NEW YORK (AP)—The American Federation of Television and Radio Artists (AFTRA) struck the major television and radio networks Wednesday, but supervisory personnel kept the networks on the air by taking over news shows. Other affected programs were replaced by reruns.

In the first national strike in the 30-year history of the 18,000-member federation, picket lines went up shortly after 5 a.m. in front of the Columbia Broadcasting System, the National Broadcasting Co., the American Broadcasting Co. and the Mutual Broadcasting System and their affiliates in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Washington, and at advertising agencies.

Independent stations were not affected. Newsmen, actors, singers, dancers and announcers who are members of AFTRA went on strike in the dispute between network and 100 local newsmen and staff announcers in Los Angeles, New York and Chicago. All are on-the-air personnel, doing actual broadcasts as well as newsgathering.

A spokesman at CBS said newsmen based in foreign countries were not affected by the strike and their filed reports would be broadcast.

The 100 local newsmen and staff announcers are seeking a $325 weekly base wage guarantee plus sharing in commercial fees on sponsored programs on which they appear.

Under AFTRA's proposal, the newsmen and stations would split the first $650 in commercial fees, giving the newsmen their $325 basic wage guarantee. Any fees over this would be kept entirely by the newsmen under the AFTRA demands.

Previously, newsmen on network-owned stations have negotiated contracts on an individual basis. Salaries range from $225 to $350 a week, but some newsmen have earned as much as $800 a week with commercial fees.

The newsmen also charged that they are not compensated for overtime work. They seek $75 a day additional for work on the sixth and seventh days.

Two of the first big shows affected by the strike were the NBC Today television program from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m., and the CBS morning news from 7:05 a.m. to 7:30 a.m. In each case, supervisory personnel took over the news.

On the Today show, time not devoted to news was filled by reruns of a portion of the show of last July 4, from Mystic, Conn.

Housewives looking forward to mid-afternoon television soap opera got a bit of a shock today when an old Jack Benny comedy appeared on her screen.

Unfamiliar names were assigned to replace the usual "Good Night, Chet," or "That's the way the world was..." on evening news shows.

Gov. asks cut in 'U' budget request by 2/3

Gov. George Romney has proposed cutting MSU's capital outlay budget to less than one-third the requested amount.

In a plan outlined to the legislature Wednesday, Romney recommended construction grants totaling $5.4 million. MSU's Board of Trustees had originally requested $18.6 million.

The largest question arising from Romney's budget concerns a proposed Life Sciences building for the College of Human Medicine.

Romney's proposal provides only $75,000 for preliminary planning of the $10 million structure. The University originally requested $1.5 million; some $6 million of the money has already been pledged through federal grants.

According to Provost Howard R. Neville, the University will have to wait to see more specifically what goes into the budget bill before it can determine whether the project can be started as hoped, with the funds available.

Other provisions in the Governor's request include:

- $1.7 million to complete the $5.4 million Wells Hall, a classroom and office building. This is the amount the University asked.

- $2.5 million to continue construction on the $5.9 million administration building. The trustees had asked $3.55 million.

- $1,129,000 to complete construction of the $4.3 million library addition. This again is the amount asked.

"This is the absolute minimum of what we need to complete the buildings already under construction," Neville said.

Gone from the governor's proposals were funds requested for five new projects. The five included in order of priority, a new Communications Arts building, a steam generator addition, and new Social Science, Physics and Astronomy, and Physics buildings.

'U' policy not tied to Oakland's actions

By BEVERLEY TWITCHELL
State News Executive Reporter

The opening of Oakland University's University (Academic) Senate to students probably will have little effect on any action MSU may take on the same subject.

"I don't imagine it will have any effect," Provost Howard R. Neville said Wednesday. "Why should it? Every university ought to look at this question in itself."

The faculty Committee on Committees was "unofficially told to think about it" last term, Neville said. The reason for this was that the members of this committee are also members of the Academic Council and "the Academic Council itself must deal with the Academic Council question," Neville said.

The council is composed of elected representatives from each college.

Neville originally presented the idea of opening both the Academic Council and faculty standing committees to students in a speech to the Academic Senate Nov. 30, 1966.

"The decision must soon be reached about whether we invite students to attend our Academic Council and to attend meetings of our standing committees of the faculty," Neville said, "and if so, how those who serve would be chosen."

"Students want to be heard on matters of policy affecting them, and they should be heard," he said.

The Committee on Committees was officially instructed to discuss student participation on faculty standing committees in February. At the same time, the question of student participation in the Academic Council was mentioned.

Richard L. Featherstone, chairman of the Committee on Committees, said Wednesday that the committee is considering only the question of faculty standing committees at this time.

"The committee felt this was its first job," he said, "and is within its jurisdiction."

The question concerning the Academic Council is not on the agenda, he said.

"Until now, the committee has been concerned with the procedure it will use in approaching the problem. At its April 6 meeting, the presidents of the six major governing groups and the chairman of the ASMSU Student Board will express their views on student participation on faculty standing committees."

ASMSU Chairman Jim Graham said that he will offer several concrete suggestions on how students can be involved with faculty committees. "But I also feel that students should be involved in the study of the question," he said.

Featherstone said the committee should "meet some real conclusion for a direction on how to attack the thing and what has to be done," at the April 6 meeting.

Woodrow Wilson fund names 18 to fellowships

A record number of MSU seniors have won Woodrow Wilson fellowships for a year of graduate study in 1967-68, John D. Wilson, director of the Honors College, has announced.

Eighteen students, five more than last year and the largest group in MSU's history, will have tuition and fees for the college of their choice paid by the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation. Each will receive a $2,000 living stipend and allowances for dependent children.

Another 26 seniors received honorable mention in the competition.

Michigan winners are: Mrs. Rebecca A. Byrne, Okemo, a National Merit Scholar; Harvey S. Goldman, Detroit, also one of three MSU winners of Danforth Graduate Fellowships; Jonathan B. Knudsen, Detroit; William R. Ives, Birmingham; Kay Ann Snyder, East Lansing; Roy J. Van Neste, Milledgeville; David B. West, Birmingham; David H. White, Midland; and Edward J. Williams, Rochester.

Out-of-state winners are: Philip G. Kraushar, Haleah, Fla.; Gary

C. Scheidt, Manchester, Mo.; Frederick T. Himmelstein, Sandusky, Ohio; Laimdota Mazzarini, Macedonia, Ohio; Mary R. Olin, Ashland, Ohio; Paul A. Harcombe, Portland, Ore.; Donald E. Mackenzie, Houston, Tex.; a Danforth Fellowship winner and at 19 MSU's youngest Wilson Fellow this year; Harold C. Melchert, Alexandria, Va.; and Mark P. Silverman, also of Alexandria.

All but one of the winners are members of the Honors College. They were chosen from about 100 MSU nominees and are among 1,259 national winners selected from 13,596 college seniors in the U.S. and Canada.

MSU ranked second in winners within a region including Michigan and Ohio, according to John F. A. Taylor, professor of philosophy, director of the Humanities Research Center and chairman of the campus committee representing the Woodrow Wilson Foundation.

The University of Michigan had 29 winners, Taylor said. Ohio State had four, "a good comparative figure with a land grant college," he said. Kenyon College in Ohio had seven winners, Oberlin, nine, and Wayne State, four.

Seniors are nominated for the fellowship by faculty members. Nominees' names are sent to a regional chairman. In this case Otto Graf, a professor at U-M. The students are then interviewed by a three-member committee, part of a larger committee of 15 deans, professors and university vice presidents. The examination covers the student's major field of study, and is "undoubtedly the most probing examination which is given in any university," according to Taylor.

The MSU fellowship winners will attend a luncheon in their honor April 13 with President John A. Hannah, Provost Howard R. Neville and the Woodrow Wilson Foundation campus committee members; Taylor, Wilson and Paul A. Varg, Dean of the College of Arts and Letters.

CIA secret aid to halt

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson ordered the Central Intelligence Agency today to get out of the business of subsidizing private groups through secret, under-the-table deals.

Johnson at the same time promised to give serious consideration to the creation of a new institution that, in effect, would continue federal subsidies but do so in the open.

The president acted after receiving recommendations from a three-man panel he appointed following the international controversy last month over secret CIA financing of overseas activities through private educational, labor, philanthropic and cultural organizations.

Johnson accepted the following recommended policy statement by the panel: "No federal agency shall provide any covert financial assistance or support, direct or indirect to any of the nation's educational or private voluntary organizations ...

"Where such support has been given, it will be terminated as quickly as possible without destroying valuable private organizations before they can seek new means of support."

The President said he is directing all federal agencies to fully implement the new policy.

The Katzenbach committee estimated that most if not all existing secret subsidy programs can be liquidated by Dec. 31.

None of these programs, it said, would justify any exception to the new policy against secret financial aid.

"At the same time, where the security of the nation may be at stake," it went on, "it is impossible for this committee to state categorically now that there will never be a contingency in which overriding national security interests may require an exception."

The committee also recommended "that the government should promptly develop and establish a public-private mechanism to provide public funds openly for overseas activities of deserving organizations."

MSU may lose NSA meet; Auditorium not available

The chance that MSU will be the site of the National Student Assn.'s (NSA) summer congress is now slim, but the possibility is still open.

NSA had already decided to accept MSU's bid for this year's conference when it was learned that the Auditorium was not available for the conference dates Aug. 15-30.

"NSA wanted very much to hold the congress at MSU," said Al Milano, NSA congress co-ordinator.

But Milano said that NSA must have use of the Auditorium for its meetings.

The Michigan 4-11 Club has rented the Auditorium for the last 10 days in August.

"If they change the dates of their conference we would be more than happy to come to MSU," Milano said.

Milano explained that NSA would have to know by the end of next week if the Auditorium would be available in order for the congress to still be held here.

He said that since MSU appears an impossibility, Southern Illinois University has become NSA's first choice. Other schools being considered are an unspecified eastern college and the University of Chicago.

Jim Graham, chairman of ASMSU, said that he is almost certain that this year's NSA congress will not be held at MSU, and he expressed his disappointment.

Graham has recently been elected chairman of the Michigan region of NSA. In this post he serves as official spokesman for Michigan's NSA member colleges and member of the NSA summer congress steering committee.

Drops and adds begin Friday

Drops and adds begin Friday. Students dropping or adding courses must obtain necessary approval signatures from academic advisers or the adviser's representative and the department concerned.

Students whose fees are not affected by the change should turn in their drop or add cards at the registrar's tables which will be located in the lower level of the Auditorium between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Friday through Tuesday.

Students whose fees are affected should report to 107 Administration Bldg.

Section changes can be completed within the office of the academic department concerned.

Drops, adds or section changes in HPR courses will be processed in the appropriate physical education office in 230 Jenison Fieldhouse or 139 Women's I.M.

Students participating in late registration should obtain their permit to register and section reservation-enrollment card from their academic department or college and then report to 107 Administration Bldg.

Tuesday is the last day for late registration, adding courses or changing sections. The last day for dropping courses will be April 11. After Tuesday, drop cards should be turned in to the Registrar's Office in 113 Administration Bldg.

SAE probation: mandate for frats

At winter term's end, Sigma Alpha Epsilon drew a disciplinary probation sentence which has cost the brothers rushing and pledging privileges and ended SAE social functions for a year.

Probation resulted from an incident in which a pledge was seriously burned by a chemical stripper in the towel put over his neck and used during a relay race.

However harmful the probation to the fraternity's image, the real punishment does not preclude the group's survival. Larry Owen, former IFC president, emphasized that it was not intended to kill the fraternity.

After two terms SAE may appeal and will probably be granted rushing privileges. SAE can help to re-establish itself with a well planned and executed rush next winter term.

The probation's actual intent is not simply to punish SAE, but to goad the whole fraternity system into a re-examination for the improvement of rush and pledge programs.

When a new freshman comes to MSU and is exposed to the dorm discussion of fraternities, nothing worries him more than the comments that frat men are all fakey, animals, a bunch of howling clowns, with no regard for the welfare of the pledges.

Coupled with the realization that the heyday of goldfish eating, ingesting cigarette packages and boola-boola is generally past, this worry has led many houses into a re-evaluation of their programs.

Since the outcome of this trend is not yet clear, one can hardly assert that more can and should be done. It does seem obvious that houses simply clinging to tradition need to think things over and re-evaluate.

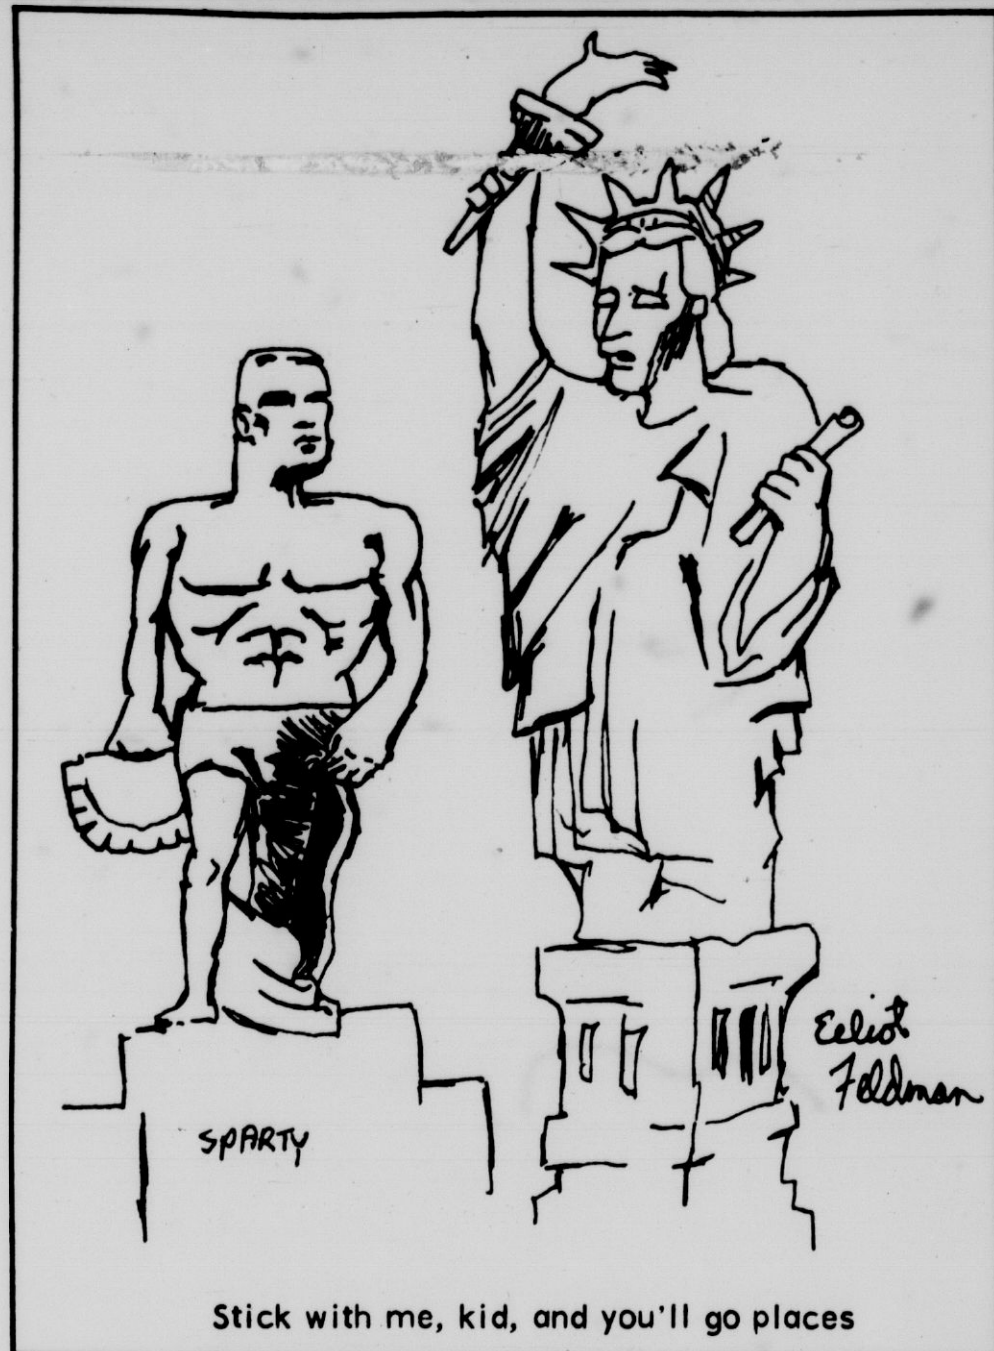

Houses already trying to keep up with the times must do more than pay lip service to racial equality; they must stop stifling individualism by trying to fit all their members into a paisley-lined mold. There are only two examples.

Though IFC is not particularly strong, it is trying to stimulate change and improvement. The council's recommendations are the result of considerable study, thought and some statesmanship; they were certainly not an attempt to kill SAE.

The recommendations were, instead, an attempt to motivate improvement within SAE and the entire fraternity system.

Thant peace proposal unfortunate failure

The apparent failure of UN Secretary General U Thant's latest efforts to bring about a Vietnam settlement points up once again some of the difficulties in solving this war.

By using the prestige of his position, Thant hopes to force both sides into making concessions that neither would make unilaterally. Although talks alone are no guarantee of a workable settlement of the war, certainly no solution is going to come without negotiation.

By accepting Thant's three-point proposal immediately, the United States has shown what at least appears to be its good intentions in seeking an end to the conflict. But Hanoi apparently has rejected the plan of a general truce to be followed by preliminary talks and a reconvening of the 1954 Geneva convention.

Thant had been critical of the U.S. for blocking the way of his former proposals. Because of his impartial status is seeking a settlement, the onus would now seem to fall on the Hanoi regime for blocking the path to peace.

It is possible to see why Hanoi would be reluctant to agree to Thant's latest plan, despite the prestige of the Secretary - General's position. Any talks now would leave Hanoi in a position of weakness. And by calling a general truce, Hanoi might be afraid of diminishing the spirit that holds together a nation fighting for its life. In 1964, the U.S. refused to negotiate because it held the weaker hand in the war.

Now with the military advantage on his side, Johnson is eager to talk.

But despite the apparent irreconcilability of the two governments' stated objectives, it must be remembered that public policy can be compromised in a conference.

As U Thant is well aware, the most pressing need now is to end the fighting, and bring the two hostile parties together to talk.

Escalated inebriation

Our roving reporter obtained a tip from one of those unidentified sources during spring break. The source, who works for the Defense Dept., said the Pentagon is planning another increase in defense expenditures for the next year.

"Disguised as a CIA agent our reporter talked with a high Pentagon official.

"Sir, why is another increase in defense spending being considered?"

"Over the past few weeks there have been indications of increased enemy activity on several fronts. Obviously we cannot allow this activity to build momentum."

"You're speaking of Vietnam, of course."

"No, I'm talking about what's going on here in this country."

"You mean the Minute Men? The New Left? The Black Power movement?"

"I mean armies down in Florida. The reports our agents sent back from there indicate that we must heavily defend against terror tactics we haven't met before."

"What kind of defense weapons will be utilized with the new expenditures?"

"First we thought about pacifying the alien population with kegs of beer dropped from helicopters and low flying airplanes, but Ft. Lauderdale officials say such steps would be taken by the enemy as token surrender and they would become more militant."

"What have you decided to do?"

"We have sent agents out to infiltrate the last waves of troops to hit the beach. We hope to break them down by espionage."

"What methods will the agents use?"

"That's classified material, but I can tell you that the men we had down there last week have come up with some counter weapons for the bread missiles and beer bottle bombardments. The contracts for those weapons have gone to several plants for development."

"There are rumors that the launching pads at Cape Kennedy might be used for long range bombings, is that true?"

"We had considered it, but the chances of our missiles hitting populated civilian areas are too high. Only if the Lauderdale government calls for such tactics will they be employed."

"Do you feel that a settlement of the Lauderdale crisis is in sight?"

"At this time there are chances that it may be settled before June, 1968. All I can definitely say now is I'm glad spring only comes once a year. We are going into this thing to win and it looks like it might be a long, hard struggle."

OUR READERS' MINDS

No hours policy fosters maturity

To the Editor:

Come on now! You don't really think I'm going to be satisfied with another whole half-hour, do you? I don't want your approval. I want the right so long denied to call myself a human being. I want to be able to leave the barracks they want me to call my home, drive to a half-way decent hill, sit down with a thermos of hot coffee and wait for the sun to come up, so I can have a few minutes of exulting frustration trying to catch the beauty and magnificence with scratches of charcoal on paper. When an Allen Ginsberg or a Lawrence Ferlinghetti comes I want to stay till the bitter and arguing out my views and disagreements. I don't want to have to portion out my hours ("At 9:30 we'll have to switch to humanism if we are going to stay on schedule and make it back to the prison on time"). I want to be able to spend those last few precious minutes with my dear friend who is leaving for Vietnam tomorrow. But most of all I want to not be in the wrong for doing these things. As it stands now the women's hours policy makes it all but impossible for me to do these things and retain my self respect. Rigid laws always encourage cheating. But the new proposal says in effect if Uncle Sam says you've grown up, I guess it's O.K. The problem isn't how to help us grow up but how not to hinder our growing.

Sure I can sign out for the night--but to where, a hotel room? That's specifically against the law. To a fictitious address--that defeats the whole purpose of the sign out--our protection in case of disaster. But if, in addition to more liberal hours for the "mature" women, there were to be a more sane and logical late permission procedure for the "IMMATURE" freshman and sophomores maybe we would be getting a little closer to the ideal--the freedom to grow and learn.

All we women ask is to be included in your world, not shut out to avoid scandal and disapproval. We aren't going to run hushly about corrupting anybody. We are going to keep right on studying just as much as we do now, maybe more, because we won't have to worry about missing anything. The new hours policy isn't going to flood the world with thousands of hysterical females trying out their new privileges. I for one will probably do less running around and I'm covered by the no hours policy!

So before you go making learned pronouncements about the feminine psyche, gentlemen, stop and think a little. Women are people just like you. To saddle them with responsibility for keeping your hours for you, or for setting a good example, or for placating the in loco parentis demon, is asking them to be better than you expect of even the best of your ranks. When you expect more than is there you are bound to be disappointed. So don't blame us for any lack on your part, because that is showing just how immature you are; and is going to start us wondering just whose hours need revising.

AWS has made a very good start toward responsibility. They have won new respect from me, a transfer student from a school where they were known as ASS for their total bootlicking inanity. I give them my blessing and beg them not to stop. The new task is to help follow through, to get the support and cooperation of the entire community, to let us women become people without the scars that the original sufferage movement left. Don't let us down now. And please, let MHA, IFC, and ASMSU come through with equal shows of talent, foresight, and responsibility.

Dems not responsible

To the Editor:

Enclosed is a copy of your Editorial dated February 28, which I feel is Republican orientated and not fair to the Democratic Party in the State of Michigan.

I wish to remind you that Governor Romney, a Republican, was elected to office by a large majority and he is the Chief Executive of the State. The Senate is controlled by the Republicans with the Lieutenant Governor having the power to cast a vote, should there be a tie.

The Democrats in the House permitted the Republican Party to organize the House of Representatives. With the Republicans in control of the Executive Branch and both branches of the legislature, it is my opinion that the Democrats have no responsibility as far as a tax program for Michigan is concerned. The Governor has enough votes to pass any tax program he deems necessary for the state.

In closing, may I say that if you must get involved in politics in your editorials, at least give both parties ample space. Particularly in view of the fact that this paper comes from a school that is publicly supported.

First French nuclear sub launched

France's first nuclear-powered submarine splashed into the English channel Wednesday.

President Charles De Gaulle lauded the sub that will carry Polaris Type missiles when it becomes fully operational in 1970.

French plans call for three nuclear-powered subs by 1975. Only the U.S. and the USSR have operational nuclear subs at present. Britain is building four nuclear subs with U.S. aid. The U.S. has also aided France by loaning them uranium for a test reactor used as a model for submarine power plants.

Oil to be cleared off British beaches by July

British authorities expressed hope Wednesday that most of the oil drifting onto southwestern English beaches from the wrecked Torrey Canyon can be cleared away by July.

Britons are fighting the oily waves with detergents and bulldozing oil-stained sands under. More than 2,000 men fought the battle while youngsters picked up clogged seabirds on the beaches and took the birds to cleansing centers.

Britain buys more U.S. jets

Britain's decision to buy 40 more American F111's, a military combat plane, has two implications for Britain.

First, the move will bind Britain's air power and strategy to the Americans through the mid-1970s.

Second, with the American-made air power British Prime Minister Harold Wilson could continue his active military role east of the Suez.

Wilson's Labor party, though, has been increasing its demands for a pull out in the middle east.

The decision to buy the American jets was confirmed by London Tuesday.

U.S. supply line to Vietnam questioned

The Senate Armed Forces Preparedness Subcommittee reported Wednesday that U.S. air and sea transport services will be stretched to the limit in supplying the military in Vietnam.

Pinpointed as a possible hitch in the supply was the breakdown rate of old mothballed ships pressed into operation.

The Defense Department denied this, blaming the lack of port facilities in Vietnam. Operations more than twice the size of Vietnam could be supported by sealfit, the Defense Department added.

Martin renamed head of Federal Reserve

President Johnson reappointed William McChesney Martin as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, Wednesday.

Martin, advocate of "sound money," angered important congressional Democrats when he voted with the majority decision to raise the federal discount rate one-half per cent in December, 1965.

The Board's action had annoyed President Johnson at the time also.

LBJ orders end to CIA secret funding

President Johnson ordered the Central Intelligence Agency Wednesday to stop secret subsidization of private groups.

Also, Johnson said he would consider creation of a new agency to, in effect, continue federal subsidizations, but in the open.

Johnson's action came after he received a report from the three-man panel he appointed after the controversy over secret CIA financing arose in February.

NFO charged with coercion

The National Farmers Organization (NFO) was charged by the U.S. Dept. of Justice with using coercion while attempting to monopolize interstate sale of milk in 19 states.

The Justice Department filed an anti-trust suit against the NFO in Des Moines, Iowa.

The NFO's withholding action began March 15 and is continuing in many states now.

Tax plan bi-partisan, Romney says

Gov. Romney re-emphasized today that his fiscal reform plan is a "bi-partisan program."

The plan, now before the legislature, has been attacked by state Democrats who claimed it was partisan move by Romney.

Romney said he is meeting with both GOP and Democratic legislators to discuss the fiscal plan.

Controversial parts of the reform include a 2.5 per cent tax on personal income.

Bombs, detergents attack oily shores

LAND'S END, England (AP) -- Confidence of ultimate victory surged up Wednesday among Britons fighting a black wave of oily disaster from the scrap iron that was once the super-tanker Torrey Canyon. More than 2,000 men swung into the battle of the beaches.

While troops and auxiliary firemen worked over oil-stained sands with detergents and bulldozers, renewed bombing by British planes again ignited the crude oil cargo remaining in the wave-washed wreckage.

Despite huge quantities of oil still drifting at sea, municipal authorities of shore resorts expressed belief that most can be cleared away before the summer vacation season opens in July.

The defense ministry plans to keep up the bombing and rocketing assault, using high explosives and fiery napalm to burn out the oil.

Newlyweds

Father and Mrs. Edmund Kurth, newly married priest and ex-nun, are seeking employment in the Pewaukee, Wis., area as social worker and teacher. They were married March 25 by a Lutheran minister.

'Priest' still faithful to vows

PEWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) -- Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Kurth begin married life with problems common to newlyweds, and with a special conflict: he is a Roman Catholic priest who violated church doctrine to marry a former nun.

Kurth, 35, said he still considers himself to be a priest, that he and his 34-year-old wife have no intention of not being devout Catholics, but that he acknowledges the assumption that a priest's violation of celibacy means excommunication.

"But I have not asked for a release from my vows," he said. "I could not freely give up my priesthood."

He and his bride, having avoided newsmen with a secret wedding ceremony at 1 a.m. Saturday, met with a newsmen in their rented lakeside cottage in this resort community west of Milwaukee to offset what Kurth called an impression that they were "running away" from reality.

The cottage smelled of fresh paint and contained several wedding gifts. Aware of the shadow of excommunication, they were married by a Protestant pastor to avoid further violation of church rules, Kurth said.

As newlyweds, their initial concern is making a living.

Federal Reserve Chairman redesignated by Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) -- President Johnson ended guessing in financial circles Wednesday by redesignating controversial William McChesney Martin Jr. as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

A symbol of "sound money" in the financial world at home and abroad but anathema to "soft money" advocates, Martin will continue as chairman of the board until Jan. 30, 1970.

Some of Martin's most vigorous critics are congressional Democrats. They include Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, and Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. In particular, the critics have blamed Martin for higher interest rates.

Defenders of Martin, and fiscal conservatives generally, contend that the reserve board has voted both ways on monetary policy - with the votes hinging entirely on economic conditions at the time. Martin noted in recent congressional testimony that the board has been moving to make money more readily available with the dampening of inflationary pressures.

One man generally regarded as a "tight money" advocate will be leaving the board at the end of April.

Senate panel charges Viet transport bind

WASHINGTON (AP) -- A Senate subcommittee reported Wednesday night--and the Pentagon denied--that U.S. air and sea transportation forces "will be stretched to the limit" to support massive military operations in Vietnam.

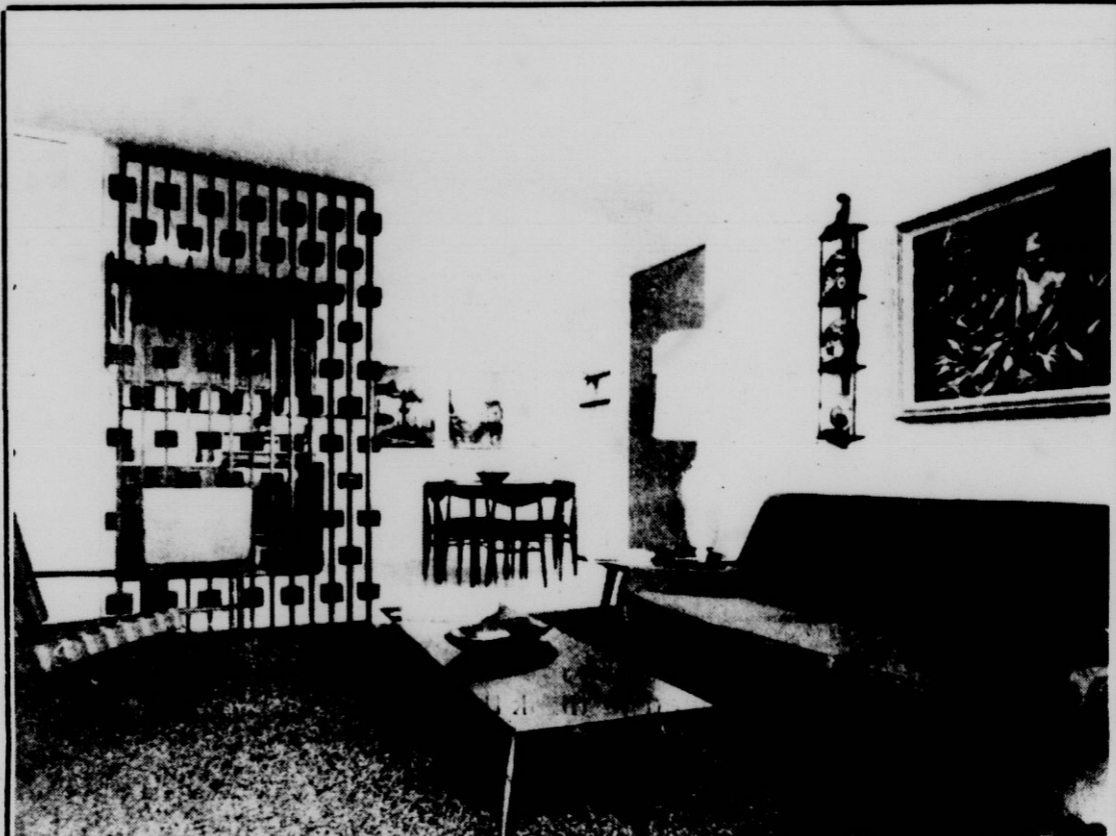

The subcommittee pinpointed as one potential trouble area a breakdown rate of old ships pulled out of the mothball fleet -- some 20 to 27 years old. This was placed at 5.2 per cent, more than double the 2.5 per cent rate for the privately-owned commercial fleet under charter from Vietnam service.

The Defense Department conceded there have been problems, but blamed them on a lack of unloading and handling facilities in Vietnam, not a ship shortage. The Senate report itself noted a great improvement in the berthing and offloading facilities and deliveries.

Both Martin and Shepardson were in the majority when the board in December 1965 voted 4 to 3 to increase the discount rate from 4 per cent to 4 1/2 per cent, much to Johnson's annoyance.

The board said it took the action to combat inflation, but it had the effect of raising interest rates up and down the line. The discount rate is what member banks of the reserve system must pay to borrow money from the federal reserve system. Other interest rates are added on to that.

The Pentagon noted that in addition to the airlift now operating in southeast Asia, the Air Force's 13 C130 squadrons "are still available if the need arises."

Open housing in the city

Q-What is your position on open housing in East Lansing? Do you feel the present ordinance is strong enough and why?

Brookover - My position on human relations has been publicly known for years. I believe in the human rights stated in the United States Constitution and the state constitution and the Judeo-Christian values on which they are based. Local governments should implement the policies and principles enunciated in these documents. The East Lansing Human Relations Commission, which was established to implement these goals, should be given adequate support to achieve its mission. Since the state civil rights commission has no field staff, the grievance procedure could be too drawn out. I believe it is too early to say whether the present ordinance is too weak. It must first be tested. However, I would have voted for a stronger earlier proposal (suggested in the spring of 1966).

tend to provide a long term position. Our Human Relations Commission in effecting the former policy of the city against discrimination has recorded excellent results in its efforts. Twelve of 13 complaints presented to the commission have resulted in solutions satisfactory to both parties. I wouldn't favor an ordinance with penal provisions until the present ordinance is shown to be unworkable.

Kintner - The present ordinance declares it is against public policy to discriminate in housing because of race, color, creed or national origin. The ordinance also provides for the Human Relations Commission to investigate in alleged discrimination practices.

I think the ordinance sufficient, since it is better to handle the alleged discrimination on a local rather than a state level.

East Lansing has a good record in the civil rights area and any minority group can move into the city provided they have the money to buy or rent homes. Just like the rest of us."

Brown - The present ordinance is satisfactory because it provides a means of resolving racial disputes of certain types through reconciliation of parties. The conciliatory approach to issues as serious as civil rights will race, color or creed, with equal opportunities in employment and home ownership. The present city open housing ordinance appears, at the least, questionable. But since we have it we must give it a chance and see if it will work. However, I did favor last year's ordinance which gave the city injunctive powers in cases where discrimination was proved.

Thomas - I voted for a stronger ordinance which was defeated.

The present ordinance says it is against public policy to discriminate and provides for access to the Human Relations Commission. It legalizes the right to seek reconciliation.

The ordinance is stronger than many city ordinances but in some cases "perhaps not punitively as strong."

I think the city needs some kind of legal machinery to prevent and eliminate any kind of discrimination to the extent that legal machinery can do this.

Wolverton - Considerable progress has been made in this respect as the city of East Lansing just passed an ordinance. However, laws do not decide what a person thinks or feels as far as their heart and conscience are concerned, regardless of their strength. Also, laws that are too strong affect all groups whether they are minority or majority, by eroding their freedoms as guaranteed by the constitution.

East Lansing voters will go to the polls Monday to select three men to the city council, the city's governing body, for four-year terms. The council, in turn, will elect the mayor.

The State News questioned each of the six candidates, Gordon L. Thomas, the incumbent mayor and an MSU speech professor; Wilbur B. Brookover, an MSU professor of secondary education; G. Tod Kintner, an East Lansing realtor and incumbent councilman; James B. Brown, a local attorney; Mayo T. Wolverton, a businessman; and Thomas W. Taylor Jr., an MSU student majoring in communications.

The answers to these questions appear on the following pages, to assist both East Lansing residents and student voters in making their decisions.

Key questions in city election

Q: What do you consider the key issue of this campaign?

Brookover--The problems of East Lansing result, in large part, from our failure to keep pace with the growth and other changes of the past two decades. Too many are content to remain a small college town, instead of anticipating and planning for a city of 75,000.

We will not solve problems by resistance to change and reluctant acceptance of the University.

We should recognize our opportunity to give leadership in the development of a prosperous and pleasant community that is favorably recognized throughout the nation.

Brown--The key issue is expansion of the downtown area. Kintner--The parking question. Water supplies are another problem.

We have to find a way to improve not only the quantity of the water but also the quality.

Taylor--The key issues, I believe, are three: human relations, traffic problems and future planning. The city could benefit from an Industrial Research Park, with the cooperation of MSU. We also need a small airport and better utilities and services. The city wants to stay residential, but I don't believe a research park would change that.

Thomas--There are a number of issues that are artificial, that have been created because of questions asked by the newspapers and individuals.

The parking problem and fiscal reform are issues most of the candidates feel to be real.

"As to the parking situation, What can you say except we have the problem and have to do something about it?"

A city income tax may become necessary in the future because of increased demands for more municipal services coupled with rising labor and construction costs.

The property tax is not sufficient to raise the necessary money and the city is faced with finding other revenue sources.

I think a local income tax, coupled with a reduction in property taxes is the only answer.

Wolverton--Good government is the key issue. I would like to approach with a businessman's point of view for I believe that good business judgment is just as important in government as in business.

Meet the candidates

Brookover

Brown

Kintner

William B. Brookover, 55, is a professor of secondary education and curriculum at MSU. He received his bachelor's degree from Manchester College and his master's degree and doctorate from the U of Wisconsin.

James B. Brown, 30, is a practicing attorney in Lansing. He received a degree in engineering from the University of Michigan in 1959 and a law degree from Catholic University of America in 1965.

G. Tod Kintner, 49, has been a member of the East Lansing City Council since 1963. Kintner is a graduate of Defiance College, Defiance, O., and operates his own real estate agency in Lansing.

Taylor

Thomas

Wolverton

Thomas W. Taylor Jr., 21, is a junior at MSU majoring in communications. Taylor calls himself a political moderate. He worked for Leroy Augenstein in a successful bid for the state board of education last fall and as a precinct delegate to the Ingham County Republican convention.

Gordon L. Thomas, 52, has served as mayor of East Lansing since 1961 and as a member of the council since 1959. A professor of speech at MSU, Thomas received his B.A. from Albion College, his master's from MSU and his doctorate from Northwestern. He describes himself as a liberal.

Mayo T. Wolverton, 64, is associated with the investment firm of Waddell and Reed, Inc. A resident of East Lansing for 27 years, Wolverton was recently named president of the board of directors of the Big Brothers of Lansing. He considers his political outlook as "realistic."

How can parking be solved?

Q: How would you suggest East Lansing go about solving its parking shortage problem? Do you favor a parking mall in the city?

Brookover - The traffic and parking problems have become serious because the city did not adequately anticipate and prepare for our rapid growth. The city was not prepared for the rapid development of apartments. Much more adequate parking must be provided in multiple dwelling areas as well as in the business district.

Brown - There is an immediate necessity for ramps. Ramps in Lots 1 and 3 in the immediate downtown area for 800 spaces would be a start. We need a timetable for completing these ramps. A parking mall is not necessarily the solution because it wouldn't provide all the needed parking space. We must press on despite the suit enjoining the city in providing ramps.

Kintner - Parking should have top priority in the 1967-68 East Lansing budget. I am in favor of a parking mall, but priorities have to be assigned to projects since we have only so much money to work with.

A ramp should be in operation in the fall of 1968, and after the first is built I am sure others will follow.

I think that ramps are the only solution to the problem now.

up about 70 per cent of the consumer buying in East Lansing.

Thomas - At present, I don't think parking malls are feasible, but parking ramps are and I hope we have one started by next year. The direction we will have to go is toward ramps, because of the cost of land, sometimes as high as $20 per foot.

I would like to see private enterprise undertake parking ramp construction, adding that apartment builders could also construct ramps adjacent to their buildings.

Ramps for East Lansing are being considered at city parking lots one (behind Jacobson's) and three (on the east side of Knapp's). They would be paid for through bonds.

Wolverton - I do not recommend a parking mall at this time until we have established a practical traffic pattern in the business area. I do lean toward parking ramps as they conserve land space, allowing more cars to be parked on the same ground area which will accommodate storage parking in a more limited space.

Taylor - The city needs to provide at least one parking space per resident in student-oriented apartments. If parking problems are not remedied in the near future, the business district will crumble. In time, if students find it difficult to park and shop downtown, they will go elsewhere. I understand that students make

At 9:45 P.M. EST on February 27, a Pan American Boeing 727 jetliner with 98 passengers on board made a fully-automatic landing at John F. Kennedy International Airport in New York - the first operational automatic landing in the history of aviation in the United States.

Sperry Phoenix Company participated as a member of the Boeing Sperry team which made this event possible. Our SP-50 Automatic Flight Control System played a key role. It put the Boeing 727 down "smooth as a feather," less than four feet to the right of the runway's center line under conditions of snow and fog with a cross wind of twelve knots.

This is just another reason why Sperry Phoenix is recognized as the pace setter in the development of Flight Control Systems and Flight Instruments and Displays. Our engineering team is second to none.

Students on council?

Q - Does a student have a place in East Lansing city government, for example, on the city council?

Brookover - A councilman's contribution cannot be measured by whether he is a student or a non-student. For instance, I might represent the student better than the student-candidate, despite the fact that I am a faculty member. Or vice versa. Having a student on the city council does not guarantee student representation. If a student is qualified, he, of course, should be able to sit on the council. Brown - Through lack of organization over the years, the student has risked the loss of his voice in city government through default. However, five out of six students registered to vote, as indicated in the 1965 elections, failed to cast their ballot when given the opportunity. I believe that student's problems are bona fide and deserve solutions offered by the city. At the same time, the student must stand up and be counted. Kintner - A position on the city council runs for four years. Many students are subject to such things as the draft and many move after graduation or before graduation. Because of the student's situation, I would not favor them on the council.

This isn't to say that a student isn't capable, but he is subject to so many things that may change.

Taylor - A student councilman should be an East Lansing resident to fairly represent student citizenry. Also a city resident would generally be more attuned to the city's problems as opposed to an on-campus resident.

It would be unfair for an on-campus student and non-taxpayer to vote on issues which involved taxes which he doesn't pay.

However, there should be members on the council with interest in the student community who are ready to defend them when they should be. Brookover - I understand the council recently laughed at a student who brought a complaint to a commission meeting. This should be changed now. Thomas - I think he has as much right as anyone if he is a legitimate resident and has the time to devote to the job.

I feel a student candidate for city council should have a broad feeling of community contribution instead of having a particular "axe to grind" such as an attack on high prices, though non-student candidates may also have axes to sharpen.

Wolverton - I see no place in local city government for a student who does not own property in the city, for in most cases the student is just a temporary resident who plans to move on as soon as his education is completed. Therefore, his interest in city government is only temporary.

Should the student plan to make East Lansing his permanent residence and own property in the city I would take a different view.

What of students vs. town?

Q - What should be and what is the relationship between MSU students and East Lansing citizens? How could they be improved?

Brookover - The relationship between students and East Lansing citizens is not peculiar to this city, but occurs in nearly every other college-related community.

Many condemn the students and the faculty for the problems they create and wish they could build a high wall down the south side of Grand River and Michigan Avenues. Of course the University is a source of our problems, but it is also our greatest asset and our major industry.

I suggest the city capitalize on this asset rather than complain about its presence. For example, we have talked about a research park. The planning commission has identified an area for this purpose, but the city has not taken adequate action to attract research or related business. MSU is now an outstanding center for plant science and related biological research. East Lansing could be a major center for such business activities if the city would take the initiative.

Brown - There is a natural tendency for conflict between an academic community and its permanent residents. Students are more concerned with their academic careers while residents are involved with day-to-day living activities.

Students are a captive audience in East Lansing and the citizens of East Lansing should come to realize the position of the student.

The solution to the problem lies in recognizing this natural conflict.

Kintner - There should be a definite relationship between the community and the students, particularly on the city's policy concerning parking for example.

Students should be made more aware of the city's needs in areas of parking, trash hauling and complaints about noise. I wouldn't advocate a crackdown of any sort but I think students should use discretion when renting in East Lansing.

Taylor - This University is responsible for the existence of East Lansing. The city has failed to utilize the assets of MSU and instead chooses to ignore the off-campus student.

The city can help the students directly by providing adequate housing regulations and living conditions. They also must act to solve the parking problems for the benefit of the University and city as well.

Thomas - I think that MSU students are bona fide residents of East Lansing and shouldn't be differentiated. I don't think they should be treated differently, that is, given any special privileges or treated as second class citizens.

In nearly all college towns students are differentiated from the rest of the community. I think East Lansing is no better or no worse than other college towns.

With the increasing enrollment at MSU we (East Lansing) must push for improved communications and relationships with the university students.

I feel it is desirable to have members of the university community sitting on the East Lansing city council and other boards since they may be more aware of both the school's and the city's problems.

Wolverton - I do not find any unusual or restrained relationship between the students of MSU and the citizens of East Lansing. True, when you have a student body in excess of 30,000 in a community of this size there is usually an element that becomes unruly at times the same as they do at Ft. Lauderdale and other southern resort cities. However, I find the great majority of students are considerate and well-mannered.

Would Hannah's opinion intrude?

Q: If John A. Hannah rendered a personal opinion about an East Lansing issue, would you feel he was bringing undue pressure on the city by virtue of his university position?

Brookover: In some cases an issue could be lost if he spoke out at the wrong time or on the wrong issue. The city would perhaps look with disfavor at someone in Hannah's position endorsing an issue that may not involve the University entirely. It tends, sometimes, to mobilize the opposition. A person in such a high position must be tactful so as not to be interpreted as causing undue pressure.

Brown: Yes, but he should exercise his freedom of expression on such issues with satisfactory restraint.

Kintner: I would personally weigh it like any other citizen's request. President Hannah should not think he was applying undue pressure since council members can weigh his opinion as that of an individual citizen.

Taylor: If Hannah spoke out on an issue, I am sure it would be a case in which the University was directly involved; therefore, it is not undue pressure. Recognizing Hannah's actions in the past, I'm sure he would not go out of his way to render an opinion on city politics, if it did not directly concern MSU.

Thomas: That would depend on how he made the statement. If he acted as a private individual, I would respect that opinion as an individual opinion. There would be a psychological factor present, however, since as an individual Hannah is still president of the university. If Hannah were to speak as a representative of the university, his opinion would certainly weigh more heavily.

Wolverton: It would depend upon the issue. Dr. Hannah is also a resident of East Lansing and is, therefore, entitled to express his opinions in matters concerning this municipality. As for bringing undue pressure, I am sure that Dr. Hannah would not seek such nor would any be expected by him.

COMPARED TO OTHER CITIES

Are city's prices too high?

Q: How would you say East Lansing prices compare with those in similar cities around the state? Do you think students have any valid or legitimate complaints in this area?

Brookover: I have seen no comprehensive studies as yet to show conclusively that East Lansing prices are higher than comparable cities. They may or may not be. But unless it can be demonstrated that prices are considerably higher here, there is really nothing that can be done. However, if a comprehensive price study was completed and presented to a representative merchant group, I am confident you would see changes in prices.

Brown: If students believe as a result of their shopping that prices in some East Lansing stores are higher, they are probably correct. East Lansing needs a larger central downtown area to offer a greater breadth of articles and services. This will improve prices of these articles and services.

Novel: I have no definite proof that prices are too high. I wouldn't want to say there is over charging.

He pointed out that if prices are high in East Lansing students would be "silly to pay more" and should go into Lansing if they can find the same items at a lower price.

He said he favors a liaison between the merchants and the students and pointed to the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce in that area.

Kintner said he doesn't think the city's function is to intervene in prices.

"You just can't interfere in this kind of private enterprise," he explained.

Taylor: The prices here are indeed higher, and I believe the merchants realize it. They seem to charge what they feel the traffic can bear, and take advantage of a captive segment of the community. I believe ASMSU must follow through with its price study so as to force the merchants to lower prices.

Thomas: I have no idea how East Lansing prices compare with other cities. I would guess that prices in most college towns tend to be higher but I wouldn't want to try to ascribe a cause.

Thomas said he thinks students do have complaints in some areas because there are probably some merchants who charge high prices.

"But it is unfair to color all merchants the same color, just as it is unfair to color all students the same way," he added.

He said he favors a liaison between the merchants and the students and pointed to the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce in that area.

Garrison claims threats to his life

NEW ORLEANS - Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison, who has been investigating the Kennedy assassination for the past six months, said Wednesday there had been threats on his life.

Garrison would not comment when asked about precautions he might be taking.

Garrison, 6 feet 6, whose unorthodox methods as a prosecutor have startled this city ever since he was elected five years ago, customarily carries a pistol. His house has been under 24-hour guard for weeks.

The FBI notified New Orleans police Tuesday that a woman in Georgia was reported to have threatened Garrison's life. The FBI gave out no details.

Criminal Dist. Court Judge Edward Haggerty, meanwhile, refused Wednesday to throw out an arrest warrant against Gordon Novel, sought by Garrison as a material witness in his Kennedy assassination conspiracy probe.

Novel, 29, sold his French Quarter tavern and left town last week just before a second subpoena was issued for him to appear before the Orleans Parish grand jury. He was last reported in Washington, D.C.

The grand jury called Layton P. Martens, 24, onetime roommate of David W. Ferrie, for questioning Wednesday.

Last week, the grand jury indicted Clay L. Shaw, 54, a prominent retired New Orleans business executive, for conspiracy to murder President John F. Kennedy. The indictment listed Ferrie, Lee Harvey Oswald and "unnamed others" as co-conspirators.

Oswald, the New Orleans-born ex-Marine named by the Warren Commission as Kennedy's sole assassin, was killed by Jack Ruby two days after the Nov. 22, 1963 slaying in Dallas, Tex. Ferrie died last Feb. 22 of natural causes while under investigation by Garrison's office.

Judge Haggerty, who will hear Shaw's trial, denied a motion by Novel's lawyer, Steve Plotkin, to quash the arrest warrant against Novel. The judge continued Novel's bond at $50,000.

Shaw, charged with the murder conspiracy, is free under a $10,000 bond.

Farm Lane light's on

It works! The traffic light at Farm Lane and East Circle Drive will be in operation beginning April 1, after a delay of nearly seven months.

The light will have a two-flow phase which will change according to demand, explained Capt. A. John Zutaut, University police commander.

A phase exclusively for pedestrians, which will be in operation from 7:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m., will stop all traffic at specified intervals to allow pedestrians to cross from all corners, he said.

Delay in delivery of parts prevented the light's being in operation earlier, Zutaut said.

MSU's John Fuzak fights 'slush'

By LARRY WERNER
State News Sports Editor

Last of two parts

John Fuzak, Vice-President of Student Affairs, is chairman of the Athletic Council and MSU's faculty representative to the Big Ten.

He not only sat in judgment of the University of Illinois, with his fellow faculty representatives, in the recent "slush fund" controversy, but also earned four degrees from this university at Champaign-Urbana.

In addition, he played varsity baseball for the Illinois.

Athletics and dealing with slush funds are nothing new to Fuzak. The latter, slush funds—and the "mythology" connected with them—represent enemies for the faculty representative to over-come.

Most sport fans are familiar with what slush funds consist of. They are sums of money distributed to college athletes above and beyond the aid allowed by the rules of the conference.

In the Big Ten, only room, board, tuition and books are allowed.

Slush funds recently cost Illinois three coaches and 14 athletes, either permanently or temporarily. Michigan State and several other conference schools have been involved in and punished for this type of illegal activity in the past.

The mythology is another name for Fuzak.

"There is a lot of mythology involved in this sort of thing," Fuzak said. The mythology includes many of the statements made by the "slush fund" experts regarding aid to athletes.

John Fuzak: "... if you cannot operate intercollegiate athletics above board, it is better not to have them."

For example: "Everybody knows that State is paying athletes. In fact, I know of athletes who are being paid." This type of statement and the generalization of it bother Fuzak. "I hear lots of reports of this type," Fuzak said. "Even players joke about such things. But all I ask for is a name.

And I investigate all of these reports."

Fuzak told of some of the accusations, resulting from the convictions of many that Spartan athletes were being paid. The myths, Fuzak said, have been proven to be exactly that—myths. His conclusion: Spartan athletes are not paid.

"The position we take is that if you cannot operate intercollegiate athletics above board, it is better not to have them," Fuzak said.

The above is an idealistic statement. While helping to decide the fate of his alma mater, Fuzak's ideals regarding rules and fair play came into conflict with the ideals of loyalty and even friendship.

"I felt particular pressure as an alumnus of Illinois," Fuzak said. "I taught there, too, and I have many friends there. But you have to detach personal involvement. It is my school, I felt badly. But I tried to be honest and objective. I believe I did."

And how did the "judge" who had such a hard decision to make feel about the punishment?

"I feel that the action and penalties are in the right direction," Fuzak said. "Illinois is not now a second-class member of the conference. Those who are responsible are gone, and that's that."

"I see this as the kindest kind of punishment."

Following the decision by the faculty representatives, cries of "too harsh" were voiced. Many felt that since it was President David Henry of Illinois who notified the conference officials of the fund, the coaches should have been retained, and a lesser punishment exacted.

Fuzak cited the Big Ten's "Handbook of Intercollegiate Conference of Faculty Representatives" as defense of the faculty representative's stand.

Section 7 on financial aid reads:

"Any member University which employs or retains on its athletic staff anyone who has been a party to a violation of the provisions of this rule, or who encourages others to violate this rule, or who upon inquiry by the Commissioner withholds knowledge of the violation of this rule by others, shall be required to show cause why its membership in the conference should not be suspended or terminated."

Another rationale used by the representatives is an agreement stipulates the firing of any coach violating the financial aid rule.

After the current aid to athlete rules were adopted, the coaches were asked by the faculty representatives if they could abide.

"We asked the coaches if they could and would live by them (the rule)," Fuzak said. "The coaches said they could. And each of the presidents agreed that they would inform the coaches that they meant it."

Michigan State has such an agreement, in the form of a letter to the coaches from President Hannah.

Alumni represent some of the most frequent violators of the aid rule. Loyal ex-student and other "friends of the university" have been accused of opening accounts at stores, making promises or providing outright gifts of money or merchandise for "hot prospects."

There are alumni of MSU all over the country. How can they be controlled?

"Obviously, we are unable to control all of this," Fuzak said. "But the University must continue to make it clear that they do not want any of it. True friends of the University won't do something the University doesn't want done."

"We have been discouraging

Illinois gets two coaches

CHAMPAIGN, ILL. (UPI)—Jim Vaick and Harve Schmidt became the football and basketball coaches at the scandal-torn University of Illinois Wednesday, as was previously rumored.

Both Vaick, 41, and Schmidt, 31, saw no handicap for recruiting because of the "slush fund" scandal which resulted in the Big Ten penalty. Seven athletes lost eligibility as a result of the case.

The pressure of recruiting weighed heavier on Vaick since tenders of aid to football players will be sent out Friday night.

Litwhiler predicts; Spartans follow up

By GAYEL WESCH
State News Sports Writer

CORAL GABLES, FLA.—As the spring training trip for the MSU baseball team draws to a close it becomes evident that Spartan Coach Danny Litwhiler was correct in his predictions.

"I expect us to win more than half our games," Litwhiler said, and the Spartans are currently 6-4-1 on the trip.

He also said that MSU's new members on the pitching staff would come through to back up veterans Dick Kenney and Bob Peterson. The Spartans have been getting good performances from sophomores Mickey Knight and Tim Irish in relief, and junior transfer student Gary Smith as a starter.

Peterson and Irish combined to shut out Furman Wednesday, 9-0, aided by a two-run home run by sophomore catcher Harry Kendrick with teammate Bill Steckley on base.

Litwhiler moved Steckley to third base this season and put Kendrick in to catch because he wanted the hitting abilities of both men in the line-up. Chalk up one more for the coach.

First baseman Tom Binkowski and outfielder Tom Hummels have been MSU's heaviest hitters with Kendrick and Steckley close behind.

"Yes, things are going about as I anticipated," Litwhiler said after Wednesday's game. "We've been getting pretty good pitching and defense but our hitting hasn't been up to par."

"We're getting our hits alright, but not with men on base when we need them."

"I think our pitching and defense will be all right, and if our hitting comes around, we'll do real well."

"Gary Smith has come through for us as a starter," Litwhiler continued. "He had control trouble because of a split finger in his first game, but the finger's better now and he's pitching well. Knight and Dick Litwhiler (the coach's son) have been good relief pitchers so far."

Kenney, the barefoot kicker for the Spartan football team has been the Spartans' best pitcher.

Kenney won his first two starts, one a shut-out of the Italian National Team, but he was the loser in Tuesday's 8-0 loss to Duke.

"The roof fell in Tuesday," Litwhiler said. "They got four of their runs off Kenney in the first inning. Kenney had done a good job down here, though, and I expect him to do well in the regular season."

MSU will face Duke again Friday and Wesleyan Saturday before heading home.

Draft appeal denied; no delay for Clay

Cassius Clay

LOUISVILLE, KY (UPI)—A federal judge today denied an appeal by work-heavy weight boxing champion Cassius Clay for an injunction that would have kept him from being drafted into the army next month.

Federal Judge James F. Gordon's ruling meant Clay must report for induction at Houston, Tex., April 28.

Clay was asked by newsmen if he intended to report for induction April 28, and he replied:

"I'll answer to the government when the time comes, not to the press."

Clay had petitioned Gordon's court for an injunction to prevent him from being drafted while he challenged the constitutionality of the Selective Service Act in the federal courts.

In denying the appeal, Gordon stated Clay could not challenge the act's constitutionality until either he permitted himself to be drafted or filed to comply with the induction order.

Clay's attorney, Hayden Covington, then asked for a temporary restraining order barring the fighter's induction until the appeal could be taken to the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals at Cincinnati. Gordon denied the motion.

Procedures for dismissal of tenured faculty

PROCEDURES FOR DISMISSAL OF TENURED FACULTY

Tenured faculty may be dismissed: (1) for gross violation of professional ethics (described in Appendix I), or (2) incompetence. The procedures described below shall be followed before the President submits a dismissal recommendation to the board of trustees for final action.

I. Preliminary Conference

When reasons arise to consider dismissal of a tenured faculty member, the appropriate administrative officer, or officers, shall arrange a personal conference with the faculty member. The faculty member may be accompanied by an adviser of his own choice at any such conference or conferences. The difficulty may be terminated by mutual consent at this point. If the faculty member is asked to resign and he declines, formal action may be initiated under the procedures herein stated. No formal charges shall be made until after the faculty member has been informed that such charges are to be made and he has been given an opportunity to meet with the administrative officer who plans to make the charges.

II. Initiation of Formal Proceedings

A. The provost or the administrative head of a unit of the University in which the affected faculty member is employed may initiate the proceedings for a hearing. Such hearing may result in a recommendation for retention or dismissal.

B. The provost shall notify the president before formal proceedings are initiated. Suspension of the faculty member during the proceedings will be at the discretion of the president and will be without loss of compensation.

C. Proceedings shall be deemed initiated when the provost, or the administrative head of the unit employing the affected faculty member, files in the Office of the Provost a written statement of explicit charges against the faculty member. The statement shall contain: (1) the nature of the charges, (2) the names of witnesses, insofar as known, who will testify in support of specific allegations, and (3) the nature of the testimony likely to be presented by each of these witnesses.

III. The Hearing

A. The chairman of the Hearing Committee shall arrange for a hearing within a reasonable time after the affected faculty member receives notification of the charges against him with due consideration given to the reasonable length of time the faculty member needs to prepare his defense.

B. The chairman of the Hearing Committee shall arrange for a hearing within a reasonable time after the affected faculty member receives notification of the charges against him with due consideration given to the reasonable length of time the faculty member needs to prepare his defense.

'U' gets grant to train execs

A grant of $94,050 for the establishment at MSU of an experimental training center for executives in the employment security system has been accepted by the board of trustees. The grant, which covers organization and operation of the center for the first six months, was made by the Bureau of Employment Security in the U.S. Dept. of Labor.

Daniel H. Kruger, associate director of the Manpower Program Service in the School of Labor and Industrial Relations, will be the center's director.

evidence has been presented and arguments heard shall have the right to vote on the final recommendations.

C. The provost, or his representative, and the administrative head of the unit in which the affected faculty member is employed shall be invited to be present at all meetings of the Hearing Committee in which evidence is presented or arguments heard and (1) may present evidence, (2) may call, examine, and cross-examine witnesses, (3) may examine all documentary evidence received by the committee, and (4) shall make recommendations which shall become a part of the record. The burden of proof shall rest with the official who made the charges.

D. The affected faculty member and his adviser, if he chooses one, may be present at all sessions of the Hearing Committee when evidence is given or arguments heard, and may (1) present evidence, (2) call, examine, and cross-examine witnesses, and (3) examine all documentary evidence received by the committee.

E. The chairman of the Hearing Committee may request the presence of any witness or the delivery of any university document germane to the hearing.

F. A stenographic record, or tape recording, shall be made of the hearing, which shall be a closed meeting.

IV. Processing the Record and Rendering Judgment

A. Within a reasonable time following the adjournment of the hearing, the Hearing Committee shall prepare a written report which shall contain its findings of fact and recommendations. Any member of the Hearing Committee, or any group of members, may file a minority report which shall become a part of the Hearing Committee Report. The chairman of the Hearing Committee shall file in the Office of the Provost (1) the Hearing Committee Report, (2) a complete record of the case, including the recommendations of the Provost and the administrative head of the unit, and (3) a transcript and/or tape recording of the hearing conducted by the committee.

B. The Hearing Committee shall send its report to the president, the provost, and the affected faculty member. The Hearing Committee shall notify the affected faculty member and the head of the administrative unit that the complete record is available for their review in the Provost's Office.

C. If two-thirds of the voting members of the Hearing Committee recommend that the faculty member shall be retained, the matter is terminated with the filing of the Hearing Committee report. In any other event, the following procedures apply in this sequence:

(1) The affected faculty member and the administrative head of the unit may, within ten days after receiving the notification stipulated in section IV, paragraph B, review the record and file written comments with the chairman of the Hearing Committee and the president. The president will review the case and report his opinion to the chairman of the Hearing Committee and the affected faculty member within a reasonable time.

(2) The affected faculty member or the Hearing Committee may, within ten days after receiving the President's opinion, submit to the President written comments with respect to that opinion.

(3) If the president and the Hearing Committee concur in retaining the faculty member, the matter shall terminate at this point.

(4) If either the president or the Hearing Committee recommends dismissal, the report of the Hearing Committee, the recommendations of the president, and any comments by the affected faculty member shall be submitted by the President to the Board of Trustees for action. The complete record of the case will be available to the Trustees.

V. Publicity

For the protection of all concerned, public statements about the case shall be avoided as far as possible. Any announcement of the final decision shall include a statement of the Hearing Committee's recommendation.

APPENDIX I

Among the functions of a university is the establishment of a proper intellectual relationship among the faculty, between the faculty and the students, and between the faculty and the broader academic community. Professional ethics demand that this relationship of mind to mind not be impaired by actions of the members of the faculty. Violations of professional ethics include plagiarism, refusal to perform reasonable assigned duties, improper advances--heterosexual or homosexual--to a student and other such actions which impair the intellectual atmosphere for which the university strives. But the advocacy of unpopular causes, public discussion of controversial issues, or other such intellectual endeavors shall not be considered as a violation of professional ethics.

APPENDIX II

Procedure for Hearing

1. The chairman of the Hearing

Committee shall be in full charge of the hearing.

2. Reading by the Hearing Committee secretary of the specification of charges against the faculty member.

3. Chairman's request for the faculty member's plea.

4. Presentation, by the provost or his representative and the administrative head of the unit, of testimony to support the charges.

The affected faculty member and his representative have the right to cross-examine all witnesses.

Questions from the Hearing Committee should be withheld until both the above processes are completed.

5. Presentation, by the affected faculty member or his representative, of testimony to refute the charges.

The provost or his representative and the administrative head of the unit have the right to cross-examine all witnesses.

Questions from the Hearing Committee should be withheld until both the above processes are completed.

6. Summation of the case by the provost or his representative and the administrative head of the unit.

7. Summation of the case by the affected faculty member or his representative.

8. Dismissal of all persons directly participating on either side of the case. Those remaining would be members of the Hearing Committee who have not been a part of the presentations for or against the affected faculty member.

9. Deliberation of the Hearing Committee to determine its recommendations.

'Hotel's' all-star bazaar is superfluous—but fun

By JIM YOUSLING
State News Reviewer

Remember the good old days when you went to movies for sheer enjoyment? When movies had stories instead of messages? When you didn't have to see a movie three times just to figure out what was going on? Then worry no more. If you long for an evening of plush entertainment instead of an intellectual maze and if you want a film that requires no intelligence whatsoever, "Hotel" is the film for you.

In the great tradition of "Dinner at Eight" and "Grand Hotel," Warner Brothers has assembled an all-star cast of bizarre characters and let them run wild in the midst of wealth and elegance. Take the handsome manager of a dying hotel, add a ruthless tycoon and his mistress, and throw in a half-dozen superfluous subplots. The result is "Hotel," a handsome two hours ranging from insipid romance and lousy dialogue ("Buying hotels is my business.") to high comedy and a gripping elevator rescue.

The scene: the St. Gregory Hotel in New Orleans, playground of the jet set. Enter Rod Taylor, well-groomed, granite-jawed, and suave beyond belief. His hotel is in financial trouble and will be replaced by a new skyscraper unless a buyer "who loves it as we do" can be found.

Mr. O'Keefe arrives. He wants to buy the St. Gregory, remodel it, and add it to his chain of hotels. In other words, he is going to turn the lobby into Coney Island, divide the Audubon Suite into cheap little cubicles, and generally destroy the Old World

Glamour of New Orleans' grandest 84-year-old hotel.

Catherine Spaak, who falls somewhere between Brigitte Bardot and Pamela Tiffin in talent as well as looks, plays his mistress and corporate spy. She loses no time introducing herself to Taylor, falling in love with him, and casually removing her dress (not necessarily in that order). "Take off your jacket," she quips. "You embarrass me." Meanwhile, back in the Presidential Suite Richard Conte is blackmailing Merle Oberon, a bejeweled duchess who is covering up her husband's hit-and-run accident. In the lobby, Negroes are trying to check into the hotel (gasp!). And on the fourteenth floor Karl Malden, as a delightful hotel thief, is stealing the entire picture.

Eventually, the correct sort of thing happens to each of them. Guess who gives up spying for the man she loves, for example. The lush theme music throbs through the hotel. The camera sweeps across paintings, doors, and carpets. And the dozens of Edith Head gowns continue to match the color schemes of the rooms.

Sue Martin, Kalamazoo sophomore, is framed by a painting which is part of the permanent collection at Kresge Art Center. Outside a gleaming sculpture stands poised as trees reach out above it to the spring. State News photos by Larry Frizlan and Chuck Michaels

Foreign math scholar to address seminar

Raj Chandra Bose, foreign scholar in Mathematical Statistics, will speak Friday on "Characterization of Some Classes of Regular Graphs."

The talk, at 2 p.m. in 120 Physics-Mathematics Building is the second in a series of seminars being sponsored by the Dept. of Mathematics and the Dept. of Statistics and Probability. Bose, former head of statistics at the University College in Calcutta, India, and presently a professor of statistics at the University of North Carolina, also spoke Wednesday on "Hermitian Varieties in a Finite Projective Space."

David Vere-Jones, statistics fellow at the Institute of Advanced Studies at the Australian National University, will present a colloquium at 4:10 p.m. April 6 in 120 Physics-Math Building. Vere-Jones will also present a mathematics education seminar at 4:10 p.m. April 11 in 209 Physics-Math Building and a colloquium again on April 18.

Ramparts hits CIA again

NEW YORK — The magazine that exposed Central Intelligence Agency financing of student groups now says the CIA pressures foreign students into spying against their homelands. The magazine, Ramparts, calls the campaign a major one of "recruiting and, when necessary, blackmailing foreign students who are studying in this country."

Six full-time CIA agents move from campus to campus, the article says, posing as Defense Dept. representatives and offering a combination of threats and cash payments "up to $10,000 a year" to "engage in subversion against the student's government."

The account was confirmed, the editors said, by interviews with "numerous foreign students" on campuses around the country. Most were unwilling to publicly confirm the account because of their own involvement, the magazine said in its April issue.

But they identified one as Abdul Latif Hotaki of Afghanistan, a student admitted to California Polytechnic College in 1957.

Hotaki refused to cooperate, Ramparts said, and was then subjected to harassment by the Immigration Service. The CIA provided AFME with $1 million in 1960, the article said, more than 90 per cent of its income. It identified AFME director Kermit Roosevelt as "the CIA agent who engineered the overthrow of Premier Mossadegh of Iran."

Hotaki was approached in 1961, the article said, with the help of Zia ul Noorzay, then president of Afghanistan students at Berkeley, Calif., and now pres-

Bi-partisan backing sought for tax reform

LANSING — With his fiscal reform program now before the Legislature, Gov. George Romney today reemphasized that "it is a bi-partisan program developed with Republican and Democratic legislatures in 1965."

Romney told a news conference he is continuing to meet individually with Republican and Democratic legislators to explore possible support for his program, which includes a state income tax. He added that he believes developments "will make quite clear the extent to which there is Republican support and the extent of Democratic support."

Conflict of interest ruling forthcoming

The state attorney general's office reported Tuesday that it is still writing an opinion concerning possible conflict of interest among a number of state employees, including MSU President John A. Hannah.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Leon S. Cohen said no comment will be made on the opinion until it is released sometime within the next two weeks.

In a letter to Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley in early March, Hannah asked for a ruling on whether he is guilty of conflict of interest under a July, 1966, law. The law prohibits state officers from having a direct or indirect interest in a contract with the state or any state political subdivision.

Hannah asked Kelley whether his interests in Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit, Michigan Bell Telephone Co. and American Bank and Trust of Lansing make him subject to the ambiguously worded law.

All of Hannah's interests do business with the University.

Under the law MSU Trustee C. Allen Harlan may also be involved in a conflict of interest since his firm, Harlan Electric of Detroit owns 50 per cent of a Lansing electrical firm that has held contracts with MSU.

The law holds the attorney general responsible for rendering an opinion on whether there is conflict of interest. He must do so at the request of the governor or any state legislator.

Cohen said in March that Hannah is not the only state official having asked for a ruling, adding that the large number questioning the law might warrant a blanket opinion on it.

ELLA FITZGERALD, GREEN BERETS

Spring L-C series set

Ella Fitzgerald, Ferrante and Teicher, Barry Sadler and Harrison Salisbury are tops on the agenda for the Lecture-Concert Series spring term.

Miss Fitzgerald will appear with the Jimmy Jones Trio, April 10 in a series special at the Auditorium.

Sadler will present "Songs and Stories of the Green Berets" in another special May 9 at the Auditorium.

Tickets for both performances are $2, $1.50 and $1 on sale at the Union ticket office.

Also in a special, the piano duo Ferrante and Teicher will present "The Sights and Sounds of Ferrante and Teicher" April 27. Tickets are on sale at the Union ticket office for $2.50, $2 and $1.50.

Salisbury will lecture at the Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. April 6. Salisbury, who stirred American interest with his stories from Hanoi earlier this year, will speak on "Behind the Lines - Hanoi."

Rounding out the Lecture-Concert Series season will be the Ballet Folklorico of Mexico to perform in the Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. April 7, and a performance by Korean dancer Won Kyung Cho in Fairchild Theater at 8:15 p.m. April 11. The Los Angeles Philharmonic and the Concertgebouw Orchestra of Amsterdam will perform at 8:15 p.m. April 26 and May 11, respectively.

The World Travel Series will include films on the Canadian west on Friday and Saturday, Bavaria on April 8, the Pacific on April 15 and Australia on April 29. All films are to be shown at 8 p.m. in the Auditorium and are free of charge.

Elizabeth Taylor and Paul Newman will star in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" Thursday at 7 and 9 p.m. as the first of the International Film Series films for spring term.

"High and Low," a Japanese film will be presented at 7 and 9:30 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday.

A double feature of the French films "Candide" and "Breathless" is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. April 28. Jean-Pierre Cassel stars as a 20th-century optimist in "Candide" while "Breathless" stars Jean-Paul Belmondo and Jean Seberg in a melodrama of the beat generation.

The American film "Gigi," starring Leslie Caron and Louis Jourdan, will be shown at 7 and 9 p.m. May 4 and 5.

The Russian film "Song Over Moscow," to be shown at 7 and 9 p.m. May 10 and 12, will be the finale of the spring term international films.

All International Film Series pictures will be shown in Fairchild Theatre for a 50 cent admission charge.

CLARK KERR

Warns of Reagan threat

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) -- Former President Clark Kerr of the University of California said today there was "a serious possibility" that California Gov. Ronald Reagan could become president of the United States.

Kerr, speaking at a seminar sponsored by Harvard University on students and politics throughout the world, said there is a strong movement to the right in the United States and that Reagan, a former movie actor and television personality, "is excellent on television, a factor which is becoming more and more crucial in presidential elections."

Kerr, who was fired by the university's Board of Regents shortly after Reagan took office in January, said again that what he called the governor's attempts to reduce student and faculty freedom at the university "could have explosive consequences."

He said he was fired by Reagan because "he held me responsible for the disturbances at Berkeley."

Kerr denied that students involved in demonstrations at the university followed the Communist line and said that a "majority of the demonstrators were quite independent from the left."

While he was president of the university, Kerr said, he liberalized the rules governing student behavior and added that "if Gov. Reagan tries to take back this additional freedom there will be real trouble - from the students and the faculty."

MAJOR OPPORTUNITY

Negro colleges called untapped U.S. resource

The American Negro college is one of the most important resources in meeting the country's educational demand, Vivian Henderson, president of Clark College said in a speech in Erickson Kiva Tuesday.

"Negro colleges are the major source of opportunity for most Negro youth," Henderson said. Statistics show that 60 per cent of all Negro college students attend Negro colleges.

Today American society is eliminating racial dualism, he said, but in light of this transformation Negro colleges should not be closed. Negro colleges have been the center of concern for the Negro student and for many years Negro college campuses were the only places where inter-racial meetings could be held.

Negro colleges should not exist in a remedial or compensatory capacity, he said. Stronger schools can better afford to take on duties of compensatory education.

Instead, he stated, Negro colleges should be made more attractive to white students and should work for elimination of the idea that because they are Negro colleges they are necessarily inferior.

Farmers study state government

Thirty young farmers taking part in the MSU study program took a close look at state government last week. The farmers met with legislators, Lt. Gov. William J. Milliken, Attorney General Frank Kelley and Chief Justice John R. Dethmers in Lansing. The group is participating in a state traveling seminar, part of a program designed to train young farm leaders to take an active part in making public decisions. The project is financed by a grant from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation. Participants spend at least 30 days a year in study, meetings and travel for three years. The farmers taking part in the state tour are in the second of three such groups. The first group toured Michigan last year, and returned two weeks ago from a national trip including visits to Washington, D.C., Tennessee and California.

The third group is yet to be named. Selection is based on three main criteria. Participants are successful farmers, between 25 and 35 years of age, and have demonstrated leadership potential. Before their Lansing session, the men visited Boyne Mountain, where they took part in educational meetings on Michigan's tourist, recreation and lumber industries. While in Lansing, participants visited state departments of Commerce, Conservation, Civil Service, Agriculture, Corrections, Education, Treasury and the Secretary of State.

The project is under the direction of David Boyne of the Dept. of Agricultural Economics and part of the public affairs educational program of the Cooperative Extension Service. Next year, the first group will take part in an international tour to countries in Latin America, Europe, Asia or Africa. The second group will take the national tour, and the group not yet selected will make the Michigan study tour.

IS GOD OUT OF DATE?

SURE, most of us believe in God. But have you outgrown Him? Does He mean anything in your life? How do you picture Him? Is He just a remote Force... or sort of a fatherly but outdated Man Upstairs? Who is God... what is He? Or couldn't you care less? Maybe you're just like the college coed who said, "Yes, I believe in God, but I'm not nuts about Him."

What is God like? You investigate insurance, education, new cars... why not seek a satisfying answer to what God is like? His Son, Jesus Christ, visits our planet in Person... entering our world of death, taxes, and tension. And He stays with it! Christians know that He cares and shares.

A claim of this importance is worth exploring. You can investigate it for yourself... by sending for this free, easy-to-read 48-page booklet. IS GOD OUT OF DATE?

Econ profs laud Romney tax plan

Gov. George Romney's fiscal reforms received impressive backing Friday when eight university economists pledged their support to his tax plan.

Professors from Michigan's three largest universities, including Robert Lanzillotti, chairman of MSU's department of economics, said failure to adopt the proposal will result in a more severe fiscal crisis than Michigan underwent in the 1950's.

Their six-page statement said that Romney's plan not only provides for additional revenue to balance the budget, but minimizes operating costs of Michigan businesses.

The economists said Michigan's $130 million deficit can be offset by a state surplus of $167 million, but this will leave only $37 million left over for fiscal 1967-68, when a $220 million deficit is expected unless revenues are increased.

The alimony from the flat rate income tax is not immediately important, they continued. What is of priority, they said, is establishing the principle of the levy. Later, after the tax was evaluated it could be adjusted.

Leroy Augenstein, MSU biologist and a new member of the State Board of Education, asked the legislators Monday to pass a three per cent state income tax and to appropriate for schools some $71 million more than the $823 million Gov. Romney recommended.

Augenstein said public schools need another $55 million, colleges require another $15 million to avoid major tuition increases, and community colleges should receive an additional $3 million.

Price study leaflets on sale

The second printing of United Students' comparison price study is on sale today at the Union and other campus points.

A 500-copy first run was sold Monday and Tuesday at registration and the Union. US members mimeographed an additional 1,000 copies Tuesday night which went on sale Wednesday.

US members are expected to sell the study at Berkeley and Hessey halls and other campus locations today.

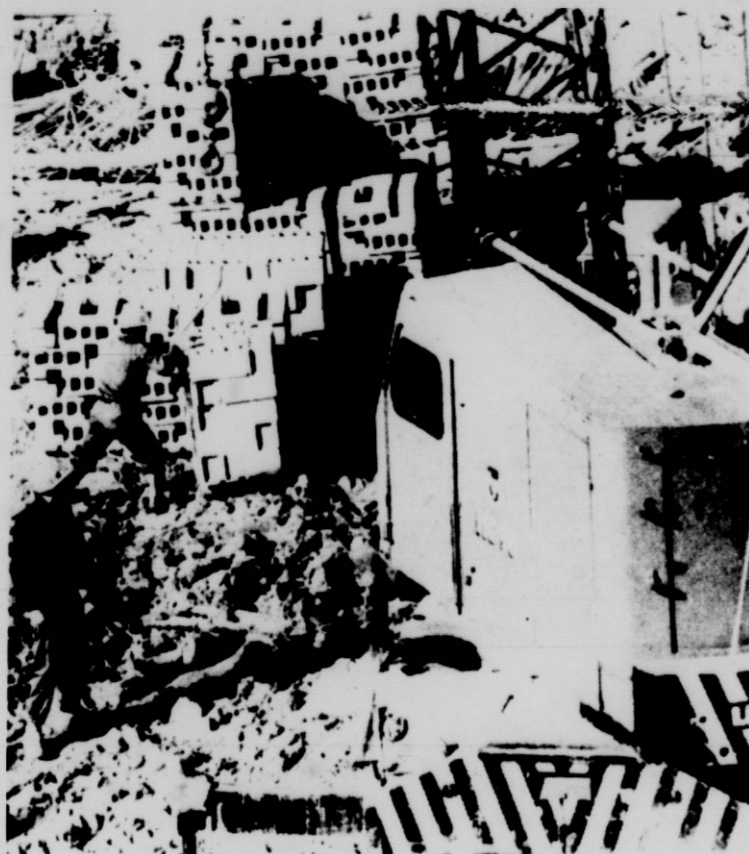

The five-page leaflets are being sold for five cents to cover production costs.

Designed to serve as a consumers' guide for students who do not have time to shop outside East Lansing, the study compares representative prices of six grocery stores, five pizza restaurants, four service stations, seven dry cleaners and seven drug stores.

The spread of prices include a 10-cent difference per pound of hamburger, a 19-cent range on 12-oz cans of orange juice, a 50-cent difference on eyeliner and a 90-cent difference on mascara.

But the study says, "We are not concerned with why prices are higher at one store than at another; this is a problem for the store managements."

One student working on the study said that by taking advantage of the savings it makes possible, four students living in an apartment could save enough on groceries in a term to pay a month's utilities.

Justice Department files suit against NFO for coercion

The U.S. Dept. of Justice filed a civil antitrust suit Wednesday against the National Farmers Organization (NFO), changing them with using coercion in attempting to monopolize the interstate sale of milk in 19 states, including Michigan.

NFO began a withholding action March 15 on the sale of milk in the 19 states until the price to the farmer is raised two cents per quart.

The government suit charges NFO with actions against non-members in curtailing unlawfully the interstate flow of milk. The suit does not attack NFO's withholding of its members' own milk supplies.

The government is asking that the NFO and its members be permanently enjoined both from threatening nonmember farmers, carriers and processors from trying to monopolize the sale of milk by such illegal means.

Forrest Kelsey, plant supervisor of the MSU Dairy Plant, said that this withholding action is not affecting the sale of milk at MSU.

Elsewhere in Michigan, the Michigan Milk Producers Association (MMPA) feels that the NFO withholding action is having no effect on their members' sale of milk. The MMPA covers 90 per cent of the fluid milk in Michigan, with a few NFO members within its organization.

Although some acts of violence have taken place because the sale of milk has continued, MMPA members are still selling their milk.

The NFO is relatively small in Michigan, which could be one reason for the ineffectiveness of the withholding action.

Another reason for the ineffectiveness may be that milk in Michigan already has some of the highest prices in the U.S.

One informed source feels that the NFO withholding action will be discontinued within a week.

Election in drop-add phase

As campaigning opens today for 1967-68 positions in student government, a second candidate has withdrawn, two students have entered their names as write-in candidates and a special ASMSU Student Board meeting has been called to make a minor revision in election regulations.

Student board is expected to revise its election regulations today to prevent a primary for the position of junior member-at-large. ASMSU election regulations now state that if more than seven candidates petition for a member-at-large position, a primary must be held April 6 to reduce the number of candidates to four.

No provisions have been made for the primary which would cost about $200, said John Jacobs, ASMSU vice president of finance and operations.

Cassie Beddow, Ridgewood, N.J., sophomore, has withdrawn from the contest for the female member-at-large seat.

Miss Beddow stated that finanial reasons caused her to reconsider her candidacy.

However, she said she will seek the appointed position of vice-president for Academic Affairs.

Entering as write-in candidates for senior class president are Rick Kalb of Upper Montclair, N.J., and Ernie Cadotte of Southfield.

Hank Plante of Livonia previously was the only candidate running for the senior class officer.

It's what's happening

The MSU College Republican Club will meet at 7 tonight in 36 Union.

The Pershing Rifles, Company L-3, will hold an open meeting on ambush and leadership reaction training for all basic ROTC cadets at 7 tonight in the Demonstration Hall ballroom.

At 8 tonight the Engineer Wives Club will meet in 110 Engineering Building to hear a fashion consultant speak on this year's spring fashions.

The Judo Club will welcome new members at 7 tonight in 150 Men's L.M. and the MSU Judo team will give a demonstration.

The University's Christian Movement Vietnam Workshop will hold its final session at 7:30 tonight at the Wesley Foundation Building, 1118 Harrison Ave.

The Rev. Alvin Hoksbergen, campus pastor of the Reformed Christian Fellowship, will speak to the Spartan Christian Fellowship at 9 tonight in Bethel Manor, 803 E. Grand River Ave.

Student interest to determine Free U courses

A new concept in organization for Free University courses is being implemented this term to enable students to suggest courses.

Students interested in taking a particular course and instructors interested in teaching should call ASMSU at 255-8267 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

During the weekend, students requesting a course may call Michael Lopez, organizer of the Free University courses, at 353-0050.

Lopez, New Haven, Conn., junior, said that the philosophy behind the Free University is to encourage groups of students to get together in an informal atmosphere to discuss topics of interest to them.

Students will suggest courses to be taught and the number of classes held. No grades will be given.

PROFITS: FAT FOR THE CORPORATE BELLY OR MUSCLE FOR A GROWING SOCIETY?

Robert W. Galvin, Motorola Inc.

Edward Kokalas, Michigan State

Dear Mr. Kokalas:

There is one basic fact of economic life which I haven't yet discussed in any depth, though it has come up in many student letters to me. This is profit.

Students think about "profit" when they consider business as a career or as a social force. A student who shuns a business career because he feels "there is more to life than making money" may also be one who thinks "businessmen will do anything to make a profit" or "business gets profits at someone's expense."

The overwhelming majority of American businessmen today would agree enthusiastically with this student's first statement. They would reject emphatically the others.

Just what is profit?

First of all, business does not do things in order to make a profit; business makes a profit in order to do things. I will illustrate this with some Motorola facts and then refer to the view of a college professor who also has served the government.

Motorola's 1965 net profit amounted to just over 6% of our sales. Because we made a profit, we were able to put $11.4 million into our employees' profit-sharing fund and pay Federal income taxes of $26 million. We retained $26 million to reinvest in our future growth.

The funds a company needs to fill growing consumer demand come, in the last analysis, from retained earnings and from depreciation. (Depreciation is the cost of buildings or equipment wearing out; each year, we charge against income part of the original cost and thus ultimately recover it.) Our 1965 depreciation was $10 million.

So, to pay for the expansion needed to fill 1965's increased demand for our products, we had $26 million of retained earnings plus $10 million in depreciation—a total of $36 million. Buying new tools, equipment, and plants during 1965 took $25 million. We also needed $20 million in "working capital" to finance larger inventories, carry increased accounts receivable, and meet greater payrolls. $45 million was needed; $36 million was available. The $9 million difference came from earnings previously retained for just such a use.

Motorola manufactures radios, television sets, record players, semiconductor products, industrial and hospital communications systems, military and automotive electronics hardware, electronic control systems, space equipment and some other things.

We started with only a car radio. Without profit, we could not have expanded or diversified into all these other lines—and the demand for these products showed the need for them. Profits cannot do the whole job here, but making a profit does qualify you to borrow funds to grow on. We have done this several times. And because we were profitable we sold additional common stock several times.

Here are earnings reports of some other companies, each of whose 1966 profits set new records: Bethlehem Steel, Standard Oil (Indiana), Sinclair Oil, and Westinghouse Electric. Their earnings, as a per cent of sales, ran 6.4%, 6.7%, 6.7%, and 4.6% respectively. If you were selling on commission, would you think these percentages were too high? Could these companies continue to serve their customers without the retained profits to finance new plants and for working capital?

Motorola is owned by shareholders who advanced their money and share the risks. To them, during 1965, we paid $6 million in dividends—less than 1% of the year-end market value of their stock. Does this rate seem excessive? The employees' profit-sharing plan received nearly double this amount.

Profit has been a catalyst in an economy which has raised the per capita share of the gross national product 42% in your lifetime (to $3110) and has prospects of doubling this figure by the year 2000 (both in constant 1958 dollars). Average corporate profits, for companies in all industries, companies having good years and bad, are only 3.3% of sales (Dept. of Commerce figures). Might it not be more of a wonder that this major job got done with such a proportionately minor catalyst than a dismay over high profits?

In his recent book, Economic Myth and Reality, Professor Delbert A. Snider, chairman of the Department of Economics at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, examines the myth that "Profits are an unearned and unnecessary 'grab' on the public's purse." The reality, he concludes, is that "Profits are an essential part of our economic system, guiding the use of resources and providing the base for increases in the standard of living. The best safeguard against excessive profit is competition."

Professor Snider sees profits as reward for risk-taking, innovation, and the organizing of production. Profits encourage business "to be as economical and efficient as possible in the use of society's productive resources" (material and human). Profits are also "extremely important as a signal device informing business of the kinds of products the public desires."

New developments in every field of endeavor are funded from profits. Many schools and universities are sustained substantially by the ability of business to make a profit. Just over half of most corporate profits are paid to the Federal government in income tax alone; whatever government agencies or programs you consider excellent are able to function only because the country's economic system produces wages and profits to be taxed.

Like every tool of man since fire, profit can be misused. In the developing history of mankind, however, no economic system has yet been devised that brings as much benefit to as many people as ours does. Our challenge is to minimize the misuse and maximize the benefits.

Making a profit should be neither the primary reason a business exists nor the primary reason a businessman works. Profits are not the purpose of a business but profits must be earned if the business is to continue to serve the needs of society. And that is its purpose.

Despite fiendish torture dynamic BIC Duo writes first time, every time!

It's rugged pair of stick pens was again in unending war against ball-point skip, clog and smear. Despite horrible punishment by mad scientists, BIC still writes first time, every time. And no wonder BIC's "Dynamite" Ball is the hardest metal made, encased in a solid brass nose cone. Will not skip, clog or smear no matter what devilish abuse is devised for them by sadistic students.
