South Viets must fight own war - Romney

From the Associated Press

Gov. George Romney called Tuesday for more South Vietnamese participation in the war in Vietnam.

"There has been too much substitution of American for Vietnamese effort," he told a news conference.

Romney, considered one of the leading contenders for the Republican presidential nomination in 1968, took his strongest stand to date on the war as he said:

"It is time realistically to recognize that a solution of this conflict depends on the South Vietnamese doing their jobs. We simply cannot do for the South Vietnamese what they must do for themselves," he added.

Romney said he felt little progress had been made in the war in the last six months and compared present U.S.-South Vietnamese casualty rates with those of a year ago.

"Today American casualty rates are much higher than the South Vietnamese," he said, adding the reverse was true a year ago.

Asked if he felt his approach was that of a dove or a hawk, Romney replied that he considered it "a realistic approach."

"It is time to be realistic and to get away from labels," he added.

"The South Vietnamese must demonstrate their willingness and capacity to play the principal role in destroying the Viet Cong infrastructure, instituting the necessary social, economic and political reforms, and winning the loyalty of the South Vietnamese people," Romney said.

"The key to bringing the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese, separately or jointly, to the negotiating table depends on showing that the guerrilla infrastructure can and will be destroyed," he added.

Romney defined the guerrilla infrastructure as the guerrillas themselves and the portion of the South Vietnamese population which supports them.

Pointing out that Gen. William C. Westmoreland and the Joint Chiefs of Staff have asked for more U.S. troops for Vietnam, Romney said that while more troops might be helpful in providing a military security shield for a pacification program, the South Vietnamese security role "must be substantially strengthened."

He urged that the bombing of North Vietnam be concentrated on targets "directly related to the infiltration of men and supplies into South Vietnam."

Romney said his comments on Vietnam should not be interpreted as those of a presidential candidate, adding that "I consider this a subject on which people have been asking me question."

He said he was not advocating a cessation of the bombing of industrial areas of North Vietnam and was not saying that bombing should be limited to the south.

However, he said the Administration had been guilty of "overreaction in military terms with an accompanying and unfortunate growth of feeling among the American people that a purely military solution in Vietnam was possible."

"If continuance of our policy of escalation triggers a wider war with major Soviet and Communist Chinese participation, the Administration must be held accountable," he said.

Faux pas

Royal Ballet stars Rudolf Nureyev (r) and Margot Fonteyn (c), chat in police patrol wagon, enroute to the station after being arrested on narcotics charges in a raid on a hippy pad. The dancers, considered the greatest in the Western world, were charged with visiting a place where narcotics were used, and with disturbing the peace.

Ballet's Nureyev, Fonteyn nabbed at pot party

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Sleek Dame Margot Fonteyn and shaggy Rudolf Nureyev, the world's best-known ballet partners, went on an excursion to Haight-Ashbury early Tuesday and wound up spending five hours in jail.

They, along with 16 others arrested at a noisy party in a shabby flat near Golden Gate Park, must face Municipal Court Wednesday.

The misdemeanor charges are disturbing the peace and visiting a place where marijuana was used.

Maximum penalty is six months on each charge. But no one at the Hall of Justice seemed to believe that the famous dancers would be dealt with harshly.

The district attorney's office said they definitely would be arraigned in court, however.

V.H. Clark, manager of the touring British Royal Ballet, posted bail of $330 each for the two dancers at 8 a.m.

During their five hours in custody they declined all but the barest comments, and Dame Margot maintained an icy smile behind the shield of her white ermine wrap.

Nureyev, needing a shave and with his reddish brown hair tousled, clown and pranced for photographers and spectators.

As a parting shot, he leaned from a taxicab and exclaimed, "What children you are!"

"In England they don't allow the press in the jails," Dame Margot scolded.

Members of the ballet party said they began innocently early Tuesday as they were dining at a fashionable restaurant, Trader Vic's, after Monday night's performance at the Opera House.

Nureyev and Fonteyn were relaxing after a strenuous program that included "The Dream," "Monotones," and "Paradise Lost."

Someone suggested it might be fun to visit the Haight-Ashbury district, habitat of the hippies.

Eight persons piled into two taxicabs and went to the area. The time was approaching 3 a.m. They were attracted by loud music and sounds of revelry from the top floor of a shabby three-story wooden apartment building at 42 Belvedere St.

Someone leaned out a window and invited them in.

Unemployed rate hits 18 month high

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's unemployment rate climbed to four per cent in June for the highest level in 18 months, the Labor Department reported today.

The total number of unemployed last month rose 1.2 million to 3.6 million, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

Asst. Commissioner Harold Goldstein of the bureau said declining employment in goods-producing industries and construction were largely responsible for the jobless increase.

Mac hints that efficiency will solve troop 'shortage'

SAIGON (AP)—Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara Tuesday cited opportunities for increased use of the approximately one million allied servicemen in Vietnam.

This could mean streamlining of rear area operations and transfer of surplus men to front line duty.

McNamara has been asked for more U.S. armed forces in Vietnam. Some additional GIs are expected to be committed to the war, but not the 140,000 Gen. William C. Westmoreland requested.

The defense secretary felt there is too much emphasis on support units and that some of these men could be used more effectively in combat.

The U.S. Command has 80 battalions, with about 40,000 to 50,000 troops normally available for field operations.

Under current procedure it takes about eight Americans to support one front line soldier. The rest include administrative personnel, engineers, transport crewmen, military police, clerks and cooks.

McNamara has pressed for limited integration of Vietnamese troops with American units to get the Saigon government soldiers handling a bigger share of the fighting.

He wound up a five-day inspection tour—his ninth visit to Vietnam—with a news conference at Tan Son Nhut Airport in which he said that, on the question of troops, "our policy hasn't changed."

"It's exactly what it was on July 28 of 1965 when President Johnson announced the plan to add significant numbers of U.S. combat troops to the forces in South Vietnam," McNamara said.

"It was then, it is today and I'm sure it will be in the future, to provide the troops which our commanders consider necessary. Having said that, I want to emphasize a corollary that what is necessary depends on the extent to which we're using effectively the resources we have available to us."

McNamara suggested that opportunities have been bypassed in the rapid expansion of the military force in South Vietnam.

Asked whether he would recommend any changes in the bombing policy against North Vietnam, McNamara declined direct comment, but replied: "I'll simply say that the bombing operations over North Vietnam are achieving their objective."

He said the bombing was reducing the flow of troops and supplies from the North and increasing the cost of that flow, with about 500,000 North Vietnamese men diverted to repair and guard infiltration lines.

Asked the greatest change he had noticed since his last visit nine months ago, McNamara said he saw dramatic progress in South Vietnam's political evolution, great results in actions to curb inflation and continuing progress in the military field.

JERUSALEM DEMAND REJECTED

UN observers in Suez accepted by Israel

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Israel Tuesday rejected a demand by the U.N. General Assembly that it rescind annexation of the Old City of Jerusalem. But the Israelis agreed to posting U.N. observers in the tinderbox Suez area, thus matching a similar step by Egypt.

The twin Israeli moves were disclosed in advance of a resumed session Wednesday of the 122-nation assembly on the Middle East situation. It had recessed a week ago in the hope of resolving a deadlock on resolutions asking Israeli troop withdrawals from Arab territory. No face-saving compromise was in sight.

Secretary-General U Thant made public the Israeli reply to the resolution on Jerusalem adopted by the assembly on July 4 by a vote of 94 to 0, with 10 abstentions.

Abba Eban, the Israeli foreign minister, told Thant by letter that the term "annexation, used by supporters of the resolution, is out of place."

Eban said that civic, social and health measures taken by Israel after wresting the Old City from Jordan in the war "relate to the integration of Jerusalem in the administrative and municipal spheres, and furnish a legal basis for the protection of the holy places of Jerusalem."

Eban was expected to address the assembly in further elaboration of his country's position, but many U.N. diplomats predicted the assembly would adopt another resolution reaffirming opposition to annexation of the Old City.

The Israeli foreign minister declared his government had embarked on a "constructive and detailed dialogue with representatives of universal religious interests."

"If these explorations are as fruitful as we hope and expect, the universal character of the holy places will for the first time in recent decades find effective expression."

He gave this picture of the merged city: "Where there was hostile separation,

3 PLANES SENT TO CONGO

U.S. rescue attempt fails

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—A mercy flight by a U.S. Air Force C-130 transport, intended to rescue civilian hostages held by mutinous mercenaries in the Congo city of Kisangani, failed Tuesday, the Belgian radio said.

There were reports of rising casualties among both Africans and Europeans.

Congo President Joseph D. Mobutu said the hostages in Kisangani—formerly Stanleyville—included women and children, university professors and possibly 20 journalists. The rescue plane was one of three C-130s sent to Mobutu by President Johnson, responding to a Congolese plea for U.S. military aid.

U.S. officials in Washington confirmed the failure of the rescue effort, saying contact could not be made with troops holding the hostages.

Johnson's action in sending the planes touched off sharp criticism in Congress. Responding to it, U.S. officials said the dispatch of the planes fell within presidential powers as commander-in-chief of the armed forces and was justified by similar past interventions in the turbulent former Belgian colony.

In this case, they said, it was further justified by a developing wave of anti-white anger in the big African nation.

There are 3,000 Americans in the Congo, mostly in Kinshasa, the capital. Hundreds, however, are in outlying primitive areas—teachers, missionaries, government officials and businessmen.

Informed sources in Brussels said more than 80 persons, Africans and Europeans, had died in the past week in Kisangani area fighting between the Congolese national army and rebellious mercenaries.

Belgian Foreign Ministry officials, trying to obtain confirmations, said they feared there were an important number of deaths in Kisangani.

The Congolese Press Agency said Col. Bob Denard, a Frenchman who led the Kisangani rebels, was seriously wounded and flown to Rhodesia last week. The agency, as quoted by the Belgian radio, said Denard commanded the 6th white commando unit of the Congolese national army in Kisangani.

An old hand in the Congo, Denard was there when the troubles began just after independence in 1960, fighting for seces-

HAIR-RAZING!!!

'The Saga of the Clipped Coiffure', or what separates the girls from the boys

By ROBERTA YAFIE
State News Staff Writer

Salim, of the Joan Jewett Salon, is perhaps the man in East Lansing most responsible for making girls look like little boys.

In this, the Age of Twiggy, women are shedding long locks for half-inch sideburns and clean-shaven necks.

Back in the barber shop, it's the boys who are letting their hair down.

While a woman may stop in to see Salim once every two or three weeks, normal haircutting time for most men, the boys let their locks go for as long as a month and a half.

Bob Ridenour, of the Red Cedar Barber Shop, calls men fussier than women when it comes to haircuts.

Ed Pettit, of the Campus Barber Shop, said that most guys ask to have a quarter-inch cut, some venturing a half-inch if they're really desperate. Most of them don't even comb it, he noted.

Reese Olger, owner of Reese's Barber Shop, agreed that the frequency of haircuts has gone down considerably.

Sideburns are taboo for barber's shears, he said. He noted that most of his long-haired customers want all the curl taken out, preferring their hair as straight as they can get it.

Just as women have passed up teased hair and hair spray for the short, straight natural look, men have turned away from hair tonics, Olger said that some shudder at the use of water.

"One guy didn't want us to use a comb when we cut his hair," he said. "We had to flunk out on that one."

Loyde Crosser, of the Big Ten Barber Shop, said that many of his customers have shied away from barbers because they tend to disregard their customer's wishes, cutting away rather than modestly trimming.

When it comes to tending to his long-haired customers, Crosser follows a policy of trimming it up and thinning it out.

He noted that he turned away one chap because his hair was too long and dirty.

Loyal Dean, owner of Dean's Barber Shop, calls some of his most hair-conscious customers those in the 8-14 year bracket.

"Only about 20 per cent of my business is students," he said. "The rest are East Lansing residents. Most go for the medium length. The younger boys are the ones who like to let their hair grow longer."

The trend, according to the barbers, is toward shorter hair. Olger said that this is quite evident during the summer, but feels that it will also prevail in the coming year.

Dean feels that the boys are getting tired of long hair. He cited junior high and high school students as moving toward medium lengths.

Pettit said that he does get a few female customers, but they generally want their bangs trimmed or their long hair shaped. He remarked that often his customer's girl friend's hair is shorter than that of the boy in the chair.

If boys do, indeed, turn back to shorter cuts, we may have troubles. Leading fashion designer Bill Blass, who put women in pant suits, has been designing kilts for the men. It could cause a sexual revolution.

Congolese involvement a mistake?

While already heavily committed in Vietnam and maintaining a watchful eye on the Middle East, the United States has become involved with the turmoil in the Congo.

Three military transport planes have been sent to the Congo to ferry Congolese troops and military supplies to staging points near rebellion sites in the eastern section. The 150 men accompanying the planes are listed as non-combatant troops sent solely to guard and service the planes.

A State Department spokesman said the operation is consistent with American support for the "territorial integrity and unity of the Congo."

The suggestion has been made that President Johnson ordered the logistic support to flatter our image in Africa by dramatic backing of the Congolese central government which presently enjoys widespread support among African states.

Whether to reinforce U.S. standing in Africa or to offset any Communist efforts, the executive move sparked anger from both Democrats and Republicans who expressed fears of a Vietnam-type involvement in Africa, or worse.

Senator Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., declaring it a local matter in which the U.S. has no right to intervene, said, "If a single American boy is killed in the Congo, this thing will swell and swell."

Senator Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said he was "shocked, surprised and dismayed" by the President's action. Meanwhile two representatives called for immediate withdrawal of U.S. military men from the Congo.

The question remains, however, do we have any vital concerns at stake in Africa? And if we do, are they worth another military commitment?

It would seem our interests are more vital in the Middle East than in the Congo, yet the U.S. has shown remarkable restraint in the Israel-Egypt crisis by refusing to become an active participant.

In view of the 465,000 troops presently in Vietnam and a possible increase of up to 200,000 on the horizon, the United States could rapidly become over-committed around the world.

Ironically, our involvement in the Congo appears similar to our original assistance in Vietnam when the U.S. began sending money and military aid to help the South Vietnamese government squelch the rebellious Viet Cong.

Will our next step be to send military advisers to assist the Congolese government?

NORM SPIERLING

Hershey shows his 73 years

The Director of the Selective Service System is a nearly-blind 73-year-old general with little contact with the generation he chooses draftees from.

Louis B. Hershey talked for 45 minutes longer than the scheduled end of the interview I had with him last week, apparently because he had no business after it.

His assistants gave him as little to read as possible because he has one plastic eye and a massive, growing cataract in the other. His glasses correct for nearsightedness but he still has to hold something right in front of his nose to read it, and then only if the print is large.

He speaks rapidly, dictates on a tape recorder at home, and has his aides read to him when a report is long or in small print. Most of the duties of his headquarters office are assumed by assistants and the General does a lot of traveling to see state and local draft boards.

Hershey was not wearing a uniform when interviewed, but a business suit and ruffled shoes. His office can seat about 20 or 30 people and is decorated with all the state flags. It is on the top floor of an office building near the White House and has a good view which he can no longer see.

One has the impression that Hershey is hanging on to his job, though the reason is not clear. He was automatically retired in 1953 when he reached 69, but President Eisenhower recalled him to active service one minute later in a pre-arranged ceremony.

While his job might technically be one of administering a system other people design, actually the persuasive powers of the Director of the Selective Service System, as the foremost authority on the subject, are very important. The man exercising that power of recommendation is showing his age.

THE READERS' MIND

Reports from Nigeria too simple?

To the Editor:

I wish to protest what now appears to be an established custom of American journalism of invariably casting all political conflicts elsewhere into the convenient pattern of good guys versus bad guys.

True to this unfortunate custom, the news dispatches which you have relayed from your "wire services" have consistently reduced the Nigerian-Biafran conflict to a fight between "government" and "rebel" forces.

Those Americans in this community who have lived in Nigeria and therefore have an idea of what is going on there will surely be amused at the irony of referring to the Biafran troops as rebels while the mutinous hordes from Northern Nigeria are labeled as "loyal government troops." One would have thought that the special ties between this university and the University of Biafra (formerly U. of Nigeria) and the presence here of a sizable number of West African students might have prompted you all this time to try to write a special news analysis of the political crisis there with a view to helping your readers towards an intelligent understanding of political developments in that part of the world.

The fact is that the decision on May 30th of 14 million Eastern Nigerians (now Biafrans) to pull away from that mass of political chaos called Nigeria is not a rebellion against anybody. It is rather the solemn exercise of their God-given right of self-determination. Biafra will continue to exist so long as there are Biafrans living, even if we have to spend the rest of our lives in a war of national liberation.

Time killers infiltrate business

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK — No art is as widespread in American business life as the art of killing time.

It is an art which isn't taught in school or university. One has to pick it up by one's self, largely by watching how fellow office workers do it.

It takes a lot of time to become skilled in killing company time. In this respect it is like piano playing—practice makes perfect.

The nice thing about it is that you get paid while learning it. And it isn't as lonely to work at as most arts. Everybody in the place is at least a part-time killer, and some even give their full endeavor to it. The ambusher hangs around the water cooler telling old jokes to all who amble up to cool their thirsty pipes. On a good day he wastes not only his own time but the time of from 15 to 20 other persons.

The Receptionist—With her, killing time is less an art than an industry. She does it by reading long novels. She can't decide which is her favorite — "Anthony Adverse," which she has read 12 times, or "Gone with the Wind," which she had gone through 17 times. If nothing else is handy, she reads the "Boston Cookbook."

The Vice President—Nobody knows what vice presidents do. It's a trade secret, and they want to keep it that way. What they actually do is exchange important-looking letters with vice presidents of other firms. A really smart vice president by merely changing the salutation from "Bill" to "Joe" or "Bascumb," can get by with the same letter for 20 years.

The Great Pretender is a fussy dynamo always in action, scribbling furiously on memopads, opening and closing his desk drawers, pawing through files. He looks dramatic but never gets anything done. If the office ever gave an Oscar for acting, he'd win it every year.

The Do-Gooder—Her forte is taking up office collections for worthy causes. "The bookkeeper's wife has the mumps," she says brightly. "Don't you want to kick in 50 cents for flowers?" She can kill a day raising funds for a small cause, but what she likes best are big humanitarian projects that take up a whole week.

UAW-FORD OPEN TALKS

Profit-sharing a must, Reuther says

DETROIT — Walter P. Reuther opened contract talks with Ford Motor Co. Tuesday saying his United Auto Workers union would strike if necessary to win a profit-sharing plan this year.

He called the plan essential to a peaceful settlement of the 1967 auto-labor contract negotiations and termed it "a rational and sensible method of determining equity for workers."

The emphasis Reuther placed on profit sharing elevated it to the level of a handful of other major demands both sides of the bargaining table privately rate high in strike potential.

His action surprised some since the UAW's prebargaining convention last April didn't list profit sharing as one of this summer's goals. Reuther added it to the list Monday in opening contract talks at General Motors Corp., largest of the Big Three automakers.

But not until Tuesday, at a crowded news conference in Ford's offices in suburban Dearborn, did Reuther reveal how determined he was to win the goal the UAW repeatedly has failed to achieve at the Big Three since the 1950s.

"If Ford workers are going to get their full measure of equity, they have got to get their slice of the profit pie," he said. "This is the area where our equity is shortchanged the most."

Asked if the UAW would strike to win profit sharing, Reuther said: "We don't like to talk about a strike at this juncture. Our fervent hope is that we can achieve a satisfactory and equitable settlement without a strike."

"But in a free society, workers have the right to withhold their labor power to achieve equity. Profit sharing is an essential part of equity, and we intend to win equity this year."

Profit sharing became a part of the UAW contract at American Motors Corp. in 1961, but the smallest automaker has had no profit to share since the first two years.

Malcolm L. Denise, vice president-labor relations and Ford's top negotiator, had no comment on the profit sharing plan. He said he hoped for an agreement that would be "fair across the board and does not favor one group to the detriment of other."

But other executives, speaking privately, said, "We opposed it in 1961, and it would be reasonable to speculate that we would again."

Reuther said Ford had led the nation since 1947 in expanded net capital worth, climbing from $700 million to $5 billion, "and 99.3 per cent of that capital growth was financed from profits." After the news conference, Reuther and about two dozen bargaining aides moved to the glossy, 25-yard long negotiation table in a Ford conference room.

Smiling and acknowledging greetings, Reuther saw the Ford bargaining team entering the room and cracked, "Where's the blare of the trumpets?"

As the two teams faced each other across the table, four feet wide in the middle, Reuther joked again: "They made it wider so they wouldn't have to shake hands with us."

Then he and Denise moved to an end of the table for the traditional opening handshake, repeated several times for photographers.

"The table gets bigger just like our demands," Reuther joked, obviously enjoying his return as a labor power to the company that fired him from a tool and die job 30 years ago for engaging in union activity.

Reuther opens contract talks with Chrysler, third member of the Big Three, today. He said details would be made available then on some of the UAW proposals, all of which have been only sketchily revealed so far.

Both sides claim Nigerian victories

LAGOS, Nigeria — Nigeria and secessionist Biafra claimed successes Tuesday on the sixth day of the civil war.

The Nigerian government said its forces had killed white mercenaries fighting with the secessionists and had captured arms made in Czechoslovakia.

The U.S. Embassy was skeptical of the report on the mercenaries because it said it did not believe any were fighting on the side of Biafra's ground forces.

The embassy expressed concern, however, over a report that an American was flying in an old, U.S.-made B-26 for Biafra.

Meanwhile, a secessionist broadcast said Biafra troops were advancing on all fronts.

A government statement said the white mercenaries were among three companies of 300 men destroyed last weekend. It put government casualties at 6 dead and 12 wounded.

The government newspaper,

New Nigerian of Kaduna in northern Nigeria, said 10 mercenaries had been killed when the three companies were wiped out near Nsukka, 15 miles inside Biafra.

Nsukka is considered the gateway to Biafra's capital at Enugu, 49 miles to the south. The government claimed Nsukka was under siege and was being shelled.

The New Nigerian said a senior officer in the Biafra army had defected. He was named as Brig. George Kurubo, who had been logistics officer for Lt. Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu's regime in Biafra. Kurubo, who commanded Nigeria's air force until last August, fled when an army uprising brought Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon to power in Nigeria.

Ojukwu, the Eastern region's military governor, proclaimed his region the independent nation of Biafra May 30. He claimed Gowon's regime had not treated his region fairly.

A government spokesman denied that Nigeria had asked the United States for military assistance. He said the U.S. government apparently had denied Nigeria permission to receive arms requested some time ago.

SDS to meet

No. 1 target in the legislation is Stokely Carmichael, militant Negro activist.

Cramer called Carmichael "a free-lance insurrectionist" and said he has made frequent appearances in cities that were later torn by racial riots.

The Students for a Democratic Society will meet in Room 34 of the Union tonight at 8:30. Topics will be the summer program and draft resistance.

N.L. wins in extra innings

Tony Perez breaks All-Star deadlock

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI)—Tony Perez, Cincinnati's 25-year-old third baseman who wasn't even sure of a job this year and got into the All-Star Game only as a late-inning replacement, powered the National League to its fifth straight victory Tuesday with a 15th-inning homer that sank the American League, 2-1.

Perez' 375-foot line smash over the leftfield fence came on the first pitch off loser Jim (Catfish) Hunter with one out in the 15th and dramatically ended the longest game in All-Star history. Ironically, Perez entered the game in the 10th inning as the third base replacement for Richie Allen, who provided the National League with its first run on a homer in the second inning off American League starter Dean Chance.

Pitchers dominated the marathon 3-hour and 41-minute contest in which a record 30 strikeouts were chalked up, 17 by National League pitchers and 13 by American.

The winners collected only nine hits off six pitchers while the American League was held to eight, one of which was Brooks Robinson's sixth-inning homer off Chicago Cub righthander Ferguson Jenkins.

The Nationals, 13-10 favorites because of their supposed hitting edge, now have not lost a single extra-inning game in the mid-summer classic, extending their record in that category to five. It also was their ninth victory in the last 10 games and their 20th overall against 17 losses and one tie.

The victory went to Don Drysdale of the Los Angeles Dodgers who pitched two-innings of shut-out ball. But it was young Tom Seaver of the New York Mets who shut the door on the Americans, winding it up by striking out Ken Berry of the Chicago White Sox.

Perez, as might have been expected, was the overwhelming choice as the game's most valuable player.

Perez, a native of Santurce, Puerto Rico, went to the Reds' spring training camp this year looking for a job. He battled Lee May all spring long for the first baseman's job and wasn't named No. 1 until opening day by manager Dave Bristol.

Grand slam wins for 'S' Batsmen

Bill Wooley hit an inside-the-park grand-slam home run in the bottom half of the eighth inning to break a 3-3 tie and give MSU a 7-3 victory over Hartley Printing of Lansing.

The first runs of the ball game came in the third inning when Hartley scored twice.

Rich Jordan, Spartan right fielder, singled in the third inning for his team's first hit of the game. Jordan stole second and third but was left on base.

MSU's first run came in the fourth inning to make the score 2-1, MSU still trailing.

Jordan led off with a double in the fifth but the Spartans were again unable to score.

Mel Knapp, MSU pitcher, struck out three in a row in the sixth for another scoreless inning of play.

Hartley's final run came in the seventh making the score 3-1, Hartley.

However, in the seventh, Jordan walked, then stole second and third. A single by Lewis brought Jordan home, and the Spartans tightened the gap to 3-2.

In the eighth, Jordan singled to drive in Dick Twilley, Spartan catcher, with the tying run.

Wooley's grand slam then finished off the Lansing team.

The Spartans now hold a 2-0 won-lost record.

3rd coach at Illinois resigns job

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI)—Bob Herndon Tuesday became the third member of the football coaching staff which Pete Elliott brought to the University of Illinois to resign.

Herndon said he had accepted a coaching assignment with Oregon State. He apparently will replace Don Easterbrook, who is leaving Oregon to take a post with the Illini.

Since Elliott was forced to resign in the wake of a "slush fund" scandal, Back McPhail and Bill Taylor have also left the Illinois football staff.

Gene Stauber is the only Elliott-appointed coach still on the staff headed by Elliott's successor, Jim Bakke.

Bills trade ex-Spartan Behrman

DENVER (UPI)—The Denver Broncos of the American Football League today obtained Lineman Dave Behrman from the Buffalo Bills in exchange for a fourth-round draft choice next year.

The 6-4, 263-pound Behrman was the top draft choice of Buffalo of the AFL and the Chicago Bears of the National Football League in 1962. The trade is dependent upon the 25-year-old Behrman making the Bronco squad.

Behrman missed the Bills' 1966 season with an injury. He was Buffalo's regular center in 1965. He also missed the 1964 season with an injury.

He started his pro career in 1963, after being selected as an All-American lineman at Michigan State.

BACK WITH ST. LOUIS

Lucas all ready to go

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Editor

Harold Lucas says he'll stay with the St. Louis football Cardinals this time.

The former Spartan player, who walked out of the Cardinals' training camp last summer, has agreed to terms with the Cardinals and will officially sign a contract today.

"Yes, I'll stay with them," Lucas said from his home in Detroit. "I'm going to fly down to St. Louis Wednesday to sign and report to their training camp."

Lucas spurned a reported five-year, $250,000 contract last season after the Cardinals picked him as their second draft choice in 1966. He quit the team when St. Louis Coach Charlie Winner ordered Lucas to lose about 25 pounds.

Lucas had reported to the Cardinals' summer camp weighing nearly 300 pounds.

No contract terms were released, but Lucas' attorney, Norman McIntire, who has been handling all of the negotiations with the Cardinals, said it was less than those in the original contract.

Lucas, who played three years as a middle guard for the Spartans at 285 pounds, told Winner that he now weighed 287 pounds.

"I don't have a weight problem like last year," Lucas said.

"I talked to Harold on the telephone Monday," Winner said from his Cardinal office in St. Louis.

"I welcomed him back to the club and told him that we were happy to have him with us."

Winner expressed satisfaction that Lucas was keeping his weight down.

The weight problem was the biggest factor in Lucas' quitting the Cardinals last summer, prompting him to say, "I just don't think football is fun anymore."

"If he's down to 287, he shouldn't have too much problem getting down to his playing weight," Winner said. "He won't be going on any special weight program or special drills."

"I plan to judge Harold on himself—not what happened last season."

Winner said the Cardinals plan to use Lucas as a defensive tackle. He expects Lucas to have little or no difficulty adjusting to the position.

"We didn't get a real good chance to look at Harold last season," Winner said. "He wasn't there long enough."

"But I'm real happy to have him back. He's a big strong boy. And anybody like him you just don't want to overlook."

The Cardinals open their summer training session for rookies today at Forest College in Lake Forest, Ill. The veterans don't report until July 21.

"We'll give Harold the same physical

Harold Lucas: at weigh-in examination and check up as the rest of the rookies," Winner said.

"But I will establish a playing weight for Harold. Last year I worked with him on it and I expect to do the same this year if he has any problem."

It appeared as if Lucas was through with football until early June, when he notified Cardinal officials that he was interested in returning.

Clay, Liston seek permits to fight in California

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Both Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston are seeking licenses to fight in California, it was disclosed Tuesday.

Liston's application had been known earlier, but Bob Turley, executive secretary of the California Athletic Commission, said Clay also was seeking California permission to fight.

"The applications are independent of each other," Turley said. "So far as I know, neither knows the other is applying for a California license."

Both applications will be considered Wednesday at the commission's regular monthly meeting in Sacramento.

A Clay-Liston fight had been promoted for Los Angeles in 1963 but the California Athletic Commission said it would not license Liston because it did not like his managerial connections at the time. The bout finally was held in Miami Beach Feb. 25, 1964, with Clay beating Liston for the heavyweight title.

Clay's heavyweight title was stripped from him by the World Boxing Assn. and the New York State Athletic Commission when he refused induction into the armed forces.

California's commission took no action in Clay's case because Clay had never been licensed in California.

The commission said it expects an appeal in Clay's behalf at the Wednesday meeting by the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE). Clay has said he wants to give his future income to the Negro battle for equality.

Liston, who also was refused a New York state license because of his managers' backgrounds, said he now is without managers and handles his own business.

Adm. Sharp hits GOP war plan

HONOLULU — The commander of U.S. forces in the Pacific has taken strong exception to a suggestion by a group of Republican congressmen that the United States attempt a unilateral de-escalation of the Vietnam war.

Adm. U.S. Grant Sharp told newsmen he believes the de-escalation proposal is "a poor idea." He said that when you are winning militarily and applying the pressure, you don't "take the heat off."

Sharp returned to Honolulu from Vietnam Monday, accompanied by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in the war-torn country. Westmoreland is en route to Columbia, S.C., to attend the funeral of his mother.

Westmoreland said of the Vietnam political situation that there is "considerable internal controversy" in Saigon, "but the Vietnamese are making a steady and remarkable progress toward constitutional democracy."

RR union hints at strike

WASHINGTON — Railroad Union leaders told Congress Tuesday they will not withdraw their pledge against a nationwide railroad strike unless the Senate and House agree soon on proposed legislation.

"Our members' need and deserve a substantial wage increase and they are getting very restless," said Joseph Ramsey of the six-union negotiating committee.

"The railroads have stalled this issue for 14 months and they are still stalling, hoping Congress will enact compulsory arbitration," Ramsey said in a letter to congressional leaders.

He said the unions are not now setting a strike date, but will withdraw their no-strike pledge if a Senate-House conference committee makes no progress by the end of this week on confining the scope of a potential rail strike legislation.

RUST COLLEGE SHARES

Negro schools get aid

A $1.1 million Ford Foundation program to aid 52 Southern Negro colleges, including Rust College, Holly Springs, Miss., to break out of their academic isolation will begin sometime this fall, a foundation spokesman said Tuesday.

Although details are reported still incomplete, Rust could receive from $2,000 to $5,545 to help establish cooperative ties with the University of Mississippi.

Rust is the site each summer for a five-week project conducted by a group of MSU student-volunteers. The project is aimed at upgrading the basic learning skills of incoming freshmen. The program, called the Student Tutorial Education Project (STEP), began its third summer session there June 18.

The Ford program, reported Friday by the New York Times, is expected to lead to strengthening academic programs through mergers and cooperative arrangements with nearby predominantly white colleges.

Although the first foundation allocation is relatively small, James W. Armsey, a foundation officer in charge of the upgrading project, stressed that the new grants are merely "a first step."

Self-studies of the institutions' existing operation are to be used to determine the sources of weakness and to bring about action for reforms, the Times reported.

To break the cycle of low academic quality, the foundation said, perpetuated by the hiring (at Negro colleges) of ill-prepared faculty members who are the product of low-quality segregated schools and deficient training in Negro colleges, the project will also stress advanced study for the teaching staffs of these colleges.

In line with earlier policy statements by McGeorge Bundy, foundation president, foundation dollars are to be used to plan specific projects that will open the way to more federal support. Up to now, Rust College had been unable to secure foundation funds because it is unaccredited.

F. Champion Ward, foundation

vice president, said:

"This effort is problem-centered, emphasizing specific action where conditions are favorable on such matters as faculty development, curriculum improvement, library development (a particular problem at Rust) compensatory education, administration and student services by colleges, both singly and in cooperation with others."

The Times reported the assignment to the project of Armsey, the former head of the foundation's largest higher education project, indicates the high priority given to the new project.

There are about 120 Negro colleges in the South, which still enroll more than half of 200,000 Negro undergraduates in the United States. Although a handful of these institutions have long been considered of acceptable academic quality, the level of many Negro colleges remains low.

The Southern Education Foundation, located in Atlanta, Ga., will receive $361,600 of the grant and allocate to each college on the basis of their proposed programs for reform and self-study. Participating Negro colleges were chosen, a spokesman said, on the basis of their proximity to a predominantly white college. Rust College is about 35 miles northwest of the Oxford campus of the University of Mississippi.

ONLY BY GRADES?

Profs-pupils loosely linked

By LINDA GORTMAKER
State News Staff Writer

Grades sometimes seem the only connector between faculty and students, a Florida State University professor of higher education said Tuesday.

"One student said he felt like a B-minus walking around on two legs," quipped Kievene D. Hardee, also a visiting professor at MSU of counseling, personnel services and educational psychology.

Discussing "The Role of the Faculty," Miss Hardee described in detail the modern teacher and his role as a faculty adviser.

She spoke to 50 deans and assistant deans attending the National Defense Education Act (NDEA) Counseling and Guidance Institute at MSU financed by a grant from the U.S. Office of Education.

Calling teaching a "deceptively simple task," Miss Hardee urged teachers to recollect past history while also sensing the timelessness of learning.

They should recapture the spirit of learning and an interest in learning, she said. An understanding of when to withdraw and re-enter the learning process also promotes effective teaching.

Miss Hardee cited four teacher categories which she felt frequently were "too restrictive and would hate to be classified as one of these types." These include the "Teacher," or dedicated, romantic Mr. Chips image; the "Scholar-Researcher," only concerned with theory; the "Practical Applicator," accompanying the growing professionalism and vocationalism in colleges; and the "Consultant" or "big-time professional with the motto 'have briefcase - will travel.'"

Miss Hardee said she believes the professor's image has changed considerably and that faculty members, like students, seek identities.

"The faculty member today is less of an ambling shaggy dog and more of an organization man," she contended.

Relating faculty to students, Miss Hardee classified faculty advising as either "anemic or thriving."

"The advising role is proper for faculty members under certain conditions," she said, followed by a detailed recommendation for successful faculty advising programs.

Chief administrators in the university must vocally support the program.

"To prevent ecto-plasmic advising or splattering all over, there must be a clear-cut definition of the faculty adviser's role," Miss Hardee continued.

Other criteria for a good advising program included careful selection of faculty advisers, a flexible but structured system and recognition of advisers' contributions with either class load reductions or monetary rewards.

MSU pianist in recital

Alfred Fisher, doctoral candidate in music, will present a public piano recital at the Music Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. July 19.

The recital, a highlight of MSU's 12th annual Piano Teachers Conference, will feature an original composition by the recitalist and numbers by Mozart, Schoenberg, Beethoven and Liszt.

Fisher received his early musical training in his native Boston and was graduated from Boston University. He received his Master of Music degree from MSU, where he recently has been awarded a College of Arts and Letters doctoral fellowship.

He has also studied at the University of Kansas, the University of Colorado and Colby College. His teachers include Pierre Luboshutz, MSU artist-in-residence, David Burge and Alfred Kanwischer.

Irradiation study draws food experts

By MARTIN BLOCK

Twenty scientists from around the world are participating in a unique course at MSU designed to show how food irradiation can be used to preserve and improve the quality of food products.

The eight-week course, which began June 18, is offered by the Food Sciences Dept. and sponsored by two United Nations agencies, the International Atomic Energy Agency and the Food and Agricultural Organization. Sessions are held in the Food Science Building.

Countries represented in the International Training Course on Food Irradiation Technology and Techniques are Argentina, Australia, Brazil, Bulgaria, Chile, Republic of China, Czechoslovakia, Greece, India, Iran, Israel, Italy, New Zealand, Peru, Philippines, Romania, Spain, Thailand, Turkey and Venezuela.

According to Walter M. Urbain, program director, the course is an effort to give representatives of other countries the current knowledge on food irradiation so that they can undertake research in their countries.

Urbain, professor of Food Sciences, said irradiation can be used to delay sprouting and maturation in living crops, control insects and parasites and control microorganisms that cause food spoilage.

Irradiation, Urbain said, is analogous to present methods of food preservation using heat. Irradiation can preserve foods temporarily by "pasteurization" and indefinitely by "sterilization." The difference is in the exposure to radiation and in the packaging of the food.

No danger exists, Urbain said, from the consumption of irradiated foods. He said after the radioactive source is removed, the food is no longer "hot."

Extensive research has been done in the United States on the effects of the consumption of irradiated food over long periods of time. More work still needs to be done, Urbain said, and it should be at least five years before irradiated foods will be marketed.

Some progress has been made. Irradiated bacon, developed by the Army, that will last indefinitely, was approved by the Federal Drug Administration in 1963.

The foreign scientists are hearing reports from 29 irradiation specialists from throughout the United States and Canada who are associated with government and industry.

Besides Urbain, six other MSU staff members will participate. They are Bernard S. Schweigert, Food Science department chairman, Pericles Markakis, Georg Borgstrom, Richard V. Lechowich, Bruce Wilkinson, chemical engineer, and Warren H. Malchman of the Department of Public Safety.

In addition, the course will include tours of the Department of Food Science Co-60 irradiator, the Radiation Laboratory resonant transformer and electron beam generator, the University of Michigan's Phoenix Nuclear Institute, Kellogg Company, Gerber Products Company, Dow Chemical Company's chemical irradiation process and the Atomic Energy of Canada, Ltd.'s portable irradiator.

Political spending hit off-year high

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Democrats outspending Republicans, political candidates paid $32 million to radio and television stations for advertising in the 1966 campaign, a record for an off-year election, the Federal Communications Commission reported Monday.

As a gauge of the increasing costs of running for office — local, state and national — last year's political broadcasting bill was 60 per cent over the $20 million spent in the previous non-presidential election year of 1962, according to the FCC survey.

In the 1964 presidential election year broadcasting station charges were $34.6 million — with $12.8 million spent on the presidential and vice presidential races.

The FCC found that of the $32 million bill in 1966, $12.3 million was spent in primary contests and $19.7 million in the general election.

Democrats spent one and a half times as much as the Republicans — $18.5 million to $12.2 million. Third party and nonpartisan candidate spending accounted for some $1.2 million.

The figures were developed from a questionnaire sent to all radio and television stations. It includes costs to political candidates and their supporters, but not costs for programs or announcements on issues such as referenda, schools bonds, and the like.

All of the 1966 increase over 1962 spending was accounted for in charges for spot announcements.

SN slips its prepositions

A State News story Tuesday said the Michigan Senate had proposed an appropriations bill that would raise out-of-state student tuition by 75%.

Instead, the story should have said that out-of-state students would be paying 75% of their education costs under the Senate bill. Such an increase would hold term tuition to $400. Presently out-of-staters pay $1,020 per year.

Parcel service goes 6 days

WASHINGTON (AP) — Parcel post deliveries six days a week, instead of five, were ordered Tuesday for nearly 5,000 cities.

First-class post offices, as well as a few of the larger second-class offices, are affected, the Post Office Department said.

Parcel post deliveries in the cities had been six days a week until May, 1964, when they were cut to five days in an economy move.

Concert duo

Cellist, Zara Nelsova and pianist Grant Johannesen will be heard in concert Thursday, 8:15 p.m., in the Auditorium as part of the MSU Fine Arts Festival.

Cello-piano duo in concert here

The celebrated cello-piano team of Zara Nelsova and Grant Johannesen will be heard in concert at 8:15 p.m., July 20, in the Auditorium as part of the eighth annual Fine Arts Festival. Johannesen, an internationally recognized concert pianist, has performed with major U.S. symphony orchestras and has been featured on the Bell Telephone Hour and an NBC documentary, "The Tanglewood Story."

Russian-born Miss Nelsova made her debut with the London Symphony at the age of 12. She frequently appears as a soloist with the symphony orchestras of New York, Boston, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Indianapolis, Los Angeles and Dallas.

Among the works they will perform are "Sonata No. 1 in E Minor" by Brahms; "Sonata" by Poulenc; "Sonata" by Debussy, and "Sonata in G Minor, Opus 65" by Chopin.

All Fine Arts Festival concerts are open to the public without charge.

TRUCK CONVOY HIT

Mac says bombings achieve purpose

SAIGON (AP) -- U.S. Phantom jets destroyed or damaged 38 North Vietnamese supply trucks in an attack before dawn Tuesday on a convoy northeast of Mu Gia Pass, the Air Force announced.

Official word of the results of the raid on the convoy came out after Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara had remarked at a news conference the bombing operations over North Vietnam "are achieving their objective" of reducing the flow of Communist troops and supplies. Mu Gia Pass is the main gateway for North Vietnamese supplies routed across the mountains to the Ho Chi Minh trail through Communist-dominated eastern Laos for Red combat units in South Vietnam.

Maj. John Blackwell of Fort Walton Beach, Fla., spotted headlights moving along the road, then led a strike force that blasted the convoy with rockets and bombs. "There was no moonlight," Blackwell said. "But we hit four or five of them on our first pass and got secondary explosions and large fires. Then we dropped flares along the route which revealed another 60 or so trucks. They were still moving when we made our passes at them."

U.S. pilots flew a total of 138 missions Monday over North Vietnam, including several against suspected Communist artillery positions just above the demilitarized zone. Communist artillery has been harassing U.S. Marine outposts just below the zone and inflicting mounting casualties on the Americans. Thus the U.S. command decided to intensify air attacks. U.S. Navy cruisers helped by bombarding Red positions with their eight-inch guns.

Fire from the Communist emplacements fell off during the past 48 hours, apparently partly because of the intensified American attacks.

North of Vinh, the cruiser St. Paul and the destroyers Ware and Benjamin Stoddert came under fire from North Vietnamese shore batteries while shelling Communist installations. The Navy said no Americans were injured and there was no damage to the ships. They returned the fire, setting off a secondary explosion.

In the ground war, North Vietnamese troops who killed 26 Americans and wounded 49 Monday in an ambush of units of the 173rd Airborne Brigade appar-

FRANCE STILL OPPOSED

Five members support British Common Mart bid

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) -- Common Market spokesmen Monday for admitting Britain to the economic community, but France insisted such a move would diminish the trading group's effectiveness.

At a four-hour conference of ministers from the six member countries, France's Maurice Couve de Murville finally agreed to discuss the British application again at a council meeting Oct. 2-3 in Luxembourg.

The Common Market is made up of France, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg. France has vetoed one British application for membership and has been stalling action on a second.

The community's top executive, Jean Rey of Belgium, who attended the meeting, was reported to have said: "The executive commission faces with apprehension the possibility of the six failing to agree on the British application."

One minister said later: "It is quite clear that France does not at all feel like accepting Britain's membership."

Couve de Murville maintained that British entry would upset the world political balance and have serious consequences for East-West relations, including the issue of German reunification.

He warned the other ministers that Britain's special relations with the United States would dilute the Common Market from a small, cohesive group to a loose trading area if the British were admitted.

But other ministers stressed necessity for the community to keep an open character, and said that with expansion it would carry more economic and political weight.

Israel accepts UN observers there is now harmonious civil union. Where there was a constant threat of violence, there is now peace.

"Where there was once an assertion of exclusive and unilateral control over the holy places, exercised in sacrilegious discrimination, there is now a willingness to work out arrangements with the world's religious bodies—Christian, Muslim and Jewish—which will ensure the universal religious character of the holy places."

Egyptian Ambassador Mohamed Awad El Kony notified Thant Monday that his country would agree to posting U.N. observers on their side in Suez if the Israelis would do so on their side.

Eban's reply, made known to Thant Tuesday morning, was along similar lines.

A U.N. spokesman said Thant would now consult with Lt. Gen. Odd Bull, the Norwegian head of the U.N. Palestine Truce Supervisory Organization, who was be in charge of the observer operation.

The spokesman said the nationality of the observers would have to be worked out in consultation with the Israelis and the Egyptians, as well as just where the observers would be stationed.

Bull plans to put a total of 25 observers on both sides of the Suez Canal. They would investigate any incidents involving a violation of the U.N.-ordered cease-fire, and confer with local commanders. As in other sectors, their aim would be to stop any shooting that might occur.

Israel has made clear that while it accepts the observers under Bull's direction, it does not regard the action as having any connection with the 1949 Arab-Israeli armistice agreements. Israel now regards those agreements, including boundary provisions, as dead, and says that only direct Israeli-Arab negotiations can set up new agreed boundaries.

Rescue attempt fails sionist Moise Tshombe of Katanga. He later took command of a mercenary unit when Tshombe was Congo premier.

A letter from Bukavu, quoted in Brussels, said Belgian citizens there now are virtually prisoners of the Congolese army which has been pillaging the town and crying for revenge.

It said three Belgians were killed or missing after coming under fire. Americans and United Nations personnel had left, it said, but Belgians were forcibly detained.

The U.S. rescue plane had first been reported taking off from Kinshasa in the morning, instructed to make radio contact with the control tower at Kisangani airport and seek permission to land.

Congolese authorities in Kinshasa had appealed to the mercenaries Monday to permit the landing and to signal acceptance of the appeal with a white sheet draped over an airport truck. Refusal would be signified by a black sheet.

Mobutu had vowed to launch an attack on the mercenaries if they refused permission.

Belgian Foreign Ministry officials at first said the operation did not take place, and reliable sources said it had been judged useless. Later, the Congolese radio reported that the plane had taken off but that the mission had failed, for unexplained reasons.

The broadcast did not say so, but presumably the mercenaries had refused landing permission.

Some sources said that it was feared that if the plane landed, the mercenaries would use it for their own purpose. Last week, when the European newsmen were brought into Kisangani by a Sabena Airlines plane, its pilot, Capt. Eddie Koller, said later he had been forced by the mercenaries to fly wounded soldiers to Rhodesia.

Romney

"The bombing of North Vietnam, while costly to both the U.S. and North Vietnam, has not achieved the intended results," he said. "Infiltration has not lessened, and Hanoi is apparently still not willing to consider seriously a negotiated settlement."

Opportunities for a peaceful settlement might be opened up by a de-escalation of bombing in the north, Romney maintained, adding, "we must place proper emphasis on the instruments of peace, including pacification, in exploring all ways of bringing about negotiations which could lead to a satisfactory settlement."

Marx Bros. film on tap

"Duck Soup," the second film in the Exploring Cinema Society's Marx Brothers Festival, will be presented in Parlor C of the Union at 7 p.m. Thursday.

Also on the program is a twenty minute short, "Mary's Day," a color documentary film featuring Sister Mary Corita, pop art, the Beatles and Gregorian chants.

Nureyev, Fonteyn arrest

Kirk Terrill, tenant of the apartment, later told newsmen that he and some friends had attended Monday night's ballet, had visited backstage, and had invited the dancers to drop in later.

They had scarcely gotten settled when two policemen rang the door bell, someone screamed, "It's the fuzz! Run! Go out the back door!"

Officer Arthur Fobbs said he and his partner, Officer William Delaney, were responding to complaints of neighbors about a noisy party.

Fobbs said their only purpose was to tell the party to quiet down. "But when they started running and scattering, we had no choice but to call for reinforcements and round them up."

The officers said they found seven marijuana cigarettes and a pipe in a china cabinet in the apartment and some other cigarettes spilled on the stairs. They also found a movie film, which they described as "pornographic," but there was no projector and no indication it had been shown.

Hearing footsteps above they found Nureyev lying prone on the flat roof. On an adjoining rooftop they found the ballerina, attempting to hide with three others.

The officers had no idea of their identities.

In all, 17 persons were taken to nearby Park Police Station. An 18th, Sherry Riley, 21, was taken to San Francisco General Hospital for treatment of a back injury suffered when she fell 10 feet off the back stairs.

Dame Margot refused to give her age, but police listed it as 49. She later told newsmen it should be 48. Nureyev gave his age as 29, but the booking officer wrote the name as "Nour-eev."
