

Widespread revisions ahead for MSU rules

By BOBBY SODEN
State News Staff Writer

As the MSU Board of Trustees unanimously approved the Academic Freedom Report March 17, planning was already underway for its implementation.

The lengthy document on student rights at Michigan State will be implemented 120 days after adoption by the trustees. Many University rules, regulations and judicial structures will require revision to conform with the report.

Residence hall personnel are studying the records section of the report, said

Eldon R. Nonnamaker, associate dean of students. The resident adviser evaluation form is presently being considered for possible revision or even abolishment.

The freedom report provides that students be evaluated only by persons "who are qualified to make that evaluation," and that these records state when the information was acquired and by whom.

Nonnamaker said his office is also studying the number of records now retained by head advisers and how long they are retained.

"We have not changed the policy yet,"

he explained, "but I suspect we will within the term."

Nonnamaker added that a section of the report prohibiting the making or retention of records of a student's religious beliefs raises a question on the legality of religious preference cards used during fall term registration.

ASMSU and faculty committees are also beginning recommendations for the implementation of the student-faculty judiciary, which may be the first new body to be organized, Nonnamaker said.

The student-faculty judiciary, a Supreme Court for the University, is made up of four students, seven faculty members and a non-voting representative of the Vice-President for Student Affairs.

The freedom report was adopted by the trustees with two minor changes in the judicial section. The revisions provide that the student-faculty judiciary be permitted to suspend a student only with the approval of the Vice-President for Student Affairs.

President John A. Hannah said that the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs did "a most responsible job in handling a difficult question."

Hannah called the report "not perfect, but it is a grade A job."

Hannah said that the report's amendment process will make the document a "living sort of thing," and added that the report will be re-evaluated on a continuing basis.

The Academic Senate approved the report on Feb. 28, with only one dissenting vote. The report was then referred to President Hannah and the trustees.

Senate approval followed more than a year of study, formation and three revisions of the report.

As recommended by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs and revised by the Academic Council, the freedom report concerns student and faculty rights and responsibilities at MSU. The document consists of guidelines on student records, student government and student publications.

U.S. OK's Thant's peace bid; Johnson fears Hanoi rejection

WASHINGTON (AP) -- U.N. Secretary-General U Thant unveiled a new Vietnam peace proposal Tuesday. The United States quickly accepted it but President Johnson said he has "learned regretfully" of an apparent rejection of the plan by Hanoi.

Although Thant said he had received no "categorical rejection" of his plan, Washington strategists reported no signs that the North Vietnamese are moving any closer to the conference table.

Johnson nonetheless praised Thant's "constructive and positive" effort and declared "this nation will continue to persist" in a search for peace.

Thant, at a United Nations news conference in New York, disclosed he had communicated his proposals to the governments involved on March 14 following his return from a Burma visit during which he met with North Vietnamese representatives.

He called for (1) a general stand-still truce, (2) preliminary talks, (3) reconvening of the 1954 Geneva conference on Indo-China's peace and independence.

Thant's new plan was modified from his earlier Vietnam peace proposal which had listed a halt in U.S. bombing of North Vietnam as the first step. U.S. officials welcomed his later version as providing for a reciprocal military halt by both sides, both in North and South Vietnam, as the opening step.

But Hanoi signaled its apparent turn-down in a broadcast of a foreign military statement Monday. The statement said that Thant's proposal failed to distinguish between aggressors and their victims and that the United Nations has absolutely no right to interfere in any way in the Vietnam question.

The American reaction to the U.N. leader's proposition, on the other hand, was immediately favorable. The state Department reported that on March 15, one day after receiving Thant's communication, U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg gave Thant "an interim reply" foreshadowing U.S. acceptance.

The full U.S. reply went to Thant on March 18 and was discussed by Johnson on Tuesday during a toast to the visiting Afghan Prime Minister, Mohammad Hasim Maiwandwal, and by Secretary of State Dean Rusk at a specially called news conference.

The March 18 U.S. reply said:

"... The United States accepts the three-step proposal in the aide-memoire of the Secretary-General on March 14, 1967, envisaging:

"(a) A general stand-still truce; (b) preliminary talks; (c) reconvening of the Geneva conference.

"The United States believes it would be desirable and contributory to serious negotiations if an effective cessation of hostilities, as the first element in the three-point proposal, could be promptly negotiated.

"It would, therefore, be essential that

Times' Salisbury to speak here

Harrison Salisbury, the New York Times asst. managing editor whose stories from Hanoi stirred much American interest earlier this year, will speak here April 6.

"Behind the Lines--Hanoi," the title of Salisbury's latest book, will also be the title of his lecture at 8:15 p.m. in the Auditorium. It is sponsored by the Lecture-Concert Series.

Salisbury wrote the book after touring North Vietnam in December and January. During that tour his dispatches on the effects of U.S. bombings of North Vietnam gained nationwide attention.

After a trip through Southeast Asia last summer, he wrote "Orbit Around China."

the details of such a general cessation of hostilities be discussed directly by both sides or through the secretary-general, the Geneva conference co-chairman, or otherwise as may be agreed. The U.S. is prepared to enter into such discussions immediately and constructively.

"The United States is also prepared to take the next steps in any of the forms suggested by the secretary-general to enter into preliminary talks leading to agreement as to the modalities for reconvening of the Geneva conference.

"Of course, the government of South Vietnam will have to be appropriately involved throughout this entire process. The interests and views of our allies will also have to be taken fully into account."

Trustees OK dismissal plan for tenured

By BEVERLEY TWITCHELL
State News Executive Reporter

The MSU Board of Trustees has approved a procedure for dismissal of tenured faculty members, including assistant professors, associate professors and full professors.

The procedure, which was established by the Faculty Tenure Committee, states that tenured faculty may be dismissed for "gross violation of professional ethics" or incompetence.

Violations of professional ethics include plagiarism, refusal to perform reasonable assigned duties, and improper advances to a student.

"But the advocacy of unpopular causes, public discussion of controversial issues, or other such intellectual endeavors shall not be considered as a violation of professional ethics," the report stated.

Charles Cumberland, professor of history and member of the Faculty Tenure Committee, said the terms were not explicitly defined because the committee did not want to legalize the words. He also said that the terms could only be defined very vaguely or in great detail, and that conditions which determine professional ethics could change over the years.

The University has never before had stated procedures for dismissal of tenured faculty. President John A. Hannah said that in his 26 years at the University, there has never been a case where a tenured faculty member has been dismissed.

"This is one of those policies that we need to have," he said. "We hope we never have to use it."

The Faculty Tenure Committee has been studying the tenure system for four years, Cumberland said, and the dismissal procedures for two years.

"A great deal of thought has gone into it, and a tremendous number of people have been involved," he said.

The committee held open hearings,

UW chancellor named ninth U-M president

ANN ARBOR -- Robben W. Fleming, chancellor of the University of Wisconsin at Madison, was named Tuesday as the ninth president of the University of Michigan.

He will succeed Harlan M. Hatcher, 69, who retires in December after 15 years as U-M president.

Fleming, 50, had also been offered the presidency of the University of Minnesota. In a statement released in Madison, Wis., after his appointment to U-M had been announced, Fleming said he had the highest respect for Minnesota, had contacted their representatives and was sure that they would soon appoint a "distinguished new president."

Fleming reportedly was offered the U-M post informally Saturday at a special meeting of the U-M Board of Regents and alumni, faculty and student committees. A student present at the meeting, Gretchen Groth, said Fleming told the regents he would accept.

Robert Briggs, Republican regent from Jackson, telephoned Fleming after the regents voted unanimously for him. Fleming accepted by phone.

Case Hall picked to house James Madison College

By BEVERLEY TWITCHELL
State News Executive Reporter

The third of the family of residence colleges has found a home.

James Madison College, which is affiliated with the College of Social Science, will be housed in Case Hall. Faculty offices and a maximum of 400 freshmen will be located there, Herbert Garfinkel, director of Madison College (MC), said.

Garfinkel met with Case Hall resident advisers at the end of last term to announce the decision. Students living in Case were informed of the plan when they returned this week.

Wilson and Mason-Abbot were the other halls considered. But Garfinkel explained that Mason-Abbot would have been too expensive to alter and Wilson already has a University College program. Case was chosen because it would be the least disruptive plan, he said.

Case was selected also because of "high morale, and a sense of community," plus its location near the Wilson library and the Wonders Kiva, Garfinkel said.

Material pertaining to MC's course of study will be added to the Wilson Library.

Over 100 students have already applied for admission into MC, and a maximum of 300 more will be accepted. Although there have been some requests by students already enrolled, Madison College will be open only to entering freshmen.

The Colleges of Humanities and Natural Science will each appoint three faculty members to design and implement courses in these two fields.

Madison College students will study public policy problems within the framework of the social sciences and related subjects. This includes war and peace, economic poverty and opportunity, racial and religious intolerance and discrimination, urban problems of blight and delinquency, and the policy problems entailed in governing a constitutional democracy in the public interest.

A year-long sequence of lecture-discussion courses introducing freshmen to the social sciences with a focus on policy problems will be offered as a substitute to the University College Social Science requirement. American Thought and Language will be offered for four credits.

The organizing committee is now considering the extent of language and statistical skills requirements in the Madison College program.

The committee is concentrating on plans for the freshman year of the college and its students, which will begin in September 1967.

"We expect to develop the curriculum chunk by chunk," Garfinkel said.

Little Oakland leads the way

Michigan State's extension to the east, Oakland University, has taken a revolutionary step in student rights which the faculty and administration here have so far been reluctant even to consider.

In the new Oakland Constitution, approved by the MSU Board of Trustees two weeks ago, specific provision is made for student participation in the Academic Senate.

Of 47 seats in the body, three have been awarded to students. Oakland's chancellor Durward B. Varner endorsed the new arrangement. "Most junior and senior students have achieved a workable level of maturity," he said, "and they have a clear stake in the affairs of the University."

It should be evident that students in East Lansing have a similar stake in the affairs of the University. Yet not only are MSU students denied participation in this important University body, they aren't even allowed to attend the meetings.

Oakland University, despite some faculty resistance, has acted on the assumption that responsible students deserve this representation. And they have realized that it is easier to involve students at the initial level of policy making, rather than, as Varner says, "holding them out and engaging in a never-ending process of explanation and confrontation."

Chancellor Varner and the Oakland faculty realize that this move alone will not solve all the problems of students, but it is a move that clearly shows the faculty's faith in the student body. It shows that Oakland, as Varner puts it, is "willing to deal with the concerns of students on a serious level."

At MSU, the Academic Freedom Report failed to live up to expectations primarily because of a lack of similar faith. Now the possibilities of placing students on Standing Committees of the Academic Senate is being explored. This proposal can only succeed if faculty and administration unreservedly put trust in the student body.

In the coming year, the relationship of students to MSU will be changed, through the implementation of the new freedom report, through the action of the Committee on Committees, and through the Committee on Undergraduate Education.

Oakland has set a logical precedent for the involvement of students in University operations. Hopefully, the administration and faculty here will find it wise and practical to swiftly follow their lead.

The promise of academic freedom

The Academic Freedom Report, as expected, has received official and final approval from the University's board of trustees. Approval was given at the trustee's meeting earlier this month. With only two minor changes, the proposals will go into effect July 14, 1967.

The report has been rightfully criticized for soft-peddling and dodging the very freedoms it was originally intended to guarantee. Action in the coming months, however, will determine in actuality if the report is to become a meaningful document. The process of implementation and interpretation of the existing report must be carried out in a liberal and enlightened atmosphere if student rights are to come out of it.

The basic assumption that students are indeed responsible members of the academic community and should have a voice in key areas will lead to a broader and more liberal interpretation of the report. If the faculty and administration deny this assumption, as was the tendency among some during deliberation on the report, chances are slim that the report will have much effect.

The report eventually should be amended to insure many of the freedoms weakly covered or neglected by the document. Student guarantees to competent instruction, student right to evaluate faculty, better safeguarding of student records, and a more equitable judicial process are examples of the items that hopefully will be included in the document.

But now the document is passed, approved, and ready to be implemented. The true test of its worth will be in the spirit of academic freedom with which it is greeted. And its real promise lies in the possibilities for broader guarantees that this spirit can, in practice, create.

Tenured profs' way out

"Among the functions of a university is the establishment of a proper intellectual relationship among the faculty, between the faculty and the students, and between the faculty and the greater academic community." --- Report of the Faculty Tenure Committee.

Sometimes, however, this function of the university may be impaired by a tenured faculty member. At their last meeting, therefore, the Academic Council and later the board of trustees approved a plan which establishes a procedure for dismissing tenured faculty.

The significance of this plan is simply that it establishes a procedure. Clearly, it seldom will be used, certainly not enough. To date no such case has even arisen. But if a case should arise, it can easily, quickly, and fairly be expedited.

The procedure insures a personal conference with the administrator, such as a department chairman, who initiates the action for dismissal; and it provides a structure for a hearing. It sets down steps for the formal proceedings, the processing of the records and the rendering of judgment.

Although publicity of dismissal proceedings is limited, the procedure stipulates that "any announcement of the final decision shall include a statement of the Hearing Committee's recommendation."

Controversy and crisis were absent during the plan's formative stages. The Faculty Committee on Tenure has been hammering it out for over three years. As was apparent in the ATL controversy, without a structured procedure for dismissal the result is confusion. And though the present proposal deals only with tenured faculty, a committee is also working on a similar proposal for non-tenured faculty.

As President Hannah told the trustees, "It is important that we have this worked out in an objective atmosphere." It's well worth the effort.

Student draft deferments unjust

To the Editor:

Some students would ask that they be deferred from military service while in college. This is asking to be treated in a way that is different from those who elect not to go to college. Many students justify this position by saying they are preparing themselves such that the country stands to benefit in the long run by leaving them alone temporarily. Also, it is suggested by some that those young people who do not choose college are somewhat lacking in motivation or social concern to better themselves and the world in which they live.

A rationale which allows us to think that we are better or that we should be treated differently than another group of people, for whatever reason or motive, is highly suspect.

College is not for everyone. Some young people have enough foresight to realize it. This does not necessarily mean they are less motivated, or that they do not have their own goals for which they are striving. Granted, there are people who don't elect college because they are lacking in motivation and/or intellectual aspirations. However, there are individuals from college freshmen to teachers who are at their particular level, for seemingly lack of something better to do. Their performance raises the question, "quo vadis?"

Our country has had the tradition, from its conception, of men, regardless of their ambitions or particular level of achievement at the moment, who were responsible enough to lay aside their careers to meet the crisis which was present. If they had reasoned that they should be exempt for the moment, whatever the reason, America would not have forged ahead to overcome the many difficulties it has faced. Conservatives strike out

Some people are born losers. When there are three balls and two strikes, they strike out. When it is fourth down and one yard to go, they fumble. When the pressure is on, they fold.

The group of people in this country who call themselves conservatives are losers. And like the athlete who can't take the gaff, the conservatives blame their defeats on everything; on the press, on the smears of the liberals, and on the stupid public who can't understand, without explanation, that freedom is good.

Like losers, they "never" learn their lesson. On the next pitch they swing too early, or too late, and blow the show. Pretty soon they're minor league.

Today the conservatives are at their last spring training. With race riots the only result of a civil rights bill that was supposed to "ease tensions," with political graft so open that congressmen publicly admit its existence, and with a president whose main worry is tomorrow's Gallup poll, which shows him rapidly losing his popularity, the conservatives are ignoring the issue that could singularly turn the tide in their favor and make them major league: the draft.

Recently, a presidential commission, promising to study the draft and make some changes, issued a report that showed they had studied nothing but the arguments of past dictators and learned nothing but that we need a NEW system, one which would dispose of men's lives by lottery.

If ever the liberals had pitched one right down the middle, this is the time.

Freedom requires nothing less than a voluntary army. To be permanently free we do NOT have to temporarily enslave. Freedom works both in theory AND in practice. This country does NOT have a "duty to protect the free peoples of the world everywhere," individuals do NOT have to fight in wars they don't believe in, and people are NOT cattle to be loaded aboard ships and sent to predetermined destinations.

The conservatives could rally behind men like Barry Goldwater and Milton Friedman and slap back every knee-jerk rationalization the liberals have offered. This much is clear:

- 1. A professional army does not endanger political freedom. Every dictator from Napoleon to Castro has used a conscript army. It is the draft that endangers freedom.
2. A voluntary army is feasible, if the pay were raised to market-place standards. In the end, considering the loss of manpower to society, it would be cheaper. People would make a career out of the army the same way they make a career out of police work. The principle is identical.

- 3. The draft is unconstitutional. It violates the Ninth Amendment which reads: "The enumeration in the constitution of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people." And the draft is presently being challenged on that basis.

- 4. The protection of this country from foreign invaders is too important a job to be left to amateurs.

The draft is a blatant and dangerous attempt by the collectivists to destroy any notion of free individual choice. One can easily become confused with arguments advocating planned inflation and wars on poverty, but it is historically clear that if a government can force an individual into serving two years in war, it can force him into serving four, six, eight and ten years in whatever capacity it so chooses. And even this has been suggested.

Here is a chance for the conservatives to take that 3-2 pitch the liberals have served up and wack it down their philosophical throats. The stands are full. The crowd is waiting. At least they can go down swinging.

Thant peace bid

U Thant, U.N. Secretary-General, disclosed today that his March peace proposal on Vietnam had met only partial success.

Thant said he had some replies and that he didn't consider any of the replies a categorical rejection of the plan calling for a cease-fire followed by preliminary talks aimed at convening a new Geneva Peace Conference.

Soon after Thant's disclosure, President Johnson said that although the U.S. and South Vietnam favored the Thant plan, North Vietnam had apparently rejected it.

Let Saigon and Hanoi negotiate: Ky

Nguyen Cao Ky, South Vietnamese Premier, said Tuesday Saigon and Hanoi should handle peace negotiations themselves.

"We are always hearing that the United States is starting talks with Moscow, or Hanoi, or somebody. Why? Why don't they stay in the background and let us deal with Hanoi and negotiate when the time is right?" Ky said.

Ky gave his own three part peace plan: complete cease-fire, two-way talks without outsiders, and an international guarantee to respect the outcome of these talks.

Pope supports birth control education

Pope Paul VI gave limited support to civic birth control education Tuesday.

The Pope limited the Roman Catholic Church's new support of birth control saying it must not violate "moral law" and must "respect the rightful freedom of married couples."

"Public authorities can intervene, within the limit of their competence, by favoring the availability of appropriate information . . ." the Pope said.

Bombers strike Torrey Canyon

Bombers from the British Royal Navy rained bombs on the deserted ship Torrey Canyon Tuesday.

The bombing is an attempt to incinerate oil leaking from the tanker's ruptured holds before more oil reaches the English shore.

Oil slicks burned well at first, but oil in the tanker sputtered out and a new bombing was made.

Oil from the ship has polluted 120 miles of southwestern English beaches and threatens the entire English Channel coast.

The Torrey Canyon wreck of the British coast may start a move in the United Nations to attack oil pollution at sea.

"We must have international rules for the big tankers, something on the lines of the limited agreement now governing navigation in congested waters," said a spokesman for U.N. affiliated maritime group.

Papal statement skirts pill issue

VATICAN CITY (AP) -- Pope Paul VI gave the support of the Roman Catholic Church on Tuesday to civic birth control education to check the population explosion so long as this education does not violate "moral law."

The papal statement, in an 8,000-word encyclical on social and economic problems, did not relax the Church's long-standing ban on artificial birth control.

"The temptation is great to check the demographic population increase by radical measures," the Pope said.

"Public authorities can intervene, within the limit of their competence, by favoring the availability of appropriate information and adopting suitable measures."

Any governmental measures on birth control, the Pope said, must "be in conformity with the moral law" and "respect the rightful freedom of married couples."

The encyclical's working was regarded as the strongest statement by any Pope on the question of birth control outside the Church's own realm.

Vatican experts said the new approach toward family planning would likely end organized resistance by Catholics in some nations to birth control legislation and dissemination of information on the subject.

Some sources said it might even permit Catholics to accept laws that would permit distribution of contraceptive pills in welfare and public aid programs.

The encyclical, entitled "Populorum Progressio" - the Development of Peoples, is a wide-ranging document that describes modern social and economic justice as essentials for world peace.

In it Pope Paul:

--Rejected the idea that private property and free commerce are absolute rights, saying that help for those who lack basic needs must come first.

--Rejected unlimited capitalism as a "woeful system" that sees profit as the key to economic progress.

--Appealed for a huge world fund using some of the money now spent on arms to help relieve misery.

--Suggested more taxes on the wealthy to help meet the cost of aid programs for the poor.

Job Corps 70 pct. effective

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Statistics of the Job Corps showed Tuesday it has a 70 per cent efficiency rating on its job; getting school dropouts off the do-nothing road.

The figures: As of the end of February, 64,878 young men and women had been in the Job Corps for varying lengths of time, some only for a week or so, since it began in January 1965.

Of the total, 45,415, or some 70 per cent, were doing something. Some 76 per cent of these had a job, 14 per cent had returned to school and 10 per cent had joined the military services.

Some 33,000 now are enrolled in 115 Job Corps centers. They are 16 to 22 years of age, are free to leave when they wish but may stay as long as two years.

Most of them finish a skill training program in about nine months. Being the statistics there are individuals with success stories and there are disappointments, boys who expected a job at $2.50 an hour and had to settle for $1.25. There are some who haven't found a job.

CHANNEL COAST THREATENED

RAF blasts tanker to burn off oil

LAND'S END, England (AP) -- British warplanes Tuesday blasted the shattered supertanker Torrey Canyon with tons of high explosives and then rained incendiary bombs in an effort to burn the cargo of crude oil leaking into the sea.

The first strikes, by eight Royal Navy Buccaneer bombers, sent smoke and flames flaring 8,000 feet above the wrecked ship. The vessel was grounded on the Seven Stones reef March 18 and broke into three parts Sunday night while Dutch tugs were trying to pull her free.

After the bomber strike, 20 Hawker Hunter fighter-bombers dropped tank loads of gasoline and potassium chlorate incendiaries.

At one point, two hours after the initial attack, the flames died down and the fire appeared out. But another air attack set the smoky fire going again.

Home Secretary Roy Jenkins said the surface oil was burning well at the time of a news conference, but he was not sure how the fire inside the ship was going. The problem there, he said, was getting oxygen inside to feed combustion.

He estimated that at the time the bombers struck the shattered hulk still held 12 million gallons of the 35.8 million gallons of crude oil the Liberian-flag vessel, owned by a subsidiary of Union Oil of California, was carrying when she grounded.

Jenkins said the government decided Monday night to blow up the Torrey Canyon after it became evident she could not be refloated and towed into the Atlantic to be sunk. Oil from the ship already has polluted more than 120 miles of beaches around this southwest point of England and threatens the entire English Channel coast.

Jenkins said the government was ruled in its action by the need to fight the pollution of British shores and financial considerations were not taken into account. The ship was insured for $16.5 million.

Sir Solly Zuckerman, the government's chief scientific adviser, who sat beside Jenkins, acknowledged that, after the lighter oils have burned off, a heavy oil sludge will remain.

Wrestlers give MSU national championship

By GAYEL WESCH
State News Sports Writer

MSU gained its first national championship team of the year over spring break when the Spartan wrestlers captured the title at the NCAA championships at Kent, Ohio, March 25.

proved the validity of the No. 1 national rating it gained in early February by scoring 74 points in the meet. Michigan, the runner-up, scored 63.

Spartan wrestlers gained two individual championships, two second place finishes, a third, a fourth and a sixth in winning their first national wrestling title.

Dale Anderson won the championship at 137 pounds, and George Radman took the 167-pound title. Both Radman and Anderson finished the season with perfect records, Anderson 27-0, and Radman 24-0.

Mike Bradley at 177, and Don Behm at 130 took runner-up spots for MSU while Jack Zindel was third at 191. Jeff Richardson fourth at heavyweight and Dale Carr sixth at 145.

Although the results in the finals for Anderson and Radman were the same, the bouts themselves were complete opposites. Anderson won his title in an overtime match while Radman, in typical fashion, won easily.

Behind 6-5 with seconds left in his championship match with Portland State's Masaru Yatabe, Anderson was awarded the tying point with one second left when the referee declared Yatabe was stalling. A takedown and escape in the overtime period gave Anderson a 3-2 victory for the championship.

Radman had little trouble with Fresno State's Mike Gallego and gained a 17-8 victory in the final match.

Neither man had much trouble in the early rounds with Anderson taking five decisions and Radman three decisions and a pin.

Anderson is a junior, Radman a senior.

Behm's bid for the title ended when he dropped a 9-6 decision to Oklahoma University's Harold McGuire in the championship match. The loss was only the second this year against 25 victories for the senior from Winnetka, Ill.

Behm had charged through the earlier rounds, scoring three decisions and a pin.

Bradley, a junior, ended his season 20-3-1 when he lost to Fred Fozzard of Oklahoma State, 10-3, in the championship bout. Fozzard had given Bradley one of his earlier season losses in the MSU-OSU dual meet.

Bradley, too, had little trouble in scoring three decisions to put him in the finals.

Zindel, the Spartan heavyweight in early season matches, ripped through three opponents before being decided in the semifinals by Syracuse's Tom Schelendorf 7-2. Schelendorf went on to win the 191-pound championship.

Following the loss, Zindel won two consolation matches, the last an 11-1 decision over Stanford's Jerry Crenshaw for third place.

Richardson also fell victim to the eventual champion in his weight class. After drawing a first round bye, Richardson scored a decision in his first match before running into Arizona State's Curley Culp.

Culp, the wrestler who scored the most pins in least elapsed time in the tournament, pinned Richardson in 150.

Richardson won two consolation victories before losing to Michigan's Dave Porter, 4-1, in the bout for third place. Porter scored all his points in the final period.

Carr also dropped a quarter final bout to the eventual champion. He won a pair of preliminary bouts before losing to Don Henderson of the Air Force Academy by a pin at 4:54.

Carr won a consolation bout before dropping two and finished 19-8-1 for the year.

MSU's Gary Bissell (115), Mike McGilliard (123), Dave Campbell (152) and Rod Ott (160) all lost out in preliminaries.

Campbell was leading 4-1 in his bout before sustaining a shoulder injury and losing 6-4.

As a team, the Spartans had been fifth after the opening round, jumped to a second place tie after the preliminaries and sewed up the team title after the consolation championships. The key to the victory, according to Peninger, was team spirit.

"Everyone did a good job, and we were the only team that didn't go flat for the championships," Peninger said. "When you go to a tournament like this you always hope for the best and expect the worst, but the team was up for it and came through."

Smith new football assistant

A vacancy on the Spartan football coaching staff was filled over spring break.

Dave Smith was named to the spot left open by former Defensive Backfield Coach Vince Carillo, who recently accepted the position of head defensive coach at Georgia Tech.

Smith will coach the scouting team, according to Head Coach Duffy Daugherty. This is the unit which demonstrates opposing teams' plays for the varsity.

Al Dorow held that post last season. He moves up to handle the defensive backfield job vacated by Carillo.

Smith graduated from MSU in 1956 and played end on three Spartan varsity teams.

Since leaving MSU, Smith has been head football coach at Walled Lake High School in the Inter-Lakes Conference. This is a Class A league also containing Pontiac Northern, Farmington, Waterford Township and Livonia Stevenson.

In 11 years Smith's teams have won nine conference titles, recording a 76-15 mark in the process.

He has produced such grid stars as MSU's tackle Roger Ruminski; quarterback John Thomas, currently at Michigan and John Walker, a crack line-backer who was Michigan's most valuable player a few years ago.

Others are Terry Lehman, who went on to Dartmouth; Lon Snook and John Van Sicken, later both Iowa State players.

Smith is married and has three children.

'Slush funds': Michigan State accused

TONY KOLODZIEJ

By LARRY WERNER
State News Sports Editor

They call it "slush."
In Big Ten athletics—as on a snowy day—when slush gets on your feet it causes trouble. It's dirty.
The University of Illinois became involved with slush, illegally handing money out to athletes. The conference's faculty representatives decided that, to wipe their feet clean, the Illinois would have to dismiss the three coaches involved: Pete Elliott, football; Harry Combes, basketball; and Howard Braum, assistant basketball.
They also suspended several players.
So now everything is fine. The violators have been punished, and the Big Ten resumes normal activity.
Not quite.

An elementary school principal in Memphis, Tenn., rocked the conference boat by implicating at least three Big Ten schools besides Illinois in the recent controversy. The principal, James Barber, is the foster father of Rich Jones, star basketball forward for Illinois suspended for receiving illegal aid.
One of the schools implicated by Barber was MSU. And Barber did Michigan State the dubious favor of placing the Spartans atop a list of schools Barber accused of offering Jones illegal inducements in recruiting.
Jones was a high school star at Lester High in Memphis. The Chicago Tribune quoted Barber as saying that college recruiters "swarmed around" Jones during his senior year.
The Tribune also quoted Barber as saying:
"I didn't take down any names,

First of two parts

but a man who wanted Rich to go to Indiana offered a free automobile and spending money. So did a man from Iowa. And the recruiter from Michigan State offered to double any offers we had."
The last sentence had considerable impact for those interested in the fortunes of Spartan athletics. MSU has been in this type of trouble twice.
In 1953, the "Spartan Foundation" was dissolved by the conference, and Michigan State was placed on probation. The fund supposedly provided illegal aid to athletes. In 1964, a lesser Spartan offense drew mild punishment again.
It is more or less understood that another infraction by MSU would result in something more than mild punishment.
MSU Athletic Director Biggie Munn was quoted by the Detroit Free Press last Friday, as denying Barber's charges.
Two others concerned with the recruiting of Jones came to MSU's defense.
One was Tony Kolodziej, a former end on the Spartan football team. The other was ex-basketball coach Buddy Anderson.
Kolodziej is an insurance agent in Nashville and scouts high school talent in Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama.
"He (Barber) was apparently mixed up with somebody else," Kolodziej said. "The boy couldn't even get into the school," he said referring to Jones' inability to qualify for MSU academically.
Kolodziej claimed that the wrong college boards scores were sent by Lester High School.

"The girl in the office got mixed up," he said. "She sent the scores of a Robert Jones, or somebody."
"I played football up there at MSU," Kolodziej continued. "I know they didn't do anything

Injuries jinx G-men in regionals

The Spartan gymnasts, hit by injuries to Dave Thor and Keith Sterner which kept the two performers from competition, failed to qualify as a team and finished fifth in the NCAA Mid-East Regionals, held in Wheaton, Ill., March 18.
Thor was involved in a head-on automobile collision the day before the meet, and a painful chest injury kept him out of competition.
Sterner broke his ankle in warm-ups on trampoline immediately preceding the meet.
There were five individual Spartan bright spots, though. Toby Towson was the top qualifier in floor exercise, turning in a flawless performance to earn the highest score of the afternoon, 9.65. Dave Croft was the highest qualifier in rings at 9.40. Ed Gummy and Dan Kinsey tied for fifth in rings at 9.20.
Ron Aure scored 9.15 to qualify in fifth place in floor exercise. Gummy also qualified on high bar, fifth at 9.20, with Norm Haynie second in the event at 8.95.

New Illini coaches

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) -- Two former Illinois athletic stars, Jim Valek and Harve Schmidt, will be named Wednesday as the new Illinois football and basketball coaches, United Press International learned Tuesday.
The two will succeed football coach Pete Elliott and basketball coach Harry Combes, who resigned along with Howie Braun March 19, as the result of a penalty imposed on the school by the Big Ten for violations of the conference rule limiting financial aid to athletes.

Term-break sports news

Baseball

The pitching of Dick Kenney and Gary Smith and the hitting of infielder Tom Binkowski and outfielder Tom Hummel have highlighted the spring training trip for the MSU baseball team thus far.
As of Monday's game the Spartans had a 5-3-1 record on the trip. MSU played Duke Tuesday and will face Furman today. MSU will have single games Thursday, Friday and Saturday before returning home.
Kenney and Smith have each won twice while Matt Mazza has MSU's other victory.
MSU dropped its opening game of the trip 8-5 to Rutgers, but bounced back to beat Miami 11-3 behind Kenney's six-hit pitching.
Smith pitched MSU to victory the following day, 5-2 over Rutgers, and after a 5-1 loss to Miami, Mazza rode a hitting spurge by his teammates to a 9-4 victory.
Kenney shut out the Italian National Team, 8-0, last Saturday and didn't allow a hit in six innings of work.
MSU lost to Miami, 2-1, on a fluke hit before tying Army 3-3. The Army game was stopped after a pre-arranged time limit had been reached.
Smith pitched a 10-1 victory over Army on Monday, also hitting a two-run homer.
Binkowski, a first baseman, and Hummel have been MSU's heaviest hitters with third baseman Bill Steckley close behind.

Golf

Attesting to Coach Bruce Fossum's optimism, Michigan State's young golf team posted a highly impressive undefeated southern spring training record.

Tennis

One game over .500.
That's how the Michigan State tennis team stands after completing its fifth match of a nine-match southern road trip.
Tuesday, the Spartans whipped East Carolina, 9-0, to up their record to 3-2.
The Spartans will return home on March 31.
The team is bolstered by sophomore Chuck Brainard, who won three straight high school singles championships at Hamtramck, at No. 1 singles. Also in the lineup is Mason senior Jim Phillips and East Lansing sophomore John Good.
The record:
1. Lost to Florida State, 6-3.
2. Beat Georgia, 5-4
3. Lost to Clemson, 5-4.
4. Beat South Carolina, 7-2.
5. Beat East Carolina, 9-0.

Track

It was a disappointing trip for the Spartan track team to Detroit's Cobo Hall for the National Championships, March 11-12.
The Spartans could only manage four points, two by Don Crawford, and one each by Gene Washington and Pat Wilson.
Crawford placed fourth in the 440-yard run, Washington was fifth in the 60-yard hurdles, Wilson was fifth in the 600-yard run.

Hockey

MSU's bid for a second straight NCAA hockey championship ended abruptly when the Spartans were beaten by Boston University in the semi-finals of the NCAA tournament.
The Spartans advanced to the NCAA tournament in Syracuse, N.Y., March 16-18 by winning the eastern division playoffs of the Western Collegiate Hockey Assn.
Coach, Amo Pessone's skaters whipped Michigan 4-2 and Michigan Tech 2-1 to gain a berth in the NCAA's, then lost out in the semi-finals to Boston University, 4-2.
The Spartans, however, beat North Dakota, 6-1, in the consolation game.

'Prepared' Stanford wins swim title

By JOHN LADD
State News Sports Writer

The 1967 NCAA swimming championships, held at MSU last weekend, was the kind of meet where a record book that was accurate Thursday was over half wrong Saturday.

It was the kind of a meet where the upsets came so fast that you needed a program to keep track of the defeated Olympic and past NCAA champions. It was the kind of a meet where a man could exceed the American record and still get decisively beaten. And it was the kind of a meet where one team came so prepared to pull the upsets and set the records that they came with T-shirts already printed to announce the fact.

After the meet's final event, Stanford swimmers could be seen pulling red-lettered T-shirts out of their travel bags. As soon as they stopped waving them at their final champion and put them on, it was seen that they had been prepared for the team victory that they had just won. The shirts read: "Stanford NCAA Champs 1967."

Stanford had never before won an NCAA swimming championship, and finished only sixth last year. But a fine group of sophomores, including the amazing Greg Buckingham, brought Stanford the victory over Southern California, which had won the meet the last four years.

Stanford scored 275 points to Southern Cal's 260. Indiana, with 249 points, was the only serious competition for the two West Coast schools. MSU took eighth with 115, as Michigan, UCLA, Yale and Southern Methodist took the fourth through seventh positions.

Buckingham was the meet's most impressive swimmer, winning the 500- and 200-yard freestyle events and anchoring Stanford's winning 800-yard freestyle relay team. The 500-yard race opened the meet and set its tone. Buckingham's 4:37.0 set the American, NCAA, meet and pool records. These were only the first four of the 58 records that were to fall in the meet, including 10 American marks out of the 16 swimming events.

Buckingham's other individual championship was typical of another feature of this meet--upsets. As well as clearing the books of all the records in the 200-yard freestyle in 1:41.3, Buckingham defeated the world's most famous swimmer in his favorite event.

Don Schollander won four gold medals in the 1964 Olympics, but could not win a single event in this meet. In the 200-yard free, he swam the best time of his life, but Buckingham swam even better.

Dick Roth was Stanford's other big gun. He won both the 200- and 400-yard individual medley events, breaking all records in the former. But the biggest blocks of points for the winning Indians were the freestyle relay events.

Relay victories were worth 32 points, twice the value of individual victories. Stanford won both the 400- and 800-yard freestyle events, clearing the record books in each event with times of 3:05.0 and 6:54.5.

It was a meet of upsets. After Buckingham had beaten Schollander in the 200-yard free, he became himself the victim in the 1650-yard freestyle. UCLA's Mike Burton and Buckingham swam right next to each other for 1,200 yards, each man covering each 100 yards between 59 and 61 seconds.

But at the 1,200-yard mark, Burton picked up the pace by about a second per 100 yards, and Buckingham was left behind. Burton's 16:17.5 once again cleared the record books.

MSU's Gary Dilley was one of the upset victims. Dilley had taken a second place medal in the 200-meter backstroke in the 1964 Olympics and had never been beaten in his specialty during his college career. But in his last meet, in his home pool, the young swimmers caught up to him.

As his coach, Charles McCaffree, said, "Everyone shoots for the champion. Sooner or later, someone gets him."

The giant killer in this case was Indiana's Charles Hickcox, a sophomore who had done well in AAU and international competition, but had been beaten repeatedly in his first college meets.

But in this meet he fulfilled his earlier promise by winning both the 100- and 200-yard backstroke events. The first event was one of the few in which no records were set, but the 200 once again saw an entirely new set of records at 1:55.3.

However, all did not go badly for the Spartans. Ken Walsh won what McCaffree called the "the blue-ribbon event," the 100-yard freestyle. McCaffree explained that many of the long freestyle and non-crawl events were either new or had recently been changed by new rules.

"But the 100 has remained the same for 50 years. When you see a record set in that, you're really seeing something."

That is what the crowd saw, as Walsh tied Steve Clark's American record in the 100, and set new NCAA, meet and pool marks at 0:45.6. Two years ago, when Clark set the original record, he received a 10 minute standing ovation.

But at this meet, it was just another record. It was that kind of meet.

Ken Sitzberger of Indiana and Ken Merten of SMU joined the ranks of double event winners. Sitzberger won both the one- and three-meter diving events, and Merten twice broke all records to win the 100- and 200-yard breaststroke events.

Merten's times of 0:58.4 and 2:07.9 broke two of the oldest records in the books, both set by Chet Jastrzemski in 1963.

The butterfly events saw Michigan's Carl Robie win the 200-yard in a no-record 1:52.59 and Princeton's Ross Wales win the 100-yard in 0:50.2. This last time tied the only remaining 1963 record, that set by Wally Richardson.

Zack Zorn of UCLA won the 50-yard freestyle in a 0:21.12. This victory was combined with another in the 400-yard medley relay to give UCLA fifth place.

The overall excellence of the times in the meet reflected both that MSU has the "fastest" pool in the U.S., and that the U.S. is producing another generation of swimmers to duplicate in 1968 the amazing 1964 Olympic swimming performance.

Upset

AWAITS ARRAIGNMENT

Phillips on forgery charge

Jess Phillips, star defensive back on the Spartan football team, is awaiting arraignment in the Kalamazoo County Circuit Court on a charge of forgery. Phillips, a junior from Beaumont, Tex., was arrested last Thursday in a Kalamazoo electronics equipment store after he had written a $369.10 check for the purchase of hi-fi equipment. Detective Capt. Riley Stewart said the store owner became suspicious and summoned police while Phillips went outside to his car.

Stewart said police confiscated a quantity of merchandise in the borrowed auto Phillips was driving. The merchandise included a movie camera, several radios and other appliances.

Stewart said Phillips told police that other checks were used to purchase the merchandise from stores in Kalamazoo and Battle Creek.

Phillips was held overnight in the Kalamazoo city jail and was released the following morning after waiving a preliminary hearing in the Kalamazoo Municipal Court and posting a $2,500 bond.

Stewart said the bond was paid by a local bondsman.

No action has been taken on the Phillips case by either the University or the athletic department.

Eldon R. Nonnamaker, associate dean of students, said it is the university's policy not to take any action until the case is resolved in the courts.

"The policy is to wait and see," said Nonnamaker.

Phillips is enrolled in the university for spring term and has gone through spring registration. Tentatively, he will participate in spring practice, beginning April 11.

Nonnamaker said he was uncertain as to how the forgery charge could affect Phillips' varsity football status.

"If he were put on probation by the university, this would take him out of varsity action," said Nonnamaker. "But I don't know what action Duffy's (Daugherty) office would take."

"It all depends on the results of the case," he said.

Daugherty, head football coach, said he wished not to comment on the case, "since all I can tell you is hearsay."

Phillips was not available for comment.

Spartan Co-Captain Ken Walsh beams after learning that he has just won the NCAA 100-yard freestyle championship and tied the American record of 0:45.6.

Spartan gridgers drafted by pros

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

MSU hit the jackpot in professional football's draft of college players two weeks ago at New York.

Eight Spartan players were grabbed by the pros in National and American Football Leagues--second only to national champion Notre Dame who had a total of nine drafted.

But the Spartans received the edge in the first round, having four players drafted by the first eight teams.

The eight drafted were all expected to be snapped up by the pros after leading MSU to a second straight Big Ten title and a 9-0-1 record.

For some, the biggest surprise was the selection of Bubba Smith as the No. 1 pick in the draft.

The 6-7, 285-pound defensive end was quickly grabbed by the Baltimore Colts of the NFL.

Heisman Trophy winner Steve Spurrier was expected to go first, but a flurry of trades before the draft began changed all that.

The New Orleans Saints, NFL's newest team, gave up their right for the first pick to Baltimore in exchange for the Colts' second-string quarterback Gary Cuozzo.

"We knew all along that Bubba would go first," said Spartan End Coach Cal Stoll. "It wasn't a surprise to us, after Baltimore made that trade."

After Smith, the Spartans' 6-0, 210-pound halfback Clint Jones was picked second, by the Minnesota Vikings.

The New York Giants were to have the second pick, but they gave that to the Vikings, who sent their scrambling quarterback Fran Tarkenton to the Giants.

Jones already has come to an agreement with the Vikings, signing for $60,000.

George Webster, the Spartans' 6-4, 220-pound roverback, went on the fifth pick to the AFL's Houston Oilers and is presently in negotiations with them.

End Gene Washington joined Jones as a Viking selection. He was the eighth draft pick.

It was the Spartans' defensive players that were the biggest attractions in the draft. Besides Smith and Webster, defensive end Jeff Richardson and defensive backs Charlie Thornhill and Jim Summers were drafted by the pros.

Richardson went to the New York Jets of the AFL on the fifth round, while Thornhill went to the Boston Patriots and Summers to the Denver Broncos.

The final Spartan drafted was kicking specialist Dick Kenney, picked by the Philadelphia Eagles of the NFL.

"WOULD YOU BE very surprised if Uncle Ford Foundation, Aunt Carnegie Endowment, Great Aunt Rockefeller Foundation and maybe a few of those rich global-minded corporate Cousins like Xerox began adopting these poor CIA orphans like NSA and making sure they continue to live the good life to which they have been so long accustomed? But we're not so sure they'll get away with it!"

Migrant farm workers march for benefit hike

By ANDREW MOLLISON
Executive Reporter

The children played on the Capitol steps and the speaker spoke on. More than 1,000 listeners listened.

He was Ruben Alfaro, leader of the Michigan March for Migrants. He spoke of Senate Bill 432, which would delay the effective date of legislation passed one year ago to put five per cent of Michigan's migrant workers into the state's workmen's compensation program.

"La Legislatura demoró la fecha efectiva de esta ley hasta el primero de Mayo de 1967, y ahora la quieren demorar un año mas."

The little girls wore pastels—pink, light green and yellow—for this was Easter Sunday.

Alfaro spoke of Senate Bill 17, which he said would eliminate the migrant workers' coverage completely.

"Hay otros en la Legislatura que estan tratando de volver a negarle al obrero del campo la protección de la Workmen's Compensation."

Four boys played "king of the mountain" on a pile of dirty snow.

Alfaro asked that residency requirements be waived and welfare protection extended for migrant workers.

"El obrero del campo no tiene un trabajo fijo durante todo el año."

Four-year-old Tomas was lost and crying. Gus Scholle, president of the Michigan AFL-CIO Council, picked him up.

Alfaro charged that licensing standards for migrant camps were lenient and often evaded.

"Use para nosotros, Gobernador Romney, su influencia para elevar estos estandars a un nivel decente."

The children tried to wheedle a tune from a guitarist, but he told them to quiet down. "An important day," he told them. "Watch and listen so you'll remember."

Alfaro asked Romney's aid in campaigning for inclusion of migrant workers under the provisions of the National Labor Relations Act.

"Así tendrán la garantía de poder organizarse en una unión."

The master of ceremonies turned to the crowd. "We apologize to you for speaking first in Spanish," he said to the English-speakers present.

"Perhaps you have learned how our children feel when they go into classes with English texts and English-speaking teachers."

Alfaro presented the petition of the Saginaw-Lansing marchers to Lt. Governor William G. Milliken, substituting for the Governor, who does not participate in political activities on Sundays.

"I appreciate very much the concern that brings you here today," said Milliken slowly and clearly in English.

"I accept these petitions... and they will be presented by me to the Governor tomorrow morning."

"I want to assure you the Governor will give them his full and his fair consideration."

The adults applauded. The children still played on the Capitol steps and the speaker spoke on.

Migrant march

Migrant workers marched from Saginaw to the Capitol last week in protest to Senate Bill No. 432, which delays the effective date of legislation to put five per cent of Michigan's migrant workers into the state workman's compensation program.

Deadline to run for OCC extended until Monday

Petitioning for positions on the Off Campus Council has been extended until 5 p.m. Monday. Petitions are available in 308 Student Services.

Students interested in petitioning must have earned at least 24 credits, have a 2.0 grade average, and live off campus. They must obtain 50 signatures.

Ten persons have petitioned for the 11 seats so far. Elections will be held with the ASMSU general elections April 12.

Endorsement of candidates for ASMSU to be discussed

The question of major student governing groups endorsing candidates for the spring ASMSU elections will be discussed at 6:30 tonight at an open meeting in McDonel Kiva.

Chuck Demery of Men's Halls Assn. (MHA), who believes presidents of organizations should endorse candidates for the April 12 election, said all students are invited.

Demery said MHA could meet with all candidates to discuss their platforms and then endorse those they feel best qualified.

In this way, MHA representatives would be responsible for reflecting the opinions of on-campus male students, Demery added.

Six or seven student leaders, including previous board members and candidates for the coming ASMSU term, will talk informally with the audience, Demery said.

Liz, Newman in series film

At 7 and 9 tonight and Thursday the film version of Tennessee Williams' play, "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," will be presented at Fairchild Theater.

The first presentation in the University's International Film Series for the spring quarter, the film stars Elizabeth Taylor and Paul Newman. The film tells the story of a Southern family.

Blackout blights study for exams

Students fervently cramming for finals were interrupted from their studies the evening of March 14 by a blackout. All of the MSU campus was plunged into darkness when a guy wire touched a hot wire on an utility pole and caused an explosion.

The wire, located on a pole at the south end of the bridge near Computer Center, exploded at 10:11 p.m.

The pole had been set up to give temporary electrical service for the construction project at Wells Hall. The rest of the temporary service had been removed back to this particular pole, which was still remaining because of the temporary telephone lines.

According to Howard Wilson, associate director of the physical plant, something in the mechanism came loose, which allowed the wires to touch and cause the explosion.

The tie-in line, which connects MSU's two power plants, was dropped as a result of the explosion, causing the blackout. Power was restored to north campus at 11 p.m. and to the entire campus at 12:10 a.m. by reclosing various circuits. The last time MSU suffered a blackout was the evening of January 7. The cause of this blackout is still unknown.

'COLLEGE CRUD'

Prosecutor lambastes Lauderdale lemmings

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) -- Broward county's top prosecutor, citing sex orgies and lawlessness, Monday said it was time for the city of Fort Lauderdale to end the "college crud invasion."

State Atty. Roger H. Harper said the students are a "despicable class of tourists."

Harper told a Hollywood civic club the 30,000 students who spent the Easter weekend at Fort Lauderdale turned the city into a "20th century Sodom and Gomorrah."

He told the club the students: "Plundered commercial vehicles, destroyed public property, taunted and abused police, urinated in public, stole and ruined public property, explored illicit sex on the beach, dressed and conducted themselves salaciously and lewdly and overtaxed the city's courts and jails.

"The time has come," he said, "to place this despicable class of tourists on notice it is no longer welcome in Broward county. The city of Fort Lauderdale should notify every college in the country that the halcyon days are over, that the college crowds are no longer desired and that their presence will not be tolerated." Harper said with such advance notice "we may expect to see the Easter college crud invasion stay away."

He suggested "over-attentive police surveillance, excessively stern judicial treatment of offenders and total community ostracism" for those who come next year.

Harper said 300 students were arrested during the past seven days. Most students pleaded guilty. Those who wished to plead innocent were required to post $500 bonds for June appearances.

Campus leaders meet to discuss war, draft

The chairman of the Associated Students of Michigan State University (ASMSU) recently attended a conference of student government presidents to discuss the war in Vietnam and proposed changes in the selective service system.

Jim Graham said that the group of 20 student government presidents has sent a letter to President Johnson asking that he meet with them on the two questions.

McGeorge Bundy, former presidential adviser and current head of the Ford Foundation, spoke to the students about American policy in the war.

The student leaders attended the New York conference at the expense of the Ford Foundation and heard a high administration source say that President Johnson is attempting to end the war out of fear of right wing reaction in the elections in 1968.

"It appears that the war is no longer being fought solely on questions of morals or military strength," Graham said. "The question of politics is now playing an important part in decisions to escalate the war."

He said that the student government presidents asked questions such as how far the U.S. will go in the war since Congress recently appropriated $10 billion for three-and-one-half months of warfare.

The second day of the conference was devoted to student opinion on the draft.

"It was the opinion of the 20 presidents attending the conference that student opinion on the question of undergraduate deferments should be heard before the deferments are abolished," Graham said.

He stated that the leaders were in agreement that men should be allowed to register as conscientious objectors specifically to the Vietnam war and not to all wars, as they must do under present laws.

A presidential committee on selective service has recommended that the present draft system be changed to a lottery system, but the President has stated that he will deal with student deferments by executive order.

Graham said that undergraduate deferments would be the main topic which the student government presidents will discuss with Johnson if he agrees to meet with them.

Speech clinic for summer '68

A $681,000 speech rehabilitation center will be erected on campus for the Dept. of Speech.

The three-story building, scheduled for completion by the summer of 1968, will be at the corner of Wilson and Red Cedar roads.

The center will be built on a matching fund basis. The United States Health Service provided a $324,000 grant and the remaining $357,000 will be funded by the University.

MSU therapists currently see 250 to 275 patients three times a week, according to Herbert Oyer, chairman of the Speech Dept. They are treated for a variety of speech disorders, including loss of hearing, stuttering or need to learn new speech methods.

The Speech Dept. has operated clinical facilities for hearing and speech patients since 1938. Besides the campus clinic, MSU therapists staff facilities at Sparrow Hospital, Ingham County Extended Care Facility, Towar School for the Mentally Retarded and at Wood Haven.

Numismatists protest mercantilists' plan for exchange of silver dollars

NEW YORK (AP) -- If you have a bag of silver dollars tucked away in the bureau drawer, you may be able to sell it next month - just like some AT&T stock.

The New York Mercantile Ex-

Humphrey welcomed by Dutch

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) -- Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey received a royal welcome from Queen Juliana and almost no attention from antiwar demonstrators Tuesday on the second stop of his two-week European tour.

Arriving from Geneva, Humphrey and his wife were received by the queen for one hour. The vice president ran into a dozen long-haired young demonstrators later in the day as he left the Foreign Ministry. The demonstrators turned their backs on Humphrey, held up their arms and chanted slogans.

Foreign Minister Joseph Luns met Humphrey at the airport and said, "The United States vice president has come to our country at the right moment while we are rethinking several international problems."

Luns said these involved negotiations on a treaty to check the spread of nuclear weapons and the "Kennedy Round" talks to reduce trade barriers. Humphrey was reported encouraged on the progress of the negotiations after his one-day stay in Geneva.

change is working out final plans for trading silver dollars - as it already is trading butter and eggs.

It will match buyers and sellers of silver dollars - 1,000 cartwheels, used or unused, in a canvas bag.

The United States hasn't minted any silver dollars since 1935 and by law can't again before 1970. Once the favorites of the Nevada casinos and cowboys in the Rocky Mountains, the silver pieces almost have faded from general circulation.

"They are almost entirely collectors' items now, in small or large amounts," said a spokesman for the exchange.

Coin stores in New York currently price common used dollars at $1.75 and the unused ones at $2.50. Rare ones may sell for thousands of dollars.

Melted down and refined, they would be worth slightly more than $1 in silver alone, dealers said.

Most dealers are not happy about the Mercantile Exchange's plan to trade dollars.

"We're dead against it," said Norman Stack, a partner in Stack's coin dealers. "Coin collecting is a hobby business. Putting it on an exchange becomes speculation, just as foreign as if we were selling soybeans. The idea of making a market on American coins is wrong - it doesn't deserve a place on the mercantile markets."

"How would you like to see antiques offered for sale on the stock exchange?" asked another New York dealer. "I don't think the rare coin business should be used as a commodity. It could push up prices artificially."

In Washington, the Treasury Dept. said it would be watching trading very closely to see how it works out.

Rhode Island election spotlights Viet issue

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) -- Early voting was light in Rhode Island's special congressional election Tuesday but clearing skies and the anticipated evening rush were expected to bring the total turnout up between 75,000 and 100,000 votes.

Voters in the state's 2nd Congressional District will choose either Republican James Diprete, Democrat Robert O. Tiernan or an independent, the Rev. Albert Q. Perry, as the successor to the late Rep. John E. Fogarty, D-R.I.

National attention has been focused on the race because the dominant issue of the three-way campaign has been the war in Vietnam.

The war was brought to the forefront in the campaign by Perry, minister of the small Church of the Mediator (Unitarian-Universalist) in Providence.

Perry termed U.S. involvement in Vietnam "a tragic blunder" from the beginning and favored complete withdrawal of American troops.

He admitted his chances of winning the election were slim but hoped to force President Johnson and Congress to take "forthright" action to end the Vietnam war by polling a respectable percentage of the votes.

Tiernan, a state senator from Warwick, backed the administration on Vietnam throughout the campaign. He would not favor a cessation of bombing of North Vietnam unless Hanoi first agreed to take some type of reciprocal action.

Diprete favored a halt to the bombing of the North in the hope it would help draw Hanoi to the conference table. He stressed his stand was "not so hard and fast" he could not change it if the best interests of the country dictated he do so.

The Democratic party has had a tight hold on the 2nd District for the 26 years which spanned Fogarty's congressional career.

What you do on April 12, 13, may affect the rest of your life!

That's when the IBM interviewer will be on campus. When he'd like to talk with you—whatever your area of study, whatever your plans after graduation.

You'll find job opportunities at IBM in six major areas: Computer Applications, Programming, Finance and Administration, Research and Development, Manufacturing and Marketing.

Some of these areas may not mean much to you—now. But just let the IBM interviewer explain a few of them. One may be just the career you're looking for. It could be the start of something big—your future with IBM.

IBM

Whatever your immediate commitments, whatever your area of study, sign up for your on-campus interview with IBM, now.

If, for some reason, you aren't able to arrange an interview, drop us a line. Write to: Manager of College Recruiting, IBM Corporation, 100 South Wacker Drive, Chicago, Illinois. IBM is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Placement Bureau

Students must register in person at the Placement Bureau at least two days prior to the date of an interview.

Wednesday, April 5:

Baxter Laboratories, Inc.: all majors, all colleges, chemistry, packaging technology, mathematics and all majors of the College of Engineering (B,M) and all MBA's of the College of Business (M).

Beech-Nut Life Savers, Inc.: accounting, financial administration and management (B), labor and industrial relations (M), and packaging technology, mechanical engineering and chemistry (B).

Board of Wayne County Road Commissioners: civil engineering, forestry and landscape architecture (B,M).

Carson Pirie Scott and Co.: all majors, all colleges, accounting and financial administration (B).

City of Detroit, Civil Service Commission: accounting, all majors of the College of Business, civil, electrical and mechanical engineering and chemistry (B,M), nursing and medical technology, political science, psychology, statistics (B), urban planning and landscape architecture (B,M) and forestry (B).

Dallas County Junior College: communications, humanities, social science, business, mathematics, science, guidance and counseling and instructional resources center (M,D).

IBM Corp.: electrical engineering and mechanical engineering, physics and mathematics (D).

Kalamazoo Public Schools: early and later elementary education, art, science, mathematics, English, music (vocal and instrumental), art, women's physical education (B), counseling and guidance (M), educable mentally handicapped, trainable mentally handicapped, and emotionally disturbed (B).

Main may aid management

Is it possible to construct a mathematical model that will tell management in a large industry when, where and how much should be spent on new plants and equipment?

Researchers in the Graduate School of Business Administration have been examining the possibility for a year.

If their research is successful, they will use the information eventually to build a mathematical model that will cover the entire spectrum of major management decisions.

Management could then turn to mathematical models for assistance in planning colors, styles, pricing, output, volume and a variety of other items.

Richard F. Gonzalez, professor of management, and one of two principal researchers in the project, said a model would not eliminate human management. The model, Gonzalez noted, would bring into perspective hundreds of component variables that would aid executives in their decisions.

Frank H. Mossman, professor of marketing and transportation administration, is the other principal researcher. Assisting them are four doctoral students.

The Chrysler Corp. has contributed $12,500 for the next 12 months of the research.

Gonzalez and Mossman point out that the objectives of the research are to identify the relevant components, their interaction pattern, then develop a model and determine how it reacts to outside influences.

This is a step further than mathematical computer decisions that govern routine operations, such as supply, manpower and production, the researchers note.

Ed profs publish book

Four members of the Dept. of Elementary and Special Education have written a book titled "Teaching in the Modern Elementary School."

The authors are: Calhoun C. Collier, professor; W. Robert Houston, associate professor; Robert R. Schmatz, asst. professor; and William J. Walsh, professor.

The book deals with certain aspects of teaching which are of general concern to all teachers. Such topics as the use of instructional media, school administration and organization, classroom management and interpersonal relationships in teaching are covered.

Houston says the focal point of the book is an analytic one in which the teacher is asked to consider the various factors which influence the decisions which must be made and to base the decisions on evidence rather than mere whim.

Factors may change, he said, but the ability to analyze problems should stay with a teacher for his lifetime. As a result, sound evidence of the personal role is developed to replace guesswork or gimmickry in his decision making.

JUST 'CHARGE IT'

Prof suggests credit plan for financing education

College students should be allowed to finance their educations on mass credit just as consumers finance cars, Charles C. Killingsworth, professor of labor and industrial relations, told the Economics Society of Michigan recently.

Killingsworth, president of the society, gave his address at a meeting in the University of Michigan Union.

"If we are to make education as freely available to qualified students as automobiles, we must turn to mass credit," he said. "Surely the future earning power of high-talented manpower is as good security as loans on automobiles."

He said the idea of mass credit for students was rejected in favor of more conventional aid four years ago, but press reports indicate the Johnson administration may be showing increased interest in such a plan.

Killingsworth proposed the title Higher Education Loan Pool (HELP) for the program. The program is in effect in Massachusetts.

The finances for the program would come from the sale of bonds to banks and private investors, but it eventually could be supported through repayments.

Killingsworth said loans up to $15,000 could be repaid by a fixed repayment or an income tax for 40 years after graduation with the rate related to the original loan amount.

Spreading the repayment over 40 years would be the same process as amortizing an investment over its useful life. He particularly noted that women students might consider this "negative dowry" a liability to chances of marriage.

Killingsworth proposed that the rate of repayment be set high enough to offset the lower earnings of working wives. "If this were done, women would pay only on the basis of their personal earnings," he said.

He also proposed that HELP plan loans for college facilities whose repayment would come from a portion of student fees. Colleges would pledge future fees to amortize construction loans for 50 years.

"I can see no significant difference in principle between pledging the revenue from football ticket sales to secure a loan to build a stadium and pledging the revenue from $5 per student per year additional tuition to build a new library," Killingsworth said.

Colleges would not surrender their admissions policy under HELP, but would be allowed to eliminate the ability-to-pay screening that denies many qualified applicants an education, he said.

Teachers go back to school

The nation's drive to upgrade the quality of classroom instruction in its elementary and secondary schools by strengthening the teachers' skills and knowledge will continue this year at MSU.

Four summer institutes for approximately 175 teachers and administrators with some $300,000 in National Defense Education Act funds from the Office of Education will be conducted on campus.

In all, some 500 institutes will be conducted throughout the nation in 12 areas of specialization. At MSU, Cleo O. Cherryholmes, asst. professor of political science, will direct a program on American Political Institutions for social studies and civics teachers from grades 7 through 12.

Throughout the eight weeks of this institute, participants will attend class, laboratory sessions and guest lectures from 12 to 14 hours each week and spend another 25 to 35 hours studying.

A special six-week institute for 35 high school teachers of advanced placement American history courses will be offered under the direction of Justin L. Kestebaum, asst. professor of history.

One of the goals of this program is to help participants use the essay examination more effectively as a teaching device. Advanced placement courses offer top high school juniors and seniors opportunity to do college level work in such subjects as history and English.

Forty teachers of kindergarten through eighth grade will attend the eight-week institute in geography to be directed by Paul C. Morrison, professor of geography here.

Course credit earned in these three institutes may be applied toward master's and master of teaching degrees.

Enrollment in MSU's five-week institute in instructional media will be limited to directors and trainers of teachers in media.

One of the features of this institute is the low faculty-participant ratio. Institute director Horace C. Hartsell, associate director of the Instructional Media Center, will be assisted by a staff of 16 faculty members.

Radio post petitioning

All-Campus Radio Board petitions for member-at-large positions will be available in 8 Student Services until April 7.

Applicants must plan to be on-campus students next year, have a minimum grade point of 2.00 and must not be affiliated with any student radio station, according to Pete Sorum, radio board chairman.

Members-at-large will be selected from the group of applicants at the first meeting in April, but will not take office until fall term.

A chairman will also be chosen in April. The chairman will be named by the board, subject to approval of the president of Men's Halls Assn. (MHA), the president of Women's Inter-Residence Council (WIC) and the chairman of the ASMSU Student Board.

Physics film series opens tonight

The Feynman Film Festival, featuring filmed lectures by Richard Feynman, will open tonight and continue for six weeks in 118 Physics-Math Building. The Physics Club and the Dept. of Physics are presenting the films on the character of the physical law. The first film "The Law of Gravitation, An Example of Physical Law," will be shown at 7:30 tonight and again at 4 p.m. Thursday.

Feynman is a professor at the California Institute of Technology and a Nobel Laureate in Physics. The lectures were prepared for the Messenger Lecture series at Cornell University and are directed to a general audience without a detailed knowledge of physics.

Films will be shown today and Thursday this week only. The rest of the films will be shown twice each week, 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays and 4 p.m. Wednesdays.

Other films in the series are: "The Relation of Mathematics to Physics," "The Great Conservation Principles," "Symmetry in Physical Law," "The Distinction of Past and Future," "Probability and Uncertainty -- The Quantum Mechanical View of Nature" and "Seeking New Laws."

Debaters travel to Toronto

Michigan State's debate team will participate in the International Centennial Debate Tournament at York University in Toronto, Ont., Thursday-Sunday, Jerry M. Anderson, director of forensics, has announced.

The tournament features preliminary rounds between top U.S. and Canadian teams debating the proposition, "Canada Should Actively Support The United States' Position In Vietnam."

The winner will then debate against a Russian team on the topic, "The U.S. Should Immediately Withdraw Its Forces From Vietnam." This debate will be televised live on the Canadian Broadcasting Co. (CBC) at 2 p.m. Sunday.

The MSU debaters selected to enter the tournament are Glen Foster, Saginaw sophomore, and Roger Chard, Lansing sophomore. Both are social science majors.

U.S. colleges and universities to participate include Harvard, Cornell, Columbia, Princeton, New Hampshire, Colorado Southern, Buffalo, Bowling Green, Wake Forest, Rhode Island, Wyoming, Augustana, UCLA and MSU.

The Canadian representatives include British Columbia, York, Toronto, Manitoba, MacMaster, New Brunswick, Alberta and McGill.

$3,000,000

Gifts, grants accepted

Gifts and grants totaling $3,008,086.44 were accepted March 16 by MSU's Board of Trustees.

Included was a grant of $741,000 from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to cover partial cost of the construction of a new Pesticide Research Center.

Gordon E. Guyer, chairman of the Entomology Dept., said the facilities will be used to expand health related pesticide research. The research center, Guyer noted, will try to find safer methods of pest control, and it will also assess the effect of weed killers, insecticides, and fungicides on their environment.

The National Science Foundation granted $379,591 for the support of 66 doctoral students. The funds are administered by Jacob Vinocur, associate dean of graduate studies. Students in the program may receive financial assistance for four years. This NSF program covers 27 departments.

Construction of a new hearing and speech rehabilitation center will begin this summer under a matching grant of $324,000 from the U.S. Public Health Service. MSU will provide the remaining $357,000 to cover the total center cost of $681,000. Herbert J. Oyer, chairman of the Dept. of Speech, is director of the hearing and speech clinic at MSU.

The board accepted $276,435.21 from the MSU Development Fund. Friends and alumni contributed $905,803.90 during 1966. Previously $625,617.29 of the total had been accepted by the Board.

The U.S. Office of Education awarded $266,400 to support fellowships and traineeships in five areas of special education: emotional disturbance, mental retardation, visually handicapped, speech and hearing, and special education administration. Charles V. Mange, associate professor in the Dept. of Elementary and Special Education, will administer the grant.

An addition to MSU's Cyclotron Laboratory will be built with a $200,000 grant from the National Science Foundation. The addition will house offices, small laboratories, and a public viewing room connected to the cyclotron control and data rooms.

The U.S. Office of Education granted $150,000 for continued support of MSU's research and development program in vocational-technical education. The program is designed to evaluate and upgrade curricula in vocational education. Peter G. Haines, professor of secondary education and curriculum, is director of the project.

The College of Veterinary Medicine was granted $115,054 by the National Institutes of Health for general support of ongoing research. Dr. Willis Armistead, dean of the college, will administer the grant.

Under a previously announced grant, a year-long study of the effects of federally supported research on higher education in Michigan will be conducted by the MSU's Office of Institutional Research. Dr. Paul L. Dressel, director of institutional research, will direct the program. Twelve state-supported colleges and universities are included. The study is being supported by a National Science Foundation grant of $94,886.

An experimental training center for personnel in the federal-state employment security system will be established at MSU with a grant of $94,050 from the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Employment Security. Daniel H. Kruger, associate director in charge of the Manpower Program Service in the School of Labor and Industrial Relations, will direct the center. The board also accepted grants for scholarships totaling $30,349.72.

TVA head will speak on resources

Aubrey J. Wagner, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Tennessee Valley Authority, will speak at a college-wide discussion seminar on "The Resource Development Programs of TVA" at 3:30 p.m. today in the Natural Resources Building Auditorium. The seminar is sponsored by the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

CARS ROBBED*Thefts rampant during exams

The University Police received a rash of larceny from a vehicle reports during the weekend before final exam week last term.

A total of 22 reports were received on March 10-12. Most of the thefts occurred in University parking areas. Items taken included clothing, air cleaners, tachometers, hub caps, generators, batteries and various chrome accessories.

A number of stolen items were recovered during the term break by University police who said that the items were apparently discarded by the thieves.

Two men were recently arrested and charged with larceny from a vehicle by University Police.

Anthony John Childs of Centralia, Ill., and William Leroy John of Lansing had 54 stolen items with them when they were apprehended Monday morning.

The two demanded examination when arraigned in Lansing Township Justice Court and then released on bond of $1,500 apiece.

Prof dismissal plan OK'd

studied documents from other universities, and sent copies of its proposal to all faculty in the tenure system.

Provost Howard R. Neville said the first draft of the procedures was submitted to the Academic Council in the spring of 1965 and was returned to the committee with recommended changes.

A second draft was presented to the Academic Senate, which includes all tenured faculty, in December 1965. It was approved by the Academic Senate in June, 1966, and was sent to University Attorney Leland Carr for examination and back to the faculty committee.

Now that the report has received the approval of the board of trustees, the procedures will go into effect immediately.

The procedures begin with a preliminary conference between the accused faculty member and the appropriate administrative officer. No formal charges can be made until the faculty member has been informed of them and this conference has been held.

Only administrative officers, such as committee chairmen, deans, department chairmen, the Provost or the President, can bring formal charges against a faculty member.

Cumberland explained that this is to prevent irresponsible charges. The burden of proof lies with the official who makes the charges.

The Hearing Committee will consist of the members of the Faculty Tenure Committee at the time the formal proceedings are initiated.

The procedures also provide that the provost or his representative, the administrative head of the unit in which the affected faculty member is employed and the affected faculty member and his adviser may be present at all sessions of the Hearing Committee and may present evidence, call, examine and cross-examine witnesses, and examine all documentary evidence received by the committee.

All hearings will be closed, but a record will be kept. The report states that: "For the protection of all concerned, public statements about the case shall be avoided as far as possible."

Cumberland said that the release of statements would depend on whether the interests of the individual, the University, and society would be affected.

The Faculty Tenure Committee will now look at the entire tenure system to define the status of members at the different levels, Cumberland said. This would include a definition of the position and rights of non-tenured faculty and possibly a dismissal procedure for them.

3 students in senate

"This has been a controversial subject from the document's conception through its ratification," he added. It passed the faculty by about a 2-1 margin, he said.

"I believe it is much more desirable to involve them at this level of policy-making rather than holding them out and then engaging in a never-ending process of explanation and confrontation."

Varnier concluded by expressing doubt that the move will solve all such problems between the University and students, but said it indicates that students are taken seriously and that the University is willing to deal with them on a serious level.

Oakland's University Senate is comparable to Michigan State's Academic Council. It has a variety of duties, including responsibility for consideration of all University academic policies.

Michigan State's 68 member Academic Council has no student members -- yet.

US compiles price study

(continued from page one) on the extra page and the size of the second run were not to be made until late Tuesday, according to Brad Lang, Lansing sophomore, who prepared the first run.

On-Campus sale is authorized by ASMSU and the administration. The study has not been sold in East Lansing because of an ordinance banning "hawking" without a license on main streets.

The US research committee chaired by David Crawford, Cincinnati, Ohio, junior, compared prices at six grocery stores, five pizza restaurants, seven dry cleaners, four service stations and seven drug stores.

The study shows, among others, these variations in grocery prices:

--Ten cents on a pound of hamburger.

--Ten cents on five pounds of bologna.

--Twenty-six cents on a pound of hot dogs.

--Nineteen cents on a 12-oz. can of frozen orange juice.

Dry cleaning charges for sweaters, skirts, sport coats and slacks varied from 85 cents to $1.

The difference on shirts was three cents.

There was little variation on gasoline prices at the service stations studied, but a 25-cent difference in the charge for a service call were found.

The spread of drug store prices for the same item were in some cases "really unbelievable," said a coed who worked on the study. These included:

--A 29-cent difference on a pack of 10 razor blades.

--A 50-cent difference on eye-liner.

--A 90-cent difference on mascara.

--Ten cents difference on No-Doz.

--A 16-cent difference on toothpaste.

"We are not concerned with why prices are higher at one store than at another," the study says, adding that it was compiled by comparison shopping to enable students to buy without having to go each store and compare prices on their own.

It noted incidents of unfair advertising and packaging, and points out discounts, refunds and exceptional quality available at some stores.

U-M president Fleming

candidate who had not been approved by the alumni, faculty and student advisory committees. The committees had been working with a list that included Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare John Gardner and Roger Heyns, chancellor of the University of California at Berkeley.

Fleming, an attorney and labor relations expert, graduated from Beloit College in 1938 and earned a law degree in 1941 from Wisconsin. He has been Wisconsin's chancellor since 1964.

Fleming's statement said he had found the decision to leave his alma mater difficult, but he was looking forward to work at the University of Michigan. "I shall do my best to be worthy of its traditions," he said.

Fleming will assume his duties in September, although Hatcher will be in office until Jan. 1. Briggs said this would enable Fleming to become familiar with the school while Hatcher handles the daily affairs.

Briggs quoted Fleming as saying: "This will probably be the only time during my administration that I will be able to devote full time to studying the University of Michigan instead of running it."

Wisconsin President Fred Harvey Harrington said, "There are few men in this world I would recommend without reservation for Michigan and Chancellor Fleming is one of them. His leaving is a blow to Wisconsin and a boon to Michigan."

Gov. George Romney said the Board of Regents had made an "outstanding choice of a new president."

Craig gets chairman promotion

Robert C. Craig, asst. director of the School for Advanced Studies in Education, has been appointed chairman of the Dept. of Counseling, Personnel Services and Educational Psychology.

Craig will assume the chairmanship July 1, succeeding Norman Stewart, asst. professor, who now completes his designated term as chairman. Craig's chairmanship was approved March 16 by the MSU Board of Trustees.

Craig, a Michigan State alumnus, returned to the University last year as a faculty member. He had been a professor of education at Marquette University, a research scientist and program director for the American Institute for Research, Pittsburgh, and an asst. professor at Washington State University.

A native of Sault St. Marie and graduate of Morrice High School near East Lansing, Craig earned B. S. and M. A. degrees at Michigan State, and in 1947 served here as a graduate assistant in education.

He went to Columbia University in 1949 to earn a Ph.D. degree, returning to MSU as a visiting lecturer in the summer of 1951.

As an educational psychologist, Craig has written two books, "The Transfer Value of Guided Learning" and "The Psychology of Learning in the Classroom," and has co-authored a third, "American Education: Origins and Issues."

Dippy hippo

Herman the Hippo, missing for four days, showed up 20 miles from where he had vanished, swimming in an exercise tank used by thoroughbred race horses. Attempts to lasso him by Gene Holter, owner of the carnival from which he escaped, failed. Only after Lisa, an elephant friend of Herman's, appeared, did the hippo leave the water. UPI Telephoto

WINTER COMMENCEMENT

Wilson praises 'U' for staying relevant

"To keep relevant" was the message of Meredith Wilson at the winter term commencement exercises held March 12.

The president of the University of Minnesota spoke to an audience of approximately 3,900 who witnessed the awarding of 1,174 degrees.

Wilson stressed the importance of keeping up with the changing times and warned the graduates that although MSU confers its ceremonial mark of achievement it will bend every effort to make what one has learned obsolete.

Wilson said the old city council was an archaic institution not relevant to modern metropolitan needs.

"We grope for ways to meet the common problems of taxation, police and fire protection, sanitary services, and education," he said, "As we cling to the city invented to serve another world, and fight reform as a rejection of our good old traditions, pollution is piling up in our streams and is poisoning our air; slums and ghettos are depressing the quality of our life."

Wilson praised MSU for constantly remaining relevant to the needs of each generation and for remaining ready to serve modern agriculture in the United States.

President John A. Hannah conferred on Wilson an honorary doctor of laws degree, citing him for his enthusiastic support of human rights and international education.

Hannah then placed doctoral hoods on candidates for doctoral

ONLY 6 SEATS

20 ASMSU candidates preen for campaigns

By ELLEN ZURKEY State News Staff Writer

Posters, leaflets, and booster buttons will appear on campus Thursday as campaigning begins for member-at-large positions in student government.

Twenty candidates are running for six seats on the 1967-68 student board of the Associated Students of Michigan State University (ASMSU).

A last minute withdrawal has reduced the number of candidates vying for the senior seat to three. Peter Cannon, Charleston, S.C. junior, informed the elections committee Tuesday that he would not run for office because of personal and financial reasons.

Students who are running for the two positions of senior member-at-large are: Greg Hopkins, Lansing; W. C. Blanton, Hodgenville, Ky.; and Ross Mast, White Cloud.

Candidates for the two junior seats are: Jim Ellen, Miami Beach, Fla.; Harvey Dzodin, Oak Park; David Penz, Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Richard Oestreich, Independence, Iowa; Richard Felsing, Augres; Terrance Cimino, Omaha, Neb; Charles Rose, East Lansing; Dave Macomber, Birmingham; and Peter Ellsworth, East Lansing.

Running for the sophomore seat are: Brad Lang, Lansing; Roger Gordon, Jackson; Stephen Brown, Grand Rapids; and Terry Mulchakey, Coldwater.

Women campaigning for the female member-at-large seat are: Penny Kahn, Akron, Ohio, junior; Cassie Beddow, Ridge-wood, N.J., sophomore; Cindy Mattson, Bethesda, Md., sophomore; and Sharon Chatham, Hamburg, N.Y., junior.

Before the all-University election, April 12, candidates will be speaking at dormitories and answering students' questions on their views of campus and national problems.

The candidates' names will appear on the ballots in alphabetical order this year instead of rotating the order as was done in previous years. This was done because the cost for printing and tabulating a set of rotated IBM ballots would have been prohibitive, said John Jacobs, ASMSU vice-president of finance and operations.

An amendment to restrict board spending on political questions will also appear on the ballot. The question was placed on the ballot after ten per cent (2,900) of the registered undergraduate students at MSU called for a referendum on the question.

Post office plans revised as East Lansing expands

East Lansing's recent rapid growth has prompted plans for a larger, more extensive new post office than originally considered by city officials.

John M. Patriarche, East Lansing city manager, and Mayor Gordon L. Thomas said they learned about the change while attending the National League of Cities convention in Washington, D.C.

While in the capital, the city officials paid a casual visit to Frederick C. Belen, deputy U.S. Postmaster-General and a Lansing native.

Belen said the city's recent growth has caused the government to revise specifications for the East Lansing post office. When the post office was planned, size was determined by taking a survey two years ago and projecting East Lansing's growth over a 10-year period. However, Belen said, in two years East Lansing has grown to the point that it had been expected would take 10 years. East Lansing's population is now estimated at 50,000, while the 1960 census showed 30,198.
