Students watch Council okay 9 McKee recommendations

By DELORES MAJOR
State News Staff Writer

Nearly 300 students stood by almost silently as members of the Academic Council approved the first nine recommendations contained within the report from the New Committee on Student Participation in Academic Governance, and added another recommendation to protect the rights of faculty members.

Students lined the walls of the Con Con room in the International Center where the Council meets monthly. The crowd remained silent with occasional cheers, some applause, some boos and one incident that provoked a hiss from the students.

A 45 minute debate between council member C. C. Killingsworth, professor of Labor and Industrial Relations, and Chairman of the Committee James B. McKee centered on faculty rights as opposed to the student rights spelled out in the document.

Killingsworth pointed out that the student participation in academic government as recommended in the committee's report is disproportionate.

Of particular concern to him was the possibility that there "might be issues that can be expected to arise where the student votes would make a difference in the decision."

McKee admitted that such a circumstance might arise but added "but I'm willing to live with it."

There was applause from the crowd. Later in the meeting, Killingsworth offered a proposal to the council and asked that it be included within the report on student participation in academic government.

The recommendation stated that, "if

NIXON TO CONGRESS

Reform, not expansion of education aid planned

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon charted a course of reform rather than expansion of federal education aid Tuesday and stepped tentatively toward possible government assistance to financially trapped parochial schools.

The President's message to Congress on education, as expected, called for: a new research - oriented National Institute of Education; a presidential commission on the financial burdens of elementary and secondary schools, public and private; a $200 - million right - to - read program; a three - year extension of the federally chartered Corporation for Public Broadcasting; and new attention to preschool learning experiments.

Nixon placed heavy and repeated emphasis on what he described as the failure of current federal aid programs to improve the academic performance of poor children.

"There is growing evidence that most of them are not yet measurably improving the success of poor children in school," he said. "We must recognize that our present knowledge about how to overcome poor backgrounds is so limited that major expansion of such programs could not be confidently based on their results."

The chief executive signed an order creating the school finances commission and designating former Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy as chairman. McElroy, who headed the 1955 White House Conference on Education, has been chairman of the Proctor & Gamble Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, since 1959.

The President singled out the problems of parochial schools as a particular assignment for the commission, saying: "This government cannot be indifferent to the potential collapse of such schools."

"Our purpose here isn't to aid religion in particular but to promote diversity in education," he added. "Non public schools in America are closing at the rate of one a day."

Nixon said the closing of all parochial schools would mean a minimum of $4 billion a year in added costs of public education.

Mrs. Nixon skips 'U' to go where action is

By ED HUTCHISON
Associate Campus Editor

Mrs. Richard M. Nixon said Monday she did not come to the MSU campus during her Lansing visit because she wanted to "go where the action was."

Her remarks were directed at reporters at an evening press conference following her day-long visit to four MSU volunteer projects in the Lansing area.

With Mrs. Nixon at the conference was Charles "Bud" Wilkinson, who is to head the national volunteer program, and 15 MSU student volunteers that had met with the First Lady for forty minutes prior to meeting with reporters.

"The volunteers could not have been more enthusiastic or care more about the people they worked with," Mrs. Nixon said. "Volunteering is protesting in a beneficial way."

George W. Zimmerman, Eaton Rapids senior and host to the First Lady said he hoped her visit would focus interest on volunteers.

Mrs. Nixon echoed that sentiment when she remarked that she had never seen a news story about student volunteers.

"I think one of you people ought to follow one of these wonderful students for a day," she told reporters. "I think it would make a very interesting story."

However, Mrs. Nixon declined to criticize the media for failing to publicize this kind of student activism:

"I don't accuse anybody of anything," she said.

U of I bans Kunstler talk; 750 guardsmen on alert

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) - Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie ordered 750 Illinois National Guardsmen on standby duty Tuesday after trustees of the University of Illinois banned a speech by William M. Kunstler, a lawyer for the Chicago Seven.

A spokesman for the Concerned Lawyers and Law Students, sponsors of the speech, said that Kunstler's appearance has been postponed until next week.

Steven Danz, the spokesman, said the group decided to call off the controversial lawyer's appearance because of the tension caused by the trustees' action in ruling Kunstler could not speak on campus.

Danz said he talked by telephone with Kunstler Tuesday and the lawyer said he would not appear at an off - campus site.

Danz also said the group would go ahead with plans to ask U.S. District Court for a temporary restraining order against the trustees' action.

Gov. Ogilvie said the University of Illinois requested the guard be placed on standby.

"Local officials want to have assistance at hand in case anyone is foolish enough to cry 'fire' in a crowded theatre," the governor said. "Protests, yes. Violence, no. Dissent can be useful and creative but violence is destructive of every legitimate goal."

"We will not tolerate it," he said.

Several hundred university students held a rally on campus Tuesday to protest the trustees' ban. No disorders were reported.

The trustees voted 6 to 3 on Monday to put off Kunstler's talk. Their action was influenced by the demonstrations which followed Kunstler's talks in Evanston and Santa Barbara, Calif.

Chancellor Jack I. Peltason of the university appealed Tuesday for the students to remain calm in their dissent of the trustees' action. Peltason and President David D. Henry had recommended to the trustees that Kunstler be permitted to appear.

Four hundred police from Champaign, Urbana and the university's security force were called Monday night after 500 students smashed windows in the campus area. There were 21 arrests reported.

In a post - trial development in Chicago, the U.S. district attorney's office reported that the cost of prosecuting the seven men during the 4½ month trial totaled $41,748.

The five defendants who were convicted of crossing state lines to incite a riot must pay these costs as part of the penalties imposed by Judge Julius J. Hoffman of U.S. District Court.

Kellogg: pollution aid needs people, cash

By DELORES MAJOR
State News Staff Writer

More money, more concerned people and more regulation is needed to curb pollution, James C. Kellogg, executive assistant to Governor Milliken, said Tuesday at the Faculty Club luncheon.

"This problem is being brought to the attention of the public today as it never has been in the past," Kellogg said. He said the governor has a series of programs to deal with the problems of land, water and air pollution.

Kellogg said that Michigan's main pollution problems are water pollution because of the numerous lakes and rivers in and around the state.

Kellogg also said, "the state government must have some sort of role in governing land resources."

Kellogg said that educational programs on environment control must be extended to the secondary and elementary school levels.

"The federal government has been very niggardly in supporting research programs. Although Washington is the research center, they are not allocating enough funds to support the research that we think should take place," he said.

"So now," Kellogg said, "we are going to kick off an initiatory research program in Michigan."

As part of the pollution control program, he said the governor is asking for stronger boat regulations that would make it mandatory that every boat have a holding tank.

Kellogg said that although the legislature has passed bills dealing with pollution problems in Michigan, they have not appropriated any money for the administration of these programs.

Kellogg said he hoped that citizens would take up a personal fight against pollution much like the citizens of Escanaba did when they decided to create a model air pollution ordinance for their city.

"Personally, I would like to see students get more involved in the war against pollution," he said.

"I'd like to see something like the Peace Corps where students could take a semester off to work with a city on its pollution problems."

James C. Kellogg, executive adviser to Gov. Milliken, spoke to the Faculty Club Tuesday on the need to end pollution of all types in Michigan especially water pollution.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY

O'Brien accepts chairmanship

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawrence F. O'Brien accepted the Democratic summons the second time around and agreed Tuesday to take over as chairman of the party.

The Democrats' ranking professional politician at 52, O'Brien reversed his earlier refusal and accepted the draft, issued unanimously by the party executive committee.

His turnabout came after two days of stalemate in the search for a second-choice candidate to take over when Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma steps down Thursday.

"If the Democratic National Committee ratifies the recommendation of its executive committee to draft me as chairman, I must accept that decision and I will serve my party," O'Brien said.

"We certainly expect it to be ratified," said Jacob M. Arvey of Chicago, the Democratic elder who served as relay man between Room 902 of the Watergate Hotel, where the executive committee met, and O'Brien's public relations office in New York.

"I think I'm safe in saying that Mr. O'Brien will receive the overwhelming majority of the members of the Democratic Party," said Arvey.

But Arvey said he had been around Democratic politics too long to forecast absolute harmony at any party conference, including Thursday's national committee meeting.

When Harris resigned less than a month ago, party leaders immediately looked to O'Brien for another tour in the chairmanship. Humphrey asked him to take the job, and it all seemed settled until last Wednesday, when O'Brien said no.

O'Brien said then that opposition within the party foreclosed the consensus he considered vital.

O'Brien was not commenting personally on the reasons for his switch, but a close associate said the unanimous ten-vote call of the executive committee was a persuasive one. "It's tremendous cross-section of the party," he said.

Furthermore, the associate said, it produced a deluge of approving telephone calls from party figures across the nation.

And perhaps most convincing of all, the calls were said to include some from major financial contributors to the Democratic Party in the past, evidence that perhaps as

LBJ's progress pleases doctors

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Army doctors said Tuesday they are "quite encouraged" with former President Lyndon B. Johnson's progress despite irregular heartbeats and lingering chest pains.

"Our major concern is to try to prevent a heart attack in the ordinary sense of the word," a physician at the Army's Brooke General Hospital said. "That's the main thrust of the hospitalization."

Lt. Col. Robert North said Johnson's chest pains and the irregular rhythm of his heartbeats "could be premonitory warnings of a heart attack."

North, chief of cardiology at Brooke, said the former president is still experiencing some discomfort but nevertheless is in "excellent spirits."

Johnson spends much of his time working on presidential papers, reading and watching television, he added, predicting observation here would continue at least several days.

North said there have been no serious problems since Johnson flew from the LBJ Ranch 70 miles northwest of here Monday and entered a special penthouse hospital suite.

Doctors said the former president's chest pains were caused by hardening of the arteries.

"Basically," North told a news conference, "the problem is one of a diminished supply of blood to the heart in relation to the demand."

"The ordinary heart attack is a consequence of a complete stoppage, if you will, or a blockage of blood flow to a portion of the heart. The situation with President Johnson is not that severe," he added.

The former president, 61, felled by a heart attack in 1955 when he was Senate Democratic leader, has had lesser recurring problems since then.

North reported Johnson was treated overnight for what he described as "extra or premature heartbeats." He said they were not uncommon for people with heart ailments.

But he noted such heart irregularities are "always a concern with people with this type of heart disease" because it could lead to more serious rhythm irregularities.

"It's only fair to say that we're concerned... but this is not to say we have a bleak outlook," he said. "We're fairly optimistic at this point."

"Volunteering is protesting in a beneficial way."
— Mrs. Richard Nixon

International News

South Vietnamese headquarters reported Tuesday 323 enemy soldiers were killed during a three week sweep by nearly a division of government troops in the Mekong Delta. Ten battalions of helicopters — borne 9th Infantry Division troops to take part in the offensive through heavily populated Vinh Binh Province. Casualty figures showed the government forces also sustained losses, 31 killed and 401 wounded. The operation ended March 1. In fighting during the last 24 hours, allied forces backed by fighter bombers, helicopter gunships and artillery, claimed they killed 186 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers, including 80 killed by the South Koreans in a dozen different clashes.

A series of explosions and gunshots scattered a crowd of demonstrators Tuesday as they approached the U.S. Embassy in Manila on a march to protest what they called Philippine fascism and U.S. imperialism. Early reports said at least one person was wounded by a bullet and several others were being treated at hospitals for minor injuries. It was not clear what caused the explosions which were described as gunshots from the police. The crowd numbered about 800 and was the advance party of a group estimated at 2,000 headed for the embassy after a peaceful march through the city. After the crowd dispersed at the embassy, scuffles broke out between the police and demonstrators.

National News

The White House indicated Tuesday the stage is almost set for a decision by President Nixon on Israel's request to buy 50 Phantom jet fighters from the United States. Press Secretary Ronald Zeigler, while emphasizing Nixon has made no decision on the matter, said alternatives have been passed along by various departments involved, completing staff work at that level. The question of whether to make the sale, or perhaps sell a lesser number of planes than Israel wants, is now being considered by the staff of the National Security Council, Zeigler said.

The House, tired of its long fight with President Nixon over education spending, voted Tuesday to accept a compromise $19.4 billion appropriations bill passed by the Senate. It contains provisions permitting cuts to about $19 billion. The White House, equally willing to end the battle, let it be known that Nixon will sign the bill in that form although the total is still about $680 million over his budget. He vetoed an earlier one that was $1.2 billion over the budget.

Prodded by Congress, the Pentagon is sharply curtailing its program for training foreign military men in the United States. The cutback could prove troublesome as the Nixon administration seeks to reduce American presence overseas by strengthening allies by training and equipping them through the military assistance program.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Tuesday it will try for the first time next year to place two spacecraft in orbit around the planet Mars. The mission goals require that the Mariner spacecraft continue to send back data for about three months, while orbiting the planet. This period will allow enough time for the 2,200 - pound spacecraft, equipped with television cameras and other experiments, to study about 70 per cent of the planet's surface from an altitude of about 1,000 miles, and also to observe selected areas as they appear to change with the Martian seasons.

The White House announced Tuesday that President Nixon will nominate Arthur Watson, chairman of the overseas operation of International Business Machines, to succeed R. Sargeant Shriver as ambassador to France. Press secretary Ronald Zeigler confirmed a published report that the 51 - year - old businessman is Nixon's choice for the Paris post.

Some 1,000 flag waving Kentuckians, along with a handful of anti - war demonstrators turned out to meet Mrs. Richard Nixon as the First Lady landed at Lexington to visit University of Kentucky student volunteer projects. The demonstrators arrived late and had back row seats. But by far most of those who greeted her were friendly.

Michigan News

A sliding tax scale for sexy, sexier and sexiest movies has been proposed in the Michigan House. Rep. Quincy Hoffman, R-Applegate, introduced the bill Tuesday to require theatre owners to pay a tax of $50 for an 'M' rated film, $75 for an 'R' picture and $100 for an 'X' film.

Supreme Court to test riot acts

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court was asked Monday to rule on the validity of ordinances which give local authorities the right to prohibit assemblies because of suspected civil unrest. Such measures were passed in numerous U.S. cities to cope with racial disturbances which erupted in the late 1960s, particularly those following the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in April 1968. The ordinances allow mayors or other authorities to take various emergency steps, but nearly all include the power to ban assemblies or to declare outright curfews. The particular ordinance at issue was passed in Philadelphia, and although it is being attacked on rather narrowly defined grounds the outcome is expected to have nationwide implications. The petition filed with the court appeals the convictions of three persons arrested during demonstrations that were held despite a proclamation issued immediately after King's death. The proclamation banned outdoor assemblies of 12 or more people, with few exceptions. The first arrests were made April 6, 1968, at a tree-planting ceremony in Philadelphia's Roosevelt Park protesting the commissioning of the battleship New Jersey for service in the Vietnam War. The ceremony had been planned before the proclamation was issued.

The petition says that while participants in the tree-planting ceremony were being arrested, more than 10,000 persons were permitted to congregate in the Navy Yard, a few blocks away, to take part in the public ceremonies recommissioning the ship. More arrests were made the next day when a group appeared at the home of a congressman to petition for passage of the 1968 Civil Rights Act. Others followed at an outdoor meeting on the University of Pennsylvania campus called for discussion of the proclamation. Appellants and more than 100 other persons whose cases await the outcome of this appeal have been convicted of crimes for their quiet participation in open political assemblies of a wholly peaceful character," the Supreme Court was told. To ban such assemblies and make arrests under a broad proclamation prohibiting peaceful as well as violent or potentially violent gatherings, the appellants argued, violates First Amendment guarantees of free speech and assembly. "The ordinance, to begin with," the petition said, "is overbroad. It authorizes prohibition of peaceful public assembly for a substantial period of time without regard to the character and purpose of the assembly."

The petition denies that there was any real danger of violence in Philadelphia at the time.

The appellants argued that the proclamation provides "no meaningful protection against arbitrary action" and the mayor, in issuing the proclamation, stated no findings "as to actual dangers or threats."

The same courts have held that a conclusive finding of emergency is sufficient, even though the mayor does not state the basis on which he decided to act.

Thomas praises police

By LINDA KNIBBS
State News Staff Writer

The East Lansing Police Department was praised for doing an "outstanding job" during the Feb. 19 demonstrations on Grand River Avenue by Mayor Gordon L. Thomas at the City Council meeting Monday night.

Thomas said it was necessary to remember that only a very small number of students were involved in the disturbance. He added that more than 10,000 students are constructively involved in society through volunteer work.

"I commend students for volunteer work, and deny those who participate in violence," Thomas said.

In other action, City Attorney Daniel C. Learned reported that he is continuing his study of a complaint that a house at 938 Lilac St. is occupied by six students.

At the Feb. 16 council meeting several residents in the 900 - block of Lilac Street expressed their concern that the house in question had been rented to students. According to zoning regulations, houses in the area are to be rented or sold only to families.

Learned confirmed reports that the owner of the house had sold the house to the students. Further investigation will be conducted into the legality of such an action, Learned said.

A Traffic Commission report on Grand River Avenue was submitted for study by the City Council. The report included minimum requirements for future automobile and pedestrian traffic needs.

The Traffic Commission has recommended that:

— Grand River Avenue from Michigan Avenue west and from Bogue Street east remain unchanged.

— Grand River Avenue from Michigan Avenue to Abbott Road have four lanes.

— Grand River Avenue from Abbott Road to Bogue Street have three lanes.

— A survey be made to determine the need for a pedestrian overpass at M.A.C. Avenue over Grand River Avenue.

Crowd overturns buses in black-white disturbance

LAMAR, S.C. (AP) - White demonstrators were dispersed with tear gas Tuesday after overturning two empty school buses and clashing with police and Negro pupils on the campus of recently integrated Lamar schools.

Several black pupils suffered cuts and bruises and at least two police officers were injured slightly in the melee with the adult demonstrators, some of them armed with ax handles, chains and bricks.

"For some 35 minutes," said high school principal Gordon Cole, "it was hotter out there on that school ground than in Vietnam."

In Columbia, S.C., Gov. Robert McNair called the incident "unspeakable" and promised to "take any steps necessary to bring about the restoration of order."

The Justice Department, in Washington said U.S. marshals were on the campus and that the FBI was investigating the disturbance.

Police said there were about 100 whites in the crowd. The violence erupted shortly after the two school buses arrived. It was over quickly and the schools were immediately shut down.

McNair said they would remain closed "until order and calm is restored."

Cole said school officials got the 32 black pupils off the two buses before the whites charged.

Lamar, a small agricultural community, was ordered to integrate under a zoning plan that transferred blacks to a previously all - white school, and whites to a previously all - black school.

Cole said the 32 youngsters aboard the buses included pupils in grades one through 12.

He said the pupils injured were hit by thrown objects and shattering glass from the school bus windows.

The crowd was finally dispersed when patrolmen used tear gas. Authorities said there were no arrests because the whites quickly scattered and fled.

Police said at least one shot was fired by someone in the group of white parents. They said some demonstrators also had canisters of tear gas, but none used it. The patrolmen drew pistols, but did not fire.

Schools to sue over aid denial

GRAND RAPIDS (UPI) - The Grand Rapids School Board has instructed its attorneys to file suit against the State Board of Education for $184,000 in aid denied because of two days of missed classes during a teacher strike last March.

Roger Anderson, one of the school board's attorneys, said the rules under which the Grand Rapids schools were penalized are "discriminatory" and a lawsuit would be justified on that basis alone.

Rep. introduces bill outlawing phosphates

A bill outlawing the sale of cleaning compounds that contain the highly pollutant chemical phosphate was introduced in the state legislature Tuesday by Rep. Raymond J. Smit, R-Ann Arbor. "Phosphate chemicals, found primarily in detergents and other cleansers, are killing our waterways," Smit said. "This is especially true of lakes, where these destructive agents tend to collect."

"If the chemical and detergent manufacturers will not voluntarily stop using these substances," he said, "I believe we have the responsibility to demand it by law."

If passed, the bill would take effect July 1, 1972, and would ban all forms of phosphorous in cleaning compounds.

Smit said a study he conducted of phosphate pollutants concluded that the chemical fertilizes algae and causes an excess growth of the plant in lakes and streams.

"Two years ago I issued a public call for manufacturers to develop phosphate - free cleansers," Smit said. "While alternative cleaning agents have been proposed, their development for market has not lived up to industry promises."

"Now I believe it's time to say 'clean up by a specified date or remove these environmental hazards from the market.' I think that's more than reasonable."

Censorship antithetical to academic community

Suppression has never been an adequate answer to unpopular or erroneous viewpoints. If anything, it often serves to martyrize the unpopular ideas and create for them an underground credence with a corresponding following. In sum, books that are burned usually become classics, and the burners of those books become portrayed by history as monsters.

The dissident elements that self-righteously imposed censorship on the movie "Africa Addio", for example, are playing into the hands of the purveyors of backlash and are, thereby, undermining the validity of their own movement. Perhaps the movie in question was "racist" - probably it was, though the absolute nature of this decision is subjective - but this point was not made, nor were the correct facts demonstrated by closing down the theater. This act only served to close down the minds of many of the viewers, rather than expanding them to a consideration of all sides of the question.

Truth is arrived at only after a consideration of all the data available. It is self-defeating to exclude information because it does not agree with pre-conceived notions, and it is disastrous in the long run to attempt to withhold this information from the minds of others. People will not allow themselves to be programmed and spoon fed for a very long period of time - and people have the unfortunate tendency to think that that which is being suppressed must contain some truly damning evidence, else why is it being withheld?

Erroneous media such as the movie "Africa Addio" is in fact valuable because it provides a standard for measuring that which is incorrect and a means for gaining an understanding of how these false views originated. At the very least, one cannot combat falsehood until one understands the nature of falsehood.

It is our feeling that censorship of any kind, regardless of motives, has no place in this nation, and especially on a college campus. The free flow of ideas is absolutely essential to the creation of a logical and consistent view of the world. If, under such a set of circumstances, the popular mind does not buy a point of view then either the point was not presented adequately or it had no merit.

We feel that the students of this university are, on the whole, fully competent to make up their own minds about the issues that confront them today without any self-appointed herdsmen. We find that the actions of those people who closed down the theater last Friday were neither constructive nor consistent with the free flow of ideas.

The U.S. role in Laos: the next Vietnam?

In Washington D.C., Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird has pointed out that U.S. military actions in Laos are part of a "policy of protective reaction" against North Vietnamese troops aiding the Pathet Lao. Laird and President Nixon have both agreed that the U.S. has no "combat troops" in Laos while acknowledging the presence of U.S. air support for Royal Laotian and Meo tribesmen forces.

In Vientiane, Premier Souvanna Phouma of Laos has called for a reconvening of the 1962 Geneva Conference which established the integrity and neutrality of this small but war-ravaged country.

Tass, the Government news agency of the Soviet Union, has denounced the recent stepped-up U.S. B-52 bombings of the Ho Chi Minh trail - the major supply route into South Vietnam for the North Vietnamese in eastern Laos.

What is happening in Laos and what does it mean for war in Vietnam?

There is general agreement that Hanoi has at least 25,000 troops aiding the Pro-Communist Pathet Lao forces in Laos. Not only have these forces retaken the strategic Plaine des Jarres but they are threatening to attack Long Cheng and other Government-held military bases.

While the combined forces of the Pathet Lao and the North Vietnamese have taken the offensive, the CIA and the American Air Force have not exactly remained passive. In addition to American military officials aiding the Royal Laotian and Meo tribesmen forces, the CIA is deeply involved in Laotian affairs through its maintenance and support of two airlines and the U.S. Government continues to send bombers from Thailand on sorties over Laos.

Senators, such as Mathias, Mansfield and Symington, have expressed their deep concern that the Nixon Administration is suppressing much of the military activity that this Government is sanctioning in Laos. They have also attempted to alert the American public to similarities between our initial efforts in Vietnam and those now being conducted in Laos.

Although the deep concern of Congressmen is a welcome sight, it is not nearly enough. The war in Laos is directly related to the American war activity in Vietnam. We cannot condone and promote Vietnamization of the war in South Vietnam and expect Hanoi to sit still as the U.S. exits from the rear door.

Hanoi, at present, is playing its ace. By bringing Laos into the central war-zone, it is putting the Nixon Administration in a bind: to step-up the U.S. war activity in Laos in order to protect U.S., South Vietnamese and Laotian forces or to withdraw military personnel from Laos before that country becomes the next Vietnam.

We must get out of Laos NOW! The pattern in Laos is unmistakably similar to the U.S. military role in Vietnam - advisors, CIA and AID agents involved in the Governments, token military forces, a full-scale war effort.

To make Vietnamization truly meaningful we must immediately begin Laotianization as well.

THE DOCTOR'S BAG

By ARNOLD WERNER, M.D.
Copyright, Michigan State News, 1970.

Letters may be addressed to Dr. Werner at 309 Linton Hall. Names need not be included unless a personal reply is requested.

I have been having sexual intercourse with my fiancée regularly for about two years now and I am still unable to achieve vaginal orgasm. I can and do often experience clitoral orgasm with him and through masturbation. He has been very patient and understanding. We discussed my problem and he has tried to help. However, I'm afraid he is beginning to feel inadequate in the sense that he feels unable to satisfy me, although I enjoy sex a great deal.

I am hoping that you may have a suggestion or two for me concerning this problem.

Your letter is one of many that I have received on the subject of female orgasm. The differentiation between vaginal and clitoral orgasm was based on conjecture. The research of Masters and Johnson demonstrated that female orgasm is the same regardless of the region stimulated to produce orgasm. Female orgasm is defined as a short episode of physical relief of sexual tension characterized by certain muscular and circulatory changes along with a subjective perception of intense physical reaction.

During sexual intercourse, as well as during other forms of genital stimulation, the clitoris is almost always stimulated either directly or indirectly through pressure. It sounds like you and your fiancée have become preoccupied needlessly. I suggest looking at a 75c paperback called, "An Analysis of Human Sexual Response" by Brecher and Brecher published by Signet (1966) which explains the Masters and Johnson studies in lay terms, before you find yourself doing it more and enjoying it less.

I have been on the pill for a year but I still worry a little each month that my period won't come. Do you suppose that this is psychological or could it be organic?

It's psychological. Occasionally a woman on the pill will miss a period because of idiosyncratic lack of sensitivity to withdrawal of the pill 5 days once a month. Her doctor can guide her in such a case.

I had my ears pierced by a doctor just this past November. Although my ears were never infected and I used good gold earrings, they were always sore. I have stopped wearing earrings for good and I am anxious for the holes to grow back. Will my ear lobes return to normal? If so, how long should this take? Will the little "knot" inside my ear lobe disappear?

Over a period of the next year or so the hole will probably disappear entirely. You can expect to have a small "knot" for quite a while until the scar tissue becomes less. There may always be a small, very tiny hard spot but actually many normal people also have small "knots" in their ear lobes.

While piercing ears is usually a benign procedure, occasionally infections do develop. Ear piercing must be done under

OUR READERS' MIND

Presence of 'hippie types' fails to degrade Albatross

To the Editor:

For the second time within the past month, I visited the Albatross located on Grand River. I experienced a unique phenomena which I had never before found at any party, beer joint or mixer. The atmosphere at this coffeehouse was filled with warmth, friendship and sincerity, a combination truly difficult to find these days.

Upon speaking with one of the administrators of the Albatross, I learned that they were in danger of being evicted from the premises because the landlord did not particularly care for the element the coffeehouse was drawing. He went on to say that the landlord was specifically upset because of the frequent attendance of "hippies", who were degrading his property.

If people sitting around a room, listening to folk singers, joining hands, chanting "We Shall Overcome", and people meeting new people are degrading to property, then it is no wonder that some groups will take to the streets.

The Albatross is no more than a unique experience in a constructive human social experience, and no less than a place where a person may truly be himself. If the individuals who visit the Albatross are dirty, immoral and degenerating people, then surely I, too, must be considered of the same character, because I am enjoying the same things they are.

Indians weary of treaties

To the Editor:

After the Trial of Tears, endorsed by the "Emancipator" Abraham Lincoln; after Wounded Knee, Sand Creek and Custer's attempt to wipe out the Sioux in his quest for the presidency, testimony by the American Indians "is" needed.

The aforementioned incidents were unsuccessful; but the "Great White Father" did succeed in wiping out the Mandan Sioux by giving them blankets infected with smallpox disease in exchange for their land. They had little resistance to the disease that was brought over with the Pilgrims.

It is easy to say that the above are isolated incidents from the past. This has been white America's rationale. But how do they explain the punishment of students in Bureau of Indian Affairs' schools for speaking their native tongues? How do they rationalize an infant mortality rate and an adolescent suicide rate that are three times larger than the national average?

Despite the government policies of cultural and physical genocide, we the American Indian, are the fastest growing minority in North America today. From 1.5 million inhabitants in 1492, we were reduced to 200,000 in the 1920's. Today we number 600,000.

With incidents like Alcatraz, my people are uniting and forgetting our tribal differences. We are fighting for our land and our existence.

If such a treaty, as you mentioned in your editorial, were signed by the United States, we would be the first plaintiffs. We have been to the World Court at the Hague and the United Nations in New York. Both efforts were in vain. So we wonder if another treaty would mean anything. In the past treaties have done little for the American Indian.

Talk no solution

To the Editor:

The systematic repression prevalent in our society today exists, and will continue to grow, because of the apathetic nature of our people. Whether one considers the "riot" of Feb. 19 a justified use of violence or not, the very fact that a number of people were willing to express their beliefs in action is a significant and positive event, which has resulted in a new and higher level of awareness and understanding of the crucial issues involved. Apathy is a greater evil than the repression which thrives upon it, or the violence which is a reaction to this repression.

We hope that all of you who have expressed support for the Chicago 7, while condemning the violence of Feb. 19, have been active for some time now in your more "reasonable" and legitimate efforts to stir public opinion and support - but we doubt it.

Violence may not be the best solution for eliminating repression, but reasonable discussion and analysis which do not result in any action is no solution whatsoever.

POINT OF VIEW

Parachute edit needs clarification

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following point of view was submitted by Peter W. DeForth, MSU Sport Parachuting Club safety officer and East Lansing graduate student.

Your editorial of February 19 entitled "Local Sky Diving Clubs: Look Before You Leap" is disturbing in a number of aspects; perhaps you should read that title again and take it to heart in light of your rather limited knowledge of parachuting and your reliance on rumor as a source of information on which to base editorials.

I should like to reply to several comments you made in that editorial, to correct certain false impressions that many readers may have gained as a result of it. But first, I must agree that the death of Douglas Saffo was indeed tragic - not only for his family, but for the jumpmaster and all of the other jumpers involved. We in the MSU Sport Parachute Club have been extremely safety-conscious during the years our club has been operating. Our safety record has reflected this fact. The training plan and procedure we use is standardized, and is more comprehensive than most used throughout the country, including that used by the largest and best-known commercial jump training center. I can verify that fact personally, having been through that training program and having observed many of the others. There is no specific federal law concerning content of the jump training program; the only guiding agency is the United States Parachute Association (USPA) which has an established training and safety doctrine, the features of which have been proved thoroughly in usage during the past decade. When our current training plan was submitted for review as to compatibility with the U.S.P.A. doctrine last year, it passed all requirements, and the Executive Director of U.S.P.A., in his reply, stated that "The training plan is excellent; if your instructors as good as the plan, then you've got some well-trained student parachutists." Nevertheless, our training procedures are undergoing continual review, and will continue to.

There is no Federal law requiring a minimum number of hours of training for a first-time jumper. When you stop to think about it, wouldn't that be ridiculous and self-defeating? There is, however, a certain amount of information which the student must learn completely in order to be able to jump;

I do not know to whom you are referring when you mention the "Sky Diving Club" - you must have obtained this information via rumor channels. If you check with the local FAA Administrator you will find that no such organization has been registered with him, and every jump club must file a request through his office for permission to use airspace.

When we get hurt, it is a result of our own mistakes and taking unnecessary risks beyond known accepted limits. Mr. Saffo, it appears, made three unfortunate mistakes in a row: (1) He did not go into the proper body arch upon leaving the airplane, and flipped on his back, forcing the parachute to deploy around some part of his body; (2) he "captured" the pilot chute, the key to the proper deployment of a main parachute, and did not let go of it; (3) he doubled up around his front-mounted reserve, and even though his automatic opener on the reserve parachute operated properly (these sentinel automatic openers are an added safety feature on our reserves - there is no requirement for their use, and few other drop zones use them because of their high purchase cost), his reserve did not deploy because of his body position prevented it from doing so. Training is specifically oriented toward preventing these mistakes, and only the last two in combination are fatal. Even the most experienced jumper in the world would have difficulty in intentionally attempting to "capture" his pilot chute.

'Twister' recalls old rock

In the eighteen years since Bill Haley recorded "Shake, Rattle and Roll" and "Rock Around the Clock", "rock music" has undergone a metamorphosis that has seen songs, artists, trends and fads come and go.

From simplicity to complexity, rock has seen its lyrics changed from the "Sha da da da / Sha da da da" of the Silhouettes "Get a Job" to the "Phantom shouting to skinny girls / Get outta here if you don't know!" / Cassanova is just being punished / For going to Desolation Row" of Bob Dylan's "Desolation Row."

The "yassuh" conks of the Cadillacs have been replaced by the Borgating Afros of the Chambers Brothers or cue-ball elegance of Isaac Hayes. The innocent face of Buddy Holly has been forgotten for the leers of Jim Morrison and Mick Jagger. While the Shirelles and Penguins and Imperials smiled and choreographed their ways to stardom, today's Stones and Doors glare and strive for nonchalance. The pounding, throbbing rhythms of Richie Valens and Jerry Lee Lewis have faded into the past, forced there by the calculated perfection of the Beatles and Blood Sweat and Tears.

Rock 'n roll is dead, has been for years, and who gives a damn? BUT, Bill Haley's "Rock Around the Clock" sold 550,000 copies last year (eighteen years after it was first released). Creedence Clearwater Revival has had a constant string of two-sided million-selling rockers since "Suzie-Q" and "I Put a Spell on You" were waxed in 1968. Old 45's sell more today than when first released, and 20% more than new records among the over-18 buying public.

Chuck Berry broke every attendance record at the Fillmore East last summer, surpassing the Who, Airplane and Crosby, Stills, Nash, Taylor and Young. Little Richard Penniman, Dion DiMucci, Chuck Berry and Buddy Holly all have new or re-released albums, and a New York-based "Rock 'n Roll Revival" troupe has sold out all of its 28 concert dates across the nation (the show features the Drifters, the Shirelles, Coasters, Bo Diddley and Bill Haley).

And, to kick-off its "History of Rock 'n Roll Week", WVIC is co-hosting with the Coral Gables Chubby Checker in concert tonight at 9. With the possible exception of "Beatlemania", "Twisting" was THE music fad of the 1960's, and Chubby Checker was the king of it all. "The Twist", released in 1960 and 1963, was the largest-selling record of the 60's (based on Billboard Magazine figures) and is the only record to sell more than a million copies twice.

Several months after "The Twist" was first released, Chubby reeled-off a string of million sellers that include "Twistin' USA", "Let's Twist Again", "Hey, Lady Lo", "Hooka Tooka", "Limbo Rock", "Pony Time" and "The Fly".

Along with the twist records, "Limbo Rock", "Pony Time" and "The Fly" began a chain reaction of dance records such as "The Watusi", "The Locomotion", "Philly Time", "The Skate", "The Bristol Stomp", "The Monkey", "The Frug", "The Shingaling", "The Bugaloos" and "The Mashed Potatoes", and is still in existence with Rufus Thomas' "Funky Chicken".

Beginning at 9 p.m. and concluding at 2 a.m., tonight's concert will feature not only Chubby but also a 12-piece "oldie" band. Admission for the show is $1.

Alumni relations director named

Robert E. Shackleton has been named director of alumni relations for the MSU Alumni Assn.

Arthur F. Loub has also joined the staff to manage the annual giving program of the MSU Development Fund.

Shackleton has been with the alumni association since 1964 as coordinator of the Ralph Young Scholarship Fund, and director of development.

After graduating from MSU in 1948, Shackleton became sports director for the university radio station, WKAR, he has also served as sports director for MSU's television station, WMSB.

Jack Kinney, executive director of the alumni association, said that Shackleton's department will be responsible for providing liaison for all MSU alumni clubs, coordinating several college and departmental associations, the alumni family camp, class reunions, homecoming and the high school J-Day. Jerry Barker, assistant director of alumni relations will assist him.

Loub's main responsibility will be the promotion and expansion of the MSU Alumni Fund which now has some 17,000 donors.

LAUNCHES DRIVE

Polish jokes offend editor

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — The editor of a Polish-American newspaper, with the backing of veterans' groups and other organizations, has launched a campaign to stop Polish jokes.

Chester Grabowski, editor of the Post Eagle, an English-language weekly published in Clifton, says television programs are among the biggest offenders.

He singled out Rowan and Martin's "Laugh-In," Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show," and the "Carol Burnett Show," Joan Rivers and a comedian who appeared on the Ed Sullivan show.

Grabowski said that with the backing of the Polish Veterans' Association, the Polish Paratroopers' Association and others, a boycott will be conducted of products of firms which sponsor shows on which Polish jokes are used. He said he also is making arrangements to see various television executives in an effort to halt the jokes.

The editor said he and others in the campaign do not mind "inoffensive" jokes about the Polish, "But we do object to all the jokes that make the Polish look like fools."

Another example of what he termed as "offensive" joke, Grabowski said, was when Johnny Carson one night held up a photograph of a javelin and described it as "Polish artillery."

"And Rowan and Martin reported that the Olympic trials in Poland had to be canceled because they lost the bommarang," he said.

Grabowski also charged that greeting card companies have portrayed Poles as "fools."

He said Polish jokes were not limited to the United States. The Polish-Canadian Youth Association last year filed a complaint with the Canadian Broadcasting Co., he said.

"And we've also received reports of similar jokes from the Polish colony in France," Grabowski said that he feared if the jokes continued "people will get to believe that the Polish are stupid."

WORKSHOP

Black legacy
given in dance

Alvin Ailey has arrived! Not only on our campus for a three-day participation in this week's modern dance workshop, but in the world of modern dance.

During his stay on campus, Ailey hopes to show the legacy of the black-American through the medium of modern dance. His troupe's main performance will be given Wednesday. They will conduct an open workshop for the public through Friday evening.

At the end of 1969 Walter Terry wrote in "Saturday Review": "The Alvin Ailey American Dance Theatre is in peak form with the finest complement of dancers it has ever had!"

The workshop began earlier this week with demonstrations in modern dance techniques.

Kelvin Rotardier gave an intermediate class Monday, during which he demonstrated "Ethnic and Jazz Technique." Monday evening, principal dancer Dudley Williams performed in the Fairchild demonstration with a unique, muscularly intense quality.

"When he's onstage," "Dance Magazine" wrote this month, "it's hard to see anyone else!"

The following is a schedule of the remainder of the workshop:

Wednesday
10:30 a.m. — Class for men — Jenison
2:30 p.m. — Advance class — 34 Women's I.M.
4:50 p.m. — Intermediate class with Ailey — 34 Women's I.M.
8:15 p.m. — Auditorium Performance

Thursday
10:30 a.m. — Advance class — 127 N. Women's I.M.
2 p.m. — Intermediate class — Women's I.M.
4:30 p.m. — Class for men with Ailey — Fairchild
7:30 p.m. — Lecture demonstration — Fairchild

The public is invited and encouraged to attend these sessions, either to participate or observe.

Tall troupers

The Alvin Ailey American Dance Theatre, shown above, will present the cultural legacy of the American black in dance Wednesday night in the Auditorium.

Dave Brubeck Trio to play
'Gates of Justice' at MSU

"The Gates of Justice," a new cantata by jazz pianist, Dave Brubeck, will be presented at 8:15 p.m., March 11, in the Auditorium.

The program, which will feature the Brubeck Trio performing during the first half, is sponsored by MSU's Lecture - Concert Series, the Dept. of Music, and the Center for Urban Affairs. Tickets are available at the Union Ticket Office.

The work, which calls for tenor and bass baritone soloists, chamber chorus, 11-piece brass ensemble, two percussionists, organ and jazz trio, will feature MSU's State Singers and Brass Choir and the Brubeck trio.

Harold Brown, director of the State Singers, will conduct the performance.

Soloists will be tenor Harold Orbach, cantor of Detroit's Temple Israel, and bass-baritone McHenry Boatwright, a prominent black musician.

Brubeck suggests that the tenor, who proclaims the prophetic ideals of Judaism, should be a cantor and the bass-baritone should be black to emphasize the disparity between the precepts of social justice and the realities of our society.

Noted opera star
to give concert

Shirley Verrett, the Metropolitan Opera's new mezzo-soprano star, will appear in concert at 8:15 p.m. March 9 in the Auditorium.

Miss Verrett has become a favorite in the world's great opera houses not only for her portrayal of Carmen, which won her wide acclaim at the Met, but for many of the major mezzo-soprano roles in the operatic repertoire.

Her program will include "Two Arias from 'Orfeo'" by Christoph W. Gluck, "Frauen Liebe und Leben" by Robert Schumann, "Trois Chansons de Nègresse, Opus 148b" by Darius Milhaud, three Negro spirituals and four songs by the Spanish composer, Joaquín Nin.

Miss Verrett first studied voice seriously with Anna Fitzu, a former Metropolitan Opera soprano, in Hollywood, Cal.

She came to the attention of the distinguished voice teacher, Mme. Marian Szekeley-Freschl, who offered to take her as a pupil and arranged a scholarship at the Juilliard School of Music. Because of her brilliant scholastic record, Miss Verrett was allowed the privilege of arranging her study schedule so that performing engagements might be accepted while she worked toward her degree.

A consistent prize winner during her Juilliard days, Miss Verrett won first prize in several major competitions including the National Federation of Music Clubs Award, the John Charles Thomas Scholarship, the Martha Baird Rockefeller Award, the John Hay Whitney Prize and the Ford Foundation Fellowship.

Miss Verrett's Met debut as Carmen capped a succession of appearances in this role around the world.

She was the first black ever to sing Carmen at the famed Bolshoi Opera in Moscow. With no prior rehearsal time, Miss Verrett sang in the original French while the rest of the cast sang in Russian. She was called back for nine encores.

AT WAYNE STATE

'Don Pasquale' not stiff opera

To a great many people, opera is the rather unfortunate combination of being stiff, not entertaining and, well, not Gaetano Donizetti's comic "Don Pasquale" is immune from all this — it is a total delight and a most amusing evening.

Wayne State University's (WSU) newly formed Graduate Opera Division and its established Dept. of Music and University Theatre are making a joint effort in resurrecting opera at the Bonstelle Theatre, and this first attempt measures up to WSU's usual standard of excellence.

Using Phyllis Mead's translation, director Robert Cowden has performed a small miracle in combining art with entertainment, making a smashing success of WSU's latest theatre effort.

"Don Pasquale" has much in common with Monsieur Jourdain of WSU's earlier production of "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme." Both are bumbling idiots and both are wealthy. Neither Donizetti nor Molière tells the audience how these men reached their station. In both cases, one must simply accept the fact that they have been financially successful, even though when the audience gets to know them it seems incomprehensible. Both Pasquale and Jourdain seek marriage to a beautiful woman, and both are duped by their supposed friends.

Pasquale wants to marry to thwart the plans of his nephew, Ernesto, who against his uncle's wishes wants to wed a young widow, Norina. Dr. Malatesta, Pasquale's doctor and friend, cooks up a plan to help Ernesto win his love. Malatesta introduces his shy, retiring sister (Norina) to Pasquale, and as soon as they are married, she turns into a untamable shrew.

After a hellish few weeks, Pasquale is so desperate he gives his consent and Ernesto takes Norina off of his hands. Pasquale is so relieved to be rid of the shrew that when he realizes the trick that has been played on him he is not angry.

Davis Gloff as Pasquale, Jeannette Dagger as Norina, Kenneth Young as Malatesta and Alex Chmil as Ernesto were all in excellent voice. The rest of the cast does not compare with the leads, and luckily they have minuscule roles.

Not only can Gloff sing but he makes such rib-tickling faces and gestures that he keeps the audience in stitches. Miss Dagger

election fraud

MANILA (AP) — Election authorities have admitted that rampant overspending, fraud and terrorism marked last year's Philippine elections.

The Commission on Elections, in a report Saturday to the Philippines Congress and President Ferdinand E. Marcos, blamed the entrenched political system for the "deep-rooted ills that have long plagued Philippine electoral practices and which show little signs of rectification."

The report cited partisanship among government law enforcement agencies as the main obstacle to free and orderly elections. It said the Philippine Constabulary national police, especially the special forces, and the local police as well as election commission personnel had been used to subvert the popular will.

Prof views fear as cause of homosexuality

By PAULA BRAY
State News Staff Writer

Until recently homosexuality was an unspoken topic, possibly because people were afraid to admit it exists or they felt uncomfortable or un knowledgeable about it.

To find out more about homosexuality several persons on campus who have either worked with or studied homosexuals were interviewed.

Andrew M. Barclay, assistant professor of psychology said that homosexuals tend to operate out of fear and their world is not a very pleasant place. He said the main reason for their behavior is that they are afraid of normal heterosexual relationships.

"Homosexuals may identify with an inappropriate role model," he said. "If the father is weak, he identifies with a dominant mother. A mother may be so hostile that the male child comes to fear all women. The female seems all encompassing and causes him great difficulties."

In a homosexual relationship, one individual often takes the male role while the other plays the female role. Barclay refers to male homosexuals as male-males and female-males.

"The female-male is catty towards females because he sees them as competition," Barclay said.

Barclay said that a lesbian may be afraid of males and fears that they will injure her in some way, she also feels women will act more gently.

"The masculine female hates men and is trying to become a better man than they are," he said.

Barclay said that some people consider homosexual relationships more adaptive since there is no fear of pregnancy.

The term homosexual is as misleading as the term heterosexual because its meaning seizes on a particular object relationship, Peter Manning, assistant professor of sociology, said.

"Society provides a wide range of categories and sorting people into them often distorts the complexity of human life," he said.

Manning said that these two terms gloss over the types and intensity of relationships and how these relationships are integrated with the rest of a person's life.

When a person hears about homosexuals he should think a wide range of things, like he does when talking about heterosexuals, Manning said.

"Sociologists argue that behavior that is called homosexual can arise out of very diverse sources. It's polygenetic, it might arise from learned responses in childhood or out of situational pressures such as life in a prison, an all-male or all-female school, or out of marital crisis," Manning said.

Manning in talking about situational homosexuals said these people either don't think of themselves as being deviant or they find the acts in which they engage in an important part of their lives.

"In an all-male prep school homosexual relationships occur very often but they seem to have relatively little long term effects on these boys," Manning said.

In prisons a careful distinction must be made between those males who are homosexuals outside the prison and those who resort to homosexuality while in prison because they have no heterosexual outlet, Manning said.

One category of homosexuality is concerned with persons who organize their lives around sexual activities with members of the same sex, Manning said.

"Within that category of people who think of themselves as homosexuals there are still important distinctions," Manning said. "The overt homosexual must be the hustler type -- the male version of the prostitute."

"Covert homosexuals are called 'closet queens' by overt homosexuals because they don't come out and present themselves as gay in public," Manning said.

"Even if a person thinks of himself as a homosexual and actively participates, he can gain, as in any other sexual activity, a range of satisfactions," Manning said. He can organize his life around the primary pursuit of that homosexual interest by associating primarily with other gay people, or homosexuality can be a very minor part of his life, like picking up a young man for a one-night stand in a hotel room or simply going into a public rest room and seeking sexual satisfaction there," Manning said.

Snowmobiler's accidents cited

NEW YORK (UPI) — A study by the National Safety Council reported 103 accidents involving snowmobiles in snowy Vermont last year.

The greatest danger with the machines, according to the study, lay in collisions with other motor vehicles and drownings that occurred when the snowmobile broke through nearly frozen lakes.

'U' prof discusses Biafran university

By SHARMAN STEWART
State News Staff Writer

A university in an underdeveloped country needs local control with a nationalistic emphasis, Lewis Zerby, MSU professor of philosophy, said Monday.

Zerby taught at the University of Nigeria before its collapse. He used this university as an example.

At the time of Nigeria's independence from Great Britain, the country, under the guidance of its governor general, sought to develop a university as a means of creating nationalistic ties, according to Zerby.

In formulating a university the Nigerians looked to America and England as examples. The Nigerians felt the American university had more to offer African countries than an English university. In America the university "was a privilege not a status."

James Cook, vice chancellor from an English university and former President Hannah were asked by the Nigerian government to draw a blueprint for an ideal university of Nigeria. In 1958 the report was made into a white paper by the Nigerian government. The importance of research to African countries was stressed in the report.

Started in 1960, the entire structure of the university stressed nationalism, according to Zerby. Dormitories were named after prominent Nigerian men. The individual colleges were named after other great black men and women.

The problems facing a university in an underdeveloped country were outlined by Zerby, according to the problems met by the University of Nigeria.

Strong kinship ties found throughout Africa made it difficult for the administration to hire people only on the basis of talent and merit. Africans could not understand why kinship ties were being ignored.

University advisors conflicted because of their international backgrounds. The English could not comprehend the American system of grades and the concept of general studies.

"The conflict between the British and American models of education were resolved by taking features from both systems most applicable to the Nigerian scene," Zerby said.

"In underdeveloped countries steps must be taken to assure that the country has control of the university," Zerby said. In Nigeria the Nigerian Council was given the final word on university matters.

Regionalism was the downfall of the Nigerian university. When Biafra separated from the rest of Nigeria the university collapsed.

Located in the eastern half of Nigeria the university was confiscated by Biafra and renamed the University of Biafra to emphasize regionalism. All people from other regions and countries were asked to leave the university.

Zerby made it clear that a university cannot succeed in a country without nationalism and temporary, not permanent, aid from outside countries.

Zerby spoke to a group of James Madison College students.

Group studies geography

By MATTIE GARRETT

Thirteen black geography majors from southern institutions sponsored through federal fellowships, are studying for their masters and Ph.D. degrees within the MSU Geography Dept.

They are participating in a national program recently initiated by the Commission on Geography and Afro-America of the Assn. of American Geographers.

The objective of the program is identifying and teaching black instructors to upgrade the quality of teaching in black universities and colleges, Lawrence Sommers, chairman of the Geography Dept., said.

The program involves three areas: summer institutes, faculty exchanges and the fellowship awards.

Each institute planned for summer 1970 will be held at a black university or college. Their function is to introduce new geographic concepts and techniques.

It is hoped, though not mandatory, that participating black students from southern schools will return to their home schools to pass on the knowledge they have acquired while studying at other universities.

MSU fellows are studying at the University of Michigan, University of Minnesota, University of California at Berkeley, Clark University and University of Maryland.

Indians comprise smallest 'U' group

By ESTELLA CHAMBERS
State News Staff Writer

Of all the minority and ethnic groups the American Indian is probably the least represented on this campus.

Statistics on the number of Indians enrolled at MSU which appear to confirm this fact in their own conflicting way.

There are 32 undergraduate and 13 graduate students of American Indian origin now attending MSU, according to the Michigan Dept. of Education Report for 1968 and 1969.

"There are only five that I know of," John Winchester, director of American Indian Affairs on campus, said.

Charles R. Pamp, Lansing sophomore, president of the Great Lakes Indian Youth Alliance and sergeant-at-arms for the Lansing North American Indian Center, said he does not know of 45 American Indian students on campus and if they are here he said he would like to meet them.

Pamp and Winchester are presently working to recruit American Indians for MSU and help them in obtaining financial aid.

In addition, Pamp is working with the Inter-tribal Council of Michigan in an effort to get rid of what he calls the "apple" structures -- red on the outside and white on the inside -- that have not been receptive to the needs of the American Indian.

Pamp said that on Feb. 4-6 the Council put the Michigan Indian Commission under fire by presenting them with a resolution demanding several things.

"First, we wanted the resignation of the chairman and director of the commission," Pamp said. "Secondly, we wanted the main headquarters changed from Sault Ste. Marie to Lansing, and thirdly, we wanted the resignation of all white commissioners and appointees on boards governing Indian affairs. Their posts would be filled by Indians."

Pamp said the day's events were highlighted when the Great Lakes Indian Youth Alliance presented their first annual "appeal award" to a member of the Lansing community who has not been receptive to the needs of Indians or scholarships and financial aid to attend MSU.

Pamp said that in addition to attempting to bring more Indian students to campus and to Michigan colleges in general, he is working to make good the 1868 treaty made with the U.S. government. The treaty states that any abandoned property like Alcatraz, will revert back to the Sioux Indians.

"The American Indians are still on the island of Alcatraz and are determined to stay there," he said.

Pamp added that in August 1968, another treaty was made with the United States in the name of "all" tribes which stated that Indians who move off reservations could get 160 acres of land.

He said that this treaty received the support of Indians across the nation.

Winchester, whose primary charge is the recruiting of American Indians to MSU, said that itineraries are presently being set up to allow MSU recruiters to go to two federal reservation areas where Indians are enrolled in public schools.

Virgil Townsend helps students find lost articles

By RANDY SMITH

Anyone who has ever lost something of value on campus is likely to have met Virgil E. Townsend. A veteran of five years as the manager of the Union Checkroom and Lost and Found, Townsend has come in contact with thousands of students.

About 125 items are turned into Townsend's office each week. But most of the articles lack sufficient identification to designate the owner, and as a result only about 40 per cent are returned.

Of the paraphernalia turned in, glasses and gloves are most frequently received according to Townsend. All articles brought into the Union are catalogued, and valuables such as rings and watches are locked up. An

"There are no Indian schools on reservations. The last one, located in Mt. Pleasant, was dissolved by the Indian School Termination Congressional Act, approved Feb. 19, 1934," Winchester said.

He said that as a result of the termination of Indian schools, a tremendous burden has been placed on the states to provide education for the Indians, and then states have not been able to do this.

"There are no specific American Indian scholarships for students attending MSU except those available through routine processes. However, efforts are being made in conjunction with three organizations interested (two of which are on campus) to establish an American Indian Scholarship Fund or Foundation."

In Michigan the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) has funded 33 American students in colleges throughout the state, Winchester said.

He added that the North American Indian Assn. in Detroit also provides financial assistance for Indian students.

Pamp said the only drawback is that the scholarships offered by the BIA are hard to obtain and require a lengthy process.

"I would have had to wait one year to get a BIA scholarship and by that time I would have been drafted," Pamp said.

RELIGIOUS SIGNIFICANCE

Turban wearers -- they're Sikhs

Chances are you don't know that the Indian students on campus who wear turbans are called Sikhs. It's pronounced like the English word, "seek."

Although a small group -- there aren't more than five or six -- they bring cosmopolitan touch to the campus.

One, Jagjit Punjra -- who resembles Omar Sharif -- is working for a doctorate degree in agricultural engineering.

The question Punjra is asked most often by students is why he wears a turban. Although he admits that it helps keep his head warm during the cold Michigan winters, actually the turban has a deep religious significance for the Sikh.

"We are a saint and soldier," Punjra said. "All saints have long hair -- Christ, Mohammed. We are soldiers as well, and to keep our separate identity, Sikhs wear the turban."

The different colors of the turban also have a meaning. Pink -- the color of Punjra's turban -- is the sign of happiness and is often worn by a man about to be married. Blue is worn most often by members of certain political parties.

Punjra explained that the word "Sikh" comes from the Sanskrit "disciple," to signify a follower of Nanak, the founder of the Sikh religion.

Just as on campus, in India too, the Sikhs are not numerous -- two per cent of the total population. They live mainly in the Punjab, a province in Northern India, but are known throughout the country for their diligence and hard work. There is a saying in India that you will never find a Sikh begging.

The United States has had a recent upsurge of interest in Indian culture. It is reflected by the study of Indian philosophy and yoga, the music of Ravi Shankar and the popular Nehru suits.

Punjra said that India is the only ancient culture to survive -- Rome, Greece, Babylon have all fallen -- so there must be a strong feature in the culture.

"I think eventually all people will have to follow the Indian philosophy," Punjra said. "When a people gets more progressive -- as has happened here in the United States -- they start to think about things besides the materialistic."

This was the reason as well, Punjra believes, that the Indian culture is so popular among American youth.

"Youth here do not have to struggle to make an existence, so they think of higher things that are more important for life," he noted. India is due to a shortage of jobs for educated people and college graduates.

Punjra believes that tolerance and non-violence were among the most important lessons Americans could learn from India. The two Americans whose ideals he most admires were those of Martin Luther King and John F. Kennedy. "We have many things to learn from this country," he said. "We are too much a tolerating people and economically this has hindered progress. We do not have initiative. This we have to learn from America. I have been much impressed by the hard work of the people here."

Four elected to posts in 'U' Credit Union

The annual meeting of the MSU Employees Credit Union, held March 2 in the Auditorium, saw the election of four faculty and staff members to governing positions in the organization.

John Reineohel, professor and assistant chairman of humanities, was named to the Credit Committee. James Davis, assistant professor and Operations Manager of CCTV, was elected to the Board of Directors. Clark Dellaven, Director of Executive Programs in the Graduate School of Business Administration, and James Huston, supervisor of accounts receivable in the comptroller's office, were also named to that body.

The meeting drew a record attendance of 4,000 employees from East Lansing and Oakland University.

For several years the credit Union has held door-prize drawings at these meetings. This year the main prizes were a 1970 Oldsmobile Cutlass S, or $2000 in cash, and an expenses-paid vacation, or $500 in cash.

Fred Staley, a graduate student in the College of Education, won the car, and Jack Mendham, the husband of an Oakland employee, won the vacation.

The Credit Union membership now numbers over 13,000.

Spartans drop 101-98 thriller to Boilermakers

BY MIKE MANLEY
State News Sports Writer

Jim Gibbons

It's probably a good thing it was the last home game of the season — Tuesday night's performance would be impossible to encore.

Fighting from behind late in the second half, Purdue, behind the clutch shooting of Rick Mount and Larry Weatherford, carved out a 101-98 win over fired-up MSU before 10,667 frenzied fans in Jensen Fieldhouse.

The Spartans led by as much as seven points during the final half before the Boilermaker's deadly backcourt duo of Mount and Weatherford went to work. With MSU on top, 74-67, Weatherford threw in a 25-foot jumper from the top of the key, Mount hit a 20-footer from the corner and Weatherford banged in another long one to bring Purdue back into the game.

MSU went back on top, 84-81, but the Boilermakers got three easy baskets underneath — two by big forward Bob Ford and one

Rudy Benjamin

Lushwell vs Advertising

The Lushwell A. C. Lushies return to action tonight after a year's layoff on the hardwood to meet the Advertising Dept. of the State News. The game (open to the entire student body and faculty) will be at 7 p.m. in Gym II of the Men's IM.

by George Faerber — to take a three point lead, 87-84, with less than four minutes to go. Twice the Spartans came within one point, but just couldn't catch Purdue.

Faerber, who gave the Spartans fits underneath all night, led the game with an easy rebound basket with 1:26 left, giving the Boilermakers a 95-90 lead.

Despite the heartbreaking loss, MSU played one of its finest games of the season, putting five men in double figures in scoring.

Rudy Benjamin, who came off the bench early in the game, turned in his finest performance in his two-year varsity career, netting a personal high of 29 points, picking up seven assists and playing an aggressive floor game. Center Jim Gibbons, playing his final game in Jenison, also scored a career high 24 points, and grabbed a game high 14 rebounds.

Unable to shake the nose-to-nose guarding of Faerber, MSU sophomore Ralph Simpson, who was named to the AP's All-Big Ten team Monday, scored only 17 points. He went the first ten minutes of the game without a fieldgoal, then got 11 points in the next seven minutes before picking up his third foul. The smooth moving Simpson hit only seven of 21 shots and got five rebounds.

For Purdue it was business as usual, with Mount throwing in baskets from all over the court despite the tight defense of Lloyd Ward and Ron Gutkowski. Mount finished with 37 points while Weatherford added 25.

Both teams battled evenly through the first half, racing up and down the floor and throwing in basket after basket. Purdue led at the half, 50-48, but MSU carried the momentum following a full-court driving layup by Benjamin in the last six seconds.

MSU took control early in the second half as Gutkowski got 10 quick points and the Spartans built a 71-67 lead.

"We just couldn't control the tempo of the game near the end," MSU Coach Gus Ganakas said. "We played a good shooting game with them, but that's Purdue's game. They're an experienced club with good outside shooters."

"It goes back to our fans again," he continued. "They yelled for us to shoot and we shot. We were a little impatient tonight. Sometimes too much scoring can hurt you because then you want to shoot more and sooner. Ralph was a little impatient tonight. His outside shot wasn't falling and Faerber did a good job on him."

Rudy Benjamin's offensive play was a real spark... his driving to the basket ignited our attack."

In the Purdue locker room, Boilermaker Coach George King had praise for the defensive job turned in by Faerber.

"He did about as good a job as possible in guarding Simpson," he said. "Simpson is absolutely worthy of All-Big Ten though... he was on my ballot. I felt we would have a letdown after the game last Saturday against Iowa, but we struggled back at the end to pull it out."

'S' frosh squeak by Detroit; season record ends at 10-2

By RICK GOSSELIN
State News Sports Writer

The MSU frosh cagers ended their season on a victorious note, as they defeated the University of Detroit freshman by a razor-thin 74-72 score.

The game itself came within an inch of going into an overtime period. The buzzer sounded with the match's final shot, a shot by Detroit's Otis Whitehead, rolling lazily off the rim. Whitehead, whose dribbling tactics injected some life into Detroit's second half point surge, led the Titans with 24 points.

The game was decided on the clutch shooting of Brian Breslin, who led all scorers with 29 points. Breslin clicked for 18 marks in the first half, and that combined with Gary Ganakas first half total of ten, was able to give the Spartans a nine point cushion at the end of the half.

"Breslin played the best he's played in a long time," frosh Coach Matt Aitch said. "He's really going to help us next year."

In the first half, the frosh were cruising along on leads as much as 18 points, but had to battle for dear life in the second session. The rebounding strength of Breslin and Jeff VanderLende (both with 16) proved crucial in the Spartan efforts.

Aitch, who later admitted that the game probably could have been put away in the first half, substituted freely. One of his substitutions, Bob LePoire, accounted for two points, which was, in fact, the margin of victory.

Detroit had two players who fouled out, forward Joe Sabourin and the team's rebounding strength, seven-footer Gerald Smith. The lone Spartan player to foul out was center Jim Sherada.

This was the second time this season that the frosh were able to polish off the Detroit juggernaut. The Spartans ended the year with a satisfying 10-2 mark.

"I was really proud of this season and the way the boys played," Aitch said. "Many people thought we wouldn't play .500 ball."

IN BIG TEN STANDINGS

Icers shoot for 1st place tie

By OLG OLSON
State News Sports Writer

Mathematically the MSU icers can finish no better than four place in the WCHA, but, if MSU sweeps Wisconsin at Madison this weekend and Michigan drops Minnesota twice, the Spartans can grab a share of the Big Ten crown.

Prior to this weekend's games, the Gophers lead with a 7-3 Big Ten mark, two losses to Michigan (4-6) would give Minnesota a 7-5 record. The Spartans, currently 5-5 in the conference, in taking two from Wisconsin (4-6) would also manage a 7-5 final conference standing.

Of course, if disaster should happen and the Spartans are swept by Wisconsin then MSU could conceivably finish in last place.

Minnesota has already put the wraps on their first WCHA title since 1954 with a 17-7 record. Denver (12-7-1) and Michigan Tech (9-6-3) will settle second and third place this weekend at Houghton.

The Spartans and Badgers both have momentum from last weekend's action. MSU in sweeping Minnesota - Duluth, 8-5 and 3-1, climbed from eighth to a fourth place tie in the WCHA on a 10-10 record.

The Badgers shut out the Gophers at Minneapolis 2-0 getting some fine goal tending from Vrohm who turned away 39 Gopher shots.

Although the Big Ten race is at stake, Wisconsin also 10-10 in the WCHA will be battling to hold on to that position for playoff reasons.

The race for fourth in the WCHA has boiled down to a better position in the playoffs at Denver March 12 through the 14th. MSU, Wisconsin, Michigan and host Denver will seek the NCAA berth, with the teams having the most number of wins meeting those teams finishing lower in the WCHA.

As the standings have shaped up, a sweep at Wisconsin would pit the Spartans against arch rival Michigan, while the Badgers would meet Denver in the opening round of the WCHA - Denver playoffs.

The other four WCHA teams, Minnesota, Michigan Tech, North Dakota and Duluth will vie for placement in the NCAA Tournament at Duluth. The winners of both WCHA playoffs will advance to the NCAA Tournament in Lake Placid, N.Y.

Wisconsin and MSU have skated against each other three times this season. The Spartans lost the first meeting 6-3 in the Great Lakes Invitational championship over the Christmas holidays. MSU, in the first week of January, took two WCHA games from the Badgers 4-3 and 6-4 in the Ice Arena.

CoSIDA name Sauls to All-Academic team

MSU senior football twins Ron and Rich Saul have been named to the first-team berths on the 1969 Academic All-America team announced by the College Sports Information Directors of America.

Ron, All-America and All-Big Ten as a senior guard and Rich, All-Big Ten as a senior at defensive end, have been three year regulars at MSU. Their home is Butler, Pa.

They were selected through balloting by major college members of CoSIDA. To qualify for nomination and election, players must have maintained "B" or better grades during the past two semesters, or during their college careers, and must be first-string performers.

Another Spartan, senior offensive tackle Dave VanElat, tied for a spot on the third team.

Ron Saul majors in physical education, Rich Saul in social sciences, and VanElat in mathematics. All three also were named recently to the Big Ten All-Academic team.

The Sauls were among several Big Ten players named to the first team. Others were Jim Mandich of Michigan, Mike Phipps of Purdue, Bill Urbanik of Ohio State and Bill Yancher of Purdue.

Big 10 milers shoot at sub-4:00

By DON KOPRIVA
State News Sports Writer

The sub-four minute mile, immortalized by Roger Bannister in 1954 and engraved on the American public in the 1960s, has never been run by a Big Ten Runner.

But that sad commentary may change Saturday in the Big Ten championships at Jenison Fieldhouse when no less than five runners, including one Spartan, rate shots at the league mile crown and possible sub-four minute glory.

"With the runners we have in there, I think the possibility is very good that someone could go under if the pace is right," MSU assistant coach Jim Gibbard said.

"There are five runners who are top contenders for the title and any one of them might have to go under 4:00 to win it."

Mark Winzenried, Wisconsin's great middle distance runner who leads the league in the mile, half-mile and 1000-yard run, has a best of 4:01.9, which stands as an American mark for a flat track like that in Jenison.

But four others loom near enough to the four minute mark to push the Wisconsin ace under or to break 4:00 themselves.

Illinois sophomore Lee LaBadie has a 4:03.1 mile best and has the kick to go strong at the end, as does Winzenried.

MSU's Ken Popejoy, Glenelg, Ill., freshman, has run 4:04.4 in a loss to LaBadie but his finishing "kick" is getting stronger by the week and if he's near anyone, the fans could see a hometown win. Wisconsin's Don Vandrey, the second half of the Badgers' dynamic duo, has run 4:03.3, but that came in December and his coach, Bob Brennan, said he has been hampered lately by tendon problems.

But Vandrey still ran 1:49.9 on a two mile relay at Houston Feb. 14 so he could still be a challenge.

Perhaps the brightest of the new Big Ten stars is Minnesota freshman Garry Bjorklund. He paced his team to the Big Ten cross country title with a first place finish and went on to take sixth, and accompanying all-America honors, in the NCAA meet.

Two weeks ago he broke the all time Big Ten undergraduate best for two miles with a 8:47.0 clocking. Last week he ran the mile in 4:05.5, nearly equaling his prep best of 4:05.1, and then came back in an 8:58.0 two mile.

Bjorklund could go in either the mile or two or both but no matter which he's in, he will be sure to be in the money.

The league boasts 19 milers under 4:13, by far the greatest mile field in its history, so with a little bit of luck, and a fast pace, fans in Jenison could see the magic mile.

The two mile could be magic too as no less than seven runners have dipped under 9:00. Leading the pack is Bjorklund but following close behind are freshman Glenn Herold of Wisconsin and sophomore Rick Gross of Illinois, both with best times of 8:47.5.

Illinois' Ken Howse, a junior, has posted a 8:49.3 while Ohio State junior Doug Scorrar, the 1968 Big Ten cross country champ, appears on the way back after disappointing track and cross country seasons in 1969, as he has run 8:53.9

Scorrar's sophomore teammate, John Dextras, has run 8:56.3 while Michigan senior Ken Howe has traveled the 16 laps in 8:59.8.

Numerous other runners, including MSU's Ken Leonowicz and Chuck Starkey, Purdue's Ray Ashworth and Joe Daley, Minnesota's Mike Hanley and Greg Nelson and Indiana's Bob Legge, who are all hovering near the 9:00 mark and could go under and threaten for the title.

Neither of these races will have preliminaries but the hurdles, the 60 and 300 yard dashes, and the 440 through 1000 yard runs will have prelims and possibly semi-finals Friday night. If the past is any indicator, fans may see times just as fast Friday night as in the finals Saturday as runners jockey for the pole position and prime lanes in the finals.

Spartans solid favorite for wrestling title

By GARY WALKOWICZ
Executive Sports Editor

Overall balance is the keynote of this year's Big Ten wrestling meet, but MSU still remains a solid favorite to grab its fifth straight title in the tourney, which begins at Ann Arbor on Friday.

Ohio State and Purdue, the ninth and 10th place finishers, respectively, in 1969 have been the league's most improved squads this season, which should help insure a ten-team battle for a first division finish.

The struggle for the top spot could prove to be no contest, however, if the Spartan grapplers wrestle as well as dual meet performances have shown them capable of. But stranger things have happened than a heavily favored Big Ten team losing the championship.

"We're going in to the meet as a big favorite, of course," Spartan Coach Grady Peninger said, "but the rest of the league isn't so far behind that someone couldn't knock us out of the saddle."

"It's going to be a very interesting meet and could be a very tough one to win. There are lots of outstanding wrestlers around; guys who are capable of beating anyone on a given night. The luck of the draw might prove to be a vital factor in determining the outcome."

Depth is the key factor which sets MSU above the other conference contenders. Every team has at least one or two wrestlers who are potential individual winners and several schools have five or six grapplers of this caliber. MSU, though, will enter a lineup boasting a potential champion at every weight and should score points in each event.

The Spartans also have outstanding talent to go with the depth. Three of their wrestlers for the weekend meet are defending conference champs, while from three to five others could earn the No. 1 seed and favorite's role for their event.

Iowa and Michigan loom as the top contenders to win second place or even pick up the title should MSU falter.

The Hawkeyes, last season's runner-up, had the second best dual meet record in the conference - 11-1 over and 7-1 against Big Ten foes. Iowa has few weak spots in their lineup and fields an experienced team. They were victims of several upsets in the opening rounds last year which allowed MSU to win easily, and are determined to give the Spartans a closer battle this time.

The Hawkeyes' top entries include 134-pounder Don Briggs, 142-pounder Joe Carstensen, 167-pounder Phil Henning and 177-pounder Steve DeVries.

Michigan finished with a much more modest 7-5-1 (4-4 in the league) dual meet mark. The Wolverines have five or six top-flight performers, but inconsistent performances from the other positions, which are manned mainly by sophomores, have hurt them in dual meets.

Michigan Coach Cliff Kean is hoping that a partisan crowd, plus surprise performances from his sophomores can give him a championship in the final season of his 45-year coaching career at U-M.

The Wolverines will have the only other defending titlist in the meet in Jesse Rawls, who may wrestle at either 167 or 177. 118-pounder Jerry Huddy, 126-pounder Tim Cech and 150-pounder Lane Headrick are the Wolves' other title contenders.

Besides, Rawls and Keith Lowrance, Gary Bissell and Jack Zindel of MSU, there were three other defending league champs who returned this year, but have been sidelined by injuries.

MSU's John Abajace, reigning 152-champ, Tom Muir, defending 160 winner and U-M's Lou Hudson all have suffered knee injuries which will keep them among the meet's spectators.

Three league records were smashed by MSU in 1969 and all could be broken again by the Spartans.

SPARTAN NOTES
Peninger, one of the nation's most successful collegiate coaches was recently named to the Wrestling Coaches Hall of Fame. In six years at MSU, Peninger has won four Big Ten and one NCAA title.

Big 10 meet next for g-men

By JOHN VIGES

State News Sports Writer

MSU's gymnastics team enters its final and most important meet this weekend when it travels to Minneapolis, Minnesota for the Big 10 Tournament. The meet will be held Friday and Saturday with all conference schools represented except Northwestern and Purdue.

The young Spartans hope to give a performance more impressive than their record, 3-4 for the conference and 4-7 overall, and coach George Szypula feels that they can do it.

"Injuries have hurt us all year," Szypula commented, "and we lost two of our meets by less than a point. I feel that if everyone is in good shape and we compete as we are capable of, we can finish second and give Michigan an interesting meet."

An interesting meet it may be, but no one is expected to defeat the powerful Wolverines. They have swept through all competition and are averaging over 162, an average of better than 9.0 per men for each event.

After the Wolves, the competition evens out with Illinois, Iowa and MSU almost equal and Minnesota not far behind. The Illini have a 6-1 conference mark, Iowa is 5-2 and Minnesota is 3-4.

Michigan's tremendous depth has made the Wolverines one of the top teams in the country. Their two all-around men Rick McCurdy and Sid Jensen were the top finishers in last year's conference meet and to complement them, the Wolverines have outstanding specialists in every event. One of these is defending NCAA parallel bars champion Ron Rapper.

The long horse vault will feature a potent one-two punch by Iowa's Barry Slotten and Rich Scorza. Michigan will use Jensen and George Huntzicker and Spartans that have a good chance of placing are Rich Murahata and Pete Sorg.

Top men for floor exercise will be Huntzicker and Jensen for the Wolves, Murahata for MSU, Larry Butts of Illinois and Jeff Rock of Minnesota.

The side horse will feature three top quality athletes. John Russo of Wisconsin and Ken Barr of the Illini have both scored 9.8 this year and Ken Liehr of Iowa was the second in the NCAA last year. Michigan has an excellent trio on the rings with Jensen, McCurdy and Skip Frowick but MSU could score high with its own threesome of Randy Balhorn, Mickey Uram and Charlie Morse. Chuck Earle of Indiana is also a top scorer.

Rapper and Jensen give the Michigan strength on parallel bars but this event is also MSU's strong point and Murahata, Morse and Balhorn should provide an excellent dual with the state rival stars.

Spartan swimmers prepare for Big 10 Championships

By JOHN MASON

State News Sports Writer

What is known as the Big Ten Swimming Championships in reality boils down to the Big Four Swimming Championships. Each year the meet ends up a contest composed almost entirely of swimmers from Indiana, Michigan, Ohio State, and Michigan State.

For the past nine years Indiana has won the Big Ten crown and is almost a shoo-in for a repeat performance this weekend in their pool. Returning for the Hoosiers are individual titlist Fred Southward, and Jim Henry while world record holders Mark Spitz and Gary Hall provide added power.

The University of Michigan is favored to pick up the runnerup position. The Wolverines big performers should be seniors Gary Kinkead and Juan Bello. Kinkead has posted good times in the 1000 freestyle, 200 individual medley and 200 backstroke. Bello, who last year won the 200 individual medley, is an outstanding 100 and 200 yard freestyler.

The meet shapes up as a battle for third between the Spartans and Ohio state. Last year the MSU easily outdistanced the Buckeyes but this year face a much improved squad.

Leading the Spartan attack will be co-captains Bruce Richards and Mike Kalmbach. Richards, a senior from Tacoma, Washington will be trying to regain the 400 yard individual medley title that he captured last year. Kalmbach, who placed fourth in last year NCAA meet in the 100 freestyle, will go for the Spartans in the 50, 100, and 200 freestyles. Senior Dick Crittenden will also see action in the same events.

Sophomore Jeff Lanini has an excellent chance for a title in the breaststroke events. Lanini's best bet will probably be in the 100 yard race.

Freshmen are eligible for the meet this year which will aid the Spartans. Ken Winfield should pick up valuable points in the butterfly events while Alan Dillel will be a threat in the backstroke.

The Spartans should make a good showing in the diving. Jim Henderson, who placed fifth a on both boards last year has shown much improvement this year. He will be joined by Bill Scott, Tom Cramer, and Dave Coward.

violated by procedures established hereunder, shall have the right to appeal to the Committee on Academic Governance and then have provisions for appeal to the elected faculty council.

The recommendation passed by a majority vote of the council. In addition, the council voted to extend an October 1, 1970 deadline for reports on the arrangements made for student participation on all levels within the departments, schools, colleges, centers and institutes to December 1, 1970.

The first three recommendations that passed the council dealt with each academic unit's development of a program to include students in the department, school and college level as well as university programs in the centers and institutes that have academic responsibilities.

The fourth and fifth recommendations that deal with students representation on the council were amended to include special provisions for representation from the Colleges of Human Medicine and Veterinary Medicine.

They now read: "There shall be one voting undergraduate student seated on the Academic Council from each of the thirteen colleges whose primary educational task is the education of the undergraduate. In addition, there shall be one voting member seated from the College of Human Medicine and one from the College of Veterinary Medicine, those to be chosen from the undergraduate students or those working toward a professional degree in their respective college."

"There shall be six voting graduate students seated on the Academic Council selected from among those colleges which have a graduate training function. No college may be represented by more than one representative at any given time. Graduate students shall be selected by the Council of Graduate Students."

progress reports, not financial reports," he added.

Martin said White's investigation is based on Green's alleged involvement in the selection of President Wharton for MSU's top post.

"I think White was concerned about Green making some telephone calls to Wharton during the presidential selection process. I heard him make some reference to this right after the trustees selected Wharton. That's what this whole thing centers around," he said.

Martin said he does not believe White has any basis for his concerns.

"I think Green may be talked to Wharton once and that's all," he said. "I don't think there's any basis for the investigation."

Murray named to grievance board by court

John Murray, professor of journalism, has been appointed to the newly-created State Bar Grievance Board.

Murray was appointed by the Michigan Supreme Court. Also appointed by the court were Tibor Payzsy, University of Detroit professor; William Davidson, a Port Huron attorney; and Ben Watson, a Lansing attorney.

The State also appointed three members to the board. The Bar appointed John S. Clark, a Petoskey lawyer; Gil Davis, a Royal Oak attorney and former State Bar president; and Harold E. Mountain, a Detroit attorney.

Chief Justice Thomas Brennan said he will send letters to the appointees "in the next week or so" calling them into a rule-making and organizational meeting.

Nixon urges Congress to order rail settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon asked Congress Tuesday to block a nationwide rail strike by ordering acceptance of a tentative wage and job jurisdiction settlement for some 45,000 workers.

"A nationwide stoppage of rail service would cause hardship to human beings and harm to our economy, and must not be permitted to take place," Nixon said in a message to Congress just two hours after four AFL-CIO shopcraft unions called a strike for one minute after midnight Wednesday.

"Speed is essential," said Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz in a White House briefing explaining Nixon's unprecedented proposal for a mandatory settlement. "We hope Congress will act quickly," Shultz said. "We'd like to see them act tomorrow."

Nixon's bill would impose as final a settlement worked out by negotiators for the four unions but rejected by a majority of the members of one union. The settlement would include a 68-cent raise in current wages of $3.60 an hour for the workers who repair and maintain railroad equipment.

It would also include the controversial provision to permit workers of all four unions to cross each others traditional job jurisdiction lines to do a limited amount of work, which the railroad industry insisted upon to increase efficiency.

Members of the Machinists, Electricians and Boilermakers unions had voted approval but rejection by less than 3,000 sheetmetal workers has prevented a voluntary settlement.

"We must not submit to the chaos of a nationwide rail stoppage because a minority of the effected workers rejected a contract agreed to by their leadership," Nixon said. "The public interest comes first."

Shultz said it was not likely that the bill would become a precedent for mandatory labor settlements in all such cases.
