MHA, amends WIC proposal Faculty committee reaffirms

By MARILYN PATTERSON

State News Staff Writer The Faculty Committee on Student Affairs Friday reaffirmed its approval of the Men's Halls Assn. (MHA) open house proposal and amended the Women's Inter-residence Council (WIC) no hours proposal to exclude first-term freshman women.

The MHA proposal will now be presented to the trustees and the amended WIC proposal will be sent back to the ASMSU Student Board for approval.

The original proposals were passed by the faculty committee late fall term but were returned to the committee for reconsideration last week by Vice President for Student Affairs Milton B. Dickerson. They must have Dickerson's approval before they can go into effect.

The MHA proposal would give both men's and women's residence halls the right to determine the hours, supervision, proper attire and open or closed door policy for open houses in their

Dickerson referred the proposal back to the faculty committee because he objected to the possibility of halls establishing a 24-hour visitation policy.

In its reconsideration of the proposal, however, the committee discussed the same opinions and information expressed when it originally considered the proposal last term, A. L. Thurman, chairman of the committee, said.

"Nothing new was being said Friday that would permit another decision,' Thurman said. "It was obvious from the letter (which Dickerson sent to the faculty committee stating his objections to both proposals) that he said he could not and would not sign the proposal. So we have instructed the vice president to transmit the proposal to the board of trustees."

Dickerson said he will talk to President Hannan about the proposal today. He said, however, that it is doubtful that the proposal can come before the trustees at their meeting Thursday as the deadline for that meeting's agenda has already passed. The next meeting will be Feb. 14.

"I am sorry that the committee did not pass a new and different proposal for open houses that would merely take away three or four hours in the morning from the discretionary period," Dickerson said.

Brian Hawkins, MHA president, said that the faculty committee's action "reaffirms my feeling that the channels of the Academic Freedom Report can SAIGON (AP)-- The U.S. Command has reluctantly accepted the fact that some American troups will begin withdrawing from South Vietnam within a relatively short period, informed sources said Sunday.

"It is no longer a question of pulling out troops," one official said. "The questions now are when, and how many?"

The informants, who preferred now not to be identified, said they expected President Johnson to make a statement on the subject before he leaves office on Jan. 20.

A spokesman for the Lansing Grape Bovcott Committee said Sunday that his group is planning to picket an anti-boycott speech Tuesday by Jose Mendoza.

Mendoza is a speaker for the California Grape Pickers Right to Work Committee. He is scheduled to address a group of Michigan vegetable growers at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Civic Center.

Thomas Kay, a Lansing resident who heads the boycott committee, said that in addition to the picketing, members of the committee will also "shoot some very pointed questions at Mendoza.

Lupe Angliano, head of the grape boycott committee in Detroit, will also be present. Mendoza's address to the Civic Center audience will mark his third visit to Lansing. Kay described Mendoza as a "grower's agent" who travels around the country making public appearances supporting nonunion grape growers and blasting organized Kay said the purpose of the Tuesday demonstration will be to muster up "a sizable force to show support for the United Farm Workers.

"We want to express our displeasure at people who would dull unionism here in Michigan," he added.

The Lansing Grape Boycott Committee will provide rides for MSU students who wish to participate in the picketing. Beginning at noon Tuesday, ides will leave from Conrad Hall, the International Center, the Union Bldg., and Kellogg Center.

The boycott committee is composed of people from SDS, Cristo Rey Community Center and a "good cross-section of people young and old for farm unionization," according to Kay.

Kay expressed his deappointment at the failure of the city of Lansing to join the boycott grape. The I-ansing City Council originally endorsed the boycott, but the endorsement was promptly rescinded largely through the efforts of the Central Michigan Farm Bureau.

12 years now." Hannah said, "and I probably will submit my resignation in X number of months, but I don't know exactly when.

Hannah, chairman of the commission and one of its char ter members, was appointed to the post in 1957 by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. He was reappointed in 1961 by the late President John F. Kennedy and continued to serve under the Johnson Administration.

schools has been proposed by Walter Trapp, a research chemist at Dow Chemical in Midland.

According to the Trapp plan, parents would receive fractional or partial tax credit on their property tax and on their state income tax.

In other words parents would pay less school taxes for having their children use the parochial schools instead of the public schools.

However, the parents who benefit from this tax credit would still pay a fractional tax in support of public schools during the time when they have children in a parochial school.

Parents would resume paying the normal tax rate when their children leave the parochial schools. Under such a system, Trapp said, the penalty of double payment of education would be reduced, thus encouraging the use of private alternatives for Trapp predicted that the tax credit, with its incentives, would cause a shift of some of the present public school students to private schools. This, he said, would result in lowered

The tax credit plan would strengthen private, including parochial, schools immediately without resorting to direct government aid, Trapp said.

"The use of collected taxes to support private instututions is detrimental both to the public taxpayer, and those operating the instutution receiving such support because of the eventual erosion of their control and freedom to operate their schools," he said.

In the long run public schools would benefit from this method of financing. according to Trapp.

He said public schools would be relieved of virtually the whole operational cost of any student choosing the private school while they still are collecting a fractional tax from him. "The loss of private schools," Trapp said, "geared to the needs of lower and middle income families would be a

EDITORIAL

The continuing story of.

Two proposals to liberalize student regulations continue to be kicked back and forth from committee to board and back again for further study. In the meantime, students are left somewhere out in the cold (especially if you're a freshman coed who didn't make it in on time).

The Women's Inter-residence Council (WIC) proposal to eliminate women's hours, and the Men's Hall Assn. (MHA) proposal to leave open houses to the discretion of the individual hall have entered another round in their bout for students' social freedom.

Both proposals were reconsidered Friday by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, where the MHA proposal was again passed in its original form, despite objections presented by Milton B. Dickerson, vice-president for student aftairs. It now seems that the MHA proposal will go to the MSU Board of Trustees where final decision will be reached lacking Dickerson's approval.

The faculty committee approved the WIC proposal in amended form, voting to eliminate hours for everyone but first term freshman women. The amendment resulted from erson, the most important of which is a survey of parents of freshmen made last fall which showed that the majority are in favor of some type of hours for freshmen.

It is most important now that WIC and ASMSU stand firm so that their many hours of effort do not dwindle into an ineffective compromise. They must stand ground at this point, and present a determined, united back not only on the student house proposal. Dickerson has come close to destroying the student's faith in their ability to bring effective change through the legitimate and orderly channels as outlined in the Academic Freedom Report.

The purpose of the freedom report was to delegate certain. powers by which orderly change could be implemented. Dickerson has now chosen to abdicate his power by turning the decision over to the trustees.

A calendar of achievement

should become so evident that people the world over will know that if American resources are not flowing into their nation, it is because their own leaders refuse

America's preoccupation with sharing her resources

If the new administration is really serious about bringing Americans together, a good calendar of creative achievement could be developed from the major events of the old year. The tragedy of the strife and starvation in Biafra and the majesty of America's Apollo flight to the moon were both marks of 1968. The combination should suggest to the new administration that the world could be fed if America worked as hard to combat world hunger as she works to get to the Americans are constantly bombarded by reminders of this country's commitment to the space race. Kiddie cartoons on television and toy counters all over the country emphasize the space theme. Think what could happen if Americans were so constantly reminded of the problem of world hunger. The President himself could ask all Americans to give up a meal each week and send the money saved to the federal government for foreign-aid food purchase. Restaurants could be asked to have containers to collect money which will be picked up periodically by postal agents. Supermarkets could have large containers into which shoppers can drop canned food and staple items to be sent overseas. The containers would be picked up periodically by Army trucks. Elementary school children could begin early to experience the joy and dignity of human service, and they would be a vital and active force in combating world starvation. A Penny-a-Week Campaign could be initiated in the public schools (when they are in session): a weekly collection deliberately low to avoid competition between rich and poor students. Nationwide statistics for 1966 show an elementary and secondary school enrollment of 43,055,055. Average daily attendance was 39,366,000. A Penny-a-Week Campaign would have collected almost $400,000 weekly to help eliminate world hunger.

One of the major events of 1968 was a national epidemic of Hong Kong flu. That reminder should focus the attention of the new administration on the problem of disease -- both in America and worldwide. A new foreign aid emphasis should encourage a new image for America; an image not of the world's strongest or richest country, but rather the world's most humane country. America's preoccupation with sharing her resources should become so evident that people the world over will know that if American resources are not flowing into their nation, it is because their own leaders refuse to accept them. Let America wage war upon the infant mortality rate the world over instead of encouraging preparation for war through the delivery of guns and tanks. Let America provide skilled medical personnel in the most remote areas of the world, devoting knowledge and research toward the elimination of rare diseases unknown on the North American continent.

The shocking brutality at the Democratic Convention which marred the 1968 calendar should encourage the new administration to take seriously the legitimate needs of our nation's law enforcement officers. One of the most important issues in creating safe city streets is dealing fairly and justly with those who have the job of stopping crime in the streets; namely the cops. The cop has the most important and demanding job in the country and yet he is the most underpaid man in America. Society's unjust disregard for the cop is illustrated by the fact that the median annual pay for a cop in the large city is $5,300. Yet every time a riot breaks out in the ghetto, white America expects the cop to stop a problem he did not start.

A new federal administration should encourage legislation requiring the starting salary for cops in large cities to be a minimum of $10,000 per year. Such legislation would go a long way toward establishing a new image for the cop. He will be more dedicated to his job, because he will be paid in proportion to for the orphan children of cops and firemen killed in action. The cop must be treated, trained and paid as a professional. The cop's image must be changed from that of an overseer of wrongs to an advocate of rights. Every effort should be made at the federal level to bring justice to the policement of America, so that they can be expected to bring justice to the American people.

What is true of the cop is also true of the fireman, the hospital worker, the teacher, and all other essential personnel in our society. We are fond of describing some jobs as "necessary for defense." We should begin to concern ourselves with those jobs which are necessary for survival, and for the encouragement of growth to full human potential of every American

A new federal administration must work to wipe out all forms of injustice in American society. Let it develop a new way of collecting income tax where the rich share as much of the burden of payment as the poor. Let the new administration extend federal loans to all needy kids who want to go to college but cannot afford the cost -- every one of them. Let the federal government be the guiding light for other institutions in our society, so that the church, for example, will become sincerely involved in solving the problems of man without worrying about the possible repercussions in the collection box.

If the Establishment in America can honestly sit down and make the kinds of basic changes the youth of America have been demanding, perhaps there is a glimmer of hope for survival of both young and old, black, white, Mexican, Puerto Rican, Indian, indeed America itself.

Nixon to have no picnic

One main aspect of President-elect inauguration will bother me besides the swearing in of Vice President-elect Agnew). That will be his in augural address

John F. Kennedy's address has become a sort of monument to the man. His words brought us alive and accordingly, in our actions, we began to bring to being the realizations of those words. So eight years hence another man will attempt to bring us alive--bring us

But to do so will be a very hard task indeed. We should remember or perhaps try to forget, that he will be a minority President

His election hinged on the support of the WASPS with businessmen playing a vital role. However, some 88 per cent of black Americans voting were not for him, as an overwhelming majority of American Jews, poor and liberals were not. Looked at together they make a formidable group.

I feel, as many others do, that Nixon should be given a chance before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the New York Times and other well-wishers prepare the guillotine. True, he has made some mistakes already. But let us look at the burdens he will inherit

First, as on anyone's list, he must end the war in Southeast Asia. No stroke of a pen, grave threats, or empty words will solve the problem there. President-elect Nixon may need the United Nations and probably much more. The Soviet Union may be the ideal friend to settle the conflict. Rumor has it that they helped out in the Pueblo affair; again the Soviets might provide the needed leverage.

President-elect Nixon will also have to answer to the impatient Americans at home. If the war drags on, he will know no sympathy from his fellow countrymen. If it ends the day after inauguration, he will still have the tremendous job of keeping a new peace, redirecting money and people and safeguarding the economy.

No. 2 on most lists, No. 1 on others, is the domestic problem. And what a

How can President-elect Nixon appease black Americans when his own Cabinet contains not one black? But poor Nixon, fate had wished it so. NATO, France and the international monetary situation will occupy the attention of President-elect Nixon and his advisers for many days to come. De Gaulle is getting old and the instability of the franc and the pound won't brighten the picture. Will Nixon decide to take the lead in organizing a united Europe? Or will he sit back, decrease our NATO troops and commitments leave Western Europe to its own and wait for the pleas of Europe's leaders for a return to the good old days. # Or build new auditorium ourselves

To the Editor: An open report on the New Auditorium

Several days ago a notice appeared in the Faculty-Staff Bulletin, known as the Blue Sheet and in the personal classified section on the State News announcing the first organizational meeting of the New Auditorium Committee. Since that time several people have made attempts to learn more about the committee, who was running it and what its plans were. It was hoped that these people would have attended the first organizational meeting and would have found out for themselves. The actual attendence at the first meeting was disappointingly small and as a result several versions of what the New Auditorium Committee is all about are making their way through the campus grapevine.

The purpose of the New Auditorium Committee is to promote the construction of a new building which will replace the present auditorium with particular emphasis on theatre, concerts, recitals and lectures. The means the committee envisioned are several. First, the committee plans to incorporate itself as a Class C-3 non profit organization. This will permit the committee to receive tax deductable donations for the purpose of building a new auditorium. Second, the committee will actively solicit contributions from interested members of the University, the community and the state in an attempt to show that people are willing to put their money where their mouth is on their desire to build a new Auditorium. Third, the committee will attempt to penetrate the infra-structure of Ingham County in an attempt to get various civic and culture oriented groups interested in a new Auditorium. Fourth, a brief report will be presented on how Iowa State University built an auditorium without too much assistance from the state legislature.

Since I first began to organize the New Auditorium Committee, I have learned many things concerning the auditorium and other theatres on campus. I now have several versions of how the present auditorium was built, how Fairchild was tacked on and who owns and runs it. I have several reports about the size and number of theatre rooms to be included in the Communication Arts Bldg. I even have two conflicting reports on the Athletic Dept.'s views on an athletic-events building. But regardless of past events or future priorities of the University, a need does exist for a new Auditorium.

The past is over and cannot be changed. The future is what we make it, and we can do nothing, we can make reports. hold hearings and file peititons, or we can stand up and essentially do it our-

Closed stacks best

To the Editor: I found the editorial of Jan. 6, "Old issues, old snow . . . " disturbingly irresponsible. To speak of a closed stacks policy as closing the Library to undergraduates is inaccurate and inflammatory. A closed stacks policy merely requires hat students request titles at a service desk. The Library staff then obtains the books and returns them to their proper locations. This method is used in the Library of Congress and is common among university libraries. The closed stacks policy helps insure that books are easily located and in good condition so they are available to il students when they need them.

The Lansing Symphony Orchestra's penultimate concert of the 1968-69 season, Saturday night proved a most successful venture in revivifying the "tired blood" of some colorful, but over-played, staples of the symphonic literature.

In what was probably the perfect fillip to warm an audience on a shivery, icy night, Music Director Clyde Roller led his crackajack ensemble through a taut, vigorous and energetic performance of Glinka's "Russland and Ludmilla" Overture, capturing all its sparkling, joyous bustle, as well as the fervor

Despite some occasional strain in bravura passages and more than a few larses in intonation, Verdehr, a member of the MSU Music Dept. f culty, confirmed the impression of his previous November sol, recital that he is a virtuoso violi aist of exceptional sensitivity and a musical thinker of the first order.

While there are certainly violinists of his generation who can accomplish the technical feats at least as well (Perlman, Zuckerman or Bus well to name but three), none in my experience has Verdehr's ability to invest a thrice-told tale as the Tchaikovsky "Concerto," with such imaginatively fresh insights and searching intelligence.

"You're treated like a professional right from the start."

The attitude here is, if you're good enough to be hired, you're good enough to be turned loose on a project." says Don Feistamel.

Don earned a B.S.E.E. in 1935. Today, he's an Associate Engineer in systems design and evaluation at IBM. Most of his work consists of determining modifications needed to make complex data processing systems fit the specialized requirements of IBM customers.

Depending on the size of the project. Don works individually or in a small team. He's now working with three other engineers on part of an air traffic control system that will process radar information by computer. Says Don: "There are only general guidelines. The assignment is simply to come up with the optimum system.

Set your own pace

Recently he wrote a simulation program that enables an IBM computer to predict the performance of a data processing system that will track satellites. He handled that project himself. "Nobody stands over my shoulder." Don says. "I pretty much set my own pace.

Don's informal working environment is typical of Engineering and Science at IBM. No matter how large the project, we break it down into units small enough to be handled by one person or a few people.

Don sees a lot of possibilities for the future. He says. "My job requires that I keep up to date with all the latest IBM equipment and systems programs. With that broad an outlook, I can move into almost any technical area at IBM-development, manufacturing, product test, space and defense projects, programming or marketing.

Shula praises Jets

Baltimore Coach MIAMI (UPI) Don Shula had high praise for the New York Jets and Joe Namath in a silent dressing room after Sunday's upset in the Super Bowl Game but added. We just didn't make the plays we made all vear to win.

"We had more opportunities in the first half and just couldn't get the blamed thing going." Shula said. "I don't think we did anything right. Shula felt the key to the game was that Namath picked out Baltimore's weaknesses early in the game and took advantage of every opening.

He's everything we hear about him. Shula said. "He beat us on the blitz more than we beat him.

'He had the Jets' running game going and found out early in the game he could do that and just stuck to it.

The Colts, who received $7500 each as the losers' share but showed the pain dressing room beneath the Orange Bowl after their defeat.

Earl Morral, the Colts' quarterback and Most Valuable Player of the year in the National League, appeared stunned by the defeat in which he was overshadowed by Namath.

They made the plays -- we didn't," Morrall said as he sat dejectedly on a stool. "It was one of those things. We didn't come up with the big plays."

Morrall said the Jets' defense played good football all the way." He blamed no one but himself for the Jet interceptions that balked several Colt scoring drives.

Shula explained that he switched from Morrall to veteran quarterback Johnny Unitas late in the third period "because we just had to get something going.

"I figured I would give Earl a shot at the start of the second half," Shula said. "We got five yards on the first After that. I went to John.

Overfed IM boys play it hard-nosed

Somewhere in the shuffle of professional and collegiate athletics which usually monopolize this sports page stands probably the most dedicated and frustrated athlete of them all.

The ordinary, out of shape, overweight intranioral

They are a strange breed, these I.M. athletes. There is no money to be made, no individual glory to be won and even an I.M superstar will not be enshrined forever in the trophy case at Jenison. About the only thing these valiant guys come off with are sore leg muscles. giant blisters and the memory of how good they were back in high school when they were in shape.

Besides, who ever watches them play other than a handful of fellow floor dwellers who are looking for an excuse to avoid their books and climb out of their dingy, over-heated rooms, and who den't have enough cash to make it to the Senate Grill?

Basketball seems to be the most hotly contested of all I.M. sports and last week I playet in a game that is not untypical of I.M. competition. Our boys were fired up for a big will that night, even to the extent of skipping the powdered mashed potatoes at dinner so we could move with lightening quickness when the big moment arrived. It didn't matter that an hour before game time we had only two guys who had ever played the game. Another said he had played in a junior high church league. We were hurting Finally we thought we had rounded up the appropriate number, and packed up our gear. We were ready to move out when my roommate and I discovered that nobody was around. We figured they were so anxious to play that they had walked in the freezing rain across the East Campus wind tunnel to the I.M. Bldg. just to make sure they would

So we picked up the beer case that doubles as our gym bag and headed for our big game, hoping we had not misplaced the rest of our team.

Thirty seconds before forfeit time, the rest of our squad showed up and next to the opposition we looked like a badly dressed Salvation Army band. But we were fired up so it didn't matter. Except when we got killed, like by about 40 points but even in the last minute we were playing like it was an overtime battle for the NAA championship, hustling for loose balls and fighting for reboul As. And this is what makes I.M. sports as big as they

The guys play it for fun but they play it hard. Out of shape, maybe, but you'd never know it (especially the darn team we played).
