Hannah backs Psych Dept.; group plans rally for Garskof

By CHRIS MEAD State News Staff Writer

In an open letter to the University Community Sunday. President Hannah affirmed that proper procedures have been followed in the dismissal of Bertram Garskof and that the University will call upon the civil authorities if protest action threatens the orderly functioning of the University

"The University alone must take the decision as to when the ongoing work of the University is being interfered with," Hannah's statement said "If that decision is ever made, the University will call upon the civil authorities, local and state, to take whatever action is required to permit the University to function in an orderly fashion.

The Student Steering Committee to Defend Garskof will rally at 2 p.m. today on the plaza of the new Administration Bldg. to protest the Garskof dismissal.

The group has vowed to take action against the University if Garskof is not reinstated with full privileges by the College of Social Science at this time.

Hannah noted that the resolution on disruption of University activities prohibits "any effort to impede the holding of classes, the carrying forward of University business, the arrangements for properly organized and scheduled events on the campus or the discharge of his responsibility by any University officer or employe."

Section 16.00 of the University Ordinances specifically forbids unauthorized assemblies "for the purpose of creating any noise or disturbance, riot, raid or other improper diversion . .

Hannah explained that the tenure rules adopted by the Academic Senate regarding faculty reappointment had been properly followed by the Dept. of Psychology when it decided to grant Garskof a probationary contract of two years off the tenure track

Because Garskof had not officially responded to the two-year offer and from information provided to Lawrence O'Kelly. chairman of the Dept. of Psychology, Social Science Dean Clarence L. Winder decided to withdraw the offer of Nov. 25.

The only method to deal with the Garskof situation, Hannah said, is through "proper procedures, a great deal of discussion and the weighing of opinions.' He said the Academic Freedom Report provides all such procedures. Clark Akatiff, asst. professor of geography and head of the Faculty-Staff Committee in Defense of Garskof, said his group hopes to have a broad base of faculty support at today's rally.

The faculty group's purpose is to lead faculty protest only, Akatiff said, and it is "not an attempt to graft our higher status into their (the student's) move-

He said the committee's primary purpose was to show students that a core of faculty members, "an even division of radicals and non-radicals," is concerned about the Garskof case

Amendments approved on open houses, hours

By MARILYN PATTERSON State News Staff Writer

Freshman women will be relieved of restricted hours and individual halls will legislate their own open houses this week as implementation of the no hours and the open house proposals go into effect.

The Faculty Committee on Student Affairs passed the amended versions of both proposals Friday with small changes in the Men's Halls Assn. (MHA) policy.

Both proposals must now be formally approved by Milton B. Dickerson, vice president for student affairs.

The Women's Inter-residence Council (WIC) no hours policy, which lifts hours for all but fall term first term freshman women, will go into effect Tuesday. Dickerson said. The open house policy will be implemented Thursday after ASMSU student board submits its approval of the changes in that policy.

The faculty committee eliminated from the open house policy items stating that violations of the policy will be handled according to judicial procedures, that

These items are "not necessary," A. L. Thurman, chairman of the faculty committee, said, as they are assumed in any measure that passes through the policy-making channels of the Academic Freedom Report.

Thus, in amended, approved and final form, the new rules for open houses read:

Huber doubts authority to probe student records

By WES THORP State News Staff Writer

The chairman of the State Senate committee to investigate campus unrest said Thursday, amid a barrage of student hecklers, that he doubted his committee had the authority to subpoena student records.

State Sen. Robert Huber, R-Troy, spoke at Wilson Hall to an audience of hostile students, who continually fired round after round after round of verbal assaults which ranged from "down with the ruling class" to the continual chant of "answer the question.

Huber said that the investigation committee was formed largely because of the amount of concern shown by people across the state in regards to what has been happening on Michigan campuses lately.

As for the role that the public plays in determining university policies and procedures. Huber said that "the general public is as qualified as the students, faculty, or the administrators in determining how a university should be run.

"Why not--after all, they are paying the authority to subpoena those records. He also said, "I doubt that we'll ever is-

"I think that it is kind of interesting that we've been condemned when we haven't even started our investigation yet. Huber pointed out.

'We're witchhunters already: but, I don't think so. He said the committee's job will be to find out why there is campus unrest and what can be done to resolve it.

Huber predicted that Students for a Democratic Society would be one of the primary targets of the committee. The number of people who have volunteered to testify before the committee is so large according to Huber that the committee will be busy for the next couple of months. He said that ASMSU Chairman Pete Ellsworth volunteered to testify before the committee. "I want to assure you that the committee is not coming into the investigation with preconceived ideas about what should be done," he said.

Huber said the committee will hire a constitutional lawyer and a sociologist who is familiar with student problems to keep the committee on the right track. He was questioned about whether the committee was constitutional. Huber answered that the constitutionality of the committee was checked and approved by the State Attorney General. The legislature has the authority to investigate the use of the funds appropriated for the university. Huber said, and also the authority to investigate the ever-increasing breaches of peace on the cam-

Iraqi Jews' treatment spurs Israeli warning

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel has warned Iraq that if any more Iraqi Jews are harmed, the Baghdad regime will suffer reprisals, the usually well-informed newspaper Maariv said Sunday.

The rioters were protesting the sentencing by an Israeli military court of three Gaza women accused of spying and aiding guerrillas. Davar said the Soviet spokesman proposed "negotiations between Israel and the Arabs on the basis of equality, and not in a situation where Israel has the upper hand through conquest.

This was interpreted as meaning Israel should give up Arab land won in the June 1967 war before negotiations could begin.

A recent Soviet government proposal for a Middle East settlement, along the lines of the Security Council resolution calling for Israel to pull back form conquered soil and Arab recognition of Israel's right to exist as a state, was rejeced by Israel. It disapproved because the plan did not call for direct Israeli-Arab talks nor a signed peace treaty.

EDITORIAL Disarming police

An experiment is under way at Oakland University which may open the way for better student-police relations there and eventually at schools throughout the country. The Oakland campus police are gunless and without tear gas during daylight hours in recognition of the fact that weapons are seldom, if ever, needed on an unarmed campus where the main police problems are overtime parking, petty theft and lost visitors.

In a big city or anywhere else that police have to contend with more serious problems as a matter of routine and have a definite problem with self defense, disarmament would not be terribly useful. Under some circumstances a man would be foolish to wear a police uniform and not carry

Reinstate Garskof!

To the Editor:

To Dean Winder and Chairman O'Kelly

As Psychology 151 graduate teaching assistants for Bertram Garskof, we would like to issue the following statement of support for him:

We feel that there are two major issues at stake. First: should Garskof be allowed to conduct his Psych. 490 and 151 classes as an organic learning experience. rather than in the conventional classroom manner? Second: who should make, or participate in making, the decisions on hiring and firing of teachers?

The concept of organic learning has been explained by Garskof in the Jan. 31 issue of the State News. Bert is sincerelv committed to these ideas: and, we can personally testify, gives a great deal of time and effort to making them work in his classes. (As a point of clarification: the "organic learning experiment" has been only partially introduced into Psych. 151.) Whether you like or reject this method of learning, it must, if academic freedom is to have any meaning, be tried

As for the second issue, we believe students should have a significant voice in choosing their teachers. It is evident the students want Garskof.

We feel the whole affair has been mishandled. Student opinion and freedom to experiment with a new learning method require that Bertram Garskof be rein-

Witch hunt tactics

To the Editor

I have been instructed to forward to the State News a copy of a resolution passed by the Ingham County Democratic Executive Committee at its Jan. 29 meeting. The resolution was presented by Mr. Gerrit DeYoung.

The Ingham County Democratic Party Executive Committee goes on record as opposing the proposed investigation of recent events on Michigan campuses by a committee of the State Senate. with true charity, gave each of his very little children a 6 Hour A. How fine, how utterly, indubitably fine.

But then one day, when all seemed rosey and blue skyed and just a little organic, an Evil Winder slithered upon

"Groovy Bert", he sneered ugily, 'you can't just give away 6 Hour A's to very little children. Honor points must be earned.

The Evil Winder, uncharitable to a fault, fumed and grew most assuredly

"Groovy Bert", said the Evil Winder, for he was not wont to call him GB, "you have twirled your last magnificent 'stache and thrown your last 6 Hour A. In a word, Groovy Bert, you are through!' All the very little children were saddened, shocked, and, it must be told, fearful of the cold turkey which must surely follow the cutting off of their free ration of truth and 6 Hour

"GB is being shafted!" They bawled.

"GB is being persecuted!" They screamed. "We will lie down on the dirty floor and kick our very little feet in the air if you don't give us back our GB, our truth, and our 6 Hour A's.

But, and this certainly should not come as any surprise to you, the Evil Winder just would not listen and the beloved Groovy Bert was canned.

Now, today, the very little children are sad, oh so sad. Groovy Bert is gone and with him have gone truth and 6 Hour A's. We must report, with deep sadness and sorrow, that the very little children have now to find their own truth by themselves and, if they can, earn their own 6 Hour A's.

Cops in a city of politics

From the time of the 1967 riots and the infamous Algiers Motel killings until the recent incidents involving alleged police brutality toward blacks, police-community relations in the city of Detroit have been far from harmonious, especially within the black community.

In the controversy, city officials and members of the black community have argued heatedly and publicly over who is in the wrong.

But, the Detroit police's side of the story has not been told or analyzed, in most cases. In an attempt to see the situation as a "cop" sees it. I traveled to Detroit recently.

With the help of a Michigan Supreme Court justice and Detroit's prosecuting attorney, a friend and I were granted rare permission to ride separately in onduty police cruisers in the city's first precinct during the night shift.

Detroit's First Precinct, which extends westward from the Detroit River and across the downtown section (including ing his job, the policeman's Woodward Avenue), lies in the eastern side of the city. Once the home of Detroit's most thriving ghetto and crime area, the First Precinct has been replaced by the Tenth Precinct, 12th Street, as the city's toughest section. But, the First Precinct is no "lily field.

The city's new skid row area is found If the Oakland experiment there along with the last housing remnants of the old ghetto. Approximately 45,000 people, many of whom commute to the precinct in search of crime from other parts of the city, are located in the area.

As one of the officers that I rode with put it, "every type of pervert that ever lived can be found here, along with every type of crime that has ever been commit-

Probably the first thing that you notice when you ride in a police cruiser is the look of outright hatred on the faces of people as you pass them. Even people in mid-laughter abruptly cut it off and replace it with a cold stare when a cop

The police know that they aren't liked. "Most people here, they hate your ass." one officer frankly reflected about the situation. But they learn to accept the 'hate looks," the obscenities, the cat-calls, and the lewd gestures. as occupational hazards. Crime in the First Precinct and in the whole city of Detroit varies in its degrees and in its frequency. Killings, robberies, beatings. $3.50 petty thefts. knivings. breaking and entering -- a little bit of everything happens in the way of crime there.

As for the frequency of crimes, there is no exact time scale. The police are constantly besieged by little crimes but there is no pattern on the big crimes or the "good runs" as the police call them. A cruiser can go days without having to make a good run and then have two or three in Combatting crime in the First Precinct and in Detroit basically involves "control and deter" tactics. Although there is almost no way to prohibit killings, police try to have some control over the other

'You can't stop crimes but you can control them," an eight year veteran of the Detroit police force forwarded.

By controlling crime, the police try to keep it in one area and keep it low there. In addition, they try to deter crime by constantly questioning and checking on suspicious-looking-or-acting people in hopes of scaring or detaining them from criminal

Crime in Detroit involves a game of "catch me." Although the police know the pimps. Murphy men, homosexuals, and the prostitutes and know the whereabouts of the "blind pigs", the whorehouses and the other places of habitual crime, they generally have to catch a crime in progress or have a complaint filed before they can act.

As for the number of people who are willing to file a complaint against a suspected criminal, there are few. "We always think of all the crimes that haven't been reported instead of those that are. one officer told me.

The police department in Detroit is caught in the midst of a vicious circle. Life in Detroit is a game of politics. City officials, black community leaders, and those people who want to become city officials, are all involved in an eternal struggle for power. And the police department has become a major center of political arguments and criticisms in that struggle.

The courts have inadvertently had an effect on the police too. Although they do not think that the courts have "handcuffed" their actions, many cops feel that the courts have hurt their effectiveness by "going easy" on police arrests. By lessening original arrest charges or letting an arrested person go, the courts have "sold out" to crime in the eyes of the average cop.

If you ever want to write a good story. just go down to court someday and watch all the politicking and manipulating that goes on in the trial of someone that's been arrested," one officer advised me.

After seeing what the courts do, it sometimes makes you wonder whether or not it is worth it ail to be a cop," another added. Racism and police brutality are touchy subjects to police, especially in Detroit. Police feel that the newspapers in Detroit have perverted and sensationalized their reports of police-black community incidents.

Most police that I talked to felt that the people who scream brutality are the ones who don't ever come to see if there is any. These people, according to the police, use cries against police brutality as a means for getting back at the cops or for gaining influence. That's not saying that there is no such thing as police brutality, though. As one thirteen year veteran officer said, "It would be foolish to say that there isn't or hasn't been any police brutality to some degree. That would be like saying that there are no bad cops."

Racism is a loosely defined term that is hard to apply to police actions.

Whereas many argue that cops pick on blakes and harrass them, it must be remembered that most of the blacks encountered by police, such as in the First Precinct, are the criminal elements of their race. There are good blacks just as there are good whites, however.

It would be folly to try to determine whether or not the Detroit police force is an ideal law enforcement agency, at this time. There are good cops and there are bad cops in Detroit: and it is impossible to determine how many are which type, out of over 4500 city policemen. But, the cops that I met and interviewed during two consecutive weekends in Detroit were good cops. And there had to be more where they came from.

Being a cop is not what could be called being in the most glorious profession, especially in Detroit. Law enforcement is a thankless profession, generally

There are many people in Detroit who feel that the city is about ready to "burn" again, as it did in 1967. Many of these people feel that if the city burns, it will do so as a result of a police-community

But, the prediction concerning the police-community incident is over-simplified.

Detroit is a city torn by racial, economical and governmental problems. The city is "sick" and heading towards serious

True, a police incident may be the eventual spark for a city-wide "fire" in the future. But, the woods are already burning. And they've been burning for a long

Open letter to University community

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is "An Open Letter to the University Community" written by President Hannah concerning the current dispute over the non-renewal of the contract of Bertram Garskof, asst. professor, Dept. of Psychology.

In recent days, the University community has been made aware by the State News and campus rumors that some dissatisfaction exists concerning the decision to withdraw an offer made earlier to Assistant Professor Bertram Garskof for a new two - year appointment to begin in the fall of

As a result of the confusion which exists about this decision, I should like to set the record straight, first by reviewing briefly the procedures adopted by all major universities upon recommendation of the American Association of University Professors for appointment of faculty, second by reviewing some of the facts in this case, and last by reminding the university community that the best interests of all are served when the available channels are used for expressing any objections they might have to the procedures and principles of operation of the University.

On of the greatest strengths of higher education in this country is the recognition by the public and by the university communities that academic freedom is absolutely essential if universities are to carry out their function in society. Academic freedom implies both rights and responsibilities, and to protect the integrity of the university, certain principles and procedures have been laid down to insure that neither the rights nor the responsibilities of academic freeldom are violated. They provide, among other things, guidelines for appointing faculty, for periodically reviewing their performance, and for granting tenure at that point in the career of a faculty member when he demonstrates unmistakable scholarship, teaching skill, and responsibility for fulfilling with integrity the purposes of education in our society.

The procedures for the appointment and retention of faculty members can be read in their entirety in the handbook of any reputable university in the country, including ours, but in essence they provide that the recommendations to appoint faculty members and to grant tenure rest first with the members of the department, whose experience, competence, and access to firsthand information best qualify them to make such recommendations. The department can, and in most cases does, seek information and advice from students, recent graduates, accrediting agencies, or other faculty, but ultimately the members of the department must make the initial recommendations to the officers of the University on matters regarding personnel, difficult as some of these decis-

According to the Tenure Rules adopted by the Academic Senate of Michigan State University, a decision to reappoint or not to reappoint a faculty member whose appointment is expiring must be made by December 15. The initial three-year probationary appointment of Dr. Garskof comes to an end in August, 1969. The need to reach a decision concerning his future in the department led the chairman of the Psychology Department to appoint a three-man committee to review Dr. Garskof's qualifications and performance and to make recommendations to the faculty. The committee, made up of two senior faculty members appointed by the chairman and one chosen by Dr. Garskof himself, gave careful attention to the matter and presented its findings to the entire tenured faculty, who, in the light of the facts, voted not to offer Dr. Garskof a new three-year appointment under the tenure system, but instead a twovear appointment outside the tenure system. This was to give him additional time to qualify for the privileges inherent in the tenure system. This recommendation was reviewed by the Dean, the Provost, and the President, and reported to the Board of Trustees at the November meeting.

The department chairman subsequently offered Dr. Garskof such an appointment on Nov. 25. Last week Dr. Garskof had not officially responded. Because of this and because of the recent information collected from a variiety of sources and information provided to the Dean by the Department Chairman, Dean Winder on Jan. 23 decided to withdraw the offer of Nov. 25 and to consider other candidates for next year's staff. The Psychology Department which met following the Dean's decision voted overwhelmingly to support his action.

The decisions regarding Dr. Garskof have not been made hastily. The discussions in the department committees, by the tenured faculty of the department, and by the all-university Faculty Committee on Tenure have been lengthy and the considerations far reaching. The tenure system which requires tenured faculty members to make periodic decisions regarding personnel places squarely on their shoulders the primary responsibility for building departments of quality, strength, and integrity. Such departments best serve the students and society. In my judgment the Psychology Department has accepted this responsibility. The officers of the University are satisfied that the faculty had good and sufficient reasons to take the actions they have.

It is understandable that some would disagree with the decision and others with the ways in which decisions are made. It is inevitable that on a campus this size that there is the problem of disparate values. Only by proper procedures, a great deal of discussion, and the weighing of opinions can differences by resolved. Solutions to any complex problems are brought about by reason, commitment, a great deal of effort, and large measure of faith that those who serve the students and the public have their best interests in

Friday morning's State News carried a copy of a letter addressed to Dean Winder and signed by an Ad Hoc Committee to Defend Bertram Garskof. This letter Concludes with the Statement that "Dr. Garskof must be notified of his reinstatement by 2 p.m. Monday, Feb. 3, 1969, at which time the group will reassemble and make appropiate response."

I think it important to point out that the Academic Freedom Report provides procedures for this committee and all others to have their points of view considered appropriately. Ultimatums and threats are not part of that procedure.

I am proud that Michigan State University has developed procedures that permit open and orderly discussions on all subjects that are not in violation of law, and that there are orderly procedures and channels that permit all members of the community to present their views and have them heard.

I think it is important that the Ad Hoc committee use these channels and furthermore that it understand that the important work of the University must proceed while these channels are being used. This means that those who dissent or disagree must do so in such a way as not to interfere with the work of the University or with the rights of others

The University alone must make the decision as to when the ongoing work of the University is being interfered with. If that decision is ever made, the University will call upon the civil authorities, local and state, to take whatever action is required to permit the University to function in an orderly fashion. It seems to be appropriate for me to ask the State News to print in full the Resolution on Disruption of University Activities as approved by our Board of Trustees on June 14, 1968, and also to print in full the University Ordinance covering disorderly assemblages or conduct as amended by our Board on the same date. Students and faculty already have in their hands the Academic Freedom Report which should be the first point of reference for those interested in further discussing the issue at hand.

RESOLUTION OF DISRUPTION OF UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES

Michigan State University stands for freedom of speech, freedom of inquiry, freedom of dissent, and freedom to demonstrate in a peaceful manner. This is its traditional position, and is hereby reaffirmed by the Board of Trustees.

The University holds that freedom requires order and discipline, and to protect the one it must maintain the others. The right to this freedom and the responsibility of the Trustees and Officers to maintain this order and discipline are shared by faculty, students, and the members of the general public who come to this camput. They are all entitled to pursue their legitimate goals without interference. This is the traditional position of the University, and has been most recently reaffirmed in the Bylaws of the Board of Trustees and the Report on Academic Freedom for Students, adopted by the Trustees.

The Trustees reaffirm the long-time understanding that any effort to impede the holding of classes, the carrying forward of University business, the arrangements for properly organized and scheduled events on the campus, or the discharge of his re-

U.S. B52 bombers took over from ground engineers Sunday the demolition of a foursquare-mile North Vietnamese base uncovered last week 53 miles northwest of Saigon. The enemy had vacated the area.

At the same time, North Vietnam's broadcast uenial of reports it had modified its stand in the Paris peace talks lent support Sunday to a view among some Americans in Paris that Hanoi is prepared for a long deadlock.

New Western estimates suggest Red China may test fire a 6,000-mile-range rocket in 1969. These estimates were made known Sunday by Asian and European diplomats who said they are based on intelligence information pooled by several non-Communist countries, including the United States. The informants reported that if the test is successful the Peking government will be able to begin stockpiling the weapons by 1972.

After three futile tries, a Red Cross plane loaded with 14 tons of food for Biafra's million starving civilians landed in secessionist territory Sunday. It was the first transport to do so since airlifts were suspended Jan. 7.

Astronaut Frank Borman, the Apollo 8 moonship commander, his wife and two sons arrived in London by presidential jet Sunday night for the first stop on an 18-day, eight country goodwill mission for President Nixon.

A confidential court source said Houston officials have notified Dist. Atty. James Garrison that former Texas Gov. John Connally and his wife will testify as witnesses for the state.

Robert H. Finch, the new secretary of health, education and welfare, said Sunday he will give priority to broad revision of practices in elementary and secondary schools, especially in technical areas such as television instruction. He also said he will hold firmly to the guidelines of school desegregation.

In Tokyo, about 500 moderate students and professors led by the dean of the faculty stormed a Nihon University building occupied by 12 leftist students Sunday. They recaptured it after a six-hour battle.

Police said six persons were injured when the moderates tore down barricades around the engineering department building while the occupiers hurled down rocks and firebombs. The professors and students retaliated with high-pressure hoses and stormed up makeshift ladders.

S.I. Hayakawa, acting president of San Francisco State College, said Sunday he thought some teachers backed student revolts because alienation, "is a literary fashion among intellectuals now."

'Balcony' reveals society's veneer

By MARK LEZELL State News Reviewer

Jean Genet's "The Balcony" which will begin on campus Tuesday, is part of the theatre of revolt. It assaults established social values by stripping away the lies, deceptions and impostures of the respectable world.

Genet's presentation is direct. even explosive to its viewer. The play blends theatrical pornography into a theatricalized view of society.

As demonstated by the reaction to similar productions at the University of Wisconsin, and this week's events at the University of Michigan, the PAC presentation could cause controversy.

Therefore, this writer leaves his task as reviewer to offer this preview as explanation of the background and intent employed in the theatre of revolt.

Dada, Surrealist Influence Following the lead of visionary dramatist Antonin Artaud, Genet associated with the Dadaists and Surrealists, sharing their loathing of traditional art, of modern industrial life, and Western civilization. However. Artaud and Genet transform the nihilism of Dada and Surrealism to positive action for change. They demand nothing less than a total transformation of the existing structure. In short, Artaud's and Genet's ideas about theatre are inseparable from their feelings about the world in which they

The presentation of this theatre is in contrast to traditional drama. The Artaudian theatre, as developed by Genet, holds a mirror up to the unconscious, which is reflected by an outwardly illusory world evoking an inner reality-the kind of reality usually revealed in the cruel content of dreams.

Fantasy about Fantasy As explained by author Martin Esslin, Genet's Balcony "represents a world of fantasy about a world of fantasy, presented as Genet's dream of the essential nature of power and sex. Genet, a ten-time loser in the French criminal courts, concludes that the sadistic drive for domination by the establishment (police, church, etc.), is symbolized by the dominant submissive nature of sex. The nature of the power of the state and the sexual experience are basically one. Therefore, sexual display is vital to the proper expression of

Also of import to the playwright is his concern of the impotency of the individual against the nebulous "they." Genet combats the fixed norms in an effort to support the individual with his new order, based on the reversion of the established order, finding his heroic identity through immorality, vice, exile, and total opposition to whatever exists.

Images displayed This impotency is observed by the author as demonstrated by the perpetual masquerade mankind plays. To Genet, man is merely an image displayed, and a nation, being composed of men. is in fact merely a larger image perpetuated over centuries. Genet would change this impotency by changing man via exposing his images to the shock exposure of standards based on the equity of beauty with evil.
