

Miss MSU Choice Due Tonight

Miss MSU will be chosen tonight from among 10 finalists in the last contest of the competition, the talent judging.

The pageant, part of the Winter Carnival program, will begin at 8:15 tonight in Demonstration Hall.

Finalists are Annette Abrams, Ann Carruthers, Harriet Davidson, Sharon Fuller, Connie Gardulski, Anne Lawrenz, Joy McChonochie, Sherry Noland, Kathy Thompson and Carol Wagenvord.

The girls were selected from among 95 contestants by the men of Blue Key, national senior and junior men's honorary which traditionally sponsors the Miss MSU contest.

This is the first year that the Miss MSU contest has been chartered as an official Miss America preliminary. The winner will be sponsored by the All University Student Government (AUSG) at the Miss Michigan Contest.

Judy Smith, the present Miss MSU, will crown the winner tonight, and Bruce Osterink, Mr. MSU, will present her with a bouquet of roses.

A skating exhibition by Joey Heckert and Gary Clark will be featured entertainment.

A Miss Congeniality award will be given to one of the girls, elected by the other nine.

The program will be broadcast by local radio and television stations. The competition is open to the public and there will be no admission charge.

Fanatical Plot Discovered

NEW YORK 17--Three American Negroes and a Canadian woman, described as pro-Castro and pro-Chinese racial fanatics, were seized Tuesday in a weird plot to blow up three cherished tokens of the American heritage--the Statue of Liberty, the Washington Monument and the Liberty Bell.

Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy said the idea behind the fanatical scheme was "symbolic."

"We know they have made contact in other cities," the commissioner added. "We have no idea how many people might be involved."

In readiness for the adventure, which may have been timed with Washington's birthday in mind, were 20 sticks of dynamite, with detonating caps. These were seized in a well-laid police trap as they were being transferred from a Bronx parking lot to an automobile.

The plot was said to have been uncovered by a New York City Negro patrolman, Raymond Wood, who infiltrated a Negro extremist organization known as the Black Liberation Front.

Murphy said Wood's original contact with the group came at a United Nations party given by the Cuban delegation.

"Did they have anything to do with the U.N.?" the commissioner was asked. "I don't know," Murphy replied.

Promoting Wood to detective on the spot, Murphy told newsmen: "There was nothing lucky about this. An undercover man risked his life for months."

Wood was said to have become privy to the group's secrets and to have been actively entrusted with a role in the dynamite mission.

Murphy described the group as pro-Castro and aligned in militant ideology with the Chinese Communists. The commissioner called the organization "extremely militant and far to the left of the most extreme groups, even the Black Nationalists."

Those arrested were: Robert S. Collier, 28, tall Boston-born Negro, married with one child. He received an other-than-honorable discharge from military service after slashing a man during a fight in England in 1956. He was a member of a student delegation that traveled to Cuba in 1964 in defiance of a State Department ban. He is the self-styled leader of the Black Liberation Front.

Walter A. Bowe, 32, Philadelphia-born Negro, married with one child. Employed as a judo instructor, he is a supporter of the pro-Castro Fair Play for Cuba Committee.

Khaled S. Sayyed, 22, Brooklyn-born Negro, single, a former student at Howard University school of engineering in Washington, D.C.

Michelle Duclos, 28, of Montreal, a tall, blonde television commentator and member of a political party that advocates separation of French-speaking Quebec citizens from the rest of Canada.

Only Four Months Later

New China N-Test In Offing

WASHINGTON 17--Four months after Communist China's first atomic explosion, the State Department said Tuesday, the United States "has reason to believe the Peking regime is preparing for another nuclear test."

Press officer Robert J. McCloskey coupled the alert with a reassertion that the United States will stand by its military commitments in the Far East.

On the nuclear disclosure he added:

"The U.S. government deplores this indication that the leaders of Communist China are, in the face of the worldwide condemnation of atmospheric nuclear testing, continuing such tests."

McCloskey, addressing a news conference, gave no indication what evidence had been accumulated on the Chinese Communists' preparations for their second test.

But the U.S. successfully predicted the first test last Oct. 16. The site of that low-yield explosion was Lop Nor, a lake on the Taklamakan Desert several hundred miles southeast of Urumchi, in western China.

The area reportedly has been kept under observation by U.S. spy satellites and other means. One possible hint of Red China's preparations was information from Nationalist China of sharp increase in weather reports in recent weeks over the Chinese mainland. A similar increase in radioed weather data preceded the first test. But U.S. officials declined to say what significance was attached here to such weather reporting.

The State Department spokesman said there is no reason to believe that the forthcoming test would have any more military significance than the first explosion.

Under present circumstances, the Chinese Communists are not capable of delivering a nuclear weapon, U.S. officials declared, although there have been reports that they have a crash program under way on a rocket-delivery system.

Research Grant Received

MSU will launch into leukemia research as a result of a $596,300 contract announced in Washington today.

MSU, National Cancer Institute and Michigan Department of Health scientists will explore the cause of canine leukemia--widely believed to be a virus--and its possible relationship to the human form of the disease.

They will also investigate the possibility that leukemia can be transmitted from dogs to other animals.

Supporting the virus theory is the fact that the disease is caused by a virus in some animals, notably poultry and mice. On the other hand, no one has yet been able to isolate a virus that causes human, canine or bovine leukemia.

Also supporting the virus theory is knowledge that sometimes several persons or animals in the same area will succumb to the disease at about the same time. However, in many cases, only one person or animal in a given area is involved.

One of the more pertinent findings on animal leukemia has been made by Dr. Gabel H. Conner, professor of veterinary surgery and medicine at MSU and chief investigator for the new project.

In a recent study of dairy herds in Michigan, Dr. Conner found that the incidence rate of leukemia is greater in large herds than in small ones.

This could mean that the disease can be spread from one animal to another.

It could also mean that leukemia is a hereditary or heredity-related disease. There tends to be more breeding in larger herds and this inbreeding tends to concentrate any hereditary defect.

The new project will be an important part of the National Cancer Institute's new intensified virus-cancer-leukemia research program supported by a special congressional appropriation of $10 million.

To carry out the research, MSU is renovating several buildings.

Registrar Won't Interpret; Charges Harassment

Editor's Note: Jim Sterba is in Mississippi to cover the hearings of the Civil Rights Commission.

By JIM STERBA
State News Staff Writer

JACKSON, Miss. -- A Humphreys County voting registrar refused Tuesday to interpret for the Civil Rights Commission a section of a Mississippi constitution that he asked Negroes to interpret when they come to his office to register.

He said he refused on the grounds that he was being "harassed and pressured by the commission."

Erwin N. Griswold, commission member and dean of the Harvard Law School, asked G.H. Hood to interpret one of the more difficult sections of the constitution. All Mississippi citizens are required by law to interpret a section of the document if they want to become voters.

When Hood, who passes or fails those who take the test in his county, began to paraphrase the section, Griswold said, "I asked you to interpret the constitution, not read it." Hood declined.

Humphreys County, where no Negroes have passed the interpretation test since 1962, was one of three counties from which the commission hear witnesses in its voter discrimination query.

Four Negro witnesses said they were harassed when they tried to register.

Mrs. Mary Thomas, a widow with six children, told the commission (continued on page 3)

'Pegasus' Hurtles Into Orbit; Will Study Meteoroid Effect

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. 17--A Saturn 1 super-rocket sent a gigantic "space bird" named Pegasus soaring into orbit Tuesday to learn how manned spaceships might be harmed by the sandblast effect of meteoroids and how to protect them from the hazard.

Spreading its wings to a span greater than a four-engine airliner, Pegasus provides a huge target for the tiny, almost invisible particles it seeks to catch. It is the third largest satellite ever launched and the space agency said it would be visible at nighttime in areas over which it swooped.

Each time one of the hot-rod bits of space debris punctures the craft's thin metal skin, the "bird" emits an electronic squawk which is stored in a memory box and relayed to the ground on command.

Experts estimated that in a year's time, Pegasus would be bombarded by scores of thousands of meteoroids.

There are just two days remaining for completion of section reservation request forms.

Students who have not yet completed the forms, even if their last names are not in these two groups, may fill out the forms tomorrow. If the section reservation request is not made now, students will have to wait until the late registration period at the beginning of spring term.

Mississippi Project Damaging, AUSG Told

By JO BUMBARGER
State News AUSG Writer

The AUSG Mississippi summer project would "result in more harm than good," the Marshall County Board of Supervisors said in a letter received Monday by a Student Congress representative.

Jim Graham, North Wonders, wrote the Board of Supervisors asking for white community opinion on the All University Student Government (AUSG) project which would provide personnel for educational programs at Rust College, a Negro school in Marshall County, located in northeastern Mississippi.

Students backing the project have been misled by biased press coverage and lack of knowledge about Mississippi, Mrs. M. M. McAlexander, clerk of the board, wrote.

She emphasized that no one in the county is opposed to furthering education, but suggested that it would be difficult to obtain competent and "properly motivated" personnel for the project.

"We are afraid that you and your group have given credence to biased (press) coverage," the letter read. "We say that because of your statement to the effect that 'The Council of Federated Organizations (COFO) in Mississippi has done much to remedy the educational deficits that impoverished areas and/or impoverished attitudes have fostered."

"We know of no right-thinking person who is properly informed who would applaud COFO's activities in Mississippi during 1964. Even the NAACP has found cause to disengage and disassociate itself from these activities."

"The trouble with projects such as that outlined in the proposal is that, in most instances, they are conducted by people who have no real knowledge of the community in which they propose to work, no real information of the needs of those whom they hope to help, no real understanding of how to go about accomplishing their aims, no real sympathy of appreciation of the facts and causes which have brought about the conditions they seek to remedy."

"Unfortunately, they, almost in every instance, include many who are not properly motivated, who have joined in the project for self-advertisement. The result in most cases is that they do more harm than good."

Graham sent the Board a copy of the STEP committee's report to Student Congress after receiving a reply to his original letter saying the Board of Supervisors had no information about the project.

Stanford Dean Exits After Strong Denial

STANDARD, Calif. 17--Stanford University's Dean of Women has resigned with a firm denial of a complaint by student leaders that she had charged young English teachers with employing "the erotic aspects of literature" to seduce freshmen girls.

In a statement Monday night, Dean Lucile Allen said she had asked a terminal leave of absence because "no useful purpose could be served by prolonging the controversy."

She said she wanted "to restate my denial of having made any derogatory statement and to reiterate my regret over the unfortunate misunderstanding with a few members of the English Department which followed."

The 59-year-old dean's resignation followed an investigation by a three-member faculty committee headed by law professor Gerald Guenther.

The committee's report will not be made public in order to respect "the private interests of the individuals involved," said President Wallace Sterling.

Sterling joined the Academic Council's Executive Committee in reporting these findings by the inquiry committee.

No person charged to the committee that there has been sexual misconduct between teachers in the English Department and students.

The Harrison Overpass

Plans for the extension of Trowbridge Road across campus appear to be progressing rapidly. A State Highway Department official told the State News a meeting between the department and President Hannah will be held "soon" to discuss the new road and presumably to iron out differing points of view concerning intersections on the campus.

We are glad to see that plans for this vital thoroughfare have progressed this far, but fear a major bottleneck, the Harrison Road railroad crossings just south of what would be the Harrison-Trowbridge intersection, has been neglected.

So far the University has opted for an overpass at the Harrison-Trowbridge intersection, with the Highway Department favoring a signal-controlled crossing. Neither seems to have considered an overpass for the railroad crossings.

We feel the ideal solution would be to elevate Harrison Road across the Trowbridge Road extension and both railroad crossings.

There is already a need for such a crossing since Spartan Village is currently cut off from the rest of the campus for as much as a half-hour at a time when freight trains conduct switching operations across Harrison Road.

This is a source of great irritation to persons trying to get to class or work on time, but even more, it prevents a real danger to a community where many small children live. Should a fire or accident occur in Spartan Village a passing train and the resultant traffic tie-up could make it impossible for emergency vehicles to reach the scene in time to save a life.

One can only expect this situation to worsen as the campus grows to the south and crosses the railroad tracks.

We realize that Harrison Road is an East Lansing street, but if the railroad crossings are to be bypassed the impetus must come from the University, which shouldn't tolerate having the campus split by the railroads, and from the Highway Department which will finance construction of the Trowbridge Road extension.

A few students have already expressed their desire for such an overpass in letters to the State News and East Lansing city officials. We hope a great many more will do so.

Back To Reality

The Food and Drug Administration has embarked on a crackdown on persons illegally distributing barbiturates and amphetamine pills. The latest step is the restriction on sales of certain nasal inhalers, which are now to be sold by prescription only.

The reason for the crackdown, of course, is that many people are using certain pharmaceutical supplies for "kicks." Barbiturates are depressants; amphetamines are stimulants. Both provide a cheap means of escape for those who misuse them, one not unlike a narcotic effect.

The Food and Drug Administration does not think it will cut out all illegal use of these not-quite-narcotics. It admits that perhaps half the barbiturates and amphetamine pills produced annually are sold illegally.

Nevertheless, any attempt to cut down the use of these cheap thrillers is welcome. Some members of Congress claim the FDA has more power to cut down illicit sales than it is using.

If federal enforcement of interstate commerce provisions is needed to keep people from seeking escape from reality by a cheap and dangerous method, then the FDA crackdown can serve an important social function. There are too many problems in the real world for the escape to the "other world" to be anything but cowardly and foolish.

Point Of View

By Dave Hanson

It Might As Well Be Spring

The annual problem of minors possessing alcoholic beverages is with us again. Two Dearborn teenagers spent the weekend in jail and were fined $50 each after being caught drinking near F Hall Saturday night.

The problem is youth, complicated by a university and a dry community.

Students under 21 find it easy to get beer. Just as the younger students feel that they have something to prove, the older ones, more guilty because they provide the means, take an adolescent pleasure in watching them try. Yet, since it is more of a joke than anything else, there is little criminal about it. It becomes criminal when the older students provide beer for a profit.

The University situation complicates the problem because of the pressures on the younger students who are trying to get ahead. It seems to them that everyone is doing it. The joke, the lie, becomes a truth, self-evident, compulsive.

Spring term breeds legends that take on a mythological air with the passage of a year or so. Such orgies are part of the unwritten Student Handbook. They must be true. Why? Because the administration has laws against them.

"Let's get a sixie and head for the boondocks," is the humble beginning that promises the innocent freshman honor student an entry into the hallowed halls of MSU spring term history. He sees not the crime of this one act. It is the greater and more legal thing he is after.

The fact that many students coming to MSU are under 18 means that until their junior and senior years they cannot do what all the others are doing. Spring is a time of spirit. A time to act. Curiosity combines with enthusiasm to create trouble. "T" rhymes with "B" and that stands for Booze.

The dry state of East Lansing is just a further complication. After the initial commitment the severity of the crime is not important. For a student under 21, the world is dry.

There is little that can be done. Cars will pull into dark lanes. The lights will go out. Soft sounds will come from inside. Then a car will fly out the window and land in the weeds.

The campus police will round them up, Lansing Township will prosecute. The MSU administration will make a statement condemning the situation and promising a crackdown.

But, silent and majestic as the Red Cedar, and possibly as polluted, the student body will rise in a mass of apathy and heil.

There are 23 1/2 such stories in the Naked Campus. Unfortunately, this was one of them.

I See You Go To East Lansing High School.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letter To The Agitators

Dear Little C.S.R.,

Noble effort is not a crude crying out and infringement on the rights of the masses—not a barging in and disrupting meetings. You are (right or wrong) a minority and you are sowing more seeds of havoc than of good ends.

As a student, you are part of a University. You do not run it. You are here to study. You have no rights.

If your mind is to improve in intellect, you must also improve yourself in character. You have none of honor or moral character if you cannot accept the rules of the Institution (again right or wrong) that is making possible your education. Stop and be thankful for the opportunity.

You cannot possibly prove yourself worthy of greater liberty if you cannot live under the rules (right or wrong) now standing.

Only mature people can diagnose the best way of life for themselves. This University consists of individuals of a vast range in degrees of maturity. Supervision must allow for this. A mark of immaturity is acting or speaking beyond one's capabilities, rational thinking, and common good of the student body.

You represent a minority if only for the fact that no one knows who in God's-Green-Earth you are and what you represent.

For my welfare and out of concern for this school, I should hope you represent a minority judging from the conduct of your representatives at the meeting reported in the State News of Monday. Even allowing for bias in journalism, there was no excuse for such a display as recorded there.

Go home, little children, and learn about just action, about diplomacy and good taste, about the purpose of this University, about how to obey the rules placed upon you, about who and for what you are. Think.

Before you (right or wrong) blow your reeking breath in the face of society (right or wrong) become an honorable part of it. I'm not old and wise, but this morning I sat down and thought for three whole minutes. You try it.

An Ode To CSR

To the Editor:

Oh CSR, repulsed we are,
With your profound display
Of campus rights and justice
Fights
For students in dismay.

At Bailey Hall you showed to all
Your dignity and poise,
You showed your strength and helpfulness
To be a lot of noise!

Doerlots at "Old Berkeley"
Bring satisfaction true,
To members of your hairy set
Who demonstrate for you?

Your quaint respect to Dellers
Was hardly apropos,
Oh! CSR, those crazy beards
Just simply have to go.

Conditions here at MSU
Are hardly quite so blue;
So do we need a CSR
To create a problem new?

Daniel L. Cobb
Jonesville sophomoreWhose University,
Whose Students?

To the Editor:

What is the function of a university: to educate or to legislate?

Apparently the administrations of Michigan State University have in the past concluded on highly questionable grounds that such legislation as is required to "redirect" (the student's) course of action and avail himself of the educational opportunities at the university is acceptable. This our leaders choose to call the "remedial resources" of the University. Remedial?

There is no reasonable basis to suggest that Michigan State University should not exercise any degree of control desired over the student while he is on the campus. It is the inherent right of the school as a property administrator. But it is impossible to substantiate administrative disposition regarding student activities off-campus, during either school terms or vacations.

Recently the severely outdated visitor regulations at Olin Health Center were brought closer to current standards. How long will it take for the present administration to make a similar move toward reducing its function as a meddling police force and concentrate on the business at hand, educating responsible citizens?

Campus Summary

Why I'm
In CSR

By Michael Kindman

Many students have begun discussing the Committee for Student Rights, questioning the need for such a group and the means it has chosen to implement its views.

I would like to explain my interpretation of the positions CSR has taken in its first few weeks, and to give one person's reasons for joining the group. I am expressing here my own views. I speak not as a State News staff member, nor officially for CSR, although I am deeply involved in both organizations.

The Committee for Student Rights has formed to protest the almost inevitable loss of individual identity which occurs when a campus grows as large as this one has—30,000-plus students, several thousand faculty and staff members, 4,900 acres of main campus, $146 million in new buildings within a 10-year period.

CSR is founded upon the concept that the growth of the University—a growth which we cannot deny and have no right to condemn—does not have to mean a decline in the quality of the education afforded each student. This means more than updated curricular offerings and an Educational Development Program.

CSR firmly believes that students can be given opportunities to make decisions for themselves, to develop into responsible individuals and to benefit fully from what should be a stimulating university environment, even when the University has grown to 30 and 40 thousand students and beyond.

To accomplish this, at least two things are necessary.

First, the University must modify its outdated conception of the "in loco parentis" policy by which it claims the right to intervene in students' personal affairs. "In loco parentis" is a traditional attitude of colleges and universities and is not about to be abandoned.

But this University has insisted on too strict an interpretation of the policy, to the extent of telling some students' parents that they have less right to decide their children's affairs than does the University administration. A totally disproportionate amount of money and energy goes into the preservation of such institutions as women's hours, liquor prohibitions and alliances between campus and civil authorities to enforce University regulations.

Thus, CSR has made its initial suggestions for liberalization of the "in loco parentis" policy as the first area which must see revision if the University experience is to be more meaningful.

Second, there must be a drastic increase in the amount of discussion of problems both directly and indirectly affecting students. There must be more exchange of ideas, more dissent, even open ideological warfare between factions and departments.

In this area, CSR has already had some success.

The committee has been accepted as a force, however young and small, in University affairs. It has done this without going through the bureaucratic rigamarole of petitioning to AUG for a charter. It has demonstrated that a group need not be passed upon by the Student Organizations Bureau, a doctrinaire body that has more than once interfered with the establishment of student groups, in order to have meaning.

CSR does not object to official recognition nor to stating its goals openly; it feels, however, that allowing its views to be screened through a committee before exposing them to the outside world would be a compromise of its belief in freedom of expression.

The committee has been authorized by existing student organizations to the extent that it has had representatives speak to a number of dorm councils, has been discussed by many student groups and has attracted sympathy and support far beyond that given most organizations in existence less than a term.

Students, at least partly because of CSR's formation, are thinking a little more about problems affecting them and are wondering what CSR is up to. This is good.

Logos is one way in which CSR hopes to demonstrate that some University regulations are paper tigers, with the effect of intimidating students into submission but with no adequate justification for their existence. (Logos has been distributed "illegally"—that is, without prior approval of dormitory authorities—but has not been repressed and has not offended many sensitivities. The University has lived and let live.)

I have allied myself with CSR because I do not agree with the University's interpretation of its own power in the lives of students, and feel that some sort of activist movement is needed here to alter this interpretation in the near future.

We are "activist" in the sense that we are not afraid to formulate and defend principles in which we believe; "activist" in that we disagree with the concept that we are in the University to take courses and absorb culture and do nothing more. CSR feels students are here to live and grow and experience life, and to do so must have freedom to express their ideas, right or wrong.

Martyrdom is not the goal of CSR, nor is a gaudy display of power seized by immature and sensational means. We hope to establish within the University a point of view which has not frequently been expressed here, and to do so calmly and with discipline.

If Michigan State University, which has been thinking in near-serious terms about educating 100,000 students at a time, is to remain anything more than a prison of the mind, we must move now to allow for individual freedom and dignity, and to do this in a context greater than that of University regulations and the attempts of faculty committees to determine what students want.

New Viet Government Takes Over

SAIGON, Viet Nam—A new government and a new legislative advisory body took office with the blessing of Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh's high command Tuesday. A tacit understanding had been reached by military purges was restored.

Dr. Phan Huy Quat, 55, a former foreign minister, got the helm as premier. He called for unity in the interests of promoting the U.S.-backed war against the Viet Cong.

Negro Barbershop Opened

OTTAWA, Kan.—An Ottawa University student civil rights group will open a barbershop March 1 to cut hair of Negro students.

James Dean, chairman of the school's student civil rights committee, said the one-chair shop is being opened because all present Ottawa barbershops are segregated.

Adedires OK

ANN ARBOR—Mother and son are both reported doing well after the kidney transplant operation at University Hospital in Ann Arbor.

The surgery was performed Monday. Mrs. Asabie Adedire, of Nigeria, who traveled 7,000 miles from her home in Africa, had one of her kidneys removed and transplanted into the body of her 26-year-old son, Abraham.

Doctors reported Tuesday that the transplanted kidney appears to be functioning satisfactorily.

Fire Kills Veteran Divers

WASHINGTON—Two veteran Navy deep-sea divers were killed and two others injured Tuesday by a flash fire inside a decompression chamber during an experiment at the Washington Navy Yard.

The accident occurred in the experimental diving unit of the deep sea diving school.

Adlai, Thant Confer On Viet Nam

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—U.S. Chief Delegate Adlai E. Stevenson conferred with U.N. Secretary-General U Thant Tuesday and a U.N. spokesman said they exchanged views on Viet Nam.

The spokesman told reporters the exchange of views was "in the context of the secretary-general's appeal of last Friday" for all-around restraint and talks to shift "the quest for a solution away from the field of battle to the conference table."

Erhard Wants Support

BONN, Germany—Chancellor Ludwig Erhard said Tuesday he is counting on support from the Western allies in the Middle East, where it is in hot water with Israel and the United Arab Republic.

Erhard told a meeting of the Christian Democratic party that the allies also are concerned when East German Communist leader Walter Ulbricht gets an invitation to visit the U.A.R. The United States and other Western allies do not recognize the East German regime.

U.S. Fires A-Test

WASHINGTON—The Atomic Energy Commission announced an underground nuclear test of low yield, meaning less than the equivalent of the explosion of 20,000 tons of TNT, was conducted Tuesday at the AEC's Nevada test site.

It was the third announced in 1965. The latest previous one was on Feb. 4.

Albania Demands Old Vote

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—Albania demanded Tuesday that the U.N. General Assembly return immediately to a normal voting basis. After some debate Alex Quaison-Sackey, the Assembly president, ruled the demand out of order because it was not submitted in writing.

Halim Budo, the Albanian delegate, threw the Assembly into turmoil with his surprise demand—a move that could bring a U.S.-Soviet confrontation over Assembly voting rights.

Hubbard Goes To Court

DETROIT—Mayor Orville Hubbard of suburban Dearborn, object of a fruitless five-day search by federal authorities, appeared for arraignment in federal court Tuesday.

Hubbard showed up at the federal building, was immediately arrested and taken for arraignment on a civil rights charge.

Sex Killer Gets Sixth

LONDON—The nude body of a woman was found covered with grass in West London Tuesday and police speculated she could be the sixth victim of a crazed sex killer.

Last year five other women were found naked and murdered in the West London area near the river Thames. All were prostitutes.

mission she had been arrested at her home 15 minutes after she tried to register to vote.

Mrs. Thomas was arrested for selling beer without a county permit. She had at the time of her arrest, a city license, a state permit, and a federal stamp to sell beer at her store. She was fined $375, she said.

Mrs. Mary O. Welch and Mrs. Daisy Griffin said Registrar Hood threatened to have their "commodities" — $47 a month, plus flour, rice, meat and other staples taken away from them if they tried to register. Hood denied this.

Five Negroes from the delta county of Issaquena, where nine Negroes out of 1500 are registered to vote, told the commission of similar harassment by their voting registrar.

Mr. Clarence Hall, a World War II veteran who was awarded two battle stars, said he tried to register twice in 1964, and failed both times to pass the constitution interpretation test.

William J. Paylor, attorney for the Civil Rights Commission, stuttered three times as he read the section that Hall was asked to interpret. The section dealt with "concurrent jurisdiction of chancery and circuit court cases."

Gov. Paul B. Johnson was first to speak after commission chairman John A. Hannah opened the morning session.

"Most Mississippians do not like the new law," Johnson said in reference to the 1964 Civil Rights Act, "but resistance will be confined to accepted legal processes."

"I wish to assure all Americans that Mississippi will continue to be the most law-abiding state in the nation," he said.

He urged critics of Mississippi to "get off our back and get on our side," saying that Mississippi needs encouragement, understanding and assistance.

"The unfavorable and false image of Mississippi that has been created by the few in our state who have committed unpardonable criminal acts, has been exploited by unfriendly national news media," he said. "All areas of Mississippi are completely safe, by day or by night," he said. He urged community leaders to come forward and testify to the commission and erase the state's "false image."

"We are Mississippi Americans as well as Mississippians, whether we like it or not," he said.

Always smiling Jackson Mayor Alan C. Thompson made a statement after Johnson finished, in which he officially welcomed the Civil Rights Commission to Jackson.

"You will probably be like the thousands of other visitors to Jackson who are really amazed to find that Jackson, just a typical Mississippi city, is so beautiful, progressive and peaceful," he said in a deep Southern drawl. Thompson is famous in Mississippi for using "Thompson tanks" to aid police during racial troubles in Jackson.

The commission listened baffled as Thompson said he wished the commission wasn't in town on business so he could show them beautiful slides of the city.

Thompson, who thinks the 1964 Civil Rights Act is a terrible piece of legislation, said his state didn't need or want any federal funds.

"I am unreservedly recommending to the Jackson School Board that we do not take one penny of federal money for our schools," he said.

"I am really worried about the fine wonderful colored people of Jackson... who are subject to the threats and intimidation of a few so-called leaders of pressure groups," he said.

Final Big Weekend In Sports

The last big weekend of home athletic activity for the winter season highlights this week.

Four of State's winter squads have a total of seven events carded for the home folks Friday and Saturday, with hockey, fencing and swimming outfits each in double action.

Spartan skaters get things going Friday night as they meet Colorado College at the Ice Arena in the first of two games in final Western Collegiate Hockey Association play. The second game is set for Saturday night. Face-off time both nights is 7:30 o'clock. All the other home events are Saturday.

The fencers meet Indiana and Detroit starting at 10:30 a.m. at the IM Sports Arena. Next up are the swimmers who meet Wisconsin and Pittsburgh beginning at 1 p.m. in the Men's IM Pool.

CENTER OF ATTENTION—State's Bill Curtis, smallest center in the Big Ten at 6-4, faces a roadblock in U-M center Craig Dill (40), all of 6-10, when he turns the corner past junior guard John Clawson. Photo by David Sykes

Seniors Of '68 Shaping Fate

Freshman Gym Outfit Scores In Flint Open

By ROBERTA YAFIE
State News Sports Writer

Many upperclassmen sit back and wonder, when a new crop of freshmen take up residence at Michigan State, if such material will ever evolve as a senior. When George Szypula, Spartan gymnastics coach, thinks about his freshmen, however, all he can do is smile.

It's not a question of what they'll become—it's merely a matter of how they'll strengthen and improve the talent and ability that they possess. The gymnasts of the Class of '68 are a group that should provide State with a long column of victories.

The frosh have already proven themselves earlier in the season when they faced the Varsity in a pre-season contest. Although the Varsity won, the freshmen were strong threats throughout the meet.

The Flint Open is the only opportunity for the frosh to compete during the season. Coaches may send several of their first-year men to compete in the United States Gymnastics Federation meet at the end of the season, but the competition is not the same.

According to Big Ten rules, an open meet such as this requires contestants to be entered unattached. Along with the Spartan entries, Michigan, Eastern Michigan and the Toronto Sokols, the defending champs, were represented.

Dave Thor literally ran away with meet honors, cleaning up firsts in side horse, parallel bars, long horse, floor exercise and rings. His only "miss" was in horizontal bar, in which he placed second. Along with these victories went the all-around title.

Ed Gunny spoiled Thor's attempt at a clean sweep by taking first honors in horizontal bar. He was third in long horse and sixth in rings as well.

Other outstanding performances by the Spartan frosh were executed by Larry Goldberg, Ken Fox, Dennis Smith and Tom Church. Fox was second in parallel bars, as well as tying for second in rings with Goldberg. Smith and Church each earned third-place finishes in two events: side horse and parallel bars, respectively.

Thor's all-around win was a repeat performance of that scored over Jim Curzi in the intra-squad meet. Curzi, current Spartan leader, is the reigning Big Ten all-around champ—Thor has yet to win a Spartan letter.

"I was extremely happy with the way the freshmen worked," Szypula said, a statement that is as loaded as the squad's talents. Losses incurred by graduation may hurt somewhat, but the Spartan coach knows that the future can hold that pot of gold for the Green and White.

LOOK MA, NO HANDS—Jim Curzi lets himself go in his parallel bar routine against Southern Illinois. He registered 9.85, the top individual score of the non-conference varsity contest. Photo by Larry Carlson thing about a good big man always beating a good little man. It's usually true. Big men dominate today's sporting events but there's a good little man at Michigan State who's been beating a lot of big men lately.

Bill Curtis, the shortest center in the Big Ten at 6-4, gives away from three to five inches to every one of his conference counterparts but still outscores them.

Curtis is the second highest scoring center in the Big Ten. His 22 point average trails only Stan Thompson of Illinois. The versatile junior has scored 175 points in eight conference contests, more than any Big Ten center.

Thompson has 165 points in one less game for a 24 point mark and Michigan's Bill Burton has 170 points and a 21.1 average. The rest of the centers don't come close.

Incredibly, Curtis was supposed to be a forward this year but Coach Fordy Anderson was forced to put him in the pivot, when 6-9 Bill Nowak was ruled ineligible because of previous competition at another school.

"I don't think of Bill as a center," Anderson said. "I was forced to move him there and he responded tremendously. He is the best defensive player on the team and is virtually the top scorer as well."

Curtis is just a shade behind guard Stan Washington in State's scoring attack. Washington has scored 347 points in 17 games this season for a 20.4 mark and Curtis is just three points behind at 29.1.

Bill has grabbed 175 rebounds to Washington's 174 to lead the team in that department.

"Curtis overcame his lack of scoring confidence last summer and the results are obvious."

The NEWS In

SPORTS

Anderson said, "he's tough to guard and is very coachable." Asked if Curtis might have been even better at forward, he replied: "The team would have been more effective but you can't question his effectiveness this year at center."

His career high of 36 points all but defeated the number one ranked Wolverines three weeks ago in East Lansing, and he outscored Burton 22-19 Saturday in Ann Arbor to put him fifth in the Big Ten scoring race behind teammate Marcus Sanders.

A 1962 graduate of South High School in Grand Rapids, Curtis led the Trojans to three straight city basketball titles and was named to the all-state team his senior year.

Curtis came to State on a basketball scholarship and after winning a freshman numeral was Anderson's "seventh" man as a sophomore last year.

Bill was one of only three Spartans to appear in every game that year and averaged 4.5 points as a reserve forward.

This year he has been a pleasant surprise in an otherwise disappointing season. His consistent scoring has been a menace to Spartan opponents and his hustle and desire make him difficult to guard against.

A bio-chemistry major, Curtis is a member of Kappa Alpha Psi and despite his heavy extracurricular activities keeps his grade point average above 3.0.

Stakes High As Skaters Prepare For U-M Rematch

By RICK PIANIN
State News Sports Writer

State's hockey squad invades the University of Michigan tonight to begin its most crucial week of activity. With a victory over the Wolverines, the Spartans would gain at least a tie for the Big Ten title, and would move a notch closer to a playoff berth in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association.

State would be two games ahead of Michigan, and would have a firm hold on fourth place in the league. At present, MSU is 5-4 in the WCHA and 14-8 overall.

The Spartans, fresh from a pair of wins over Wisconsin, will be up for this game with their arch rivals from Ann Arbor. State holds a 2-1 edge over U-M this season and beat them in the last series, 7-4 and 6-2.

Sophomore Mike Jacobson, who became State's greatest scorer, last weekend, will try to better his output of 25 goals. Jacobson reflecting on the Wisconsin series, said that he wasn't bothered by pressure, as he attempted to surpass the former record of 24 goals, set by Terry Moroney in the 1958-59 season.

"During a game, you just don't have time to think about things like that," he said. "The game takes up all of your concentration."

Jacobson apparently has had little difficulty in making the transition from high school to collegiate hockey. He said that the major difference of the two was that collegiate hockey demands much more actual skating from the players.

"I had a lot of hockey experience back home in Copper Cliff, Ont., where the play is actually a lot rougher," he said. "Here you are only allowed to check while on the defense, while back home, we could check at either end."

Jacobson feels that the key to State's success this season has been the unity and great effort of the team members. "We're a closely-knit unit," he said, "and there's always a great deal of spirit among the players."

Captain Doug Roberts, a senior, surpassed the record for the most points scored in a season. Roberts scored 11 points on five goals and six assists in the two games against the Badgers to boost his point total to 44 for the season.

He erased the old mark of 43, shared by both Jim Ward and Real Turcotte. Ward set the record in the 1954-55 season, and Turcotte tied it during the 1960-61 campaign.

Ice Show Billed For Tonight

Two MSU students who have a busy skating schedule ahead of them will appear at an ice show tonight at 8 in Demonstration Hall.

Joanne Heckert and Gary Clark will take the spotlight along with Yvonne Drummond, another MSU student.

The show will be held in conjunction with the finals of the Miss MSU contest which will also be staged tonight at the Ice Arena.

Miss Heckert and Clark will compete at Buffalo, N.Y., next week in senior pairs competition of the North American skating championships.

The pair also plans to take part in the world championships which will take place in early March at Colorado Springs.

The Ice Rockettes, who appear during intermission at Spartan home hockey games, will also be on tonight's skating card along with several dance couples.

MSU's hockey team didn't play at home last weekend but the ice arena was still the scene of some good skating.

Visconti, a Detroit resident, upset heavily favored Olympic bronze medalist Scott Ethan Allen for the senior title. He has studied for several summers at eight-week sessions at the MSU Ice Arena.

Besides his exploits in the United States, Visconti earned top billing in Europe a year ago by defeating five Olympic skaters in both the French and German championships.

(One)derful U-M Week: Win By One, Still One

ANN ARBOR (UPI)—The University of Michigan basketball team, still leading the nation and undefeated in Big Ten play despite a narrow escape at Indiana Monday night, will remain idle until Saturday.

The Wolverines overcame several deficits and were forced into double overtime before nipping the Hoosiers 96-95 at Bloomington.

Saturday U-M will face the Ohio State Buckeyes who stand 2-5 in the league and 8-9 overall after sharing the Big Ten title with Michigan last year. Minnesota, with one loss in the conference, appears to be the strongest contender remaining to challenge the Wolverines for the league championship.

In the national United Press poll, Michigan is ranked first for the third straight week over UCLA in second place and St. Joseph's of Pennsylvania in third.

'Matey' Proves He's Greatest

By DONALD SOKOL
State News Staff Writer

Fortunes changed hands, a world record was set, and over 300 fans were thrilled in the IM Arena Monday night.

Fifty turtles—champions and thoroughbreds all—came to try for the big one in Washington. For the winner of the race would represent MSU at American University's International Collegiate Turtle Race Feb. 26, in the nation's capital.

So it was, that in an amazing burst of speed, Matey, entry of East Shaw, was chosen. He is the noblest turtle of them all. He had the look of a champion. His pride, his bearing and his sheer guts spelled out the difference between just a good turtle and a great turtle. His winning time in the 32-foot straightaway was 29 seconds.

Hank Steifes, Matey's trainer, told of his turtle's rugged training. "We put him in a garbage pail with an ash tray full of raw hamburger meat over night. He will return there shortly." He added with determination, "We'll win at Washington. I have no doubts." Bill Nicholson, Matey's coach, nodded his agreement.

But if there was joy, there was also heartache. There was the heartache of Kelso, Zeta Beta Tau's entry, who placed in 32 seconds. Perhaps the most poignant disappointment was that of the Delta Zeta's Ralph II. He set an unofficial world's record of 28 seconds in an earlier heat. But his courageous little heart and speedy, muscular legs couldn't carry him on at that grueling pace. He didn't place in the final race. Ironically, Ralph I, Ralph II's namesake, was a rabbit. And so, a new twist on the story of the tortoise and the hare.

There were others: Abbott Hall's Oddjob, a favorite of the crowd, who didn't place; Phi Gamma Delta's Road-Apple, who fought desperately from behind after a slow start, but didn't quite make it.

Perhaps the greatest tale of courage and triumph can be told about Gilchrist's entry, Maude. He showed the spirit of greatness in the final heat for slowest turtle. At the starting gun, he bolted, and without coming out of his shell, accidentally slid forward about four feet. None of the other three entries moved. Undaunted, Maude began his tortuous climb back up the racing ramp to the starting line. His courage and dogged unwillingness to pass another turtle won him the hearts of the crowd and the broken trophy for slowest turtle.

Leukemia

ings on the veterinary research farm.

One of the studies will involve inoculating newborn dogs with selected materials derived from human and animal cases. If leukemia can be induced in this manner, it will be additional evidence that the disease is caused by a virus and can be spread.

Another study will involve growing cells from normal and tumorous canine tissue and studying the effects of virus material on these cells.

The researchers will also study the kind and amount of antibodies produced by dogs inoculated with material from leukemic animals and people.

Part of the research will be carried out by the Michigan Department of Health through a sub-contract with MSU.

Dr. John B. Moloney, head of the Viral Leukemia Section of the Laboratory of Viral Oncology, National Cancer Institute, will serve as Institute project officer.

Deep Breath Fells Chemist

The directions for the chemistry experiment said to mix potassium permanganate and concentrated hydrochloric acid and then sniff the mixture.

However, Peter Lippincott, Flint freshman, 420 South Case, breathed the compound too deeply after mixing it Monday for an experiment in Chemistry 112.

He was transported to Olin Hospital but no first aid was required.

Campus police listed the occurrence as an "occupational hazard."

Hannah Opens Hearings

Editor's Note: Jim Sterba is in Mississippi to cover the hearings of the Civil Rights Commission.

By Jim Sterba
State News Staff Writer

JACKSON, Miss.—The Civil Rights Commission, under the chairmanship of MSU President John A. Hannah, began its long-delayed open hearings Tuesday.

The hearings in Mississippi have been postponed since October, 1962, when James Meredith became the first Negro to enroll at the University of Mississippi in Oxford.

The Justice Department asked the Civil Rights Commission to delay the hearings until things quieted down at Ole Miss.

When the commission rescheduled hearings for December of the same year, the Justice Department balked again. The commission waited another month, then decided to try again.

That time, Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy fired a letter to Hannah, saying he understood the need for hearings but that such hearings at that time might hamper the federal government's contempt case against then Gov. Ross Barnett and Lt. Gov. Paul Johnson.

Kennedy said in the letter to Hannah, "I am confident that the claim will be made that the Civil Rights Commission is working with the Department of Justice publicly to prejudice the State of Mississippi and its officials in the minds of the jury."

Mississippi had at that time, and still has, cases pending against Chief Federal Marshal James P. McShane, for inciting a riot at Ole Miss; some members of the armed forces for action taken during the Ole Miss riots; and Attorney Gen. Nichols Katzenbach, at that time a deputy, charges over the same incidents.

The hearings were postponed. At a press conference on March 21, 1963, President John F. Kennedy was asked whether Mississippi hearings should be delayed any longer. He said "No."

But Robert Kennedy said they should be postponed, and wrote another letter to Hannah urging him to wait.

Since Barnett's case was still being fought, Kennedy said, "I continue to hold the view that a public hearing in Mississippi by the Civil Rights Commission would not be appropriate."

On April 16, 1963, after continued investigation (but no public hearings) in Mississippi, the commission issued an "Interim Report" to the President saying that it had substantial evidence against Mississippi.

In the report, the commission charged Mississippi with "open and flagrant violation of constitutional guarantees," saying that the violations have started serious troubles and at times have "reached a point of crisis." "Each week," the report said, "brings fresh evidence of the danger of a complete breakdown of law and order."

"Citizens of the U.S. have been shot," the report continued, "set upon by vicious dogs, beaten and otherwise terrorized because they sought to vote. Students have been fired upon, ministers have been assaulted and the home of the vice chairman of the State Advisory Committee (of the Civil Rights Commission) has been bombed."

The report stated that Mississippi had taken no steps to comply with the equal protection clause of the Constitution which outlaws segregation, according to a Supreme Court ruling of nine years ago.

Film Series Presents Delhi Life

The International Film Series will present "The Householder," an Indian film, at 7 and 9 o'clock and Thursday in Fairchild Theatre.

Made in India by Californian James Ivory, "The Householder" is a comedy of middle-class life in Delhi, especially about two young newlyweds and their period of adjustment.

Prem, a teacher at Mr. Khan's Private College, finds settling down a most delicate matter. To make his wife more respectful, he decides to send for his mother.

This plan fails, for his mother's nagging drives his wife back to her own family, but everything finally ends happily. Admission to the film is 50 cents.

U-M Author At Colloquium

"Nationalization and Public Regulation: The Waltz of the Space-Age Dinosaurs" will be the topic of a lecture by William G. Shepherd at the MSU Economics Department Colloquium in 33 Union at 4 Wednesday.

Shepherd, a professor at the University of Michigan, is the author of several studies in public regulation of industry. He is an expert on the role of the public corporation in the American economy.

The Civil Rights Commission urged the President to take immediate steps and suggested withholding federal funds to agencies practicing discrimination.

Meanwhile, the Mississippi Advisory Committee to the Civil Rights Commission cried for federal intervention and protection against "an ever-present threat of police brutality and economic reprisal directed against any citizen who attempts to break the established patterns of segregation in the state at whatever level."

The Advisory Committee stated that Negro citizens were not happy with "perpetual inferiority," and that the trouble in Mississippi was not caused by "outside agitators," as many of Mississippi's white citizens have continually claimed.

On April 19, 1963, President Kennedy sent a letter to Hannah assuring him that "every possible approach is being considered and those which are appropriate and contain prospects for improving the situation will be employed."

But the President added, "In many instances the withholding of funds would serve to further disadvantage those that I know the commission would want to aid."

He was talking about Negroes who receive welfare payments, social security payments and other federal monies.

The suggestions of the commission, including one to withhold federal funds, were taken

Fuzak Talks Of Fraternities

The opportunities for fraternities to contribute to their members will be great in the future, John A. Fuzak, vice-president for student affairs, told members of Delta Sigma Phi fraternity Monday night.

This will come only if fraternity men direct their efforts toward educational contribution to their members, he said.

The talk was in connection with the fraternity's "engineered leadership" program.

"A fraternity cannot exist, and continue to exist, solely as a social institution in a university setting," Fuzak said.

It must also provide a valuable learning experience for its members, he said. This is true because much learning goes on outside the classroom.

The University has the problem of trying to satisfy many different publics, Fuzak said. Acceptance by faculty, students, parents and taxpayers is necessary.

Regulations by the University are necessary if these publics are to be satisfied.

"The University must respect the demands of society, but it must also try to lead," he said. Studies have indicated that at universities where regulation of fraternities are weak, the system has faltered, Fuzak said.

At MSU they have grown and will continue to grow.

The Faculty Committee on Student Affairs is a direct channel students may use to get regulations changed, he said. However, proper research into the change must precede any attempt at a change.

The University must be convinced that any change is a proper representation of student thought and that the change will be for the better, he said.

Distinguished Ag Lecturer Here

A noted British food scientist will present the 1965 Distinguished Lectures in Agriculture here today through Friday.

S. K. Kon, deputy director of the National Institute for Research in Dairying at Shinfield, England, will give all three lectures in Anthony Hall auditorium.

The first of these, Wednesday at 8 p.m., will include a report on some of the reasons for the dramatic increase in heart diseases in some parts of the world but not in others. Kon will discuss the involvement of saturated animal fats and unsaturated vegetable fats, particularly his studies on cholesterol metabolism.

The Thursday lecture at 3:30 p.m. will be a report on Kon's basic studies of animal metabolism.

Friday at 3:30 p.m. Kon's talk will center on the contribution of milk and milk products to the nutrient requirements of man.

Kon has been editor in chief of the British Journal of Nutrition and of the proceedings of the Nutrition Society since their inception. He has served as consultant with the Food and Agricultural Organization (FAO) of the United Nations and has published in various scientific journals.

In 1964, he was appointed Commander of the Order of the British Empire and was given the title of research professor at the University of Reading.

Club Members Plan Unique Market Game

MSU Marketing Club members will co-ordinate a nationwide "game" this Saturday and Feb. 27, in preparation for the fourth annual TWX National Marketing Conference which they will sponsor.

The nationwide game is described by club vice president Gallen B. Smith, Covert senior, as a "computerized management" game. It is the only one of its kind in the country.

This is how it works. The second floor viewing room in the Computer Center is hooked up via a teletype system with groups of marketing or business students at 29 other universities. The groups are divided into four classes or "industries."

Eight management problems are sent to each participating group over the two-day period. The group solves each problem and returns its solution to MSU via the teletype.

Each group's solution is then fed into the 3600 computer. The computer evaluates the solution and names a winner for each problem in each industry group. All groups participating in the exercise will be represented by a five-man team at the National Marketing Conference at Kellogg Center, April 9 and 10. The winners will be announced at the conference.

Waring and his Pennsylvanians will present "The Magic of Music" at 8:15 p.m. in the Auditorium.

"The game and the conference are designed to supplement classroom activities and to develop relations with faculty and executives which are not possible in the classroom," according to Isaac N. Burch Jr., Elkins, W. Va., senior, and president of the Marketing Club.

The theme of the conference this year is "Marketing: Science or Art?"

Author Finds Students Wholesome And True

College and university students across the nation have found an earnest supporter in a best-selling Chicago author.

Lillian Budd, author of "April Snow," a New York Times best seller for over 15 weeks, agreed that college students have impressed her with their sincerity and gusto.

Before speaking here to the Sigma Kappa sorority pledge class Monday, Mrs. Budd, an honorary Sigma Kappa since 1952, explained the influence of college life on her newest novel, "One Heart, One Way."

Having spoken to campus organizations for over 10 years, Mrs. Budd lived in numerous dormitories and sorority houses during her tours.

The impressions made upon her influenced her to show young people as I have found them, "wholesome and true."

Author of several children's books and recipient of the 1959 Fictor Award of the Friends of Literature, her newest book deals with campus life in a midwestern city.

Mrs. Budd's writing career was a success with her first novel which dealt with life in Sweden in the 19th century.

According to her, experience provides the best background for a writer but "who knows how good a writer I might have been if I had attended college."

As a word of advice to MSU students Mrs. Budd believes, "Whatever you choose to do, do what you enjoy."

Professor To Discuss Teilhard

A professor from France will discuss the significance of the French theologian and paleontologist Pierre Teilhard and his influence on Christian thought this afternoon at 4.

Georges Crespy, professor of philosophical theology at the University of Montpellier, France, will lecture on "Teilhard: A New View of Man."

The talk will be in the Con-Con (Constitutional Convention) room of the International Center and is sponsored jointly by the Honors College and the United Campus Ministry.

Father Teilhard, a co-discoverer of the Peking Man whose remains were found in China, developed a Christian interpretation of evolution. He died in New York in 1955.

Crespy is currently visiting professor of theology and culture at the Chicago Theological Seminary.

Spanish Club Plans Program

Marcelo Gamberto will speak at a meeting of the Spanish Club Wednesday at 8 p.m. in 331 Union.

Gamberto, a special student at MSU from Argentina, will exhibit slides on Argentine culture and lead specially selected songs of the land.

The program is directed at giving a distinct insight into the cultural habitat of our southern neighbor.

Three color films on Valencia, Spain will be shown and explained by Miss Amparo Navarro in a meeting to be held Friday at 4 p.m.

The films, "Las Fallas," "La Costa Blanca," and "La Alhambra," will be shown in 331 Union.

Play Needs Stage Crew

The stage crew of the NAACP play, "The Man Called Niger" needs students familiar with the use of lighting, audio equipment and stage properties.

Interested students should contact Matt Shorten, program chairman, at 355-5833, or Ron Brown, director at 355-7676.
