ORCHESTRA TO PRESENT FIRST CONCERT HERE

Michael Press to Conduct Group at Peoples Church Thursday Night at 7:30.

3 SUPPORTING ARTISTS

Lewis Richards, Ruth Mack and William Owen Will Offer Bach's Triple Concerto.

The first of a new series of concerts by the Michigan State college orchestra will be held Thursday, December 6, at 7:30 in the college gymnasium, presaging the series of four concerts which will be presented here this winter.

The success of the single concert given last spring created a desire here for more performances of the orchestra. Under the direction of Michael Press, the orchestra is making four appearances, with faculty artists appearing as soloists in each. The special feature for Thursday's concert is the Bach triple concerto, which will be played by Lewis Richards, Mrs. Ruth Mack and William Owen. This concerto, usually three pianos, is an outstanding feature often heard in the Metropolitan of the music world.

Soloists in succeeding concerts will be Alexander Schuster, cellist, on February 7; Fred Patton, baritone, on March 14; and Michael Press, violinist, on April 23. All of these artists have national reputations in the musical field and performed on the concert stage for many years before entering the educational side of their vocation.

Alexander Schuster, born in Odessa, Russia, displayed musical talent at an early age and was entered in the Odessa Conservatory where he studied under Wladislaw Zelenka. After graduating from Odessa, Schuster went to Berlin to continue his studies with Prof. Hugo Becker at the Hochschule. In 1911 Mr. Schuster was awarded the Joseph Joachim prize, the highest mark of distinction the Hochschule confers. In 1916, he devoted all his time to concert work. Notable appearances include the performance with Eugene D'Alecy, Bronislaw Hovman, Carl Flesch and Fritz Kreisler. In the meantime, he was soloist with the Philharmonic orchestra of Christiania, Norway, and with the orchestra of Breslau. In 1929 Mr. Schuster was called to America to head the violin department of the Michigan State college. His first appearance in America as soloist with the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra starred Mr. Schuster as one of the best of contemporary cellists.

Fred Patton, born in South Manchester, Conn., advanced for a business executive when he

BLUE KEY MEN ORATORY MEET SPONSOR PARTY IS POSTPONED

Friday Night Dance Features All College Speech Event Will Pre-Examination Social be Held January 15; Men and Women Will Compete.

The annual all-college oratory contest has been postponed from December 6 to January 15, it was announced today by Prof. J. D. Mandelkoff. The reason for the change is to give students the vacation in which to prepare their orations and thus make it possible for more students to enter.

There will be separate contests for both men and women. First place winners in each division will receive a cash prize of $10 and runners-up will each be awarded $5. Winners will also represent Michigan State at the state inter-collegiate contest to be held at Hope college in March 1. Here the first and second prizes in both the men's and women's contest will be $50 and $40 respectively. State championship winners will be sent to the national tournament held later in the year at North western university.

The contest is not limited in its choice of subject. Current economic, social and political problems provide good topics for discussion. The length of the oration should be from 1,000 to 1,200 words. Anyone interested in participating in the try-out on January 15 should confer with Professor Mandelkoff in the speech office at once.

HOME EC OFFERS RELEASE LATEST TRAINING COURSE ISSUE OF RECORD

Eight Week Short Course to be Started Winter Term. Alumni Magazine is Now Being Distributed Among Grads.

The home economics department is offering a short course for girls who are unable to attend college, but who desire training in the home economics line. The course will be offered during the winter term, and will last eight weeks. The charge, outside of board and room, will be very low.

Some of the subjects included will be courses in foods, home management, child care, clothing, home furnishing, art appreciation, and physical education.

Those enrolled in this course will form a special unit within the college, and special social affairs will be planned for them.

In speaking of this course, Dean Marie Dye remarked that when attending the meeting of the Land Grant College association last month, such a course was strongly recommended by the various college representatives as being a very modern thing. Michigan State was one of the few colleges to have had such a course in former years.

Attempts are being made to organize a boxing team at Michigan State. The athletic department has expressed approval of the idea and if enough interest is manifested an attractive schedule can be arranged.

All experienced men are asked to report to Irving Bortman in the gymnasium Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock to discuss plans.

Students who are intending to make loans for winter term fees are asked by the student loan committee to make their applications within the next two weeks. Delay in making applications frequently entails payment of late registration fees. Checks may be secured in room 114 of Agricultural hall.

NEWMAN'S CLUB PLANS PARTIES

Radio Dance and Card Party Will Be Offered Soon by Organization.

As the start of an intensive social campaign for the coming winter months, the Newman's club, Catholic student organization, has announced two major events to take place during the coming week.

On Thursday evening the second in a series of Catholic mixers will be held in the faculty dining room at the Union. The affair will take the form of a radio dancing party and all Catholics on the campus are invited, whether or not they are yet a member of the club. James Cosgrove, president of the club, has announced that the party will start at 7:30 p. m. in an effort to provide Saturday afternoon recreation for the needs of the campus the Newman's club is sponsoring a card party this Saturday at the Union. Play will start at 2:30 and continue until 5. This is the first affair of this kind to be sponsored by the club and is being looked forward to with great anticipation on the campus. All girls, Catholic or non-Catholic, are invited. Louise Gregory, Helen Gormely, and Frances Scullin are in charge of arrangements for this affair.

These are only two of the many social gatherings planned by the Newman's club during the next few months. The club is in the middle of its second year on the Michigan State campus and is fast becoming recognized as one of the few outstanding organizations of its kind in this section. Plans are now under way to affiliate the club with the national association of Newman's clubs, which will allow the organization to function in a much broader capacity than is now possible.

Rev. Fr. C. W. Winters, college chaplain, is club chaplain, and James Cosgrove is president.

Dorm Girls Unite For Turkey Feed On Day of Thanks

The girls in the Women's building and East and West Mary Mayo celebrated their Thanksgiving day in the dining room of East Mary Mayo at 12:30 o'clock Thursday. The tables were decorated with red candles and places were set for eighty girls. The house mothers and the dormitories were all present and turkey was had by all. Sunday noon the girls from the Women's building were divided, half of them eating with the East Mary girls and the other half with the West. This made a nice arrangement not only for the kitchen department, but also made it a happier week-end for the girls who did not go home.

INCREASE PRICE OF WOLVERINES

Yearbook Will Sell for $4.25 Each After Saturday, December 8.

The final date that 1934 Wolverines may be purchased at the price of $3.75 will be Saturday, December 8. After that date the price, according to the business manager, Jean Kreuter, will advance to $4.25. Sales of next year's book have reached an all-time record, numbering well over 100 copies, and daily orders indicate a much higher figure by the time the contracts are closed.

STAFF NOTICE

A release of the picture of the Wolverine staff has been found necessary. All members of the staff are requested to report at the studio in the Union building tonight at 7:45 for this purpose.

Members of the actives and 75% of the pledges are required to submit a complete list of actives and pledges with their receipt books. Saturday will also be the deadline for seniors to purchase books for $1.75, after that the price will be $2.25. There seems to have been some misunderstanding among the seniors as to the purchase of the books this year. Under the plan approved by a meeting of the senior class, the class itself should pay $2.00 on each book, and the individual was to pay the balance.

A table will be placed in the Union building Thursday and Friday of this week for those who wish to sign up before the new price goes into effect. Some members of the staff will be on duty from 8 until 10. All proofs which have not already been returned should be taken to the Versluis Studio in Lansing at once.

State Society Deserts Campus In Favor of Turkey as Final Big Pre-Exam Weekend Approaches

Students Turn to Bridge and Local Theaters to Help Relieve Monotony of Holiday Week Devoid of College Dances and Open Houses.

From certain reports, everyone had a big week-end last Friday and Saturday; but not at Michigan State. The few students who did remain in East Lansing resorted to such original amusements as going to the local theaters and dance halls. The enterprising members of one house spent the time listening to the radio and running to the window every time a car passed. But the cars passed so seldom that the students went mad and took up bridge. A few students caught up on their studies during the awful silence of the week-end, in anticipation of the coming Friday and Saturday nights. But, in plain words, last week-end the town was dead.

The Passing Show

By NONIE SMITH

We are proud to find that among the great throng attending the brilliant opening of the Detroit Civic opera season Friday evening at the Masonic temple, Michigan State college was well represented. No doubt the motivating force was Fred Patton of our music department, who took the part of Kurwenal in this production of Tristan and Isolde by Richard Wagner. Perhaps we are prejudiced, but even in the two-horned head-dress which he so pompously donned, we felt that his dramatic ability surpassed that of the majority of the other members of the cast. The superior quality of his voice was recognized immediately by the audience and the last act, which might have been a farce what with the leading man vamping his death bed robe around him as if he had lost his trousers, was given a tone of sincerity by Mr. Patton's true sobbing and fine acting. Perhaps the most amazing thing about the opera was the fact that an American audience had been kept sitting for four and a half hours, but who leaves early when they have paid from $1 to $3 for their seats? Please forgive the irony. It isn't because we don't recognize the perfectly superb mastery shown in the music, but simply that we can't see art in love scenes that look like "fixed" wrestling matches on supposedly charming and alluring women prancing across the stage like cows.

MAKE SURVEY ON GAS, LIGHT

Fifteen FERA Students Will Conduct Canvass to Determine Use of Utilities.

Fifteen students of the college under the FERA will conduct a survey of the use and expense of operating major electrical and gas appliances in residences of the city between now and the end of the year.

The survey is a part of a nationwide study of public utility rates made by the Federal Power commission. Students who are receiving Federal aid from grants to colleges and universities by the Federal Emergency Relief administration are doing the field work.

Professor W. A. Murray of the electrical engineering department is in charge of the local group and will direct the survey in East Lansing.

Through a house-to-house canvass, the commission expects to secure full information concerning the appliances which are in use, and as much as possible, the monthly bills paid during the past two years. Such appliances as refrigerators, ranges, radios, flat irons, waffle irons, vacuum cleaners, and in fact, all types of electric implements will be included. In addition, the survey will cover the number of outlets, light bulbs and total wattage.

Professor Murray asks that all residents of the city be prepared to aid the students in every way so that the city can be covered within the time allotted. The program outlined will help students to earn enough money to remain in college.

Glancing Back In Spartan Annals

1930—December 7

On Saturday, December 7, at 4 o'clock, the Olympic society held its annual venison roast. The rooms were decorated to give the appearance of a pine forest and the members in hunting costume carried out well the scheme of a hunting party. The numerous cozi corners were very popular. The Indian tepee and the pine-thatched cabin being most frequented. In the dance hall, the electrical effects were the features, consisting of small colored incandescent lights in the pine trees and lanterns spelling the society name. The Foresters club will hold its next meeting in the river woodlot in a large tent belonging to the department. Professor Baker is making the course as realistic as possible and has aided much in making the forestry course a popular one at the college.

The fall term party given by the Sorority society was held in the armory Saturday night, December 4. One of the features of this party was a dance in "semi-darkness," during which Mary Allen, '36 and May Herbert favored the participants with a duet, "The Garden of Roses."

1911—December 1

The Eclectic society gave a special Thanksgiving dinner for the members and from 3:30 until 7 o'clock held open house, at which about 30 couples made merry.

Mary Antin will give the third number of the lectures of the Liberal Arts Council December 8. Her address will be "The Responsibility of American Citizenship."

Prof. A. J. Patton addressed the Farmers' club last week on Fertilizer.

The engagement of Coach John Farrell Macklin to Miss Phoebe Weaver of Philadelphia has been announced.

1919—December 5

Lansing and East Lansing alumnae of the Feronian society gave a supper honoring the active girls at the home of Margaret Barrows on the campus Wednesday evening, December 5.

There is some agitation on the campus to shorten the classes and make the school sessions from 8 to 4 o'clock as in pre-war times. During the war, when the terms were shortened, five minutes was added to each class period, making the daily session from 8 to 5 o'clock.

A special short course in cow testing and dairy barn management, which will run from December 1 to 12, will be included for the first time among the winter courses in agriculture at Michigan Agricultural college.

1924—December 1

R. E. Olds has offered a prize for group singing contests, according to an announcement by President Butterfield. Information is not available as to the nature of the prize nor concerning the rules governing competition.

With the opening of the basketball season December 10, with Adrian at the college, athletic interest has naturally turned to this sport. With a majority of veterans back from the past two seasons, followers of the Green and White are quite optimistic concerning the prospects for a winning team.

Spartan Cagers Win From Central State Teachers in Opener

Herrick Scores High as VanAlstyne's Team Trounces Teachers by 43 to 14 Score; Four Veterans, Reck, Frizzo, Rouse, and VanFassen, in Line-up.

That Coach Ben VanAlstyne has again placed a winner on the basketball court was evidenced last Saturday night when the latest edition of Spartan basketballers went through the Central State Teachers in whirlwind fashion, 43 to 14. The carnage took place at the Boys Vocational field house in Lansing, a spacious plant similar to our own Demonstration hall.

At the very outset, when Leo Frizzo scored the opening tally in the early minutes of play, on a simple jump shot, the big question in the minds of the sparse assemblage was just how big the score would be. The Green and White attack scored at will with the visitors giving little opposition. The entire roster of 11 cagers was given a chance to perform, Bob Herrick setting the scoring pace with 9 points to his credit which included four field goals. Big Art VanFassen garnered a lone field goal and five free throws to grab the second scoring honors. Noyak led the invaders with five points.

In the starting five, four of the positions were filled by veterans. Dan Reck started at the right forward post although he played guard last season, while VanFassen occupied the other forward berth on defense and handled the pivot duties on offense. Frizzo was the jumping center and left forward, a conglomerate arrange-

KANSAS SIDELIGHTS

Charles Bachman's Michigan State eleven was welcomed to the west with good old Kansas hospitality. Dr. Niro, a long time friend of Coach Bachman's, provided a police escort for the men of East Lansing wherever they went. All the men who made the trip were very much impressed with Kansas City.

The new State uniforms were not in use last Saturday as the rain, snow and mud called for the old white jerseys and the rubber rain pants as well as another set of shoes and flasks. Considering the atmospheric conditions and the wet terrain the Spartans handled the ball very well.

Once again the famed and feared passing attack of the Spartans was unable to function properly due to the inclement weather. However, it took just one of the all time losses from the trusty left arm of Kurt Warmben to decide the issue. Kurt's 20 yard pass finding a haven in the arms of Ed Klewicki who trotted the remaining 14 yards for a touchdown.

One of State's unsung heroes came into his own last Saturday, and played the type of football he is capable of playing. Jim "Moose" Brakeman, replaced H. Zindel, sophomore tackle, early in the first period and finished the game in great fashion at that position. "Moose" Brakeman has far after last Saturday to be a great asset to the fighting men of Sparta in their last game on December 8, and in the attractive schedule that state will play next fall. Jim has been handicapped by the fact that he has to devote a great deal of time to working his way through college selling shoes for the Nurbach, Nettleton, and Edgerton companies in his state on the main drag.

Russ Reynolds, the rambling quarterback of the victory-mad Spartans, came back to his earlier form in the game last Saturday. His fine return of punts was sensational, carrying the ball back for an average of 24 yards, which incidentally is a mighty good average.

The issue was nine minutes old and State had netted 11 points before Clark of the Beavercats came through with the initial enemy score, a foul toss. Frizzo bagged 2. VanFassen made it 4 with a charity toss and a field goal, Herrick and Rouse each contributed a spectacular long tom and Rouse dropped in two free shots to accomplish the feat of acquiring 11 counters while holding the visitors down to a scoreless.

At this juncture the second unit from the State bench engaged in the embryonic and eye ball had ended, the score had assumed to 22-7. Galschek and Rodgers parting the meshes with 7 of the points.

The second frame opened with the starting front again in position. Herrick banged in a jump shot and long heave to reopen relations, followed by Rouse who plunked a long one. Herrick bagging another dog shot and one from the foul stripe. After VanFassen put two foul tosses through the net, it was again time to retire to the bench in favor of the hustling reinforcements who swelled the score card up to the closing minutes, with Frank Vaydik and Curtis White looping in a field goal apiece and Sholtz netting two more.

Wednesday night, December 5, should see some bang-up basketball when Michigan State engages the Kalamazoo college Hornets at the Boys Vocational school on Pennsylvania avenue. A crew of flashy reserves that provide no let-down of the first play will be worth watching.

Wednesday the Spartans leave for their final game of this year's schedule. We recall that way back in one of the pre-season write-ups we predicted that State would be lucky if they won five out of their nine games. With eight games played the Spartans have lost one—Syracuse—and it's our face red? However, the softening fact is that no one, not even the coaches, could predict anything close to the final results with the usual breaks plus estimation based on performance for the past season. We feel that State is going to turn in probably its most brilliant record since the wonder teams of 1913 and 1915.

Glancing back over the season it seems that the Spartans hit their peak performance, offensively and defensively, against Manhattan. In this one game everything tried worked beautifully and the substitutes checked in well as the regulars. Besides, Manhattan was no pushover—just ask any of the squad. They were rough and tough but failed to coordinate their offense or defense, hence the overwhelming score which State piled up. In this game Russ Reynolds, scrappy State quarterback, reached his peak also both in directing the team and his brilliant defensive work, particularly the amazing rumbuck of punts. In this game, also, Kurt Warmben received the shoulder injury which was to hinder him throughout the rest of the season.

Probably the most spectacular game for local fans to watch was the Carnegie Tech battle. Four hard quarters of bruising, hot clean football. Both teams were fighting throughout the contest and making first rate football all the time. Spectators saw two teams which played almost faultless football during that contest. Playing State with virtually the same team which held the Spartans scoreless last year, the Tartans only cracked once and permitted a score on a neatly executed lateral pass play. State followed this with two field goals, one by McCray and the other by Behr, all points coming in the second half. Along with this the Spartans stopped three drives of the Skibos.

A little dose on Texas. They use a hybrid Warner system of offense—double wing backs, semi-punt formations, and deep punt formations. They run good cross-gaining plays from these formations regardless of their opponent's ability to score points in your game. Their defense is varied a great deal also—they have a strong passing team and do not resort to pass as a last hope—as soon as their ground attack is momentarily checked they will take to the air in an attempt to spread the defense.

Texas A & M has some good backs in Cooper and Fowler. Cooper is their main running and passing threat. Fowler is a deceptive left-handed passer and also punts left-footed. Two other backs are Cummings and Kimberrough, both good men at hushing the line from the short back positions. Defensively their stars are Dewary and Kirby, their center and right tackle respectively. These men, if they can't all over the field again in on a surprising number of tackles.

The game last Saturday was the first meeting between the Spartans and Jayhawkers, but it is by no means the last. This was the first of a four game series to be played by the two institutions. It was State's first game against Kansas but it is far from being the first time that Coach Charles Bachman has matched wits with the coaching staffs of the Sunflower state university. While at Kansas State "Bachman" defeated Kansas in four out of seven games and tied one.

A Dope Chart on Michigan State's Opponents

Last week saw the curtain drop on the football stage for most of the country's eleven, with State and Texas A and M left to close the season in the southwest and Notre Dame winding up on the east coast with Southern California. Outside of the Rose Bowl and the annual East-West games, competition will close on all fronts this Saturday.

In another of the season's typical upsets, University of Detroit turned Delag Nott on the Washington State Cougars and the champion of this win, Detroit has been mentioned as a possible contender in a New Year's day game in San Francisco, but Coach Doran's men have turned in their suits for this year.

Texas A and M, cause for Spartan worry this week, came within two touchdowns of Texas university, but lacked any scoring punch that might have added another upset to the already long list of this campaign. The Aggies, their season bright spot being a single victory over Arkansas, will have to score several times to clear out a win over our Spartans, but Bachman's backs will face a line that has run into the best in two sections of the country.

Kansas added the necessary flavor to the situation at Missouri needed to put the skids on the regime of Frank Carideo by trouncing the Mules 20-0. Immediately after this game Carideo handed in his resignation as coach, a position he stepped into upon his graduation from Notre Dame four years ago. The Kansans came close in all their engagements, and their losses were to some of the best teams in the middle west.

The Skibos of Carnegie Tech were nearly even with Pitt, and lost to the best team in the east only as a result of their own misplays. The Panthers, featuring an all-American fullback and guard, held too much reserve for Howard Harper's men, and Pitt wound up their year with only one defeat by Minnesota marring their record. Carnegie came closer than Navy, Nebraska or West Virginia in stopping the powerful Panthers.

Spartan interest will be focused on San Antonio this Saturday, and then the spotlight will shift to basketball, with an inter-sectional contest already arranged for VanAlstyne's campers.

Independent Rooming Houses All Invited to Enter.

An independent basketball tournament, sponsored by the Y M C A at Michigan State, has been announced by Al Aggett, chairman of the athletic committee.

A schedule of the games, which will be played sometime in January, is being drawn up by L. L. Framodig, and arrangements have been made with the college athletic department for the requisition of equipment.

Thirty-five members of the Spartan Y have already signed up for the teams. As ten teams are expected there is still plenty of room for men who are interested.

Any independent rooming houses which wish to form a team are cordially invited to enter. They should get in touch with Aggett immediately, as the final schedule for the tournament will be drawn up before the holidays.

There is now about $125 in contributed money to every $100 in genuine money in circulation.

NATIONAL SPORT SUMMARY

By JACK WARNER

Since everyone else is taking a crack at this quaint old custom of picking All-American teams before the official team is announced, we thought this would make our amateur contribution. After a meeting of the Grand Order of Purple Panned Prognosticators, we offer as the first string All-American—MINNESOTA.

Second string: Alabama.

But to be conventional, we'll name the following on the first team: End, Frank Larson, Minnesota; tackle, Slade Catter, Navy; guard, Chas. Hartwig, Pittsburgh; center, John Robinson, Notre Dame; guard, Kenneth Ormiston, Pittsburgh; tackle, Robert Reynolds, Stanford; end, Donald Hulston, Alabama; quarter, Robert Grayson, Stanford; half, Red Boerries, Navy; half, Millard Howell, Alabama; full, Francis Lund, Minnesota.

As is the usual thing with all of our forecasts, we'll probably be all wrong. Once we picked nine out of thirteen winners, and since then Lady Luck has forgotten about us for four we'd suffer from the well known ex-celled scenes.

Stars did fall on Alabama. Last week, as you all know, the Crimson Tide was picked to meet Stanford in the annual New Year's day football classic at the Rose Bowl, and as soon as we heard this we immediately hopped on them for a winter. We have a hunch that the Stanford line will take more than Stanford has to stop him.

Mr. Traps—After each touchdown in the Alabama-Vanderbilt game, the Alabama band struck up "California, Here We Come." Millard Howell, star halfback of Alabama, wasn't good enough to make the 1931 yearling team.

The Crimson Tide was scheduled to come into Pasadena on the morning of December 23, but now they've changed the date. It seems that where the Alabama team won from Washington and Washington State in 1925 and 1926, they arrived on December 24—thus the change.

Nagarski is another famous player who didn't make much of a name for himself in high school, and even at Minnesota it was a much argued question whether Herb Jostling wasn't a better plunger, tackle, and blocker.

SCHEDULE LISTED FOR SPARTAN FIVE

State Cagemen to Play Eighteen Games; Ten on Home Court.

Spartan basketball men will play 18 games during this year's schedule, ten of them booked for the home court. For the first time in several years Notre Dame is not listed in the schedule, which will take some of the sparkle from this year's contests as the games with the Ramblers in the past have been close fought and exciting matches from start to finish. A second team has been dropped from the Spartan schedule after having furnished plenty of competition in past years. U. of D. has been replaced by Wayne university of Detroit in a home and home series.

Stanford university from the Pacific coast will be the outstanding attraction during the holidays for those students who will be unable to return home and for those who reside locally. This game will come as a post-Christmas attraction, scheduled for December 27.

Probably one team which will turn out to be one of the toughest on this year's schedule will be Kentucky university, which will play here February 13. State tangles with Big Ten teams four times during the season, meeting Northwestern and Wisconsin as well as engaging in the annual home and home battles with the University of Michigan. Other home and home tilts arranged are with Wayne university, Marquette university, Western Reserve and Michigan State Normal. While the schedule is looking two old and seasoned opponents in Notre Dame and U. of D. the athletic department has built up a well rounded season to confront a team which
