Johnson, Kosygin meet today on Middle East, Vietnam war

France links Viet war with Middle East crisis

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Amid U.N. diplomats' groping for a compromise on assembly recommendations to Israel and the Arabs, France declared Thursday that as long as the war in Vietnam continues, there is no chance for real peace in the Middle East.

In a policy speech to the emergency session of the 122-nation General Assembly, Maurice Couve de Murville, the French foreign minister, made plain that his country believed it was up to the United States to bring the Vietnamese conflict to an end.

U.S. diplomats were visibly annoyed over France's raising the Vietnam issue. Authoritative sources at the U.S. mission to the United Nations used the term "more mischief" to describe the Frenchman's linking Vietnam to the Middle East.

While Sec. of State Dean Rusk, currently heading the U.S. delegation to the assembly, had no public reply at this time, he recently made plain in Washington that he saw no connection between Vietnam and the Middle East situation.

He ruled out trading off U.S. advantages in the Middle East for Communist concessions in Vietnam.

Diplomatic activity overshadowed the debate in the blue and gold assembly hall, which was deserted by top U.S. and Soviet delegates. They were busy elsewhere in private negotiations which have brought about a meeting between President Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

Latin American delegates were actively trying for a compromise between the Soviet resolution condemning Israel and the U.S. resolution asking direct Israeli-Arab negotiations.

There was some talk of an assembly recess after the end of the policy debate to allow a week or so for private negotiations.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin will hold a historic summit meeting Friday in the small town of Glassboro, N.J., about halfway between New York and Washington.

The White House made the announcement Thursday night, ending a week of speculation and several days of behind-the-scenes negotiations between representatives of the two governments.

White House sources said Johnson and Kosygin would discuss substantive matters—that it would not be simply a courtesy meeting.

It is understood that Johnson plans to raise such issues as the Middle East, Southeast Asia and Vietnam, prospects for a nuclear non-proliferation treaty and a possible agreement with the Soviets to limit a race to ring the two nations with anti-ballistic missiles.

Press Secretary George Christian said Johnson invited Kosygin to meet with him at 11 a.m., EDT Friday at the home of Thomas Robinson, president of Glassboro State College. The school has an enrollment of about 5,000 and the community—located 15 miles south of Philadelphia—has a population of about 10,000.

The fact that Glassboro could be considered something of a midway point between New York and Washington apparently figured heavily in the success of efforts to get the two world leaders together. Originally Johnson had wanted to see Kosygin at the White House or nearby. The Soviet premier thought Johnson should visit him in New York.

Johnson and Kosygin are expected to be together for a least a couple of hours and have lunch together.

White House sources said there was no fixed agenda for their talks—that each side will be free to raise whatever subjects it chooses.

These sources said final arrangements for the summit were concluded about 6 p.m. EDT Thursday. They said Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Kosygin laid the groundwork for the agreement at a meeting earlier in the day in New York.

"The site was chosen as one mutually convenient to the schedules of the two leaders," a White House aide said.

Kosygin plans to drive to Glassboro from New York. Johnson will fly to Philadelphia International Airport and, probably, proceed from there to Glassboro by helicopter.

Johnson is scheduled to address a Democratic fund-raising dinner in Los Angeles Friday night. It was understood he most likely would return to Washington before proceeding to California.

Christian's announcement featured the fact that Johnson initiated the invitation to Kosygin and the latter accepted.

Apparently as a result of the Kosygin-Rusk talk, Johnson placed a call Thursday afternoon to Democratic Gov. Richard J. Hughes of New Jersey, seeking suggestions for a meeting site. Christian said Hughes made the Glassboro site available.

"The meeting will be the first between the top U.S. and Soviet leaders since President John F. Kennedy and Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev met in Vienna in 1961.

Prospects for solid accomplishments from the meeting appear somewhat remote against the background of heightened differences over the Vietnam war and the more recent clash over the Middle East situation resulting from the swift Israeli victory over the Soviet-equipped armies of Egypt, Syria and Jordan.

Still it seemed that neither leader wanted to pass up this opportunity to meet each other in person for the first time.

In his U.N. speech demanding that Israel give up conquered territory and pay the Arab nations for war damages, Kosygin did not bear down very heavily on the U.S. role—and did not accept Egypt's claim that U.S. and British warplanes aided the Israeli in their swift rout of the Arabian forces.

Similarly, Johnson, in a speech Monday a few hours before Kosygin spoke, did not echo the Israeli theme that Moscow encouraged the Arabian nations in moves that brought about the armed conflict.

Six votes sought for tax bill

By MIKE BROGAN
State News Staff Writer

An informal meeting of Michigan House and Senate party leaders today may pave the way for a fiscal reform bill that can be passed by the house before the July 1 deadline.

Sen. Harry DeMaso, R-Battle Creek, chairman of the senate taxation committee, said the informal meeting of several "key people" has been called to "sit down and look over various plans" that might attract 56 votes, the number necessary to pass a bill in the House.

Wednesday the House defeated a Republican-sponsored tax package 56-50 with six Republicans and 50 Democrats voting against it.

Following the vote, Rep. George Montgomery, D-Detroit, said he would offer several amendments to the bill that might make it more palatable to house Democrats.

DeMaso said Democratic votes are necessary to get a tax reform bill through the House.

"You're not going to pass any bill without Democratic votes," he said.

He said he feels there is general agreement among Democrats and Republicans on repeal of the business activities tax and creation of a 2.5 per cent income tax, though there is some disagreement over the size of the tax deduction.

But DeMaso said he thinks the problem of exemptions under both an income tax and a sales tax can be worked out and that a property tax scale can be formulated.

"I don't think the problem is so insurmountable that some plan can't be worked out, passed in the House and then put in a conference committee," he said.

With the fast approaching deadline for House passage of a bill, Gov. George Romney said in a press conference Thursday that he would take more direct action in the state's fiscal reform program.

Romney, who Wednesday directed 19 major state departments to prepare for a possible austerity budget if the House fails in passing a tax bill, criticized the six "maverick" Republicans who voted against the bill Wednesday.

Romney said those GOP members had "not fulfilled prior commitments," but said there is nothing he can do about it. "I'm in no position to penalize them," he said.

The governor said it would be up to the House Republicans to take any action against them if it is thought necessary.

Wednesday Romney said the austerity budget he plans to outline to the Legislature sometime this week could reduce grants for school aid and cut capital outlay programs by $54 million.

Such a cut would affect building projects at MSU and could affect federal aid to the University, since most direct financial aid comes in the form of matching funds.

POLICE INSTALL WORKERS

Pickets still at Middle Jr. High

Construction workers continued to picket the Middle Jr. High School site Thursday while riot-helmeted police stood by in case of violence.

A suit was filed in Ingham County Circuit Court Thursday by contractors Foster-Schermhorn-Barnes Inc., to prevent mass picketing by filing Local 25 of the Iron Workers Union $5,000 each day the picket continued. The picketing Iron workers are not assigned to the school construction job.

The dispute arose Tuesday when non-union sheet metal workers were assigned to install metal covering on the top and side of Whalen Distributing Co., 2709 W. Michigan Ave. The contractors charge that the union's business representative, Jack Billingsley, said the union "was going to cause the general contractors a lot of trouble on its jobs and the company would be sorry."

Then about 35 Iron workers began to picket Wednesday morning outside the Middle School, 1601 Burcham Dr., blocking the entrance so regular workers couldn't enter. Work at the site was shut down and East Lansing police were called out, but there was no reported violence.

Thursday about 60 pickets returned and milled around in small groups while police sat in their patrol cars and watched. When the workers arrived police with riot sticks ushered them through picket lines.

There was also reported picketing at an Okemos High School construction site on Okemos Road and at a Foster-Schermhorn-Barnes job in Jackson, but none at the Whalen job site.

The contractors have said that assignment of the sheet metal workers at the Whalen job had been approved by the Building Trades Council which reportedly told the workers to disregard the pickets.

Grades report nears finish for fall term

The Educational Policies Committee (EPC) report on grading systems is "essentially, but not absolutely, complete," Jack B. Kinsinger, chairman of the committee, said Wednesday.

Before the report is finalized and made public, the committee will seek advice of additional student and faculty groups. This will be done early fall term.

A drafting committee has been established in the EPC to organize the report this summer.

Kinsinger said a primary part of the report would be the definition of a set of grading principles.

"That's what the students and knowledgeable people are really after," he said. "Then the scheme can be tampered with."

An EPC subcommittee has been studying MSU's grading system and reports on grading systems used at other colleges and universities, as well as the philosophy of grades, for approximately a year. An ASMSU student committee was established winter term to add a student perspective to the discussion.

The two committees submitted a list of six recommendations to the EPC at the end of spring term. These recommendations call for a limited pass-no-credit all-University system for use by sophomores with majors, juniors and seniors for a limited number of credits a year.

Other recommendations were for experimentation with grading systems at the department level; research by a special committee on the psychological effects of grades; publication of a handbook explaining the philosophy and mechanics of the grading system at MSU; and the lowering of the grade point required for admission into upper college from a 2.00 to a 1.80.

When the report is completed in the fall it will probably be presented to the provost and to the Academic Council, Kinsinger said. Implementation will depend on the discussion in the Council.

PROJECT BEGINS

STEP enrollment down

EDITOR'S NOTE: Staff Writer Leo Zainea will travel to Holly Springs, Miss., July 2 and spend a week with STEP, reporting daily on this year's work aiding Southern Negroes.

By LEO ZAINEA
State News Staff Writer

Even before they had unpacked their bags the reality of the Southern Negroes' plight struck the STEP group like the sweltering Mississippi sun that scorched the tiny Rust College campus.

For only 42 of an expected 100 Negro students could afford to enroll at Rust this summer for a college preparatory institute.

The school had raised its yearly tuition $300, to $1,300. The average family income for a Rust student is $1,500.

Although disappointed, STEP (Student Education Project) acted to improve its annual Summer Study Skills Institute to include high school juniors and seniors, instead of just graduates, reported Larry Klein, student director, in a telephone interview Thursday. Christina Lundberg, a former STEP worker and now a Rust faculty member, began recruiting from the two high schools in nearby Holly Springs, Simms High and St. Mary's.

The project hopes to attract at least 20 students to better utilize the talents of the 27 volunteers assigned to the five-week program. A community-action "side" project aimed at pre-high school youths in the Marshall County area will also be added.

STEP was organized in 1964 by Robert L. Green, an associate professor of educational psychology at MSU and a prominent civil rights figure, and the Rev. John Duley, who is now in Taiwan. Their concern for poor educational opportunities for the Negro in the Deep South prompted the first STEP visit to Rust in the summer of 1965. Nearly 25 per cent of the project's funding came from a speech here by Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., the civil rights leader.

The STEP institute is designed to prepare incoming freshmen to Rust College for college-level studies, since, according to STEP authorities, their verbal and mathematical aptitude is below the national norm because of the segregated educational system.

This year's STEP contingent arrived at the Rust campus by car Saturday night from East Lansing. The institute-students arrived Sunday afternoon and classes in communications skills, mathematics, creative arts and recreational and cultural activities began Monday.

The STEP volunteers reside with the institute students on campus—men in a new, air-conditioned dormitory, and women in 60-year-old E.L. Rust Hall.

Updating land-grant ideal

Excepting itself from the general trend of snobbishness in higher education, MSU has pledged an all-out effort to educate the state's disadvantaged students.

Following a special report by Gordon Sabine, vice president for special projects, outlining MSU's past and present programs aiding thousands of needy students and adults, the MSU Board of Trustees recently rededicated the University to a policy of aid.

The board further resolved that MSU petition the State Board of Education and the Governor requesting adoption of this policy by all state-supported colleges and universities.

Sabine stated that MSU's story of great commitment to aiding the disadvantaged made it an exception to the "white upper class kid" college.

He enumerated present projects, including financial aid to freshmen, family living education through the home economics extension, the Student Education Corps, inner city teachers, Head Start instructors and research on aiding the needy.

Some 43 per cent of this fall's entering freshmen will receive some form of financial aid, averaging nearly $800 per student. Students will have nearly 8,000 loans, 7,000 scholarships and about 15,000 part-time jobs this year.

But Trustee Don Stevens (D-Okeemos) asserted that despite the present programs, MSU must do much more. He said MSU should make every effort to put MSU above the national public-university average for the number of students from families earning less than $10,000.

Actually, there is little difference in enrollment percentage distribution of students according to income between MSU and other Great Lakes region universities. And although MSU is slightly below the national average of enrollment from lower income groups and slightly above the average for higher income groups, the statistics are misleading. Because Michigan is one of the highest income states in the nation, any absolute comparisons are meaningless.

But the real question in whether MSU can do much more now, is where to get the money to finance new programs.

Presently the University is waiting precariously for what may well be an insufficient appropriation from the Legislature, resulting in another fee raise.

Certainly, there is much more to be done. But realistically, it cannot be done by the University overnight. And even more realistically, it cannot be done by MSU alone.

Higher education is often accused of neglecting the problem of educating the needy. By initiating programs rather than just continuing discussion, Michigan State has breathed new life into the old land grant philosophy -- the serving of society.

First aid in Chem lab inadequate

Solons reveal childishness

To the Editor:

The purpose of this letter is to relate to you the deplorable treatment I received following an injury in organic chemistry laboratory, both from the department of chemistry and Olin Health Center.

On May 23, while I was working in the Chemistry 356 laboratory, something splashed into my eye in spite of the fact that I was wearing glasses. Although I was unaware of what it was, my eye immediately began to tear profusely and burn intensely. I went to my instructor at once, and told her exactly what had happened. She summoned the lab instructor in the adjacent lab. After she explained the situation, he went to the prep room, returning in a few moments with a small plastic cup. At that point, perhaps three minutes after the accident, he attempted to wash my eye with water from the cup but very ineffectually. No one had suggested washing my eye with running water in one of the many sinks nearby. Neither instructor had any knowledge of the existence of first aid equipment, nor the location of eye washing sinks.

The washing did not relieve the burning, so perhaps ten minutes later, one of the instructors decided to dissolve some sodium bicarbonate in water to neutralize any acid present. He did not seem to know how to effectively get the solution into my eye until I suggested that he use cotton. This didn't work, so one of the instructors drove me to Olin.

A nurse flushed my eye, and a doctor examined it, assuring me that there was no corneal injury, and said that he couldn't see anything in the rest of the eye. He gave me some medication and told me that nothing serious was the matter. Late that evening, my eye began to burn badly again.

The pain was very severe the next morning, so I returned to Olin. A doctor applied an anesthetic plus some ointment, noting only irritation. The pain returned soon afterward, so I called Olin. The doctor advised using some eye drops he had given me, and said that my eye would be better by evening. These did no good at all, so I decided that perhaps something more serious than "irritation" was present. Early in the afternoon I visited an ophthalmologist who informed me that a large part of the epithelium was burned off and would require two to three weeks to heal.

I am convinced that the injury would not have been as severe if a) the Chemistry Department personnel had known some first aid and had applied first aid immediately after the injury and b) if the doctors at Olin had correctly diagnosed the nature of the injury. It is the responsibility of the University to train personnel in the elements of first aid when they are working in a situation with many potential hazards, such as an organic chemistry lab. The science laboratories should also be adequately equipped with first aid equipment, including eye washing sinks in EACH laboratory.

Furthermore, it is the University's responsibility to provide competent medical diagnosis and treatment. I expect the University to pay any medical expenses incurred as a result of this injury and to assure me that I will not be penalized because of class time missed in connection with the accident.

ENGINEERING CONFERENCE

Social conscience urged

By NORM SPERLING
State News Staff Writer

Continued education services for engineers were advocated Wednesday by Robben W. Fleming, president-designate of the University of Michigan.

In his Distinguished Lecture before the American Society for Engineering Education (ASEE), Fleming also requested more inducement for students to enter engineering colleges.

Engineering students should be given a liberal as well as technical education, he said. And on the job, they should be given whatever supplementary training they need.

Agreeing with ASEE President M.R.

Lohmann's speech Monday, Fleming asserted that engineers must be concerned with the effects of their work on society as much as the work itself.

Fallout, a social problem in nuclear research, ought to be of as much concern to the engineer as the bombs that produced it, he said. Similarly, the power that comes from fission could be applied to desalinization.

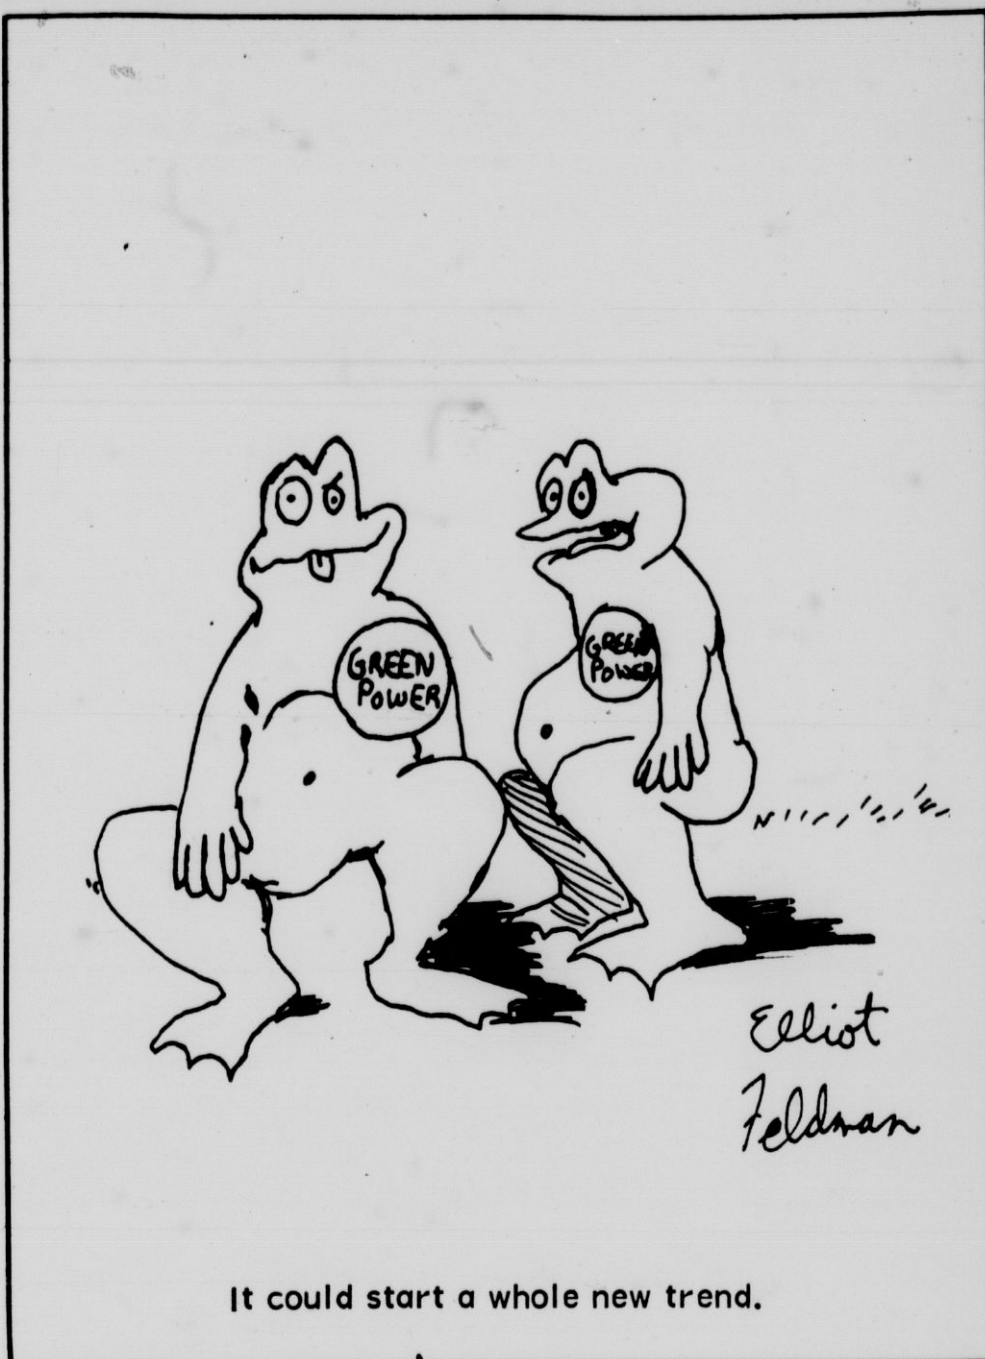

In space research, weather control and its implications for making useless land arable should come under closer examination, Fleming said. Pollution research, which has now reached the stage where it knows what should be done, ought to spur the engineer to apply social pressure to see that it is done.

"Engineers have the competence," Fleming stated, "but lack basic understanding of social problems." To combat this, he called for a more liberal education.

It takes 4.6 years for an engineering major to graduate, Fleming said. This, combined with heavy mathematics requirements, acts as a strong deterrent to students considering the major. Those who do choose the field see themselves as working harder than arts and letters and science students for the same credit.

Other problems in getting and keeping engineering majors, he said, are draft status, which requires a high grade-point,

Toward free and responsible speech

In a double decision handed down at its crowded end-of-term session June 12, the Supreme Court extended the clarification of the law of libel which it began with its 1964 opinion in the case of Sullivan v. "New York Times." In that notable ruling, the Court declared, in effect, that criticism of a public official on a matter of urgent public concern was not libelous, even if defamatory and false, unless motivated by "active malice." Active malice was defined as meaning "with knowledge that it was false or with reckless disregard of whether it was false or not." On this reasoning the Court reversed a $500,000 judgment won in a suit by L. B. Sullivan, Commissioner of Public Affairs of Montgomery, Alabama, against the "Times."

A major issue left open in 1964 was whether the principle is limited in application to "public officials." The new finding makes explicit its extension to "public figures"—i.e., persons who "thrust themselves into the vortex of public disputes" or who occupy a position that commands wide public attention. "Freedom of the press," Chief Justice Warren writes, guarantees the right of "uninhibited debate" concerning public figures and "their involvement in public issues and events."

Four justices declared for a somewhat stricter rule of responsibility for public figures than the "active malice" standard for public officials. But all nine agreed in upholding the appeal of the Associated Press from a $500,000 judgment won in the lower courts by former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker. Though the AP dispatch on Gen. Walker's conduct at the Ole Miss 1962 riot was in part false, it was not libelous, since it was not "an extreme departure from the standards of investigation and reporting ordinarily adhered to by responsible publishers" in handling "hot news."

By 5-4, however, the Court upheld the award of $460,000 to Wallace Butts, former athletic director of the University of Georgia, against the Curtis Publishing Co. for statements made in an article published in the "Saturday Evening Post." The Court found that the Post, though not under the pressure of "hot news" and a daily deadline, had failed to take "elementary precaution" in checking its story on Butts.

By linking these two decisions the Court was affirming a broad and vigorous interpretation of free speech in public debate of public issues, along with a commonsense minimum of responsibility on the part of the debaters.

5-YEAR PENALTY

Bill to jail race agitators gets prompt House action

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bill aimed at jailing professional agitators who stir up racial riots was rushed through a House Judiciary subcommittee Thursday and promptly endorsed by Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass.

The bill would make it a federal crime punishable by up to five years in jail to cross a state boundary to "incite, organize, promote or encourage" a riot. It also includes a provision to protect Negroes against interference with their civil rights.

"I am very strong for such legislation," McCormack told newsmen shortly after the subcommittee's unanimous vote for the bill.

Prompt action by the full committee and the House is expected. In another committee session Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz warned rioters that the disturbances they were creating "are getting in the way of real, honest efforts to help their cause."

Wirtz, appearing in support of the administration's anti-poverty program, said he has little sympathy for those who riot to protest that the war on poverty has not yet been won.

"A riot now is as wrong as a march on Selma or Washington was right," he said. "The riot is against those who did nothing for 100 years, but it hurts badly the efforts of those who are now deeply committed to remedy this situation with almost desperate speed."

Pressure for enactment of anti-riot legislation has been mounting in Congress as violence in Tampa, Dayton, Boston, Cincinnati and other cities has borne out the warning of civil rights militants that a "long, hot summer" is in prospect.

The Judiciary Committee chairman, Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., pushed the bill through his subcommittee in one brief session after its supporters had threatened to take it to the floor by another route.

Celler succeeded in attaching to it a provision from last year's civil rights bill that would protect Negroes against threats or force when they are lawfully engaged in such activities as voting, attending public schools, using public accommodations, or any other activity protected by law.

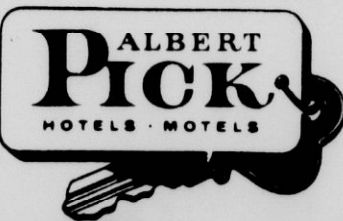

The provision, strongly supported by civil rights leaders, was approved by the House last year only to die in the Senate along with the rest of the 1966 Civil Rights Act.

Rep. William C. Cramer, R-Fla., chief sponsor of the anti-riot legislation, sat in on the subcommittee session Thursday, although not a member, and agreed to sponsor the combined package.

His bill would make it a federal crime to use interstate communications facilities to incite or direct a riot, as well as outlaw interstate travel for such purposes.

In frequent speeches calling for its enactment, he has said it would "put an end to the sordid activities of the Stokely Carmichael and the George Lincoln Rockwells."

Broadcasting merger approved by FCC

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Communications Commission approved Thursday the biggest merger in broadcasting history, permitting International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. to take over American Broadcasting Companies, Inc.

FCC approval was by a 4-3 vote, the same lineup as when the commission approved the $2.8 billion merger the first time, last December 21. The commission acted then after a limited hearing which the Justice Department contended did not take up possible antitrust aspects of the merger.

The FCC delayed the merger early this year to give the Justice Department an opportunity to present its case in opposition.

There was no immediate indication whether the department will appeal the FCC decision in the courts, but an official said, "We are going to read the decision critically."

The merger requires FCC approval because the broadcasting network owns radio and television stations subject to FCC control.

Voting to approve the merger were Commission Chairman Robert H. Hyde and Commissioners Robert E. Lee, Lee Loevinger and James J. Wadsworth.

Dissenting were Commissioners Robert T. Bartley, Kenneth A. Cox and Nicholas Johnson.

ABC and ITT said several days ago that they will hold up completion of the merger for 30 days from the date the FCC hands down its decision. In light of this, a Justice Department official said, "We don't have to move with frenzy" to reach a decision on whether to appeal.

2 GIRLS SAVED

3 lowans killed; Texas man held

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP)—A Texas construction worker was arrested here early Thursday and held on charges of suspicion of murder in the killings of three persons and the kidnaping of two young girls.

Joseph Robert Carter, 42, who gave addresses both in Dallas and Beaumont, Tex., was held in the city jail for authorities from neighboring Benton County.

Victims of the shooting spree Wednesday night were Mrs. Charles Schwab, 42, Belle Plaine; Leland Skoog, 55, rural Elberon, and Skoog's son, Garth, 24.

Found sobbing and terrified in the trunk of a car Carter was driving were Christine Schwab, 11, daughter of the slain woman, and Christine's cousin, Julie Braksiek, 11, of rural Elberon. They were unharmed.

Authorities pieced together this story:

Mrs. Schwab was driving the two girls to the Richard Braksiek farm about 7:30 p.m. Wednesday to attend a party celebrating Braksiek's birthday. A car forced them off the road about a quarter mile from the Braksiek home.

The man driving the car shot Mrs. Schwab and forced the two girls into his automobile. He wrecked the car a short distance away, and it rolled over, but all three escaped unharmed.

Second bid to stop Dodd censure fails

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate rejected Thursday a second attempt to block the censure of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd—this one seeking only a reprimand for personal use of political money.

It cast aside, 87 to 9, the amendment proposed by Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., to a resolution accusing the Connecticut Democrat of converting at least $116,083 in politically raised money to his own personal use.

The action came as the Senate argued toward judgment of Dodd on two ethics committee charges of financial wrongdoing which tended to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute.

Kaline, Cash pace Tigers past Twins for 3rd straight

DETROIT (UPI)—Al Kaline hit a pair of home runs, driving home three runs, and Norm Cash added a two-run homer to give the Detroit Tigers a 5-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins Thursday.

The triumph lifted the second-place Tigers to within three games of the league-leading Chicago White Sox who were idle Thursday.

Detroit right-hander Joe Sparma allowed only four hits in picking up the victory, his seventh against just one loss this season.

Kaline's first homer came off Minnesota loser Jim Kaat after Don Wert had walked with one out in the first inning. Kaat, now 4-8, walked Dick Tracewski with one out in the third and then gave up back-to-back homers to Cash and Kaline.

Kaat doubled to drive in Jerry Zimmerman with Minnesota's first run in the third inning. The Twins scored again in the seventh when Tony Oliva was safe on a fielder's choice, went to third on Sandy Valdespino's single and scored on Zoilo Versalles' sacrifice fly.

The victory was the third straight for the Tigers who had been slumping with 10 losses in 12 games previous to the present streak.

STARTS TUESDAY

Summer baseball team formed

Baseball Coach Danny Litwhiler is forming a summer baseball team for interested college students, faculty and staff members and employees.

Eligibility requirements are that players must be associated with the University and a physical examination must be completed. Anyone interested should contact Litwhiler at his baseball office in Jenison Fieldhouse or call 355-0259 for information about the summer team.

Litwhiler plans to hold the first practice session Tuesday. All practices will start at 6 p.m. This is the first time a summer baseball team has been formed at MSU. Only softball is offered in the intramural program.

"Right now we don't know how this summer baseball idea will develop," Litwhiler said. "We're just getting it started. But first we want to get the students out."

Litwhiler said Athletic Director Biggie Munn and President

John A. Hannah have given support to forming a summer baseball team.

If a large number show interest in the program, Litwhiler said, he could form several teams and possibly have a league.

"But if that were to happen," Litwhiler said, "we'd have to get together with the IM office, since a summer league of that nature would fall under its authorization."

Tentatively, Litwhiler has plans for only one team that could play other local teams.

"We've already been challenged by some Detroit teams," he said.

Litwhiler is hopeful that the idea of summer baseball will eventually spread throughout the Big Ten on the varsity level.

"There is no reason why we shouldn't continue our baseball program right through the summer," Litwhiler said. "Many smaller schools have summer teams."

Michigan-MSU game at Ann Arbor sellout

The Michigan-Michigan State football game at Ann Arbor, Oct. 14, is a sellout, the U-M officials announced Thursday.

Officials said they had to stop selling single game tickets in order to have room for the usual number of season ticket buyers. MSU's football ticket office announced it has closed applications for tickets to the Spartans' Oct. 28 game at Notre Dame.

Applications already in hand exceeded the Spartans' allotment from Notre Dame of 4,500 tickets, making it necessary to hold a lottery for ticket distribution, according to Athletic Director Biggie Munn.

4 sign basketball tenders

MSU has signed four players to Big Ten basketball tenders and has another one who is likely to sign but is waiting clearance of his records by the Big Ten office.

The Spartans have given athletic scholarships to two junior college players, Bernie Copeland and Harrison Stepter, both from Moberly, Mo., Junior College. Copeland and Stepter will have junior eligibility this fall and will play on the varsity team.

Two high school seniors were also signed—Rudy Benjamin of Dayton, Ohio, and Paul Dean of Alma.

Benjamin and Dean will play on the freshman team. Benjamin is a 6-2 guard and was voted the top basketball player in Ohio. His team was ranked among the state's top five during the season.

Dean is also a 6-2 guard. He averaged nearly 30 points a game as a high school senior.

Copeland and Stepter are expected to give the Spartans added strength, especially with the graduation of senior center Matt Aitch and the loss of Art Baylor, who dropped out of school.

"We took two junior college boys because we felt we might need experienced help," said Bob Nordman, an assistant to Head Basketball Coach John Benington.

Copeland and Stepter were teammates on the Moberly team which won a second straight junior college basketball championship last year.

Copeland is a 6-6 center and Stepter a 6-2 guard.

"Neither is a great scorer," Nordman said. "But they are all-around players who are standouts on defense."

"And they will fit in well with the type of game we play here at Michigan State."

Knicks lure Frazier away from college

NEW YORK (UPI) — Walt Frazier, the jumping jack guard whom his new coach calls "the best player in the 1967 college draft," gave up a final year at Southern Illinois Thursday to sign a one-year no-cut contract with the New York Knickerbockers.

Financial terms of the contract were not announced, but James R. Zimmer, attorney for the six-foot-four first-round draft choice, said that the National Basketball Assn.'s Knicks offered less money than the Denver franchise of the American Basketball Assn., which also drafted Frazier.

Dick McGuire, coach of the Knicks, said that despite the fact his club is "loaded" with guards, the decision to choose the Atlanta-bred Frazier in the first round was based on McGuire's belief that "he was the best around, better than Jimmy Walker of Providence."

Walker, an All-America who led the nation's major college scorers last season, was signed by the Detroit Pistons after being the first player selected in the NBA draft.

Frazier, small-college All-America, led Southern Illinois to the National Invitation Tournament title this year and ran off with the most valuable player trophy by scoring 88 points, racking up 19 assists, and grabbing 52 rebounds during Southern's four-game march to the title.

"Those rebounds were the big thing," McGuire said. "Frazier went right in there and pulled down every key rebound, especially in the final against Marquette."

Frazier averaged 18.2 points per game last season and snared 310 rebounds while leading the Salukis to the UPI National Small College Title and a 24-2 record that included victories over such powerhouses as Louisville and Texas Western.

8 Trojans head NCAA track team

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — Powerful University of Southern California dominated the All-America track and field team announced Thursday by the NCAA rules committee.

The Trojans, run-away winners last weekend of their 24th NCAA team championship, placed eight men on the squad. They were followed by Oregon, Tennessee, Iowa and Rice with five each.

Among those selected are five three-time NCAA All-Americans: Charlie Green of Nebraska, Tommie Smith of San Jose State, Neil Steinhauer of Oregon, Randy Matson of Texas A&M and Charles Glenn of California.

Making the team for the first time was sophomore sensation Jim Ryun of Kansas, the world's premier miler.

South Dakota's Basin League, considered the No. 1 league for college baseball players, has catcher Harry Kendrick, first baseman Tom Binkowski, and pitcher Mickey Knight playing in it.

Kendrick is with Winner, while Binkowski and Knight play for Sturgis.

Four of next year's probable starters will be playing around their homes for city league teams. Steve Rymal, who played second base for the Spartans last year, is playing in Adrian. Rymal's double play partner, shortstop Tom Ellis, is playing in the Grand Rapids city league.

Paul Smieska, a likely starter in the outfield next season, is in the Lansing city league. Last year's centerfielder, Tom Hummel, is playing in the Dallas, Tex., city league.

Pitcher Gary Smith is playing in the Central Illinois league, while Illinois native Bill Linne a reserve catcher for the Spartans last season, is playing at Ft. Meyers, Fla.

Coed prepares for sky dive

EDITOR'S NOTE: Trinka Cline will be parachuting this weekend with the MSU Parachute Club, weather permitting. A picture report of the fear, shock and/or enjoyment of it all will be printed next week.

By TRINKA CLINE
State News Staff Writer

Not everyone alive has an obituary already written and a letter in which her mother pays her last respects.

I do.
You'd almost think I was about to do something drastic.
But I keep telling everyone parachuting isn't that dangerous if you follow the proper safety precautions. Bob Olson, president of the MSU Parachute Club, said, "It's not the chute that doesn't work; it's the one jumping."

The idea of jumping with the MSU club was briefly discussed and quickly dismissed by the State News staff. Cowards.

The news that I had volunteered for this weekend prompted my mother to write a letter in which she more or less said good-bye. But Olson says all the usual stories of defective chutes and smash landings are untrue. He should know; he's done a considerable amount of parachuting. You only hear those tales from people who haven't tried it.

Although MSU students have been jumping for at least two or three years, the Parachute Club has been officially in existence only four or five months. Even in that short time the membership has grown to about 60.

Neither is it true that people are just handed the equipment and shoved out of the plane. Last night they taught me how to exit from the plane, how to fall and recover from a drag, how to maneuver on the way down and how to land. They demonstrated the position to be in when the parachute opens (there's even an automatic opener on the reserve chute).

Olson also said the idea of a sudden jolt when the parachute opens is a myth. He added, "The second jump will be the hardest thing to do. On the first one you're too busy to be scared."

He explained that the club charges $15 for the first jump, plus $5 to join. The next four jumps are $5 each and then only $3. Each time all equipment is furnished. Parental permission is required for those under 21.

UNIVERSITY OF WINDSOR

WINDSOR, ONTARIO, CANADA

LBJ tough in '68--Goldwater

OMAHA, Neb. (P)—Barry M. Goldwater said Wednesday that Republicans have less than an even chance of defeating President Johnson in 1968, and they had better unite behind the strongest candidate they can find.

Goldwater, here to speak at the annual convention of the Young Republican National Federation, told a news conference he thinks former Vice President Richard

M. Nixon is the leading candidate for the party presidential nomination. But the 1964 presidential nominee said he would not rule out Gov. Ronald Reagan of California in the contest.

Goldwater said that he is backing Nixon but that if Nixon fails to receive the necessary support he could back Reagan "with everything we have."

He said he intends to confer with Reagan in the next few days.

Goldwater indicated he has not modified his opposition to Michigan Gov. George W. Romney, who failed to support him in the 1964 campaign. Romney's supporters have been contending at the convention with representatives of Reagan for backing among the Young Republicans convention delegates.

In reference to Romney, Goldwater said, "Any Republican has the right to back or not to back the ticket. But I don't know how much backing he then should expect when he bids for a high place himself."

Goldwater said his belief that Johnson has the edge in the 1968 race is based on the fact that things are "going better" in Vietnam, that the economic situation looks good and that the President has done a "commendable job" in the Middle East crisis.

THE FLAME SPUTTERS

'64 U-C protesters fined, sentenced

BERKELEY, Calif. (P)—The first group of defendants in the 1964 Free Speech Movement at the University of California appeared in municipal court Wednesday after the Supreme Court refused to review their cases.

It was apparent that time had changed some of the once-fiercy demonstrators. Some had married and were parents; many seemed to have changed attitudes.

There were 135 names on the court calendar, but only 60 were present. Others had written from points as distant as Egypt and the Congo, promising to pay fines within the next month. They were granted temporary excuses.

Many of those present elected to pay fines in lieu of jail sentences and some were permitted to arrange installment payments.

One of the leaders, Jack Weinberger, was ordered to begin serving 94 days in jail. He had been credited with serving 26.

He had drawn the longest sentence of the some 500 defendants involved. He appeared in court neatly dressed, with his hair cut short.

The defendants were found guilty on various charges including resisting arrest, trespassing, creating a public disturbance and disturbing the peace.

Mario Savio, who sparked the Berkeley demonstrations, and his wife Susan, must serve mandatory jail sentences of 120 and 45 days, respectively. They were not in court, having been granted until June 30 to start their sentences.

Another group of about 60 are scheduled for court appearances Thursday.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara designated as off limits to all servicemen any apartment or trailer park in the Andrews area where the landlord refuses to rent to Negroes. The order is effective July 1.

McNamara said similar action can be expected in other areas. He didn't pinpoint the installation at which the next order will be aimed but said "we anticipate moving elsewhere in the country."

McNamara told reporters that thousands of military men are subjected to humiliating discrimination in housing.

"We don't believe we can tolerate this situation any longer," he said.

McNamara issued a memorandum to service secretaries saying that after July 1 military personnel moving into the Andrews Air Force Base area or changing residences there will not be authorized to sign new leases or undertake new rentals within 3 1/2 miles of the center of the Andrews base "unless such facility is available to all military personnel on an equal basis."

This is the area in which base families are concentrated.

The order does not require servicemen to break existing leases but applies to all future rental contracts.

McNamara's memorandum said canvass of 22,000 apartment units within a six-mile radius of Andrews showed less than three per cent are open to Negroes.

Council studies train tie-ups

Trains on the C & O and Grand Trunk lines, causing up to three-block traffic tie-ups at South Harrison Road, aren't breaking the law but are prompting complaints from Spartan Village residents.

A special study of the crossings, requested by East Lansing Councilman James B. Brown in April, was presented at this week's council meeting.

The report revealed that only one train observed during a two week period exceeded the five-minute legal limit for obstructing any public street or highway.

A detailed survey conducted by the city manager listed the average time for train crossings as 1.98 minutes and the average traffic tie up as 1.13 blocks.

Based on personal observation and comments from students in Spartan Village, Brown said he has heard of three-block back-ups during rush hours with separate trains following each other in succession.

The council report shows that obstruction time for trains crossing Harrison Road ranges from one-half to six minutes. Waiting traffic is backed up from one-quarter to three blocks.

"Although there are no criminal actions involved," Brown said, "there is still a traffic problem."

"We should look beyond the criminal penalties and find a solution to the problem," he added.

Independent alumni assn. schedules initial meeting

By LAUREL PRATT
State News Staff Writer

Founders of the new MSU Alumni Association will meet at 4 p.m. today in the Green Room of the Union to ratify their charter and bylaws and to elect an interim executive board.

The association, which will function independently of the University, will replace the Dept. of Alumni Relations and MSU Development Fund.

Present personnel and structures will be retained in the new organization.

Jack Kinney, director of the present department, has been named continuing director.

Free 'U' class

Free University's seminar on mental health scheduled for this summer has been canceled.

James Linden, instructor in psychology and teacher of the seminar, said other academic commitments forced cancellation of the course, but said he will hold the class this fall.

chairman of the board and executive director of the new association.

A planning committee headed by Thomas W. Kimen (Class of '35) was formed in 1965 to evaluate the effectiveness of the alumni contributions structure.

Kimen said the committee decided the association should be set up separately from the University so alumni would be able to get involved in the original planning of programs and projects and not be dominated by the University.

The association is to be set up more like a business than an association, Kimen said. It will be headed by a 16-member executive board elected by alumni at large.

Purposes of the association, as defined in its charter, are:

--To maximize use of the talents, services and financial assistance of alumni for the educational, literary, scientific, charitable and benevolent purposes of MSU.

--To establish and maintain communication between the University and alumni.

--To promote unifying interest and loyalty among students, alumni and others interested in the welfare of the University and to stimulate their willingness to participate actively in University programs and progress.

--To assist the University in providing incentives and other mechanics to attract outstanding students.

--To project and interpret the University's true image, including its goals, work, prestige and leadership position.

The founders, meeting this afternoon, will choose a board to serve until next June when the first regular board will be elected. Procedures for the election have not been worked out.

MSU is ninth of the Big Ten schools to set up an independent alumni association. Northwestern is the only one which still handles alumni relations through a university department.

The new association will take charge of the following programs, presently under the Dept. of Alumni Relations and Development Fund:

SUMMER SLUMP

Bus system cuts service

Only four MSU buses are in full-scale operation this summer, providing a skeleton service with 20-minute frequency on two routes and no service on weekends.

During the winter, 26 buses operated on five routes with four-minute frequency.

Bus passes still cost $12 for the full term and $6 for each half term. The bus system does not reduce the cost of the pass in proportion to the frequency of service, said Henry Jolman, general foreman of the campus bus system.

He said the bus system shows a loss every summer because it carries so few passengers. The heaviest bus traffic last summer was 2,000 passengers a day.

The Union ticket office Thursday reported 88 full-term passes, 70 first half-term passes and 35 commuter passes sold. The commuter passes are for the full term and are used on buses from lots L and X to Shaw Hall.

During winter term, the buses carry 60,000 riders a day, he said.

This summer only the Brody-Fee and Spartan Village routes are in use. Jolman said he expected the Brody-Fee Express and Circle-Fee routes to be used again this fall.

There is no commuter bus this summer because the commuter parking lot Y is not in use. Commuters are using lots L near the Brody Complex and X behind Fee Hall.

Weekend service was discontinued because of low usage, Jolman said. He estimated that it cost $1.50 per passenger to run weekend buses when the service was available.

Jolman said he has requested additional equipment for fall, but could say nothing definite about changes until the University budget is approved.

Changes might be necessary to accommodate residents of the new Holden Halls in the South Complex and persons using the new Wells Hall near the International Center, he said.

"We would like to improve the winter service," he said, "but it depends on the approval of additional equipment."

Buses cost $26,000 apiece, he said, and many of them sit idle nine months of the year because they are only needed during the winter term rush.

Some of the buses not in regular service this summer are being used for persons attending conferences on campus, he said. Others are parked around the stadium until fall, and some are being repaired.

Couve de Murville asserted: followed the general outline of the statement by President Charles de Gaulle to his Cabinet in Paris Wednesday. But the foreign minister did not blame Israel for starting the war, as did his president.

Couve de Murville asserted: "So long as the war continues in Vietnam, there is no chance for peace in the Middle East."

He added that in the French view, an end to the war would require "a courageous and fruitful decision by one great state," meaning the United States.

While France did not join the United States in opposing the Soviet request for convening the emergency assembly, the French foreign minister appeared skeptical of any solution stemming from the assembly debate.

He predicted that the crisis would return to the Security Council in the near future.

Couve de Murville also expressed pessimism over chances of direct talks between Israel and the Arabs.

He believed that the assembly could not accept as permanent the boundaries established by military action.

He declared it was up to the major powers to take special responsibility to see that the first initiatives toward a solution were taken in a spirit of justice and peace.

INVESTIGATION ASKED

JFK probe challenged

NEW ORLEANS — The Metropolitan Crime Commission of New Orleans called today for an exhaustive state investigation of the manner in which Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison has conducted his Kennedy assassination probe.

If the statements made on a National Broadcasting Co. television program Monday night are true, the commission said, "the people of New Orleans are without basis for confidence in the laws of the state.

"On the contrary, there is reason for fear that anyone may be charged and prosecuted, based upon contrived false evidence," the commission said.

The commission urged Louisiana Atty. Gen. Jack Gremlion to name a special, select committee of lawyers "to conduct a full investigation."

The commission said in its letter to Gremlion that NBC had alleged through various persons that Garrison's probe included a series of attempts "to induce persons to give false testimony or to withhold pertinent facts, under promise of reward or threat of recrimination."

China's cultural revolt: pragmatism vs. doctrine

"It is possible to understand the China of today but impossible to predict the outcome of China's cultural revolution," Dean Paul A. Varg of the College of Arts and Letters contends.

Varg gave the keynote address Thursday evening to some 300 high school and college history teachers attending the 14th national Advanced Placement History Conference, meeting through Saturday.

"While historical studies help us to understand present day China, it would be hazardous to insist that nothing is new," he said.

The victory of the Communists in 1949 introduced a kind of puritanical fervor to China's highly nationalistic, anti-Western, and aggressive foreign policy, he explained.

"And the difference is the difference between leavened and unleavened bread," he said.

Also at work shaping contemporary Chinese society and policy, he said, are the tremendous pressures of the population explosion and the "almost accidental loss of Taiwan."

Varg said the cultural revolution can be reasonably interpreted as "an effort to remold communism to fit traditional Chinese values and to jibe with problems peculiar to China."

"Basically, the issue domestically is one of pragmatism versus doctrine," Varg said.

Liu Shao-chi, the president of China, is the pragmatist, said Varg. He has sought to strengthen China industrially and improve the standard of living. He is backed by the labor unions and draws strength from the 13 provincial governors who owe their positions to him.

Chairman Mao Tse-tung and his minister of national defense, Lin Biao, stand on doctrine. "Mao wants a strong China, but he wants more than anything to perpetuate a puritanical and revolutionary spirit," Varg said.

Mao's Red Guard last year successfully blocked concessions to workers' demands for wage increases and peasants' demands for private plots of land on which to raise goods for their own use.

These conflicting points of view on domestic issues have direct bearing on methods to be used to achieve China's foreign policy aims, he said.

These aims in Asia are: to regain control of Taiwan, to establish her predominance in Asia, to drive the U.S. out of Asia, to keep India in a weakened state, and to oppose any agreement that would prohibit the spread of nuclear weapons.

"The pragmatists," said Varg, "would prefer some kind of accommodation with the Soviet Union so that China could get economic and military aid for a strong drive against the United States in Vietnam."

"Mao and Lin Biao place emphasis on guerrilla warfare rather than on the army and more traditional military methods."

Finance office may handle scholarships

Students with scholarship aid may frequent the Financial Aids and Withdrawal office this fall instead of the Admissions and Scholarships office.

With this proposed structure change, only scholarships for incoming freshmen and transfer students would be handled through the Admissions and Scholarships office.

Henry C. Dykema, director of financial aids, said this proposed change will be presented to the Board of Trustees at their July meeting. Dykema said he anticipates adoption by the board.

"This change would make it easier to determine what combination of loans, grants, jobs, or scholarships a student might need," said Dykema. "We can get the whole picture from one office."

Dykema stressed that scholarship adjustments and renewals for present students would be handled through the Financial Aids and Withdrawals office.

Fleming on engineering high school counseling that encourages other areas and competition from the other disciplines on campus.

Only better guidance can solve the problems, Fleming said, because otherwise undemocratic controls will be the only way to efficiently allocate students to subjects.

Fleming suggested that greater unity among the 16 organizations for engineering education would better manage their influences.

Also, he said, a campaign to attract coeds into engineering would greatly improve enrollment, grade-point and other statistics of the college. With their potential and a change in social pressure to allow it to be used, female engineering students could add a lot to the field.

Armed forces personnel who did not go to college but who have demonstrable abilities should be sought out and made aware of their potential, he said. And an improvement in high school math training might also attract more people to technical fields.

Finally, computer selection of sympathetic sources in Letters and Sciences might also provide a few engineering majors, though other deans might cry poaching, he chuckled.

For the baccalaureate engineer, Fleming proposed enriched graduate schools. A large number of engineers who have drifted into management want M.B.A. degrees. These people don't need engineering refreshers, he said, just a lot of management and the schools ought to give it to them.

Fleming noted problems in his graduate proposals: --Should advanced courses be subsidized as regular student education is? How much? Where should students stay, now that they're married and middle-aged and not rootless, independent bachelors like most undergrads? And can a school afford to send a company president home with an F?

--The extra load burdens already overloaded facilities. Perhaps the sessions should take place elsewhere, but where? And who will teach who won't be taken away from other teaching or research?

"History will say, I hope," Fleming concluded, "that the engineer improved not only his surroundings but also the human society."

Ice skaters start session at MSU rink

MSU's annual Summer Ice Session, sanctioned by the United States Figure Skating Association and sponsored by the Lansing Skating Club, gets underway Saturday with 136 amateur skaters from the United States and Canada in attendance.

Ice arena manager Norris Wold said that the enrollment was completely filled for the program that runs until August 27.

The purpose of the summer ice session is to train amateur figure skaters for national, world, olympic and similar competition. The staff of teachers includes Pierre Brunet, of the New York Skating Club; W.H. Bainbridge, Jr., of the Lansing Skating Club; Don Stewart, of Stewart's Ice Skating Studio in Detroit; Beryl Williamson, of the Lansing Skating Club; and Frank Muckian of the Boston Skating Club.

There also will be public skating during the summer. Hours for public skating are 8:15-10 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and from 3-5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Skating shows will be staged for the public on July 12, 26 and August 16.
