Diplomats Expect Unusual Events

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (P)—In an atmosphere of unprecedented uncertainty diplomats from around the world converged on U.N. headquarters Monday for a General Assembly session many regard as the most critical in U.N. history.

Failure to find a formula for postponing a U.S.-Soviet confrontation over U.N. peacekeeping assessments caused gloom to spread through the big glass and stone headquarters building in advance of today's Assembly opening.

Diplomats from the 112 member nations present for the session included many foreign ministers and others of top cabinet rank.

All were watching the Soviet delegation headed by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko for clues as to Soviet policy in the wake of the change in the Moscow leadership.

Aircraft Falls Amid Rebel Fire

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo. (P)—Sharp fighting broke out around Stanleyville airport where a Belgian plane crashed Sunday night amid heavy rebel sniper fire, killing 7 of 15 persons on board. Flights into Stanleyville were turned back.

It was not clear whether the Belgian DC4, chartered to transport refugees, was hit by rebel fire or had mechanical difficulties on its takeoff run. It crashed into a jungle at the end of the runway.

"The situation in Stanleyville is far from calm," a U.S. Embassy spokesman said. Reports reaching Leopoldville indicated the rebels had regained virtually complete control of Stanleyville. Congolese Army troops held the jungle-edged airport.

Six of the plane dead were Belgians—three of them crewmen—and the seventh was a Congolese. Among the survivors was Col. Albert Liegeois, a Belgian who is a commander in the Congo government's anti-rebel drive.

On one flight turned back at Stanleyville because of the fighting was Maj. Michael Hoare, commander of the white mercenaries who led Congolese forces into Stanleyville last Tuesday to join Belgian paratroopers in the rescue of white hostages amid a massacre.

The Congolese troops remained after the pullout of the Belgians over the weekend. Congolese army chief Joseph Mobutu ordered newsmen to stay away from Stanleyville.

Rebel snipers have been shooting at planes in Stanleyville ever since government and Belgian forces moved into the former rebel capital.

ANDREI GROMYKO

Russians Challenge Dues Issue

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (P)—Russia publicly dared the United States and other U.N. members Monday to force the great issue on U.N. financing at the opening of the General Assembly session today.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko carried the challenge to Secretary of State Dean Rusk at a lunch meeting, their first since the new regime took over in Moscow.

Shortly before their meeting, the Soviet delegation issued this statement:

"In connection with reports published in the American press to the effect that important matters on the agenda of the U.N. General Assembly should be postponed for a long period or indefinitely, the Soviet delegation deems it necessary to state that it categorically opposes such views.

"The Soviet delegation believes that the General Assembly should start and continue its work in accordance with normal procedure and that all important matters on its agenda should be deliberated in the usual manner."

U.S. diplomats were surprised and dismayed by the tough Soviet talk. They had expected Gromyko to go along with mounting pressure at the United Nations to put off a showdown.

Will the Russians stick to their hard line right to the point where they lose their vote in the General Assembly, or are they bargaining for a last-minute compromise?

"We'll wait and see," Rusk said as he began a private lunch with the Russian Foreign Minister at Rusk's hotel suite.

At the same time, U.S. strategists were counting noses for a possible vote today in the wake of the Russian snub of a bid by U.N. Secretary General U. Thant to stage off a show-down pending further financial talks.

The Americans, on preliminary information figured that a majority of the 112 members in the world organization would vote to uphold the charter's Article 19, saying members more than two years behind in their assessments shall have no vote in the General Assembly.

The Russians now have fallen more than two years delinquent and owe in the neighborhood of $52 million for peacekeeping operations in The Congo and the Middle East.

Baker Case To Continue In Hearings

WASHINGTON (P)—A new round in the Bobby Baker probe starts here today, this time to explore in public hearings allegations of a hidden payoff to the 1960 Kennedy-Johnson national campaign fund.

The Senate Rules Committee is reopening the politically explosive investigation to look into charges linking the names of Baker, a former top Senate aide, and democratic fund-raiser Matthew McCloskey with the purported payoff deal. McCloskey, a former ambassador to Ireland has denied knowledge of any payoff.

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., forced the reopening of the hearings with a Senate speech last Sept. 1 alleging that McCloskey, a Philadelphia contractor and ten-year Democratic party fundraiser, had made a $35,000 overpayment to insurance agent Don B. Reynolds who wrote the performance bond on McCloskey's contract to build the Washington, D.C., stadium.

Doctoral Writing Class No Longer Experiment

At least 80 per cent of the doctoral candidates enrolled in a non-credit expository writing course have improved important aspects of their writing, Herman Struck, assistant professor of English, announced today.

Enrollment in the course this year is expected to be 50 or more doctoral students. During its experimental stages last year 41 candidates, representing 19 departments and all nine colleges in upper school, took the course.

"The success of the course has already taken it out of the experimental class," Struck said. It is one of the projects developed under the auspices of the Educational Development Program.

Improvement has been demonstrated by at least 80 per cent of the enrollees in such areas as verbs, sentence variety and coherence. Struck said one student reduced use of passive voice verbs from over 50 per cent to 30 per cent.

Struck cites two major reasons for the success of the course: --the candidates' readiness in taking suggestions and their willingness to work.

--the close attention given each candidate's writing.

Two doctoral students enrolled in the course last spring term, Joseph Uhl and G.C. Rossmiller in the Department of Agricultural Economics, cooperated on a paper urging that the federal government adopt an integrated urban-rural tension program. The paper was presented at the annual meeting of the American Farm Economic Association and is being published in the December Journal of Farm Economics.

Each student submits a 3,000 to 5,000 word sample which is evaluated for general clarity, organization and development or illustration of ideas.

Struck has designed a three-page evaluation of variety and coherence in sentence openings, range of verbs and proportion of clauses.

A five-to-ten-page report of the individual's writing is given to the candidate and his advisor. He submits a second sample completed after conference and group sessions, and the process is repeated on a smaller scale.

Struck's idea for the course originated in work he did for three summers with managerial and engineering personnel at U.S. Steel to improve their writing habits.

Stop Signs Go In Bryan Purge

Bryan hall residents who were guilty of highway robbery now appear to be innocent.

Those students who had decorated their rooms with borrowed highway signs were asked last week by Head Resident Eric Kafka to turn in all their signs before the end of the semester or expect to be questioned by the campus police.

Not too many signs were turned in to Kafka, but most of the room decorations drifted off with the homeward-bound students.

Taylor, LBJ Talk On Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (P)—Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor held a final round of preliminary talks Monday before reporting directly to President Johnson at the White House today on the tangled South Viet Nam situation.

There is evidence of some disagreement within both the State and Defense Departments on the best means to safeguard the independence of beleaguered South Viet Nam and meet the Communist guerrilla threat.

This divergence of views is more between individual officials in the U.S. government than between the State and Defense Departments and the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Official spokesmen at State and Defense were under strict injunction not to speculate or forecast the outcome of the President's meeting with Taylor.

The meeting is deemed of sufficient importance to call back

Secretary of State Dean Rusk from today's opening session of the U.N. General Assembly's autumn meeting. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara also is due to attend, together with other high State and Defense officials.

At a news conference Saturday, Johnson displayed some irritation with speculation on the next course the United States might take to arrest the deterioration

Scientists Say Mariner Correctable

PASADENA, Calif. (P)—Guided by a giant, once-worshipped star, the Mariner 4 spacecraft streaked toward Mars Monday with cameras designed to send back the best pictures yet of that mysterious planet.

As the windmill-like vehicle neared the half-million mile mark on its 127-million-mile flight, scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory began pondering the best time to order a change in course they hope will curve Mariner 4 within 8,600 miles of Mars next July.

When launched Saturday at Cape Kennedy, Fla., the camera-toting spacecraft went into a trajectory that would miss Mars by 200,000 miles. Jet Lab scientists, who built Mariner 4 and are controlling its flight by radio, say they can correct any error up to one million miles.

They hope to make the mid-course correction sometime this week by triggering a small rocket on board the 575-pound craft which will drive it closer to Mars. Still to be decided are the precise time and duration of the direction-changing rocket's burn.

At noon Monday Mariner 4 was 425,685 miles from earth, traveling 7,315 miles an hour, a speed that will slowly lessen as it coasts through space toward a rendezvous that could help explain such ancient mysteries as Mars' "canals" and solve the question of whether life can exist on the desert-dry planet.

As Mariners for centuries have used the North Star as a guidepost, Mariner 4 is using the giant star Canopus, second brightest star in the heavens and brightest in the southern sky.

Ancient peoples in Asia and Africa worshipped Canopus for its blue-diamond brilliance. Egyptian priests 8,000 years ago thought it was the herald of the sun and built their temples so they could watch its blazing path across the southern sky.

in the battle against the Red Viet Cong.

The President made clear also that he plans no dramatic announcement after his meeting with Taylor.

Some pressure for strong action, including limited bombing of Red supply routes in Laos, has come from Viet Nam, and from within the Pentagon.

Advocates of extending the war contend the President has the power to do this under a Congressional resolution on Southeast Asia enacted after the Tonkin Gulf incident last June. They argue also that Johnson's landslide victory in the Nov. 3 election indicates the Public will support him in stronger action in Southeast Asia.

Rusk repeatedly has warned that Communist China is headed for trouble if it does not learn to leave its neighbors alone. And he has condemned Chinese Communist encouragement of North Viet Nam in providing direction and supplies to the Communist Viet Cong. But the State Department traditionally seeks to avert any head-on confrontation, if it is possible to do so.

Advocates of the go-slow policy feel there still is much room for improvement in the U.S.-backed pacification program to control and defeat the Viet Cong.

Improved weapons and tactics could be introduced into South Viet Nam, it is felt. The economic and psychological programs needed to win the support of the population are under constant review.

The Taylor-Johnson meeting probably will include a discussion of military and economic expenditures in South Viet Nam.

Prison System Study Scheduled For Winter

Gus Harrison, director of the Michigan Department of Corrections, will teach a special course at MSU on prison systems. The class will be conducted during the Winter Term in the Department of Police Administration.

It will meet in the late afternoon and will not interfere with Harrison's responsibilities in the correction department. Harrison, who holds a master's degree from MSU, said he will invite George A. Kropp, warden of Jackson prison, and Richard Handlon, warden at Ionia, to speak to the students. The class will examine the Michigan prison system, make some observations on other prison systems, and also look at trends in prison management.

Denison Returns From Conference

Assistant to the President James H. Denison returns tonight from Topeka, Kan., where he has been attending the mid-America district meeting of the American Collegiate Public Relations Association.

Recently elected president of the Association, Denison visits six of the nine regional districts which comprise the organization. Michigan is in the Great Lakes district which will meet in January.

Olive Not Martini

LONDON (P)—Actress Tallulah Bankhead gave this explanation Monday as to why she calls everybody "dahling."

"Because all my life I've been terrible at remembering people's names. I once introduced a friend of mine as Martini. Her name was actually Olive."

Political Turn Disappointing To Buddhists

SAIGON, Viet Nam (P)—Disillusionment with the leadership of their faith appears to be growing among many devout Buddhists. "Vietnamese Buddhism is falling into the hands of self-interested politicians and the Viet Cong itself," one Buddhist said Monday. "Last year when we Buddhists rose up against Ngo Dinh Diem we were united and willing to give our lives. Now I am ashamed to be associated with what is going on."

The speaker was among hundreds of Buddhist faithful arrested in demonstrations against Diem. A number of monks shun the Buddhist campaign now seeking to overthrow the Tran Van Huong government.

In recent weeks correspondents have found that many of the monks who were prominent in the 1963 turmoil are missing from the current campaign.

Among them is Thich Duc Nghiep, a Saung monk who served as spokesman for the Buddhists last year.

"I am strongly against all demonstrations in Saigon now. Whatever their reason is they can only sap the central government and only a strong government can make Viet Nam survive."

"I have advocated the organization of mobile teams of Buddhist monks to 'tour' the countryside and speak out against the Viet Cong. But this has not been done. We Buddhist refugees from North Viet Nam know what communism does to religion."

Hypocritical Criticism

Russia's enraged outcry at the successful U.S. attempt to rescue several hundred civilian hostages from massacre by Congolese rebels is thoroughly hypocritical.

Hundreds of civilians from Western countries, including women and children, were held as hostages in Stanleyville by the pro-Communist rebels opposing the government of Moïse Tshombe. Thirty of the hostages were Americans.

The U.S. was faced with an agonizing political dilemma: whether to send military aid to Belgian and white mercenary troops who were approaching Stanleyville and risk the charge of imperialism, or whether to ignore the plight of the hostages and stand by as they were massacred.

The U.S. rightly took the latter course, which was not dictated by political expediency.

Even as Belgian troops approached Stanleyville, hundreds of hostages were herded into Lumumba Square. The rebels opened fire on the defenseless civilians in the square and in hotel rooms. The majority of hostages were saved by the timely arrival of troops.

Russia, and most Communist countries, have taken the position that the U.S. aid constituted unwarranted interference in the internal affairs of the Congo.

Strange talk from the country which sent its tanks to crush the Hungarian revolt in 1956!

The U.S. move was dictated by humanitarian motives rather than consideration for any political advantage. Congo Premier Tshombe gave full permission for the rescue mission.

Moreover, U.S. aid was withdrawn as soon as the hostages were freed, to avoid any impression that America might be attempting to interfere in the internal affairs of the Congo.

This nation would have been guilty of an offense against humanity if it had stood by while innocent men, women and children were murdered because they were unwitting pawns in a political struggle.

Doctor Answers Critics Of Lecture On Rhythm

Editor's Note: This article was written by Dr. J. A. Caruso.

This article is written in response to a letter by Mr. Carl A. Baumgardner (Graduate Student) appearing in the State News, Nov. 11, 1964, referring to a dissertation I gave at St. John's University Center, he stated the "facts presented were not very scientific," giving as his source of reference that great principle of scientific knowledge, "Consumers Report."

It is certainly interesting to observe a search for truth in the pages that one would expect to find in a University newspaper. But sometimes when we look for truth we find scandalous inaccuracies. When these inaccuracies are used in a critical analysis of a scientific dissertation, the critical analysis itself is inaccurate and libelous either to the strongest condemnation or subjecting it to an apathetic rejection unworthy of further comment. I tend to classify it in the latter category.

However, because of possible scandalous implications regarding the program at St. John's student center, I am presenting references which will cover any aspect of the talk given at the center. I am afraid we cannot categorize "Consumers Reports" as a scientific reference, so as you will see we will have to rely mostly on University publications for the scientific facts.

The intelligence is dependent upon the sources for the reception of information. Certainly the intelligence cannot lucidly interpret and analyze an inaccurate reception. The first inaccuracy is one of vision. The topic of the lecture given at St. John's and advertised widely (in fact the sign is still up in the vestibule of the Church) was not quoted correctly by Baumgardner. It was "Scientific Facts and the Pill," but was "Scientific Rhythm and the Steroid Pill." This is important because the lecture which was clearly divided, the first part on scientific rhythm and dissertation, was given in a separate context on the steroid pill. The second inaccuracy was auditory. Certainly stating that "I understand these same inaccurate views are presented as 'scientific facts' in the Pre-Cana Conferences given by the same organization to engaged couples," obviously implies a second hand-information and if the gentleman in interested in facts I suggest he obtain his information first hand.

As we all know, the old concept of rhythm has been only fair as a birth control measure. The purpose of the lecture titled "scientific rhythm" was to acquaint young couples with a scientific method of determining ovulation; namely, the Basal Body Temperature Chart and its new application as a rhythm device. All the facts presented may be found in the following references.

1. Hartman: Science and the Safe Period, 1962, Williams and Wilkins. Doctor Hartman is a Ph.D., professor of zoology and physiology at the University of Illinois.

2. Marshall: The Infertile Period, Helicon Press, 1963.

3. Marshall: Transactions of the International Symposium on Rhythm, Oct. 20, 1964, in press.

The latter part of the lecture had to do with the steroid pill. Again, Consumers Report is an excellent source for refrigerator or camera but for scientific data relating to human beings we look to the universities of medicine for truth and facts. In justice to Consumers Report, Aug. 1964, I feel that this is an excellent appraisal, in lay terms of these controversial issues; further I find nothing contrary to good factual reporting in this article. From a physician, scientist standpoint, where the responsibility of prescribing these drugs lies, I only can quote the Consumers Report itself regarding the premature FDA approval of the steroid pill for four years.

"There has been some dissent from this conclusion by physicians, some of them prominent and respected researchers who feel that the FDA report did not take the uncertainties about the long range safety seriously enough," further in summary, "Even where there is no specific contraindication to the pill; however, Consumer's medical consultants still feel that a couple who have successfully employed "(a number of other methods of birth control listed)" may well think twice before switching to the pill."

I can only summarize my dissertation on the steroid pill, by stating that it is a terrific boon to our armermentarium of drugs and tremendous value in the treatment of disease. Whether or not it is justified for a normal person to take it for an extended period for purposes of contraception is not known at the present state of our medical knowledge. The short-range effects we know are safe.

I can only concur as I did in my lecture by quoting Dr. David Danforth, Ph.D. and M.D., Northwestern University, in his presidential address to our Society of Fertility and Sterility on May 17, 1964.

"The recent Thalidomide tragedy may be a case in point, since it demonstrated so neatly that a drug may have effects in addition to those that were originally intended. It is curious that our horror over this disaster has given way to a certain indifference and that we continue to prescribe drugs of enormous potency without exact knowledge of their possible secondary effects.

"If this address could be said to contain a message, it must take the form of a plea for caution in the use of new and wonderfully potent preparations that have such apparently desirable effects on the reproductive apparatus. Penetrating inquiry must be made into their exact effects on all systems, and answers provided to the question whether all the effects are reversible, and if so, how promptly.

"But our full acceptance of drugs that are to be prescribed for perfectly normal people from the view to setting up a derangement of function however small, must be held in abeyance until we have full knowledge of their entire action."

Letters To The Editor

Recalls Death Of Former Student

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter because of the death of my husband. He was a student at Michigan State for two years and knew many people. The information that I am going to give you I would like very much for you to pass on in your newspaper so that the people who knew him will know of his death. Due to the fact that I was only able to get one copy of the Keweenaw Star-Courier, I am typewriting verbatim what appeared in their article.

A coroner's jury impaneled by Henry County Coroner Ralph N. Cole, Kewanee, at the Creamer Funeral Home Monday night to inquire into the death of Gary L. James, 23, of 536 E. 11th St., Lockport, Illinois, will reconvene on Wednesday at 7 p.m. for an inquest.

Mr. James was fatally injured, apparently late Sunday afternoon, (October 25, 1964) in a motorcycle crash on R. 34 at the railroad viaduct one-half mile east of the Kewanee city limits.

His body, with the motorcycle atop it, was not discovered until about 2:30 p.m. Monday (Oct. 26) when members of a Burlington Railroad switching crew observed it in a six-foot deep cement drainage trough. It was not visible from the highway.

Coroner Cole said Mr. James, traveling east on the highway, apparently struck loose gravel, causing him to lose control of the motorcycle and plunge off the road.

Death was believed to have been instantaneous from a frontal skull fracture. He also suffered other fractures and burns from the cycle's escaping gasoline although there was no evidence of fire.

Members of Mr. James' family informed authorities that the young man and his father, Lester Ray James, the latter a maintenance man in Kelvin Grove School, Lockport, left Friday for Gladstone, near Burlington, Iowa, to hunt squirrels. The father traveled in his own automobile and the son on the motorcycle.

They left Gladstone early Sunday afternoon to return home, but were not traveling together. The family presumes that young James went through Kewanee about 4:30 p.m. Sunday.

When the father returned home early Sunday evening, but the son did not, the family became alarmed. At 2:00 a.m. Monday, an all points bulletin was issued on young James by the state police.

Mr. James was a shipping clerk for Texaco, Inc., at Lockport. Surviving are his parents, his wife, Marilyn, whom he married about a year ago, a two-month-old son, and a brother, Lee, all of Lockport. Funeral services will be held at the Goodale Funeral Home, 912 Hamilton St., Lockport, Thursday morning. Interment will be in a cemetery at Oquawka.

Gary was buried at the Oquawka cemetery in Oquawka, Ill., on Thursday, Oct. 29. If you would please print this information, I know that Gary would be indeed proud to know you did. Please send me a copy of this article, also. Thank you so very much.

Mrs. Gary L. James

It Says Here

To the Editor:

In his religion column last Friday, George Reynolds recommended the reading of the Bible "in order to establish faith." I would like to point out that the Bible should also be read as a supplement to a student's textbooks.

A complete list of references would be too long, but this should do for a start:

When studying the solar system in natural sciences: Genesis 1:16 and Mark 13:24 show that the moon is a light, not just a reflector of the sun's light.

Revelation 7:1 tells us that the earth is square, or at least that it has four corners. Matthew 4:8 shows that the earth is also flat, since there is a mountain from which a person can view the entire world.

When studying specific gravity in physics: II Kings 6:5-6 proves that iron is lighter than water.

When studying evolution in biology: Genesis 2:7 shows that man didn't evolve in nature. He came about one day when God was making mud pies.

When studying mental disorders in psychology: Mark 5:13, and Luke 11:14 show us that "neurosis" and "psychosis" are only names that psychologists invent because they don't know the real problems. Of course, the real cause of mental disorders is evil spirits.

I hope this partial list will help Mr. Reynolds to do well on a few tests. As for me, the fact that I have read the Bible thoroughly is one of the biggest reasons that I am not a Christian.

DEATH IN NOVEMBER

Dallas lay waiting; Expecting momentarily the arrival. Thrilling to a moment in History.

"Insane? Perhaps, we'll never know for sure. Not even the rifle is proof enough but we can guess."

Nodding, smiling, waving. Onward the cars, not knowing Vengeance waited in a sixth floor window. Edging closer to infamy. Murder. Beginning the tragedy of a nation at war with itself, which Ending never, fills us always with Regret and shame.

Point Of View Social Paranoia Political Quality

By Bob Bearman

"Because of its pro-integration stand, the National Council of Churches has been branded 'Communist dominated' by many Southern whites. Do you feel there is any substance to this charge?" "Yes, from what I have read I believe it is thoroughly infiltrated... I have many documents so saying. These documents have been published the length and breadth of the country. I haven't heard that anybody dared bring a libel suit, so I believe the documents."

This comment, made by Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace during a recent interview, exemplifies a state of mind that is all too common among the American people--a state of mind which may be termed paranoia.

Too many of the American people believe that all of the social problems in this country can be traced back to the evils of communism or some other element that is both feared and not understood. The basis of this situation is not unique. During the Middle Ages, the Jews were considered the cause of the problems, later on it was the Catholic orders, and today it is communism.

The John Birch Society, the Christian Anti-Communist Crusade and the Minutemen are all examples of organizations that have arisen in order to eliminate Communist danger. However, in order to combat the internal threat they feel the Communists pose to the country, the members and sympathizers of these organizations advocate the same methods and aims of the Communists.

The manual for action of the John Birch Society, "The Blue Book," urges the use of such tactics as front organizations and the harassment of speakers at meetings--both Communist techniques. And the Minutemen have guns hidden so they will be able to fight the Communist invaders.

The aims of the extreme right-wing organizations are also similar to those of the Communists. The John Birch Society says that the United States should stop all foreign aid and that the United States should adopt an isolationist foreign policy. These are the very decisions the Soviet Union is trying to force us to make.

By the employment of such methods, these paranoid people, and I mean paranoid in the social sense and not in the medical sense, will destroy the very freedoms they profess to cherish. Their aim is to transfer power from its established holders to themselves.

That these people believe unsubstantiated opinions was shown when Robert Welch made the statement in "The Politician" that "(President) Eisenhower is a dedicated agent of the Communist conspiracy... and his brother (Milton) is probably his superior within the Communist party."

The paranoid mind thus takes an isolated incident or decision and makes sweeping generalizations from it. Emotions, not knowledge, are the main rationale for reaction.

Refutes Critics Of Caruso Lecture

To the Editor:

As one of the students who attended the lecture by the gynecologist, Dr. Caruso, on "the effects of the steroid pill," I had to ask myself if I had heard the same speaker that Mr. Baumgardner recently wrote about.

As I recall, the speaker stuck to the medical aspects of the use of the pill and the essence of his conclusion was that "we do not know what effect the long term use of the pills will have on the glandular function of the person."

He also stated that the pills were put on the market without any long term, controlled studies being done on humans first.

The August, 1964, issue of Consumers Report similarly stated that the effects of long term use of the pill are unknown. The article stated, as did Dr. Caruso, that blood clotting has been associated with the use of the pill but the experimental evidence on this point is still inconclusive.

Dr. Caruso also stated that the use of the pill has been associated with the development of breast tumors but that there is yet no conclusive evidence that the pill is a direct or indirect cause. Consumers Report went one step further and stated "... that in animals under experimental conditions the contraceptive drugs hasten the growth of some existing cancers..."

As one who is also concerned about the biological effects of many drugs obviously being "pushed" by the pharmaceutical companies, I suggest that Mr. Baumgardner write us another letter. If vague accusations are all that can be supplied, and the two "facts" which he says he was misled on cannot be supplied, then I suggest that he do the little outside research he has so wisely asked others to do.

Army Stands Off Viet Cong, Buffalo

SAIGON, Viet Nam—Government forces ripped the Communist Viet Cong around Saigon and for to the north in actions reported Monday. In fighting near the capital, government forces stood off a charge by seven wild buffalo in addition to the Viet Cong.

A surprise helicopter-borne swoop 365 miles north of Saigon netted 34 guerrillas killed and 30 suspects captured. Only 18 miles from Saigon, the South Vietnamese repelled waves of yelling Viet Cong, killing 47.

Four Americans were reported wounded in this action, three of them returning to duty after treatment. A fifth American was wounded by small arms fire while on convoy duty northeast of Saigon.

Belgium Denies U.S. Pressure On Congo

BRUSSELS, Belgium—The government denied Monday night that its Congo rescue mission was cut short because of U.S. reluctance to become further embroiled.

A spokesman for the foreign ministry said in reply to questions at a news conference that there was positively no U.S. pressure to call off the operation.

At the same time, the office of Prime Minister Theo Lefevre issued a statement contradicting a Belgian newspaper story which quoted Lefevre as stating that the United States did not want to proceed with the mission.

LBJ 'Never Heard Of' Plan To Oust Hoover

WASHINGTON—The White House said Monday that President Johnson "never heard of" a reported plan to replace J. Edgar Hoover as director of the FBI.

Presidential Press Secretary George Reedy made this comment in denying a Newsweek magazine article describing Johnson as a "disenchanted fan" of Hoover's "who had decided by last week that he must find a new chief of the FBI."

Reedy told newsmen: "The President never heard of such a plan and never heard of such an idea."

Spokesman Said There Would Be No Comment From The FBI

A spokesman said there would be no comment from the FBI. Reedy told newsmen: "The President never heard of such a plan and never heard of such an idea."

President Urges Stand Against Medicare

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—The president of the American Medical Association urged doctors Monday to stand firm against medicare—even in the face of new strength in Congress for the measure.

"The hurricane that is about to hit us will be more furious than any we have weathered in the past," said Dr. Donovan F. Ward. Pointing to what he called "certain grim realities in the political arena," Ward said:

"The possibility that a federal health care program financed from increased social security taxes will be rejected is considerably less than it was a few weeks ago."

Wirtz Meets To Settle Rail Wage Dispute

WASHINGTON—Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz met Monday with railroad union and management negotiators in an effort to settle the wage dispute that led to a strike threat last week.

The strike was postponed indefinitely at Wirtz's request and union spokesmen said no new date has been set. Wirtz met with both sides jointly for about two hours, then with management negotiators alone.

He said he would meet with representatives of the three shop craft unions involved Monday night.

Pope To Make Quick Stop In Lebanon

VATICAN CITY—Pope Paul VI's jetliner will make a 30-minute stopover in Beirut, Lebanon, en route to India Wednesday, the Vatican announced Monday.

Although about half the 1.5 million population of Lebanon is Christian, the decision to make the stop at Beirut was seen here as a step to soothe Arab resentment toward a Vatican Ecumenical Council pronouncement on Jews. The document held that Jews cannot be held responsible for the crucifixion of Christ.

The Vatican announcement said the pontiff will leave the plane at Beirut airport to be received by President Charles Helou of Lebanon and other officials. The Pope will not go into Beirut itself.

Three Brinks Robbers Ask For Parole

BOSTON—Three of the robber gang that snatched $1,219,000 from Brink's Inc. more than 14 years ago have petitioned for parole, and the man who prosecuted them understands why—there is more than a million dollars still floating around waiting for them.

Suffolk County Dist. Atty. Garrett H. Byrne smiled Monday when he discussed their bid for freedom. But he said he saw little likelihood of their getting commutation of sentences or parole, unless the loot is returned.

Byrne said only $65,000 of the money has been recovered.

Notre Dame Brennan Scholarships for law school cover full tuition plus $1,000 a year for three years. Interested students must graduate before September, 1965.

Congress has recently authorized significant changes in the loan program of the National Defense Education Act.

In addition to providing more money and removing institutional ceilings, Congress voted special consideration provisions for students with "superior academic background," and extended the "forgiveness" clause to teachers in private elementary and secondary schools and institutions of higher learning.

Previously the special provisions clause applied only to prospective elementary teachers and students in "science-math-engineering-foreign language" programs. The "forgiveness" clause was previously restricted to teachers in public elementary and secondary schools.

The yearly limit on loans to graduate and professional students was increased from $1,000 to $2,500 and part-time students carrying at least a "one-half academic workload" may now apply for loans.

Further information may be obtained from Henry Dykema, director of financial aids, 157 Student Services.

Frat Council To Sponsor Various Dinner Speeches

The Interfraternity Council, in conjunction with the Michigan State Placement Bureau, is sponsoring a series of after-dinner speeches at various fraternity houses.

The speeches will be given by representatives from industrial companies and governmental organizations throughout the country.

Jack Shingleton, director of the placement bureau, and Jim Tuman, IFC director of placement programs, announced the initiation of the series as of Wednesday.

"Basically it is an opportunity for all students contemplating graduation to view first-hand the possibilities for employment within the participating organizations," Tuman said.

All of the speeches will be aimed at placement possibilities, especially for seniors who are near graduation.

"There has been a tremendous amount of interest in the program, so far, and if it proves successful, we hope to expand it to an all-University program for the winter term," said Jon Weersing, executive vice president of IFC.

Wednesday, Jack Huele of IBM will speak at the Phi Gamma Delta house, at 6:15 p.m., to all interested fraternity members. The Phi Gamma Delta house is located at 334 E. Michigan Ave.

Tragedy To Open Tonight

The Performing Arts Company production of Ibsen's "Master Builder" opens at 8 tonight in Fairchild.

The company has already sold out for Friday and Saturday nights performances. The play will run Tuesday through Sunday.

Tickets for the other performances are still available 12:30 to 9 p.m. Tuesday through Friday at the Fairchild box office.

"The Master Builder" examines the consequences of the ambition of Halvard Solness, the "master builder" who attains success at the expense of the death of his sons.

Out of guilt Solness lets his artistry degenerate and begins concentrating his efforts on lesser accomplishments.

J. Michael Bloom, Lorain, Ohio, graduate student, portrays Solness. Mary Hardwick, Williamston graduate student, plays his wife, Aline.

Solness's close friend, Hilda

Wangel, is portrayed by Jan Paulich, Cleveland, Ohio, sophomore.

Robert Stern, East Lansing graduate student; Dick Fogell, Flint junior; Karen Grossman, Midland freshman; and C. David Colson, St. Clair Shores graduate student complete the cast.

Folklore Society Sponsors 'Big Sing'

The MSU Folklore Society is sponsoring the 2nd annual "Big Sing" Friday at 8 p.m. in the Union Ballroom.

Appearing at the Folklore Society's main event of the year are folk groups from all over central Michigan, including Flint and Ann Arbor.

Local groups to appear include Ed Henry, Bill Armistead, The Beaver Basin Two, Hap and Joel, Chuck Taylor, The Jeffersons and Jean McIntosh.

Fifty cents admission will be charged at the door and those interested are advised to come early.

THE CAVE, MAN--Tom "Hey Michigan" Stoekley, MSU graduate from Fort Wayne, Ind., learns first hand what poverty is as he chats with youngsters in La Cava (The Cave), one of the worst slums in Buenos Aires. Stoekley earned his nickname from his sweatshirt, a reminder of his college days.

Mexico Inaugurates Leader; Promises Closer U.S. Ties

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexico inaugurates its 58th president today, Gustavo Diaz Ordaz, a lean and wiry lawyer who won a mandate to rule Latin America's second largest nation for the next six years.

Diaz Ordaz, 53, was elected by a landslide last July as the candidate of the government-dominated Party of Revolutionary Institutions. He succeeds Adolfo Lopez Mateos, under whom he served as interior minister, Mexico's highest cabinet post.

A tough administrator with a famous grin that delights cartoonists Diaz Ordaz has pledged to work toward closer ties between Mexico and the United States.

"Bonds of friendship unite our great people," he said during a visit to President Johnson's Texas ranch in mid-November. "The border does not divide, but rather brings us together."

Diaz Ordaz takes over at a time of almost unprecedented prosperity but poverty still afflicts half of Mexico's 38 million residents. Some observers believe the Mexican peasant, with his annual per capita income of $100, offers a fertile field for the country's fragmented Communists.

To complicate the problem, Mexico stands to lose $40 million in annual income unless a bilateral agreement permitting Mexican farmhands of braceros to work in the United States is renewed. Because the agreement has nearly expired, Mexico faces a 200,000-man increase in its work force.

"Our attention will be dedicated to the needs of the weakest, the most destitute, among whom the farm workers are the most numerous," Diaz Ordaz has vowed.

Okinawan 'Sister University' Swaps Profs With MSU

Two professors from the University of Ryukyus at Naha, Okinawa, are now visiting professors in the College of Education.

They are Yuji Yonemori, who is teaching a graduate class in the philosophy of education, and Toshio Akamine, former dean of students at the University of Ryukyus, who is teaching, doing research and observing MSU administrative procedures.

The professors who arrived with their families Sept. will be visiting professors for two terms.

Yonemori and Akamine came here under the "sister university" program begun between MSU and the University of Ryukyus.

Contracted by the U.S. Department of Army on Okinawa the program was designed by the two universities to assist each other where desired and needed.

The University of Ryukyus began the program in 1951 and chose MSU as an advisory "sister" for the land-grant philosophy.

MSU presently has four professors working at the University at Ryukyus in connection with this program.

'Hey Michigan' Salute Brings Fond Memories

A cry of "Hey Michigan" will always bring back memories to Tom Stoekley, MSU graduate from Fort Wayne, Ind. An MSU sweatshirt caused the nickname and the callers were children living in the slums of Argentina.

This summer Stoekley interrupted his preparation for a career in astronomy to join a group called Catholics for Latin America, CELA, with headquarters in Yonkers, N.Y., is a lay organization of married and single adults who are helping the poor to help themselves.

These volunteers are establishing casitas (small centers) in Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Peru. They use whatever individual crafts and talents they possess to help rehabilitate the poor. Non-salaried, they are supported by statewide contributions of approximately $1 a month.

Tom played football and soccer with the children and gave them piggyback rides. He took care of their cuts and scrapes and showed them how to wash with soap and hot water. Many of the slum dwellers required a doctor's care and Tom took them for the needed help. But most of all, he helped bring hope and encouragement into the lives of people who knew nothing but despair.

Tom has now resumed his studies as a graduate student on scholarship at Cambridge University, England.

Thief Scared By Student

East Lansing police today credited an MSU student with thwarting the attempted burglary of a gas station.

The burglar was apparently frightened away when Danny R. Albrechtson, Richard Center, Wis., graduate student, awoke about 3:45 a.m. Monday and turned on lights at his house adjacent to Spartan Standard Service, 1100 E. Grand River Ave., Lt. Stephen Naert said.

Albrechtson, who lives at 121 River St., told police he saw a man running in the vicinity when he looked out his window.

Police were called to the scene at 7:45 a.m. when an attendant, Thomas Stillman, 4700 N. East St., Lansing, noticed a rear storage room door standing open upon arriving for work.

Neil Weaver, 100 W. Gier St., Lansing, operator of the station, told police he could find nothing missing.

Police said they found pry marks around the store room door. They said the burglar could have easily gained entrance to the station proper from the store room, but was probably scared off by Albrechtson's lights.

Graduate In Rumania Has English Classes

One of the handful of Americans teaching American literature in Rumania is Michigan State's Adrian Jaffe.

He has been busy instructing students at Bucharest University in the intricacies of William Faulkner and the scope of Walt Whitman's poetry and has been "communicating effectively," in the words of the New York Times, which recently devoted an article to Jaffe, in recognition of the work he has done as part of the exchange program.

One of two United States scholars lecturing at Bucharest University under the government exchange program, 48-year-old Jaffe is full of praise for his hosts and students.

"The Ministry of Education has leaned over backward to make things comfortable for us," he said. This included a warm welcome extended to Jaffe, his wife and two children by local officials and neighbors alike, and a new apartment, complete with washing machine, TV, radio and kitchen equipment furnished by the government.

Jaffe finds much encouragement from the students, too. Despite a lack of text material, the professor has found a "lively interest in American literature." An increase in this interest has been manifested in the fact that this year, for the first time, the number of beginning students in English exceeds the number of those learning French or Russian.

Besides the intelligence and capabilities of his students, Jaffe has even had complete freedom in choosing texts and lecturing in Bucharest. This appears to be part of the new look in Rumania, whose Communist government has chosen an independent course within the Soviet Bloc.

The United States government, it is reported, would like to see the exchange program expanded. Jaffe agrees with this view and adds that he believes many countries would profit from such a program.

Rooms, Research, Studies Included In 'K' Curriculum

By CARMY BALLATO
State News Staff Writer

The Kellogg Center for Continuing Education has grown out of the philosophy that a state university should serve all the people of the state, and it puts that philosophy to work.

Every year more than 60,000 persons from all parts of Michigan come to Kellogg Center for nearly 400 conferences and educational meetings.

It was created as a center for adult education conferences, and a headquarters for the Continuing Education Services. It serves those people not regularly enrolled at MSU.

A variety of facilities are available at Kellogg center, including 193 guest rooms, an auditorium, 20 conference rooms, a library, two banquet rooms, six dining rooms and a cafeteria.

The MSU center is the first of five Kellogg Centers in the U.S. Others are located at the University of Nebraska, the University of Oklahoma, and the University of Chicago.

Other centers in the process of construction are at the University of Notre Dame, and the University of Oxford, Oxford, England.

Through the financial assistance of the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, hotel associations and MSU, the center here was completed in 1951.

There were three main reasons why Kellogg Center was built:

1. To provide a resident conference facility for adults.
2. To provide a laboratory for hotel and restaurant management students.
3. To provide a guest house for visitors to the campus.

The program of the Continuing Education Services, under the direction of Armand L. Hunter, includes credit and non-credit courses, conferences, cultural offerings and special education service projects.

The Continuing Education Services has other major divisions, in addition to University Conferences.

1. University Extension Program -- offering annually more than 600 credit and non-credit courses reaching nearly every community in Michigan. Its director is Floyd Parker.
2. The Institute for Community Development--director is Blaine Gibson, providing the resources of MSU for the solution of the problems of Michigan communities.
3. University Public Services--including the MSU Highway Traffic Safety Center which is in process of reactivation, doing research to find out why accidents happen and their prevention.

Christmas Jobs Available

A limited number of jobs are still available through the Christmas job program sponsored by the Student Employment Office.

Tom Rand, director, said he has interviewed more than 175 students for approximately 15 jobs in the greater Lansing area.

After being interviewed, students are referred to employers according to experience, interest and location.

"One advantage of working through the Student Employment Office is that it is a central location to start looking for a job," Rand said.

He also gives referral slips to students qualified for employment.

This shows an employer that a student has already been interviewed and briefed on the job requirements.

Insurance Institute Notes Death Rise

Life insurance death payments confirm that 1964 may turn out to be the most tragic year in history on the nation's streets and highways.

The Institute of Life Insurance paid $99 million in death benefits in the first half of the year. This was an increase of 15 per cent over last year. If the upward trend continues, payments may well exceed $210 million.

There were 21,280 people killed on the nation's highways for the first six months of 1964, compared with 19,040 in 1963.

Potato To Be 'Mash Made'

The average housewife may never have to mash another potato. Consumer demand for "built in maid services" will increase the processing trend in the potato industry, said Quentin Ostrander, district marketing agent for the Cooperative Extension Service at Bay City.

There are more than 300,000 acres of potato cropland in the state which have been taken out of potato production in the past 30 years. This land may once again find itself planted to potatoes, particularly varieties adapted for processing.

A housewife can have a box of dehydrated potato flakes out of the box and on the table in mashed potato form within five minutes, and her husband won't be able to tell that they came from a box, Ostrander said.

Development of a new potato processing plant at Greenville in Montcalm county has greatly stimulated interest in potatoes, said Leyton Nelson, MSU crop science specialist, but large amounts of potatoes will be required for this new processing plant.

"There has never been a time in recent years when the Michigan potato industry has been in as healthy a condition as it is this year," Nelson said.

Nature was kind to Michigan potato growers this year with a larger crop than in 1963, he said.

About 39 per cent of the Michigan-grown potato crop was processed into a wide variety of potato products in 1963. Yet 50 to 70 per cent of the total U.S. potato crop will probably be available in processed form by 1970.

U. Of Detroit Drops Football

DETROIT (UPI)—The University of Detroit announced Monday it is dropping varsity football, a sport the school has engaged in since 1896.

Mounting financial losses were blamed for the decision to drop the sport. In the years since football first was put on the program at the U of D, the Titans won 305 games, lost 200 and tied 25. This season's team had a poor 3-7 mark and there had been talk that Coach John Idzik would lose his job. Idzik's teams have won six, lost 21 and tied one in the three years he has been coaching.

Idzik's $11,000-a-year contract runs through next September. The University said the 1965 schedule had been canceled.

The football team lost more than $65,000 the past season. Net game revenue per season decreased from $125,108 in 1961 to only $91,500 for 1964. At the same time, average game attendance at home dropped from a peak of 15,000 in 1961 to 11,000 in 1964.

State Soccer Goalie Nursing Ankle Injury

By RICK PIANIN State News Sports Writer

Problems and tension mount as MSU's soccer team prepares for its most important journey

Goalie Charlie Dedich, who turned in a 4-0 shutout performance last Saturday, was confined to a hospital bed Monday nursing an ankle injury.

To make matters worse for Coach Gene Kenney, Sydney Alozie, inside left might miss the trip because of academic difficulties.

"Sydney has been a sparkplug in the forward line all season long", remarked Coach Kenney, obviously upset about his latest crisis. "We need him in the lineup Thursday, and we'll do everything possible to get him there."

State will battle Army Thursday morning in a semi-final match. Should the boaters win, they would play the winner of the St. Louis-Navy game Saturday for the championship.

Karl Thiele, center forward, who lead the charge against East Stroudsburg with two goals, earned himself a starting assignment.

"Karl came through when we needed him, and he's got to have a starting position", explained Coach Kenney. "He has been centering and shooting the ball much better in the past few games."

The final game will be carried on nation-wide television, on "Wide World of Sports." The team will hold another practice Tuesday and they fly to Providence, R.I. early Wednesday afternoon.

Pros Draft Rush, Gordon, Bobich

By STEVE ELLIOT State News Sports Writer

Despite the fact that the football season has ended, there continues to be a flourish of activity along the pigskin front.

Four members of the 1964 team were selected over the week-end by the National and American Football Leagues in their annual player drafts.

Star halfback Dick Gordon, who finished second in the conference rushing race this year with a net of 571 yards in league play, was a seventh-round pick of the Chicago Bears.

Lou Bobich, leading punter in the Big Ten, was drafted in the nineteenth round by the Bears, and was also picked by the Kansas City Chiefs of the American League.

Herman Johnson, one of three senior defensive backs was a future draft-pick last year by the New York Jets of the AFL, and also by Los Angeles of the senior circuit.

Monday's announcement that the University of Detroit was dropping football squelched rumors that Spartan backfield Coach Dan Boisture would take over the reins as head coach there next year.

Boisture said that he had never been contacted by anybody and will be back for sure next year.

AT LEAST 'TIL WINTER TERM

No Advance Pick-Up For Basketball

By JERRY MORTON State News Sports Writer

Students can use their ID cards to see the Spartan basketball team in action this month but the situation may be different during the Winter Term.

Presentation of a valid ID card will admit students to Thursday's Northern Michigan game and the Drake game Dec. 12.

Tickets for Saturday's MSU-Western Michigan game at Kalamazoo will be on sale today only at Jenison Field House at $2 apiece.

Ticket manager Bill Beardsley indicated Monday, however, that the home policy may be changed for conference games beginning in January. Last year the ID admission policy was in effect for all but two games.

Students were forced to present their ID cards in exchange for general admission tickets for the Michigan and Ohio State games when near-capacity crowds were anticipated.

The Michigan game drew 12,239 fans, the largest crowd to see a Spartan game at Jenison Field House during the 1963-64 season.

The same policy could go into effect for all Big Ten home games.

Beardsley said that about 9,000 tickets, or about 75 per cent of the Field House seating capacity, are allotted for students at every game.

Students occupy all general-admission seats at the games with $2 reserved seats available to the public.

The ticket problem becomes more complicated every year as the student enrollment increases. Jenison Field House was first used for basketball in 1939 when few people were thinking that student enrollment would reach 31,000 in the next 25 years.

Jenison ranks sixth in seating capacity in the Big Ten with an official listing of 12,500.

Minnesota's Williams Arena ranks first in the conference in seating with a seating capacity of 18,500.

Michigan's Yost Field House with seating of 8,500 rates as the smallest in the league.

The Spartans will play 14 Big Ten games this season in addition to six non-conference games and an appearance in the Los Angeles Classic.

Besides the two home games during the remainder of fall term, the Green and White will meet Loyola of New Orleans at Jenison Dec. 22.

The league schedule consists of seven home games and seven games on the road.

Last year the Spartans drew an average of 8,707 fans for home games and averaged 7,843 on the road.

Attendance went over the 10,000 mark for the Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan games with a crowd of 14,141 watching the Spartans play Illinois at Champaign.

California, There They Go!

Gym Team Attracts Duo From Coast

By JOE MITCH State News Sports Writer

That California sun has cast a radiant gleam in the eyes of MSU's gymnastics coach, George Szygula, while drawing a dull glare from State's opponents.

Once again, the California area has provided the Green and White with two of its brightest freshman prospects in recent years.

Los Angeles County, according to Szygula, is probably the most gymnastic area in the country. Recent U.S. Olympic teams have drawn heavily upon the region, tapping six of the seven Americans who dominated the 1956, '60 and '64 squads.

The West Coast "migration" to the Midwest began in 1955, when Stan Tarisch entered Michigan State and went on to win three Big Ten and two national championships.

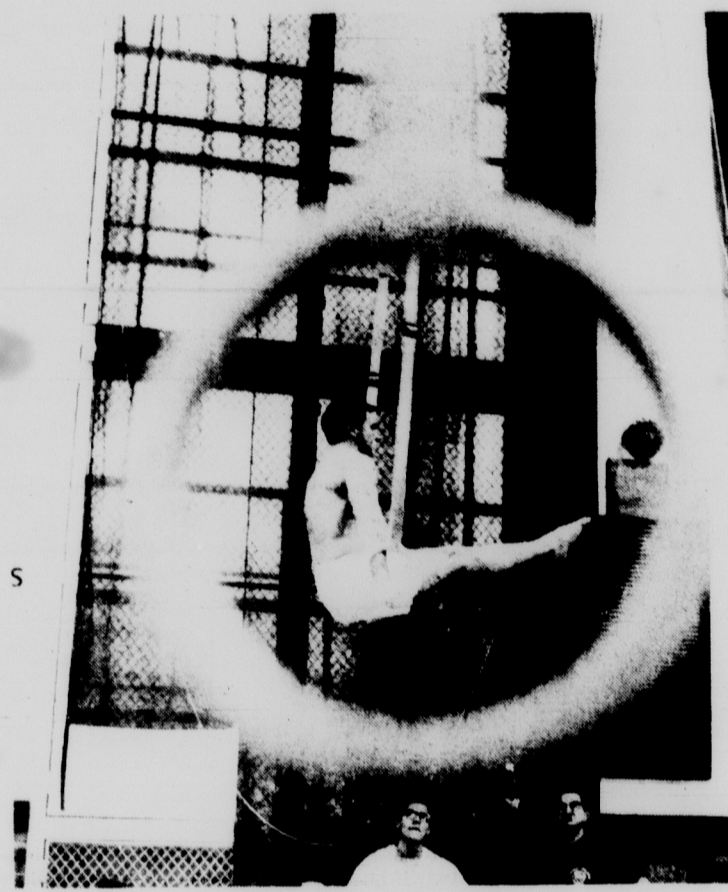

Dale Cooper, a wizard on the still rings, followed in Tarisch's footsteps and, according to Szygula, was the best still ring performer in the nation last year. Winning the Big Ten title three times and the NCAA championship twice, Cooper's only defeat came in dual competition.

This year, through the scouting efforts of Tarisch and the recruits achieved by Cooper, two of California's outstanding gymnasts have joined the Spartan ranks.

Dave Thor, considered one of the finest high school gymnasts in the country last year, is a promising all-around performer.

Szygula feels that he will be among the top men on next year's varsity.

Ed Gunney, although not as versatile in his talents as Thor, displays unique ability on the still rings, horizontal bar and horse vault. His style on the still rings, in Szygula's opinion, is reminiscent of Dale Cooper.

RINGSIDE SEAT--The world of Spartan gymnastics is seen through a still ring as the Spartans prepare for the rapidly-approaching season.

Coach George Szygula is currently directing workouts at Jenison Field House.

The Spartan coach feels that the addition of Thor and Gunney has added strength and depth to the freshman team.

"I would have to say," he commented, "that this is the finest freshman team ever assembled at Michigan State. In addition to Thor and Gunney, Pennsylvania's all-around state champ, Bill Diggins, is on the squad."

"I expect great things from this freshman group in the future," he went on. "They'll learn much

Just The Beginning In Sports

By BOB KAMINSKI State News Sports Writer

Although the color and excitement of football season is gone for another year, there is still plenty of action in store for Spartan fans.

In fact, the bulk of varsity sports are just getting under way. Winter term will find nearly 45 per cent of Spartan athletes waiting to see action during the 1964-65 season.

Coach Fran Dittrich's track team will be the largest of the winter squads, boasting 35 participants.

Second in size is the hockey squad, with 25 skaters under Amo Bessone's tutelage.

The swimming, gymnastics, fencing and wrestling teams will each field close to 20-man teams which will furnish plenty of winter excitement for MSU spectators.

The smallest squad on the winter roster will capture most of the attention.

That's Forddy Anderson's cagers, who open their season Thursday against Northern Michigan with a 15-man team.

Spring term brings the final phase of State athletics. April marks the start of baseball, tennis, golf and outdoor track.

UPI Lists 'S' 20th In Grid

NEW YORK (UPI)--A week of inactivity has proved somewhat of a blessing for Spartan gridmen as the name Michigan State has been once again listed in the weekly ratings by United Press International.

State was tapped for the 20th spot along with Mississippi.

Rosebowl-bound Michigan retained fourth place while Notre Dame, which lost to Southern California last Saturday, dropped from the top spot to third place.

Last year, MSU chalked up a 5-3-1 dual record, a fifth-place finish in the Big Ten, and a tie for eighth in the NCAA.

Alabama and Arkansas, two undefeated teams took the number one and two spots.
