

Garskof's classes canceled, given 'full-time research' post

By CHRIS MEAD
Executive Reporter

Approximately 400 students showed up for Psychology 151 Wednesday only to discover that the section had been cancelled and that Bertram Garskof, asst. professor of psychology, would not be teaching this term.

An official statement released by the department explained that Garskof's originally scheduled Psychology 151 course would be offered under a different instructor because "Dr. Garskof preferred to do research this term."

Garskof said that the decision by the Dept. of Psychology that he do "full-time research" this term was in no way his decision and was the result of a series of academic harassments.

Garskof said the department's statement was an "unmitigated lie."

In a letter to Garskof earlier this month, Lawrence I. O'Kelly, chairman of the Dept. of Psychology, affirmed the right of the department "to exercise a collective control over its course offerings."

When the students discovered that Garskof's section had been cancelled, they protested to the department. The department chairman then agreed to reopen the section under another instructor.

Garskof, who was the subject of a term-long controversy during winter term, was dismissed in January by Clarence L. Winder, dean of the College of Social Science.

The original two-year, non-tenure contract offered to Garskof was revoked by the dean's decision, and Garskof said that Winder at the time asked that the Psychology Dept. relieve him of his teaching duties.

Garskof said that about this time the Psychology Undergraduate Instruction Committee, of which he is a member, began questioning his teaching of the 151 course. Andrew M. Barclay, asst. professor of psychology and chairman of the committee, then asked Garskof if he wanted to go on full-time research and forego teaching 151.

Garskof turned down the offer and was then told that if he wished to teach, he should be required to submit a course outline by Feb. 25.

"I was told that all instructors would be asked to turn in an outline, but as far as I know, no one else has been asked," he said.

Garskof submitted a copy of his course outline which offered students wide latitude both in choosing the program they would pursue and in democratic participation in class procedure.

Gorden Wood, co-ordinator of Psychology 151, told him that the decision was in the hands of the department faculty.

"At that point, I said to heck with this," Garskof said.

On March 3, Garskof sent a letter to O'Kelly requesting full-time research status on the grounds that he could not

PRESIDENTIAL SELECTION

Process begins to name members for committee

By MARILYN PATTERSON
State News Staff Writer

Various University organizations are now preparing to name representatives to the presidential search and selection committee.

The search and selection committee will assist the trustees in gathering nominations and screening candidates for president. It will include four faculty members, one administrator, one undergraduate student, one graduate student, one black student, one black faculty member, one alumnus, one faculty member of Oakland University and the chairman of the Steering Committee of the Faculties.

Establishment of the committee was the primary recommendation of the Taylor Report which was recently approved by the board of trustees and the Academic Senate.

ASMSU opened petitioning Wednesday for the student position on the committee. Petitioning will be open until April 4.

"The only requirement is that the student representative be in the area summer term," Tom Samet, ASMSU junior representative-at-large, said Wednesday.

Although the Taylor Report specifies that the undergraduate representative may be the ASMSU board chairman, the board chairman will probably not serve.

"I doubt that the board chairman will be on the search and selection committee because there will be a new chairman chosen this term, and he will have a lot to do organizing his work here," Pete Ellsworth, board chairman, said.

The student board will probably name the undergraduate representative on April 8, Ellsworth said.

The Council of Graduate Students named Walt Chappel, East Lansing graduate student, as its representative.

The Alumni Assn. will choose an alumni representative "hopefully by April 1," Jack Kinney, president of the Alumni Assn., said.

The black student and faculty representatives have been chosen, but the names have not yet been released.

The Faculty Senate of Oakland University is in the final stages of naming its representative.

The selection is being made by the entire faculty, William Sturmer, chairman of the Faculty Senate, said, and the election results will be in by the end of this week or the beginning of next week.

The MSU faculty and administrative representatives will be chosen Tuesday by the Academic Council, Dale E. Hathaway, chairman of the Steering Committee of the Faculties, said.

Elected faculty members of the council received Wednesday a slate of eight candidates for the four faculty positions and two candidates for the one administrative position.

Sources predict Senate will OK Hannah soon

President Hannah's appointment as director of the Agency for International Development (AID) will receive Senate approval "within a week," Capitol Hill sources said Wednesday.

Hannah, who is scheduled to retire as MSU president April 1, has completed testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The committee has not yet reported a recommendation on the appointment of the Senate.

The sources did not foresee any problem in getting the appointment out of committee and onto the Senate floor.

"There is no question that the appointment will be approved very quickly," one source said.

Hannah has frequently been in Washington during the past several weeks to familiarize himself with the AID post. AID department heads have been briefing him on programs.

Hannah is no stranger to AID. During his tenure as president, MSU has provided personnel and technical assistance for several AID projects.

The transition period between Hannah and his permanent successor will begin

April 1, when Walter Adams, newly elected acting president, takes office.

Hannah said that once he retires, he will not volunteer suggestions to Adams from the background.

"Nothing is more of a hindrance," he said, "than the old president standing in the wings giving advice."

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon, formally asking a one-year extension of the ten per cent income tax surcharge, told Congress Wednesday he is caught in a budget bind but will try to outdo the Johnson administration in holding down federal spending.

Nixon held out the possibility in a special message that the surtax could yet be repealed if the Vietnam war ends and inflationary pressures ease.

Nixon, detailing what he termed a fundamental counterattack against the "economic aggression" of inflation, said the budget outlook has deteriorated since former President Lyndon B. Johnson submitted spending and revenue estimates in January.

But even while reporting that half the Johnson-envisioned budget surplus next year of $3.4 billion would disappear under present circumstances, Nixon pledged vigorous economies with the aim of winding up even further in the black than his predecessor had anticipated.

"MSU is one of the great universities in the country, and I'm sure in their orderly process they'll get a president who will meet their needs," Williams said in a conversation with Lansing radio station WILS.

"I know they want to do this in their own fashion and I don't want to intrude in any way," the former six-term Democratic governor said.

Williams and his wife, Nancy, plan to leave Manila April 7 travel through Asia and Europe and return to the United States at the beginning of June.

"It will be good to be back home with the best people in the world," he said.

Doctors term Ike's status 'still critical'

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower was reported Wednesday still in critical condition from his latest heart crisis.

But his Army doctors said that while it is uncertain how long the general can endure his current onslaught of congestive heart failure, he is not necessarily near death.

They once again reminded newsmen of Eisenhower's "inherent stamina" which they said has enabled him to weather many major illnesses in the past 14 years.

Walter Reed Army Hospital physicians said in their morning medical bulletin:

"General Eisenhower's condition remains critical. He slept comfortably through most of the night. Evidences of congestive heart failure persist despite the fact that all appropriate therapeutic measures are being utilized. He continues to enjoy brief visits with members of the immediate family."

Nixon feeling budget bind, asks surcharge extension

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon, formally asking a one-year extension of the ten per cent income tax surcharge, told Congress Wednesday he is caught in a budget bind but will try to outdo the Johnson administration in holding down federal spending.

Nixon held out the possibility in a special message that the surtax could yet be repealed if the Vietnam war ends and inflationary pressures ease.

Nixon, detailing what he termed a fundamental counterattack against the "economic aggression" of inflation, said the budget outlook has deteriorated since former President Lyndon B. Johnson submitted spending and revenue estimates in January.

Administration sources suggested Nixon will aim for a budget surplus of at least $4 billion in the 1970 fiscal year that begins July 1. To achieve that, they suggested, he would have to chop federal spending programs by $2.5 billion or more.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Congress' price for extending the surtax would be a $10 billion cut in requested appropriations and a $5 billion cut in actual federal spending.

And Congress should take the responsibility of directing some of the cuts, Mansfield said in an interview, rather than leave that burden to Nixon as it did to Johnson last year when the surtax was enacted.

Mansfield said he believes Nixon made a difficult decision in asking for the extension.

"But with the Vietnamese war and other expenditures still on our backs," the Montana senator said, "he probably didn't have much choice."

House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., and Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., both predicted Congress will approve the tax extension.

Nixon declared "the problem of inflation was neglected far too long," and

WIC doubts AUSJ's power to enjoin new MHA president

By DELORES MAJOR
State News Staff Writer

Women's Inter-residence Council (WIC) issued a statement Wednesday questioning the legality of the All-University Student Judiciary's (AUSJ) injunctive power involving the recent Men's Hall Assoc. elections.

AUSJ had issued an injunction enjoining the installation of the new MHA president, Robert Loerke.

The legality of Loerke's election was challenged March 4 by John Engler, president of East Shaw Hall, on the basis that Loerke was not a member of MHA and was not living in a residence hall.

However, since then, Loerke has moved on campus.

It was after Engler's charge that the AUSJ issued an injunction against MHA denying Loerke the right to take office as MHA president this spring term.

WIC has decided not to contest the legality of the MHA election but is questioning the authority of AUSJ's injunctive power.

Angry students at WMU present demands to Miller

A group of dissident students at Western Michigan University presented WMU's president, James W. Miller, a list of eight demands in a stormy meeting Sunday night.

Top of the list was the student's request for an investigation of a proposed boost in tuition. Miller, who has been mentioned as a possible successor to President Hannah, said the tuition increase would be needed even if the legislature approves Gov. Milliken's appropriation for WMU.

"There is little possibility the legislature will appropriate funds sufficient for our needs," the president said in a statement.

The students asked Miller to delay acting on the tuition increase until a student-faculty fact-finding commission could review the financial records. Miller pledged "to keep tuition as low as possible" and added, "I will be most pleased to meet with any group of students to explain the university's financial situation."

- 5) Unconditional reinstatement of Linda Lamphear (a student who interrupted her political science class to announce a meeting) and dropping of all disciplinary measures now being enforced against students.
- 6) Abolition of general and physical education course requirements.
- 7) Giving students equal voting rights on the faculty senate.

Reacting to these other demands, Miller said there was a need to restudy and redefine rules, not to abolish them.

"To eliminate rules would be to disregard rights," he said, "and this should not be permitted to occur."

The president said he has no plans to eliminate disciplinary boards, housing regulations or to allow students to rule on appointments of new faculty. "Only the faculty is competent to judge the professional qualifications of prospective faculty members," he said.

The student's intended reaction to the denial of their demands remains unknown.

- The seven other demands were:
- 1) Abolition of all disciplinary agents.
 - 2) No restrictions on student parking.
 - 3) Equal use of all campus facilities for all.
 - 4) Abolition of all student housing regulations.

REGENTS DECISION U-M abolishes phys ed rules

By BARB PARNES State News Staff Writer

The abolishment of the one-year physical education requirement at the University of Michigan, with a retroactive provision, was verbally agreed upon Friday by the U-M Regents.

The passage of the official written proposal at next month's regular meeting of the regents will only be a formality.

"When you lose something which you believe is vital necessary, it is an amputation. Livee said.

He noted that the physical education department is presently revising its courses. new program will include educational bowling, golf, dance among other activities.

It will also feature new sports such as skin diving and scuba diving.

The Regents declined to act on a proposal at Friday's meeting which would have abolished the requirement only for students entering U-M on or after June 1, 1969. Vice president for academic affairs, Allen F. Smith, author of the original proposal, will revise his proposal to include all U-M students, including those graduating this May.

Livee believes that the abolishment of the requirement result in a decrease in the number of students taking physical education courses, but this not cause a reduction in the size of the department. He said the result will more likely be a decrease in the size of classes.

Smith, at the request of the regents, will also remove from his original proposal a provision requiring all entering freshmen to undergo testing and counseling by the physical education department. These services will be made optional to students in Smith's new proposal.

At MSU Gale Mikles, chairman of the professional curriculum of the Dept. of Physical Education and Recreation, reacted to the act at U-M by saying: "That's the business."

Mikles believes that the present arrangement concerning physical education at MSU satisfactory. He said that charge of "compulsion" can be applied to any university requirement.

Smith said that the idea of abolishing the requirement first came under consideration last year when an advisory committee began to "explore the situation." The recommendation to abolish the requirement came mainly because of the "element of compulsion" it entails, Smith said.

He noted that the idea of abolishing the physical requirement at MSU comes up periodically, the last time having been two years ago.

Miss Carol Harding, director of Women's intramurals, said that there are definite advantages for maintaining the present physical education requirement at MSU.

A voluntary program of physical activity will be promoted by the University, Smith believes that such a program can be "just as effective" as the former required program.

Howard C. Livee, professor of physical education and director of required programs at U-M, compared the regent's decision to an amputation.

Miss Harding pointed out the required program for students to become acquainted with the athletic facilities, the University which can lead students to further participation in athletics beyond the requirements.

Spring Carnival dates advanced

By ROSANNE BAIME State News Staff Writer

Spring Carnival Weekend, a four-day series of events originally scheduled for May 22-25, has been moved forward to the previous week, May 15-18.

Highlight of the weekend will be Water Carnival, an annual pageant of floats on the Red Cedar River.

Hal Evans, Spring Carnival Weekend general chairman, announced Wednesday that the weekend was being advanced due to the unavailability of bleachers for the Water Carnival audience.

The decision was made Wednesday to drop the midway from Spring Carnival Weekend rather than leave the weekend in its original dates. This would make it necessary to cancel Water Carnival this year since no stands would be available.

Members of the Water Carnival committee decided Wednesday that the loss of the midway would not detract sufficiently from the weekend to justify canceling the pageant.

The bleachers will be used that weekend for the Michigan Class A High School track meet.

In addition to being advanced one week, several other events will be included.

Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, will speak in the Auditorium May 16 in the ASMSU Great Issues lecture series to kick off the Water Carnival weekend.

Also included will be the Union Board's Thieves' Market, originally scheduled May 25 and moved to May 18.

A number of events have been dropped from the weekend's agenda.

Originally the Union Board's Mad Hatter's Midway was to be scheduled. The midway was slated to run May 22-24, with rides set up in the parking lot across from Abrams Planetarium and games and concessions in the Shaw parking ramp.

When Water Carnival could no longer run on the original dates, Bob May, in charge of the midway for the Union Board, was unable to reschedule midway rides for the new weekend.

SELECTION COMMITTEE

Student petitioning open

By SHARON TEMPLETON State News Staff Writer

Open petitioning for the undergraduate representative to the presidential search and selection committee will continue through April 3.

The ASMSU Board announced at their meeting Tuesday night that two undergraduates will be chosen, one representative and an alternate.

The Taylor Report on search and selection of a university president specifically names the chairman of the ASMSU Board as the student representative.

However, Pete Ellsworth, board chairman, said he doubts whether the new chairman will be the student representative.

"We have decided that since the position as representative to the presidential committee will require a great deal of time, the chairman of the board will be too busy with spring term projects to devote enough time to the committee," Ellsworth said.

The representative will be selected from petitions submitted by undergraduates and open nominations of board members.

The ASMSU Board is presently working on a list of criteria for the representative and others who will assist him.

A research staff and a large group of students will work with the representative to get ideas from the student body about the presidential selection and what kind of university the students want.

Formal and informal forms will be distributed to students to determine student reaction and ideas about University policies.

"The idea is to get as many students as possible involved in both the selection of the new president and the formulation of University policies," Ellsworth said.

"The selection of the president is important because he is the one who will set the pace for what kind of university we will have for the next 10 to 15 years," he said.

Student ideas and reactions will serve as feedback to the undergraduate representative to the presidential search and selection committee.

Petitions may be picked up in 334 Student Services Bldg.

Other positions on the presidential search and selection committee include four faculty members, one administrator, one graduate student, one black student, one black faculty member, one alumni, one faculty member of Oakland Community College and the chairman of the Faculty Steering Committee.

In other action at the ASMSU board meeting Tuesday night, Ellsworth announced that there will be no female member-at-large representative on the board to replace Paulette Gross who left school last term.

The board eliminated the position of female member-at-large last term with the replacement of two general members-at-large positions.

Paul Graf, vice president for public relations, announced at the meeting that the ASMSU-sponsored trip to the Bahamas over spring break was a success and that a profit of $200 was made.

"Almost everyone was pleased with the trip. Over 65 per cent said they would like to return next year," Graf said.

Travellers suggested Acapulco, Jamaica and Spain as possible vacation spots for next year's spring vacation.

The board also passed a proposal that the secretary of ASMSU make a list of the names and addresses of state congressmen, Michigan Congressmen and MSU trustees to be distributed to the student body.

The purpose of the list would be to stimulate students to write to their representative and voice opinions about current issues such as the 18-year-old vote, university appropriations and the Vietnam war.

Council hopeful: meet city voters

The four candidates for the East Lansing City Council will be available to meet East Lansing residents at 8 p.m. Monday in MacDonald Middle School, 1601 Burcham Drive.

The candidates running for four-year terms for two available seats are Donald E. Ehle, 613 Orchard St.; Robert L. Phillips, 405 Oxford Road; Mary P. Sharp, 950 Audubon Road; and Robert Jay Wilcox, 1861 E. Ridgewood Drive.

The meeting is sponsored by the League of Women Voters and the East Lansing Republican and Democratic clubs.

Also on the April 7 ballot are candidates for municipal judge, associate municipal judge and constable.

William K. Harmon, 467 M. land Drive, is running unopposed for municipal judge while positions of associate municipal judge and constable are open for write-in candidates.

Also on the ballot is a $480,000 bond issue for purpose of defraying the cost of acquiring, developing and proving land for use as public parks and improving existing parks.

Gen. David M. Shoup, former Marine Corps commandant, says "an aggressive military" encouraged the Johnson administration to wage a war in Vietnam in 1964 and to abandon long-standing opposition to involvement in an Asian land conflict.

Writing for the March 27 issue of Atlantic Monthly, Shoup portrayed the four services "belligerent" and "glory seeking" leaders competing with one another to play big roles in Vietnam. Shoup said it now appears the Navy had plans to bomb North Vietnam before the alleged Tonkin Gulf incident took place. Shoup decried the U.S. bombing campaign as "one of the most wasteful and expensive hoaxes ever to be put over on the American people."

"Top ranking Army officers," Shoup said, "wanted to commit forces for a variety of reasons, among them to test plans, new equipment and tactics." The Marines had similar motivations "the least of which was any real concern about the political or social problems of the Vietnamese people," Shoup wrote.

Martial law tranquilizes Pakistan

KARACHI (AP) — Martial law imposed by Gen. Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan gave Pakistan its first quiet day Wednesday since the outbreak of political violence last November.

Under the threat of stiff penalties, including whipping, imprisonment and even execution, Pakistanis ended the violent antigovernment agitation that had brought this Moslem nation of 120 million to the brink of civil war.

The new military dictator assured them in a 10-minute broadcast that he aimed just at eliminating "this state of near anarchy" and preparing for free elections.

Under one of 25 martial law regulations promulgated by Yahya, anyone taking part in a strike can be sentenced by a special military court to 14 years' imprisonment.

Education officials in many cities announced that schools and colleges would reopen next week for the first time since last November. Students had walked out to lead protest marches against President Mohammed Ayub Khan's 10-year-old regime.

Ayub, who resigned and turned over power to Yahya Tuesday, officially began three months of leave at his residence in Rawalpindi, the capital.

In his broadcast, 16 hours after taking over the reins of government, the mustachioed general, who is 52, pledged that he has no political ambitions.

"Fellow countrymen, I wish to make it absolutely clear to you that I have no ambition other than the creation of conditions conducive to the establishment of a constitutional government," Yahya said in slow, measured, precise tones.

Yahya gave no indication how long martial law would last, but he expressed the hope that power eventually would be transferred "to the representatives of the people elected freely and impartially on the basis of adult franchise."

Elections based on adult franchise, rather than through the indirect electoral college of Ayub's 120,000 Basic Democrats, had been a major demand of the opposition.

Yahya did not ban political parties—something that Ayub had done in 1958 when martial law was last imposed, for 44 months.

East Pakistan, scene of mob some lynchings, was reported quiet with crowds moving freely through Dacca, the provincial capital, without incident.

An indication of return to normalcy in the eastern wing, separated from the west by 1,000 miles of Indian territory, was the reopening of Dacca University—a seat of student agitation.

Gov. Mirzo Huda told a news conference Tuesday in Dacca the situation was distinctly improved. He said the army had been reinforced to help civil authorities maintain order.

Huda said 111 violent deaths had been reported in East Pakistan since last December. 55 of them from police action. Unofficial estimates ran as high as 700.

While troops in full battle gear guarded key installations, such as radio stations and government buildings, few soldiers were seen on the streets.

In what appeared to be only a token display of force, a few armored personnel carriers patrolled Rawalpindi's main highway and truckloads of troops, armed with machine guns, drove through Karachi.

Military authorities did not report any violent incidents. Yahya laid down a maximum punishment of death by hanging for persons convicted of destroying public property, smuggling, damaging vital installations or attacking members of the armed forces.

Anyone criticizing martial law can receive up to 10 years' imprisonment.

DEFENSE DEMANDS

Symington sees change in budgetary influences

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stuart Symington, once considered so much a part of the military establishment he was labeled the "senator from the Air Force," says Congress is no longer prone to take the word of the Pentagon.

"In the past," Symington said in an interview, "we have been more prone to take the words of a combination of the civilian and military in the Pentagon. I think this year there may be even too far a swing the other way for some items."

The onetime Air Force secretary is the only senator who is a member of both the Armed Services and the Foreign Relations committees. He thus carries credentials from the two Senate committees that often represent contrary views on war and peace.

"But I believe being the only member of either party on both these committees, I think it's been a good thing for me because I'm certain in my own mind I would feel more dovish if I were only on Foreign Relations and more hawkish if I were only on Armed Services."

There was a time when Symington was considered, possibly unfairly, to be a super-hawk clutching megaton bombs.

But the tall, gray, well-tailored senator has become critical of the war and of the ABM deployment proposals, skeptical of the merit and costs of the nation's far-flung military bases and commitments, and unhappy over the free use of secrecy labels.

Ann Arbor police hunt murder clues

ANN ARBOR (UPI) — The fourth girl slain in the Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti area since the summer of 1967 was last reported alive more than 24 hours before she was beaten to death, authorities said Wednesday.

Police sought to trace Maralynn Skelton, 16, from a shopping center telephone booth Saturday afternoon to a wooded area near a lover's lane where her battered body was found by construction workers Tuesday.

Miss Skelton, a high school drop-out who had just moved with her parents from the Detroit suburb of Romulus to Flint, came to Ann Arbor Saturday, investigators said.

A friend, Sharon Santuci, 17, told police that Maralynn telephoned her from an Ann Arbor shopping center about 4 p.m. and arranged to meet her at the student union at Eastern Michigan University in nearby Ypsilanti. She never arrived, Mrs. Santuci said.

No one reported seeing or hearing from Miss Skelton since, detectives said.

Miss Skelton was picked up by the Wayne County (Detroit) sheriff's officers twice, in November and earlier this month, in connection with narcotics investigation. A Detroit newspaper (the News) quoted a detective as saying she was an informer. Officers denied that she had appeared voluntarily or had provided other than routine information.

Her body was the fourth found within a 15-mile triangle in 20 months. But Ann Arbor police did not attribute all four slayings to the same killer or killers.

Last Friday, a woman who lives across the street from a cemetery east of Ypsilanti found the body of Jane L. Mixer, 23, a law student at the University of Michigan, in the cemetery.

Dairy prof to get Sigma Xi Award

An MSU professor of dairy science will receive MSU's Sigma Xi Junior Research Award today. The award is given annually to an outstanding scientist under 40 years of age.

Roy S. Emery's studies in nutrition have had wide application in the dairy industry. His current research is centered on milk composition and ways of increasing milk protein.

Emery, who has been with the faculty since 1955, was awarded the Feed Manufacturers Assoc. Award in 1961.

Vietnam, ABM document insanity

Two months into the Nixon Administration the battle lines have formed again. The "era of good feelings" between the President and Congress, Senate doves and hawks, liberals and conservatives, is over. And in its place has developed the "truth gap."

The "truth gap" is the synapse between the knowledge of 1) Defense Secretary Laird, the Pentagon and President Nixon and that of 2) the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Senate doves on Vietnam and liberals in general. It has come into focus from discussion of two issues: the ABM—now "Safeguard"—and the Vietnam war.

ABM opposition

There are quite a few substantial arguments against the ABM or Safeguard system. Under the old ABM proposal, Spartan and Sprint missiles would have been placed around major cities as a defensive precaution against an ICBM strike from Communist China. There are many more facets to this project but, in general, the arguments against it were that it would eventually lead to a much bigger system primarily against the U.S.S.R., ranging from $50-100 billion; this money could be used to relieve poverty and malnutrition, rebuild the ghettos and reorient the welfare program; the system would spiral the arms race; and it might not work anyway.

With the Safeguard's protection of Minuteman missile stations, which are away from largely populated areas, the government thought it had plucked the golden apple. But Laird's testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee proved otherwise.

Senators respond

Senators Fulbright and Gore provided the ammunition to shoot down Mr. Nixon and Laird's contentions that Safeguard was an absolute necessity. When Laird professed that the Russians were going for a first strike capability with enormous 20-25 megaton warheads atop their SS-9 missiles, Sen. Fulbright accused him of trying to instill fear in the American people. The Senator was also annoyed that the executive branch of the government constantly made the Russians ten feet tall when it came to military matters, but in other areas said they were backward.

Another so-called fact of Laird's was that with about one half the number of ICBMs the Russians could inflict the same amount of losses we could in a thermonuclear war. Sen. Gore, in his main statement, alluded to this "fact" by reminding the defense secretary that we had an ample number of "offensive" missiles, including the Polaris and future Poseidons on board submarines, to inflict unacceptable losses to any belligerent.

Retaliatory folly

To further the argument against spending any money for an anti-ballistic missile system this thought should suffice. Assume the Soviet government or Communist Chinese government initiated a first strike against this country. This could only be done by accident or by an insane individual's command. Would it then make any humane sense to retaliate with our own nuclear arsenal and wipe out a few hundred million innocent people? We submit it would not and also submit that any further nuclear weapon development—either offensive or defensive—will lead the world to that point of no return when the "panic" button is pressed and we all go to Kingdom Come.

Furthermore what is really frightening is that this country's government is becoming insane—not only in regard to nuclear weaponry, but the Vietnam conflict.

Escalation: who, how much? The "truth gap" in the Vietnam war revolves around the assumption that the Vietcong and North Vietnamese are escalating the war and that Mr. Nixon's military advisors still feel we can win the war militarily thereby supposedly salvaging an "honorable" end to the conflict.

First, and foremost, there has been much evidence recently that following the bombing halt over North Vietnam last fall the allies, in major seek and destroy missions, escalated the fighting in South Vietnam. Therefore, many can now rationalize—perhaps honestly—that the Vietcong escalation was retaliatory in nature. We may never know for sure which side was originally responsible for the increased fighting and casualties but, at least, this new evidence may awaken some dormant discrepancies in the U.S. government's Vietnam policy.

Second, finally and with no hesitation, the war cannot be "won" militarily and any "honorable" solution is out of the question. If Mr. Nixon relies on his military advisors who contemplate victory around the corner, "Mr. Nixon's war" is right around the corner. Then there are those who are now allowing Mr. Nixon the rest of this year to uncover his plan for peace. Sen. McGovern, who wants the uncovering right now and not 10,000 deaths later, has our wholehearted blessings.

New directions

If there is no peace plan of Mr. Nixon that is different from Mr. Johnson's (obviously there is no peace plan, otherwise we would have seen it by now), there are a limited number of courses to follow. And the first of these is to start removing Americans from Vietnam today.

There should be no longrun commitment to support the present South Vietnam government because it is totally unworthy of it. Any government placed in power by the U.S., which sentences peace candidates and buddhist leaders to prison at hard labor, and is and will be unable to compromise politically with the Viet Cong in any future South Vietnamese government (incidentally which is a main reason we are having the Paris peace talks), does not deserve to remain in power.

It is now time to withdraw our men from Vietnam, leave the fighting to the South Vietnamese, and end the farce in the Paris peace talks.

It is time for this government to take the first step away from spiraling the nuclear arms race, proceed to negotiate in good faith with the Soviet Union in any nuclear arms talks and end the "fear campaign" now headed by Sec. Laird.

It is time to end the reflection and gradual nonsense this government has been following in Vietnam and on the ABM.

The campus crackdown thu

The suspenseful Nixon "crackdown" on college violence, which promised a big bang, has ended with a softish thud—which may be just as well, provided that the response of the college communities doesn't end with a whimper. I trust that the time will not come soon—although if the colleges act cravenly it may—when the federal government will be the only recourse left after the abdication of the college faculties and administrations. America is not Russia or China, not Poland or Cuba, nor even France, where education is under central control.

The two 1968 laws passed by Congress, whose aim was to deny federal scholarship aid to students found guilty of breaking local laws through campus disruption, came out of an understandable anguish of the lawmakers. But experience has shown how difficult they are to enforce, especially since they were badly drawn. HEW can't enforce them because it only hands out the money to the colleges and can't keep a record of who gets it. And the colleges, for various good and less good reasons, haven't been willing to enforce them.

Mr. Nixon must have figured out in time the limits of federal action and was wise to go slow. It will take some time for HEW Secretary Robert Finch and the department to agree with the college administration—if at all—on how they can work together in order to avoid federal intervention, yet also keep from the absurdity of having the nation subsidize campus disruption and destruction. Meanwhile, the President's broad statement of principles is probably the first of a succession, for while the tide of campus opinion has turned against the small minority of campus destroyers (as I suggested it would a month or two ago) it will be a long and tortured campaign of history before college and nation are in the clear.

The burden will rest on the college communities themselves. If the President and the faculty and student majorities, acting in concert, cannot form a consensus, achieve tripartite representation, reach tripartite decisions and enforce their own rules of the game, then no federal government will help them. They will be beyond the reach of help or honor or grace.

Some of them have done it and are doing it. The University of Chicago is one, in rightly suspending or expelling a nu of the students who seized the administration building. Columbia is another getting off to an uncertain start, the ulty has finally awakened to the fact, unless they hang together to defend freedom to teach and learn, they—and life of the mind—will all hang separate. The Harvard faculty, some of whom led the way in defending campus di tions ever since the fateful day when ert McNamara was besieged on the vard campus, have now shown that can learn from experience.

Even San Francisco State, where longest and most symbolic battle has en place, seems to be at the end of dark tunnel, emerging into daylight. ing President S. I. Hayakawa, long the get of abuse as a "dictator" from gr of students and their allies who sw the camel of Mao and Castro's regi has emerged from the turmoil with quiet strength unimpaired.

No one can call himself "winner" tragedy where everyone was the and the university almost bled to de But this writer, who has been a unive teacher for over 35 years, will not ly forgive or forget the abject failure many of the San Francisco facult gather around their colleague John zel when "student" goons broke up classes. I knew John Bunzel whd was still a student at Princeton, ra heaven and hell to bring the disinhe into their decent American inherita He deserved better than he got.

There are those who minimize the wring tactics on the campuses on the gr that only a few campuses have act been shut down and others only part paralyzed. What are they waiting for universal chaos? It was only at a few man universities that Nazi student tants broke up the classes of ish professors and those suspecte standing with them. For those sunk ganteel liberal complacency about wh takes to destroy the free functioning university I recommend some hard s of the Weimar decade of the 1920's early 1930's in Germany. Or can it be a classroom wrecker who was a Nazi r not be invoked when confronting one is a Maoist, Castroite, Bakunmist or dridge Cleaverite?

A university, like any highly devel social organism, is a thing delic wrought, fragile, fearfully vulner easily hurt—sometimes beyond re Any one who is eager to see it destr should say so. But let him stop pret ing that he has a concern for the com nity of the mind.

OUR READERS' MIND

Weeding out and indoctrination process?

To the Editor:

Everyone at MSU is forced to take ATL and Natural Science (except in few rare instances), regardless of his major or interests. Following are some direct quotes from Brody ATL and Natural Science teachers:

"Concerning sex-determining x and y chromosomes) "Current evidence has shown that sex is determined in a contrary method to that shown in the book. However, we will learn it the way our books have it."

"... the same type of socialism presented in The Jungle, by Eugene Debs." "This is a very creative and excellent paper, but you didn't follow my structure. I'm afraid you'll have to do it over. There is no room for originality in this course."

One black professor carries on a constant, blatant indoctrination program in his classes that "black is beautiful." He averages about two lectures a term which do not openly justify black militancy or bery the oppression of the black in America.

Another ATL instructor deliberately mocks students when they offer wrong interpretations in class, then chides the class for not responding to discussions.

I have already learned everything offered so far in University College courses in similar classes in high school. The only difference is that in high school, I had better trained teachers (my biology instructor held a doctorate), received better and more competent instruction, the material was related to my other studies and instead of taking the courses under force, I volunteered for them. Even the physical materials and lab experiments available in my high school science, biology, chemistry and physics classes were far superior to those here in Brody.

I contend that if a student feels the University College courses will be interesting to him or if the material will be relevant to other courses or future practical situations, he should be allowed to take them.

Otherwise, let him take English comp, biology or one of the dozens of other paral-el courses offered by the Natural Science and English Dept.

Or can the University College courses be part of that great "weeding out and in-

Vote in your local election

To the Editor:

Local elections are often overlooked by the public, even by those who would not miss voting in a national election. However, our lives are affected by government at the local level as well as at the national level. The well-being of MSU and the city of East Lansing are interrelated. Students wish to participate in the decision-making processes of the University. Should they not also take part in the larger community by being informed citizens and, when of age, voters?

'Outside agitators'

To the Editor:

Whenever protests occur on campuses or elsewhere, inevitably and immediately someone cites "outside agitators" as the cause. Such charges make it seem that the real devil has been spotted and that all remaining demonstrators are only lambs being led to the slaughter. Innocent, well-meaning, but dumb.

I disagree. Rereading the other night that noble essay by Martin Luther King, Jr., "Letter from Birmingham Jail," I thought your readers might be interested in these timely words from one who in his unselfish lifetime was forever being railed at as an "outside agitator":

"I am cognizant of the interrelatedness of all communities and states. I cannot sit idly by in Atlanta and not be concerned about what happens in Birmingham. Injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere. We are caught in an inescapable network of mutuality, tied in a single garment of destiny. Whatever affects one directly, affects all indirectly. Never again can we afford to live with the narrow, provincial 'outside agitator' idea. Anyone who lives inside the United States can never be considered an outsider anywhere within its bounds."

HOUSE BILL

'U' officials assess dimly proposal to tax graduates

By ED HUTCHISON
State News Staff Writer

University reaction is generally unfavorable to a recently introduced bill that would tax graduates of state-supported colleges and universities.

The bill, introduced in the House of Representatives Monday by Rep. Richard Allen, R-Ithaca, provides for yearly assessments of $100 to $300 depending on the degree received.

Trustee Kenneth R. Thompson, R-East Lansing, said he cannot accept the bill as a "reasonable approach" to tax those who have attended state-supported institutions.

"If this kind of legislation come into being, what else could the legislators tack on to us," he said. "We'd never be safe from taxes."

Trustee Warren Huff, D-Plymouth, said the bill looked like an "incentive in reverse to earning."

"It is a penalty for self-improvement, irrespective of the individual's ability to pay."

Just because a man improves himself doesn't mean he has a greater ability to pay," Huff said.

However, Milton B. Dickerson, vice president for student affairs, said the idea of taxing college graduates is good, provided that ramifications could be worked out on an equitable basis.

"I couldn't object to the principle," Dickerson said.

James Harrington, executive board member of the Lansing chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU), said there are enough college graduates in the state that would lead the bill to a "quick death."

Harrington is associate professor of agricultural engineering.

"If you tax a guy for improving his education, people aren't going to particularly want to improve their education," he said.

Harrington said the ACLU does not usually get "excited" about various legislation unless there is some problem after enactment.

"There are so many stupid bills introduced, the ACLU can't afford to get excited about them," Harrington said.

He predicted that the bill "will come to nothing at all."

John R. Kinney, executive director of the MSU Alumni Assn., said the bill seems unfeasible and "appears at first glance not realistic."

"I can't believe that our alumni on the colleges and universities would look kindly upon it, particularly the retroactive provision," Kinney said.

If passed, the bill would provide for assessments levied for 10 years, retroactive to 1955.

"We're in a shifting society; property tax was a good measure of obligations to society. But the presence of education is a much better measure of social obligation and responsibility..." Allen explained.

The Republican legislator considers the bill as a possible "new answer" to the financial pinch felt by university administrators and taxpayers.

Student Services

The ride board at the Union provides communication between riders and drivers traveling to and from the University. A U-M coed who was killed in Ann Arbor recently was traveling with a driver from the U-M ride board. There have been, however, no complaints about rides given or received from the MSU ride board.

Murder prompts ride board issue

By SUE REBECK
State News Staff Writer

The recent murder of a University of Michigan coed has caused some controversy over the security of rides received from campus ride boards.

The death of Jane Mixer, U-M law student, was connected with a ride that she received from the school's ride board. She was believed to be on her way home to Muskegon, but her body was found near Willow-run Airport near Ypsilanti.

Maureen R. Berger, director of MSU's Union activities, said, however, that she has heard no complaints about trouble that men or women have received from bad rides.

She also pointed out that there have been no complaints about obscene phone calls due to the posting of telephone numbers on the board.

Mrs. Berger explained that the Union is not responsible for booking rides for the students, but only provides the service and location. She hopes that students judge the rides they take, and Union Board will soon vote on including warnings with their service.

At first the ride board was provided for people needing rides, but time and growth have prompted change. The present ride board provides access for riders as well as for rides.

Paula Sikes, Warren junior and head of the Union's Internal Affairs Committee, is in the process of revising the ride board cards. Miss Sikes said that the only complaints she has received are that the board is not cleaned off often enough and that the cards are too vague.

Old cards are now removed from the board every Monday, and the cards will be made clearer. Miss Sikes hoped that the new cards would advise the students to check the rides before taking them.

Enemy mauls U.S.-led unit in 2-day battle near Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — In one of the biggest attacks of the current offensive, about 2,000 North Vietnamese mauled a U.S.-led South Vietnamese irregular battalion north of Saigon in a two-day battle that tapered off Wednesday.

The U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division sent 500 troopers into blocking positions about four miles north of the battlefield to try to cut off the North Vietnamese, but lack of contact indicated they had slipped away.

Since the enemy launched the offensive Feb. 23, rarely have more than 500 or so been committed to battle at any one time. The Communist command, conserving manpower, has instead intensified the shelling of military bases and cities.

But this attempt to overwhelm a position 30 miles north of Saigon indicated that the enemy may have been trying to clear the way for an assault on the big Bien Hoa Air base, 18 miles to the south. Only quick allied reaction saved the South Vietnamese from disaster.

The American lines and moved east.

In any case, the North Vietnamese showed that they still have fairly large units on the routes that lead to Saigon despite allied attempts to seek them out and destroy them.

Heavy fighting continued through the day and on Tuesday a reinforcing battalion of irregulars came under fire as it flew by helicopter into a nearby landing zone.

Efforts by the two battalions to link up failed when they were still some 500 yards apart and the first battalion, heavily mauled, splintered.

One U.S. officer said that the irregulars — well trained in Guerrilla tactics — used the Viet Cong system of breaking into small units to get away and head for the second battalion's perimeter. This is why many of the 150 listed as missing are expected to turn up in the area, he added.

South Vietnamese infantry units are positioned east and south of the battlefield with the U.S. troops to the north, and the landing zone held by the irregulars on the west.

Choir presents sacred concert

A sacred music concert will be presented by the A Cappella Choir of Rust College at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the University Methodist Church, 1118 S. Harrison Road. The concert is sponsored by Justin Morrill College and the University Methodist Church.

Rust College is a black Methodist college in Holly Springs, Miss., where MSU students and faculty have been involved in the STEP program.

MSU students and faculty have planned and raised funds for a Study Skills Improvement Institute for entering freshmen at Rust College each summer. Most of the members of the 35-voice choir have been participants in the program.

Tickets are available for $1 at the Union Ticket office or at the door.

Midgley to show film on Colorado

"Colorado—Today and Yesterday" will be shown at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the MSU Auditorium.

The World Travel Series film will be narrated by Stan Midgley, who has made photography his career.

In addition to scenic photography, the film will employ the trick photography that has earned Midgley the title as "The Mark Twain of the Camera."

Tickets will be available at the door.

Adoption group sponsors picnic

The Lansing Council on Adoptable Children (COAC) is sponsoring an indoor family picnic from 5:30-8 p.m. Saturday at the University Methodist Church, 1118 S. Harrison Road, East Lansing.

The picnic will give families who have adopted children an opportunity to meet socially. Professional workers in adoption and other families interested in adoption are invited to attend the picnic.

Each family is asked to bring chicken for its own members as well as a dish to share. Drinks will be provided and there will be entertainment for the children.

Anyone interested may contact Mrs. James Winchell, 332-8480, or Mrs. Ronald O'Neill, 337-1157, for information.

OCC petitioning

Petitioning for the 11 positions on Off Campus Council is being extended until April 4.

Students interested in working with OCC are asked to pick up a ballot and petition form in 310 Student Services Bldg.

Concerts, films spice spring

The beginning of spring term heralds the opening of a new "season" for MSU's Lecture-Concert, World Travel and International Film Series.

Jacob Lateiner, Grammy Award winning pianist, will perform selections by Schubert, Brahms and Roger Sessions at 8:15 p.m. Monday in the University Auditorium. Students will be admitted with Coupon E.

The Cleveland Orchestra when it performs at 8:15 p.m. April 15 in the Auditorium. Mozart, Berg, Debussy and Stravinsky will be on the program.

Gina Bachauer, pianist, will perform three programs this term. "Colorado - Today and Yesterday" will be presented by Stan Midgley at 8 p.m. tonight and Friday in the Auditorium. Alfred Wolff will present his film "Rural England" at 8 p.m. April 5 in the Auditorium, and "African Elephant," the story of a five-month one-man safari, will be narrated by Cleveland Grant at 8 p.m. April 19 in the Auditorium.

Single admission to the travel lectures is $1. Students are admitted with a validated I.D. card.

The International Film Series will present six film programs this term: a comedy, a drama, a biography of Christ, and three Kinetic Art Films presentations.

Spencer Tracy, Katharine Hepburn and Sidney Poitier can be seen in "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner" at 7:30 tonight in the Auditorium. Directed by Stanley Kramer, the movie is a comedy-drama on liberals and interracial marriages.

"The Greatest Story Ever Told," the story of Christ from birth to resurrection, will be shown at 7:30 p.m. April 2 and 3 in the Auditorium. Max Von Sydow stars.

Czechoslovakia's "The Shop on Main Street" features Ida Kaminska and Joseph Kroner under the direction of Jan Kadar and Elmar Klos.

Three Kinetic Art Film Programs will present a panoramic survey of the latest achievements in creative cinema. Each program will present a diverse group of animated, experimental, pop, documentary and dramatic short films.

Interested persons may sign up in the Union Board Office, second floor Union, or call 355-3555.

will show films from America, Italy, Germany, Czechoslovakia, France, Yugoslavia and Japan, and will be presented at 7:30 p.m. March 1 in the Auditorium. Program No.2 will include works of cinema from Yugoslavia, Hungary, Japan, France and England, and will be shown at 7:30 p.m. May 2 in the Auditorium. Czech, American, Japanese, French and German film artists contributed to Kinetic Art Program No.3, which will be shown at 7:30 p.m. May 8 in the Auditorium and at 7:30 and 9:15 p.m. May 9 in Fairchild Theatre.

European flights ready for sign up

The Union Board flights to Europe for the summer of 1969 have been scheduled and are now available to students.

For 13 years the Union has chartered flights to send students to Europe cheaper than they could afford individually. Students, faculty and staff members are eligible to take advantage of this service. The immediate family of the applicant can be included; there is no charge for children under two.

Two flights will be available this year. An eight-week flight, leaving June 27 and returning Aug. 26, will cost $233 round trip. A 12-week flight, leaving June 24 and returning Sept. 16, will be $204.

Participants will fly Detroit to London and return to Detroit on Caledonian jets provided by the Scottish airline.

Each flight has a 186-person capacity, but the eight-week trip is expected to be filled by the end of the week. People in the AMLEC program may fit the Union flights into their tours. Justin Morrill College has requested some seats on the flight, and the others may be filled by people wanting to travel on their own.

Zarid Sarkisian, Birmingham sophomore and student director of flights, has worked in conjunction with the Washburne Travel Center in East Lansing. If students would like, planned tours, the Washburne agency will arrange them to concur with the flights.

Interested persons may sign up in the Union Board Office, second floor Union, or call 355-3555.

State Dept. cites possible big four talks on Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The State Dept. said in effect Wednesday that continued bilateral contacts between the big four have "now reached the position where we can see more clearly the possibility of opening of four-power talks" in the Middle East.

State Dept. press officer Robert J. McCloskey cautioned, however, "there is no agreement yet" on a date beginning such a conference by the United States, Russia, Britain and France.

The spokesman made this statement after a conference between Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin and Joseph J. Sisco, asst. secretary of state for the Near East. This was the third meeting between the two in as many days this week.

Meanwhile it was learned that the United States had quietly dropped an earlier American proposal that a ceiling be put on arms shipments to the Middle East.

This proposal was one of the five "conditions for peacemaking" advanced by former President Lyndon B. Johnson immediately after the June 1967 Arab-Israeli war. It was not contained in the latest set of U.S. proposals submitted last Monday to the British, French and Soviet representatives at the United Nations.

It was recognized, the officials explained, that insisting on this proposal would make it extremely difficult for the Soviets to join the United States in searching together for a Middle East solution.

The new proposals are based on the other four points of the previous administration and on the November 1967 U.N. resolution. The other four points:

--Mutual recognition by Arabs and Israelis of the political independence and territorial integrity of the Middle East countries, including fixing of boundaries and withdrawal of occupation troops.

--Freedom of innocent maritime passage, meaning the free use of the Suez canal and other international waterways by Israeli vessels.

--A just solution of the Palestine refugee problem; and

--Recognition of the right of all states in the area to live in peace and security.

Joke upsets station, investigation hinted

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) -- Comedian Jerry Lewis has apologized for the joke about Mississippi, and the governor has accepted, but a television station is not ready to forgive and there is even talk of a Senate investigation.

Lewis reportedly said on the "Tonight" show Monday that while flying to New York he had used the rest room over Mississippi, fulfilling a long-standing ambition.

It set off a tempest. Gov. John Bell Williams and other state officials demanded that the National Broadcasting Co. apologize for the comment and Tuesday night Lewis, hosting the show in the absence of Johnny Carson, said:

"Last night we did a joke which I suspect, in reflecting, wasn't terribly funny and we did offend some of our friends in Mississippi. I openly, publicly and humbly apologize. That certainly was not my intention ... to offend."

The governor said Wednesday he accepted the apology because Lewis had "made the effort" to set things straight.

However in Washington, Rep. G. V. Montgomery, D-Miss., suggested Wednesday in a House speech that a Senate committee investigating sex and violence in television look into the incident.

Montgomery said Mississippi had been "viciously slandered" by a crude and very unfunny comedian.

And at Hattiesburg, Miss.,

WDAM-TV, an NBC affiliate made it clear Wednesday that it did not think Lewis' apology was sincere and promptly canceled the Jerry Lewis show.

"We feel that the oral part of his apology last night would have been acceptable had Mr. Lewis not cast doubt on his sincerity by a careless gesture at the end of his remarks," said Marvin Reuben, vice president and general manager of the station.

He described the gesture as sweep of the hands, saying it was generally interpreted to indicate "I could care less."

MSU ranks first in teacher output across the nation

MSU ranks at the top among institutions producing initial certified teachers.

The American Assn. of Colleges for Teacher Education (AACTE) placed MSU first with 2,102 graduating teachers in 1967, followed by Western Michigan University with 1,837.

MSU also placed first in the number of elementary school teachers produced with 866 in 1967.

B. Bradley West, instructor in teacher education, said MSU has the largest teacher training program in the world offering many training resources that are not available in smaller programs.

Wet and tired

Tuesday's weather wasn't exactly delightful for changing tires but Jerry Danner, Whitmore Lake junior, and Scott Baldwin, Livonia freshman had to brave the storm.

Flashy thief snatches mink hats

NEW YORK (AP)--The "man in green pants" stole 100 mink hats off the heads of surprised subway riders before he was caught, prompting police to suggest Wednesday that women tie a string around their expensive bonnets.

For four months, the subway hatnapper evaded police in what might be dubbed "The Great Subway Hat Caper."

The only clues were the bright green pants he always wore and his height, 6 feet 2, giving him a long reach peculiarly suitable for hat snatching.

The hats were worth about $100 each and were resold at cut prices.

"The women were so helpless," said Eugene Healey, the subway detective who finally caught his man Tuesday night.

"We couldn't get a description of the guy because he would wait for the subway doors to begin to close, reach over and snatch the hat and be right out of the car. The women couldn't complain until the next stop."

"Then he could cross over and take a train in the opposite direction," said Healey. "And he wouldn't even have to buy another subway token."

Transit Authority police watched for the man and sent women detectives to the subways wearing their own mink hats.

"That was beyond the call of duty," said Healey. "Finally we got lucky," said Healey, who was on vacation when he spotted bright green pants and tailed their wearer in and out of subways until he saw the man actually snatch a hat.

The man, Joseph Lee Jr., 27 of the Bronx, was arraigned in Manhattan Criminal Court Tuesday night, charged with grand larceny and resisting arrest.

'U' amigos bridge cultures

By ROSA MORALES
State News Staff Writer
The Mexico of tourists is serapes, marichis and an Aca-pulco sun, but for MSU students in Amigos Anonymous, Mexico is an experience in cross-cultural friendship.

Amigos Anonymous, an MSU student organization, is part of a national student organization, Conference on Inter-American Students Projects (CIASP), and sponsors a student living experience in rural Mexican villages for eight to nine weeks every summer.

CIASP program began nationwide in 1962 and on the MSU campus in 1964. The organization, with headquarters in Mexico City, coordinates the summer projects of over 700 students from 140 universities throughout the United States and Canada.

Last summer five MSU students participated in the living experience, Joseph A. Behuy, Detroit junior and organizer, said.

"In 1962 the CIASP program began strictly with emphasis on community development," Bethuy said. "Since then the program has gotten away from that perspective because some of the attitudes which came out of the project mentality were in direct conflict with our inter-American hopes."

Cross-cultural friendship
The Amigos Anonymous activities are centered around cross-cultural friendship and understanding, rather than a definite plan of civic improvement. Students will be teaching English, athletics and helping with any community-oriented projects of the town.

The main object of the Amigos Anonymous group, Bethuy said, is to get the village people to know the students through home visiting.

MSU students in Amigos Anonymous spend winter and spring term preparing for their stay in Mexico by attending discussion meetings given by MSU professors and Latin American students.

Before leaving for Mexico, the MSU group, along with students from other participating universities, attend a four-day orientation program conducted by CIASP in Tlalapan, a suburb of Mexico City.

The goals of Amigos Anonymous are two-fold, Walter S. Majewski, Hamtramck senior and co-organizer, said.

Two-fold goals
"One is self-education, learning Spanish more fully with values derived from cross-cultural experience. And the other is the cross-cultural understanding of friendship, or 'intercambio as we call it,'" Majewski said.

The personal requirements of Amigos Anonymous workers are a basic knowledge of Spanish, ability to get along in a group and the willingness to rough it.

The living arrangements call for one or two students to live with a Mexican family. Payments made out of project funds cover the expense of the student's meals.

"Life in San Pablo was quite different than life in Mexico City," he noted. "There was no running water for showers and the group had to be driven to a neighboring town every week for a bath."

Bethuy said that a few of the students became depressed last year because of the culture shock.

Romantic ideas
"Sometimes students go to Mexico with a romantic or adventurous image of what life in Mexico will be like," Bethuy said. "When they get there, they have to adjust to the living conditions and diet, which are very different from those in the United States."

Individual expenditures for the trip, not including personal costs, total $200. The money covers transportation, orientation, medical insurance and project funds. The group raises the money before the trip to lessen the cost for the individual.

MSU students may also get the chance to work in California. CIASP is planning to send some of the students to work on the grape boycott instead of sending all the students to Mexico, Bethuy said.

Registration to begin for Evening College

Continuing Education courses will be offered by MSU's Evening College program beginning Monday.

Continuing Education offers adults the opportunity to advance their knowledge of such subjects as man and existentialism, black music, psychological aspects of sexuality and 54 other topics from Oriental painting to physical fitness.

Courses are informal and non-credit. Fees vary depending on the course with special rates available for MSU students and their spouses.

"The courses are designed to aim at ways of fighting occupational and individual obsolescence," James C. Tolten, of the Kellogg Information Center said.

Registration is by mail or in person. In-person registration will be held at Kellogg Center from 5-7:30 p.m. during the weeks of March 31, April 7 and 14.

An orientation course for women will be presented as part of the Evening College series and in cooperation with Lansing Community College beginning April 9. The program under the direction of Kay Evde of Coordinating Programs for Women will explore the positions available to women in education and other fields.

Students caught in the last minute rush for books found a comical break in their struggles when they discovered this sign in the Campus Bookstore across from the Union. The author's pun could very easily become the motto of the prospective book buyers.

Young Goldwater joins election race

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Barry Goldwater Jr. is campaigning for Congress against two veteran officeholders who agree with him on all major issues save one: How important is the 30-year-old bachelor's name?

Goldwater, a political newcomer, is running in a special election for the seat Rep. Ed Reinecke, R-Calif., vacated to become California's lieutenant governor.

Of 15 candidates in the April 1 primary, Goldwater, City Councilman James Potter, Jr. and Assemblyman Par McGee—all Republicans—are best known. There are six other Republicans and six Democrats on the ballot.

"Goldwater's name isn't that much help," Potter said. "His father didn't carry the district in 1964," when he was the Republican presidential candidate.

"He's just a kid," McGee said. "The voters won't want to send a boy to do a man's work."

"There are a lot of people who still love my dad—maybe more so than ever," says young Goldwater, a stockbroker. "The advantages are there."

To business and civic groups, in meet-the-candidate coffee klatches and in advertising, the three men hammer at campus unrest.

"That is an issue sure to catch the ear of voters in the 27th Congressional District. Within its boundaries is San Fernando Valley State College. Last Noember, members of the Black Student Union seized the administration building and held school officials hostage at knife-point.

"A lot of those students," Goldwater said, "were being paid to go to school by the federal government. I'd cut off their federal scholarships and loans in a minute. They're using taxpayers' money to riot."

Potter says, "students who would rather riot than learn should be expelled. And teachers who would rather picket than teach should be fired."

McGee would, "give demonstrators 15 seconds and put them off campus. And I think those expelled from school should promptly be reported to the draft board."

To win in April, a candidate must get more than half the votes cast.

Where in the...?

First day of classes usually presents the difficulty of trying to discover where the building, or prof, or class is located. These two students stopped in the Student Services Bldg. to try and decipher their schedule books.

ARAB BASE HIT

Israeli warplanes kill 18

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jordan reported Israeli warplanes killed 18 civilians, wounded 25 and wrought heavy damage Wednesday near Salt, a trade center and quarry town 13 miles west of Amman, the capital.

An Israeli army spokesman in Tel Aviv said an Arab guerrilla base near Salt was the target of a few planes, all of which returned unscathed.

A Jordanian military spokesman said the raiders destroyed six civilian trucks, a taxi and a government vehicle, cut the main road in the area and damaged six houses.

King Hussein, who is to talk over Middle East affairs with American authorities in Washington April 8-9, was reported to have rushed in to supervise relief work.

"This is considered a civilian area where there are a number of cottages used by travelers going to and coming from the west bank," the spokesman told newsmen.

The west bank is Jordanian territory west of the Jordan River, which Israelis have occupied since the June war of 1967. Travelers to and from it include Palestinian guerrilla units operating against Israel from bases in Jordan.

Israel has charged that the barren, stony area around Salt is packed with saboteurs.

There was no mention of ground fire by either side in this raid. Last Friday anti-aircraft fire downed an Israeli fighter that was trying to silence Arab gun positions in Jordan.

As usual the Israelis would not say what planes were used in Wednesday's attack. Israel's main strike jets are French-made Mirages and Mysteres and U.S.-supplied Skyhawks.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan told Israel's Knesset parliament, that France has sold 700 armored troop carriers, of surplus French and German army stocks, to be passed on to Egypt.

President Charles de Gaulle's government has maintained a total embargo on arms and spare parts for Israel since early January. Arabs are campaigning now against Israeli efforts to buy tanks from Britain.

Replying to questions, Dayan said some Al Fatah guerrilla groups caught inside Israel have been armed with Matte submachine guns such as are used by the French army. He added, however, Israel had no knowledge of whether these were supplied directly to the Arabs.

Russian arms also reach the guerrillas, he said, but: "We do not know about contacts between Moscow and the terrorists directly."

He said Arab guerrilla activity last year claimed the lives of 63 Israeli soldiers and 35 civilians and wounded 237 soldiers and 310 civilians.

Dayan reported Israel has no proof that an Algerian divisor assigned to reinforce Egyptians on the Suez Canal has engaged in raids across the waterway into Israeli-held Sinai.

Another authoritative military source said Port Suez, at the southern end of the canal, appears to have been crippled by a four-hour Israeli artillery barrage in the duelling with Egyptian field guns Monday.

Both oil refineries in that city were reported hit and port operations severely reduced.

Brig. Gen. Yeshahayou Gavish told newsmen touring the canal area the Israelis have now completed fortifications along the east bank and this may postpone indefinitely any Egyptian plans to attempt to cross.

"We can hit back whenever and however we may feel necessary," the general said.

Israel charged in a letter to the U.N. Security Council in New York that continued violation of the cease-fire along the canal was "a planned and deliberate policy" of Egypt.

Senator cites gaps in budget

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., said Wednesday the Nixon administration is perpetuating what he called the financial gimmicks of the Johnson administration to show a budget surplus "when in reality we are operating at a huge deficit."

Williams, who has won wide recognition as a critic of excessive government spending, said he was disturbed that President Nixon did not promise specific cuts in asking for an extension of the 10 per cent income surtax.

"I recognize that the President's message promises some cut in the 1970 budget and I appreciate this step," Williams said. "But I wish the amount were specified."

Hickel tightens rules for offshore oil wells

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Some offshore oil wells in the Santa Barbara channel may resume production this weekend under strict federal rules. Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel said Wednesday.

Hickel shut down all offshore production in the channel after miles of California beaches were covered with thick black oil from a disastrous leak last month.

"Last week we put new, hard rules into effect for the entire California coast," Hickel said in an address prepared for the Commonwealth Club.

"They are the forerunner of stiffer regulations that will be coming up for the rest of the country's coastline."

"I expect that some wells in the Santa Barbara Channel will have met our standards and will be allowed to resume production by the end of this week."

Hickel said he felt that all states should review their rules on oil drilling in state waters.

Gatorade superdrink gives athletes boost

By DENISE FORTNER
State News Staff Writer
Athletic teams are raving over a cloudy lime-green liquid with strange attributes.

Gatorade, the lime-green liquid, as well as Gator-Go, Hop-n-Gator and hydraulic football helmet are the inventions of Robert Cade, associate professor of medicine at the University of Florida (U-F).

Gatorade quenches thirst, replaces vital substances (sodium and potassium) lost in perspiration and is absorbed considerably faster than water.

Drunken by athletes during athletic competition, Gatorade enables a player to perform at a high level for a longer period of time and as a consequence, injuries by fatigue are reduced.

Sixteen AFL and NFL teams use it. In fact, Gatorade is one of the two products endorsed by Vince Lombardi, former coach of the Green Bay Packers and now coach of the Washington Redskins.

Gatorade is used by five National Hockey League clubs, nine major league baseball teams and 69 college football teams.

Purdue used Gatorade when it upset Notre Dame last year. Notre Dame ordered 10 cases the following Monday.

Gatorade, which was originally called Cade's Cola or Cade's Ade (or Aide), is not alligator juice, as a lady from Kansas assumed. She wanted to know how the fluid was drained from the alligators.

The name is derived from the Gators, the nickname of the U-F teams.

Gatorade will not work unless athletes are willing to drink it and unflavored Gatorade tastes like salt water. When it was first served in a game (Fla. vs. LSU, 1965) Guard Larry Gagner said, memorably, "This water tastes like ...," and poured it over his head.

Two years ago, Cade sold Gatorade (on a royalty basis) to Stokely Van Camp, which cans Van Camp pork and beans. Van Camp changed the flavor and appearance of Gatorade, which now has a distinct lemon-lime taste and is considerably sweeter than Cade's home brew. It is also greenish-yellow and opaque whereas the original Gatorade was clear and colorless.

In July Van Camp began test-marketing Gatorade in Jacksonville, Fla., supermarkets. Heretofore it had been sold exclusively to athletic teams. Stokely is also negotiating with Royal Crown which is interested in producing a carbonated version.

Presently the University of Florida is in dispute with Cade over who will receive royalties from Gatorade. Cade said he would give up royalties from Gatorade if U-F would renounce patent rights to his other inventions. Still unanswered is how the money received by the University is to be divided up between Cade and the University.

In addition to Gatorade, Cade has dreamed up two more products for the athlete-Gator-Go and the hydraulic football helmet.

Gator-Go is a high-protein, high-carbohydrate food supplement similar to many all-in-one breakfast protein drinks.

Instead of the traditional pre-game steak, football players drink Gator-Go which provides quick energy.

Students visit Spain over spring vacation

A group of MSU students ignored the usual well trodden paths to Florida, Mexico or the Bahamas and spent their spring vacations in Spain.

After ASMSU turned down the offer to sponsor the trip to Spain, two MSU students, Abby Adams, Washington, D.C., junior, and Ron Tokar, Livonia medical student, took the initiative and organized the tour with a local travel agency.

The trip, open to both students and faculty cost $265 for the round trip, hotel and two meals a day.

"Everyone got to know each other and we all had a great time," Miss Adams said. She said the group spent most of their time in the Spanish Riviera at Torremolinos.

Many of the students went on side trips to Tangiers, Madrid, Granada and Gibraltar, which were offered to them.

The spring break trip to Spain will be offered again next year and may be expanded to 100 due to its popularity.

Faculty honored

The chairman of MSU's management department, Dalton E. McFarland, has been selected a fellow of the International Academy of Management.

Only 20 Americans are fellows of the academy. McFarland was one of 10 internationally known experts selected for membership this year.

The hydraulic helmet was designed to cut down on head and neck injuries occurring during football games. The design was inspired by the human skull which consists of three layers. The helmet (like the human skull) has a hard outer-ermund layer, a soft spongy-like layer and an inner hard layer. The soft layer helps absorb the shocks to the brain.

Careers '69 canceled, lacks funds

The Placement Bureau announced recently it would cancel plans to present Careers '69, scheduled for early October in the Auditorium.

The career programs, held annually for 20 years, have been geared toward disseminating vocational information from local and national employers. It has usually been a high point of interest for many students.

Lack of funds is the main reason for not holding Careers '69.

John Shingleton, director of the Placement Bureau, said that the number of employer interviews with students has increased 50 per cent last term alone. "This produces a 50 per cent increase in paperwork and at an increased cost," Shingleton said.

"If we were to run a program like this Careers Carnival, we would want it to be first class and if we had to cut costs, more, the program would have been self-defeating," Shingleton said.

Shingleton stated that the whole program of the bureau had become more sophisticated and costlier in recent years. He said that the costs of the bureau had been increasing at a faster rate than the bureau's budget had been increasing.

"In the past the Auditorium has been used for the career programs," Shingleton said. "It costs us nothing directly to use the Auditorium," he added, "but indirectly it does." It "indirectly" costs $2,000 just to move chairs out of the Auditorium, he said. "We feel that there are other more pressing programs that we could spend $2,000 on," Shingleton said.

Careers '69 is a communicative device that employers could use to tell students about the opportunities and advantages in their prospective companies. "We hope to continue the education of students in this matter by offering other programs such as lectures, seminars and films," Shingleton said.

Economists predict slower growth rate in '69

By SUSAN MYLES
State News Staff Writer

The U.S. Dept. of Commerce is not predicting that the United States will lose its favorable balance of trade in 1969, but if the trade surplus were to fall $3 billion as it did in 1968, the current surplus of about $1 billion would be wiped out.

To maintain a balance-of-payments trade surplus, the Dept. of Commerce has been thinking about setting an export goal of $50 billion for 1973, the asst. secretary of Commerce of Domestic and International Business told a congressional subcommittee in January.

In 1968 the trade surplus was the lowest in nine years. The department is predicting that in 1969 there will be a slowdown in the expansion of imports and a continued but smaller gain in exports.

Such a prediction for a reduced growth rate seems to be the general consensus of observers. Robert Lanzillotti, chairman of the Dept. of Economics, said.

"I think that position is held by many respectable economists, and I wouldn't question it," he said.

The 1968 expansion of imports over the 1967 level was spurred by vigorous business activity, rising consumer incomes, and strike anticipated purchases of certain metals, the department reported in its weekly magazine, International Commerce.

The department predicts that 1969 will be different, because the combined impact of higher Social Security contributions, payments on increased 1968 income tax rates and a shift in the Federal budget from a large deficit to a modest surplus will depress demand.

"The 1969 import advance will also be moderated by the absence of strike-related purchases of copper, steel and aluminum which added an estimated $800 million to last year's bill," it reports.

One thing which should stimulate world trade in general will be tariff reduction agreements made during the Kennedy Round. Tariffs on thousands of non-agricultural products will be cut by an average of 35 per cent by the countries which made concessions.

The 11 countries scheduled to make cuts Jan. 1 included the United States, Australia, Canada, Chile, New Zealand, Peru, Austria, Portugal, South Africa, Switzerland and Turkey. Many other nations made concessions during the Kennedy Round which was concluded in 1967, but these 11 have made the most recent cuts.

Despite the tariff reductions, an economic slowdown is expected in the United States which would depress demand for foreign goods.

"Purchases of industrial materials and supplies, which account for over two-fifths of total U.S. imports, are likely to decline from last year's record levels because of smaller gains in industrial production, reduced purchases for inventory and the absence of strike-related imports of steel, copper, and aluminum," International Commerce reported in January.

It also predicted a reduction in the growth of disposable income, compared to 1968, and such a prediction is valid, Lanzillotti said.

"My guess is that there will be a slowdown in the rate of growth of disposable income," he said.

All of these predictions go back to expectations of a slower level of growth of Gross National Product (GNP) for 1969, Lanzillotti said, and he agrees that a reduced level of growth is probable.

The decision to keep government expenditures more in line with public receipts, and the Federal Reserve Board's decisions to follow a policy of restraint in growth in credit will be important factors in a slowed growth rate.

Regardless of which political party is in power, good economics dictates a more restrictive policy in view of the rate of price increases in 1968, he said.

"The vigorous pace of consumer expenditures in 1968 boosted imports of foreign consumer goods (including cars) by two-fifths, more than twice the gain the preceding year," the magazine reported.

"Consumer spending is expected to be less exuberant in the next 12 months, particularly in first half when delayed income tax payments and higher Social Security contributions will limit the advance in personal incomes," it reported. Exports are expected to expand, but at a slower rate than in 1968.

anese balance-of-payments position, and favorable economic prospects in Australia and South Africa will also stimulate demand for our products," International Commerce reported.

Exports to the United Kingdom and France are expected to remain stable despite restrictive measures taken by the two, because shipments to those countries consist primarily of capital equipment and industrial materials.

Massive American penetration of European business has caused resentment, and Europeans are considering steps which would discriminate against American companies, Clyde H. Farnsworth recently reported in the New York Times.

"France, for instance, hopes to make the Community self sufficient in agriculture, which would mean several billion dollars of lost American exports," he said.

"As it is, trade preferences within the Common Market, coupled with the single external tariff in trade with other countries, have led to a 250 per cent increase in intra-community trade in the past 12 years, whereas American trade with Common Market countries has merely doubled. And the Europeans seem to be moving to accelerate this trend," he said.

The Europeans fear a protectionist revival in the United States in view of quota requests made by American steel companies. Europeans want to guard against being an "industrial appendage to the United States" but at the same time they recognize their need for American investments and managerial expertise.

"Conversely, the United States needs Europe's help to restore the balance of payments equilibrium," Farnsworth said.

"The gold has shifted from Ft. Knox to the Bundesbank, the Bank of Italy, the Bank of France and other Continental central banks. Europe has invested huge amounts in American securities and this has helped the balance of payments.

"But the funds could easily be pulled out. To offset the effect of such a move, the United States needs an improvement in the American trading account."

News Background

The department predicts that the export of chemicals and military aircraft will increase, and demand for U.S. products will remain high in the countries of the European Economic Community and Canada because of strong gains in business investment there.

"Improvement in the Japanese balance-of-payments position, and favorable economic prospects in Australia and South Africa will also stimulate demand for our products," International Commerce reported.

Ray says lawyer forced plea

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) -- In an action which could apply to James Earl Ray's case, the Tennessee Supreme Court ruled Wednesday a man convicted of a crime cannot win freedom on habeas corpus on grounds he was pressured by his lawyer to plead guilty.

Ray, serving a 99-year sentence for the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King, now claims he was induced by his lawyer, Percy Foreman of Houston, Tex., into pleading guilty. Foreman has denied any pressure on Ray—and Ray said there was none when he pleaded guilty March 10.

But Ray was quoted again Wednesday by a former prison mate as saying the guilty plea was the result of pressure.

The Supreme Court opinion, written by Justice Allison B. Humphreys, was in the case of Robert E. Richmond, convicted of burglary in Franklin County, Tenn. He sought a writ of habeas corpus on grounds that he was wrongfully induced by his lawyer to plead guilty.

the International Projects Committee established two years ago to serve in an advisory capacity to the Office of International Projects (OIP).

The committee's purpose, according to Marvin D. Solomon, chairman, is twofold: to advise the OIP and to serve as a communication link between the faculty and OIP.

"Most people think the committee was formed because of the Ramparts-Saigon hassle (in which Ramparts magazine accused the University of collaborating with the CIA on projects in Vietnam)," he said.

"This is not right. The committee was developed prior to that time."

Committee members spent the first year of their operations formulating policy guidelines for the University to follow in making international contracts and agreements.

The guidelines, which are binding only on the University, not on individual faculty or students, state that:

Participating project workers shall have full knowledge of all aspects of the program and they shall not take on research or other assignments whose purposes are not fully disclosed to their colleagues and the University.

The University shall not undertake international projects that are secretly funded or have secret purposes.

Authority on Bolshevism, author Eastman dies at 86

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) -- Max Eastman, who was embroiled in literary and political controversy for years as a radical, a friend of Leon Trotsky before becoming a disillusioned leftist, and finally as a conservative, died Tuesday night. He was 86 and his death was attributed to a massive stroke.

He was acclaimed as a writer, editor, poet and authority on Bolshevism. One leading critic called his works on Marxism and the Russian revolution "the most intelligent and searching as well as the best informed" on the subjects.

Critical acclaim also greeted his poem "Lot's Wife." He considered his major contribution to poetry his theory on metaphor and simile, outlined in his first book, "The Enjoyment of Poetry."

Eastman was born in Canandaigua, N.Y., son of two Congregational ministers. He credited his first wife, Ida Rauh, whom he met while he was a young instructor at Columbia University, with introducing him to Marxism but he made a crosscountry tour, working as a farm laborer and at other menial jobs, which reinforced his thinking.

He became editor of The Masses in 1913 and in 1918 was indicted under the Sedition Act because the magazine campaigned against the draft and American participation in World War I. He was tried twice, but the juries disagreed both times and the indictments were dropped.

In 1922, after The Masses closed down, Eastman went to Italy for an international conference. There he met Elena Krylenko, secretary to Soviet Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinov. She became his second wife after he divorced his first.

From Italy, Eastman went on to Russia, where he became a friend of Trotsky and wrote a book about him. This friendship made him an enemy for the Stalinists and he returned to the United States in 1925.

He wrote a book that year, "Since Lenin Died," containing the secret testament in which Lenin warned against Stalin becoming his successor. After the Hitler-Stalin pact of 1939 there was a more favorable climate for his books and lectures exposing Stalinism. His works included "Marx and Lenin," "Stalin's Russia and the Crisis in Socialism," "The Enjoyment of Poetry," five volumes of poetry and two autobiographies noted for their frankness about his romance.

His second wife died in 1956. His third, the former Yvette Szekeley, was with him when he died and said she would return the body to the United States April 2.

Eastman had a son, Daniel, by his first marriage.

teach under "your harassment and discriminatory treatment of my teaching and me."
Garskof further noted in the letter that he had been "dealt with in a high-handed and discriminatory manner which I can no longer either defeat or possibly tolerate. Therefore, I will not teach under these circumstances."
Three days later, Chairman O'Kelly wrote Garskof saying that "you Department has an obligation and a duty to exercise a collective control over its course offerings."
O'Kelly explained that the Psychology Advisory Committee, among other things, had authorized Garskof to teach 151 only according to "track 1" (a system with assigned texts, two multiple choice exams and tests based on lecture material.) The other three options for students which Garskof had included in his course outlines were rejected.
Garskof said the strictures on the teaching of the course "go against about 20 rules of academic freedom."
He said the decision on the part of the advisory committee is discriminatory because other instructors have neither been investigated or been made similar "offers"; educationally regressive because it removes aspects of his courses which students and faculty have found innovative and an abrogation of his academic freedom because it amounts to departmental interference with his course content.

Weatherman drowns Spartan bat contest

MIKE MANLEY State News Sports Writer

MIAMI - The MSU baseball team lost a battle with the Florida weather Wednesday as their scheduled game with Pittsburgh was rained out. The contest has been re-scheduled for today as part of a doubleheader. MSU will meet Pittsburgh in the opener with Chuck Viane getting the starting call for the Spartans.

This will be the second start for Viane in the Miami Baseball Tournament. Viane holds a 1-1 record. In 7 1/3 innings he has given up five earned runs for an earned run average of 6.14. Viane has walked four and struck out two in his previous spring stints.

In the second game, MSU will meet Florida A & M with Mickey Knight expected to pitch for the Spartans.

The senior right-hander has a 0-1 mark in Florida this spring, starting two games to date. Knight, who has hurled one complete game, has worked 14 1/3 innings, giving up five earned runs for an earned run average of 3.14. He has walked four and struck out 10.

After today's twin bill, the Spartans will play Miami and Pittsburgh the following two days before heading back to East Lansing to prepare for the regular season opener at Ball State on April 5.

The first home appearance for MSU will be an April 16 doubleheader with Albion.

Few raindrops in Lakeland but even fewer Tiger hits

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI)—Bobby Murcer extended his hitting streak to nine straight games with a home run and double Wednesday as the New York Yankees clobbered Detroit, 7-2.

Both of Murcer's hits came off Denny McLain, making his first start for Detroit in eight days. McLain went six innings, longest of any Tigers this spring, and gave up three runs.

The Yankees then jumped on Roy Face for a three-run rally in the seventh and one more in the eighth.

Rookie right-hander Bill Burbach throttled Detroit on one hit, a bloop single by Norm Cash, through the first six innings while walking three men.

New York took the lead in the second on an infield hit by Roy White and Tom Tresh's triple to the rightfield corner. Murcer doubled in the fourth and rode home on Joe Pepitone's single through Cash.

Murcer then socked his second homer to right center to start the sixth.

New York filled the bases on Face on a walk and two bunt singles. Horace Clarke drove in one run on a sacrifice fly and two more scored on Jerry Kennedy's soft liner over the pulled in infield. Detroit scored on John Cumberland in the eighth on Don Wert's wind blown triple down the right field line with two men aboard.

New York 010 101 310-7 11 0 Detroit 000 000 020-2 3 3 Burbach, Cumberland (7) and Gibbs; McLain, Face (7), Radatz (9) and Price, Valle (7). WP-Burbach. LP-McLain. HR-Murcer.

Fans asked to pick greatest Tiger team

DETROIT—Fans of the Tigers are invited to help select the greatest Tigers of the club's history as a part of the international celebration of the first century of professional baseball.

Voting for the all-time all-star team and the one "Greatest Tiger Ever" will continue until June 1, when the results will be submitted to the Baseball Writers Assn. of America for consideration with similar teams selected by the fans of the other clubs in the major leagues.

The writers then will pick the Greatest Team Ever and the one Greatest Player of the Century. Their identity will be disclosed at a gala dinner to be held in connection with the All-Star Game in Washington in July.

Fans may submit their votes in any form—postcard, letter or printed ballot.

Any form of a fan's vote can be mailed to: P.O. Box 300-A, Detroit, Mich. 48332.

Fans should select one player for each position—catcher, first base, second base, shortstop, third base, left field, center field, right field—and two pitchers, one right-handed and one left-handed. Then they should name the one player they consider the Greatest Tiger of the team's history.

Current players as well as former players are eligible.

Course marker cooled Ferrari victory attempt

SEBRING, Fla. (UPI)—A small rubber road cone may have cost a fire-engine red factory Ferrari first place in the Sebring 12-hour endurance race last Saturday, track officials said Wednesday.

The race was won by a Ford GT40 driven by Jackie Ickx and Jack Oliver. Less than a lap behind at the end was the Ferrari driven by Mario Andretti and Chris Amon.

The Ferrari had led late in the race despite having continuous trouble with the gear selector system. But then it began overheating and was forced into the pits repeatedly for water and to cool the engine.

A post-race examination revealed the air intake opening in the front of the blade-nosed car had been jammed closed. When the front of the car had been opened up during pit stops this was not apparent to the pit crews.

Track officials said the drivers recalled clipping the small course marker with about five hours left to go in the race, but had not realized it had jammed the opening closed.

The Ferrari factory was making its first appearance in the Sebring race since 1965. The car set a qualifying time record the day prior to the race averaging 116.89 miles per hour over the 5.2-mile course.

WHO CARES ABOUT STUDENT OPINION? BUSINESSMEN DO.

Three chief executive officers—The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company's Chairman, Russell DeYoung, The Dow Chemical Company's President, H. D. Doan, and Motorola's Chairman, Robert W. Galvin—are responding to serious questions and viewpoints posed by leading student spokesmen about business and its role in our changing society through means of a campus/corporate Dialogue Program.

Here, Arthur M. Klebanoff, a senior at Yale, who plans graduate studies and a career in government, is exchanging views with Mr. Galvin.

In the course of the Dialogue Program, Arnold Shelby, a Latin American Studies major at Tulane, also will explore issues with Mr. Galvin; as will David M. Butler, Electrical Engineering, Michigan State, and Stan Chess, Journalism, Cornell, with Mr. Doan; similarly, Mark Bookspan, Pre-Med, Ohio State, and David G. Clark, Political Science MA candidate at Stanford, with Mr. DeYoung.

These Dialogues will appear in this publication, and other campus newspapers across the country, throughout this academic year. Campus comments are invited, and should be forwarded to Mr. DeYoung, Goodyear, Akron, Ohio; Mr. Doan, Dow Chemical, Midland, Michigan; or Mr. Galvin, Motorola, Franklin Park, Illinois, as appropriate.

CLEAN HOUSE BUSINESS... EARN CAMPUS RESPECT

Arthur M. Klebanoff, Yale

Dear Mr. Galvin:

Student reaction to business is conditioned by what appears in newspapers and magazines. And what appears concerns investigations more frequently than innovations.

We read of industries with across-the-board product unreliability, and watch the nation's largest corporations attack Ralph Nader for defending the public against such frauds. Many of us have had our own bad experiences with mis-filled orders or short-lived products more expensive to repair than to replace.

We read of industries raping the countryside in the Redwood forests of California, the strip mines of Kentucky, and the oil fields of Oklahoma while preserving their malicious advantage with a peculiar and depressingly traditional brand of legislative log-rolling. We see the regulators co-opted by the regulated, and the future of an industry sacrificed to the short-run advantage of a single firm.

And we read of concerts of industries defining their own public interest, and calling it progress. Some of us have trouble seeing progress in hundred foot long trailer trucks, brand-name drugs, and supersonic airplanes and the congested airports from which they are meant to fly.

This is a college generation deeply concerned with personal honesty. To many college students business appears unreliable and destructively self-interested. Only the most positive actions by the business community can change this reaction, and create any significant degree of interest on the campus.

My question Mr. Galvin is what will business do to police itself?

Sincerely yours,

Arthur Klebanoff Government, Yale

Dear Mr. Klebanoff:

A newspaper that ran stories such as "120 Million People Committed No Murders Yesterday" . . . "Thousands of Officials Found Corruption-Free" . . . "Very Few Students Are Sex-Crazed Dope Addicts," would lose readership. Newspapers must, by definition, report the "news"—including factual occurrences, but putting emphasis on extraordinary events. Crimes, wars, and corruption, are unusual happenings, and are thus reported in our news media.

A report that a "New Drivemobile Sedan is Found Unsafe" is of greater importance to the motoring public than, say, "Fifty Makes of Autos Pass Safety Tests."

Most newspaper reports of fraudulent practices by business firms are accurate. However, newspapers are sometimes guilty of subjective interpreting and reports of entire industries with "across-the-board product unreliability" can only be described in those terms.

A single corporation (much less an entire industry) would not survive long by producing inferior goods. Competition is self-regulating for one thing, and most corporations are bound to meet certain standards specified by various trade associations and institutes. Government regulations, too, must be met, and, finally, the buying public has the last word.

Business is policing itself, Mr. Klebanoff. Consider some of the positive aspects of modern, responsible corporations while you weigh the shortcomings and malpractices. You have read of industries "raping the countryside," but apparently you haven't read reports of businesses and industries involved in conservation—an involvement in which billions of dollars are being expended, and will continue to cost many billions more.

An important conservation activity by industry is the building of huge lakes by the nation's investor-owned electric power companies. Although these water masses are essential to the companies' operations, they create valuable and much-needed reservoirs of fresh water. Power companies usually open these lakes to the public for recreational purposes. An example of this is Commonwealth Edison's latest watershed which provides the public with over 100-miles of newly reclaimed shoreline.

Lumber companies, far from "raping" our forestlands, are in fact responsible for their growth. A lumber company would not stay in business if it did not operate on the principle of "sustained yield"—growing at least as many trees as it harvests.

Boise-Cascade Lumber Company is one of many that conducts multi-use forestry programs—the company's timber lands are open to the public for recreational purposes such as camping, fishing, hunting, hiking. Logging roads allow public access into these areas and are also invaluable in forest fire control. It is a fact that game increases in well-managed forests . . . this again is a contribution to conservation.

The National Association of Manufacturers estimates that American corporations are currently spending in excess of $500 million annually on air pollution control research and methods. Many millions more are being poured into water pollution control by business.

Slum clearance and renovation currently claim the energies and financial resources of a number of corporations; others are working on improved sewage and garbage disposal systems.

Yes, there is some legislative "log-rolling", lobbying, and other questionable practices, just as there are some unscrupulous doctors, students who cheat, corrupt people in government, criminals roaming our streets, traitors and deserters in the Armed Forces. Like you, I believe that unethical practices in business—as well as in other fields—are intolerable.

Efforts by business to "clean house" are increasing, just as business' involvement in society's problems is more evident. Hopefully, students will be more willing in the future to examine both sides of the ledger before passing final judgments. If more of the brighter, talented students, with the high ideals and personal integrity that you mentioned would join business, the self-policing process that you and almost all business leaders seek, would advance more rapidly.

Sincerely,

Robert W. Galvin Chairman, Motorola Inc.

FALL TO CZECHS, 6-2

American icers slip again

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — The United States team in the World Ice Hockey Championships remained consistent Wednesday—lost for the eighth consecutive time, dropping a 6-2 decision to Czechoslovakia.

The win moved the Czechs back into a tie for first place in the point standing. The Czechs and Russia, both 7-1 in the tourney, have 14 points each but the Czechs have the edge since they beat Russia 2-0 in the first meeting of the two clubs. Russia beat Finland 7-3 in the other game Wednesday.

The Czechs took a 2-0 lead at the end of the first period but Larry Pleau of the United States scored with just 28 seconds gone in the second period to put the Americans back into the game. Ron Nasland assisted on the goal.

That was as close as the Americans got as Josef Cerny scored at 5:38 of the period and Frantisek Popisil added the Czechs' fourth goal with just eight seconds remaining in the period.

The Czechs built the lead to 6-1 in the third period before the end of the contest on an assist by Tim Sheehy.

Mike Curran was in the nets for the Americans and made 21 saves in the first period, nine in the second and 15 in the third for a total of 45.

The Czech goalie, Marisolav Lackey, had to make only four saves in the final period as the winners were in control.

'S' students in ski tourney

Seven members of MSU's ski team will compete in the NCAA championships today through Saturday at Steamboat Springs, Colo.

Competition will be staged in downhill, cross country, slalom and jumping events. Wyoming is defending champion. Meet sponsors are Air Force, Denver and Colorado Alpine.

The Spartan team is a non-varsity unit.

Fencers go south for national duels

Coach Charles Schmitter and his MSU fencers will hope to better last year's 27th place finish when they journey to Raleigh, N.C., this weekend for the NCAA fencing championships.

The competition on the North Carolina State campus starts Thursday and concludes Saturday.

Making the trip with Schmitter will be senior and team captain Don Satchell, junior Glenn Williams and sophomore Doug McGaw.

Satchell, from Ponca City, Okla., posted a 29-19 record

Ex-grid captain honored by preps

Russell Reynolds, captain of MSU's 1934 football team, was inducted into the Michigan High School Coaches Assn. Hall of Fame in 1969 for his long-time service as coach and athletic director at Flint Beecher High School.

in foil during the 1969 regular season, including a third-place finish in the Big Ten championships. This will be his first trip to the national meet, and Schmitter is counting on him to make it a good one.

Williams, from Chicago, Ill., will fence in epee in the NCAA meet. He was the standout of the regular season for the Spartans, posting a 39-10 record on foil. Because of his greater versatility and his background in epee, he made the switch to that weapon to open up foil for Satchell.

McGaw, a southpaw from Bloomfield Hills, was considered the Spartans' No. 3 man in sabre during the season. But he has been improving rapidly in recent practice sessions and earned the trip on his great desire.

"After the season we had, I can't really expect to bring home a trophy," Schmitter said. "But we could surprise some people."

Spitz-led Indiana tankers favored in NCAA tourney

BLOOMINGTON, IND. (UPI)—Collegiate swimming's finest, led by an array of Olympians, open a three-day assault on the records Thursday in the 46th annual NCAA championships.

Host Indiana, which won its first National Collegiate title at Dartmouth last year by out-distancing runnerup Yale by a record 94 points, was the team to beat for team honors by virtue of a recent Big Ten Conference rule permitting freshmen to compete in all varsity sports except Football and Basketball.

The rule change gives veteran coach Jim "Doc" Counsilman the use of Mark Spitz, Santa Clara, Calif., a triple world record-holder in the butterfly events.

Counsilman also counts heavily on such stars as Charlie Hickcox, Don McKenzie, Dave Perkowski, Bryan Bateman and Fred Southward, and divers Jim Henry and Win Young in the Hoosiers' bid for a two-year slam.

"Charlie's always ready in the big meets and really hasn't tapered off until now," said Counsilman. "In fact, he has worked harder this season than as a sophomore and junior."

Indiana has never lost a meet of any kind in Royer Pool, which was opened in 1961, and has put together a string of 38 dual meet victories.

Hickcox, Spitz and McKenzie hold five World and 11 American records between them. A field of 439 from 81 schools was announced. Yale, Southern California, third last year, and Stanford were expected to be Indiana's top challengers for the team crown.

Trials in five events were scheduled for Thursday afternoon, with the finals at night. They include 500-yard freestyle, 200 individual medley, 50 freestyle, 1-meter springboard diving, and 400 medley relay. Six events will be contested Friday and seven more Saturday.

Champions in seven of the 15 individual events are back. Besides Hickcox, they include Henry in 1-meter springboard diving; Phil Long of Yale in the 200 breaststroke; Greg Charlton of Southern Cal in the 500 freestyle and teammate Phil Houser in the 200 butterfly.

16 Spartan swimmers head for NCAA meet

Junior Bruce Richards, an All-America in three events in 1968 and Big Ten champion in the 400-yard individual medley this year, will lead a contingent of 16 MSU swimmers to the NCAA swimming and diving championships this weekend in Bloomington, Ind.

Indiana University is meet host for the three-day affair which starts Thursday.

Richards has qualified in the 200 and 400-yard individual medleys and the 200-yard breaststroke and will swim a leg on the Spartan 800-yard freestyle relay team.

Other Spartans to watch include sophomore Van Rockefeller in the 100 and 200-yard butterfly events and freshman Jeff Lanini, a breaststroke, and John Thuerer, a distance freestyler.

The complete Spartan lineup is as follows (best times, where available, in parentheses):

Mike Kalmbach, 50-yard freestyle (2:17) and 100-yard freestyle (4:42); and 200-yard freestyle (1:45:38);

George Gonzalez, 500-yard freestyle (4:54:93) and 1650-yard freestyle (17:19:8);

Bob Burke, 100-yard backstroke (5:33) and 200-yard backstroke (2:01:18);

Richards, 200-yard individual medley (1:59:55), 400-yard individual medley (4:16:01) and 200-yard breaststroke (2:15:71);

Rockefeller, 100 and 200-yard butterfly (1:55:94); Lanini, 100-yard breaststroke; Thuerer, 500 and 1650-yard freestyle; Mark Holdridge, 400-yard medley relay and 400-yard freestyle relay; Dick Crittenden, 400-yard freestyle relay and 800-yard freestyle relay.

Relay teams: 400-yard medley relay: Burke, Lanini, Rockefeller, Holdridge (3:37:44); 400-yard freestyle relay: Rauch, Kalmbach, Crittenden, Holdridge (3:10:99); 800-yard freestyle relay: Rauch, Kalmbach, Crittenden, Richards (7:09:94).

Divers making the trip include Doug Todd, Duane Green, Jim Henderson, (fifth in the Big Ten this year on both boards), Tom Cramer (tenth in the Big Ten on both boards), Dave Coward and Bill Scott.

NCAA MEET OPENS TODAY

Mat free-for-all expected

By GARY WALKOWICZ
Executive Sports Editor

A four-way power struggle is on tap at this weekend's NCAA wrestling championship and MSU Coach Grady Peninger is optimistic about his team's chances to emerge victorious from the three-day fracas.

"The team title is always up for grabs," Peninger said. "Anything can happen in a tourney like this. We've got an excellent chance. If we get a good draw, we could win it."

Oklahoma State, Iowa State, Oklahoma and MSU, last year's top four finishers, respectively, are the schools given a shot at the team title. No other school has enough depth to challenge these four powers.

The tourney begins today and lasts through Saturday in the Brigham Young University Fieldhouse in Provo, Utah.

The Spartan grapplers were trounced, 24-3, earlier this season by pre-tourney favorite Oklahoma, but Peninger said at the time that his grapplers had a bad meet and the two teams were closer than the score indicated.

A day later, MSU dropped a tough 15-14 decision to Oklahoma State.

MSU's only competition against Iowa State came in the Midlands Tournament where the Spartans were a run-away winner, beating second place Iowa State by 40 points.

In the fierce intra-state rivalry between Oklahoma and Oklahoma State this year, the Sooners won both dual meets only to have OSU come back with a one-point (91-90) victory in the Big Eight Championships. Iowa State finished third.

MSU's chances for its second NCAA title improved greatly with its impressive one-team show in the Big Ten meet, setting records for most points and most individual winners.

"If we wrestle as good as we did in the conference meet, some other schools are going to be in trouble," Peninger said. "Inspirational wrestling like that is tough to beat."

The battle for the 11 individual crowns should be just as fierce and unpredictable as the team competition.

$50!?

That's right! I only pay $50* a month for my BEECHWOOD apartment! But just look at all I get: A roomy 2-bedroom apartment, carpeting, air conditioning, new furniture, and only a 5-minute walk to campus! They even found me a roommate! And summer rates are even lower. That's why I say, for the money... you just can't beat BEECHWOOD.

Beat the Rush! Sign your fall lease soon!

Nixon feels budget bind

Budget experts believe the Johnson January blueprint would now produce spending of $197 billion instead of the originally projected $195.3 billion. Thus Nixon promised to hold spending significantly below the $195.3 billion level.

Administration sources were reluctant to define "significant" but seemed agreed that 1 billion would represent a significant reduction.

In calling for a 12-month extension of the tax surcharge beyond its scheduled June 30 expiration, Nixon said this would yield 9.5 billion in revenues—an amount included in the Johnson budget.

At the same time, the President held out the hope that repeal of the surcharge might be possible before June 30, 1970.

"As I have said before," he stated, "the surcharge is a temporary tax that must be ended as soon as our commitments in Southeast Asia and economic conditions permit."

Like Johnson before him, Nixon called for postponement of scheduled reductions in the ten per cent excise tax on telephone service and the seven per cent excise on automobiles.

He also urged enactment of new or increased charges against highways, airways and waterways to produce about 500 million a year—something Johnson also had favored.

Officials said the precise nature of the Nixon proposals for increased user charges had not yet been prepared.

These charges plus continuation of the excises would bring in nearly $1 billion in revenue next year.

Without going into details, Nixon also promised the Treasury would send Congress next month the administration's first specific proposals for tax reform. There was no indication whether these would add or subtract from federal revenues.

In discussing Johnson's January budget, Nixon said interest on the federal debt "will be far more than was estimated"—about $500 million more. It was understood.
