Council OKs final revision of Academic Freedom report

By BOBBY SODEN
State News Staff Writer

Academic Council members gave approval late Tuesday of the twice revised Academic Freedom report, speeding its way to the Academic Senate.

The second revision of the report was studied last week in three continuous evening sessions of the Academic Council, a group of major administrators and college deans and representatives.

The council made minor changes in the report which had been written and revised by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs. The council first considered the report in early September.

"The changes did not violate the intention or actual spirit of the report," said John H. Reinhoel, chairman of the faculty committee. "It is my feeling that they actually strengthen the report."

Reinhoel said that the alterations were in the report's wording rather than its policy. Small portions of the report were rewritten for clarification, he indicated.

The equal distribution policy for student publications, for example, was broken into seven parts to "more clearly enunciate" the idea, Reinhoel said. The section now gives "don'ts" as well as "do's" for guidelines on the publications.

The concluding general recommendations, which included the establishment of an ombudsman was passed "with no modifications whatever," Reinhoel added.

The ombudsman would serve as a middleman between students and administrators. He would have broad investigative power of student complaints.

The council moved that a preamble be written to serve as a "beginning context" to the report, Reinhoel said.

"It was not intended that the preamble should have applicability to the report," he added. "It will play no active role."

Members of the committee writing the preamble are Howard R. Neville, provost; Louis L. McQuitty, dean of the College of Social Science; John F. A. Taylor, professor of philosophy; and Reinhoel.

Before the report goes to the Academic Senate for its reaction, it will be drawn up in constitutional form by an "editorial revision committee." The report has remained thus far in the form of a recommendation to the Academic Council from the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs.

The Academic Senate is composed of some 1,500 tenured faculty members, the President, the Provost and other administrative officers holding academic rank.

"As a constitution, the report will express more positively and in more direct terms the recommendations made by the faculty committee," explained Reinhoel.

Reinhoel called the revision a "relatively short task" which may be completed within a week.

Serving on the editorial revision committee are Reinhoel, Taylor and Frederick Williams, associate professor of history.

A special session of the Academic Senate will be called to consider the freedom report. The senate can only pass or reject the report, but cannot modify it.

If approved, the freedom report will be referred to President Hannah and eventually be acted upon by the MSU Board of Trustees.

SOCIAL SECURITY FIRST

Congress waits on tax hike

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Congress took a "let's not be hasty" attitude Wednesday toward President Johnson's proposal for a six per cent income tax surcharge to continue while Vietnam war costs remain high.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said the House Ways and Means Committee has not changed its plan to give first priority to proposals for Social Security benefit increases.

Majority Leader Carl Albert, D-Okla.,

said he expects the first piece of major legislation actually to reach the House floor will be a catchall appropriation bill to cover government expenditures until July 1. Swollen mainly by war costs, the bill is expected to surpass $10 billion.

From the comments, it was apparent Congress will want to know more about several factors before deciding whether to tap individual and corporate incomes for an estimated $4.5 billion more in the first year of a tax increase.

The questions to be examined are:

1. Just how much President Johnson proposes to spend on various domestic programs and whether the lawmakers are in a mood to hold the line or cut back on these. Mr. Johnson in his State of the Union message gave only an over-all total - $135 million spending in the year beginning July 1. Republicans said the figure was unrealistic, considering what he proposed.

2. What course the U.S. economy takes during the next few months - specifically, whether there are any signs of a downturn that might be critically aggravated by a big tax increase.

3. Whether the Federal Reserve Board displays willingness, in consideration of the anti-inflationary effect of a tax raise, to move in the direction of cheaper and more abundant money for borrowing.

The Ways and Means Committee plans extensive early hearings on the proposed 20 per cent average increase in Social Security benefits. This could mean hearings on a tax increase might not even begin before April.

By that time there will be some Congressional reaction to the spending proposals in the budget and the figures will be in on the performance of the economy for the first quarter of 1967.

In the State of the Union message, the proposal for a tax hike came immediately after a passage that spoke of efforts against inflation, calling for "the cooperation of the Federal Reserve System."

'Can't drag' N. Viets to talks, says Salisbury

HONG KONG (AP) -- Just out of Hanoi, correspondent Harrison E. Salisbury expressed doubt Wednesday that even a severe military defeat could bring North Vietnam to the conference table. Instead, he speculated, the North Vietnamese would scatter to "the jungles and mountains and fight a guerrilla war."

"I don't believe they can be compelled to come to a conference table," Salisbury, an assistant managing editor of The New York Times, said in an interview with radio Hong Kong.

"These people strike me as being very tough, very hard, very independent and very courageous. They say, and I rather believe them, that you cannot drag them to the conference table; that they can't be beaten into submission."

Salisbury said he believed the North Vietnamese were influenced by two factors.

One was the Vietnamese defeat of the French at Dien Bien Phu that brought on the Geneva settlement of 1954 dividing North and South Vietnam.

"They can't help believing that some time there may be an opportunity for a Dien Bien Phu against the United States."

"Now, point No. 2," he continued. "I do believe that they are deeply conditioned by their experience, first with the French in the negotiations immediately after the war and then again with the results of the Geneva negotiations."

"In both cases, they feel, rightly or wrongly, that they were let down, that they reached an agreement and the other side refused to abide by it."

"As a result of that they say, time and again and quite openly, that they have to be doubly sure this time if they go into negotiations it's going to be one in which the agreement can be enforced," Salisbury said. "And those terms, an agreement which can be enforced, were used specifically to me by Pham Van Dong, their prime minister."

North Vietnamese conditions include a halt to the bombing of North Vietnam and the withdrawal of all U.S. forces from South Vietnam.

Pop entertainment signs Supremes for two shows

Finally--after two-and-a-half months of stalling and being stalled--the Supremes have signed a contract to give two performances Feb. 10 in the Auditorium.

The Supremes could not give a definite answer before because they were anticipating a European tour near the same dates MSU requested, said Mitchell Platt, ASMSU popular entertainment chairman.

Shortly before fall term finals week, the trio's agent notified Platt's committee that plans for a European tour at that time had been cancelled.

Tickets will go on sale in the Union and Campbell's Suburban Shop Jan. 25 for the Motown trio's two-hour 7 and 9:30 p.m. appearances.

Student ID cards must be presented during the first day of sales. Platt explained the stipulation is to give MSU students priority.

A second stipulation, endorsed to reduce ticket scalping, limits the purchase to two tickets per ID. This means, Platt continued, that no block sections may be reserved for fraternities, sororities, residence halls or organizations, which has been done previously.

Nationally rated the number 1 female singing group in 1964, the Supremes held the top position on an ASMSU popular entertainment survey last year.

Besides their own band, the Supremes will bring an additional group. Choice of the extra act resides with the Supremes, according to Platt, who expects it to be a Motown group.

Tickets for the only pop entertainment performance for winter term will sell for $3 general admission and $3.50 for reserved area seats.

Maddox hits extremism as students parade coffin

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) -- Democrat Lester G. Maddox, rural segregationist favorite, spoke out today against extremism and violence and pledged a "people's administration" after formally assuming the governorship he won in the legislature.

"Peace and tranquility will prevail in this state," Maddox said at his inauguration.

Maddox, 51, promised there would be no room for extremism or violence during his term.

But as the new governor took the oath of office on a platform in front of the gold-domed Capitol, a band of college students marched silently down the street carrying a black coffin.

The coffin bore a sign: "Here lies the New South."

Among the 48 students from four Atlanta colleges were several Negroes. Escorted by police, the demonstrators carried placards:

"The race is not always to the just."
"You can't eat racism."
"Axes to gavel; gavel to dust."

A crowd estimated at 4,000 by Police Supt. J. O. Moseley ringed the wooden platform as Maddox publicly took the oath he already had taken privately Tuesday after the Democratic legislature awarded him the governorship.

Several Negro legislators refused to choose between Maddox and Callaway, who picked up several Democratic votes. The General Assembly has only 30 Republicans.

At 7:18 p.m. Geer read a statement certifying the election of Maddox. Maddox partisans applauded and cheered.

Maddox, who ran second in the Nov. 8 popular vote, defeated Republican Howard H. Callaway in the historic legislative decision Tuesday night, 182-66.

The issue, with court clearance, went to the legislature when write-ins blocked a majority for either nominee.

But as Maddox took office, his pledge to preserve the right of dissent was met by plans for a new court challenge of his election.

ASMSU acts to aid seminar series

By ELLEN ZURKEY
State News Staff Writer

The ASMSU (Associated Students of Michigan State University) Student Board cut $1,500 from its compensation budget at its weekly meeting Tuesday. The action will reduce the money constitutionally allocated to the chairman, board members and vice presidents of ASMSU by about 50 per cent per term for the next three terms. The $1,500 was added to the budget surplus to allow ASMSU to continue its financial support of Winds of Change and the Provost Lecture Series.

The Provost Lecture and Winds of Change are both two-day speaker programs. Both are intended to stress personal participation by students.

The budget surplus now stand at $3,611 in unallocated tax money for the year ending Dec. 31, 1967. Winds of Change and Provost Lecture are both asking the ASMSU Board for $1,500 for the programs.

Action on these two proposals was delayed until next week to allow ASMSU time to reconsider the budget it ratified Dec. 6.

Both Winds of Change and the Provost Lecture had received some indication that the money would be allocated to them at Tuesday's meeting.

Sharon Vondra and Nancy Pierce, co-chairmen of the Winds of Change program, attended an informal ASMSU meeting in December. Seven ASMSU board members attended and all voted to allocate Winds of Change $1,500 this term, contingent on their seeking addi-

Lawyers charge government used 'bugs' on Bobby Baker

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The Bobby Baker trial hung in the balance Wednesday as his lawyers played an ace card - a charge of unconstitutional snooping by electronics.

Attorney Edward Bennett Williams and aides said that a government agent with a concealed bugging device met with Baker in the Beverly Wilshire Hotel, Los Angeles, on March 26, 1965.

They said the agent tried to pose as a possible client of theirs to obtain information about Baker, interfering with Baker's constitutional right to counsel.

They asked that all charges against Baker, including income tax evasion, fraudulent conversion to his own use of campaign funds intended for senators, and conspiracy, be dismissed.

U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch presumably will hear all dismissal arguments soon. Meantime the government went on with its effort to show that Baker amassed wealth and allegedly dodged thousands of dollars of income tax in 1961 and 1962.

Profs real challenge to students, not grades

It is not difficult to agree with the suggestions on grading which 15 history professors made in a letter to the State News Wednesday.

Certainly the grading system at Michigan State, which has continued unchanged since the 1920's could use some changes. The professors present several valid arguments in favor of a plus and minus system to augment straight letter grades.

They state, and correctly so, that "the present system of straight letter grades... makes such grades, and resulting averages, far less meaningful than they could easily be."

Adding pluses and minuses to straight letter grading, the professors contend, would make grades not only more meaningful, but fairer for students and easier for teachers.

Real significance

The real significance of the letter, though, lies not in the professors' challenge to the grading system, but in their challenge to students.

"At a time when traditional student apathy seems to have been breached," they say. "... we feel that the student body ought to take a long, hard look at grading."

Actually, they are asking whether student apathy really has been breached by the recent ATL fiasco.

Student action

If it has, then here is a relevant and important issue that could use student action. Either ASMSU or United Students, both of which have been liberally criticized existing traditions while bringing about few constructive changes, have the organization to take on the challenge.

Certainly, a thorough evaluation of the grading system is a project that easily invites student-initiated action. It is an area where the flow of action can be from the students up through the hierarchy, rather than the hierarchy down to the student.

What the 15 professors have done in their letter is raise an issue that needs extensive discussion. Whether the process is now continued, or ends with one letter, is up to the students.

Closed Academic Council anomaly on free campus

Provost Howard R. Neville, in a speech to the Academic Senate fall term remarked that consideration should soon be given to opening the meetings of the Academic Council.

To date Neville's remark has met with only inaction. The question has yet to come before the Council; the meetings remain closed.

The council, composed of the academic deans and elected representatives from the colleges, typically considers matters of general importance to students and faculty.

Serving as an advisor to the President, it has no actual power although its suggestions are almost always heeded.

That such an influential body does its business behind closed doors is an anomaly on a liberally oriented campus.

Reasons unclear

The reasons for the closed meeting are unclear. One council member, Steering Committee Chairman John F. A. Taylor, has offered one. The council, he suggests, feels its members would be under a certain amount of pressure if it conducted open meetings.

One cannot deny that at times members of the council might come under pressure. Members of almost any important body are likely to be under pressure at some time.

But those parties who would pressure the council-- the faculty and students--are the parties who have a legitimate vested interest in the council's actions. Do they not have a right to know what is said in the council?

Only fair

It is only fair that students who are affected by council decisions should know what goes on in the meetings and should use whatever influence is at their command to affect these deliberations.

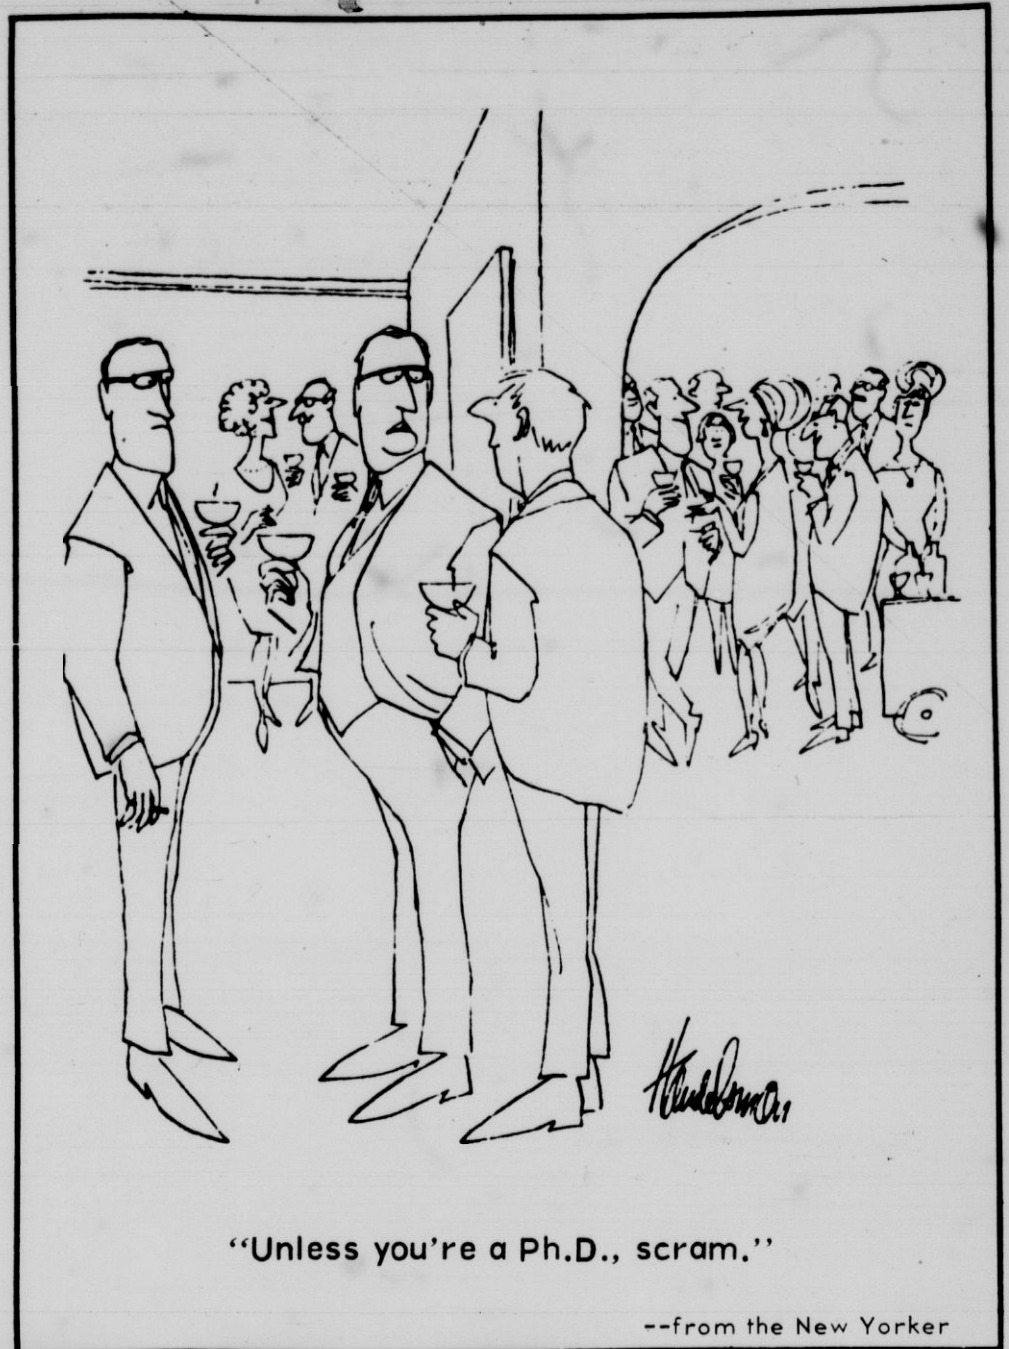

The possibility that the faculty might apply pressure should be welcomed. After all, the Council is supposed to represent the faculty. Any application of pressure would be an indication of better communication between the council members and the faculty at large.

When questioned last term, William H. Combs, dean of University Services and secretary of the council, said that he knew of no good reason why the council should be kept closed. The subject has not been seriously considered; it has just remained on the books from an earlier date.

In short, the council keeps its meetings closed because that is the way it has been done for years. The council, perhaps fearful of some sort of imaginary pressure, has never taken the time to upset tradition and open its meetings.

It is now time to upset this tradition.

Chinese power struggle splits

An AP News Analysis

The main actors in the unfolding drama of Red China's power struggle have been comrades in war, revolution and nation-building for more than three decades. Today they are divided into two--and perhaps three--camps in a struggle for control of a vast, backward and hungry land of 750 million people.

One camp--actually it may be a minority faction of the Chinese Communist party--is headed by party Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Defense Minister Lin Piao. They have strong influence with the People's Liberation Army. They, together, appear to have been the creators of the Red Guard movement of violent teen-agers who spearhead what is called "the great proletarian cultural revolution," a euphemism for Mao's purge.

A second camp is headed by Liu Shao-chi, chairman of the government, an office equivalent to president. He has the support of influential figures who control China's industrial labor and considerable authority among the nation's intellectuals.

A third camp appears to be somewhere in between these two, perhaps trying to keep the Communist party from tearing itself to pieces in this struggle. Among those who may be in the third group are Teng Hsiao-ping, the general secretary of the party, and Tao Chu, the able and often ruthless administrator from south China who rose meteorically to top party levels since August, when the "cultural revolution" was officially launched.

The why and how of Mao's purge goes back at least eight or nine years. It had its beginnings in Mao's "great leap forward," an ambitious plan by which China--by virtue of regimented peasants in "people's communes" and millions of backyard smelters in the nation's cities--was supposed to leap "toward communism" and economic might.

The main actors in the unfolding drama of Red China's power struggle have been comrades in war, revolution and nation-building for more than three decades. Today they are divided into two--and perhaps three--camps in a struggle for control of a vast, backward and hungry land of 750 million people.

The son of a well-to-do peasant from Hunan Province, he became a Communist in 1921. It was a divided party for 10 years thereafter, until Mao turned on the pro-Moscow elements and cleaned them out of the leadership. Thereafter Mao led the party and its armed forces to victory over the Nationalists and was master of the nation by Oct. 1, 1949. Since then he has had to conduct purges once every three or four years, but none has been as confused as the current "cultural revolution."

Lin Piao, at 59, he is one of the youngest of the top Chinese leadership. He suffers from latent tuberculosis, and has not been in good health for many years. Lin rose to prominence after Mao's 1959 purge in which Defense Minister Peng Teh-huai was fired for opposing Mao policies.

Lin became defense minister, and increasingly became the interpreter of "Mao Tse-tung's thinking." He reached a pinnacle of influence in 1965, when he published his "Long Live Victory of People's War," which was an elaboration of Mao's theories on how revolution, arising in the countryside, would envelop the cities. He likened the advanced countries to cities and the backward nations to the countryside in his forecast for the fortunes of the world revolution.

Chou En-lai, Chou is premier, the head of the government apparatus. In the current struggle he patently has been allied with the Mao-Lin group.

Chou, at 69, is regarded as the perennial government functionary who remains safe by not aspiring to the pinnacle of power, but he is an influential leader. A product of university education in China, Japan and France, he is China's suave diplomat today. But his youth was one of violent revolution. He could, despite his appearance of not aspiring to the peak of power, emerge from the current struggle as a contender for the Mao mantle.

Liu Shao-chi, the president of the People's Republic is a slender, ascetic man who, with Mao, was a founder of the Chinese Communist movement.

Long a theoretician, he has already been regarded as an inflexibly dogmatic Marxist Communist. Now 69, he devoted his entire adult life to the party and had long been regarded as Mao's closest disciple and heir-apparent. Now he is considered the leader of the opposition to Mao.

Teng Hsiao-ping, The 64-year-old general secretary of the party may be caught in the middle by the current struggle.

Teng--stocky, short and tough, with a broad, flat face and hunched posture, rose to prominence in 1953 when he became an economic czar with power over the nation's purse strings. He is essentially a part organization man, rigidly correct with regard to Marxist-Leninist doctrine and coldly anti-Soviet.

Tao Chu, Tao has been regarded as a possible gray eminence behind the current purge. He long was a close lieutenant of Lin Piao and a faithful disciple of Mao. At 60, he is tough and often ruthless.

Tao administered the country's most difficult area, south China, before rising meteorically to prominence last summer. Now Tao, a rugged man with crew cut gray hair and square jaw, finds himself denounced by the Red Guards, possibly because of his efforts to keep the party from falling to pieces.

Chen Po-ta, Another newcomer to prominence, Chen, now 62, served for a long time as private secretary to Mao. He is Mao's ally in the struggle.

OUR READERS' MINDS

Bookstore raises price

To the Editor:
I have just returned from purchasing my books at the Campus Book Store in East Lansing.

While waiting in line to check them out, I curiously unpeeled the $1.25 sticker that was on the upper right hand corner of the book cover. Much to my disgust, I had uncovered, printed on the book cover, 95 cents.

If there is a reason as to why the Campus Book Store or Michigan State or whoever is responsible for book prices must charge 30 cents extra on a standard pocket book, I would like to know it.

This, along with the outlandish cost of a container of milk, causes me to believe that Michigan State cares little about the financial problems of its students.

Incident distasteful

To the Editor:
The housing incident reported in the State News of Jan. 6 sounded very distasteful to me because just a few days ago I wrote home telling my people that the university city of East Lansing is a place where discrimination is almost non-existent.

For an African student to have fallen a victim to such a misdemeanor is something least expected, and it is unfortunate that people like the landlord are trying to make nonsense of the whole concept of U.S. aid to and fraternity with countries in Africa and elsewhere.

I do hope, however, that every effort will be made in and around this university to stave off any more incidents in order to preserve the goodwill which MSU is striving to establish and consolidate in Africa and elsewhere through its numerous international projects.

Viet constitution draft ready

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) -- A draft constitution for Viet Nam which is to pave the way for election of a civilian legislature, promised later this year, came under discussion today for the first time by the full Constituent Assembly.

The 117 members of the assembly received the document from their drafting committee Tuesday. Nine subcommittees turned out nine chapters with 135 articles.

Capp denies Baez charge

BOSTON (AP) -- Cartoonist Al Capp says he is "astonished" that folk singer Joan Baez sees any resemblance between herself and Capp's cartoon character, "Joanie Phoenix."

"My character is a big fake," Capp said in an interview with station WNAC. "She hates her country; won't pay taxes and whines and gripes all the time."

"She loves the Red Chinese and loves soldiers who kill American soldiers. How can she (Miss Baez) think I have created a character who resembles her?"

The long-haired folk singer said in Honolulu Monday that she was contemplating court action to try and eliminate Capp's character. She called it "disgusting."

TOKYO (AP) -- Red China's official news agency said Thursday President Johnson's State of the Union message "could hardly conceal the fact that U.S. imperialism has been tied down and pounded by the heroic people of Viet Nam and has showed itself up as a paper tiger."

"Johnson made it unmistakably clear that the recent maneuvers for peace talks on Viet Nam made by U.S. imperialism and its accomplices and flunkies are intended merely as a smoke screen for the escalation of the war," the agency added.

Powell move may cut Dem power base

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Democrats appear to be the most likely political losers from the disciplining of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell even though both parties played important roles in the two-day drama.

The reason is simple: More Negroes consider themselves Democrats than Republicans.

Although many congressmen reported their mail indicated a majority of Americans favored punitive action against the controversial Harlem Democrat, the nation's Negro leaders rallied strongly to his side.

And after Tuesday's vote in which the House kept Powell from taking his seat pending an investigation, he appeared on the front steps of the Capitol and called on Negroes to consider "a new independent course of action."

The Democratic caucus had picked William Ryan, D.-Detroit, as its candidate for speaker. Waldron, escorted to the speaker's platform, told the crowded house, "It is my sincere hope that my term as speaker will not be as tenuous as it was torturous getting here."

"I promise I will do the very best job I can," he said. "I am not always non-partisan, and you know that," he added, "but I will be fair."

Mao forces call for aid

TOKYO (AP) -- The Chinese Communist party Central Committee called on the army and "all revolutionary forces" Wednesday to "start a new assault" on the foes of Mao Tse-tung, Radio Peking announced. So far as is known, the army has taken but little part in the purge sweeping China.

As the call went out, wall posters in Peking said strikes and sabotage by workers and others opposing the purge had spread from Canton in the south to the Taching oil fields in the extreme north. Canton radio broadcast repeated alerts to electrical workers to prevent sabotage in the city's power plants.

Japanese press reports from Peking said train traffic was virtually paralyzed on the mainland because many railway workers had flocked to Peking to take part in the purge, as has been the fashion of Mao's militant young Red Guards. Wall posters quoted Premier Chou En-lai as urging the workers to return to their jobs.

A Chinese language broadcast said the Central Committee's statement was issued jointly with the ruling State Council, the party's military committee and cultural revolutionary workers.

"We call on all parties, governments, military, people, workers, farmers, revolutionary students, intellectuals and leaders to learn the experience of the Shanghai revolutionary workers and in unison start a new assault on the counterrevolutionary line," the statement said.

The statement was referring to pro-Mao forces in Shanghai, where strikes and violence earlier had been reported by People's Daily.

This and an editorial appearing in People's Daily and the theoretical journal Red Flag called on all pro-Mao forces to "stand up and take emergency action" to crush the counterrevolutionary forces.

"We warn a handful of those stubbornly clinging to the bourgeois reactionary line to make a last-minute reconsideration and surrender to the revolutionary people," said the editorial broadcast by Peking. "Otherwise, they will bring upon themselves evil results."

The "handful" apparently referred to backers of President Liu Shao-chi, an object of Mao's purge.

Referring to the strikes reported spreading across the country, the editorial said Mao's foes "also incited the masses to walk off their jobs in an attempt to take over factories, causing production of some factories to halt. They also paralyzed transportation in order to destroy the cultural revolution."

Dogs get heart transfers

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) -- Two surgeons at the Medical College of Virginia have successfully transplanted hearts from dog cadavers to live dogs, the surgeons said Wednesday.

One of the surgeons, Dr. Richard J. Cleveland, predicted the first human heart transplant "within five years." He added, however, that he was reluctant to boost recovery hopes of persons with chronic or terminal heart disease.

Dr. Cleveland, 34, a native of Foxboro, Mass., and Dr. Richard R. Lower, 37, of Detroit, said eight of 10 dogs with cadaver hearts have lived more than 48 hours without additional treatment. Others, with hearts transplanted from living donors, have survived for more than a year.

The startling transplant experiments were disclosed in a paper the surgeons prepared for a transplantation conference, sponsored by the University of California, at Santa Barbara.

Dr. Cleveland, who explained the paper in an interview, said that of the first 10 dogs receiving cadaver hearts, nine survived surgery. Of these, one died 24 hours after the operation, and the remaining eight lived more than 48 hours before the hearts stopped.

In another experiment, one dog lived five weeks and another three months when given drugs to combat the natural rejection reaction.

"The experiments have proved initially," Dr. Cleveland said, "that a cadaver heart can be cooled four hours and have enough functional reserve left to support the new host completely."

Capital friction reaches peak

By DENNIS CHASE
Associate Sports Editor

Stan Washington, second-highest scorer in Spartan basketball history and an All-Big Ten selection last year, is the center of a controversy that could force Lansing Capital Basketball Coach Bill Tosheff, right out of a job.

Jim Kallman, general manager of the Capitals, revealed Wednesday that he had released Tosheff from his duties because Tosheff had refused to serve as coach if Washington remained as an active player.

"He gave me no alternative," Kallman said in his office at the Ingham County Court, where he is a judge. "He told me repeatedly that he wouldn't coach the team if Washington stayed, and even after I ordered him to do so. He didn't resign, but when a man tells me that he won't follow my orders, he leaves me no alternative."

Washington had been fined $25 and suspended by Kallman on Jan. 6, after an altercation between Washington and Tosheff. Tosheff was suspended also but received no fine.

"I didn't resign and Kallman has a telegram from me to that effect," Tosheff said. "And I'll be in there coaching the team at their next game on Jan. 21. The general manager seems to think that he has done a thorough job of investigating, but I haven't heard from him since Jan. 6, when he suspended me."

"I have a no-cut agreement with the team so he can't fire me. As for Washington, it was a simple case of insubordination, a verbal attack, and I don't put even after I ordered him to do so. He didn't resign, but when a man tells me that he won't fol-

Clayton Powell and Jim Kallman."

John Petroff, owner of Petroff Realty Co., and one of seven owners of the Capitals, said he knew nothing about the incident from the time of the suspensions until now. However, he has been in touch with Tosheff.

Petroff said there will be a meeting of the owners Wednesday night to "get the facts." "I can't accept this resignation until I hear what exactly happened," he said.

Tosheff had considerable difficulty signing Washington for the Capitals in late July of 1966, and it was said that this caused friction with Kallman as well as Washington.

Kallman named Lance Olson, former Michigan Stater, as player-coach.

Friendlier days

Lansing Capital Coach Bill Tosheff, left, is shown talking with star player Stan Washington, when the two were negotiating for Washington's services last summer.

Schmidt signed

DETROIT (UPI) -- Affable Joe Schmidt, a granite-tough linebacker during the Detroit Lions' glory days, was signed Wednesday as the new head coach of the troubled National Football League team.

Schmidt, who will be 35 this month, agreed to a five-year contract at a reported $50,000 a year. He replaces Harry Gilmer, a cowboy-clothed Southwesterner who was fired last Friday after two seasons. The Lions dropped to a tie for last place in the NFL's Western Division last season.

Auto heir William Clay Ford, the Lions' owner, finally reached agreement with Schmidt after launching negotiations with him Monday. Ford made it clear the day he fired Gilmer that Schmidt, a Lion assistant coach last season, was the man he wanted for the job.

Flying!

Spartan swim team co-captain Ed Glick demonstrates the butterfly stroke he uses so effectively, as one of the Big Ten's top performers. The butterfly is one of the non-crawl strokes used in swimming competition.

IN SWIM MEETS

'Non-crawl' strokes vital

Second of two parts

By JOHN LADD
State News Sports Writer

Though the crawl stroke is by far the most efficient way of swimming, there are three non-crawl strokes that are used in every swimming meet. The butterfly, the backstroke and the breaststroke may lack the speed of the crawl, but they are just as necessary to the MSU swimming team.

Butterfly is the fastest and, to the beginner, the most difficult of the three competitive non-crawl strokes. According to the NCAA rule book, "All movements of the arms must be symmetrical and simultaneous and all recoveries must be over the water." The feet also must move together as the butterfly uses what is called the dolphin kick.

The butterfly breathes by jerking his head up during the stroke. Most good collegiate "fliers" lift their heads just as they finish the underwater part of the stroke and dive the head back under just as the arms enter the water in front of the swimmer. This permits the best body position while the arm drives through the water.

The butterfly's kick is modeled on the dolphin, one of nature's fastest sea creatures. The kick involves the whole body, the undulation starting at the head and finishing with a strong flip of the feet. The "flier" must time his kicks so that they mesh properly with his arm strokes. Usually there are two kicks for every arm stroke, the first starting when the swimmer dives his head down as his arms enter the water after the recovery over water.

Breaststroke, though it is probably the oldest of the four strokes, is still in a state of evolution. The modern breast-stroker uses the over-the-barrel arm stroke and the whip-kick. The traditional arm stroke pulls out wide from the shoulders, while the new stroke bends the elbow and keeps the hands under the body. The whip-kick is also much narrower than the traditional wide-spread knees and feet of the frog kick.

Just about the only rule governing the backstroke is the obvious requirement that the backstroker must remain on his back throughout the race. However, the competitive stroke is universally swum with alternating arms.

Gary Dille is MSU's -- and probably the nation's -- best backstroker. He holds the American record in the 100-yard backstroke with a 0:52.4 and has tied the American record in the 200.

After losing the Varsity breaststroke record holder by the graduation of Lee Driver, the Spartans will look to Jack Marsh, Greg Brown and Carl Waber in the breaststroke events. Brown proved himself a strong prospect by his 2:21.8 victory in the 200 at the Bowling Green meet in December.

Co-captain Ed Glick holds the team's butterfly records, but in order to free him for swimming other events, much will depend on John Muslin and George Booth.

More trouble for Sweetan

Sweetan originally sought the divorce, accusing the petite former Playboy Club bunny of promiscuity and desertion.

IT'S A NORTH WIND THAT BLOWS NO GOOD

Crushed between the twin millstones of January weather and final exams, you are saved from total despair, poor devils, only by the knowledge that winter vacation will soon be here.

Where will you go this year? Will it be Florida again, or are you tired of jails? Then how about Puerto Rico?

A most excellent notion, say I. A balmy and bounteous island with long white beaches and blue, blue skies and green, healing seas. And, most pleasant of all, the warm and gracious people of Puerto Rico! You don't even have to know Spanish to communicate with this friendly folk. Just learn three simple phrases and you'll get along splendidly: "Buenos dias" which means "Good morning," "Gracias" which means "Thank you," and "Que sera sera" which means "Your llama is on my foot."

In order to help you enjoy the fabled land of Puerto Rico it would be well for me to supply a bit of historical background. (It would also be well for me to say a few words about Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades because the makers of Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades pay me to write this column and they are inclined to sulk if I omit to mention their product. Of course, they don't stay gloomy long, for they are kindly, cheery men fond of Morris dancing, spelling bees, and temperance punch—fine, upright types, as true and gleaming and durable as the blades they make. And if you've tried Personna's, you know how true and gleaming and durable that is! And if you haven't tried Personna's, poor devil, you've cheated both your purse and face, for Personna's last and last, shave after luxury shave, close, clean, nickless, hackless, tugless, gougeless, scratchless, matchless. Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades come in Double Edge or Injector style and are made only by the makers of Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades.)

But I digress. Back to the history of Puerto Rico. The island was discovered by that popular discoverer Christopher Columbus. Incidentally, considering Columbus' popularity, it's odd we know so little about him. What do we really know? Only this:

He was born in Genoa on August 25, 1451, the son of Ralph T. Columbus, a knee-cymbal vendor, and Eleanor (Swift) Columbus, a low hurdler. He was an only child except for his five brothers and eight sisters. From early childhood he was an avid reader and spent all his waking hours immersed in a book. Unfortunately, there was only one book in Genoa at the time—Care of the Horse by Aristotle—and after 18 years of reading Care of the Horse, Columbus grew restless. When rumor reached him there was another book in Madrid, off he ran as fast as his little fat legs would carry him.

Disappointment, alas, awaited him there. The only book in Madrid was Cuidar un Caballo, which proved to be nothing more than a Spanish translation of Care of the Horse.

Then one day Columbus heard from a traveller that there were millions of books in India, and he was instantly ablaze to set sail. Off he ran on his little fat legs to the court of Ferdinand and Isabella (Columbus, though more than six feet tall, was plagued with little fat legs all his life) and, as we all know, he persuaded the Spanish rulers to outfit him with three stout ships, the Flopsy, the Mopsy, and the Cottontail, and the rest is history!

Well sir, now you know all about the origins of Puerto Rico. So get packed and get going! You'll love it! Stroll the beaches, swim the coves, breathe the fragrance of hibiscus and bougainvillea. And remember always that the friendly Puerto Ricans are delighted to show you their customs, teach you their language. Why, I'll wager you'll soon know far more Spanish than the three basic phrases. You'll know "Hasta la vista" which means "See you later," "Por favor" which means "Please," and "El tren se paro en las estaciones" which means "Your llama has eaten my passport."

Gracias from the makers of Personna for giving our blades such a cordial reception, and, por favor, how about trying another of our luxury shaving products—Burma Shave, regular or menthol!

Who belongs in 'S' nets?

Who's No. 1?

Senior Jerry Fisher and junior Gaye Cooley are both top-notch goalies for the MSU hockey team. Coach Amo Bessone's main problem is finding out who is best.

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer
Hockey goal tenders are a peculiar breed. Only a few ever stand out as being exceptional in the collegiate and professional hockey ranks.

Here at MSU, Coach Amo Bessone doesn't have that problem of finding a qualified goalie. Instead, he has two good ones—Gaye Cooley, a junior and Jerry Fisher, a senior.

The problem for Bessone is— which one should he play regularly when both have proven they can handle the job adequately? "Well, we've been getting good goaltending jobs from both of them all season and I'll continue alternating them as the season goes on. Both right now are fighting for the regular job, and we'll just have to wait and see as to who will win out.

"You can't blame our goaltending for our losses. (MSU has a 5-7 overall record). It's been our defense and we've been inconsistent in getting the puck out of our defensive zone. We sharpen that and we'll help our goalies."

At the beginning of the season Bessone started Cooley regularly and did not begin Fisher until the eighth game of the season, the final of the Great Lakes Invitational at Detroit.

Bessone was counting on Cooley to turn in a repeat performance of last spring when he helped lead the Spartans to their first NCAA championship. Bessone kept Cooley in the nets, despite the team's inability to come up with successive wins. The Spartans split with Minnesota, dropped two to Michigan and lost all three championship games in the holiday tournaments.

As the team lost, the blame fell on Cooley, and people began to ask why Fisher wasn't given more of a chance.

Hoping that a change of goalies would change the luck of the team, Bessone started Fisher in the first game of last weekend's series with Colorado College. The move paid off as Fisher authored the Western Collegiate Hockey Assn.'s (WCHA) first shutout of the season, 6-0.

But the next night, Cooley was back in the nets and lost, 5-4, bringing loud clamors from fans for Fisher.

"We had planned all along to alternate them," said Bessone. "I gave no thought to start Fisher the second night, even though he gained a shutout. I thought that it would just make Cooley play a little harder."

"And he did too. He has really had only a couple of bad games all season. That 9-3 loss to Minnesota was his worse."

Bessone said that his plans to alternate the two goalies again this weekend and next Monday and Tuesday, in games out West against Colorado College and

Denver, will keep "the goalies on their toes."

"This is a coming thing to alternate goalies in hockey," said Bessone. "As I look back most of the good teams are doing it in the WCHA—Minnesota, Michigan Tech, Michigan. So are the Detroit Red Wings."

Fisher, who is playing his third year on the Spartan team, has the best average with a 2.0 mark. In three games he has given up six goals and has made 57 saves.

Cooley, appearing in 10 games, has a 4.5 average. He has given up 44 goals and has made 337 saves.

AT CONVENTION

NCAA 1.6 rule upheld

HOUSTON (UPI)—The NCAA's controversial 1.6 academic rule withstood 10 ballots and two hours of lively debate Wednesday to emerge intact for at least another year at the annual business session of the 61st NCAA convention. Proponents of the C-minus rule received one scare when an amendment to cut its effectiveness from four years to one year came within two votes of passing, 127-125. On a recount, the proponents rallied their forces, many of whom had gone to lunch, and soundly defeated the amendment 144-116.

An attempt to repeal the rule had failed earlier, 153-113, in the largest vote on a single issue in the history of the NCAA convention.

The rule, adopted last year, requires a high school athlete to have a grade point average of 1.6 under the 4.0 system and to maintain this average throughout his college career to remain eligible for varsity athletics.

The proposal which failed by only two votes would have abolished a section of the rule pertaining to varsity eligibility, but would have continued it as a requirement for college admission.

The amendment was sponsored by the Southwest Conference, the convention host.

Other amendments which would have relaxed the rule's requirements were defeated.

'Great class hunt' opens new term

By DOROTHY LASKEY
State News Staff Writer

The thoroughness of the new classroom building designers has added humor and confusion to the great classroom hunt that takes place the first two days of each term.

Experience has proved that a student with a class scheduled in "101 Natural Resources Bldg." should be wary. Room 101 may be a storage closet, a restroom, or a fire extinguisher cabinet.

There are 494 classrooms, lecture halls, laboratories, and conference rooms available on campus for "intellectual pursuits."

More than 35,000 students here are enrolled in three to five of the various 1,500 class sessions offered each term on campus.

The classroom schedule is coordinated at least a term in advance by Terrence Armstrong of the Registrar's office.

Increasing classes, more classrooms, more students, and new buildings all combine with the human element to add confusion to the schedule for some students.

Armstrong's office reports that most students take class misplacement in good humor. They tell of the coed who called the office during finals week and asked where her final was to be held. She said that it was scheduled at a room number which turned out to be the men's lounge. She said she checked the room and when she found no desks set up, she was sure there had been some mistake.

Faculty members trying to compete "live" with a televised lecture on an entirely unrelated subject in the same auditorium have been known to become irate. In such a case it is the televised lecturer who wins.

Many students have expressed fear of a fateful avenger who manipulates their classroom assignments. These are the commuters who have 8 o'clocks in Fee, the "Berkey" majors who have one course at mid-day in the vet clinic and the first term student here who happens to get a campus map which doesn't even have the Last Complex area shaded in.

However there is something to be said for the "togetherness" feeling resulting from roaming the halls with your classmates and instructor in search of an empty and available classroom.

There is a comic element involved in watching brawny males filing out of the home ec building. And it must be an interesting experience to have perhaps an art course scheduled in the sterile, surgical atmosphere of Giltner Hall.

'ALL THINGS TO ALL MEN'

HHH says tax increase would aid home, abroad

WASHINGTON (P) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said Wednesday that President Johnson's proposed tax increase is geared to meeting Vietnam war costs, continuing the "forward movement" of domestic programs and ending the tight money pinch.

Johnson stunned many members of Congress by asking for a 6 per cent tax surcharge on corporations and most individuals, beginning next July 1, in his Tuesday night message on the State of the Union.

Republican leaders and some Democrats complained that by not suggesting spending cuts in "Great Society" programs the President had not made a case for extracting around $4.5 billion yearly from the taxpayers to apply on war outlays. Strong bipartisan opposition to the increase was indicated.

Humphrey, who has been working closely with the President and his advisers on the State of the Union proposals, said in an interview that Johnson's "act of political courage" had a three-fold purpose.

"The President believes that everyone should share in the burdens of the Vietnam war," Humphrey said. "I think myself that a great many Americans feel guilty because they haven't shared this burden."

"Secondly, the tax increase would help continue the forward movement of our national investment in education, cities, people and natural resources.

"In the third place, it is designed to encourage the easing of tight money and the lowering of interest rates. It would be reassuring to the Federal Reserve System and hopefully lead to the ending of the tight money policy.

"It would demonstrate that Congress and the executive departments are willing to do their part in this field, without leaving all the burden on monetary policies alone."

Humphrey applauded what he said is Johnson's intention to push the educational, anti-poverty, Head Start, model cities, housing, Teachers Corps, rent subsidy, antipollution and other programs ahead.

"In my estimation," the Vice President said, "the President told the country that we have the means and the will to do the job both in Vietnam and at home. He is aware that we will have to ration those means."

"The programs that we have in the storehouse through the actions of the 89th Congress must be refined, tailored and adjusted, but they are not going to be thrown aside."

Judging contest set for Saturday

The Block and Bridle Club will hold its annual Little International Judging Contest at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Judging Pavilion.

This livestock-fitting and showing contest is open to any student on campus and is not restricted to experienced showmen. The 140 students participating this year drew Friday for their animals, which include horses, cattle, sheep and swine from the University Farms, and must get them into showing condition for the event.

In the past, the Little International has attracted many students, staff and prominent livestock breeders in Michigan.

School calendar juggled

Smith works with calendars dated up to the year 2000 and beyond. He shuffles dates, days and figures so that the academic calendar fits the requirements of the Academic Council, and includes a minimum of 45 and a maximum of 50 class days each term -- with summer term ending the Friday before Labor Day.

Consequently, at first glance, it appears that spring term 1968 commencement is one week early (June 9). But students will attend classes the regular number of days.

Presently, students return for fall classes three weeks after Labor Day. An alternate plan, to be used for the first time next year, will shorten the recess to two weeks.

Smith works with calendars dated up to the year 2000 and beyond. He shuffles dates, days and figures so that the academic calendar fits the requirements of the Academic Council, and includes a minimum of 45 and a maximum of 50 class days each term -- with summer term ending the Friday before Labor Day.

Consequently, at first glance, it appears that spring term 1968 commencement is one week early (June 9). But students will attend classes the regular number of days.

Mexico's capital hit by snow

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Palm trees bent Wednesday under the weight of Mexico City's first snowfall in 26 years.

About three inches of snow-the heaviest on record here-fell on the capital before dawn, in a storm that has covered northern parts of Mexico with up to three feet of snow since Sunday night.

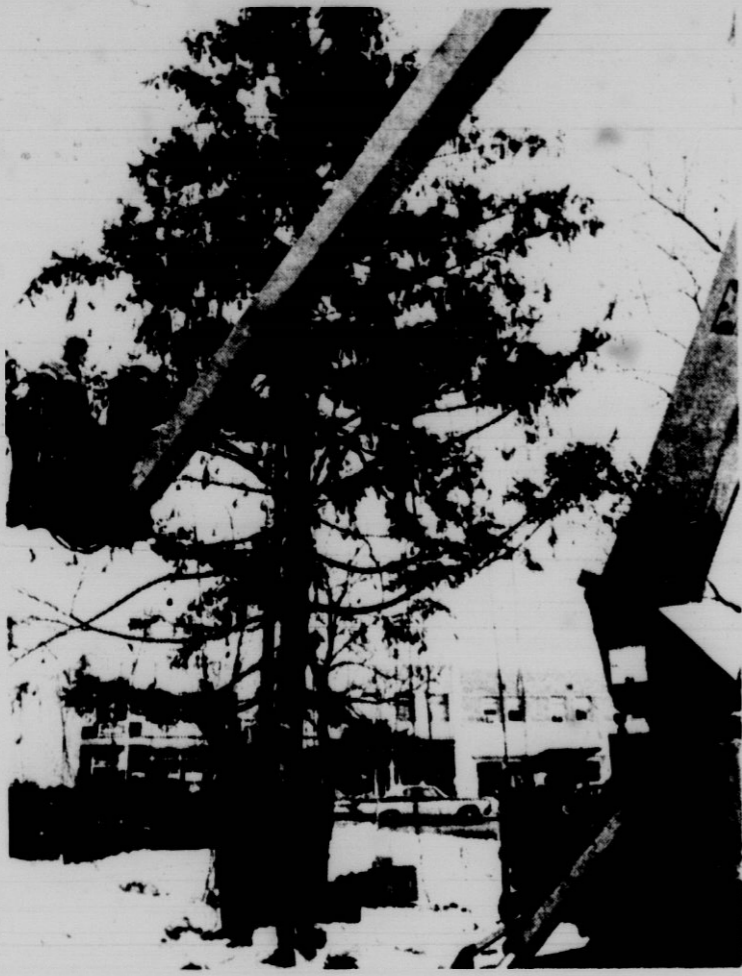

The weather bureau said more might fall during the night.

Six deaths were attributed to the weather, raising the wintry toll throughout the country to at least 16.

Roads out of Mexico City-all of which go through the mountains ringing the 7,347-foot capital-were closed. Airports in most parts of the country shut-down or curtailed operations. Only international flights left the Mexico City Airport.

In Acapulco, American tourists stayed in hotel rooms and grumbled about rain and unusual cold. The temperature there was in the low 40s.

Most of those killed by the weather appeared to be poor people who normally sleep in doorways or in unheated shacks. City officials gave shelter to more than 2,000 persons threatened by the cold.

LONG URGES BAN

RFK, Hoover may not testify at bugging probe

WASHINGTON (AP) - The chances of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., and J. Edgar Hoover testifying in their dispute over FBI eavesdropping appeared to evaporate Wednesday.

Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., said that neither Kennedy nor the FBI director has accepted an invitation he extended in a Dec. 12 news release for them to appear before his subcommittee investigating invasions of privacy.

Long said in an interview he does not intend "to send a formal invitation" to either, but he said he considers his statement of last month as offering them an opportunity to appear if they wished to do so.

He said, however, that he plans further hearings even if Kennedy and Hoover do not testify and will push legislation urged by President Johnson Tuesday night to outlaw electronic "bugging" and "snooping" and also wire-tapping except when national security is at stake.

Long said the President's

State of the Union statements about safeguarding the right to privacy were "right down my alley."

A judiciary subcommittee Long heads has been working on legislation along the lines Johnson recommended, and Long said he will meet with Justice Department representatives in the next few days in hopes of agreeing on a bill.

The dispute between Kennedy and Hoover flared last month after the FBI director said that Kennedy, while attorney general, not only knew of FBI "bugging" in major criminal cases but encouraged it.

Kennedy replied that he had not authorized it and was not aware of it. The FBI eavesdropping has placed several Justice Department prosecutions in jeopardy.

Long said last month that his subcommittee will conduct hearings on these activities and he would invite both Kennedy and Hoover to testify. "Now that the ice has been broken, the public certainly has a right to know all the facts," he said.

He said Wednesday his subcommittee plans further investigative hearings in a month or so about Internal Revenue Service practices.

Asked if any Justice Department witnesses would be called even if Hoover does not testify, he said, "There is that possibility."

Kennedy has indicated he does not intend to push for a chance to testify.

The legislation outlined by Johnson seems certain to run into heavy going in Congress. Past proposals in this field have foundered in a sea of controversy.

A 1934 federal law now makes information obtained by wire-tapping inadmissible as evidence in court.

But there is no federal law against bugging, which usually involves the use of hidden microphones to pick up conversations.

Board gives legal aid

The Associated Students of Michigan State University (ASMSU) appropriated $50 to pay court expenses for a student involved in a damage deposit dispute.

Harold Neiman, Marine City senior, said that the apartment was cleaned before it was vacated. His landlord claims that the walls needed repainting and the lock had to be fixed before the apartment could be rented again.

This case is important for two reasons, said Jim Carbine, vice-chairman of ASMSU. If Neiman wins, the case could set a precedent in Lansing courts to which other students could refer in the future. The case also should make students aware that landlords make up reasons why a deposit cannot be refunded, he said.

Neiman is presently filing suit in Justice Court.

Econ prof to assist Nigeria

An MSU professor left for Nigeria Tuesday to conduct an analysis of nutritional problems during the next four weeks.

Victor E. Smith, professor of economics, will gather information that will help planners achieve a better balance between nutrition deficiencies and agricultural production.

Smith is developing a mathematical model that will take into account labor supply, food imports and exports, agricultural production and nutritional problems.

Alma students exhibit graphics

The Alma Arts and Crafts Center of Alma is exhibiting student work in the Graphic Design Dept. of Kresge Art Center.

On exhibit are lettering plates, book cover designs, page layouts, posters, 3-D work and photographs from Idiom 4 and Idiom 5, the Alma student graphic design publication.

The show at Kresge, which opened last Sunday will run through Jan. 28. The gallery is open from 9 a.m. noon Saturday, 2-5 p.m. Sunday and 1-5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday.

FACULTY FACTS

His trip is sponsored by the Consortium for the Study of Nigerian Rural Development.

Jack Stieber, director of the School of Labor and Industrial Relations at MSU, has been elected to a three-year term on the executive board of the Industrial Relations Research Association.

The national association is made up of 3,000 academicians and executives affiliated with labor and industrial relations activities.

M. Thomas Inge, assistant professor of American Thought and Language, edited an article in the Dec. 15 issue of "Georgia Review" giving evidence that William Faulkner's literary genius was recognized earlier in his career than most literary historians have assumed.

The article, entitled "Donald Davidson on Faulkner: An Early Recognition," says that Davidson, another Southern author, published appreciative reviews of three early Faulkner novels on a book page he edited for the "Nashville Tennessean." At the time Faulkner's work was meeting nothing but rejection from critics. However, he was subsequently recognized and was awarded the Nobel prize for literature in 1949.

Inge, a native of Virginia, has degrees from Randolph-Macon College and Vanderbilt University. He taught at Vanderbilt two years before coming to MSU. He has edited an edition of "Sut Lovingood's Yarns" and collaborated with Thomas D. Young on a recently published book "Donald Davidson: An Essay and a Bibliography."

Arts-Letters series brings concert duo

The College of Arts and Letters Concert Series will present violinist Sanford Allen and pianist Lawrence Smith in the second concert of the present series at 8:15 tonight in the Music Auditorium.

The recital includes the first performance of William Syde-man's "Duo for Violin and Piano." The program will open with Jean Marie LeClair's "Sonata in D Major." Other works on the program are "Sonata No. 40 in B Flat Major, K. 454" by W.A. Mozart, Anton Webern's "Vierstucke," and "Premiere Sonata" by Charles Camille Saint-Saens. Allen, a native of New York, has been a student of Vera Fonaroff at the Juilliard School of Music and Mannes College of Music. He has studied chamber music with Lillian Fuchs and William Kroll.

Smith is the resident conductor of the Metropolitan Opera and a distinguished solo pianist. Hewon the Dmitri Mitropoulos Competition for Conductors in 1964.

Individual tickets for the concert will be available at the door.

tervene at the request of firemen's Local 421, International Brotherhood of Firefighters, AFL-CIO, said Gary Thomas, the local's president.

Firemen voted early in the week to grant a mediation board representing them the right to call for a "withholding of services" from the city at a later date if demands were not met.

Thomas, who represents 240 Lansing firemen, said "withholding of services" could mean anything from not doing the normal janitorial work firemen attend to in their stations to a complete walk-out.

Thomas said he is optimistic about the coming negotiations, pointing to past rulings by a fact-finding committee over disputes between firemen and the city.

He warned, however, that "we are at a point now where we just aren't going to take it any longer."

Thomas said a strike could be called if Friday's negotiations meet an impasse.

Lansing's chief negotiator in the wage dispute, Dan Bodwin, said Wednesday he too is optimistic about the negotiations and added that he thinks the dispute has received "a lot more noise than is justified."

The recommendation by a special commission of the American Bar Assn. to abolish the electoral college system of electing presidents has brought a mixed response from members of the MSU Political Science Dept.

The proposal calls for a constitutional amendment abolishing the 177-year-old electoral college in favor of direct popular election, provided that the winning candidate received at least 40 per cent of the vote.

If all candidates received less than 40 per cent, a run-off election would be held. Under the electoral college system, an election with no clear winner is decided by the House of Representatives.

Joseph Schlesinger, professor of political science, was somewhat cool to the proposal. "They (ABA) should look into the implications their proposal would have on nationalizing politics."

Schlesinger said that the plan would further weaken states politically by reducing their importance in presidential elections.

He said the 40 per cent requirement might need to be dropped since popular election would encourage small parties and, perhaps, make ties quite common.

Presently, small parties must take a majority of votes in a state to receive any electoral votes.

Harold J. Spaeth, associate professor of political science, termed the proposal "a very rash request."

Teacher corps needs tutors

Sign-up for Student Education Corps (SEC) will be held from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. today and Friday in 316 Student Services. SEC volunteers spend one morning or afternoon each week working in area elementary, junior high or high schools, special education programs and adult education classes on a tutoring basis.

During winter term approximately 400 volunteers, 100 more than requested last term, are needed.

Volunteers work with teachers in Lansing, East Lansing, DeWitt, Okemos, Williamston and Jackson to give individual aid to students who need extra attention.

For those who do sign up before Friday, assignment and orientation meetings have been scheduled Sunday at 2 and 8 p.m. in the Student Services lounge. Volunteers may report at either session.

We want you first.

If you're about to graduate, and you're eligible for the service, there are some companies around that will take a dim view about hiring you. It doesn't pay, they say. We don't feel that way at Mobil. If we want you, and you want us, we'll hire you right now. When you get out of school, you can go to work. When you have to leave for the service, we'll give you a leave of absence. And when you get out, you can come back to us.

Right now, we need all kinds of good people: engineers, geologists, geophysicists, accountants, financial analysts, sales representatives, chemists, programmers and systems analysts. And a lot of other people we don't have space to list.

We'll be coming to your campus soon. * If you'd like to talk things over with us, we'd like to meet you and discuss both of our futures.

The way we look at it, anyone worth hiring in the first place is worth waiting for.

*February 2, 3 are the dates. Your placement or guidance counselor can tell you the time and place.

ASMSU budget revision

tional money from the Forum Committee.

The vote, although constituting a majority opinion of the board at the time, is not binding on the board since a quorum was not present. Winds of Change therefore was asked to re-appear at Tuesday's meeting to receive official confirmation of the allocation.

Susan Flax, chairman of the Provost Lecture Series, also was present at Tuesday's meeting. She said the Provost Lecture did not seek outside financial assistance for the program because of a letter she received from Jim Graham, chairman of ASMSU.

"I feel confident student board will go ahead with this ($1,500) appropriation to the Provost Lecture as it has done traditionally in the past," Graham's letter said.

The letter, however, does not obligate the student board.

"But I did not indicate to either group that we had budget problems," Graham said.

Provost Lecture and Winds of Change were both asked to consult the Forum Committee for additional funds, and to return to ASMSU next week after the budget has been further revised.

Graham said that he does not think the board is morally obligated to allocate the money to either program although he feels that it will.

Many of the programs are similar—such as the Provost Lecture and Winds of Change—and there is a possibility that they could be combined in the future, Carbine said.

As for U.S. bombings in the North, Salisbury said, "I think that we have hurt the North Vietnamese by bombing."

"We haven't hurt them obviously enough to bring them to the point of negotiation. We haven't been able to reduce their military potential too much. But we have made it much harder for them to conduct the war and we have made them suffer," he said.

Salisbury said U.S. bombers have hit oil storage depots "and they don't seem to have very many any more. They've all been knocked out by the bombing."

Salisbury's New York Times dispatches from Hanoi had reported that many civilians had been bombed.

Asked whether the United States was in fact confining its bombings to military targets, Salisbury replied:

"As far as I could see, most of North Vietnam is a target area. That is to say, you could seldom travel a mile anywhere in the country without seeing visible evidence of the bombing offensive somewhere along the way.

"The principal targets that we're hitting in North Vietnam, are the roads, the highways, the bridges, the railroads. The railroads, in most cases, parallel the highways," he said.

"You don't have to be shown the bomb damage, it's right there. You see the bomb craters, you see the road destroyed and repaired. You see the broken down bridges, you travel over the pontoon bridges put in to replace them."

"And, inevitably, when you're bombing a railroad or a highway and the highway or the railroad runs through villages, the villages get it along with the highway. And this has happened in North Vietnam," he added.

"In many cases these bombs have fallen on ordinary homes."

"Now, the North Vietnamese are convinced, since this has happened so many times, that it's deliberate, that it is the policy on the part of the United States to bomb civilians," Salisbury continued.

Salisbury said most cities had anti-aircraft defenses and he saw plenty of them around Hanoi, but he got the impression the countryside was relatively lightly defended against air attacks.

During his two weeks in North Vietnam, he said, "I could not go outside the city of Hanoi, make a visit to some village or town, without requesting permission and then having the Foreign Office take me, along with an interpreter and a guide or some official."

NEW YORK 4 -- The stock market experienced a dizzying plunge, then moved up for a healthy gain and its third heaviest trading in history Wednesday in the wake of President Johnson's State of the Union request for a 6 per cent surcharge on income taxes.

At the market closing, the Dow Jones industrial average of 30 stocks recorded a gain of 4.35 points to 822.49 -- a long climb from the 11.47-point drop to 802.67 that was recorded early in the morning.

The market rally began in late morning, when "bargain hunters" came back into trading.
