Hannah: a quiet wave good-bye

Hands of time

The last diplomas to be personally signed by outgoing President John A. Hannah will be awarded at Spring Commencement. Hannah, who has signed every diploma granted during his 27-year administration, will be missed by the thousands of students, faculty and staff members on the MSU campus.

End of an era as 27-year career closes

By EDWARD A. BRILL
Editor-in-Chief

It sounded somehow all too remote, as if he was talking about some one else, a distant friend, perhaps.

He would say it on the phone or dictate it to his secretary, and it was just so matter-of-fact you would think he was talking about going out to lunch instead of leaving the University he has headed now for 27 years and 10 months.

"This is my last day in the office here. Tomorrow I shall take on a new assignment in Washington as head of A.I.D."

Now it is 3:30 p.m. and he is dictating a letter to a friend in Liberia. There's some business to settle with University attorney Leland Carr Jr., and a meeting with Provost Howard Neville in an hour. Then some "loose ends to button up" and it's all over.

Twenty-seven years, ten months, and a few loose ends. Then out the door for the last time, and down the elevator and over to Cowles House for a private dinner.

No trumpets, no bands. No uniformed varsity club members to form a cheering path of exit. Just quiet, and a quiet good-bye.

By this time tomorrow John Hannah will no longer be president of Michigan State University, and no matter how hard you try to picture this, the thought simply rolls around in your head. It is indigestible, unimaginable. Surely cigar-chomping Walter Adams is not really going to move in here tomorrow morning at 8:08 as acting-President. Surely he won't have the audacity to sit in that chair behind that desk.

Earlier. It is 9:15 a.m. and Hannah is talking to a Taiwanese student who came in to say good-bye. He is the first of many visitors this last day.

For an hour already Hannah has been signing diplomas—talking all the while and scarcely seeming to pay attention to the way he shapes the letters. Perhaps he doesn't really need to pay attention, you think.

"We've signed over 120,000 degrees over the years. Sometimes it gets to where you can't even spell your own last name. In the middle of the last name, those two n's, you get three humps or five instead of four."

For the past few hours maintenance men have been in and out, carting out

SILENT SALUTE

Thousands file past bier in tribute to Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans filed in simple, silent, yet eloquent tribute Monday past the flag-draped steel coffin of Dwight D. Eisenhower. The salute of the ordinary citizen—the tourist, the veteran of Eisenhower's armies, the women who knelt in prayer on the stone floor of the Capitol Rotunda — was counterpoint to the solemn splendor of the state funeral.

Leaders and representatives of nations across the world assembled for that rite.

At the White House, President Nixon talked for nearly an hour with President Charles de Gaulle of France. Belgium's King Baudouin called on the President, too.

But for 20 hours, through a cold night, a sunny but chill morning, and into the afternoon, the ritual of national farewell to the 34th president of the United States belonged to the everyday American. Some 50,000 of them were estimated to have come to the Capital where Eisenhower's body lay in state.

In the dark hours before dawn the line of mourners dwindled, and there was time to pause at the velvet-roped enclosure around the bier.

But with daylight, the crowds grew, stretching down the broad white steps and across the Capitol Plaza beyond. Then the pace inside the Rotunda quickened.

There were tourists, busloads of them, some with gaudy, incongruous badges, many with cameras. It was a national day of mourning, and most of the Capitol's springtime tourist attractions were closed.

At intervals, the long line was halted while foreign representatives were escorted to the casket, some carrying mourning wreaths.

Among them: Baudouin, Prime Minister John Gorton of Australia, Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky of South Vietnam, President Zalman Shazar of Israel, Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, U. Thant of Burma, secretary-general of the United Nations, Prime Minister Marcello Caetano of Portugal.

The wreaths were left but briefly inside the enclosure where an honor guard of servicemen stood vigil. Then they were taken to corridors outside the Rotunda.

Mrs. Eisenhower spent the hours before the funeral in the seclusion of her hotel suite, receiving messages of condolence from around the world. Former President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson called on her there.

At the Supreme Court, Chief Justice Earl Warren—named to his position by Eisenhower—eulogized the former president as a man who "espoused the simple virtues of American life. He was generous in spirit and action and endowed with a cheerful and understanding nature that endeared without regard to politics or divisive issues." Warren said.

Many of them were children. Schools were closed; so were government offices.

Some were Negroes. But most were the white, middle-class Americans who formed the bulwark of Eisenhower's political strength during two campaigns for the White House.

Nixon, DeGaulle confer beyond 'sake of courtesies'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and French President Charles de Gaulle spent nearly an hour Monday in private conversations that the White House said may have ranged "beyond courtesies."

The aging but erect French leader arrived at the White House a few minutes ahead of schedule and, after posing briefly for photographers, accompanied Nixon to the yellow oval room in the presidential living quarters—a sunny room adjoining the balcony added to the White House when Harry S. Truman was president.

The two leaders were alone save for their interpreters. Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said he wouldn't characterize the meeting "necessarily as working sessions," but added that it was quite possible they "discussed matters ranging beyond courtesies."

In announcing Sunday that De Gaulle would call on Nixon, the White House had described it as a courtesy visit.

De Gaulle, who flew to Washington to attend funeral services for his World War II comrad-in-arms Dwight D. Eisenhower, at first was not expected to attend a Monday evening reception being given by the Nixons for representatives of foreign governments here for the Eisenhower funeral.

Ziegler said, however, that De Gaulle's schedule would permit attendance at the reception. He said the French leader would go directly from that event to the airport for the return flight to Paris.

De Gaulle was Nixon's host in Paris just a month ago.

The press secretary said the French chief's quick trip to Washington had not altered De Gaulle's plan, announced after his Paris meetings with Nixon, to make a formal visit to the United States next year.

King Baudouin of Belgium, who also saw Nixon during the President's European trip, was another White House visitor.

Other leaders who flew to Washington from all parts of the world for the Eisenhower funeral were invited to a White House reception in the evening.

Among them were West Germany's Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger, the Shah of Iran, Constantine of Greece, South Vietnam's Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, Prime Minister Gorton of Australia, Britain's Lord Mountbatten and Defense Minister Denis Healey, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor of Italy and many others. The Soviet Union was represented by Marshal Vasily Ivanovich Chykov and Vasily V. Kuznetsov, first deputy minister of foreign affairs.

Commenting on his "interest and dedication to this University," the statement continues, "Dr. Green has on several occasions taken an outspoken stand for equal educational opportunity and equitable treatment of all people in the University when such a stand was far from popular."

BSA urged that the University "immediately" take the required steps for appointment of Green to the positions of director of the Center for Urban Affairs and assistant provost for Equal Opportunities Programs.

Most of Lee's efforts since his appointment in September 1968 have aimed at forming guidelines and a time schedule for implementing recommendations and programs to "facilitate a great thrust toward racial and urban relevancy."

Stating that "there is absolutely no time to be lost in doing those things that have been talked about for so long," BSA requested that funding of the Center be immediate, citing $1 million as a minimum adequate amount.

Green's book "Racial Crisis in American Education" will be published in August. Besides numerous articles in professional journals, Green has written 20 volumes of a 60-book series, "Famous Negro American Series."

King service

Black Students' Alliance announced plans for an all-University service in memory of the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. at 1:15 p.m. Friday in the MSU Auditorium.

Final plans will be released as soon as BSA confirms a telephone hookup from the Southern Christian Leadership Conference's services in Atlanta.

Plans for a University-wide teach-in following the memorial are also being mapped.

Academic Council to pick 5 members for selection board

Elected faculty members of the Academic Council will choose faculty and administrative members to the presidential search and selection committee in a closed meeting this afternoon.

From slates of candidates they received last week, the elected faculty will select four faculty and one administrator to serve on the 12-man, all-University committee.

Candidates for the faculty positions are Arthur Adams, chairman of the Russian and East European Program and director of the Humanities Research Center; John E. Cantlon, professor of botany and plant pathology; Robert L. Ebel, professor of counseling; James D. Edwards, professor and chairman of accounting and financial administration; Thomas A. Greer, professor of humanities; Elinar Hardin, professor and associate director of labor and industrial relations; Donald J. Montgomery, professor of metallurgy and physics, and W. Donald Weston, asst. professor of psychiatry.

Nominees from the administration are William H. Knisely, director of the Institute of Biology and Medicine, and Paul A. Varg, dean of the College of Arts and Letters.

Limited funds plague Library

By PHYLLIS ZIMBLER
Feature Editor

Ed Major demands shorter lines at the required reading desk while a professor, Philo D. Scholar, wants a rare book on medieval beekeeping.

The University Library has the problem of trying to satisfy both the student and the faculty member. It is plagued, however, by a limited amount of funds to spread over Library expenditure needs of volume acquisition and binding, staff salaries and additional space.

Although most of the Library's funds come from state appropriations, in recent years the Library has received more and more money from federal sources, Richard E. Chapin, director of University Libraries, said.

The Library receives "very little" alumni money, he said.

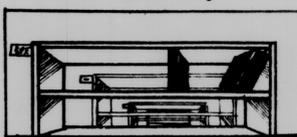

"Outside funds have saved us," Chapin said. "For the past two years the Library has received more than $100,000 a year from federal sources for books. So far this fiscal year, federal funds from the government total roughly $150,000. Most of the funds were for books but some were for the work study program."

Provost Howard R. Neville allocates the Library's yearly budget from the academic area budget which he receives from the legislature.

Funds for colleges and departments, which include money for faculty salaries, are included in the academic area budget.

In deciding how much of the academic budget the Library receives,

The plight of the MSU Library

Neville said he must look at all of the University's problems and needs and places where resources could be put into use and then he must try to make some judgment.

The first University priority is acquiring and keeping faculty, Neville said.

A great need exists in a variety of areas to increase the number of faculty.

"It doesn't make much difference if you have a good library or a bad library if you can't acquire and keep faculty members," Neville said. "After this priority, a multiplicity of problems remain."

"We are never really able to take care of the first priority. We haven't been able to take care of this problem in the last five years. Really there isn't any more money after this, and there is the problem."

But it is no secret that the people who allocate resources have put the priority of the Library high, he said. The University puts more money into the Library for staff and books whenever it can.

books and boxes and other private things he has sorted out over the weekend. The things are sent over to Cowles house, where Mrs. Hannah will remain for at least another week. The family will occupy the house on periodic weekends for several more months.

It is now approaching 10:00 a.m., the time for which some sort of reception has been planned by Hannah's secretary. All she would tell him is that several of his friends would be over. In actuality every department -- academic and non-academic -- in the University was invited to send representatives.

Hannah finishes the last stack of diplomas and turns to signing the huge pile of letters that fill this desk. They are responses to the letters of congratulations that have poured in from all over the world on his new appointment.

Hannah is musing out loud over the names of those who wrote him when Ruth Jameson, his secretary for all of those 27 years comes in with a huge bowl of roses.

They are from Dean Ivey and the College of Education Staff. Hannah's reaction was predictable.

"There's been a great improvement in roses, you know," he says. "Both in keeping quality and in odor."

At 10 a.m. the people start filing through. A handshake and a few words with most. Something special for others.

Elton Hill, who first came to the University in 1920, gets a hearty greeting.

"Here comes one of the neophytes," says Hannah. "The first fellow I encountered when I came here as transfer student was you. You told me that I had to take this and waive that, if I was going to get my degree in one year."

"He couldn't have done it if he hadn't been a good student," says Hill assuredly.

A secretary from the building comes over and laughing checks the water in a potted plant near his desk.

"My first introduction to Hannah," she explains, "was when he walked into my office and without saying anything went right over and checked the plant to see if it was watered."

Then Walter Adams, alone, and seemingly just the slightest bit in awe of this whole scene.

"Tomorrow you're going to sit right there," Hannah reminds him needlessly. "You know what Mr. Truman said, 'The buck stops here.'"

Adams looks around and passes his judgement: "One radical change I'll make," he says in that patented Brooklyn-Ivy League twang. "I'll add to the number of ash trays."

Replies Hannah, "Get rid of that damn cigar."

The most familiar phrase of the morning is "Good luck," and the response "Thank you I'll need it, I really will." Lunch is alone at Cowles House, and the first visitor in the afternoon is athletic director Biggie Munn, who stays for about 45 minutes.

The afternoon is slow and quiet. You can feel it slipping away--down the corridor comes the muffled yet persistent sound of electric typewriters.

The phone rings. It is Sen. Jacob Javits to discuss legislation involved with A.I.D. That phrase again. "Today is my last day."

A little later it is E.F. Woodcock, retired professor of botany, who first came to the University in 1914. Woodcock has served under seven University presidents, though he couldn't remember them all at the time. He once had Mrs. Hannah in a class.

Woodcock laughs when he says "I'm a leftover. All the oldsters of my age are dead now."

Hannah comes in to greet him. Woodcock gets up with a smile. "Young man, I was going to say to him."

Three turns into four and then five. There is no turning back, there is no holding on. Time, like the pounding of those typewriters, is relentless.

Hannah pauses now from his letter signing. He walks over to the window to gaze out on this vast place. It is not a particularly pretty scene, but certainly impressive. The Red Cedar, the stadium, Wells Hall. In the distance some steam rises from the Packaging Building. Or is it Engineering.

"My last official act?" he muses in answer to a question. "I'll wave my hand and say goodbye."

U.S. military experts said Monday the Communist command's spring offensive had succeeded in inflicting heavy American casualties, but high enemy losses have forced the foe to "apply the brakes." Allied officers estimated that more than 20,000 North Vietnamese troops have been killed in the past five weeks.

Britain has reached a preliminary agreement with local leaders in Anguilla, the Foreign Office announced Monday night. A spokesman said terms of the agreement include a provision that controversial British commissioner in the island, Anthony Lee, remain there. Britain, in turn, is to recognize the local council elected in 1968.

The mighty New Jersey, the world's only active battleship, left the Vietnam War Monday and headed home after having pounded the enemy with 18,000 rounds of shells at a cost of $6 million.

At the peace talks, South Vietnamese sources reacted coolly Monday to Defense Sec. Melvin R. Laird's statement that he would be prepared to see Communists in a freely elected coalition government in South Vietnam.

National News

The Army's chief scientist, Lt. Gen. Austin Betts, said Monday an ABM warhead with multiple defensive bombs capable of shooting down several enemy warheads is one of the "glorious goals of the future."

Polls in Los Angeles showed Mayor Sam Yorty trailing a black city councilman on the eve of Tuesday's election for mayor of that city.

Ford Motor Co. took the wraps off its new subcompact Maverick car Monday and set forth to do battle with Volkswagen, long the king of imports. John Naughton, Ford vice president and general manager, commented, "We are going to keep the price tag under $2,000 . . . by building a basic car with a few options. We aimed at the conscious car-buyer who wants low initial cost and economy of operation." Maverick will be built in only one body style, a two-door four passenger auto that Ford said would give 22.6 miles per gallon.

A new department of state government to deal exclusively with the problem of Michigan's cities was proposed in the legislature Monday by Senate Minority Leader Emil Lockwood, R-St. Louis, and Rep. J. # Factions diverse at Berkeley

By JERRY PANKURST
Editorial Editor

University of California, Berkeley students found themselves more pressed by final examinations and spring break last week than by the strike which had crippled the campus since Jan. 22.

Led by the Third World Liberation Front (TWLF), they were demanding a Third World college and the hiring of more minority faculty and staff. But TWLF decided on a "cooling off" period to access accomplishments and problem areas remaining - as well as to study for exams.

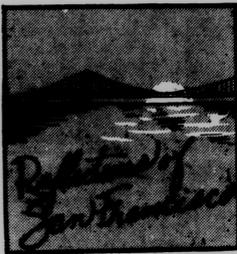

Thus Sather Gate and the steps of Sproul Hall were sunny and serene across the bay on the hillside from San Francisco with only a few students gathered here and there discussing the strike and finals.

Of all campuses in the nation, Berkeley seems to stand out as the focal point of "student unrest." It was here that the first major eruption of this era took place, the 1964 Free Speech Movement, now commonly referred to as the FSM.

Yet Berkeley is not unusual, its Chancellor Roger W. Heyns said.

"Anybody drops a brick around here - makes a loud noise - we've got every news media in the country operating. The news media have concentrated too much on Berkeley for the amount of disruption, he contends.

Heyns believes that the mass media have taken such interest in Berkeley, because the politicians in California have taken such an interest in the university's problems.

First in a series.

"The state of California has gotten uptight about Berkeley," he explained. Some politicians have even based their campaigns on opposition to the operation of the university.

"In terms of the actual impact on the academic life here, disruption has been minimal. 'We've gone about our academic business.'"

"The FSM left some scars of distrust that have been hard to remove" but Heyns believes that the community is becoming progressively more interested in using "the mechanisms of discussion and debate."

The chancellor said that the demands of the protesters were being sincerely dealt with in the university, and even though the campus was enjoying a respite from demonstrations and violence, it could not stand still.

"We've got to keep moving," he stated, pushing his hornrimmed glasses to the top of his slightly curly, grey hair and lighting his pipe.

Although Heyns claimed that the disruption caused by student demonstrations was minimal, except in the last strike when classroom activities were sometimes jeopardized, other observers have claimed that the demonstrations had serious consequences on academic life at Berkeley.

The New York Times recently ran a front page story declaring that the student protests were causing a great loss to Eastern schools of prominent faculty at Berkeley.

Heyns, however, agreed with his vice chancellor, William Bouwsma, that much of such adverse publicity was rooted more in Eastern jealousy than in fact.

"There is incredulity in the East that there could be a major cultural institution on the West Coast - or that one could exist in a stable kind of way," Bouwsma said.

A substantial faculty "exodus" did occur in 1964-65, the year of the FSM, but since, despite an increase in tenured faculty from 860 to 1043, resignations have gone down from 32 to 20 in 1967-68, with only 14 tenured thus far this academic year. (April 30 is the resignation deadline at Berkeley.) Before FSM, resignations ran from 8 in 1958-59 to 16 in 1963-64 with a commensurate increase in total tenured faculty.

Heyns and Bouwsma both agree that some very valuable professors have been lost in recent years, but they hasten to note that many have also been gained by the university.

They view a lack of money from the state as a greater threat to the Berkeley faculty than student unrest.

"We could use a little more understanding and support from Sacramento and from the people of California to head off some very real problems, but there simply is no faculty crisis," Bouwsma said.

Heyns believes that "The university must be as autonomous as possible."

"While there is an interest and sensitivity to the needs of society and the attitudes of the legislature in a very fundamental way, it is essential that the university maintain the maximum amount of autonomy," he said.

He would like to see a "partnership" between government and universities, but it must be within bounds. He disagrees with any state or federal policy which makes certain penalties mandatory for any kind of disruption.

Legislators, governors and boards of trustees are beginning more and more to try to restrict the freedom of decision on the part of campus authorities. With violence or the threat of violence police may be needed, Heyns believes, but they should be under the control of the campus authorities. Furthermore, he feels that the radical left would have far less support if the police would stay off campus as much as possible.

Heyns said that the recent TWLF strike did not have widespread support among the students, and that the major disruption was caused by non-students.

A "kind of low-level frustration" caused by bureaucratic de-personalization and the de-emphasis on the undergraduate in the more prestigious institutions contributes greatly to the student unrest there, Heyns said. The frustration "means that people with grievances can quickly collect around a common cause."

At schools with high academic standards, and especially in large metropolitan areas, Heyns believes that the social-political interest of students is higher, the environment is less structured, and there is more permissiveness "which makes the institution at the same time more vulnerable to being disrupted."

Since unwritten rules are more likely to govern behavior in such institutions, someone not knowing the rules or unwilling to follow them can more easily disrupt without legal or quasi-legal consequences Heyns said.

Undoubtedly Chancellor Heyns is proud of his university, one of the most prestigious in the nation, and he would probably agree to the words of DeWitt Higgs, the new chairman of the board of trustees of the University of California system of which Berkeley is a part:

"If a campus is completely unfrustrated in these tense times, you can be sure it is sliding downhill."

George Harrison fined for drug use

WALTON-ON-THAMES, England (AP)--The delicate nose of a police dog named Yogi helped convict Beatle George Harrison and his wife Patti on a drug charge Monday.

The millionaire pop musician and the blonde model pleaded guilty to keeping marijuana in their home and were fined $600 each.

Scotland Yard officers raided Harrison's $72,000 suburban bungalow near London March 12 and Yogi, a 3-year-old Labrador specially trained to sniff out marijuana, found enough pot for about 120 cigarettes, a magistrate court was told.

The raiding police seemed to be Beatle fans. Harrison was out of the house when the search took place and when he got home, he found Scotland Yard men watching television and listening to Beatle records on the living room phonograph.

Bond: blacks must carve niche

Blacks must carve out their own place in the American society, separate but a part of the whole, Julian Bond said at Western Michigan University Saturday night.

Speaking to more than 2,500 people in the University Auditorium, the Georgia legislator said, "Black power, political and economic, must become more than rhetoric."

In their struggle, blacks must form "shifting alliances" with other groups in society, such as labor or the suburbanites, he said. This would not mean they would be allies forever, he added.

Bond called for a political movement which "would draw heavily on the young, like those bruised veterans of Chicago." Machinery must be built to take power peacefully as those now in power did, he said.

Bond said that prospects for a violent revolution are not realistic because the government will continue to allow minimum reforms so that oppression will be more bearable. In his address Bond struck out at President Nixon "who was not only not the choice of our people, but not the choice of other colored people."

Fifteen years after the desegregation decision of the Supreme Court, the Nixon Administration is still allowing a "grace period" for segregated schools before cutting off federal funds, Bond said.

Bond criticized Nixon for failing to unveil his program for ending the Vietnam War, which Nixon talked about during the fall campaign.

Bond concluded his 30-minute address saying, "We need a world where young black vision can be realized."

During a question and answer period following his address, Bond said he used to believe strongly in non-violence but "now I'm uncertain in my own mind." Bond was a founder and former communications director of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee.

The non-violence of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. can be an effective tactic in the future, but maybe not for a whole group of people, Bond said. It is difficult to appeal to the conscience of a people who have not exhibited one, he explained.

In response to one questioner, Bond said the 1972 Democratic convention will have the same results if we wait until the summer of 1972 to begin to change.

Bond agreed with one questioner that a clash is sure to come in the next four years between Nixon's poverty policy and the black policy of local control of black communities. Bond declined to predict what kind of a clash this would be.

Blacks must organize to control the institutions they should be controlling in their own communities, he said.

Civil rights laws flounder

By JUNE SCHOLZ
State News Staff Writer

Civil rights legislation since 1961 has promised much, but often failed to deliver, a race relations specialist told the Human Relations Conference here Saturday.

Lloyd Davis, president of the National Assn. Intergroup Relations Officials and a Civil Rights adviser to President Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon said that such measures as the civil rights acts and open housing legislation have really meant little to blacks, Puerto Ricans, and other ghetto poor.

Efforts to improve the lot of "the minority poor have been hamstrung by government bureaucracy, inadequate funds, the idea that human dignity can be conferred through handouts and the popular conception that centuries of oppression can be ended without civil disorder, he said.

"We have promised the black poor that patience would bring justice, and the affluent whites that justice would bring order, but we have achieved neither," Davis said.

Davis said that efforts to improve the environment of ghetto dwellers and bring equality to black citizens have been hampered by too much concentration of funds and planning at the federal level.

There are no cross-burners or black radicals in federal offices, the local civil agencies must face fearful, hateful people who have been long oppressed by institutional processes.

Davis pointed out that there are three federal agencies empowered to grant funds to local agencies for ghetto work. These agencies -- the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, and the Community Relations Service -- have either limited funds or have not chosen to make large contributions to local agencies.

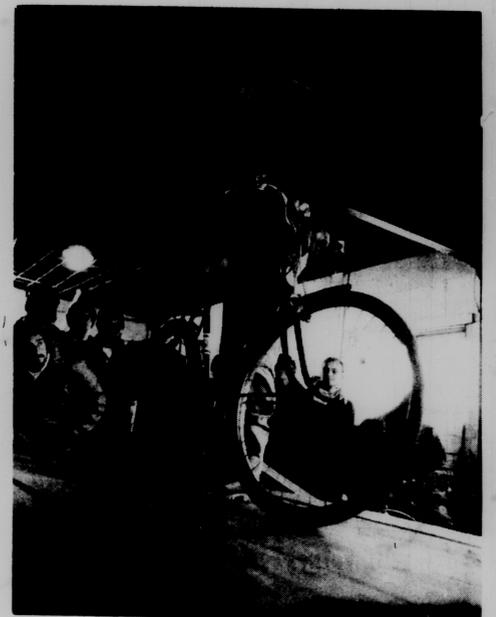

He cited black power separatism, the decline in the fervor of the civil rights movement in recent years and reactionary congressional response to civil disorders as the major reasons for the failure of intergroup relations programs to live up to their full potential in the last five years.

Davis suggested that the funds used to suppress civil disorders be transferred to local intergroup relations agencies.

"Radical change is urgent and necessary," Davis said. "We must look for new programs which give the same options to the poor that affluent citizens have so long enjoyed."

Davis listed such options as physical and social mobility, real housing choices, and a voice in the administration of improvement programs by the minority poor themselves.

Nigeria continues bombing of Biafra after Wilson visit

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) - Nigeria's military chief of state said Monday his force will continue bombing Biafra even though the wisdom of air attacks on civilian areas has been questioned by Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain, a supplier of this nation's military aid. Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon charged at a news conference held after Wilson concluded a four-day visit and flew to Ethiopia, that the Biafrans stage-managed civilian casualties in raids by federal planes.

A major objective in Wilson's mission to Nigeria was reducing civilian bomb casualties in Biafra, the former Eastern Region or Nigeria now headed by Lt. Col. C. Odumegwu Ojukwu.

"You know, a lot of Ojukwu's soldiers are fighting without uniforms," Gowon said. "It is quite easy to remove the weapons and if you take a picture, it looks like civilians."

He added that so long as there is a military advantage, Nigeria's air force will continue bombing military targets and disrupting air traffic into Biafra's Uli-Ihiala airstrip. He contended that the air attacks disorganized ground troops and destroyed a number of aircraft.

Pan-Hel spring rush set for 'U' sororities

Formal rush for spring term will begin tonight for all sororities.

Ann Konde, president of Pan-Hellenic Council, said that the rush will begin with a "Walk Through" at each of the houses.

"The girls will have a chance to visit each of the houses for a period of about 20 minutes each," Miss Konde said. "This will run Tuesday through Wednesday nights."

Then follows an unstructured period from April 7-11 where the rushees may turn in bids to the houses of their choice and set up further meetings.

"Most of this consists of dinner at the house, coke dates, and just being invited to the house and meeting the people there," she said.

Miss Konde said that the 400-plus sign up indicates that this spring's rush should be successful.

She added that it is still possible for women to sign up for rush in 101 Student Services Bldg. or in the Pan-Hel office.

Paris troupe to stage Antigone in original, modern dress

In an unusual Lecture-Concert Series special, Le Theatre de Paris will present Jean Anouilh's "Antigone" at 8:15 tonight in Fairchild Theater. The production will be in the original French.

Performed by a widely acclaimed French company, this program will afford a major theatrical event for interested members of the MSU community.

This "Antigone" is a modern adaptation of Sophocles' tragedy. Performed in modern dress, the story recounts the events in the life of a girl who dares defy authority to honor her dead brother. Her conviction that she is the only true judge of her own actions brings about her condemnation and death.

Tickets for the production, $2 for students and $3 for the general public, are available now at the Union ticket Office or at the door.

FIVE-MINUTE DEBATE

Senate approves plans for anti-ballistic missile

WASHINGTON -- The Senate today approved the establishment of a "thin-line" Anti-Ballistic Missile (ABM) Sentinel system after a five-minute debate.

The controversial defense system, which has been endorsed by the Daughters of the American Revolution, John Birch Society, Wallace for President Committee and Lockheed industries, passed by a wide margin.

One of the more vocal Senate supporters of the measure, Sen. Beauregard Rockwell, D-Ala., called the passage "a victory for all that is good, pure and beautiful in these United States."

The Sentinel System will cost an estimated $7 billion. President Nixon maintained that the expenditure was justifiable in that U.S. domestic problems are "so minimal" that defense spending can easily be built up.

ABM was not without its critics. Sen. Paul Peacatanyprice, D-N.Y., said it "just isn't the proper thing to do-speaking as a liberal-and I am a liberal."

But, he added, "We the people of the United States must support our President now that the decision has been made. After all, he is the only President we've got."

President Nixon himself was ecstatic. Sitting at his polished mahogany desk this morning while munching on a piece of apple pie and fondling a picture of his mother, Nixon said, "This is a great victory for a poor working boy who had to peck potatoes in a little country store for seven years."

While Nixon was ecstatic, others were erratic. Joan Baez, pacifist folk singer, has chained miniature bombs intended for Vietnam around her ankles and is slowly strumming her way around the White House in protest against the ABM confirmation.

Mixed reaction was expressed in the city of Detroit where one of the deployment stations for ABM will be located. Concerned citizens feared that one little mistake would set the city back to the days of Father Marquette.

Commented one Detroit housewife, "It's OK if these missiles get to Russia and China-I never did like Communists-but I'd hate to see one land on Woodward Avenue."

A farmer in rural Bancroft, a scarce 80 miles from Detroit, expressed his hearty approval at "this great victory for the "American Way of Life," but expressed his concern that the noise of departing missiles might sour the milk of his dairy cows.

Now that the Senate has confirmed ABM, plans for its implementation are under way. President Nixon, who earlier promised that there would be no plans for a $40 billion "hard-line" system, is asking for major cutbacks in education, welfare and urban housing.

"It won't hurt to have a few billion in reserve just in case the Soviet Union or Red China builds up its defense system in reaction to ABM-they're likely to, you know," he said.

SDS storms headquarters of ASMSU

The early morning hours were shattered today when an intense mortar barrage pounded MSU's Student Services Bldg., marking the fourth time in as many weeks that Communist forces have attempted a coup d'etat over the present regime.

As the 15-minute attack lifted, elements of SDS's 17th Division poured out of the Horticulture Gardens and stormed the half-demolished building. Beleaguered government troops of ASMSU rallied around their third-floor headquarters in efforts to squelch the enemy's offensive.

Joined there by units from MHA, Varsity Club and Mortar Board, the allies quickly set up a perimeter and met the onslaught with automatic weapons fire and hand grenades.

In a banzai-type frenzy, the guerrillas threw themselves on the barbed wire fortifications as government troops fired on them from above.

Air support was radioed for and arrived in a matter of minutes. A squadron of MSU Soaring Club Piper Cubs made several runs over the terrorists as green, blue and orange flames from the napalm streaked skywards.

As the Reds broke through the outer defenses, the allies engaged the enemy in hand-to-hand combat. It appeared for a while that the Communists would overwhelm the government troops, but in a last-ditch effort Major Har Vds Odin, commander of the expeditionary forces, led a gallant counter-attack and successfully drove back the rebels.

As quick as it began, the battle ended and the guerrillas faded into the jungle foliage, dragging their tails behind them.

'U' taps 'Prime-Time President'

The actual election of the new MSU president will be shown via closed circuit television located at Spartan Stadium. It was announced early this morning.

The decision to broadcast the election came as a result of a lengthy closed-door board of trustees meeting, which was held Monday night at Grandmothers.

Don Stevens, chairman of the board of trustees, was hoping that the meeting could have taken place tonight when the hot dogs are "all you can eat for a quarter."

The suggestion to televise the selection of the new president was agreed upon somewhere between a Southern Comfort Manhattan and a Vodka Collins, according to one member.

Walter Adams, acting president of the University and more important the one who orders the drinks, wanted to make it emphatic that he did not want the position.

He then went on to say that his favorite color was light green and mahogany desks make the office look bigger.

"The filing cabinets should be moved down the hall for maximum efficiency," Adams said.

Stevens then nominated Percy Flakenbush, his favorite elementary school teacher.

Flakenbush, as Stevens said, has no real experience with college students, but has talked to an actual hippie once.

Milton B. Dickerson, vice president for student affairs, was quick to laugh, and then nominated himself.

Then everyone was quick to laugh.

Tickets for the telecast of the election will go on sale April 14 at the Union Ticket Office, residence halls, classrooms and the more than 2,000 local Sears and Roebuck stores.

Students who have an activities book may now trade in Coupon G for either the Koslosskoff Ballet, the Stravavanska Piano Recital or the Making of an MSU President.

"As always, students will sit in sections W, X, Y and Z, under the stands, near the concession stands or out by the parking lot," Adams said.

Tickets to the public will be $12.50, $10.50 and $7.50.

The election procedure will be actually quite simple, Stevens said.

Candidates will be asked to remain for one hour behind closed doors in a room 10x15 with 35 hippies, 76 yuppies, 12 members from SDS, the latest copy of the Paper and a special cheering section complete with protesters, demonstrators, counter-demonstrators, counter-protesters, demonstrating protesters and a handful of selective counter-protesting subversive militants, Stevens continued.

The candidate will then be asked to carry a glass of water from one end of the room to the other. The one with the most water left in the glass will be the next president of MSU.

Dickerson was quick to announce: "In case of a tie, duplicate prizes will be awarded."

AND YET, LOOK AT THE RECORDS

On one hand, strictly speaking

There has been considerable controversy recently, despite the apparent lack of public concern, over a proposal by Rep. Richard Allen (R-Ithaca) for a tax on college degrees. On the one hand, proponents of the measure argue that it would be beneficial; on the other hand, some say that it would not.

Seemingly this is a very complex issue, although in many respects it is rather simple. However, appearances can be deceiving, and we must admit the possibility that it is basically a complex issue with simple overtones, or perhaps it is basically both simple and complex and at the same time neither.

The latter view seems more reasonable under the circumstances. Certainly such a move by the legislature would, perhaps, have far-reaching consequences, even though at the moment many believe that it can only be fruitless. Without a doubt, many would be affected-perhaps even students-but at the present time we can only speculate.

However, all things considered, we must take a position of firm opposition to Allen's proposal. Seemingly he has not thought about the possible drawbacks. Certainly there must be some drawbacks to the proposal, otherwise why would we speak out against it?

On the other hand, it must be an important issue, otherwise why would we devote so much space to news stories about it? And certainly if it merits so much attention in our news columns, perhaps we should also comment on it in depth in our editorials.

However, it would be foolish to take a negative attitude, inferring a hasty and uninformed approach to the proposal. There is much to be said in its favor, also. The dean's office has not yet told us exactly what, but we take it upon our own initiative to state positively that, just as it is reasonable to oppose the tax, certainly many will also find it beneficial.

Nevertheless, it is impossible to stress too firmly the indubitable necessity of either considering the issue or of ignoring it altogether, especially under the present circumstances.

Yet, it would be foolish to take a hard line, position on the matter, as some have done, although it is true that others have not. In any case, it is a very complex issue.

BROWN-NOSERS

Faculty flocks to buy Adamesque bow ties

East Lansing haberdashers are experiencing a run on bow ties since the selection of Walter Adams as acting president of MSU.

Stocks are so low, reported one store owner, that Hollywood property departments are being combed for Clara-belle the Clown's collection of bow ties.

Especially popular are bow ties in maroon and gold, the colors of Adams' alma mater.

According to Rob Roy, of the famous "store with the bank vault door", bow ties are acceptable anywhere and can be worn with Nehru jackets, turtle-necks, formal wear and conventional clothes.

"I'm glad to see them coming back in," he said, dusting off a crushed box of bow ties and marking them "Special: $5 each."

Although most purchasers have been MSU administrators, many faculty members have also bought bow ties, and one box was reportedly delivered to ASMSU offices last week.

In a related development, the board of trustees refused to comment on charges by a Necktie Party spokesman that the decision was a prelude to the selection of former Michigan Governor G. Mennen (Soapy) Williams, also noted for his preference for bow ties.

Q. I have heard that due to the Sexuality Colloquy, the New Morality and Farmers' Week, sex is running so rampant on campus that all the candy vending machines will be stocked with birth control pills. Is this true? P.G.

A. This is absolutely, completely and positively false. The pills will be stocked in all University apple machines. After all, remember that candy is dandy, but sex (and apples) won't rot your teeth.

Q. What does the University do to make money? My roommate and I were wondering. S.T.P.

A. To date, the University has not even attempted to break even. In the future, however, it is rumored that the University will install pay toilets in the Union, the Planetarium and other heavily populated areas of campus to gain a little lucre. One University official, commenting on the plan, said that there is enough crap floating around here that we might as well make some money off of it.

Q. Why is Beaumont Tower located where it is? P.G.

A. Beaumont Tower is used to plug the giant hole made when 'U' administrators decided to drill for oil to make some money (in the days before out-of-state tuition and pay toilets). All they hit, however, was the Cowles House septic tank and a mummified eight-year-old girl that is now in the Museum.

Q. Where is ASMSU? I can't find it. Lydia.

A. A great many ASMSU people have been asking the same question and will be more than happy to help you look.

Peninger blasts NCAA wrestling referees

By GARY WALKOWICZ
Executive Sports Editor

MSU Wrestling Coach Grady Peninger leveled a blast Monday at the quality of officiating in last weekend's NCAA wrestling championships at Provo, Utah.

"The officials cost us four matches," Peninger stated flatly. "And there were many boys from other schools who were hurt by bad decisions."

"Any coach who was there has to admit that the officiating was of a much lower quality than is desired."

"It's very regrettable that a boy who has spent so much time preparing for this tourney will lose out because a referee makes a poor decision."

The Spartans finished fourth in the national tourney, two points behind second place Oklahoma and 47 points back of champion Iowa State.

Peninger said a referee's mistake cost Jack Zindel, the MSU 177-pounder, a win.

"Zindel had his opponent on his back and was ready to pin him when the referee accidentally blew his whistle," Peninger said.

"The referee apologized for his mistake, but the two boys had to start again from the opening position and Jack eventually lost the match, 9-8," Peninger said.

Peninger said Zindel had been eliminated by Michigan's Pete Cornell on a debatable decision. The coach said Zindel should have been awarded a reversal in the closing seconds of the match that would have sent the match into overtime.

"The referee said it came after the period was over," Peninger said. "One mat judge disagreed with that decision, but the other was undecided and the referee's decision stood."

Peninger thought that 145-pounder John Abajace was also eliminated in the semi-finals on a poor decision.

"The referee gave Clarence Seal of Portland State a two-point predicament that was completely uncalled," Peninger said.

Abajace lost that match, 4-2.

"Tom Muir lost his consolation finals match when the referee didn't give him a predicament he should have had. Tom had just reversed his man with a figure-four scissors and had him on his back for a predicament. The referee gave Tom the reversal but stopped the match because the scissors was hurting his opponent."

"With the kind of hold and move Tom Muir had, there's no way he should have less than four points but he only got two and lost the match, 5-4," Peninger said.

The referees for the national championships are chosen by regional representatives from the rules committee. The rules committee is composed of selected collegiate coaches. (Please turn to page 7)

Petroff's bat investment pays off

By MIKE MANLEY
State News Sports Writer

Each player on the MSU baseball squad got an all-expense paid vacation in Florida to play two weeks of sunny baseball in the Miami tournament.

Each player, that is, except George Petroff.

Petroff, a shortstop candidate, transferred to MSU from Lansing Community College. Under Big Ten rules he would not become eligible to receive financial aid until the beginning of spring term.

Since Petroff's eligibility did not start until the first day of the new term, he had to foot all his bills for the first 10 days of the trip.

While all his teammates were getting a free ride, George was shelling out money for the plane trip down to Miami, plus 10 days worth of room and board.

All together it cost him about $150 of his own money and he could not even play in a game until the final Wednesday of the trip when he became eligible.

After 10 days of work, Wednesday rolled around and Petroff was set for his chance to start at shortstop. But it rained and the scheduled game with Pittsburgh was postponed.

"It looked like it would rain the rest of the time we were down there," Coach Dan Litwhiler said. "I've never seen a boy look as sick as George was on that day."

But the weatherman smiled on Petroff the following day, allowing the Spartans to squeeze in one game of a scheduled doubleheader against Florida A and M.

Petroff was a shortstop for the final four games of the Miami trip and made his $150 look like a wise investment. He hit .333 and played errorless ball in the field, securing himself a spot in the lineup when the Spartans open their regular season at Ball State on April 5.

"George did a real good job both defensively and with the bat. The opportunity was there for the shortstop job and he took advantage of it. He is definitely my shortstop," Litwhiler said.

Fortunately for Petroff, he only bought a one-way ticket to Miami. MSU picked up the tab for his plane ride back to East Lansing.

George, $150 light, has a permanent job.

FINISHED 36th

Fencers place in NCAA's

By JOHN VIGES
State News Sports Writer

The MSU fencing team was cut down but not shut out in the 25th annual NCAA fencing championships.

The Spartans could not improve on last year's 27th place finish, but they did score a man in all three events—the sabre, foil and epee—for a 36th place finish in the meet concluded Saturday in Raleigh, N.C.

Don Satchell, senior captain of the Spartans, was the highest finisher for the team. Taking a 29-19 record and a third-place Big Ten finish into the meet, he brought home a 27th place national finish in his foil event.

MSU's most successful fencer during the regular season—Glenn Williams—switched from foil to epee for this tournament, and he finished 29th in the unfamiliar event. Williams had compiled a 39-10 record during the season.

The Spartans' other finisher was Donald McGaw. Although the third man in the sabre most of the year, McGaw combined improvement and desire to finish the year with a 37th place national rating.

The tournament was dominated by teams from the East with the University of Pennsylvania, Harvard and Columbia the top three teams. They were followed by Navy, City College of New York and Army.

Wisconsin was the top Big Ten team with an 11th place finish.

Esposito, Hull top scoring statistics

NEW YORK (UPI)—The National Hockey League made it official Monday by placing Boston center Phil Esposito and Chicago's Bobby Hull right at the top of the final scoring statistics.

Esposito led the most record-shattering season in NHL history as he scored 126 points, including 77 assists and 49 goals. The previous record for most points in a season was 97 shared by Hull and Stan Mikita of Chicago. The record for most assists in a season formerly was 62 set by Mikita.

Hull led the goal scorers with 58 and finished second in scoring with 107 points, and veteran Gordie Howe of Detroit was third in scoring with 103 points, including 44 goals. Mikita had 97 points, including 30 goals, and Boston's Ken Hodge was fifth with 90 points, including 45 goals.

Jacques Plante and Glenn Hall of the St. Louis Blues, champions of the expansion western division, shared the honors for allowing fewest goals to win the Vezina Trophy and the $1,000 that goes with it. The Blues gave up only 2.07 goals per game, and New York goalie Ed Giacomin was second among goaltenders, allowing 2.55 goals per game.

Hull receives $1,000, including $500 for being the runner-up in scoring and $500 for being the leader the first half of the season.

The leader among western division players was Red Berenson of St. Louis, who finished with 52 points. Berenson's 35 goals also led the West, and Ten Hampson, who finished with 75 points, was first in the division with 49 assists.

Ex-Spartan icer top IHL rookie

DETROIT (UPI)—Former MSU hockey star Doug Volmar has been named Rookie of the Year in the International Hockey League. Volmar, a member of the U.S. Olympic hockey team in 1968, scored 63 goals and 28 assists as a wing for the Columbus Checkers of IHL.

Coach Ted Garvin of the Port Huron Flags won out over Dayton's Larry Wilson for Coach of the Year honors.

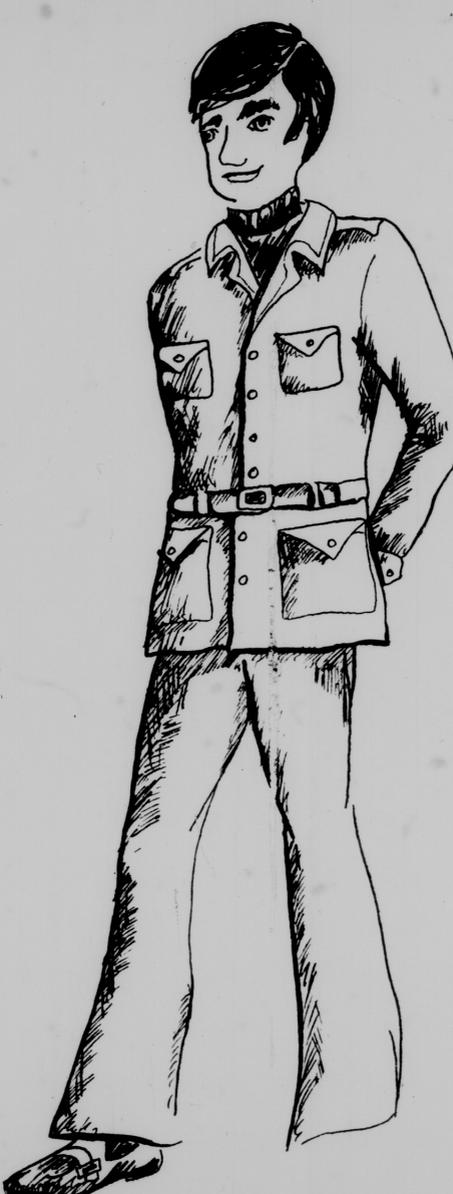

Picked for the Gatschene Trophy as the league's most valuable player was Don Westbrooke of Dayton, while Al Beaulieu and Moe Benoit of Dayton were named co-winners of the Governors' Trophy as the league's top defensemen.

All-star selections included Glenn Ramsay of Toledo, goalie; Jack Turner, Columbus; Beaulieu and Lou Kazowski, Toledo; Defense: Bert Fizzell, Columbus, center; Westbrooke, right wing; Geoff Powis, Port Huron and Trevor Fahey, Des Moines, left wing.

Balloting for coaching honors and the league's top players is conducted by sports writers and sportscasters in the seven IHL cities.

Golfers finish high in tour; Woulfe, Janson lead way

By CHAS FLOWERS
High finishes in two invitational golf tournaments spotlighted the MSU gold team's annual Carolina tour.

The team returned home Sunday after compiling a 5-1 record in dual meets played between the tournaments.

The Spartans notched sixth place among 17 teams at the Palmetto Invitational in Orangeburg, N.C. last Saturday. Lynn Janson led the team with a 54-hole total of 224. Sophomore Rick Woulfe was close behind at 228 followed by Tom Steenkenat 231, captain Larry Murphy at 234, Lee Edmondson at 238 and Graham Cooke at 244.

Earlier this spring, the team finished fifth in a field of 12 at the Red Fox Invitational in Tryon, S.C. Woulfe, Murphy and Janson led the team with 236, 237 and 238 scores, respectively, on a course Coach Bruce Fossum calls the hardest in the country.

Both tournaments were won by Wake Forest.

The results of the tour were sufficient cause for optimism from Coach Fossum. Looking ahead to the Big Ten Meet which MSU will host May 16-17, Fossum said:

"We should have a fine chance to win it. We were second last year, third two years ago and fourth a year before that.

"There's only one place to go up to," he said. Ohio State was the only other Big Ten team in competition. They finished behind the Spartans in the Red Fox in eighth place. Fossum was delighted with Woulfe's play and said he looks for Graham Cooke, the former Ontario Junior champion, to improve.

"We ought to be in the same category as Wake Forest," Fossum said, "if we were playing the way we will be playing."

MEETS WITH BUCKS TODAY

Alcindor still set for NBA

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The American Basketball Assn. tried to force the battle for Lew Alcindor into overtime but the UCLA super star looked like a sure thing Monday to sign with the rival National Basketball Assn.

Sam Gilbert, one of Alcindor's financial advisers, said a strictly private meeting would be held today with officials of the Milwaukee Bucks.

Alcindor himself stated in public Saturday night he did not want to get involved in a "degrading" bidding war. He is committed orally to sign with the Bucks for a reported

$1 million over a five-year period.

"We feel Lew is being fair," Gilbert, speaking for himself and Ralph Shapiro, his partner said. "He gave both parties every chance to make their offers under his rules. I'm sure if the first ABA offer had been greater, he would have accepted it."

Peninger blasts

Peninger is not exactly happy with the present arrangement.

"There has to be a better system of choosing referees," Peninger said. "The regional representatives sometimes choose a friend or maybe a high school coach who has sent him a lot of wrestlers." That's certainly not the best way of insuring top quality officiating.

"All the coaches who were at the NCAA tourney this year know what referees did a good job and who didn't. Why don't we single out those who did competent jobs and bring them back next year instead of having the regional representatives choose another full group next year."

Why Should a College Graduate Become a Police Officer?

The Oakland, California Police Department
Pays its beginning Police Officers over $10,000 a year to start. Why? Because we want the best men available for service to our community. Of course they must meet strict mental, physical and moral requirements, such as:

1. Be a United States Citizen, age 21 through 32 inclusive, or 35 with 2 years' college or 2 years' police experience.
2. Be at least 5'8", but not more than 6'7" tall without shoes; weigh at least 150 lbs. and have weight in proportion to height as determined by the examining physician.
3. Have uncorrected vision of at least 20/70 each eye, correctable to 20/20 one eye, 20/30 other eye; and normal color vision.
4. Possess a valid driver's or chauffeur's license.
5. Pass a comprehensive medical and psychiatric evaluation by physicians designated by the Civil Service Board. No Waivers are granted. A character investigation will also be conducted.

A recruiting team from Oakland will be on campus Monday and Tuesday, April 7 and 8. If you are interested in entering into the examination process, contact immediately: Placement Bureau, 355-9513, for further details. Incidentally, many Oakland Officers have completed their college education while on the department. If you have a year or two to go, why not look into this opportunity and prepare for the future?

Judiciary proposals deemed 'academic'

By MARILYN PATTERSON
State News Staff Writer

ASMSU's proposed changes in the campus judiciary system are only academic, Sue Schurman, chairman of the Student Faculty Judiciary, said Sunday.

The judiciary has yet to declare any regulation inconsistent with the Academic Freedom Report and the vice president for student affairs has yet to reverse any of our decisions, so at this point the changes don't really affect us," she said.

The ASMSU proposals, formulated fall term, are that any regulation or administrative decision declared by the judiciary to be inconsistent with the freedom report is immediately null and void and that the vice president for student affairs may ask the judiciary to review a decision but he may not overrule the judiciary.

The proposals have been approved by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs. If approved by the Academic Council and the board of trustees, they will become amendments to the Academic Freedom Report, Article 4.

Currently, the vice president of student affairs may affirm, reverse or ask the judiciary to review a decision, and the only action taken by a judiciary decision that a regulation or administrative decision is inconsistent with the freedom report is to inform the agency which issued the regulation or decision.

Actually these proposals haven't changed anything," Miss Schurman said.

The freedom report, she said, operates on a "good faith" philosophy. It is assumed that the judiciary acts in good faith and should any decision be questionable, the vice president still can ask us to review a decision," she said.

"This is all he would ever have done to begin with. The basic philosophy of the report has not been changed."

Miss Schurman said it would be "unnecessary" to increase the number of student members on the judiciary to equal the faculty members.

"There has never been and we can't conceive of there being a direct split between the students and the faculty judiciary members," she said.

"In view of the way the community views the situation," she said, "it might be better to increase student membership just so it wouldn't look like the faculty controls the judiciary. However, an increase in student membership wouldn't do us any good."

Funds plague Library

Neville said that although the Library is better than it was 10 or 15 years ago, "it is not as good as it ought to be." He added that it was not because the faculty or Library administrators were not concerned with the quality of the Library that the Library still is not up to the quality it should be.

"It's that we just don't have the resources," he explained. "Just because one has the resources, one doesn't necessarily have a great university or library, but you can not have a great university of Library without great resources."

President John A. Hannah was queried as to where the Library stands as far as appropriations go.

Does the University want more money for the Library?

"If we get what the governor asked the legislature for, then there will be funds to do what the Library wants," Hannah said.

"We will be able to get books and services needed, but not everything Chapin wants."

And Richard E. Chapin, director of University Libraries, said that the Library's basic need is probably for another million dollars annually.

"Libraries are one of the most rapidly growing expenditures of a University," Chapin said. "The cost of Libraries is going up faster than the cost of salaries. The University has to face up to this or it won't have a good Library and good librarians."

Richard E. Sullivan, professor and chairman of the History Dept. and chairman of President Hannah's Ad Hoc Committee on the Library, said that in his opinion a general consensus that the Library is important does not exist among MSU students and faculty.

"The money for the Library will come when this consensus is prevalent," Sullivan said.

He added that in his judgment the University community has come a long way toward forming that consensus in the 15 years he has been here.

Green for Urban Affairs director

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is a statement by the Black Students' Alliance on the anticipated resignation of Ronald B. Lee, director of the Center for Urban Affairs, and its recommendation for a successor.

MSU has responded to the tremendous challenge presented by the racial and urban crisis existing in America. This challenge was perhaps best posed in the questions confronting the Committee of Sixteen: what is appropriate for MSU to do now and in the years ahead designed to make a useful contribution to the solution of the problems that beset our society in the area generally referred to as Civil Rights? How should MSU proceed in this effort?

Assuming that "the need for immediate action is evident," the Committee of Sixteen concluded that "extraordinary efforts should be made to effect fundamental changes of attitude and behavior of white Americans toward the Negro in American society."

The recommendations made by the committee toward this end were, in part, a statement of demands presented to the University by the Black Students' Alliance after the assassination of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. It was the goal of the alliance to make MSU more responsive and hence more relevant to the needs of black America.

In addition, the establishment of a "Center for Race and Urban Affairs" was recommended by the committee, to undertake academic, action, research and experimental activities designed to facilitate a great thrust toward racial and urban relevancy. The actual operation of such a center, starting last June, marked a seemingly significant step in making this University all that it could, and indeed, should be.

The resignation of Ronald B. Lee as assistant provost for Equal Opportunity Programs and director of the Center for Urban Affairs is an important development in MSU's attempt to make itself more relevant to the entire society. Mr. Lee, since assuming the post in September 1968, has been primarily responsible for the development of a working framework for the various recommendations and demands that have been presented to the University.

Through a series of seminars with representatives of all segments of the University, a detailed compilation of "the breadth and depth of university activities in equal opportunity programs and the Center for Urban Affairs" has been gathered. This undertaking has done much to chart the path for future efforts in these areas.

Mr. Lee's imminent departure from the MSU campus occurs at a time when the need for immediate and forceful action in the areas that have been outlined is all too obvious. There is absolutely no time to be lost in doing those things that have been talked about for so long.

The Black Students' Alliance, in view of this urgent need for action, supports the appointment of Robert L. Green to the position being vacated by Mr. Lee. We feel that this University is indeed most fortunate to have a person as highly qualified as Dr. Green to fill the position.

Dr. Green has qualified himself for the position on all fronts. He has long been an active participant in the struggle of black Americans for human rights. His work as education director with the Rev. M. L. King and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, to mention one of several activities, gives him immeasurable insights into the nature of the racial problems facing America.

As an associate professor of counseling, personnel services and educational psychology, his professional qualifications and research interests and publications have brought him wide recognition as an authority on the problems of the education of urban and educationally "disadvantaged" children, and the racial crisis existing in American education.

His interest and dedication to this University have been repeatedly demonstrated. Dr. Green has on several occasions taken an outspoken stand for equal educational opportunity and equitable treatment of all people in the University when such a stand was far from popular.

He is currently serving as the associate director of the Center for Urban Affairs and was a member of the Committee of Sixteen that recommended its establishment. Having worked closely with Mr. Lee since his arrival, Dr. Green is well aware of the directions which have been outlined for the future.

Dr. Green thus brings to the position a long standing interest in the problems of race and urban affairs, a thorough background in the area, and a familiarity with MSU's expressed intentions and initial efforts towards solving society's most pressing problems. Perhaps most important, he brings sincere dedication to the task of making this University accept the challenge presented to it by these problems and respond in ways designed to aid in their alleviation.

Nothing more could be asked. MSU should immediately take such steps as are required to place the name of Dr. Green before the required committees and the MSU Board of Trustees for appointment to the position of assistant provost for Equal Opportunity Programs and director for the Center for Urban Affairs.

There is vast difference in having on the campus of MSU a mere structure called the Center for Urban Affairs and the presence of a well-staffed, adequately financed center. Without the proper financial and staffing support, the center becomes verbal husk--an attempt to placate those who demand that this University, too, should bear the societal responsibility facing it.

To expect one or two men to carry out the numerous functions delegated to the center and the Equal Opportunity Programs is to expect the impossible. The problems are so complex and MSU so large that haphazard and piecemeal approaches would result from inadequate financing and staffing support in tackling such a large program.

The Black Students' Alliance demands that MSU take immediate steps to further convince the University community of its intention to undertake a sincere and enduring effort to make MSU a truly integrated and socially responsive institution of higher learning, as stated by the Committee of Sixteen.

We urge the University to immediately make adequate funds available to implement the programs it so highly endorses. A sum of $1 million is a minimum figure in guaranteeing that the Center for Urban Affairs and the Equal Opportunity Programs become viable entities with sufficient support to be successful. Further support will certainly be expected as their programs become more fully developed.

We recommend that the center's staff be structured to reflect the nature of the tasks confronting it. There should be a director of the center, responsible for overall coordination for the University's efforts in urban and racial affairs. We urge the creation of a separate office of the assistant provost for Equal Opportunity Programs, supporting these positions, we suggest the immediate hiring of the staff necessary to implement the other functions that have been delegated to the center and to Equal Opportunity Programs--curriculum development, research, on-campus and off-campus action programs, experimental programs, minority recruitment, enforcing regulations against discriminations, and the like.

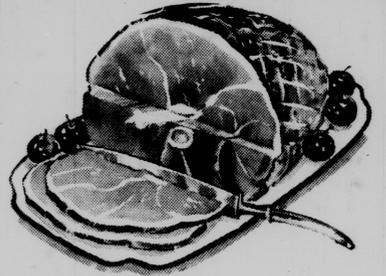

The Alliance suggests that the University take the necessary steps in implementing these recommendations at the earliest moment. There has been too much said and much too little done already. If MSU is as committed to becoming a truly responsive and relevant institution as it professes to be, then these recommendations merely reflect a spur to movement along the course that it has charted. If not, then the time is now for us all to reassess the situation and act accordingly.
