Counter-demonstrators face Movement; violence averted "All our brothers are gonna see that we

By CHRIS MEAD

JAMES DUKARM

State News Staff Writers A group of counter-demonstrators, who first made their presence known at President Hannah's State of the University speech Monday night at Fairchild Theater, showed up again Tuesday afternoon at a meeting of The Movement in the new Administration Bldg. The counter-demonstrators, many of whom were athletes, moved in on the rally about 15 minutes after it began in the lobby of the Administration Bldg. Before the counter-demonstrators entered the building, the ralliers were discussing the need to solicit money for the two ralliers arrested at Hannah's State of the University address and for other operating

When the counter-demonstrators came in, the ralliers were discussing a proposal to take some action at the MSU basketball game Saturday night. The game will be on national television.

The counter-demonstrators formed a human blockade around the ralliers causing tension among people in The Movement. There was some shouting between the two

An official in the building then ordered the students to leave the building. A vote was taken to see whether they should leave or not and the counter-demonstrators voted in favor of leaving.

At this time about 40 black students arrived and voted with ralliers to remain in the building

It was suggested that the counter-dem-

The statement is a reaffirmation of the position the council took last spring when student demonstrators sat in at the old Administration Bldg.

Walter P. Adams, professor of economics, and Arnold Williams, professor of English, recommended that the council have an open debate on the issues brought up by the students and on the problems of student violence.

The steering committee also called a special meeting of the council Feb. 25 to discuss procedures for election of a new University president.

"In discussions with my colleagues, Adams said, "there has been fear expressed that the faculty by-laws (which call for a faculty voice in selection of the president) would be ignored because of unseemly haste to fill this important position.

One person was injured and two were arrested at a demonstration Monday night in the Auditorium area when protesters tried to disrupt President Hannah's State of the University Address in Fairchild Theatre. The Ingham County prosecutor's office said Robert H. Sheldon, Birmingham freshman, and Jeff Roby, Warren sophomore, were charged with trespassing, illegal assembly and unlawful entry. Bruce Forche, East Lansing sophomore, received several bruising injuries to the thighs when he was struck by a car trying to leave the area. University police said the protesters attempted to storm the Fairchild Theatre doors and spit on officers as they tried to keep the demonstrators out of the theatre shortly after Hannah began his speech.

Adam Zutaut, commander-in-chief of the University police, said the demonstrators also threw rocks through windows, chained doors, broke sidewalk lights, started a couple of small fires ............

Re-evaluating ABM

The voice of the people seems to be getting a bit louder and more excited these days--directly in opposition to a notion that all should lower their voices to hear better. The latest popular outcry has been directed against the Sentinel defense planned system.

Sentinel, sometimes known as the antiballistic missile (ABM) system, was first announced by Robert McNamara, former Sec. of Defense, in 1967. The cost: approximately $6 billion. The goal: to set up a thin defense system against Communist China's prospective intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs) in the 1970's.

But Sentinel has come a long way since its original designs. A site in a Boston suburb was chosen and construction begun when a flood of complaints reached Sen. Edward Kennedy. People from all over the nation, mainly those in the large cities where Sentinel sites were to be erected, wrote to their senators and representatives demanding some kind of action be taken to prevent the employment of the Sentinel sites. The Defense Department heeding the hue and cry decided to review the matter and, at present, are looking into the merits of this system and possible alternative projects.

The main trouble lies in the intent of the project and its practicalities.

that this is just a system to keep out future Red Chinese missiles and has said that the Sentinel "...adds to our overall defense capability." His statements lead one to believe that any system will also be aimed at defending against a Soviet attack or possibly to gain prestige at a negotiating table on disarment sometime in the future.

But many senators, representatives and citizens believe that such a basic system, not only will lead to a bigger, more elaborate system, with outlays eventually totalling $50 billion or more but also will lead to a further spiraling of the arms race.

On the surface, it seems that the decision to review the system was a sincere one in the light of excessive disapproval. But a reasoning behind Defense Secretary Melvin

HOWARD GABE

R. Laird's decision to look into the system may have been that it was increasingly unlikely that further money for deployment would be approved by the Senate.

However, whether for political reasons or not, the pause will bring up some points.

The billions of dollars going into Sentinel might be used to improve the conditions in some of our nations ghettoes or go toward reducing poverty on a large scale. At a time when the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty is to be considered and probably passed by Congress, the stage does not seem to be set for another increase in the arms

In view of the crisis in the Middle East, the invasion of Czechoslovakia and the troubles of NATO, the need for a thorough review of Sentinel is urgent--so urgent that we cannot wait "until hell freezes -- The Editors over."

of the jangling confusion of voices on university campuses across the world, I have been trying to find a few statements and positions--perhaps three or four--that would light up the rest. My assumption is that where once the street barricades were the arena for revolutionary struggle, and at another time the factories, and still another the ghetto or inner city, today the campus has become the principal arena. The antiwar cause, the black power cause, the New Left cause, the generational struggle--all the crucial confrontations of our time--seem to have converged on the hate. Dr. Hare was blurting out what many revolutionaries--whether New Left or black power--think and believe. A time for hate because only thus will it be a time for revolution. I admire Dr. Hare's candor in declaring that to solve the problems of American society the Afro-Americans "must first blackwash--revamp--the existing educational system and revolutionize America's youth, black, yellow, brown and white." No talk here of "democracy" or "equality," no appeals to the principles of Jefferson or Lincoln. Only hate and revolution, with the blacks as carriers of both.

The small revolutionary group at the London School of Economics--not black but mostly white--puts the matter in somewhat different language. One of their leaflets, which stirred an England highly conscious of its scant resources on which scholarship grants are made, called for "creative vandalism." Discovering how little response there was from the overwhelming majority of students, one of the leaders of the small band lamented the lack of militancy. "These are no revolutionaries," he said scornfully. One thinks of the number of times in history when the same frustrated comment was aimed at factory workers, farmers or soldiers who failed to show the revolutionary fervor that in theory they were supposed to show.

A revolutionary situation, Lenin wrote, exists when the rulers are no longer able to rule and the ruled are no longer willing to be ruled. This may be too simple in its second half. Recent theory has stressed the need for two ngredients in a revolutionary situation: an inflammatory flint and an inflammable tinder or fuel, a mass ready to be stirred and a small intellectual group ready to stir it

In the American situation, the New Left leaders, while uneasy about the harsh separatism of the black power groups, nevertheless welcome the black ghetto masses as a revolutionary base. But to stir them, one needs a revolution-conscious intellectual group. Hence, the struggle for control of the campus.

Thus one gathers that it is not only a time for hate and a time for revolution but also a time for indoctrination. It is at this point that the two groups--New Left and black power--part company.

The New Left feels that the existing faculty and curriculum are weighted toward the status quo, while the black power group feels they are weighted toward white racism.

The New Left wants a hand in picking or rejecting faculty: hence, their current demand at the University of Chicago, where they have taken over the Administration Bldg., for an equal student share in the power of hiring and firing faculty. The black power group wants the total power of picking black faculty and students and thus controlling black studies programs. It is tragic that the healthy movement to enroll more Negro students in colleges, the healthy movement for teaching Afro-American studies (as embodied in the recent Harvard Report by a committee headed by Prof. Henry Rosovsky) and the healthy movement to win for students a greater share in campus decision have become embroiled in the efforts of black separatists and white revolutionaries to take them over and use them for their own purposes. The purpose is clear enough: to indoctrinate the whole new generation of college students, black and white, to create a "revolutionary situation." Not only won't it work . it will also cruelly compromise and distort the directions for healthy change in the society.

referring to our campuses but to your state homes.

I have visited both Pontiac and Lapeer state homes and nothing in the manner of the patients or the staff or these hospitals could be judged obscene. The obscenity lies instead in the neglect for these hospitals by the people of Michigan and their elected representatives. The obscenity, Sen. Huber, lies in the actions of a state senator decrying nudity on campus while people in some state mental hospitals are forced, because of a lack of clothes, to go naked in buildings so cold that the toilets freeze up (source: Detroit Free Press). The obscenity lies in the representatives of the people voting themselves pay raises and erecting extravagant new buildings--while the paint peels off of Pontiac's dining room walls, and the severely retarded go understaffed at Lapeer. The obsecenity. Sen. Huber, lies in only three state congressmen out of over two hundred invited, showing up at Pontiac to see these conditions first-hand, and then these same two hundred plus legislators feeling informed enough to deny the state hospitals adequate funds.

The ultimate obscenity lies in the face of an lonely old woman tied to her wheel chair by bed sheets, sadly lacking the individual attention in which lies her only comfort and hope.

The obsecuity, Sen. Huber, lies all about you. You can continue coming to this campus to talk to us in all sincerity, but I for one will find it hard to respond

A note of thanks

To the Editor:

On behalf of the residents of South Complex, I would like to thank Roy Nichols and his assistants for the success of the South Complex Ski Weekend. The entire weekend was organized and operated in an efficient, professional manner.

Roy and his crew gave up much of their time to make certain that everyone had his lift ticket, meal ticket, room reservation, etc. Everything from ski rental to transportation had been taken care of in advance.

Roy is organizing two more ski weekends this term, and I encourage those who did participate in this one to take advantage of one of those remaining.

Empty promises

To the Editor

When I was a naive high school senior. I remember sitting in a classroom and listening to an admissions officer telling of the glories of MSU. Perhaps one of the most important things I heard him say was "If you get to MSU and have financial difficulty staying in school. we will find a way to keep you here.

Such is not the case! I, like many students, must rely on the money of others to get my education, i.e., I rely on MSU's financial aids. I was very happy as a freshman to find MSU willing to give me a $700 grant and a $360 loan. But now that I am a sophomore, I find that the attitudes of MSU have changed, while my financial needs have not. After weeks of

If I am to continue here, I must pay. And if I can't pay, I must leave. I may stall for a month on my payment, but if the aid doesn't come through I'm stuck. And I have wasted my time. If the 'U' is going to help keep people here, then I suggest that it does do. If not, then I wish that these promises of a fine future at MSU be abandoned in favor of a more truthful policy.

Progress report I do not want to convey the impression that no progress has been made. That's simply not true at all. Unemployment statistics (although blacks are still twice as likely to be unemployed as whites) show that more black people are working than there were 10 years ago and that the median income increase for blacks has been larger than that of whites over the last ten years, but that median remains considerably below the white median.

Furthermore, the most glowing proof that progress has been made, I state facetiously, is that the Kerner investigations of 1968 show that "only" 14,000,000 Americans now believe that the "Negro" is biologically inferior. this would require the entire space of this publication, not just the 150 typewritten lines I was told I could have.

But, let me pose a few questions that will allow you to decide whether MSU has kept pace with the efforts of society to provide wider opportunity.

black faculty members has MSU had in the last 10 years? Black employes

-During the golden age of civil rights, how many black athletic coaches, cheerleaders, team managers and the like has MSU had? -Does MSU contract with only equal opportunity employers for building, food and maintenance support? Do these employers have apprenticeship programs for minority workers?

-Does MSU deal with real estate dealers who disciminate in their practices?

-What have schools, colleges and departments done during the last 10 years to change course syllabi and texts to be more accurately reflective of the continuing contributions black people have made to this society and to worl culture?

No eclectic interest MSU is an imperfect microcosm of society because it neither has the breadth nor the eclectic interests of society in general. Beside remaining faithful to the original script, "Lion" blends in some advanced technique seldom seen in epic-scale American movies. The atmosphere is medieval and the set of the film is an actual 12th century castle in France. There is no cardboard sound stage or Hollywood glitter to detract from the dramatic development. Development into a major governing group has resulted in a new constitution for Panhellenic Council, the governing body for sororities at MSU.

"Now that Panhellenic Council is considered a major governing group, we felt it necessary to adopt a more legallyoriented constitution, instead of the rush-oriented one we are now functioning under," Judy Campbell, president of Panhellenic Council, said.

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (CPS)--A special committee set up to investigate the Purdue University Exponent has declared that the campus press should be free from external restraints,. virtually vindicating the paper and its editor, who had been fired by the school administration.

The committee of faculty, students and administrators supported a resolution of Sigma Delta Chi professional journalism society, opposing censorship of any kind and urging the "highest professional judgment and responsiblity in determining good taste.'

Under a plan recommended by the committee, the Exponent would be incorporated as a separate entity run by a board of staff members, students and taculty.

The faculty and student members, however, would be chosen by their respective representative bodies--a plan opposed by the Exponent staff because it would take much of their autonomy as a paper away.

The recommendations will be considered by the Purdue board of trustees.

The Exponent became enbroiled in controversy over use of four-letter words, an issue the committee effectively skirted. It did say the school administration should keep hands off literary works.

Exponent editor William Smoot was summarily fired by Purdue President Frederick L. Hovde after he printed a poem and column containing alleged "obscenities." He was later reinstated.

The entire Purdue controversy is spotlighted in an article on the campus press in the Feb. 18 Look magazine.

Study at Rutgers said. "In many countries like Italy and France alcohol is an integral part of the culture. In the United States 70 per cent of the adult population drinks. This means that the majority of the young people must be taught to drink in a manner acceptable to society.'

Children learn from their elders. If they continually see their parents drunk they soon will deshock. After this step comes velop the attitude that such conduct is acceptable.

"Children should be exposed to alcohol gradually," Zucker said. "Alcoholic beverages, such as wine during a meal, will acquaint children with the taste of the beverage and serve to remove some of the attraction of alcohol caused by lack of knowledge about it."
