Gov. charges outsiders in U-M strike violence

By SHARON TEMPLETON
State News Staff Writer

Milliken

Gov. William G. Milliken charged Tuesday that "a handful of outsiders, mostly white radicals" has been attempting to provoke violence at the University of Michigan since the student strike began March 20.

"The basic action has come from groups within the University," the governor said at a news conference, "but there is some indication that outsiders have become involved just to inflame the situation."

Milliken said he does not think the outside influence is part of any nationwide or statewide conspiracy, but that the outsiders are coming both from the Ann Arbor area and from other states.

A campus-wide strike was called by the Black Action Movement (BAM) on March 20 to support demands that the University achieve a 10 percent black enrollment by Fall, 1973. U-M now has about three percent black enrollment.

That demand was one of 12 presented to University officials. BAM also called for an attendance of 900 black students by fall, 1971, adequate financial aid to black student education, tuition waivers for minority group students and the establishment of a Black Student Center.

Sporadic incidences of violence broke out on the campus last week. On Thursday, about 250 youths, most of them white, ran through several classrooms carrying clubs and pipes. A few trash fires were set, some windows broken and a few shuffles followed.

Leaders of BAM said they were disturbed at the violence and urged their sympathizers -- both black and white -- to "cool it."

According to a statement released by U-M, most of the demands have been met, except for a BAM proposal that a black student center be built in a black neighborhood of Ann Arbor.

BAM called off negotiations with President Robben Fleming late Sunday after accusing him of revealing details of their "secret" negotiations.

BAM accepted an apology from Fleming Monday and re-entered negotiations Tuesday.

Spokesmen for U-M said the campus seemed to be virtually back to normal

Tuesday after black leaders of the class boycott withdrew pickets.

Neither the University nor BAM could provide estimates of how many students and faculty members were staying away from classes.

Although BAM declared a moratorium on picketing, it vowed to continue the nine-day-old strike until agreement was reached on its demands.

Negotiators for the University and BAM met until 4 a.m. Tuesday, then scheduled another meeting for the afternoon, BAM said.

Fleming said Friday that he would find the necessary funds to build the Black Student Center, and has received promises from the deans of U-M's schools and colleges to juggle their budgets to come up with the money.

The governor said the situation is still one to be handled by President Fleming and the University regents.

"President Fleming has done a good job as president of the University," he said. "My one concern is to make sure the University processes do not break down."

Two Ann Arbor legislators, however, attacked Fleming Monday for allowing "coercion and anarchy" to rule during the boycott.

State Sen. Gilbert Bursley and Rep. Raymond J. Smith, both Republicans, demanded full details of negotiations with strike leaders, and noted that the "appeasement of anarchists has led only to disaster."

Milliken also said that he does not feel any new laws or action by the legislature is needed to deal with the situation at Ann Arbor.

"I doubt very much that further legislation would be helpful either at U-M or on any other campus in the state."

The Governor also voiced adamant support for House Bill 3055, the Environmental Quality Act of 1970, at the news conference.

"This bill to permit the filing of lawsuits in the circuit courts of this state against unreasonable pollution of our natural resources is of the utmost priority in this

tables 50-65 policy

MSU Bookstore has delayed beginning its new 50-65 policy on used textbooks indefinitely, James Howick, bookstore manager, said Tuesday.

Under this policy, students could resell used books for 50 percent of the new-book price and buy them for 65 percent of the original price.

The board of trustees cleared the policy last month, but reconsidered it at a later meeting. Because of possible legal complications in the policy, the trustees referred the entire matter to Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley.

Until the Attorney general delivers an opinion on the policy, the previous resale price of 75 percent of the original value will remain in effect, Howick said.

HIGH COURT RULING

Unruly defendants removable from trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court endorsed Tuesday the forced removal of disorderly defendants who disrupt their own trials with noisy outbursts.

The decision, by Justice Hugo L. Black, also approved the binding and gagging of unruly defendants as well as their jailing for contempt to protect courtroom decorum.

"It would degrade our country and our judicial system to permit our courts to be bullied, insulted and humiliated and their orderly progress thwarted and obstructed by defendants," Black said.

Except for some reservations by Justice William O. Douglas, the ruling was unanimous. Douglas said the court used the wrong case — that of an evidently mentally disturbed defendant — to outlaw courtroom sabotage and violence.

The decision has a special impact in the light of a recent spate of tumultuous trials, including the interrupted prosecution of 12 Black Panthers for an alleged bombing

Although Judge Julius J. Hoffman, who presided in Chicago, declined substantive comment, the decision is a green light for trial judges to use at least one of the procedures specifically approved by the high court.

These are binding and gagging a defendant but keeping him the courtroom, citing him for contempt, or ejecting him out until he promises to behave.

Justice William J. Brennan Jr., in a concurring opinion, said he hoped judges would "make reasonable efforts" to enable an excluded defendant to keep up with progress of the trial and to keep in touch with his lawyer.

SEIZE JAPANESE PLANE

Student leftists order jetliner to North Korea

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — A group of samurai-wielding leftist students ordered a hijacked Japanese jetliner to take off for North Korea at daybreak Wednesday after officials here failed to trick them into thinking they were already there.

The South Koreans had rigged special signs, dressed soldiers up in North Korean uniforms and had the control tower announce that the Japan Air Lines jet had landed at Pyongyang, North Korea's capital. But the ruse collapsed.

The students, numbering about 15, insisted the 100 other persons on board — among them two Americans — remain for the flight to Pyongyang.

South Korean officials threatened to keep the Boeing 727 grounded at Kimpo International Airport here until all of its passengers were released, although they said they would abide by the wishes of Japanese authorities.

Japan Air Lines in Tokyo sent a message to its Seoul office that it would send in fresh pilots to make the journey to Pyongyang if the hijackers agreed.

The flight crew was reported to be exhausted after the lengthy ordeal, which included one unsuccessful attempt to fly into North Korea.

Armed with short samurai swords and brandishing what they said were explosives, the radicals seized control of the jetliner Tuesday over Japan. The plane landed in Seoul after it was reportedly fired on by North Korean anti-aircraft and chased away.

After the Japanese students realized that they had not arrived in North Korea, the students demanded the plane head northward. One of the plane's wheels sank into soft ground on the edge of the runway when it landed, and authorities said it would need help before it could take off again.

Japanese Ambassador Masahide Kanayama talked by radio-telephone for about 50 minutes with the radical students, members of a so-called Red Army.

But the plane's pilot, Shinji Ishida, and a representative of the passengers, identified only as Matsumoto, urged the ambassador to allow the plane to depart since its captors appeared to be armed with explosives.

The two American passengers on the ill-fated plane were identified as Herbert Brill of Pepsi-Cola's Japan division and the Rev. Daniel S. MacDonald, a Maryknoll priest from San Francisco.

Bailey against 'sickout'; return to work advocated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The air traffic controllers who have disrupted flight schedules for a week with mass sick calls were urged by their union leaders Tuesday to return to work unless they actually are ill.

But attorney F. Lee Bailey, executive director of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, said he did not know what effect his "clarifying statement" would have in restoring the tangled air travel picture.

"I do not advocate a sickout," Bailey told a news conference.

"It is an inconvenience to the American public and should be terminated at once."

As he spoke, there continued to be mass flight cancellations and delays up to four hours at the nation's airports because of a shortage of controllers at 21 air traffic control centers which handle high-altitude flights.

The Federal Aviation Administration said 495 of a scheduled 1,739 controllers reported sick at the 21 centers Tuesday with the heaviest absences in the busy centers at New York, Chicago, Cleveland, Kansas City and Oakland, Calif. It has started sending 30-day notices of dismissal to absent controllers, giving them five days to submit doctors' certificates if they really were ill.

Bailey, who must appear in court Wednesday with two other PATCO officers to answer contempt charges, said his statement does not mark a shift in his position.

"I have never been in support of a strike, but have hoped a dialogue could be started and the situation not polarized," he said. Federal employees are forbidden to strike and a number of restraining orders have been issued against the controllers since the work stoppage began.

No other officer of PATCO spoke at the news conference, but Bailey said he would not be making any statement unless he had other officers' support.

Bailey had no direct comment on the FAA action, saying "we will have to deal with that in the best way we can, when the time comes."

The Air Transport Association, which says an average of 500 flights have been cancelled each day of the controllers' work stoppage, has filed suit against PATCO, claiming an unspecified amount of damages.

ATA spokesmen say the airlines' losses run in the millions.

Bailey was asked what the absences had accomplished.

"Nothing constructive so far," he said, "except making the people aware of the controllers' situation."

Air controllers' strike affects Lansing airport

The air controllers' strike, which has slowed down air traffic throughout the nation, has affected several flights coming into and going out of the Capital City Airport in Lansing.

According to United Airlines, only two out of five flights from Chicago to Lansing have been cancelled, and one of the flights to Newark from Lansing is going only as far as Cleveland. North Central Airlines reported that all 30 of their scheduled flights into Lansing are operating.

Lawrence Lyman, Chief Air Traffic Controller, stated that all eight of Capital City Airport controllers are working. However, he added that in Lansing as at most other airports in the United States, the number of air controllers is insufficient. He said that the Lansing airport should have 12 controllers instead of eight, and that even though efforts have been made to hire more controllers, there has been little success.

Russel Brown, Capital City Airport Manager, stated that the only solution to the air controller strike would be a massive hiring of new personnel. He said that at the present time, most of the Lansing air controllers are being forced to work overtime and that every year the number of planes landing and taking off from the Capital City Airport greatly increases. He said that on some days last year as many as 800 planes either landed or took off from Lansing within an eight hour period.

One of the results of the air controllers strike, which has caused the cancellation of 50 per cent of all flights out of New York, Chicago and Newark, is that some of the smaller airlines have experienced an increase in passengers. Thomas Hart, Station Manager for North Central Airlines, reported that nearly all of the North Central flights have been much fuller.

Wharton says universities challenged

By MARILYN PATTERSON
State News Staff Writer

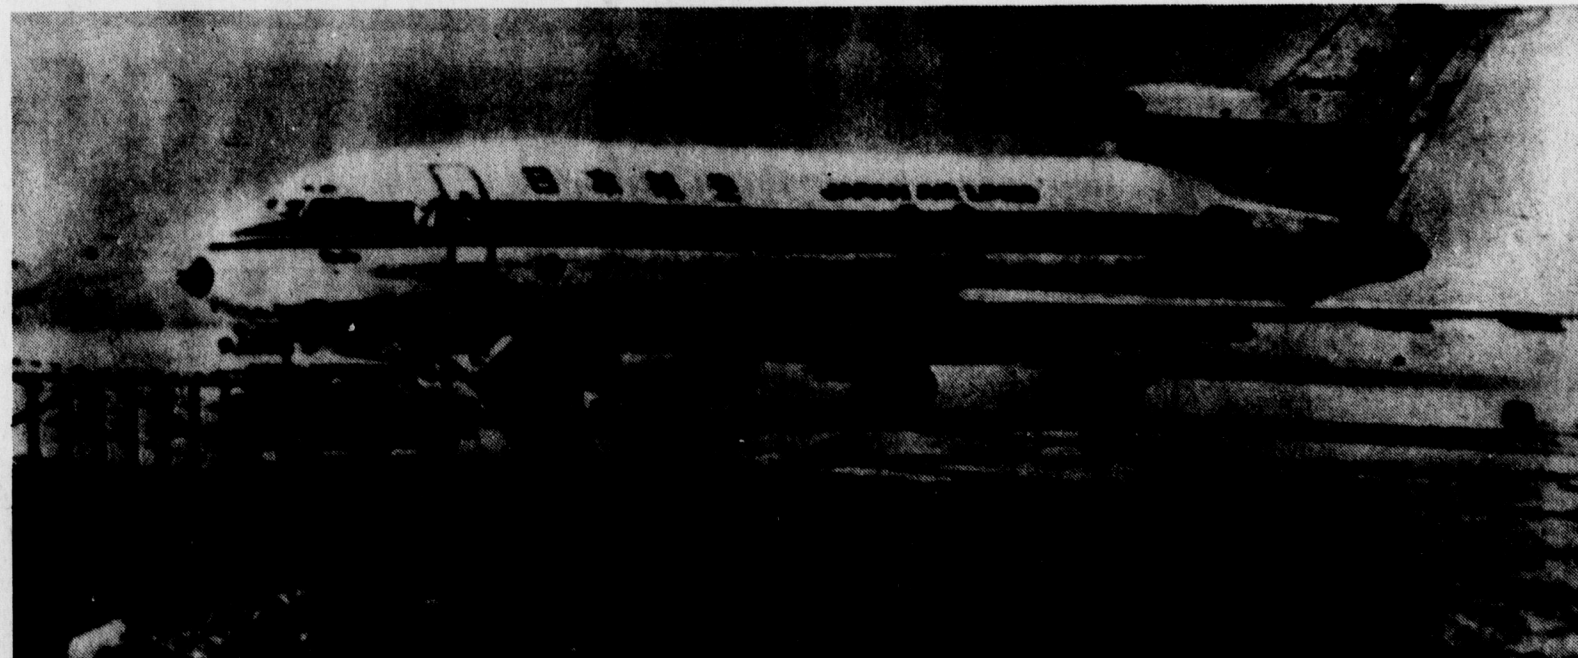

The first challenge facing universities in the 1970's is to universalize higher education, President Wharton told members of the Economics Club of Detroit Monday.

"Today, higher education offers the path to personal economic security and to social acceptance," Wharton said. "The concept of education as a privilege is disappearing and is being replaced by the concept of education as a right."

Wharton said if universities are to respond to today's need for education, they must work for the education of disadvantaged youth and for adult re-education.

He said that as more and more of the economically and educationally

Levin joins governor race; Milliken's still on sidelines

By LARRY LEE
State News Staff Writer

Gov. Milliken predicted Tuesday a "lively governor's race" following the announced candidacy of Sen. Sander Levin, D-Berkley.

Sen. Levin's announcement Monday brought the number of declared Democratic candidates to three.

The others are House Majority Floor Leader George F. Montgomery, D-Detroit, and former Democratic State Chairman Zolton Ferency with Macomb County Prosecutor George Farris expected to also announce.

Asked at a morning news conference to comment on Levin's announcement, Milliken chuckled, "All I can say is that Sen. Levin has added his name to the list of candidates for the governor of the Great State of Michigan."

He added that he would have more to say "later" on the race.

The governor has not yet declared his own candidacy for the position, although he has said he will soon announce his choice for Lieutenant Governor. Leading candidates are acting Lt. Gov. Thomas Schweigert of Petosky and House Minority Floor Leader William Hampton of Bloomfield Hills.

Levin, at his campaign launch in Detroit, said he would focus on Milliken rather than his Democratic opponents in the August primary. But he criticized Montgomery and Ferency for agreeing to limit campaign expenditures to $5,000.

"We need a new sense of adventure for the governor's office," Levin said. "It has become a dull place. It has seen more rhetoric than record, more drift than determination. When the times are threatening, then the times must be confronted."

He promised a campaign against what he called the "Nixon - Agnew - Romney - Milliken" approach to government.

"In 1970, we must prove that our society can give change a chance," Levin said. "We must confront our society's failure personally - face to face."

Reflecting increasing concern on environment, Levin spent much of his time attacking pollution problems. He said Detroit's Riverside Park, where he opened his campaign, "symbolized the disfigurement of our priorities."

The park is situated on the "BACK IN 1965 (when the crusade du jour was for civil rights or something like that), Senator Muskie brought pressure to bear on the Maine legislature to downgrade the Prestige River. Where formerly the river was classified suitable for swimming and fishing, after Muskie's efforts it was perfectly legal to pollute it. The downgrading was needed, Muskie said, to attract a beet sugar refinery to depressed Aroostook County."

heavily polluted Detroit River next to an incinerator that Levin noted could be made pollution free for $20 million.

But, the 38-year-old senator said, "these smokestacks must not become a smokescreen to cover our other problems."

He criticized the Milliken administration for proposing to "disfigure our taxes even further with a $50 million decrease for corporations and a $250 million increase for individuals."

"Our hard-pressed metropolitan areas turn over a disproportionate share of their resources to state government in taxes, then the state turns its back on metropolitan needs."

Following Levin's announcement, Rep. Daniel Cooper, D-Oak Park said he would seek the vacated senate seat.

McELROY SPEECH

Science must aid environment

To reduce scientific research -- even in a single field -- is at best short and at worst disastrous, the director of the National Science Foundation told graduates during Winter commencement.

William D. McElroy, speaking to some 1,300 winter term graduates, added, "Nonetheless, it would be equally reckless to carry on scientific business as usual, failing to heed the social and environmental problems to which science can provide some important answers."

McElroy took issue with those "radical critics" who have called for a drastic reorientation of science so that only those fields of research bearing on pressing problems would receive support.

The worthwhileness of research is "illusive" he said.

"To limit support to those fields that seem to bear on current problems is to ignore the fact that research in other fields may produce material and social benefits for mankind a decade or so hence, when the needs of society are likely to be quite different..."

He said the NSF, "without compromising its core mission of fundamental research and education in the sciences, has begun new programs to respond to the pressing issues of the time."

McElroy, who was one of four outstanding scientists and educators receiving honorary degrees at the MSU ceremonies, said he saw no absence of moral concern among the members of the scientific community.

"Let us separate the morality of the scientific enterprise from the morality of scientists," he said. "Science is the pursuit of truth about our universe and these truths are morally neutral."

The NSF director noted that patience, persistence, rationality and respect for the facts are "habits" endemic to scientists "that cautions them against participation in disruptive protest and coercive settlement of issues."

He explained that if a scientist cannot shout his solution to the war in Vietnam into a microphone, "it is not that he does not care or that he wholly trusts the wisdom of Washington. Usually, it is simply because he does not have enough information. Factuality is the accustomed basis of his declarative sentences."

McElroy described the pressure from the young to make education more relevant to the needs of contemporary society as "the healthiest development in the recent history of education."

However, he warned against deposing experts and reason.

"If the entire job of running universities was turned over to students, some of their wildest thinkers would depose all experts and establish amateurism upon the throne," he said.

McElroy was the recipient of the honorary doctor of science degree, presented by Dr. Clifton R. Wharton Jr., who presided over his first commencement as president of MSU.

Wharton, in his remarks to the graduates, challenged students to maintain their idealism and commitment to learning, to the precious worth of the individual and to social improvement and social justice.

"As graduates from this university, as citizens and future leaders, you must realize the new problems in a rapidly urbanizing society confront us crying for solution," Wharton said.

"Each individual is entitled to an equal opportunity to realize his fullest inherent potential. This means that he must have equal access to those economic and social tools -- such as minimum income and basic education -- which are essential to achieving this goal."

"This will not be accomplished by rhetoric or by merely setting goals," Wharton continued. "It will require sacrifice and devotion and it entails a mandate to American educational institutions."

Book exchange installs changes

The all-university student book exchange will again be operating spring term through April 4.

Coordinators of the past exchanges have evaluated their individual operations and have agreed to have only one exchange at Shaw Hall lower lounge.

John Michael, manager of the book exchange, said the central location will make the operation more efficient.

"Having all the textbooks in one area will allow for a better selection of books available to everyone," Michael said.

He also commented that the exchange will have some new features this term.

A phone line will be installed at the exchange so students may call to check for a specific book.

An up-to-date book list will be available, with refunds and exchanges accepted through April 4.

Students will again be permitted to set their own price for texts, and include outlines and notes to encourage the sale.

Buyers should come to the Shaw lounge between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m., April 4. Book trading will also be conducted from 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m., today through April 4.

Brody complex will again hold an individual sale, directed specifically toward its residents.

840 APPLY FOR 32 PLACES

Big demand, few spaces
compacts medical school

The demand by the public for more doctors may be matched by the demand of students for more openings in medical schools.

MSU has received 840 applications for the 32 places — 26 per place — in the medical class it will admit this fall.

"Most of the applicants would probably do well in any medical school," said Dr. Daniel F. Cowan, chairman of the Admissions Committee of the College of Human Medicine and assistant dean for student affairs.

"We are sure that we could easily pick a class of 250 students if we had room for that many."

How then does the 11-member Admissions Committee decide to accept students?

"It would be easy if we arbitrarily picked students with the best test scores and the highest grades," said Dr. Cowan, "but these factors are not our only concern."

"We are looking for competent, socially motivated people with diverse backgrounds to serve the diverse needs of the people of Michigan. It is a very demanding, time-consuming task."

After review of their written applications, the applicants who appear to be most promising (about 200 this year) are invited to come to MSU for interviews with two members of the Admissions Committee. Each of these interviews lasts about one hour and enables the committee member to know the student personally and to learn more about his motivations and abilities.

The committee then tries to admit a class that is well balanced and represents a wide spectrum of personalities, backgrounds, talents and motivations.

"We think it is important for a student from downtown Detroit to be in a class with a student from the Upper Peninsula," said Dr. Cowan. "We want our students to learn about their main subject — people — from one another."

"The interviews are, particularly important, not only because they help us to learn more about the students, but because they show the students that we are interested in them as unique human beings."

While the MSU example is extreme because of the small number of students who can be admitted at this time and because educational innovations of the College of Human Medicine are attractive to many students, there are indications nationally that the demand for openings is not unique.

Less than half of all applicants to medical schools are admitted and "an increasing number of the rejected applicants might have qualified for medical school if additional places had been available," according to the Assn. of American Medical Colleges.

Poll shows student views

Copyright 1970, Unidex Corp.

According to the most recent survey by the University Index over 7 out of 10 students feel that the attainment of a degree was very important in "getting ahead today." In an earlier survey this year, 4 out of 5 students indicated that they had a particular career in mind.

Combined, the two findings seem to indicate that most students — including those at MSU — are more serious about the pursuit and purpose of their education than many might believe.

Eighteen colleges and universities in Illinois, Indiana,

Ohio, Michigan, and Kentucky were surveyed the first and second weeks of March. 415 randomly selected students were asked:

"How important a role do you feel a college degree plays in 'getting ahead' today?"

Very important 71.3%
Only somewhat important 25.8%
Unimportant 2.1%
No answer .8%

There was no apparent relationship between parental occupation and the importance the respondent placed on obtaining the degree.

Percentages for each answer were roughly the same whether or not the student came from a white collar, blue collar, or professional household.

Students were then asked about the amount of personal attention they receive from faculty and an appraisal of the quality of instruction from those are students pursuing an advanced degree and teaching an undergraduate class on a part-time basis.)

Midwestern students rated "more personal attention from faculty" as the situation that could most improve higher education.

While the poll indicated that there was no overwhelming dissatisfaction with these elements of the students' education, just under half said that they received either less attention than they desired from faculty or little or none at all.

The survey asked:

"Which of the following would best describe the degree of personal attention you receive from faculty?"

More than desired 3.8%
Less than desired 29.9%

There was no significant relationship between the size of the student's school and his feelings about either class size or personal attention received.

The respondents were asked to indicate what, in their opinion, could be done to most improve the quality of their education. While many ideas were given, those mentioned most frequently were: More personal attention from faculty, courses more relevant to today, and reduce size of classes.

The survey next month will be concerned with the student and mortality. The three-part series will question collegians about their attitudes toward religion, sex, and the use of drugs.

Schools polled were: University of Michigan, MSU, Ohio State, University of Chicago, University of Kentucky, Indiana University, Southern Illinois University (two campuses), University of Dayton, Northwestern, Wooster College, Valparaiso, University of Louisville, University of Cincinnati, Notre Dame, University of Illinois, Kent State, Western Michigan University.

About right 48.7%
Little or none at all 17.6%

Three out of four of those polled said that they had taken a course or courses from someone other than a full-time faculty member. These students were asked:

"How would you compare the quality of instruction from graduate students or T.A.'s to that of full-time faculty?"

Much less quality 16.3%
Somewhat less quality 39.2%
Same degree of quality 30.7%
Higher quality 13.8%

Regarding the size of their classes, a little over 1 out of 3 felt that they were too large. The majority, however, registered no complaint on this issue.

"Would you say the classes you are enrolled in are too large, too small, or about right?"

Too large 35.9%
Too small 1.7%
About right 62.4%

There was no significant relationship between the size of the student's school and his feelings about either class size or personal attention received.

The respondents were asked to indicate what, in their opinion, could be done to most improve the quality of their education. While many ideas were given, those mentioned most frequently were: More personal attention from faculty, courses more relevant to today, and reduce size of classes.

Proper place of ROTC needs to be re-defined

Reform and modernization is and should be a continual process on any university campus. At MSU, unfortunately, this has not been the rule in all cases. One outstanding example of an institution sadly wanting for updating is ROTC.

Much criticism has been leveled at on-campus officer training and it seems evident that most students at most universities resent its presence and desire some sort of change in the present system. Anti-ROTC arguments take two major forms: one philosophical, the other pragmatic.

It is no secret that the subject matter of many "military science" courses is more propaganda than fact and that the primary criteria for good marks is how well one can toe the line, rather than how well one can use his creativity. Beginning with the time-honored definition of the university as an apolitical body for free thought and discussion and ending with the current precepts of academic freedom it is clearly evident that such a program as ROTC does not fit in any way into the university scheme.

From the more pragmatic point of view many ROTC instructors are accorded all the rank and privileges of professors when, in fact, they have no more than the equivalent of a bachelor's degree. Further, much course material that is presented is clearly of an inferior order to that given by other departments at comparable levels.

We feel that the case has been made many times over for serious revamping of the university's relationship with ROTC. The logical step that this institution should take in response to the arguments outlined above, and the will of the people, is to strip ROTC of its academic and credit granting powers.

Provided there is sufficient interest ROTC should, however, be allowed to remain on campus as an extra-curricular activity and be accorded the same privileges as say, SDS or any other activity — no more and no less.

We feel that the basis of a free and democratic society is not necessarily the will of the majority so much as the protection of the minority; therefore, it would be improper to expel ROTC from the campus entirely. In as much, however, as this program is in clear violation of the precepts of free education and academic freedom we feel that a move to remove its departmental status is justified and should be undertaken immediately.

Letter Policy

The State News welcomes all letters. They should be typed and signed with the home town, student, faculty or staff standing, and local phone number included. No unsigned letter will be accepted for publication, and no letter will be printed without a signature except in extreme circumstances. All letters must be less than 300 words long for publication without editing.

THE DOCTOR'S BAG

By ARNOLD WERNER, M.D.

Copyright, Michigan State News, 1970.

Letters may be addressed to Dr. Werner at 309 Linton Hall. Names need not be included unless a personal reply is requested.

Recently I've noticed that my skin turns black where it is in contact with gold jewelry. I am not dirty and it isn't "cheap" gold. I was told that it was because I don't get enough vitamin C, but I take vitamins daily and drink plenty of orange juice. Is there anything I can do to prevent this ugly reaction? I have stopped wearing jewelry that touches my skin, but I miss my ring.

Gold jewelry contains other metals in addition to gold to create the proper color, hardness and durability. Often, there is copper in gold, even the expensive type. It is most likely that one of the metals in the jewelry other than the gold is causing the reaction you describe. The reason this happens to you and not to most other people is probably due to the idiosyncratic composition of your perspiration. I can't think of an easy way to change the composition of your sweat, but you might try cleaning your jewelry with soap and water and coating the surface that contacts your skin with clear nailpolish.

When I dance to certain fast music, I move very rapidly and cannot help it when my back and juts out farther than normal. This position, coupled with a rapid back and forth movement causes me to get an erection. At certain times, ejaculation even occurs. Being rather hypersexually oriented, I have trouble controlling this strange situation. Once I even had to continue dancing after the music had ended.

How can I manage this problem?

Sexual stimulation leading to orgasm can occur in a variety of circumstances as you have discovered. This is true for women as well as men. Bicycle riding and horseback riding are outdoor forms of turning on for some people. The anatomic uniqueness of the man makes these harmless diversions potentially embarrassing.

Your desire for a solution which does not include giving up dancing creates problems. I would suggest only dancing with women you know very well in dimly lit rooms. Also, you might avoid very tight fitting trousers and cooling it on the gyrations. By the way, have you seen "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?"

By the end of the school year I will have reached the age of 21. I have a little "peach fuzz" but it isn't thick enough or doesn't grow fast enough to be grown into a mustache, beard or even sideburns. I would like to grow sideburns and possibly a beard while I have time and am allowed to wear them.

Is there any way to speed up the growth of facial hair?

The amount of body hair a person has is generally determined. There are rare endocrine disorders which result in an excess or a paucity of body hair. These disorders are usually accompanied by other striking features, such as abnormal sexual development and function, high blood pressure, etc.

I know of no way to encourage the growth of facial hair. True desperation has led a few brave souls to seek hair Welcome back to the Big U, freshmen. By now you've been through two terms and orientations, heard all the propaganda and wonder how you can apply it. You can't.

OUR READERS' MIND

Bring home ALL U.S. troops

To the Editor:
We, the undersigned, are soldiers of the United States military Reserve forces.

We wear the same uniform as the American troops being killed and maimed every day in Vietnam. We want those soldiers home — alive.

We demand total withdrawal of ALL our fellow American soldiers from Vietnam now. Not just combat troops, not just ground forces, but ALL troops.

We demand total withdrawal now of all the American soldiers advising the armies of dictatorships throughout Latin America and Asia. We don't want Guatemala, Thailand, or Bolivia to become the Vietnam of the 1970's. One Vietnam is enough; too many people have been killed already to preserve America's overseas empire.

As men who have served in the armed forces, we have seen first hand the dangerously growing power of American militarism. As soldiers and as citizens we believe we have a special obligation to speak out against it.

Makes correction

To the Editor:

In the interest of providing correct information about drugs, I would like to correct a statement on amphetamines (Thursday, March 12, 1970). The statement that "benzedrine is pure amphetamine... dextedrine is a dextroamphetamine, containing dextrose, to counteract certain effects of the pure drug" is grossly incorrect. Benzedrine R is a trademark for the racemic mixture of amphetamine, that is a mixture of both the dextro and levo isomers whereas dextedrine R is a trade name for the dextro isomer of the drug. Dextro does not refer to dextrose (which is a sugar) in any way but is a chemical designation for the configuration of the drug molecule. The difference between the two forms of the drug (dextro and levo) is that the dextro form is more potent with regard to the central stimulating effects and somewhat less potent with regard to the cardiovascular effects than is the levo form. This simply means that one gets more stimulation of the brain with less increase in heart rate and blood pressure with dextedrine R than with benzedrine R. Methamphetamine is similar to the other amphetamines but has less cardiovascular effects than either dextedrine R or benzedrine R.

More congestion

To the Editor:

I suspect that Mr. Howick, manager of the MSU Bookstore, is well aware of students' needs for their books during finals week. I suspect that he also realizes that many students will prefer to spend their limited time during finals week studying, rather than waiting in line to sell their books. Since Mr. Howick obviously has had some experience with long lines of students selling books over the present buy back policy, I fail to see how he could expect anything but more congestion to result from shortening the period of time during which students can sell their books. If Mr. Howick says that any convenience resulting from his policy change will be to anyone but himself, he is either deluding himself, or attempting to delude us.

I am not sure, however, why he would institute such changes which will surely tend to decrease his accumulation of used

Agency raps 'U' hospital action

By DIANE PETRYK
State News Staff Writer

A local health planning agency has sent a letter to MSU protesting the University's application for a $28.8 million federal grant without first submitting the proposal to their agency for review and comment.

The grant is intended for the proposed $43 million, 342 bed University hospital.

The Capitol Area Comprehensive Health Planning Assn. (CACHPA), is established under a federal law passed in 1967, which states that any application for funds for health facilities must be submitted for review and comment to local health planning agencies.

According to Neil White, executive director of CACHPA, the agency's complaint is that MSU has put together a proposal with little consideration from the community.

"They've sent it to the federal government before the local community had a chance to comment," White said.

MSU agrees that the University hospital has to be related to the community.

Neil Bracht, asst. dean for extramural and community affairs, said the MSU medical school believes in the principle that health proposals should be submitted for local review, but in this instance they lacked time.

"We had no intention not to submit the proposal, but we got caught by one of those federal deadline things," Bracht said. "It had to be in and there really wasn't time."

After it went to the federal government the proposal was sent to the local group.

"Technically they're correct," Bracht said in reference to the letter CACHPA sent. "We should have sent it to them before not after, but grants submitted to the federal government can and often will be changed."

"The agency's review and comment will still have meaning. There's nothing sacred or final about the proposal that went in."

White said that although CACHPA will see the proposal anyway, "it is difficult to have any give and take with a finalized application."

A member of the board of CACHPA himself, Bracht said the agency is just getting started and was not set up to undertake a review and comment at the time.

"To submit the proposal then would have delayed the application process," Bracht said.

"This is part of the University's rationale," White said, "and we agree that we were not fully set up, but we did have one committee that was ready and could have handled the issue."

Representatives of CACHPA, which is made up of people from various groups within the community who are the consumers of health care as well as those who make their living from medicine, agree that their letter was meant to encourage more cooperation in health planning between the University and the community.

Since MSU helped to develop CACHPA, according to Bracht, it plans to cooperate fully with the tri-county agency.

Police suspect arsonists responsible for Olds blaze

By JEFF SHELER
State News Staff Writer

Arsonists are suspected of setting a fire that caused $500 damage to Olds Hall last week, according to University police who continued investigations Tuesday.

East Lansing firemen extinguished a blaze in a third floor classroom last Tuesday night after smoke was reported coming from the building which houses the Police Administration Dept. and Psychology Dept.

Police said fire was "apparently set" to two wooden chairs and spread, damaging four calculators used by the Psychology Dept. and charring the tile floor and the plaster ceiling.

Samples of the charred materials are being tested to determine what was used to kindle the fire, police said.

Psychology Dept. head Lawrence O'Kelly said he did not believe the arson was aimed at the Police Administration Dept. which occupies the fourth floor, but at the Psychology Dept.

"In view of the fact that this was the second fire attempt in two weeks, both in the Psychology Dept., I would suspect that it isn't police administration they're after, but psychology for reasons I do not know."

O'Kelly said he was unaware of any policies or projects within the department that would incite arson. The department does "very little" research, he said, and concentrates on teaching.

Three weeks ago fire was set to the first floor of Olds Hall causing about $1,700 damage to the building and equipment.

JUDGE'S NEW POLICY

Shoplifters set sentences

By LINDA KNIBBS
State News Staff Writer

Two MSU students received final sentences for shoplifting Monday from East Lansing Municipal Judge William K. Harmon under his new policy for such cases.

Harmon's usual sentence for shoplifting was four days in jail and $100 fine and costs. Under his new policy, shoplifters receive the same fine but are given 30 days to think of a sentence appropriate for their individual case.

Sentences suggested by Harmon included writing an essay or working with MSU student organizations on the problem of shoplifting.

Nancy Carr, Charlevoix freshman, waived a jail sentence by talking with her father, her minister and deterring some friends from shoplifting. Harmon said through these actions Miss Carr had rehabilitated herself.

Stanley R. Running, Davison freshman, was sentenced to four days in jail. Harmon said he did not accept an essay Running had written and Running elected to serve the jail sentence rather than take additional time to improve the essay.

Harmon initiated the new policy in an effort to discourage more people from shoplifting.

He said that the individual sentences determined by the shoplifter would probably be as effective as a jail sentence and would eliminate a criminal record.

"I'm trying to get some action in the community so people can see what's involved," Harmon said.

He also suggested that an advisory board consisting of members of the State News staff, ASMSU and the MSU administration be established.

"The board could review the shoplifting cases and recommend a penalty," he said. "I wouldn't be bound by the recommendation but it would help me in reaching a final sentence."

Avant-garde film package shown through Saturday

"Genesis II," a two-hour program of award-winning short films, will be shown today through Saturday by the Union Board.

The program is a collection of 16 films made by student and independent filmmakers. The films have been collected and edited by Genesis Films, Ltd., an organization which promotes the exposition of student films and makes possible the financing and recognition necessary for these filmmakers to expand their efforts.

Genesis Films, Ltd., was formed in May of 1968 as a subsidiary of Filmways, Inc., a major film and television production company.

The program features some experimental techniques in filmmaking as well as some social documentaries, dramatic screenplays and comedic styles of expression. The film festival prize-winners "Demonstration Movie I," "Project I," "The Tempest" and "Campus Christi" are part of the avant-garde package.

"Genesis II" was the special premiere attraction in the San Francisco Film Festival in October and has been shown throughout the country. It will be shown at 7 and 9:30 p.m. today in Conrad Hall Thursday at the Union Ballroom and Friday and Saturday in 108B Wells Hall.

Included are the views from Dr. Dana L. Farnsworth, director of health services at Harvard University, Dr. Tod H. Mikuriya, director of research at Everett A. Gladman Memorial Hospital, Oakland, Calif., and MSU students involved in drug research and evaluation.

EDUCATION COMMITTEE

Trustees named to group

By BARBARA PARNES
State News Staff Writer

MSU trustees Warren Huff, D-Plymouth, and Blanche Martin, D-East Lansing, have been named to the Democratic Party's Education Campaign Committee for 1970 headed by former President Adams.

The committee was announced last month by James J. McNeely, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, to identify qualified candidates for positions on Michigan's three elected university governing boards and the state board of education.

The committee will hold its first meeting at 11 a.m. Saturday in the Gold Room, Union.

In addition to encouraging qualified candidates to run, Adams' committee will determine the time availability of prospective candidates during the campaign, arrange and prepare campaign resources and organize and conduct a campaign workshop for educating candidates after their election.

"It is terribly important to get good people to run for these education jobs," Huff said. "They're not attractive jobs and they don't pay anything. It's important for the institutions to have good citizen representation."

In addition to the two MSU trustees, Adams has invited two trustees from the Wayne State University (WSU) and University of Michigan (U-M) governing boards to serve on the committee.

Also requested for the committee are former Detroit mayoral candidate Richard Austin and representatives from the Federation of Teachers, Michigan Education Assn., AFL-CIO, and the United Auto Workers.

Student representatives from the Young Democrats Organization on the MSU, WSU and U-M campuses have also been asked to work on the committee.

Murray Jackson, president of Wayne Community College, is vice chairman of the committee.

ASMSU to rule on slates

By JOHN BORGER
State News Staff Writer

The ASMSU Elections Commission will meet tonight to rule on slate designation of candidates running in the April 15 election. No time or place has yet been set for the meeting.

Cabinet president and elections commissioner Bob Grossfeld ruled March 15 that slates would not be designated on the ballots, although candidates could form slates for campaigning purposes. A slate is a group of people who operate as a unit similar to a party. Grossfeld said Tuesday that he does not think the commission will overturn his ruling.

Grossfeld serves as commission chairman. Other members are ASMSU chairman Bill Rustem and Fred Balinsky, chief justice of the All-University Student Judiciary.

Grossfeld's ruling resulted from the efforts of five off-campus students who wished to run as a slate. The five are Mike Austin, Grand Blanc freshman, Nancy Hack, Mount Kisco, N.Y., junior, Rick Kibbey, East Lansing junior, Lon Orenstein, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, and Calvin Vinson, Detroit sophomore.

"We want to run as a slate because we've got a functioning unit," Kibbey said Tuesday.

"Most of us wouldn't run if not with each other."

Kibbey said that the group represents many varied interests — from black students to married veterans — and that all five should be elected to make that representation truly useful.

"If we are a group, I don't see any reason not to be designated as such," he continued. "We're willing to be listed as individuals on the ballot, but we do want some designation as a slate."

Grossfeld based his decision on the lack of precedent in past elections and on the slight references to slates in the "ASMSU Spring Election Procedures for Spring 1970."

The single reference to slates in the election procedures is in Title III, section J.7, which states:

"In the event a slate is formed for off-campus districts for campaigning purposes, it must be registered with the Elections Commissioner, before it conducts any activity, or distribution of any information. The slate shall be subject to all campaign regulations herein provided."

The regulations further provide that expenditures for the slate may not exceed $70 per member of that slate, and that all "slate literature" must contain the names of all members of the slate.

Grossfeld interpreted the section to mean that slates were valid only for campaign purposes, and that the section did not provide for ballot designations of any sort.

Another factor in Grossfeld's decision was the possibly unfair advantage a unified group might have on a ballot full of independent candidates.

"In ASMSU elections it has been the rule that a ballot is cast on the merits of the individual and not his affiliations," Grossfeld wrote in his decision on slate designation.

"I'd like to see slates and parties become a big thing, with maybe a two or three party system developing," he said, "but it won't work now with the system we have," Grossfeld said. "Maybe the problem is that we have a system that won't work with parties, or maybe the problem is that we have a system that will work with parties but we just aren't doing it that way now," Grossfeld concluded.

1970 Census reports scheduled for mailing

By DELORES MAJOR
State News Staff Writer

This is the day to get your census form into the mail.

Jeanette St. Clair, District Manager of the 1970 Census of Population and Housing for the Lansing area, has asked residents to be sure to mail their census reports today.

Hot Sam's Pretzels
North of the fountains
Meridian Mall

She explains that this is because the official count of the U.S. population will be for April 1. It is important that every questionnaire list all persons living in the household on that day, that it does not list anyone who moved away or died a day or so before, but does include anyone who just moved in or a baby born on that day.

Mrs. St. Clair said that there had been a few complaints about the census.

"There has been some talk of invasion of privacy, but these objections soon fade when we explain to them the secrecy we're under," she said.

"We all take an oath never to reveal any of this information under the penalty of a $1,000 fine and two years in jail," Mrs. St. Clair said. "Not even the FBI can subpoena any of this information, its all very confidential — as confidential as your vote."

Mrs. St. Clair explained that there are really no new questions on the census, but, she added,

"some of them are asked a little differently."

Mrs. St. Clair said that she expects this census to be more complete than previous ones.

"This is the first time we've ever conducted a survey through the mail and the people are given more time to consider the questions and formulate their answers."

"It also gives them a chance to consult all family members for their answers," she said.

"It's more anonymous too, because there is no census taker there listening to your answers and the people will answer more accurately."

MECHE schedules conference at MSU

Mexican-American students on campus will sponsor a day-long Chicano conference Saturday with workshops and speakers to discuss Mexican-American problems.

The main speaker for the conference will be Corky Gonzales of Denver, Colo. Gonzales is a leader in the Chicano movement in the southwest. He will speak at 10:30 a.m. in Erickson Kiva.

The conference is being organized by MECHE, a group of MSU Mexican-American students.

RECEIVES REWARD

By ANN HODGE
State News Staff Writer

Norman Fishel, graduate student in chemistry, has been awarded by the department faculty for stopping an attempted theft of $455 worth of mercury in the Chemistry Bldg. on March 17.

Fishel was in a chemistry lab at 11:45 Tuesday morning during finals week when he noticed two young men who should not have been in that part of the building. He stopped them to question their presence in the lab and saw that one man had mercury in his pocket.

Fishel called the campus police and they took one of the men into custody. The other thief fled the scene. Neither of the men were MSU students.

Damage to equipment was estimated at $400.

Jack Kinsinger, chairman of the Chemistry Dept., said Fishel received written recognition and a money award from the department for stopping the theft.

He said the department is especially vulnerable to theft because of the chemicals in the building and has recently taken security precautions.

Last weekend Kinsinger hired a guard from the Dept. of Public Safety to watch the building 24 hours a day. The department has also installed red phones in the halls to provide a hot-line in case of emergency.

Kinsinger said the department has had more than two thefts of chemicals this year and has also had problems with coats being stolen from the halls.

"Mercury is a hot item on the open market, so thefts can be profitable," he said. "I don't really worry about our own students, it's this tremendous problem with transients."

Kinsinger added that chemistry departments and computer labs all around the country are starting to worry about security.

"To the best of my knowledge the university has no insurance against thefts of this type which means the department must use its own funds to replace stolen property," he said.

Cauley lists ideas for new position

John H. Cauley Jr. now heads the MSU Office of Volunteer Programs.

He replaces James R. Tanck who accepted a position with the national volunteer effort in Washington last June.

In his new position Cauley hopes to improve the quality of the volunteer programs for the community and the students. He emphasized the expansion of the training and orientation program.

Cauley said he intends to initiate a systematic appraisal and evaluation of everything that is done, establish a student advisory committee and make use of available expertise through a faculty-staff resource committee.

More than 40 activities direct the energies of some 9,500 volunteers in 40 activities. In all, some 11 cities and more than 50,000 citizens benefit from the program.

Cauley has served as coordinator of the Student Education Corps during the school year and was coordinator of the MSU Volunteer Bureau during the 1968-69 school year.

First employed by the university in 1961 as an accounting clerk, Miss Bailey had worked herself up to the position of Office and Credit Manager, a position that she held for over seven years.

Miss Bailey had lived in the Lansing area for 35 years and resided at 224 Milford Ave.

She was graduated from the Owosso Business Institute in 1927 and later attended Lansing Secretarial College.

Before coming to MSU, Miss Bailey had worked for the Pennsylvania Mutual Life Insurance Company, Brown Brothers and several other businesses as a bookkeeper.

She is survived by a nephew, Robert Bailey of Lansing and two grandnephews.

The railroad had no comment on the suit.

Bail-bond law little known, too cumbersome

By KENT MIDDLETON

Al was sitting restlessly in room 210 of the East Lansing Police Station. He was charged with driving with a suspended license. Bail was set at $150.

Al didn't have $150, and the court would not accept 10 per cent payment.

While he waited for his lawyer to arrive, he complained about the wages he was losing by being away from his job.

Bail, bond, or bail - bond is as old as the English law from which American law has grown. Freeing a defendant on bail before trial has always served a very practical purpose: it saves taxpayers the cost of feeding the accused. But more and more, freedom on bail is considered a basic right.

In Michigan, the accused has a legal right to be free on bail for all charges except murder and treason.

Posting bail is an easy way for a defendant to gain his freedom while awaiting trial . . . if he has the money.

The sole legal purpose of bail is to insure the return of the defendant to trial. The judge sets the amount of bail.

Jonathan E. Maire, associate municipal judge in East Lansing, says that there are three criteria to determine the amount of bail: the severity of the charge, the past record of the defendant and the apparent stability of the individual.

The Eighth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution states: "Excessive bail shall not be required . . ." But many judges have purposely set high bail to keep certain defendants in jail. Sometimes the judges are exercising an illegal punishment; sometimes they practice "preventive detention," setting an excessive bail to keep a "potentially violent" person in jail.

The fact that a defendant cannot post bail does not mean that it is "excessive." In recent years, it has been estimated that 50 per cent of the prisoners in Cook County Jail in Chicago were there because of failure to post bail. Similar estimates have been made for other cities.

A defendant's incarceration often compounds his problems. He loses wages and often his job. He is not able to search for witnesses nor consult freely with his lawyer to plan his defense.

The psychological upset of imprisonment may adversely affect the defendant's later appearance in court.

If a person does not have the cash to post bond, the most common alternative is to try to employ a professional bondsman. Bondsmen are usually listed in the yellow pages under "Bonds - Bail," and their names are often on file at police departments. There are two major bond companies in Lansing.

A bondsman, upon his arrival at the jail, does not pay cash for a defendant's release. The bondsman signs the bond, thus agreeing to pay in full if the defendant does not appear in court. The bondsman, therefore, has considerable incentive to encourage the defendant's appearance.

It is, in fact, the bondsman's responsibility to produce the defendant at trial. This responsibility is taken with no effort on the part of the court and no expense to the taxpayer. This explains, in part, why the institution of bondsmen is favored by many judges.

J. William Couch, a Lansing

bondsman, says that going to a bondsman is "like going to a bank to borrow money."

The fee, restricted by law, is 10 per cent of the bond. Sometimes credit arrangements are made between indigent defendants and a bondsman. But as in Cook County, jails in large cities house many defendants who could not agree on terms with the bondsman.

In many court cases, there is another alternative to going to the bondsman.

In 1966, a bail - bond law sponsored by Sen. Basil W. Brown, D-Highland Park, was passed in Michigan. One of its provisions allows a defendant who is charged with a traffic violation or misdemeanor to be released after paying only 10 per cent of the value of his bond.

Sen. Brown says that this provision has not worked well.

Some judges have purposely raised bonds high enough to force defendants to resort to the bondsman, he says.

Another problem seems to be that the provision is little known. For example, many of the MSU students arrested recently in connection with property damage in East Lansing were charged with misdemeanors, with bonds ranging from $50 to $1,000.

None of the defendants asked to pay only 10 per cent.

In some court cases, bail is not required. A defendant is released on his own promise to return, on "personal recognizance."

"An attorney, professor, banker or anyone who has strong ties with the community would probably be released on personal recognizance," says William K. Harmon, municipal judge in East Lansing.

More mobile defendants, he says, are often less likely to appear in court if released on personal recognizance. He says that many students never respond to charges of traffic violations.

Sen. Brown sees a trend towards more frequent release before trial on personal bond. He hopes that eventually the professional bondsman will no longer be in business.

MSU prof dies during sabbatical

A noted authority on Mexico and Latin America, Dr. Charles C. Cumberland, professor of history, died March 25 in Lima, Peru. He was 55.

Mr. Cumberland, a member of the MSU faculty for 15 years, began a six-month sabbatical leave Jan. 1 to work on a book on the 20th century Latin American revolution. His wife Emily and daughter Jane were accompanying him on the trip to Mexico and Latin America.

Word received in East Lansing is that Mr. Cumberland will be buried in Lima. Mr. Cumberland was honored last fall as the recipient of a Distinguished Alumnus Award from Texas A & I, in Kingsville, the highest award an alumnus can receive from that institution.

Mr. Cumberland was author of five books, more than 30 articles and a major contributor to encyclopedias.

He was born in Kingsville, Texas, May 6, 1914, and received the B.A. (1936) and the M.A. (1938) degrees from Texas A & I. He received his Ph.D. (1948) from the University of Texas in Austin.

In 1942 he joined the Office of Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs and was an asst. professor in the School of International Affairs at Princeton University from 1946 to 1948.

He was an asst. professor of history at Rutgers, 1948 to 1955, and then joined the MSU faculty as professor of history, sociology and anthropology. He was promoted to professor in 1960.

Lightfoot concert set for Monday

Internationally popular folksinger - composer Gordon Lightfoot, of Canada, will present "Expressions of Youth in Song and Verse," at 8 p.m. Monday in the Auditorium.

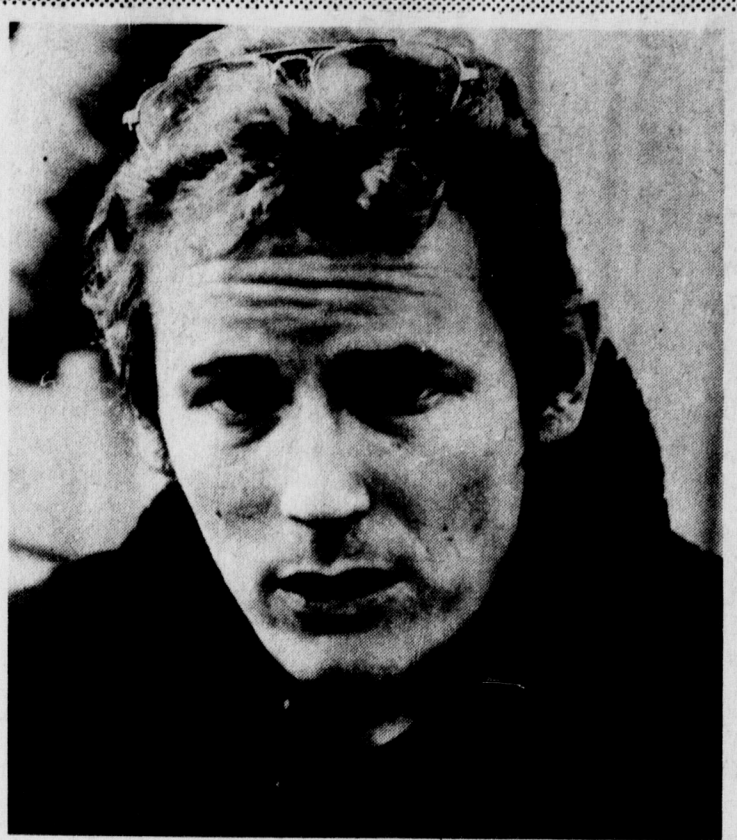

Lightfoot's appearance at MSU is sponsored by E-QUAL, the student organization to improve environmental quality, and ASMSU.

Best known for his compositions "Early Morning Rain," "Changes," and "For Loving Me," Lightfoot has written over 130 other songs. Most are plaints of a latter-day drifter.

Lightfoot appeared in Detroit's Ford Auditorium last fall to a nearly sellout crowd of 3,000, and earlier this month performed in the San Francisco Bay area at the Berkeley Community Theatre.

Proceeds of the concert will be used to help finance the April 22 Environmental Teach-In at MSU.

Tickets are available at the E-QUAL booth in the Union lobby.

Kresge displays paintings of MSU artist in residence

Paintings, drawings and prints by John S. De Martelly, a nationally recognized artist and an MSU artist in residence since 1943, will be exhibited in Kresge Art Center Gallery Friday through Sunday, April 26.

At this time, Paul Love, director of Kresge Gallery, said the university should acknowledge his services to innumerable students by presenting this retrospective exhibition.

The exhibition will include about 125 etchings, lithographs, paintings and drawings spanning his career as an artist from the 1920s to the present.

The show, "John De Martelly: Retrospective" will open at 7:30 p.m. Friday, with a public reception. There is no admission charge for the gallery.

De Martelly, a native of Philadelphia, attended Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts and the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

He then studied in Europe at the Academia delle Belle Arte in Florence, Italy, and then at the Royal College of Art and Design in London.

He earned enough money to return to the United States when one of his early etchings, "The Listener," was published in a British magazine, and three other etchings were purchased by the Victoria and Albert Museum.

Back in the United States, De Martelly accepted a teaching position at the Kansas City Art Institute where he was influenced by Thomas Hart Benton, an advocate of American art based on American themes.

During the 1940s, De Martelly illustrated a number of books for publishers including "Green Mansions" by W. H. Hudson, two children's books, "Sextant and Sails" and "Daniel Boone."

In 1943, he was invited to MSU as a visiting artist to teach lithography and drawing. For 17 years he acted as consultant in printmaking at the Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills, dividing his time between the two institutions.

On three occasions his prints were selected for reproduction in "Fifty Prints of the Year," and a print by him was selected for "A Treasury of American Prints."

Prints or paintings by De Martelly are also in collections of the Cranbrook Museum, the Carnegie Museum in Pittsburgh, the Whitney Museum of American Art, the Tel Aviv Museum in Israel, as well as in various private collections.

Art gifts expand MSU collection

Gifts of art works totaling nearly $60,000 were accepted for the permanent MSU art collection Friday by the board of trustees.

The works include paintings by contemporary artists, sculpture from Africa and a Chinese ceramic celadon plate. Several of the pieces were given by the artists.

The African sculpture was given by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schaeffer of New York, N.Y. The group of 23 pieces of Niger and Congo basic sculpture will be known as the Harry and Freda Schaeffer Collection. The total value is $19,200.

The paintings include works by Edwin Dickinson, Clement Greenberg, Paul Feeley, Helen Frankenthaler, Georges Mathieu, Jules Olitski, Ludwig Sander, Chaim Gross, Karl Knaths, Agnes Weinrich and Charles Melosh.

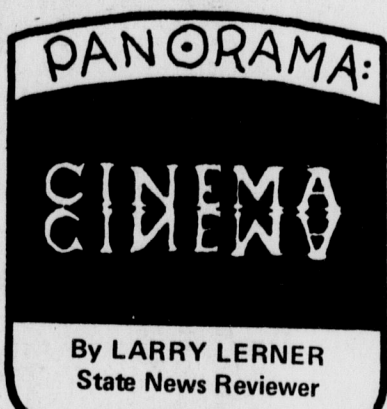

Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m. weekdays; 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays, and 2 to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

WOODSTOCK 'EXPERIENCE'

Film meets skeptics' challenge

There are many who would attempt to deride any film made about the Woodstock Festival. After all, how could one recapture all the ubiquitous acid-rock vibrations and the frenetic melodic folk numbers on film? Far more challenging, if not impossible, would be absorbing, on the screen, the sensations, feelings, intensified states of mind (including bad trips on LSD - adulterated or not) of the occupants of the Bethel / White Lake area.

But what Michael Wadleigh has done in creating the Woodstock movie may assuage the acerbity of the skeptics while supplying a mind - expanding and enriching experience to rock, soul and folk adherents.

By LARRY LERNER
State News Reviewer

The film now at an exclusive engagement at two New York theaters, provides a combination of visual effects (split-screen) of the performers on stage at Woodstock and a panorama of the residents of the capital of "Woodstock Nation" (see Abbie Hoffman, "Woodstock Nation"). The performances, which in some cases run 10-15 minutes on the film, are dispersed among film clips of the people arriving, interviews with Bethel residents and those at Woodstock, young people smoking marijuana, the rain-soaked individuals and the alluvial conditions which supposedly made Woodstock a "disaster area."

From start to finish there is no letting up. Richie Havens ushers in the three hour-plus movie with a performance that captivates the mind. One is totally attached to the Havens' angry, pulsating rhythm; the voyage for the film spectator is complete as his mind rides through and attempts to transcend every crescendo. When Havens finishes - sweat pouring out; his daskia drenched - the audience realizes two things: Richie has just put his entire being into his songs and the price of admission has instantly become meaningless.

As the movie flows by the spectators suddenly become aware that their attention is unwavering, and that in every act there are some musical aspects which are conducive to a heightened state of sensual attachment.

"The Village Voice" has reported bickering between Wadleigh and others involved in producing and distributing the film (editing, right up to the time of the World Premier March 28, was a major source of controversy). The film is immensely enjoyable, a sincere and successful portrayal of Woodstock the people and music and a film to be seen more than once.

Two closing comments: it is typical of the youthful culture explosion that in a span of a little more than six months three interrelated events occurred: Woodstock the festival,

'Anne of the thousand days' an unimaginative picture

"Anne of the Thousand Days" is a poor man's "Man For All Seasons," a beggar's "Becket," and a pauper's "Lion in Winter."

Like its admirable predecessors, "Anne" is a historical drama of kings and queens and a vivid age when passion and politics intermingled and a nation's destiny was determined by the whim of its monarch.

Unlike those previous films, "Anne" approaches its topic with trepidation and its passion with stately restraint.

"Anne of the Thousand Days" is the story of Henry VIII and his tormented desire for a male heir to his throne. Infatuated with young Anne Boleyn, Henry divorces his unproductive wife and elevates Anne to the throne on the strength of her hot, whispered promise to give him lusty sons. To Henry's remorse, Anne fails to give him a son and, consequently, Anne courts her reign in days - nearly 1,000 - and Henry seeks his next queen. Somehow the makers of

"Anne" have reduced her fascinating tale to an over-talky, overlong and rather hollow costume drama. Director Charles Jarrot and screenwriters John Hale and Bridget Boland retell her story with the excitement of a two hour church service, the sincerity of a politician's speech and the originality of a Xerox copier.

The filmmakers have borrowed plot phases and technical aspects of other historical epics with reckless abandon. By patterning after past successes, they assumed their film too, would be successful. The assumption proves all too false. They have produced a rambling and disjointed epic without significance to history or today.

But wait. What's this? Filling the stagey void and thrusting the expensive trappings to the background is an exquisite performance by Genevieve Bujold as Anne and a full blown, exciting one by Richard Burton as Henry.

Miss Bujold lends a fresh appearance and unfaltering conviction to her role, making Anne a fascinating portrait of a child's pursuit of power and a woman's catlike ferocity to maintain it. Hers is a magnificent performance of a woman youthful enough to beguile a king, confident enough to defy him and claw away at his masculinity and wily enough to bend both king and country to her will.

The depth and complexity of Miss Bujold's portrayal clarifies one of the great puzzles of Tudor history: Why did Henry go to such great lengths for one woman? Miss Bujold makes Anne infinitely worth the trouble.

Burton makes Henry the robust, egotistical, slightly boorish monarch that historians and filmmakers have long held him to be. With the glint of an eye, the motion of the hand or a dissatisfied grunt, Burton conveys the essence of a man long accustomed to getting his way and long notorious for using power and position as excuses for satisfying his various pleasures.

Burton, likewise, establishes the tormented side of an aging Henry, easily driven to rage by his inability to have a son. His is a fine performance and the most spirited acting he's done in years.

What a pity such quality performances are devalued by the plodding, unimaginative film that showcases them. Their acting, well felt and intense, does little more than give momentary animation and interest to what is otherwise an over-dressed pageant.

The film has received 10 Oscar nominations signifying that Hollywood is still unable to separate imitation from innovation. Only Burton and Miss Bujold deserve nominations.

If anyone wonders why the Hollywood system of filmmaking - big budgets, safe scripts and fancy sets - is obsolete, he need only see "Anne of the Thousand Days" to understand the system's demise.

His lady

Richard Burton, as Henry VIII, courts Genevieve Bujold, as Anne Boleyn, in this scene from "Anne of the Thousand Days," Charles Jarrot's static film version of the Maxwell Anderson play.

HOSPITALITY WEEKEND

Art accents gourmet meal

Gourmet dining amid the art treasures of Renaissance Italy will highlight the 1970 Hospitality Weekend (April 11-12) at MSU. Students majoring the School of Hotel, Restaurant and Institutional Management at MSU are sponsoring the weekend event. Activities include an Italian buffet luncheon, the annual honors convocation and an afternoon seminar with industry and education leaders.

A reception featuring the wines and cheeses of Italy will precede the seven-course gourmet Italian feast and evening of entertainment.

This annual event, planned and executed entirely by HRI students, serves as a showcase of hospitality skills which the students have acquired during classroom and on-the-job training.

All events are open to the public. Persons interested in attending the weekend program or any single event may purchase tickets in the HRI office in Eppley Center on campus.

The Hospitality Motor Inn, Lansing, will be the site of all activities, except the dinner which will be served in MSU's International Center.

For this special occasion, the Center's dining area will be decorated to resemble an art gallery.

Musicians will play famous Italian melodies during the evening.

ALMANACS, NOVELS

Library shows popular culture

By PAULA BRAY
State News Staff Writer

Do you have weak kidneys, unpure blood, a poor appetite or nerve problems? To cure these and all illnesses the 1920 Swamp-Root Almanac recommends using its patent medicine called Swamp-Root.

The almanac, along with old textbooks, spellers and popular novels, is in the popular culture collection in the Library.

Popular culture is the reading material of the non-elite, Ronald Wilkinson, bibliographer, said.

"In the library we are trying to build a small collection on what people read," he said. "We are interested in the various sorts of popular material people have read over the centuries."

In the 18th and 19th centuries the most common reading material aside from the Bible was the almanac, Wilkinson said. He said many people received their education through it.

"They contained information on many topics," he said. "An example is Franklin's theory of electricity. This was above the heads of most of the people reading it."

Every school child in the 19th century had a speller. The collection contains a well-worn copy of the American Spelling Book. Since the 154th edition was already published in 1855, its popularity is evident, Wilkinson said.

"In the 20th century lots of popular magazines developed which were deliberately aimed at people who were not intellectual. You can think of 'Readers' Digest' which is something like that."

The pulp magazines of the 20's, 30's and 40's covered a number of different subjects and had tremendous circulations, he said. In the collection are a number of these magazines printed on cheap wood pulp paper.

"All these materials are collected not just for preservation, but are chosen carefully for what they can contribute to actual classroom work and research going on at the University."

A number of students are studying the collection for English 983, a seminar in popular culture. One man is working with the theme of violence in popular fiction.

A woman is studying the image of the female in some 19th century popular novels. Social attitudes in detective stories are being analyzed by another student.

Russell B. Nye, professor of English, said his class is using the materials to receive an insight into the cultures present at various times and places.

"What people read is often a good index to what they think," he said. "And also what they read helps to shape what they think."

ACADEMIC ACHIEVEMENT

Top seniors recognized

Four graduating seniors have been honored for their outstanding academic achievement with cash awards from the MSU Board of Trustees.

In past years, cash awards honoring the top four seniors have been given only at the end of spring term in June. At their March meeting however, the trustees approved giving the awards to the top seniors each term.

Recipients of the newly authorized awards at last Sunday's winter term commencement were:

— Eleanor M. Adams, Hamilton, Ohio. Miss Adams earned the B.A. degree from Justin Morrill College, an MSU residential college, with a grade point average of 4.021. She received the top cash award for women of $200.

—Stephen C. Keifer, Papillion,

Nebraska. He earned the B.S. degree in mechanical engineering with a grade point average of 3.958. Keifer received the top cash award for men of $200.

—Eileen M. Ball, East Detroit. Miss Ball earned the B.A. degree in anthropology with a grade point average of 3.789.

'Project Relocation' helps West Side families move

By KATHY OAKLEY
State News Staff Writer

Moving into a different house can be quite a task when a person has no means of transportation and no money to hire a moving van.

But residents of Lansing have discovered a way around their moving problems with Project Relocation.

Project Relocation is a volunteer effort that began in October 1969. The idea for such a moving effort came from Mary Rose, an employee of the state Dept. of Education.

Mrs. Rose lived on the west side of Lansing in the area that is slated for the construction of the Capitol Development Complex.

As part of the city's plan for helping the West Side residents find new homes, Mrs. Rose was interviewed by Ronald L. Cowan, city relocation director.

In learning where and how she could move, Mrs. Rose learned of the problems that other West Side families were having in the 87 homes effected by the new capitol. She offered to help.

Her plan was to get a few volunteers from Lansing Community College (LCC) to help with some of the packing and babysitting.

Cowan and Mrs. Rose spoke with a small gathering of interested students at LCC, where Mrs. Rose is a part-time student.

David Grades was one of the students interested in the plan to help the West Side Community, and offered the one thing that Project Relocation did not have — a pickup truck.

Roughly 24 students from LCC and MSU work with the project. The volunteers donate their time and effort on weekends.

"Most of our people go to school, work or both," Mrs. Rose said. "It is impossible to help people that need to be moved during the week."

"Most of the West Side families that we move consist of retired couples, aged persons and mothers with small children. All of them are low income families that cannot afford the cost of moving," she said.

Families can have anywhere from six rooms of furnishings and belongings to practically nothing at all, Mrs. Rose said. "When we find families that need stoves, refrigerators or beds we pass the word along to other county agencies for help."

The project is registered with Ingham County as a volunteer effort. No one is charged for their services.

Mrs. Rose said she hopes to see Project Relocation continue after the relocation drive is over and possibly go into the area of urban renewal.

Provision ruled unconstitutional

DETROIT (UPI) — A federal judge ruled Monday that it is unconstitutional to limit candidates for public office to property owners.

Judge Ralph M. Freeman, chief judge of the U.S. District Court in Detroit, ruled that a provision of the Inkster City charter discriminates against those who own no property and thus violates the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

Freeman's ruling overturned, in effect, an opposite ruling made by the Michigan Supreme Court in 1969 and concurred with one made in 1967 by New York's Court of Appeals.

It would apply to about 70 or 80 communities in Michigan which have property owner qualifications for candidates for public office.

Except for Detroit, most school boards in the state require their members to own property.

Monday's ruling was made in a case brought by Rolland Stapleton, 26, an architectural estimator. Last February, he filed as a candidate for Inkster's April 6 city council primary.

Stapleton said he has lived in Inkster for 10 years. He is not a property owner, although his mother is.

When the City Clerk would not place his name on the ballot, Stapleton filed suit.

Freeman ordered Inkster to put Stapleton's name on the ballot.

MONDO CANE

"The movie draws its scenes, documentary style, from every available source of contemporary bestiality and human foible, and comments on them by shocking juxtaposition. It is filmed in all - too - living color. Fast pace, sophisticated commentary and occasional hilarity mitigate its lack of taste, but most of the film is openly calculated to raise eyebrows as well as gorges. It there is a message, it is that people are no damn good." — Time

Jack B. Kinsinger, chairman of the Dept. of Chemistry, has been named 1970 chairman of the American Chemical Society's Division of Polymer Chemistry. Polymer chemistry involves the joining together of chemical "units" to form new structures such as chain - molecules. Nylon, synthetic rubber and plastics are examples of materials made by polymerchemists.

Kinsinger is also an authority on the use of lasers in studies of liquid mixtures.

A member of the American Chemical Society since 1953, Dr. Kinsinger has served in the society's polymer division on the education committee and as divisional treasurer and vice-chairman.

NEWS summary

A capsule summary of the day's events from our wire services.

"As more and more of the economically and educationally disadvantaged segments of our society are drawn into the wider society, they become increasingly aware of the need to secure access to ... higher education."

— President Wharton

International News

Tuesday a major new earth shock rocked several villages near Gediz, Turkey, bringing more deaths and striking new fear in an area already devastated by a massive earthquake.

The new tremor, one in a series of lesser shocks which have continued with grim regularity since Saturday's massive quake, destroyed hundred more houses completing the weekend's destruction.

The U.S. State Dept. said Tuesday that agreement in principle has been reached with the Cambodian government for the release of the U.S. munitions ship Columbia Eagle.

State Dept. spokesman, Robert J. McCloskey, said the agreement so far contains no specific details except that the ship will be released, possibly under the supervision of a neutral observer.

The ship was hijacked two weeks ago, and taken into Cambodian waters by two seamen seeking asylum. Since then neither the captain nor the crew have been allowed to comment on the incident.

The Belgian police said Tuesday they arrested a Soviet citizen who had planned to set up a spy ring inside the Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Powers in Europe — (SHAPE).

Police said the man identified as a truck salesman, was captured as he tried to escape from a restaurant where he was trying to get information from a third party on Belgian and SHAPE military bases. When captured he had in his possession microfilming equipment and plans for a secret rendezvous.

Patriarch Athenagoras 1, the 84-year-old spiritual leader of the world's 250 million Eastern Orthodox Christians, is reported as seriously ill, and has been taken to an Austrian hospital for surgery.

The exact nature of the operation was not disclosed as the churchman was flown from his palace in Turkey.

Count Karl von Apreti, 63, West German ambassador to Guatemala, was kidnapped by terrorists shortly after noon Tuesday from his house in the southern part of the city.

He had left the embassy and had returned home when two cars intercepted his Mercedes Benz.

This was the third high level kidnapping in Guatemala this year. The U.S. ambassador and the Guatemalan foreign minister were held by guerrilla forces to guarantee the release of the terrorists.

Two years ago the U.S. ambassador was assassinated in what was apparently a frustrated kidnap attempt.

National News

The Senate's two leading Republicans have come out in favor of the nomination of Judge G. Harrold Carswell to the Supreme Court, making favorable passage likely. At present 41 senators are supporting Carswell, and 35 are on record as opposing the nomination.

Senators John J. Williams of Delaware and George D. Aiken of Vermont issued statements Tuesday praising Carswell's "high integrity."

Government and union negotiators strove through much of Tuesday to close the gap between what the administration says it can pay and what postal workers demand for keeping the mail services operating.

Although both parties in the negotiations have been sworn to secrecy, they readily admit that the pay issue is the basic question, with the other issues likely to fall into place after wages are settled.

The Maryland legislature enacted a bill Tuesday repealing all laws regulating abortions in the state and making it the most liberal state in the union as to abortions.

Under the new bill, not likely to be signed by Gov. Marvin Mandel, the abortion question becomes strictly a matter of conscience between the woman and her doctor. The bill also strikes down the residency requirement that formerly prevented out-of-state women from having abortions in the state.

Michigan News

Michigan smokers will begin paying an additional four cents per pack tax on cigarettes today, that state officials say will bring an additional $38 million into state coffers.

The tax measure, passed last month by the Senate, following earlier House approval, will be signed into law today by Gov. Milliken.

It was introduced as part of the governor's educational reform proposals last fall.

The legislation was bitterly opposed by Sen. Harry DeMaso, R-Battle Creek, who predicted widespread bootlegging from neighboring states.

Trustees hear report on CUA

By BARBARA PARNES
State News Staff Writer

In response to an investigation by trustee Clair White, D-Bay City, the MSU Board of Trustees heard a report on the Center for Urban Affairs (CUA) at their informal evening session Mar. 19.

Trustee White's investigation of the activities and finances of the CUA was revealed Mar. 2. White announced that he would not vote on the 1970-71 allocation for CUA until he "finds out exactly what they're doing."

A final report on CUA operations and finances was prepared for White by Roger Wilkinson, acting vice president for business and finance. Wilkinson said White has not yet picked up the report.

Board chairman Don Stevens, D-Okemos, said President Wharton had the CUA report put on the agenda of the informal session.

Despite White's interest in the CUA, he didn't raise any questions for Green following the Mar. 19 report to the trustees.

"The fact that Mr. White didn't pose any questions could be construed to mean he was pleased with the report," Green said Tuesday.

Green said he doesn't know if White will pursue the investigation further. White was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

"I don't know what to expect from Mr. White," he said. "Mr. White has not, to this date, asked me personally for any information on the Center for Urban Affairs. Since he has not contacted me directly about the center and its programs and expenditures, I don't know what to expect from him."

Green said that since the Center began, three major progress reports have been made to the trustees. The third report was a "direct response" to White's investigation, he noted.

Chairman Stevens said he was surprised White did not question Green about CUA activities.

"Maybe he's got all the answers he wanted," Stevens said.

In the report to the board, Green outlined the major activities of the Center in community action, curriculum development and research.

He described the Center's work in assisting the Lansing Model Cities program in developing a proposal establishing a municipal information system. He also noted the center's work developing a "model" day care program and writing a proposal for decentralization of the Detroit public schools in 1971.

In the area of curriculum development, Green described the CUA's plans to develop and support graduate and undergraduate programs in urban affairs and ethnic studies. In addition he said the center will work to provide an "urban and ethnic dimension" to other graduate programs.

CUA's work in research has included an evaluation of CUA tutorial programs for MSU undergraduates, a survey of minority graduate enrollment and an appraisal of disadvantaged students' needs by researchers teaching part time in Lansing's Allen Street School, the report said.

Trustees Kenneth Thompson, R-Grand Rapids; Blanche Martin, D-East Lansing and Stevens praised the CUA's operations.

Thompson told the trustees that MSU's urban affairs program was described in detail in a booklet entitled "College and the Black Student" surveying urban programs in four universities. Thompson noted that MSU is nationally recognized for efforts in urban affairs.

Trustee Warren Huff, D-Plymouth, said he is concerned with a trend toward "separate but equal" facilities and away from integration.

Board approves Oakland break

By MARILYN PATTERSON
State News Staff Writer

At its March meeting the board of trustees gave approval for its satellite campus, Oakland University, to be granted independence.

The independence must also be approved by the State Legislature and the State Board of Education before it becomes effective.

The trustees approved the independence 5-3 with a stipulation that university officers bring proposals on the legal and financial aspects of the separation to the board before the independence is effected. They voted for a July 1 separation date.

Trustees Don Stevens, D-Okemos; Blanche Martin, D-East Lansing; Kenneth Thompson, R-Grand Rapids; Stephen Nisbet, R-Fremont, and Frank Merriman, R-DeKerville, voted for the separation.

Warren Huff, D-Plymouth; Clair White, D-Bay City, and Frank Hartman, D-Flint, voted against.

Hartman argued in favor of a Jan. 1, 1971, separation date to allow the new governor to appoint the university's governing board.

The trustees also approved the establishment of a presidential commission on admissions and student body composition.

The 25-man commission, to be composed of faculty, students and alumni, will recommend to the president policies on admissions and the student mix of the University in the 1970's.

Among its considerations will be the proportion of undergraduates to graduate students, the proportion of resident to non-resident students, what the total enrollment of the university should be, what proportion of each entering class should be "high risk" students and the policy toward special groups such as minorities, veterans, athletes and children of alumni.

The State News, the student newspaper at Michigan State University, is published every class day during four school terms, plus Welcome Week edition in September. Subscription rate is $14 per year.

$150,000 TO MEDIA CENTER

Gifts, grants total over 1 million

Gifts and grants totaling $1,722,284.51 were accepted March 20 by the MSU Board of Trustees.

Of the total, $23,381.21 was designated for Oakland University in Rochester, MSU's affiliate, and more than $36,000 will be used for scholarship purposes at MSU.

The single largest grant, for $150,000, will be administered by C.F. Schuller of MSU's Instructional Media Center. The grant was accepted from the U.S. Office of Education and will be used for the coordination of a national system of instructional development institutes.

A grant of $100,540 was accepted from the Agency for International Development to continue a program of technical assistance in Balcarce, Argentina. The project involves improving agricultural productivity and raising rural living standards. The grant will be administered by Irving Wyeth, assistant to the dean for special projects, International Programs.

A study on young people's responses to the aggressive, violent message content of television will be funded by a grant for $96,000 from the National Institute of Mental Health. Director of the grant will be Dr. Bradley S. Greenberg, associate professor of communication.

The first phase of the communication project will involve interviews with children of two age groups, (9 and 10-year-olds, and 14- and 15-year-olds— with varying social backgrounds. The second phase will encompass interviews with producers, directors and writers of television programs in New York and Los Angeles.

Two grants were accepted from the Office of Water Resources Research, U.S. Department of Interior. A continuing grant of $100,000 will be used for research related to water resources. The second, in the amount of $73,604, will be used to develop methods for recognizing symptoms of eutrophication of water. Dr. R.C. Ball, director of the Institute of Water Research at MSU, will administer the grants.

The National Science Foundation (NSF) has awarded a grant of $78,000 to N.E. Tolbert, professor of biochemistry.

Tolbert will continue his research on photorespiration in plants, a process he has been working with for the past 10 years under NSF funding. The grant will aid his research over a two-year period.

Another grant from NSF, for $84,000, will be administered by J.H. Beaman, professor of botany and plant pathology, to aid in developing computer methods in plant identification for classroom instruction and associated research.

Gifts of art works totaling nearly $60,000 were accepted for the permanent art collection at MSU this March.

The works include paintings by contemporary artists, sculpture from Africa and a Chinese ceramic celadon plate.

ULREY HOUSE

Co-op residents
oust advisor

Ulrey House Women's Co-operative's proposal to eliminate the group's resident graduate adviser has been approved by the University.

The adviser was originally provided to help the co-op and its members during the formative stages, Ed Reuling, assistant to the dean of students, said.

"Many problems arise in a new group when you are developing a life style," he said. "I'm awfully glad they had an adviser for the first year."

Ulrey's adviser was a graduate student whose salary was paid by the University and whose room and board was paid by the house.

The decision to have this type of an adviser was made at the administrative level, by the vice-president for student affairs, as was the decision to eliminate the position, Reuling said.

The decision was made on the merits of the individual Ulrey House situation, he said.

It is true that the men's co-ops don't have advisers but this is not the reason the Ulrey House decision was made, he added.

Most of the duties, like liaison with the university and handling sickness and emergency, that the old adviser had will be taken over by the house president or the executive council.

"We will be having contact with the University and so will still be supervised housing," Marsha McNeil, Marshall junior and Ulrey House president, said.

Dorm food: plastic juice,
raw meat, bean compost

Bugs... trichinosis... compost. These are the images conjured by students recently asked to comment on food in residence halls.

A questionnaire on food tastes distributed to Abbot and Mason Hall residents provided the Mason - Abbot Resident Welfare Committee with a genuine insight into student opinion on cafeterias.

General comments included:

"You should make it easier to sneak a guest in."
"Find some cooks used to preparing food for humans."
"Things I don't like in my food: hairs, eggshells, little green bugs walking around. Sometimes the meats you serve are still moving."

Others expressed their ideas on breakfast: "Who gets up at 7:00? Even God waits until 7:30!"

"The orange juice tastes like plastic. Please cook the fried eggs done or turn them over; at 7:15 a runny egg white is nauseating."

Some pinpointed dislikes more specifically: "there is a limit to how much garbage you can put in vegetable soup and still call it vegetable soup and not garbage soup."

Pork Sandwich: "I fear trichinosis." Pizza:

"Don't empty the garbage can on top of it."

Beans: "It looks like compost."

Tuna Fish: "Kill the tuna first." Rice: "Who'd ya buy the rice from, the North Vietnamese?"

Copyright may still grill radios

By JOHN JUEL
State News Staff Writer

Fifty-three years ago the U.S. Supreme Court, in the case of Victor Herbert vs. Shanley's Restaurant, decided that background music was part of the setting for which the public was paying, and as such, was subject to copyright and royalty laws.

Because of this decision, the Holden Hall grill went without radio music most of winter term.

The problem started when an article in the Nov. 3 issue of "Washington Report" explaining the U.S. copyright law and its effect on musical entertainment in public establishments was brought to the attention of University officials.

The article pointed out that the use of music — live, mechanical or broadcast — in a public establishment was considered "performance for profit" under federal law. This means that each time a song is played, a royalty must be paid the holder of the performance rights to the music.

The playing of radio music in university grills would, on the surface, fall under this definition.

The use of radio music was suspended temporarily in some grills, while others ignored the issue. The question remains: do university grills fall under the jurisdiction of the copyright law?

"We aren't really sure," Peter J. Eckel, south complex area manager, said. "Some people say they do, some say they don't."

George E. Fritz, east complex area manager, took a more positive stand:

"Being a non-profit, state-supported institution, I'm sure we don't fall under the law," Fritz said.

As of last week, Holden residents were once again enjoying FM and AM music in their grill. But the question of background music in University facilities remains unsettled.

In the case of recorded and broadcast music, performance rights are generally owned by one of the performing arts societies who serve as agents for the producers of the music.

The two most widely known of these societies are the American Society of Composers, Artists and Publishers (ASCAP) and Broadcast Music Inc. (BMI).

They negotiate contracts with public establishments who use their works.

If the owner of a public place using their works for background music does not sign a contract, he can be prosecuted. ASCAP, the largest of the performing arts societies annually files several hundred suits for infringement of copyright.

Minimum statutory damage, if the owner of the establishment loses the court case, is a hefty $250 per song played. Generally, however, if the owner signs a contract with the society, he is absolved of liability.

There are exceptions to the law, Eckel explained, such as juke boxes and commercial pipe-in-music. MSU dormitories use MUZAK, a brand of pipe-in-music, in their dining halls, he said. The University pays a fee to MUZAK, who in turn negotiates the performance rights.

"Radio music is a different situation," Eckel said. "If we fall under the law, we'll certainly comply with it. But until one of the performing arts societies files a suit and proves in court we're liable, we will continue to play radio music in the grills as we have always done."

Eckel said he had heard of colleges in Ohio who were paying the royalty fee. If it is proved that MSU is liable under the law, MSU will probably drop radio music and stick with MUZAK and juke boxes rather than pay the fee, he said.

"I've referred the situation to the University attorney, but haven't heard any further word as yet," Fritz said. "I don't think it's considered a very serious problem, at least not until somebody files a suit."

Fritz said that juke boxes would solve the problem in most of the residence hall grills. In some halls, however, where the grill is close to classrooms, the juke box music is too loud.

As long as the students want AM and FM music in the grills they'll have it," Fritz said. We'll take our chances.

"Of course," he added, smiling, "if we get zapped for $250 a song, room and board might go up a little."

STAR PATTERNS

Abrams shows seasons

A journey through the four seasons is the new program now being offered at Abrams Planetarium.

"Sun, Stars and Seasons" shows how the varying seasons change our life patterns, as the first flowers of spring bloom, growing crops mature in the summer sun, autumn colors offset the golden harvests, and the ground is again covered with a blanket of fresh, white snow.

From a vantage point in space, one is able to see how the earth travels about the sun. The seasonal displays of star patterns shows how the stars are more accurately associated with the seasons than the weather conditions of environmental changes we see about us.

A special exhibit on loan from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration includes an explanation of the Apollo flight to the moon, a one-third scale model of the command module, a one-third scale model of the lunar module and the life-support system used by the astronauts.

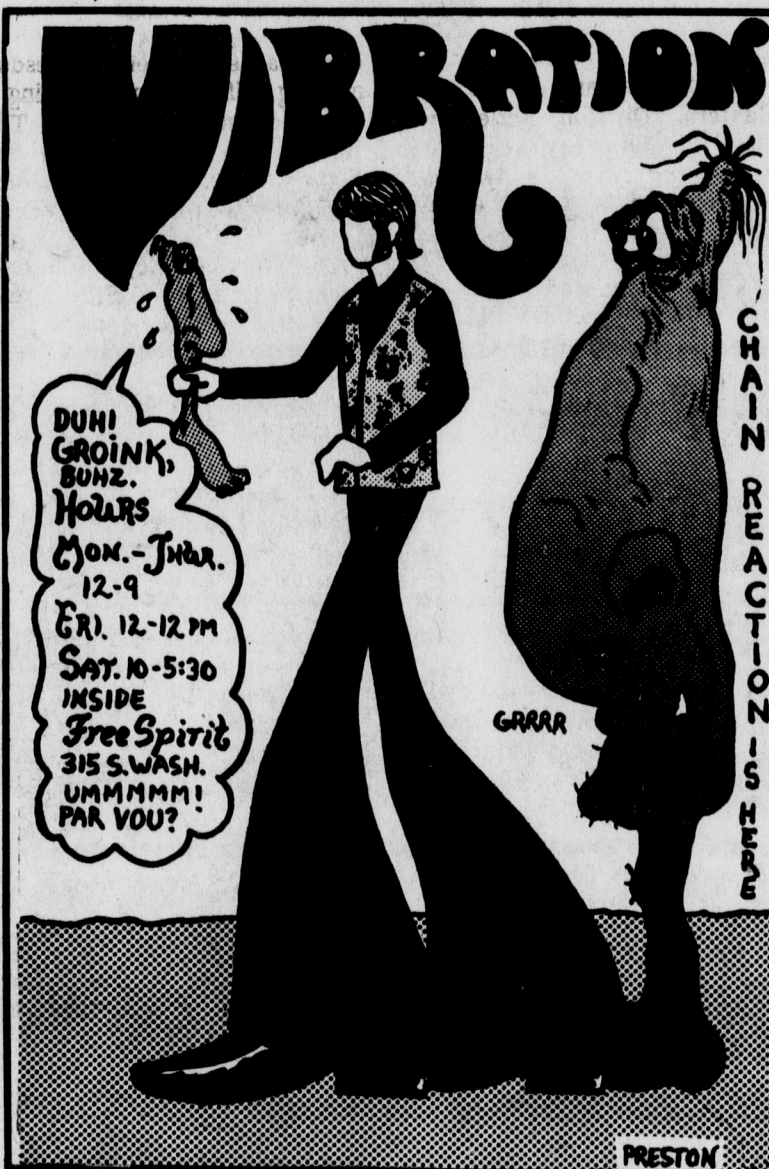

Public programs are shown at 8 p.m. Friday, 2:30 and 4 p.m. Saturday, and 2:30 and 4 p.m. Sunday, through April 26.

NCAA judo championships here Saturday

MSU's judo team will host 45 schools and over 200 contestants for the championship meet of the National Collegiate Judo Assn. (NCJA) Saturday, April 4 in the Sports Arena of the Men's IM Bldg. It is the first time in the nine-year history of the NCJA that MSU has sponsored the meet.

The meet will begin at 11 a.m. Admission is 50 cents for students, and $1.00 for the general public.

Judo coach Jongoon "Jay" Kim feels that the most formidable opponent is San Jose State, which has captured the championship in all eight previous meets.

"San Jose is likely to repeat its past performances," Kim said, "unless MSU or Florida State comes up to beat them. We might do it, providing the other teams do as well as we do and deprive San Jose of several individual championships."

MSU's entries in the six weight divisions are: Wing Wha Lum, 139; Rich Marlette, 154; Tom Howard, 164; Scott Sylvester, 176; Dan Watson, 205; and Bruce Wilson, open weight. Lum, Marlette, and Howard are Big Ten champions in their weight divisions, and Howard placed third in last year's national competition.

The six will face several national champions in Saturday's contest. Kim named as the strongest opponents:

At 139, Michael Ogata (defending national champion), Rochester Institute of Technology; Dean Tower, Ohio State University; and Gary Okimoto, Colorado State University.

At 154, defending national champion Tom Masterson, St. Petersburg College.

At 165, Louis Gonzalez, San Jose State.

At 176, Tom Cullen, Cuyahoga; Dick Okimoto, Colorado State; and John Sufie, University of Illinois - Chicago Circle.

At 205, Douglas Graham, San Jose State; and Doug Fortune, Oakland Community College. Graham competed in the 1969 World Judo Championship and "might be very ahead of collegiate level," Kim said.

In the open weight category, defending champion William Miller, Florida State; Mack Kusumoto, San Jose State; and Dean Sedgwick, Illinois Institute of Technology.

Last year's winner, who also won the Overall Championship, Keith Pickard from San Jose State has some formidable competitors vying to replace him. Among them are Bill Ott from Cumberland College, who was the Mid-western Collegiate Overall Champion, Dean Sedgwick from Illinois Institute of Technology, and Y Tom Korzeniowski from the University of Michigan.

Teams receive 10 points for first place in an individual category, seven for second place, five for third place, and three for fourth place.

2 FROSH LOOKING GOOD

Spartan netters 1-2 in spring trip

By JEFF ELLIOTT
State News Sports Editor

The MSU tennis team suffered its second setback in three matches Monday when they dropped a close 5-4 decision to Pan American at Edinburg, Texas. Tuesday the squad met Corpus Christi before traveling to Trinity today, Texas Thursday and winding up their seven game training trip with a match against Texas A & M on Friday.

Fred Vetter, a freshman from Elm Grove, Wisconsin, has looked good for the Spartans and is the only undefeated player after three matches. Vetter picked up one of MSU's two points in their 7-2 loss in the opening match of the trip against Oklahoma City University when he topped Tod Overbark, 4-6, 6-5, and 6-4. Vetter also won both of his singles matches against Baylor and Pan American.

Coach Stan Drobac said both Vetter and frosh DeArmond Briggs have looked impressive in their first taste of varsity competition.

"They've surprised me," Drobac said after the Pan American match. "They've both looked real good and should help us considerably this season."

Briggs was edged in the first match of the trip by Art Rojan of Oklahoma, 6-5 and 6-5. The former state high school doubles player from Rock Island Illinois won both of the next two matches however to post a 2-1 mark. Briggs is currently playing at the number 4 singles spot while Vetter is at number 5.

In their second match of the trip against Baylor, the Spartans took five of the six singles matches, and two of three doubles. All of their victories were in straight sets.

Singles victors were Mike

Madura, Jim Symington, Briggs, Vetter and Rick Ferman.

Briggs and Vetter combined to take one doubles match, and Andy Vollweiler and Ferman joined forces to win another.

In the match against Pan American, the Spartans took the last three singles matches, but only one doubles. Briggs, Vetter and Ferman won in the nos. 4, 5 and 6 spots while the doubles combination of Ferman and Vollweiler was also victorious.

Drobac said the trip has been successful thus far despite the 1-2 record.

"We've had real good weather to play in and condition us," he commented. "All of the guys are working hard. Tom Gray, our number one singles player has faced some tough competition so far but is getting better with each match."

The Spartans will receive a boost today when Dusty Rhoads becomes eligible. Rhoads, a former California state high school champion, is a transfer from UCLA and was ineligible until MSU started classes. Drobac plans on using Rhoads as the no. 2 or 3 singles spot and teaming him with Vetter in doubles.

The regular season for the Spartan netters opens April 10 with a match against Ohio State at Columbus.

An NCAA trophy to follow?

MSU Judo coach Jay Kim and MSU Athletic Director Biggie Munn proudly display the trophy the Spartan judo team won in the Big 10 meet held recently. MSU will host the NCAA Judo Championships this weekend in the IM Sports Arena.

Tight NBA playoff series resumes tonight in Philly

Close series have been the rule rather than the exception as eight NBA teams compete in the quarter-final games of the league's championship series.

The Milwaukee - Philadelphia series resumes tonight in Philadelphia with the Bucks holding a 2-1 lead. After a pair of closely-contested games in Madison, Wis. that were split, the Bucks crushed the 76ers 156-120 Monday night in Philadelphia. Milwaukee rolled to a 40-14 lead after one quarter and opened up a 54-point margin in the final quarter before Bucks' Coach Larry Costello cleared his bench. Lew Alcindor led Milwaukee with 33 points and 17 rebounds before leaving the game in the third quarter.

After tonight's game the series returns to Madison for a Friday night contest.

The fourth game of the other Eastern Division series was played Tuesday night in Baltimore. The New York Knicks held a 2-1 series lead entering the game. The Knicks won close decisions in the first two games, but were routed by a second half Bullets' blitz on national TV Sunday.

That series will resume Thursday night in New York and if a sixth game is necessary, it will be played before the national TV cameras on Sunday in Baltimore.

Atlanta and Chicago met in the latter's arena Tuesday evening with Atlanta holding a 2-0 lead entering the game. The Hawks were easy victors in the first two games in Atlanta, but may have trouble in the "Windy City."

The Bulls and Hawks will meet again in Chicago on Friday and, if necessary, the series will return to Atlanta for a fifth game.

Phoenix and Los Angeles are deadlocked at one game each in their best-of-seven series after the Suns upset the Lakers Sunday in Los Angeles.

The two teams will meet Thursday and Saturday in Phoenix. The fifth game will be back in Los Angeles on April 5.

NHL pressure rises: one team to get axe

With Montreal, Detroit, and New York in the playoff pressure cooker, the tension packed NHL race resumes action tonight.

Chicago and Boston, tied for the league lead with 95 points, are the only teams assured a playoff spot at the end of the season. New York, who led the league at mid-season, Detroit, who has failed to make the playoffs for the past two years, and Montreal, who has won the Stanley Cup for the past three years, all must continue winning if they have hopes of joining Boston and Chicago in quest of the Cup.

Of the three teams still struggling for the final two berths, Detroit has the most favorable schedule. The Wings have a game in hand on Montreal and New York, though they close the season with two games against the Rangers. Montreal plays its final three games against the league leaders (1 with Boston and 2 with Chicago), while the Rangers travel to Toronto before closing the year with the crucial Detroit series.

Johnson a champ, grapplers 2nd in NCAA

By GARY WALKOWICZ
Executive Sports Editor

Despite a series of narrow defeats in the semi-finals which possibly cost his team the title, MSU Wrestling Coach Grady Peninger was pleased with the Spartans' performance as they finished second in the NCAA Championships this past weekend at Evanston, Ill.

Paced by Greg Johnson's 118-pound crown, the Spartans scored 84 points to edge out Oregon State (80 points) and Oklahoma State (79 points) for the runner-up spot. Iowa State's ace Dan Gable was beaten in a dramatic upset in the 142 final, but the Cyclones still had three individual champs as they successfully defended their team crown with a 99 point effort.

"I was very proud of our squad," Peninger said. "We didn't have one man that quit even once. It was a great team effort all the way."

MSU entered the tourney minus two of their regulars, Ron Ouellet and Gary Bissell, who were sidelined with injuries. Mark Malley replaced Ouellet at 150 and Lon Hicks took over for Bissell at 126.

The Spartans' chances for a second NCAA title looked bright when they sent six wrestlers into the semi-final round, but only Johnson emerged with a victory. Jack Zindel and Vic Mittelberg lost overtime decisions, while Tom Milkovich and Gerald Malecek each lost by one point in the regulation eight minutes. Only Keith Lowrance was not beaten by a narrow margin as he was pinned by Larry Owings of Washington, who was Gable's conquerer.

"I thought we were going to win it all when we placed those six wrestlers in the semi-finals," Peninger said. "We lost five of those matches, but four of them were very debatable decisions that could easily have gone the other way."

"I was extremely proud of the way the guys came back in their consolation matches. Everyone expected them to die after all those heart-breaking losses in the semis, but they came back and fought as hard as ever. It was the greatest salvage job in the world."

Six Spartans reached the consolation finals (the five semi-final losers plus Pat Karslake) and three of them won to gain third place (Lowrance, Karslake and Zindel), while the three losers (Mittelberg, Malecek and Milkovich) garnered fourth place finishes.

Malley won two matches before losing to Oklahoma's Mike Grant, the eventual 150 champ, in the quarter-finals. Rick Radman won one match before losing to Utah's Charles Shepard, the fifth place man at 158, in a preliminary round.

Only Hicks failed to win a match, falling to Berg of Washington in his first match.

Johnson's championship came after just a half-season of varsity competition. The Lansing product was sidelined by injuries for the first year - and a half of varsity eligibility.

His Spartan debut against Purdue on Jan. 23 was a successful one, but he lost to Oklahoma State's Ray Stapp the next day, 7-2. That was the only loss Johnson was to suffer and his championship victory came over Stapp on a referee's decision. Each wrestler gained an escape in the regulation time and the three-minute overtime also ended in a 1-1 deadlock. Johnson was the much more aggressive wrestler throughout the match and this eventually earned him the referee's nod.

"Stapp received a stalling warning in the match," Peninger said. "Johnson did all the work and certainly deserved the victory. It was a great win for Greg and a great one for the team, since it clinched second place for us."

Johnson defeated Oregon's John Miller, last year's winner at 115, in a semi-final match. Johnson outscored Miller, 4-1, in the second period to take control of the match and eventually won by a 7-4 count. His other three victories in the tourney came on decisions.

Freshman Milkovich, who had lost only to teammate Mike Ellis entering the tourney, was nipped 5-4 on a last-second takedown to Oklahoma State's Darrell Keller in a semi-final match at 134. Keller, who was ineligible when MSU met OSU in a dual meet this season, went on to take the 134 title with an easy 12-2 win over Iowa's Joe Carstensen. Milkovich advanced to the consolation finals, but lost to Phil Parker of Iowa State, 6-1.

Lowrance recorded four victories on his way toward an anticipated battle with Gable in the 142 final, but Owings cut him short with that pin in 3:29 in their semi-final match. Owings, who handed Gable his first loss, after 181 high school and college wins, in the ISU's star's final collegiate match, was named the tourney's top wrestler for his victory. Lowrance rebounded from that pin to gain third place with a 1-0 victory over Wayne Bright of Old Dominion.

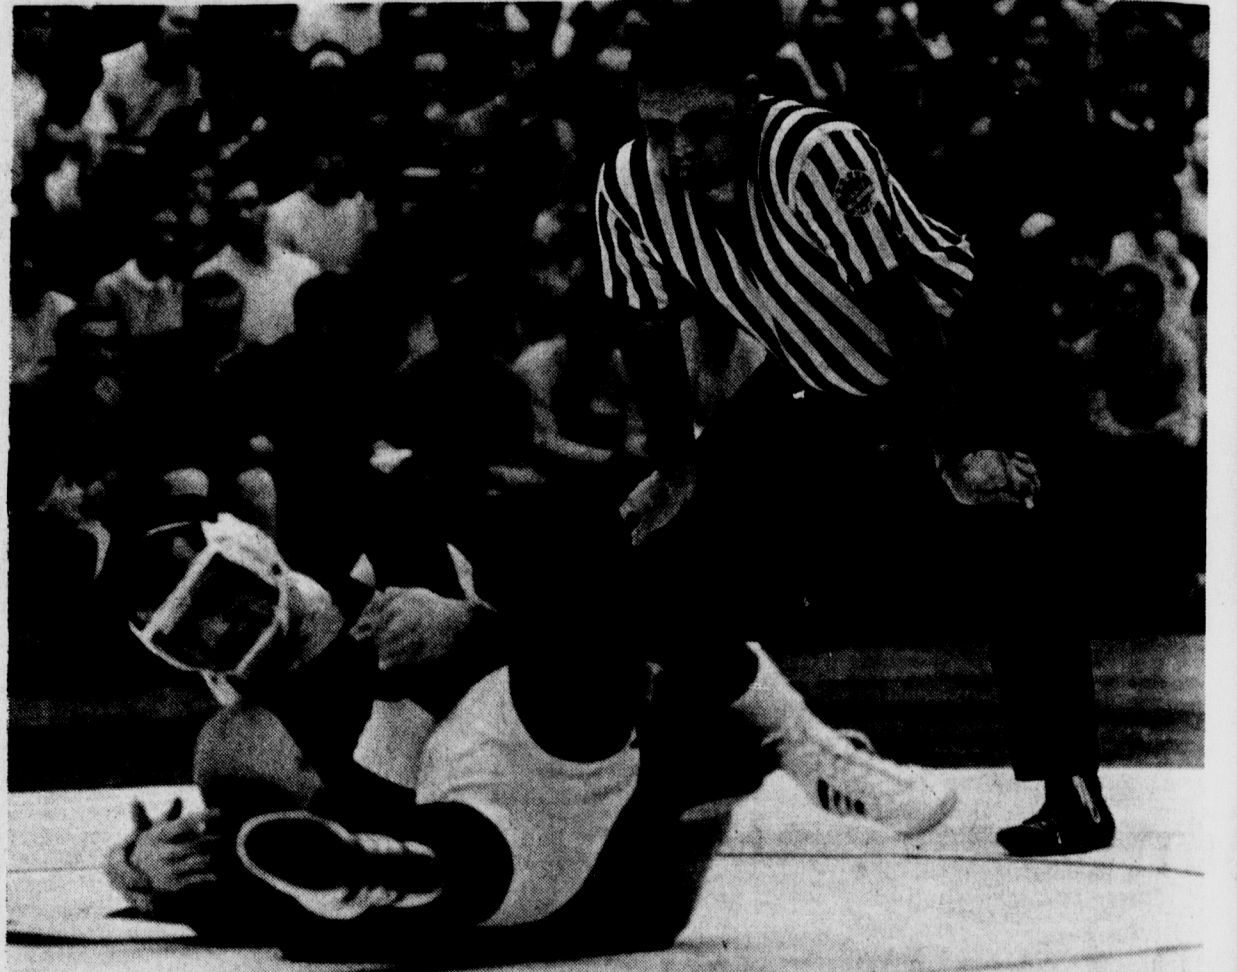

Zindel and Oklahoma State's Geoff Baum were generally considered the two best 190-pound wrestlers in the country, but Iowa State's Ben Peterson, who upset Baum in the Big Eight championships, was given the No. 1 seed in this event. Baum and Zindel were seeded second and third and thus placed in the same bracket.

They met in the semi-finals and Baum repeated a narrow earlier win. The score was tied 1-1 after regulation time, but Baum came on strong to win in overtime, 8-2. Baum easily won his championship match, while Zindel met Peterson for third place. Neither wrestler scored a point in regulation time or overtime, but Zindel won the bitterly-contested match on a referee's decision.

Heavyweight Mittelberg racked up three wins, one of them a pin, before being knocked off by Greg Wojciechowski of Toledo (please turn to page 19)

The best in his class

MSU's Greg Johnson suffered his only defeat of the year to Oklahoma State's Ray Stapp, who is underneath Johnson in the above picture. Johnson, however, won where it counted, as he defeated Stapp in the NCAA meet last week to win the 118 pound crown.

IU repeats as swim champs; 'S' swimmers finish 14th

By JOHN MASON
State News Sports Writer

What had been built up as possibly the best NCAA Championship Swim meet for many years never materialized

March 26-28 at Indiana University. Although there were many world and American record holders entered, few good times were recorded.

Indiana retained the title for the third straight year but the only team that really swam well was the Trojans from the University of Southern California. Using almost entirely freestylers, the Trojan tankers gave the Hoosiers a run for the title before succumbing 332 to 235. Stanford was third with 206 points followed by UCLA, 185, and Univ. of Calif. at Long Beach, 126. MSU finished fourteenth with 43 points.

Indiana's win came as a result of their depth as highly touted Mark Spitz and Gary Hall both went down to defeat. Spitz, the defending champion in the 500 and 200 freestylers and the 100 yard butterfly passed up the 500 to swim the 50 free. Tennessee's Dave Edgar beat him to the wall in the 50, 20.93 to 21.15, while Michigan's Juan Bello defeated the Hoosier sophomore in the 200. Spitz did however manage to regain his 100 butterfly title. Freshman Hall, who holds the world record in the 200 and 400 meter individual medleys and the 200 meter backstroke, also only managed to win one event, the 400 yard individual medley.

The big performer of the meet was UCLA's Mike Burton, who sat out of college competition last year, garnered three individual titles, the 500 and 1500 freestyle and the 200 butterfly.

MSU swimmers didn't fare as well as was hoped. A combination of the altitude and rough water in the pool made their's as well as other times slow.

Co-captain Mike Kalmbach was the Spartans top finisher, placing fifth in the 100 freestyle in 47.02 and sixth in the 50 freestyle with a 21.37. Dick Crittenden was 12th in the 50.

Spartan divers made a better showing then in the Big Ten meet as senior Jim Henderson placed seventh on the 3 meter board and eighth on the 1 meter. Tom Cramer was 12th on the 3 meter.

Freshman Ken Winfield, who had a bout with the flu right before the meet, finished 11th in the 200 yard butterfly, and the medley relay of Alan Dilley, Jeff Lanini, Winfield and Kalmbach was 12th.

Former Spartan Head coach Charles McCaffree received a special citation from the College Swimming Coaches Assn. of America at the CSCA awards banquet before the opening of the meet.

McCaffree, now director of men's swimming programs at MSU, was honored for his 33 years - 28 at MSU - in collegiate coaching.

Women swimmers finish fourth, break two records in nationals

MSU's women's swimming team made good use of the spring break. Competing in the first annual National Intercollegiate Swimming and Diving Championships for Women, March 19-21, the Spartan women finished fourth among the 60 schools competing.

Held at Illinois State University, Normal, Ill. the championship meet was held in order to give more college women the opportunity for competition at the national level. 270 women took advantage of the three day meet for that purpose.

The Spartans, coached by Joan Barch, took two first places and two seconds on their way to the fourth place finish. Arizona State finished first followed by Westchester State and Colorado State.

MSU finished ahead of noted swimming powers Santa Clara, Lake Forest, Indiana and Michigan. The Spartans went into the meet undefeated. They had recorded victories in the Michigan and the Midwest Championships along with a first place finish in the International Invitational Championships in Ontario, Canada.

Linda Gustavson and Marilyn Corson paced the Spartans. Both had record setting victories and also second and third place finishes.

Miss Gustavson set a record in the 50 yd. freestyle with a time of 25.49. She also had a second in the 100 yd. freestyle and a third in the 200 yd. freestyle.

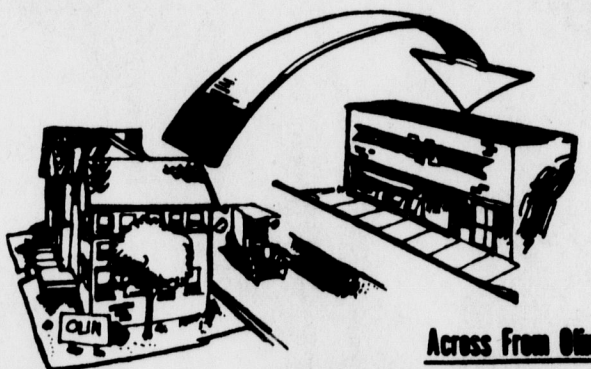

The record in the 100 yd. butterfly fell to Miss Corson who had a 1:01.61 time. She finished second in the 100 yd. individual medley and third in the 200 individual medley.

Other swimmers for MSU were Mary Waldie, Martha Coward, Sue Culver, Pam Kruse, Ellen Harrison, Jan Reeder, Linda Ebbert and Cindy Stimson. The 200 yd. freestyle relay team of Gustavson, Kruse, Harrison and Reeder captured a third place in the meet.

Simpson only sophomore on Helms team

MSU's high-scoring Ralph Simpson was the only sophomore named to the 36-player Helms Athletic Foundation All-America basketball squad, it was announced Tuesday.

The honor squad, which is chosen after all the college competition has been completed, lists 12 players each at center, forward and guard. Simpson was picked in the backcourt. The Foundation does not list the players as first, second and third team choices plus honorable mention, as most of the other honor squads are picked. On the Helms team all 36 players are regarded as equal in talent. LSU's Pistol Pete Maravich, who shattered every college scoring record in his three-year career, and UCLA's brilliant forward Sidney Wicks were named as co-players of the year by the Foundation.

Other players from the Midwest on the Helms team are: Austin Carr of Notre Dame, Dean Meminger of Marquette, Rick Mount of Purdue, Dave Sorenson of Ohio State, John Johnson of Iowa and Rudy Tomjanovich of Michigan. Fifteen juniors and 20 seniors in addition to Simpson comprised the squad.

TIES 2 WORLD MARKS

Herb leads MSU to 7th in NCAA

By DON KOPRIVA
State News Sports Writer

The MSU trackmen ended their indoor campaign in fine style March 13-14 in Detroit as they totaled 12 points, most ever by an MSU squad, for a seventh place finish in the sixth annual NCAA meet.

Herb Washington, Flint sophomore, continued his winning ways at 60 yards as he topped a classy sprint field with a 5.9 to equal the world indoor mark.

Washington, who also won Big Ten and MSU Relays titles during the season, captured all three preliminary heats and in his semi-final race, just minutes before his record sprint, he tied the old NCAA record with 6.0.

The Spartan speedster, who earned all-America honors for the second year, came back March 21 to tie another world mark, this time at 50 yards, in the Highlanders Games in Hamilton, Ont. His time of 5.1 tied the mark he had originally clocked while a Flint Central senior.

Two other Spartans earned all-America acclaim and added points to the Spartan cause. John Mock followed Wisconsin's Mark Winzenried across the line in the half mile as he took third in 1:52.9.

Defending 600-yard champ Bill Wehrwein fell to third as Notre Dame's Rick Wohlhuter and Murray State's Tommy Turner sneaked by the Big Ten champ in the 1-2 spots but Wehrwein still gained all-America honors for the fourth time in his Spartan career.

Kansas, bolstered by a 1-2-3 sweep in the shot put for the second straight year, successfully defended its title with 27 1/2 points. Villanova had 26 in second, followed by Harvard with 15. BYU with 14 1/2 and Wisconsin and Tennessee with 14.

The Spartans are presently working outside and waiting for the snow to clear as they prepare for the outdoor season's first meet, a triangular April 11 against Purdue and Bradley at Lafayette.

Wrestling

in the semi-finals. The pair were deadlocked at 4-4 after eight minutes of wrestling and the Toledo star prevailed, 5-1, in overtime. Wojciechowski was easy prey for Oregon State's Jess Lewis, the defending heavyweight champ, in the championship match, losing 9-2. Mittelberg advanced to the consolation final, losing to Wayne Karney of Portland State, 3-2, in that match.

With only 10 varsity matches under his belt, Gerald Malecek was impressive in advancing to the 177 semi-finals. In his second preliminary match, Malecek met Northwestern's Bill Paus, who had beaten him for the Big Ten title three weeks earlier. This time Malecek prevailed, winning 5-3. Jim Crumley of Oregon State edged Malecek, 8-7, in the semi-finals. The Spartan sophomore finished fourth, losing the consolation title match, 6-3, to Ben Cooper of Southern Illinois.

Senior Karslake won a pair of 5-1 decisions before losing to Iowa's Phil Henning, 9-7, in the quarter-finals. Henning reached the finals and lost to Iowa State's Chuck Jean, while Karslake moved into the consolation bracket and took all those matches to win third place. The Spartan's 167 wrestler won the consolation championship match by a 7-2 count over John Cassia of Idaho State.

AT PROVING GROUND

Preps aim at Relays titles

By DON KOPRIVA
State News Sports Writer

The Spartan-State Journal Relays will be run off at Jenison Fieldhouse for the seventh time this weekend, but perhaps more important than the meet itself is the possible end result on athletic scholarship.

For many high school athletes running here, it is a chance for them to prove themselves to the many college coaches who flock to large high school meets for a look at possible college prospects.

The prospects who have gone from this meet into the limelight of college track have been many. MSU's own Herb Washington, a 60-yard dash winner here in 1967 and 1968, is perhaps the best example.

John Mock and Bill Wehrwein, MSU's two other all-America runners from the just completed indoor campaign, ran here in their high school days at Mt. Clemens and Roseville.

Eastern Michigan's Bill Tipton, the nation's top prep hurdler in 1967, made his mark over the Jenison Fieldhouse hurdles, and long time Herb Washington rival, Gene Brown, now a sprint star at Michigan, ran in this meet as a Battle Creek Central sprinter.

All the Michigan residents on the MSU track team ran in this meet and the same might well be said for runners at Michigan, Western Michigan and Eastern.

"This meet has developed into a fine proving ground," Spartan assistant coach and Relays meet director Jim Gibbard said. "College coaches know that Michigan has produced many fine prospects in past years and that they'll all be at the meet here."

This weekend will certainly be no exception, and the meet's top runner figures to be Kevin Reabe of Drayton Plaines Waterford-Kettering. The lanky senior won the state Class A 880-yard title last spring with a record 1:52.7 and has already bettered that on a relay this year.

At last week's Huron Relays, Reabe made up 150 yards on the anchor leg of a relay to win the 12 yards. He was timed in 1:52.3. But he will run the mile here as his school's lone entrant, and the race has boiled down to a duel between Reabe and Doug

Lacrossers open season against Michigan Saturday

The MSU lacrosse team will begin play of its first varsity season this Saturday, when the team hosts the University of Michigan. The game will begin at 2 p.m., and will be played at Spartan Stadium.

The Spartans will play five home games this season, in addition to its four road matches. Three of the five games at home will be played at Spartan Stadium, with the remaining two played at Old College Field. Trips to Ohio State, Michigan, Denison, and Notre Dame highlight the road agenda.

Coach Robert "Turf" Kauffman will field a team of 34 players, including three goalkeepers, fifteen midfielders, six attackers, and ten defensemen.

Rick Bays, a senior midfielder, and Dan Denov, a senior attacker, will serve as co-captains of the team. Bill Hermann, a senior from Detroit Austin, has been a two year regular in the Spartan goal.

"The whole team is starting from scratch," Kauffman said. "We've never beaten a varsity team in regular season play, so we've got nowhere to go but up. We need game experience more than anything else."

But Kauffman is looking toward the younger players, hoping to give MSU a winning season initially. The team numbers twelve underclassmen, including eight sophomores and four freshmen.

The Spartans will play a home and home series with U-M, with single matches against Notre Dame and the Chicago Lacrosse Club. The remaining five games will be played as part of the Midwestern Lacrosse Assn. The team is on a one-year varsity trial.

'S' batsmen belt Irish, stand 7-1-1 in Florida

Versatile Spartan athlete

MSU's smallest versatile athlete has to be Gary Boyce. Boyce, a junior from St. Johns, first made his name known as a placekicker for the football team. Currently Boyce is among the top hitters on the baseball squad during their spring training trip.

By MIKE MANLEY
State News Sports Writer

John Rohde and Ron Pruitt unloaded early three-run homers Tuesday as the MSU baseball team belted Notre Dame, 11-3, in the second round of the Hurricane Classic Tournament in Miami.

The win moved the Spartans' Florida record to 7-1-1, 2-0 in the second phase of the tournament. In the first - half, the Spartans finished with a 5-1-1 mark but had to settle for a co-championship as they were beaten 8-0 in the final game to Ohio State.

Left-hander Rich Krueger picked up his second win of the season against the Irish as he scattered nine hits over the first seven innings. Freshman Elliot Moore hurled the final inning for the Spartans.

MSU put the game away in the first two innings, flexing its hitting muscles for eight runs off Irish hurlers Jim Phelps and Bob Jaeger. Rohde connected for his homer to highlight a five-run Spartan first inning. Pruitt, who has been the teams top hitter thus far, followed with his three-run blast in the following frame. First-baseman Rob Ellis also homered in the fourth.

Pruitt paced the 13-hit attack with his home run, a single and four runs batted in. Ellis had a triple and a single in addition to his round - tripper and scored three runs. Catcher Phil Rashead had three singles in three trips before giving way to Bailey Oliver in the fifth inning. Larry Rettenmud, the second baseman, chipped in with two hits.

Coach Danny Lithwhier's squad will go after its third straight win today when it meets Miami. Phil Fulton will be on the mound for the Spartans, who are seeking the second - half tournament championship.

MSU opened its Florida exhibition season on March 22 with a 6-5 win over Florida State where Tim Bograkovs, fresh off the MSU basketball court, singled in two runs in sixth inning to provide the winning margin. Freshman Larry Ike, another basketball player, got credit for the win.

The Spartans then tied Ohio State, 3-3, in a game called after eight innings due to a time limit. MSU followed that with a 10-6 pasting of Connecticut with Pruitt and Gary Boyce each collecting three hits. Kirk Maas, nephew of former Detroit Tiger pitcher Duke Maas, allowed just two earned runs to pick up the win.

MSU bats continued to boom the following day as the Spartans bombed Rutgers, 10-1. Pruitt again led the attack with three hits including a two - run homer. Ike picked up his second win, scattering three hits over six innings.

With Fulton pitching near - perfect pitching - one hit in eight innings - MSU beat Penn State 4-0 the following day to bolster its bid for the championship. Fulton struck out 11 men and Ellis belted three hits including a two - run homer. But the hitting and pitching deserted the Spartans in the championship game with Ohio State blasting them 8-0.

In the second - half of the tournament, this time with Ohio State out of the tourney field, MSU opened its bid with a 3-2 victory over Colgate behind the solid pitching of Ike, a 6-foot-4 left - hander who is at MSU on a basketball scholarship after starring at Grand Rapids Ottawa Hills. Ike picked up his third win of the spring trip as he went the distance giving up seven hits and striking out eight Colgate batters.

MSU won the game in the sixth inning when Ellis doubled and scored on a single by Rashead to put the Spartans in front 2-1. Rashead moved to third base and then, on an attempted squeeze play that failed at first, he scored when losing pitcher Jim Decker dropped the throw at home.

Colgate scored once in the top of the ninth off Ike, but the Spartan lefty stopped them from any further scoring to get MSU off to a winning start in the second phase of the tournament.

The Spartans will play four more games in Florida before packing their bags, putting away the suntan lotion and heading back to the frigid north country to open the regular season with Ball State at Muncie, Ind. on April 11.

session of the legislature," he said. "Not only do I endorse and support this measure, but I will actively work for its enactment in this session."

"Most importantly it will permit direct citizen involvement and will produce an increasing consciousness and conscience in every citizen of this state concerning the protection and preservation of his environment."

High court

held in an opinion by Justice John Marshall Harlan, grandfather of the present Justice Harlan, that the due process of law set forth in the Constitution requires the presence of a defendant at his own trial.

Brennan, quoting Abraham Lincoln, said this nation cannot long endure if it falls short on the guarantees of liberty, justice and equality. But he said it also cannot endure "if we allow our precious heritage of ordered liberty to be ripped apart amid the sound and fury of our time."

The justice, who is generally considered a liberal, said the Constitutional right of an accused man to be present at his trial must be considered in this context.

Douglas, who has an even stronger liberal reputation, said in a separate opinion that he agrees with the court that "a criminal trial, in the constitutional sense, cannot take place where the courtroom is in pedlam and either the accused or the judge is hurling epithets at the other."

However, Douglas said Allen apparently had a diseased mind and his behavior should not be the vehicle for this kind of a decision.

Allen was paroled last April. He is awaiting trial in New Orleans on another robbery charge.

H. Reed Harris, a Chicago lawyer specializing in real estate, who was appointed to represent him, called the decision "a step backward."

In a telephone interview, Harris said the ruling means that a defendant who is denied his rights decides to protest he will be removed and convicted in absentia. Harris said one acceptable alternative would be the use of televised trials, now approved in two states.

Judge Hoffman, reached by a reporter, said: "I have not seen the opinion so I will not comment on it. Even after I have read it, I doubt I would say anything since the case involved as not mine and I have always made it a practice not to comment on decisions of other courts, especially those of the highest court in the land."

BIRTH CONTROL

By KEN KRELL
Editorial Editor

Board considers Olin policy change

If the MSU Board of Trustees passes a report on the contraceptive policies of the MSU Health Center at their April meeting, students will officially be able to obtain birth control information and devices regardless of their age or marital status.

A committee formed by Dr. Andrew Hunt, chairman of the executive committee of the MSU Health Center submitted the report to Milton Dickerson, dean of students, last Thursday.

The report recommends that "contraceptive services be provided to the entire University community within the current framework of the health center."

Also recommended is additional space and personnel to counsel students "with sexual concerns," including medical and psychiatric social workers and supporting staff.

The health center has been operating without a specific policy regarding birth control, and Dr. Arnold Werner, assistant professor of psychiatry and chairman of the committee, said the new policy would mean that birth control counseling and dispensation would be "an open and accepted part of health care, rather than surrounded by an air of uncertainty, which could lead to a lower standard."

Dr. James Feurig, director of the health center, said that following trustee approval, the prescribing of contraceptives could follow almost immediately, with dispensing of contraceptives by July 1, 1970.

Several health center doctors are already prescribing contraceptives, but on an individual basis, and without a specific policy regarding birth control.

Dr. Feurig added that before a counseling service could be effectively implemented additional staff will be needed, particularly medical and psychiatric social workers. That will require additional funding.

Dickerson said Tuesday he "doubted" that any additional funding was necessary for the program, nor that additional personnel will be needed.

The most important thing needed now, according to Dr. Feurig, is administrative approval. He said that "funding is not a roadblock. The key to go ahead (by the administration) is needed, after which the other programs can unfold. We need administrative approval so that what we're doing has as good a coverage as possible."

A primary concern in implementing the program is the legal implications of dispensing contraceptives to minors, without regard to marital status, but a supplementary report prepared on the subject by a lawyer notes that "no criminal action has ever been initiated, or is likely to be."

The memorandum of law also notes however, that the "center and/or the University might be joined in an action against the acting physician."

Wharton says

disadvantaged segments of society are drawn into the wider society, the fact that a college diploma is a major key to equal economic opportunity is recognized.

Wharton's speech was the first of three he will deliver on the subject of the "pluralistic university."

He said the three characteristics of the pluralistic university are universal access to higher education, participation in the transformation of society and the resolution of its problems and a concern for human values.

He will speak tonight on transformation of society and resolution of its problems.

Wharton said the greatest demand for open admissions, or universal access to higher education, is coming from the black community.

"However, we will shortly see an equal, if not greater, pressure not only from other minority groups — the Mexican-Americans, American Indians, Puerto Ricans — but from similarly disadvantaged white Americans who comprise the largest of these groups," he predicted.

Until recently access to higher education was rooted in elitist standards, "many of which were highly correlated with the socio-economic indicators of high status and negatively correlated with those of low status," he said.

He said that now "prestigious universities amply supported by public funds" are being forced into a greater and greater acceptance of an egalitarian principal of education.

The adult population will begin to demand that the University provide them an opportunity to "retool" or "catch up" with the latest developments in a field, he said. "The explosion in knowledge is in fact creating in our society a silently enforced obsolescence for those with previous education," Wharton said.

This life long educational process must also provide educational experiences which will allow adults to cope with the accelerating pace of our society, he said.

It is critical to recognize these pressures now and to prepare to meet the emerging needs now, Wharton said.

High book theft rate expected in spring

By CAROL CORRIERE
State News Staff Writer

Spring, the carefree season of love and romance, is also a prime time for book thefts. Almost half of all books reported stolen on campus are reported during spring term, Detective Gilbert H. Skinner of the Dept. of Public Safety said.

Book thefts are a more serious problem than most people think they are, he said. Last year 223 book thefts at a total value of $2,505 were reported. Forty-four arrests were made, 20 of them during spring term, and $410 worth of books were recovered.

The net loss from reported book thefts last year was $2,095, Skinner said. More than that was probably stolen but not reported.

"I wouldn't doubt that only 10 per cent of all book thefts were reported," he said.

Many people believe that if their books are stolen there is no hope of getting them back and consequently don't report the theft, he said. But books can be recovered if the theft is promptly reported.

Students can prevent thefts and help recover stolen books by marking them, reporting thefts promptly and watching their books when they leave them somewhere.

It is best to mark a book immediately after buying it, on a page other than the first, Skinner said. Thieves always check the first page for a name and often will cut the page out before they resell the book.

Book thefts should be reported immediately, Skinner said.

"If you wait two days to report it, your book is gone," he added.

If you have to leave your books, it is best to leave them in a place near you where you can see them, he said.

"Any time you leave books where you can't watch them there's a good chance they'll be stolen," he said.

"Very seldom are books taken out of rooms - most are taken out of book racks," he added.

Because book theft is such a problem, the penalties are relatively stiff.

On his first offense a person is usually charged with simple larceny, a misdemeanor for which he may get up to 90 days in jail and a $100 fine, Skinner said.

East Lansing judges usually give a sentence of four days in jail and a $100 fine.

Second offenses, which are rare, are prosecuted as felonies for which the penalties are much higher, he said.

"Book theft seems like a ridiculous problem to most people but it isn't when you're a student," he said.
