method of free debate inside the Communist movement is still slow and uncertain."

The French Communist party said Wednesday it wants more information on "conditions and methods" by which Khrushchev was ousted. The big French party, second only in the Western world to the Italian Communist party, said, in order to get the answers, "The political bureau has decided to ask the Central Committee of the Communist party of the Soviet Union to receive a delegation of the French Communist party."

Discussion On European History Slated

Norman R. Rich, professor of history, will discuss current European history, and the Common Market Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Union art room.

Rich who spent the past two years in Britain and Germany, will be speaking at an open meeting of Delta Phi Epsilon, professional fraternity for international affairs and foreign trade.

Prior to coming to the University in 1956, Rich did work at the University of California (Berkeley), Princeton and Bryn Mawr.

An open rush coffee hour will follow the informal discussion period.

Continuing its schedule of speakers on internationally oriented topics, Delta Phi Epsilon next week is sponsoring a talk by Robert J. Maddox, associate professor of history. Maddox will discuss Red China and the consequences of non-recognition.

1st Fiscal Reform Study Completed

The first study on fiscal reform under the Latin Alliance for Progress has been completed by Milton C. Taylor, professor of economics.

Taylor, who served as chief of the fiscal mission to Panama views the idea as educational.

"Educators, businessmen, politicians and others will have an opportunity to familiarize themselves with fiscal problems in their own country," he said. The objective is to make tax reform a social issue.

Other studies on Latin American countries by Taylor will appear in December and next year.

Report Confirms Doubt

Nikita's Resignation Forced

MOSCOW—Five secret policemen brought Nikita Khrushchev back fighting mad from his Black Sea vacation to the Communist party meeting that threw him out of office, informed sources reported.

The first tip Khrushchev had that the party central committee had decided to remove him came in a telephone call, possibly from Leonid I. Brezhnev, the man who succeeded him as first party secretary, they said.

The sources say members of the Central Committee began gathering in Moscow Oct. 11 or 12 after being summoned from as far away as New Delhi, where the Soviet Ambassador is a committee member.

Charges were drawn up, including bungling of the Red China dispute, industrial and agricultural failures, personal excesses and creation of a personality cult.

The informants gave this account of the events that followed: Then someone telephoned Khrushchev at Gagra, a resort on the Black Sea, telling him to return to Moscow for a committee meeting on policy matters. Khrushchev angrily replied that he was first secretary and would decide upon meetings. He could not be ordered around.

The secret police turned up at Gagra a short time later and five of them escorted Khrushchev to Moscow. The sources declined to use the term "arrest" but said the pressure approached that.

A fighting-mad Khrushchev was outvoted in a meeting of the 11-member Presidium of the 170 member Central Committee.

When this happened before, in 1957, Khrushchev rallied the Central Committee to his side, overruled the Presidium vote and ousted his opponents, including former Premier G. M. Malenkov and Foreign Minister, V. M. Molotov.

This time, Mikhail Suslov presented the Central Committee an indictment of Khrushchev, charging both personal and policy short-comings. Khrushchev replied, then looked around at his followers, expecting support.

No one spoke up for him and Khrushchev lost the first secretary's job, the premiership and the seat on the Presidium he had held since 1939. The momentous decision was announced last Thursday.

There was some indication whether he also was removed from the Central Committee.

Reports are circulating that Khrushchev is writing a paper,

Discipline-Free Boozers Abound

By JAMES STERBA
State News Staff Writer

The MSU campus is overrun with drunks. What's worse—the University is furnishing the booze.

These drunks don't even get disciplined, and they do their tripping right on campus. In fact, there is no regulation that says they can't.

Who are these anonymous alcoholics? Who are these merry staggering individuals? They're birds. That's right—juiced birds.

After the fruits and berries on trees and bushes around campus are subjected to freezing temperatures, they ferment naturally. Then birds, seeking food (or a gassy bird) eat the berries and get bombed.

George J. Wallace, professor of zoology, said studies on the matter are scarce, but that it was highly possible the birds do get lit on the fermented berries.

"I don't think it would take much alcohol to get a bird high," he said.

Why hasn't someone clamped down on these drunkards? First, student regulations don't apply to birds.

Second, the MSU Police said they have had no complaints on the matter and "would authorize no statement."

The problem is that the birds might set a bad example for the students.

John A. Fuzak, vice president for student affairs, said he hoped that students don't find out which berries the birds are eating.

Vets Meet Counselor

The new faculty advisor for the MSU Veterans Association was introduced to club members Tuesday night.

He is assistant professor of geology Norbert W. O'Hara, a 1950 graduate of MSU, and former Marine Corps helicopter pilot. Ernie Brown, 23, Bay Shore junior, was elected to the Seven-Man Board, the governing body of the Veterans Association.

Application blanks for the Tomahawks are available to club members in 316 Student Services Building. Entry deadline is Nov. 3.

The scholarships, given by the owner of the Coral Gables, cover one term's tuition at MSU.

Senate Hopeful Asks Educational Equality

The increasing importance placed on a high school graduate's standing in his class and high tuition costs are the main factors keeping potential students out of our colleges, Charles Griffiths, candidate for the state Senate, said Monday.

"I feel this is a direct violation of the Morrill Act," Griffiths, Democrat, 24th District, said. "It's not fair to a kid who gets in on the basis of whether he could benefit from college, not if the kids' parents could pay for it or not."

Griffiths, who received his bachelors and masters degrees from MSU and has taught in Lansing schools several years, spoke informally at a meeting sponsored by the Campus NAACP and the University Political Interest Group at the Union.

Griffiths barely touched on Civil Rights at this meeting, but he made it clear he supported opportunity for all persons. He spoke on a variety of subjects and his views on them.

"The problem of providing additional space for the boom in students is not going to be met by expanding MSU two or three times," Griffiths continued. "It should be met in the community colleges."

Griffiths said that the legislature's role in supporting the schools is to determine how much money should be appropriated and the means of appropriating it.

Griffiths said that the local level of politics is the best one at which to solve problems.

"What we need is complete fiscal reform incorporating a sound income tax with a reversal of the trend in all areas to shift the cost of government to the cities. It should go to the state, where it belongs," Griffiths said.

Savings Bond Chain Faulty

People who want to "get rich quick" via chain letter schemes involving United States Savings Bonds are in for disappointment, warns Delmar V. Cote, state director for the U.S. Savings Bonds Division of the Treasury.

Not only is it mathematically impossible to profit by such a plan, but chances are the participant will lose his entire investment, as well as run the risk of criminal prosecution. These schemes violate federal regulations and have been labeled frauds and lotteries by federal courts.

However, money invested in savings bonds for this purpose can be recovered without penalty if the bonds are still in the purchaser's possession. The buyer should complete a special bond of indemnity form available at any bank—through which a refund can be obtained.

International Club Cards Now Ready

International Club membership cards have been printed, and members may pick them up in the U.N. Lounge in the Union from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

I.C. Shah, president of the club, said the cards would be necessary for admission to certain club events and for discounts on tickets for International Club affairs. He urged students to keep their cards.

Strikers Out For 28 Days.. UAW Orders Voting

DETROIT 4—The United Auto Workers Union Wednesday ordered its striking General Motors Corp. members to vote Sunday on ending a walkout which has idled more than 300,000 and which is 28 days old.

A favorable vote could signal a return of the world's No. 1 automaker to production Monday, a union executive said. A company spokesman, on the other hand, expressed doubt GM could get rolling that quickly.

Leonard Woodcock, a UAW vice president and chief of its GM department, said the union's action was prompted in part by three different things:

1. President Johnson's Monday request for quick settlement.

2. The pinch of the strike on UAW members and their families.

3. Its deteriorating effect on the national economy.

While ordering its local unions to vote Sunday, the UAW called its General Motors council to meet in Detroit Friday to ballot on ratification of a new national contract with GM.

The strike started Sept. 25 with the passing of a union-set deadline for agreement on a new national contract.

Agreement on that came Oct. 5, but the UAW made return to work contingent upon settling 130 at-the-plant working agreements, which supplement the national contract.

When the union's vote order came, only 85 of these pacts had been wrapped up.

Woodcock said he would try to intensify local-level negotiations and hoped that most at-the-plant agreements could be completed by Saturday. Local unions lacking settlements will vote on whether to return to work without them.

If a sizeable number vote to stay out this could cripple GM production, or even keep it from restarting in the immediate future. While local-level agreements have been reached at the bulk of GM's manufacturing plants, they still are lacking at 19 of 23 final assembly plants.

Woodcock forecast overwhelming council approval of the new national contract. It parallels those negotiated earlier at Chrysler Corp. and Ford Motor Co.

The new over-all contracts provide higher pensions, earlier retirement incentives, longer vacations, more holidays, more relief time and broader insurance coverage. A contingent Christmas bonus of $25 to $100 also is included at Ford and GM.

Wildcat strikes which plagued American Motors Corp. at Milwaukee and Kenosha, Wis., Tuesday ended Wednesday.

These idled the bulk of AMC's 24,000 automotive division employees, and erupted only a day after AMC had reached agreement on a new national contract and the UAW had ordered a three-day strike ended.

After breaking off while both sides worked to get the automotive division back into operation, the company and union returned to the bargaining table in an attempt to hammer out a new pact covering AMC's 3,000 Keivinator Appliance division workers in Grand Rapids, Mich.

The new AMC-UAW national agreement continues profit sharing—the only such contract in the industry.

Chefs To Discuss Foods At Hotel Fraternity Dinner

Sigma Pi Eta, the MSU chapter of the national honorary fraternity of the hotel and restaurant schools, is sponsoring a dinner at 6 tonight in the Centennial Room of Kellogg Center.

"New Ideas in Foods" will be discussed by two of the country's finest chefs, said Lendal Kotschevar, professor of hotel management and of journalism.

They are Ernest Koves from New York and Paul Debes of San Francisco.

Over 100 people concerned with food handling will be present, including students, faculty and other interested people from Michigan and the surrounding states.

Carpenter received his B.S. degree in agriculture from Washington State University and his M.S. degree in ornamental horticulture from MSU in 1962.

He held a teaching assistantship here, conducting laboratory classes in plant propagation, nursery practices and plant identification, and also taught a course in plant identification.

Student Employment Opportunities

MALE: Book binder needed, shipping and receiving work in campus department. Small combo needed for private party, printers helper.

FEMALE: Part-time nursery school teacher (no degree required), fulltime secretary, fulltime receptionist, part-time employment for merchandising major, morning babysitters for East Lansing church.

Students needing part-time employment should visit the Student Employment Office in the Placement Bureau, first floor Student Services.

Shakespeare Exhibit - From U.S. Capitol To MSU

Libraries are not just for reading assigned books.

The MSU library, for example, exhibits displays on rare or unusual books and newspapers.

"One of our finest displays will be shown for two weeks in November," Henry Koch, assistant library director announced today. "The Folger Library in Washington, D.C., is sending an exhibit on Shakespeare," he explained.

The display will include a set of Shakespeare's first four folios, which were edited by his assistants; quartos (reproductions of his books printed during his life) of "Mid-Summer's Night Dream" and "The Merry Wives of Windsor," a reproduction of a quarto of "Titus and Virgus," and prints and photographs of Shakespeare's England.

"One of the better exhibits we've had in the past," recalls Koch, "was one on cookbooks."

Through cooperation with the University museum, antique spoons and utensils were shown with early cookbooks.

Since there is no display committee per se in the library, ideas are usually welcomed.

SANE Group Will Meet

Thomas Greer, chairman of the humanities department, will speak today on his tour of the Soviet Union at 8 p.m. in the Community Room of Edgewood United Church, 469 Hagadorn Road, East Lansing.

Faculty and students may attend this first meeting of the Greater Lansing Committee for a SANE Nuclear Policy.

Greer has been studying the problems of war and peace for the past 15 years. He is co-author of "The Army Air Forces in World War II."

Richard Chapin, director of the library, once set up a display on the French monarchy.

During the summer, Eugene DeBenko, international programs librarian, with the help of Indian students, set up a display on Nehru. It included books written by and about him and Indian newspaper accounts describing his death and funeral.

There is a small display case on the main floor which features a book by a famous author or a famous book by a relatively unknown author.

"The main purpose of these displays," Koch said, "is to show the students what is available to them in the library."

This week the library features two books by William Camden. One book, written in 1586 concerns topography and antiquary. The other book was written in 1635 and is one of the most valuable accounts of Queen Elizabeth I's reign. Both books were purchased for the library by the class of 1959.

Military Institute To Sponsor Spend Cut International Awards

The expected decline in military spending will not cripple Michigan economically. This is the view held by Otto Feinstein, assistant professor at Wayne State University, in an article published in the October issue of MSU's business publication, Michigan Economic Record.

Feinstein noted that less than 3 per cent of Michigan's personal income originates from defense spending and it comes from industries that could easily shift to consumer production.

This economic adjustment is not only a Michigan problem, as by 1970, defense spending will be reduced by about 25 per cent.

Feinstein noted that although this is a problem, there are advantages to reduced military spending. Funds and technical assistance will now be available to help solve national problems.

"By establishing the awards on an annual basis, we shall be able to give recognition to many more institutions, organizations and individuals who are participating actively in educational and cultural exchange," Holland said.

"Heretofore, it was possible to accord this recognition only at our large national conferences held in 1956, 1959 and 1960," he said.

Criteria for evaluating the contributions of candidates for the awards were established by the IIE in 1956 when the first awards were given. The quality of a program rather than its size has become the determining factor

The college or university selected for the IIE-Reader's Digest Foundation award will designate an individual affiliated with its program to use the grant for foreign travel to broaden his or her international experience.

Nominations for awards in the five categories should be sent to the director of the IIE's Midwest regional office by Nov. 1, 1964. The address is 116 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60603.

Preliminary selection of nominees from among the candidates in their area will be made by the directors of the regional offices.

The awards will be announced at a special event during the annual meeting of the IIE Board of Trustees in January 1965.

ANN ARBOR (UPI)—The chairman of the University of Michigan Pharmacology Department said Wednesday that it is "improper medical practice" to write prescriptions for large doses of stimulants or sedatives and to neglect to label such prescriptions "non-refillable."

Dr. Maurice Seevers, speaking before the annual U-M pharmacy lectures, called for greater responsibility on the part of the physician to combat drug abuse in the United States.

Excluding alcohol and "morphine-like substances," the illicit use of the amphetamines and barbiturates is the most serious problem, Seevers said.

He stressed that each patient must be treated individually and noted that in many instances prolonged daily use of sedative or hypnotic doses is justified.

"The unhappy history of narcotic control in the United States indicates that it would be unwise to introduce comparable punitive legislation to control these dangerous drugs," he said.

"It is the physician's duty to select a dose and administer it at such widely spaced intervals that the subjective effects of the drug are limited to those required for proper therapeutic effect..." Seevers said.

ANN ARBOR (UPI)—The chairman of the University of Michigan Pharmacology Department said Wednesday that it is "improper medical practice" to write prescriptions for large doses of stimulants or sedatives and to neglect to label such prescriptions "non-refillable."

Dr. Maurice Seevers, speaking before the annual U-M pharmacy lectures, called for greater responsibility on the part of the physician to combat drug abuse in the United States.

Excluding alcohol and "morphine-like substances," the illicit use of the amphetamines and barbiturates is the most serious problem, Seevers said.

He stressed that each patient must be treated individually and noted that in many instances prolonged daily use of sedative or hypnotic doses is justified.

'Crucible' Success In Spite Of Miller

By LAURENCE TATE
State News Theater Reviewer

The Performing Arts Company did more than anyone had a right to expect of them Monday night; they wrung an evening of real drama from Arthur Miller's "The Crucible."

The play is essentially a florid propaganda piece full of pretentious rhetoric and cardboard characters acting in the service of the moral that a man must keep his honor while all about him are losing theirs.

One must sympathize with Miller's condemnation of the sort of society and the sort of mind that can breed a witch-hunt, and he has written some powerful, playable scenes to the point; but all is undermined by a black-and-white version of life and a lot of bad lines.

Mariam Duckwall, instructor in speech, the director, by presenting the play within the necessarily austere conventions of a reading has de-emphasized the play's numerous excesses.

Simplicity in costumes and lighting complement the staging, so that the play at once picks up a clear-cut thrust and intensity, tions ending the first scene. This uncluttered intensity is maintained almost throughout.

Actors and director succumb in the end to the overwrought ranting to which the author continually invites them. But they cannot really be blamed; it might be more disastrous to try to underplay the last scene.

Some moments still draw unintentional laughter, but the laughter is generally Miller's doing, not the company's.

The actors on the whole maintain such a high level that the few who fail stand out awkwardly and on occasion throw the play off-balance. Such are the paradoxes of success.

J. Michael Bloom and Julie English carry off their difficult confrontation scene in the first act stunningly.

Miss English, after a shaky start, conveys Abigail's pain and her revolt against the stifling Puritan society as well as the more obvious malice. Bloom is a pillar of restraint at the play's center.

Mary Jo Lindsay is especially fine as Tituba, and others noteworthy are Edward Abry, Dale A. J. Rose and Linda Miller.

One is anxious to see what this excellent company will do with the opportunity of their talents. "The Crucible" will be played tonight through Friday at the McDonell Kiva, 7:15 and 9:30 p.m.

'Chris Sly's' Story To Be Disclosed

Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew" will be modified when the Performing Arts Company presents the comedy Tuesday at the Auditorium.

The ending of an earlier play "A Shrew" has been attached to the end of the Shakespeare play. It is possible Shakespeare's "Shrew" was based on this play. "Shakespeare introduces Chris Sly at the beginning of his play. After getting involved with the play within the play he fails to complete Sly's story," Frank C. Rutledge, instructor in speech, and director of the play, said.

"The earlier play completes the induction," Rutledge said. The Performing Arts Company will open with the "Taming of the Shrew," 8:15 p.m. Tuesday at the Auditorium. The play, to run through Nov. 1, is part of a month-long festival celebrating the 400th anniversary of Shakespeare's birth.

The company, however, has decided to perform in 18th century costumes instead of the Elizabethan costumes of Shakespeare's day.

"I'm not too fond of the Elizabethan doublets," Rutledge admitted. "Eighteenth-century costuming is freer and more dashing."

For both acting and staging techniques the company is drawing upon the commedia dell'arte, an Italian comedy form in which actors improvise on stock situations.

The action, stunts and pantomimes of the commedia are being incorporated into the play. The framework stage employed for this production provides the Elizabethan acting areas and two small stage settings suggestive of early mountebank commedia stages.

The stage settings have been designed to meet the problems of taking "Taming of the Shrew" on tour through Michigan and into Canada winter term.

Since "Shrew" will go on tour, only 15 people are to play the 34 required roles. The doubling of roles requires quick costume changes.

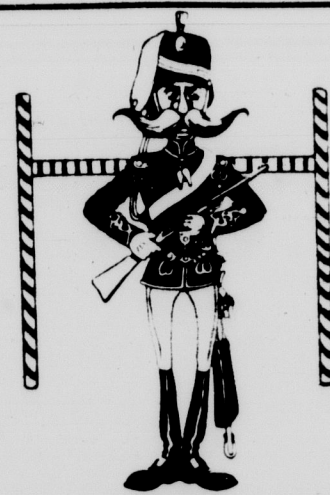

"I'm very pleased with the evenness of the company," Rutledge said. "Both the leading actors and the supporters are strong."

"Although the cast includes juniors, seniors, masters candidates and doctoral candidates, no one person outshines all the others. We don't have a jarring contrast between a strong leading player and a weaker supporting cast."

Rutledge said he is also pleased with the rapid rate at which the cast has worked to perfect the presentation. The company has had only since Oct. 2 to rehearse.

Sunday the Performing Arts Company presented a dress rehearsal of "Taming of the Shrew" for the Fine Arts Festival at the Lansing Civic Center.

"The crowd laughed and seemed to get a kick out of this vigorous comedy," Rutledge said. "It's a good indication."

Drews Combines Many Activities

Take a Navy commander, a social science professor and an archeologist and you have the combination of East Lansing's present Democratic chairman.

Robin Drews, associate professor of social science, combines varying interests with a background any political big wig would envy.

Drews has held the position of East Lansing Democratic chairman since 1962, and even though busy writing a book and teaching, he said that the 1964 election was just too exciting to miss.

As chairman, he is also an executive committee member of the Ingham County Democratic Committee.

During the less hectic part of the year, Drews, aside from teaching social science, spends considerable time on a book he is writing about the Central Pacific Islands entitled, "The Islands That Got Away."

Information for this book was acquired while he served in the Navy during the war as communications officer in the central Pacific.

He later became a member of General Douglas MacArthur's staff as fisheries officer. He presently holds the rank of commander and is commanding officer of the Pacific Islands, particularly the Micronesian area, in which he saw action during the war.

Bear Can't Bear Those Bare Zoo Cages

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A 1,300-pound Kodiak bear, dazed but still able to walk after being hit with five tranquilizer-filled darts, defied capture Wednesday several hours after he smashed his way out of a cage at the Buffalo Zoo.

The 5-year-old brown bear was trapped in a passageway between the old and new bear pits, with walls about 20-feet high.

When the animal broke from his cage, the zoo grounds were cleared quickly.

The bear, named Illicob, staggered and seemed to collapse after being struck by the first dart. He recovered quickly, even after a second dart hit him. A veterinarian then ordered a more powerful drug inserted into the darts. Illicob still did not surrender.

Poetic Artist Stresses Form

Exhibits Span 2,400 Years

Surrealism, typography and the classic work of Greece and Rome involve the visitor to Kresge Art Center in 2,400 years of changing art styles.

Kresge is presently running three exhibitions. A retrospective show of the work of Gabor Peterdi, poetic American painter, will be on display through Nov. 1.

An exhibition relating the history of design for printing is in the skylighted gallery. Small works from ancient Greece and Rome, a display to run through Oct. 26, fill the hall cases.

"Peterdi is a poet in paint. His is a sensitive approach that conveys much feeling," Paul V. Love, professor of art, said. "His forms are not so abstract as they first appear because he strongly bases them on natural forms," Love said. "He plays up form to get more emotional content in his work."

Peterdi, a Hungarian-American painter best known for his prints, branched out into painting and became interested in portraying nature during the 1940's.

The Kresge exhibition, taking in his work from 1945 to the present, shows a progression from a bold block portrayal to a more delicate, fine-lined portrayal. Peterdi meticulously applies his paint in layers to give a slight depth to his work, Love explained.

"Peterdi's is a refreshing, bright, optimistic approach," he said.

The Peterdi show was organized by the Corcoran Gallery of art, Washington, D.C., to be circulated to five showings throughout the United States.

Charles Pollock, an associate professor of art, and his wife Sylvia, organized the typographic display in the skylighted gallery.

"We organized the exhibit to give visitors and students an idea of what typography is and what it is not," Pollock said. "Most people think of typography as simply arranging the illustrations, but the designing of the entire book is involved," he said. "In the show we give examples of fine typography from old Biblical manuscripts up through the printed page."

Student designing of a title page from an English poetry book demonstrates how problems of typographical design can be solved.

One of a limited number of editions of the Nuremberg Chronicle, in which more than 2,000 Durer woodcuts were colored by hand, is part of the typography exhibition.

Poets: Prizes For Poems

Poetry is being sought for the 1964-65 Inter-Collegiate Poetry Congress Anthology.

A first prize of $25 will be awarded with a second and third prizes of $15 and $10. Selections will be based upon poetic merit and chosen from schools throughout the country.

All poetry must be submitted no later than November 23.

Contributors will be notified of the editor's decision within two weeks of receipt of poetry and will have the opportunity of obtaining the completed anthology, to be in print by mid-December.

If accepted, all future publishing rights are to be retained by the author.

Poetry should be submitted to: Inter-Collegiate Poetry Congress, 528 Market St., Lewisburg, Pa.

Freeway Opens 17-Mile Section

The final $10 million, 17-mile section of the U.S.-31 freeway was opened recently. It runs from Muskegon north to existing U.S.-31 north of the twin cities of Whitehall and Montague.

Both the Nuremberg Chronicle and samples of Biblical printing from 1240 to 1934 have been borrowed from the MSU Library.

One section of the typography display compares the 19th century disregard of classic book types with present-day attempts to manipulate the abstract forms of letters to create spatial relationships.

Lent by the Detroit Institute of Art, the classic display in the hall cases briefly gives the development of the arts between the archaic Greek and the Roman periods.

"It was difficult to get a series of sculpture so we used a series of coins to illustrate the changes in styles," Love said.

The coins depict the treatment of the human form from early idealization of 323 B.C. to portrait realism of 131 A.D.

"The marble bust of a Roman boy from the Augustan age is a particularly fine work," Love said.

Kresge Art Center is open Monday through Friday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Tuesday evening 7 to 9 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday 2 to 5 p.m.

State Vs. Ball State: Battle Of The Unbeatens In Soccer

GEORGE JANES

PAYTON FULLER

The Spartan soccer team will attempt to extend its winning streak to six straight games this afternoon at 3:30 when it faces Ball State College.

Both squads are undefeated. The Spartan kickers will be returning to action after one of the strongest performances of the year last Saturday when they defeated Akron University 5-0 for their fourth straight shutout of the season.

Last Saturday's victory followed a 15-0 shutout over Purdue, a 8-0 defeat of Calvin and a 9-0 victory over Wheaton.

Although the Spartans have been winning, Coach Gene Kenney is not entirely satisfied with the past few games.

"We may be scoring quite a few goals," Kenney said, "but we have also missed a lot of chances."

"When we play stronger teams we will need to capitalize on all the chances we have," Kenney said.

COACH GENE KENNEY

The squad will be led once again by All-American George Janes, who currently leads the team in scoring with 10 goals.

Other top players on State's offense are Clare DeBoer, with six goals, and Payton Fuller and Van Dimtrious with four apiece.

Returning to the line-up are newcomers Terry Bidiak and Nick Krat, two outstanding performers in Saturday's game, according to Kenney.

Following the Ball State game this afternoon at the MSU Soccer Field, the kickers will have only three more games to play.

State last met the Muncie, Ind., school a year ago when they scored a 10-1 victory on their way to the conference title.

They will face the defending NCAA champion, St. Louis, in the last game of the season that may possibly decide the Midwest Soccer Conference championship. It could also determine who will enter the post-season NCAA playoffs as the favorites.

'S' Harriers Call The Shots At Forest Akers Work-Out

By MIKE BROOKS
State News Sports Writer

Fran Dittich did a little tap dance as he watched the small figures climbing hills in the distance. He wasn't feeling any warmer, so he began to do several wind sprints.

It was 35 degrees, but so the tight little pack stepped up the pace to generate some sweat.

They had been making the rounds of Forest Akers for about 40 minutes now and most of them had worked out the kinks and stiffness of the previous day.

Once again, while a lone figure would separate itself from the group, but then just suddenly it would be caught and the routine would continue.

The pack appeared to be barely in motion, but distance is deceiving. Before they would stop, at least seven more miles would have to be covered. A lot of that ground would be sharp, wearisome hills.

The weather offered one small consolation. The runners wouldn't be bothered by a duff-

The pack disappeared as they went down into the hollow on the back nine.

Dittich just looked and waited for his team to come back into view. His policy is to work the men hard and make no predictions.

The wind was starting to pick up again so he began to do some of his self-styled calisthenics.

The team was expressionless as it filed past. Except for the drowsy look on several faces, the machine was intent on moving forward. Maintaining the rhythm was its main goal.

Today was a breather from yesterday's workout. It was cold then, too, and the work had been harder.

They had started out by running eight or nine quarter miles with a quarter jog between each. Each had been run in under 70 seconds.

Dittich then decided to give them a little harder conditioning work. Another twelve quarters were run with half as much rest between each.

MSU will expand its football schedule to 10 games this year and attempt to see all the home games.

Next year's home opener with UCLA will be held at Spartan Stadium on Sept. 18 while the first day of classes is tentatively slated for Sept. 30.

Recently released grid schedules through 1972 indicate that the situation will exist for at least eight years.

The Spartan will play five or six home games a season through 1972 with at least one a year taking place before the tentative starting day for class.

The Big Ten conference ruling of a season consists of a schedule ranging from the last day before Thanksgiving.

"The probability of scheduling isn't one that is susceptible to conference treatment," said Big Ten commissioner Bill Reed.

"Each school must account for its own calendar since there is a variation across the board."

MSU is one of four Big Ten schools that operates on a quarter system.

The others are Ohio State, Northwestern and Minnesota.

"If a perfect schedule were arranged for each school, the result would be a disjointed schedule," Reed said.

Vice President for Student Affairs John A. Fuzak, who is also faculty representative to the Big Ten, agreed with Reed that schedules favorable to all universities at the same time become harder to design with the expansion.

"Several years ago, the decision was reached for the expanded season," Fuzak explained. "This was on the basis of working out something more equitable for the selection of the conference champion."

"Ideally, a round-robin set-up would be best," he said. "But, judging by the problems created scheduling seven Big Ten opponents, it is obvious such an arrangement would be most difficult to work out."

Provisions will be worked out, Fuzak said, to make it possible for students who are able to attend any home game prior to registration to pick up their tickets at some earlier date.

Under consideration is distribution during spring term for students who do not attend summer sessions. Freshman will be able to redeem their activity books when they register during summer counseling clinic.

Commenting on rumors that fees may be charged students in the future for athletic events, Fuzak said that no decision has been made along these lines to warrant this speculation.

"Naturally, we have given consideration to the eventualities of increased enrollments and how it might affect gate receipts," Fuzak said. "But just because we are the only Big Ten university not presently charging admission, is not reason enough to do the same."

The possibility of expanding the stadium is one that has been studied at athletic council meetings, he admitted, although no action has been taken.

"These are the best schedules to hit Michigan State," Athletic Director Biggie Munn said. "people should not criticize it, rather they should praise it."

All-University Student Government President Bob Harris, one of the two student representatives on the Athletic Council, said that the entire problem is presently being investigated.

Weekend Basketball Slated For Afternoons

By DUANE LANCASTER
State News Sports Writer

Basketball, being a contact sport despite rules laid down by its inventor James Naismith 70 years ago, is no longer an almost formal exchanging of set shots but a fast-moving punishing game.

In view of this and the fact that Big Ten basketball cannot be described without using the word "Fierce," a new Western Conference cage schedule has been put into effect this year to allow a longer rest between court combats.

The grueling Saturday night-Monday meetings have been eliminated by scheduling the games on Saturday afternoons (2:30) and Tuesday nights.

The benefits to both players and spectators of the change, originally proposed by Michigan State basketball Coach Forddy Anderson, are far reaching and the chances for financial success are considerably strengthened.

It allows an extra day to prepare for a game giving coaches and players a resting period to gather up steam.

Many see where this might up grade the caliber of Big Ten games.

Since Monday nights are usually picked as the time for dormitory, fraternity and other school meetings, a conflict arose which will be eliminated under the new set-up.

Players will no longer lose time from schooling enabling them to start the academic week properly.

The new schedule is worked out so that just the near-by opponents are played and the players miss school only on the day of the game.

A few Tuesday games were experimented with last season and in some cases drew more fans than did Saturday games.

Anderson said he felt the change to Saturday afternoon games would also increase attendance since there are many other Saturday night activities on campus that conflicted with the basketball contests.

"We're trying to map a schedule that is most attractive to the students and most convenient to the players," said Anderson.

"There will be 14 Big Ten games played on Tuesdays and Michigan State will be involved in two of them," he said.

The Spartans play the University of Michigan in Jenison on Tuesday Jan. 26 and move to Illinois for another Tuesday game March 9.

Game time on weekdays will remain 8:00 p.m.

"All the Big Ten coaches approved of the change," he added.

Navy Capt. Dan A. Jones, a 1933 MSU graduate in civil engineering, is the new commanding officer of the oceanographic survey vessel "Surveyor," the Coast and Geodetic Survey, U.S. Department of Commerce has announced.

Instructors To Study Shelters

Instructors to train managers for Lansing government and industry fallout shelters will be taught in an eight-session course beginning today.

The course meets for three hours, one night a week at the Kellogg Center.

It will deal with administration, protection, sanitation and problems resulting from close association of large numbers of people.

Final session of the course will be a 24-hour stay in a shelter under simulated fallout conditions.

The instructor will be Donald Crakes, Ingham County Civil Director. The training is financed by a Department of Defense Contract.

The shelter managers' course is co-sponsored by the MSU Continuing Education Service, the Civil Defense Division of the Michigan State Police and the Office of Civil Defense of the Department of Defense.

Gentle Setting Reported After Recent Sunrise Flight

MOSCOW (P)—The landing of the three-man space ship Voskhod (Sunrise) was softer than an elevator coming to a halt, its commander said Wednesday.

The commander, Col. Vladimir Komarov, told a four-hour news conference the first capsule to carry more than one man into space was in perfect condition after returning to earth Oct. 13 and capable of flying further missions.

Komarov, an engineer, explained the landing involved a parachute descent.

"Then landing rockets were switched on in the region of the earth," he said. "This made possible a landing at practically zero speed."

In earlier Soviet space shots, soloing astronauts had the option of landing inside the capsules or ejecting themselves and landing by parachutes. The Voskhod was the first to discard the second alternative.

Komarov said the end of the Voskhod's 16-orbit flight was "less discomforting than the sensational experience which occurs when the modern elevator comes to a halt." Apparently he was referring to Russian elevators, which often stop with a thump.

Despite the advance in techniques, Komarov said, "in its present state, the Voskhod landing system cannot be used for a lunar landing."

Komarov and his companions, scientist Konstantin Feoktistov and Dr. Boris Yegorov, all stressed that new equipment in the capsule functioned perfectly. They said it paved the way for future flights to the moon and other planets.

All repeated that they felt well through the flight. But Yegorov admitted for the first time that both he and Feoktistov were troubled by dizzy spells.

"Sharp movements of the head caused dizzy sensations, sensations of general discomfort," the physician said.

He said the dizziness was not accompanied by hallucinations or involuntary eye movements, which he described as signs of serious trouble.

Pictures taken of Feoktistov during and after the flight indicated he might have been sick, but he denied any illness.

"I was perfectly all right," the scientist said.

Feoktistov told the news conference the Voskhod was able to shoot higher into space than any earlier satellite because it carried an extra retro-rocket to insure a safe drop to a landing. The high point was 254 miles, about twice that of previous Russian manned flights.

Feoktistov said the radiation dosage of the crew in space was quite admissible, meaning not harmful. He said precise figures will be published later.

Asked if smoking was allowed in the space ship, he said:

"Yes, but it was not recommended. All three of us are non-smokers."

The most fantastic sights of the flight?

"The aurora borealis," Feoktistov said. "The upper layers of brightness. The earth itself seen from outer space."
