WARRNS AGAINST SLOWDOWN

Milliken urges passage of abortion and tax bills

By SHARON TEMPLETON
State News Staff Writer

Governor William G. Milliken urged the Michigan Legislature Tuesday to move "fast and hard" in the passage of the abortion reform and school reorganization bills during this session.

The next 30 days are a crucial period in the future of the state," Milliken said at a press conference. "It is of the utmost importance that we have legislative action on a number of very vital issues that are before the legislature."

The governor warned against the possibility of a slowdown in passage of the bills.

"We need the abortion reform bill -- and need it now," he said. "And I strongly urge that enough momentum and energy has been aroused to prevent it from getting bogged down."

Senate Bill 297, the primary abortion bill, would legalize abortion in Michigan by a licensed physician in a hospital.

Sponsored by Sens. Gilbert E. B. R-Ann Arbor, and John E. B. R-Ann Arbor, the bill was last June, reconsidered and referred to the Senate Health, Social Services and Retirement Committee for study. Hearings have been held on the bill this year and it is to be reported out again this year.

The governor also urged House action on the bills this week on the local school reorganization bills and added that he expects all education bills will be promptly passed out of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Other legislation the governor emphasized was the Anderson Environmental Quality Bill, the Minimum Wage Bill and the Tierney Bill to limit the sale of explosives.

Milliken pledged his full efforts in getting the legislature to move, "regardless of the fact that this is an election year."

He said he was greatly encouraged by the passage of the cigarette tax, increased unemployment compensation benefits and the Citizens Grand Jury Bill last session, and wants the legislature to move with equal speed this session.

Earlier Tuesday a group of citizens calling themselves the Shiawassee County Citizens Council for Better Government presented the governor with petitions asking for a complete investigation of the county's judicial system.

Milliken met with the group's leader, James Turner, in his office and then came out into the lobby to receive the petitions with over 7,000 signatures. He shook several hands and promised the group that he would consider the petitions carefully "and take whatever action is appropriate."

At the press conference, the governor said he could make no recommendations concerning the judicial system in Shiawassee County until he had carefully reviewed the petitions. Informed sources at the Capitol say the governor has no authority to create an investigative committee as requested by the group.

Following the press conference, Milliken introduced the visiting premier of Belize, George Price, to a joint session of the legislature. Belize was formerly known as British Honduras.

Premier Price, in a speech to the legislature, emphasized the need for "traditional friendship and mutual assistance" between the governments and people of the United States and Belize.

"We have much in common, we the legislatures of Michigan and Belize," the premier said. "Both of us are dedicated to

As this threat to the mission faded, the space agency also denied Australian reports that a threatened strike at two tracking stations there might interfere with the launch.

"Officials of the Australian Department of Supply, who direct operations at Australian stations, say they know of no threat of a walkout," NASA said.

Technicians at the Tidbinbilla and Honeysuckle Creek tracking stations had been reported considering a strike over dismissal of 36 staff members in an economy wave. NASA said meetings were in progress and jobs had been found for a

Academic Council OKs McKee report points

The Academic Council concluded its deliberations on the McKee report on Student Participation in Academic Government, Tuesday, and approved the recommendations included in the document.

The next step will be the incorporation of the recommendations into the faculty by-laws.

for confirmation and 12 publicly undecided.

Four senators are expected to be absent. Tacticians on both sides mentioned only a few of the uncommitted as being really unknown quantities. Presumably the others have indicated privately what they will do.

The key votes appeared to be those of Democrat J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas and Republicans Marlow W. Cook of Kentucky

This acceptance of the McKee report means that 30 student representatives will be seated, with vote, on the Academic Council, with up to 10 students representing minority students.

Reports on the various means of elections for these students are due December 1, 1970. This means that students may hold seats on the council as early as winter term, 1971.

Recommendations from the ad hoc committee on Specific Minority Representation in Academic Governance, were also accepted by the council.

This committee, headed by Hideya Kumata, professor of communications submitted three specific recommendations in their report to the council:

- that the inclusion of a person within a specific minority group was to be left to self definition.
- that the selection of minority student representatives to the council be worked out by the minority students themselves with the help of the Office of Black Affairs and its component Third World Student Organization.
- that the committee on Academic Governance review the process of minority student representation in three years and report its assessment to the Academic Council.

In addition, the council approved recommendation 26 of the McKee report that insures equal faculty - student representation on the newly created University Committee on Academic Governance. Membership on this committee will consist of representatives from each of the colleges in the University.

The council further approved recommendations that renamed the University Student Affairs Committee the University Faculty - Student Affairs Committee.

The committee is to be composed of five undergraduate students appointed by ASMSU, four graduate students, at least three minority student representatives and and Margaret Chase Smith of Maine.

Fulbright deserted Southern ranks to vote for sending the nomination back to committee. Cook voted against the motion but has indicated that he is troubled by the nomination.

Except for her vote against recommitment, Mrs. Smith has given no hint of her stand.

The other uncommitteds are: Democrats Howard W. Cannon of Nevada, Ralph Yarborough of Texas, Quentin N. Burdick of North Dakota, and Mansfield; Republicans Winston L. Prouty of Vermont, Charles H. Percy of Illinois, J. Caleb Boggs of Delaware, Charles Mathias of Maryland and Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania.

The question of whether President Nixon will become the first chief executive in this century -- and the fourth in history -- to lose more than one battle over a Supreme Court nominee or whether Carswell will fill a year - old vacancy on the nine - man court will be answered about 1 p.m. EST after three hours of final debate.

The administration spokesman said opponents simply are trying to block nomination of a Southern conservative and failed to prove any of their charges against Carswell.

June trial set for teens who painted Wells

By ANN HODGE
State News Staff Writer

Campus police arrested an MSU coed and a male Lansing resident 2 a.m. Tuesday for spray painting slogans on the north wing of Wells Hall. Damage was estimated at $375.

Susan Selby, 18 - year - old Birmingham freshman, and Eric Jackson, 17, of 324 S. Hayford St., were taken into custody at the Ingham County Jail after they were caught spraying "Free Bobby" on the exterior of Wells in red and black paint.

The Ingham County Prosecutors Office Tuesday afternoon issued a felony warrant for malicious destruction. Miss Selby and Jackson were arraigned at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday in East Lansing Municipal Court where bond was set at $100 each. They were released on a recognizance bond and trial was scheduled for June 22.

"Free Bobby" and other slogans in black and red paint were also discovered on Kedzie, Bessey and Conrad Halls early Tuesday morning.

Capt. Adam Zautaut of the MSU Dept. of Public Safety said Tuesday's damage brings the total estimate of campus building destruction since July 1 to $30,000. Over

Immunity satisfactory; blast-off plans continue

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) -- Blood tests revealed Tuesday that the Apollo 13 astronauts have a satisfactory immunity to German measles, and plans went ahead for their scheduled Saturday blastoff toward the rugged highlands of the moon.

A report from the astronauts' physician, Dr. Charles A. Berry at Houston's Manned Spacecraft Center said astronaut James A. Lovell Jr.'s immunity level was adequate.

That of Thomas K. Mattingly II and Fred W. Haise Jr., he said, is "satisfactory."

The countdown, the space agency said, "will proceed as scheduled" toward the 2:13 p.m. EST blast - off with the prime crew.

Berry said if symptoms develop, they will large number of the technicians fired.

Berry said blood samples taken at T minus 30 days showed no evidence of immunity to German measles, or rubella, in Haise and Mattingly. But the latest samples showed "an apparently satisfactory level of immunity."

The increase in immunity, the physician said, probably resulted from "a subclinical case of rubella," but could indicate an increasing immunity level before development of symptoms of the disease.

The astronauts will be kept under observation, he said, and the blood tests for antibodies will be repeated Wednesday.

Marijuana found dangerous

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Preliminary findings on marijuana are that it does not necessarily lead to heroin addiction but is a dangerous drug and some strong preparations might produce damage in some chronic users.

Preliminary findings by the National Institute of Mental Health after three years of study were included in a report released by the House Select Committee on Crime.

The committee concluded marijuana is a minimum $850 million - a year business that is leading increasing numbers of young Americans into tragic lives -- but that present stiff penalties are threatening respect for law in general and should be reduced.

It suggested a maximum one - week jail sentence for first - offense marijuana possession, during which the violator would be required to take a drug abuse education course.

"The growing drug culture," said Chairman Claude Pepper, D-Fla., "is rapidly undermining respect for law and doing serious damage to the ability of the criminal justice system to safeguard the lives and property of the American people."

The committee's 120-page report said this is largely because while marijuana helped boost all drug arrests 322 per cent from 1960 to 1968 -- when 167,177 people were arrested including 43,200 under 18 and 6,243 under 15, judges jailed few of the young people because the penalties are unduly harsh.

The committee staff computed, on the basis of raw government estimates, that six million people used marijuana in 1969 -- 600,000 habitual users spending at least $20 a week for a total $624 million, 2.4 million spending at least $100 during the year for $250 million and three million experimenters.

The paper said the institute hopes to have definitive answers on long - term marijuana effects in two years.

For now, it said marijuana is known to be an intoxicant and like any intoxicant can affect mental judgment and physical coordination.

Can it entice users to criminal acts?

"Marijuana users tend to be passive under the influence of the drug rather than aggressive," was the answer. "Any drug which loosens self - control may be contributory to commission of criminal acts."

Apollo endangered by lack of immunity

By DIANE PETRYK
State News Staff Writer

If any of the three Apollo 13 astronauts show low immunity to German measles the flight now scheduled for Saturday will probably have to be postponed, according to Dr. James S. Feurig, director of Olin Health Center.

The astronauts have all been recently exposed to the disease, and none of them can remember ever having had it.

Medical experts took blood serum tests Tuesday to determine their level of immunity.

These tests take 24 hours, Feurig said, so it is likely the results will be known today.

"It would be exceedingly rare for adult males not to show a high immunity," Feurig said, "because they have had opportunity for considerable exposure during their lives."

"It is almost impossible to go through school these days and not be exposed, so if none of the men have ever had the disease, chances are they acquired immunity through their exposure."

Feurig also said the astronauts could have had German measles at some time without ever knowing it.

"I'm sure that if it works out that even one of them shows a low immunity the flight will be scrubbed for a period of observation," Feurig said. The next possible launch date for Apollo 13 is May 9.

"Since they are closely teamed," he added, "and we have never shot a back-up crew into space, the whole mission could be delayed."

Feurig noted the danger of sending an astronaut into space who might be in the incubation stage of German measles, which is normally 7 to 21 days — ample time to develop the disease during the flight.

Part of the danger, he said, is that German measles symptoms can be similar to those of a head cold. The hazards of re-entry into the earth's atmosphere with sinus and ear congestion are well known.

The possibility that an astronaut with the disease could contaminate the moon is a possibility, Feurig admitted, but highly unlikely since the astronauts are living in a closed environment inside their suits.

Previous experience with colds in weightless conditions has shown that they do not seem worse in space than anywhere else, Feurig added.

Table talk

At home when you finish a meal, you bus your own dishes from the table. At MSU someone was paid to do this for you until spring term when budget problems forced West Circle cafeterias to discontinue the service. Now Campbell students are asked to do the home bit and the response has been quite negative.

Campbell coeds protest bussing

Residents of Campbell Hall staged a boycott Monday night protesting a new West Circle management policy requiring them to bus their own tables.

The policy has been in effect since the beginning of spring term.

"We came back from spring break and a sign was posted telling us to bus our own tables," Helene Waldroop, Detroit junior and president of Campbell Hall, said. "No other explanation was given."

The policy was instituted due to financial difficulties, according to Miss Helen L. Widick, asst. manager of residence halls. West Circle was chosen to try out the policy because of residence hall size.

The policy was conceived during finals week winter term when hall councils were no longer meeting, so there was no opportunity to inform the councils, Miss Widick said.

The policy was discussed at a Campbell council meeting this term and sent to the House Relations Committee.

The residents' main objection is that they were not informed of the new policy before it went into effect. There is also concern about the number of jobs and working hours now available to student employees.

"We went through the proper channels," Pat Belleville, Ithica sophomore and chairman of the House Relations Committee, said. "If the boycott is not successful, we will discuss it with Mr. Thorburn."

Lyle A. Thorburn, residence halls manager, will be at Campbell Hall for dinner tonight.

Only four or five girls have been bussing their own tables, Rosann Bongey, Campbell Hall manager, said. The tables are cleared by the regular busboy and two other student employees who usually work in the kitchen.

Breslin backs art complex idea

The MSU Board of Trustees may consider a proposal to place a fine arts complex high on the University's 1971 building priority list at the April 17 board meeting.

Executive Vice President Jack Breslin said Tuesday he will consult with President Wharton about adding a discussion of the fine arts complex and All-Events Bldg. to the April agenda.

"I hope to take this to the board as a report and recommendation at the April meeting," Breslin said. "I would give the trustees some background information and my recommendation that the fine arts building have an extremely high priority on the capital outlay list for next year."

At the Feb. 17 meeting of the ad hoc subcommittee studying the possibility of an all-University referendum on the All-Events Bldg., Breslin pledged support for the fine arts complex. He said the matter would be brought to the trustees in March.

The issue was not presented at the March trustees meeting "because of other matters of higher priority," he said.

"This isn't the highest priority thing we have to do these days," Breslin said. Breslin's office has been busy preparing the University's 1970-71 budget request for the legislature. Breslin said he hopes to discuss with the president and provost the possibility of establishing a permanent faculty-student committee on building priorities. A committee of this kind was advocated by the ad hoc subcommittee on the All-Events Bldg.

At the February subcommittee meeting, Breslin also announced the work halt on the proposed $11 million All-Events Bldg.

planning. We're not going to ahead until we have more student support," he said.

The fine arts complex, presently No. 10 on the University's new construction list, Even if placed higher on the priority list, Breslin noted, February that the chance of getting funds for the project within the next five years "extremely remote."

Court convicts Mrs. Hart, others

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The wife of Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., and seven other defendants were found guilty Tuesday of violating government regulations during an antiwar demonstration at the Pentagon last fall.

Each could be fined $50 and sentenced to 30 days in jail, but the U.S. Attorney's office said it would not ask for jail terms. The defense attorney said he would probably appeal the convictions. Janey Hart, the former Jane Briggs of Detroit, daughter of a wealthy automobile parts manufacturer, has been associated with several liberal causes. She testified at the trial that she had not expected to be arrested, but was aware of the possibility.

Her husband's comment was that participation in antiwar demonstrations was his wife's business and he would not interfere.

The eight were found guilty of staging a "mass" in the concourse of the Pentagon Nov. 30, the initial event of weekend of antiwar activities climaxed by a Nov. 15 march that attracted more than 250,000 persons.

They were arrested on charges of violating General Service Administration regulations prohibiting "loud and unusual noise" and obstructing the hall and passageways of government building.

The prosecution contends that the group, which totaled 186 persons, disrupted normal Pentagon traffic. All 186 were charged identically and under agreement between the court and the defendants all will be subject to whatever penalty handed down to the eight.

Washington attorney Lawrence Freedman, who represented the defendants, said he would probably appeal the case — "the way to the Supreme Court necessary."

U.N. Secretary - General U Thant praised V.I. Lenin, founder of the Soviet Communist Party, as a political leader whose ideals were reflected in the U.N. Charter.

His ideas of peace and peaceful coexistence among nations have won widespread international acceptance and they are in line with the aims of the U.N. Charter in which the peoples of the United Nations proclaimed their determination to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war," Thant's statement read in part.

It was delivered in Finland at a celebration of the 50th anniversary of Lenin's birth.

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt says Western Europe has come to the end of a long period of stagnation and in the 1970s will complete formation of a Common Market and move toward greater economic and political unity.

Brandt's remarks were made during an interview with Associated Press during the third day of his U.S. visit.

U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr. ruled Tuesday that the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization had in fact called a strike and he found the organization guilty of civil contempt. Hart put off, however, deciding on penalties until next Saturday and appealed meanwhile to the air controllers to return to their jobs if they were physically able.

The Dukes County grand jury, investigating the death of Mary Jo Kopechne, ended a two day special session Tuesday without handing up an indictment.

Saying "the case is closed" District Attorney Edmund J. Connelley said he will move immediately to release the secretary of the inquiry into the death of the secretary who died when Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's car ran off a road last July.

Mr. Jack Davison, saying he had regained control of the state County public schools from Gov. Claude Kirk, ordered his staff Tuesday to quickly put into effect court desegregation orders.

Five persons were arraigned in Midland on charges of conspiracy to commit a felony in the so-called Beaver case.

Michael Donner, David Williams, Tom Trost, Jane Kennedy and Marty McNamara stood mute before Midland Circuit Court Judge James R. Hood.

The charges stem from the ransacking of Dow Chemical offices last Nov. 6.

Their trial is expected to be in mid-June.

The State Administrative Board Tuesday paved the way for sale of the first $21 million in Michigan's $100 million recreation bonds authorized by voters in 1968.

In addition the board agreed to accept bids on $15 million worth of anti - water pollution bonds.

Two residents of the area saw Shirley Frosland's decomposed body floating under the Portage Lake bridge between Houghton and Hancock Monday night.

She had been reported missing from St. Joseph Hospital in Hancock Nov. 21, 1969. Miss Frosland was a student at Suomi College in Hancock.

The Michigan Hospital Association says hospitals in Michigan lost more than $300,000 a day during last winter.

They showed the average hospital spent $86.47 per day during the month while receiving rates of $85.81 per day.

Association President Charles G. Skinner of Jackson said the situation "shows no indication of being resolved."

The University of Pennsylvania agreed to vote its 93 shares of General Motors stock in favor of two proposals initiated by consumer lawyer Ralph Nader.

The proposals call for the addition of three consumer representatives to the General Motors Board and the establishment of a committee to investigate the impact of the giant automaker on public policy.

General Motors management has indicated it was not the two proposals.

Desegregation plans vary little

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary Robert H. Finch said Tuesday there will be little change in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's school desegregation policies as a result of President Nixon's recent statement on civil rights education.

Finch further set a goal of doubling the number of black children attending desegregated

Southern schools next fall.

The government now counts 1.2 million in classrooms labeled desegregated — 40 per cent of all Negro pupils in the region. This year's figure is twice last year's.

"We think we can double that again," Finch said. "We're striking for dramatic results."

The secretary's generally affirmative and aggressive tone at a news conference, designed to clarify department desegregation policies, may again confuse the school debate.

Many civil rights leaders and some white Southerners have interpreted Nixon's March 24 school message as easing government pressure on the South — especially in its larger cities.

Finch conceded it will be very difficult to identify and prosecute that portion of school segregation in Southern cities caused by past policy or practice — de jure segregation.

The President said segregation resulting solely from housing patterns — de facto segregation — is permissible North and South while de jure is not.

Finch denied his department will have a lessened role in school desegregation. But he said later: "There will be fewer desegregation plans drawn and more monitoring."

Finch explained that less than 200 of almost 4,500 Southern districts have yet to sign a voluntary plan or come under court order to desegregate.

Enforcement officials would monitor compliance with existing plans in court orders.

Finch and J. Stanley Pottinger, the department's civil rights chief, said the department's previous desegregation guidelines and busing policies are still in effect.

REACTION TO STRIKE

Committee OKs postal pay hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting quickly in the aftermath of the postal strike in history, a Senate unit approved unanimously Tuesday a bill giving all civilian and military federal workers a six per cent pay boost.

The measure, tied as an amendment to a bill already passed by the House, did not touch on postal reform, a further eight per cent pay hike proposed for postal workers or the administration's bid to pay for part of the cost by charging a dime to mail a first - class letter.

But the legislation approved by the Senate Post Office Committee would extend the six per cent raise to the 29,000 Capitol Hill employees — not including members of Congress — to the five - man staffs of ex-presidents, and to judges in the District of Columbia.

Chairman Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., said he expects little or no opposition when the bill reaches the Senate floor Wednesday or Thursday.

"We could see no merit in foot dragging on this," McGee said when asked whether the quick action had anything to do with continued restlessness among postal workers, especially in New York City where the large-scale walkout began.

As it stands, the six per cent raise would be retroactive for all employees to the pay period ending last Dec. 27.

Students present redress money

A check for $80 collected by the University Students for Redress Project was presented to the city of East Lansing Monday night at the city council meeting.

Co-Chairman James Pletz, East Lansing sophomore, said the money was donated to help re-establish good relations between the East Lansing businessmen and MSU students.

The group had hoped to collect enough money to cover the $9,000 in damages done to East Lansing stores during the demonstration of Feb. 19 on Grand River Avenue. Contributions were collected at booths in the Union and International Center.

"The money will be used to buy a specific item to help beautify Grand River," Mayor Gordon L. Thomas said.

Pletz initiated the fund drive to improve the image of college students. He is concerned about the growing trend toward violence on campuses across the nation.

"I want to get the most out of my college degree," he said. "Violence isn't the best means to an end."

The name of the game

There are lots of games at MSU. (The reader should freely substitute "bags," "concerns," "interests," etc. for "games.") The fight for grades game. The preparation for life game. The social life game. The student government game.

At Psi U we don't have study tables, lectures on how to get ahead in business, or mandatory parties. We're willing to let IFC go its own apologetic way as long as we are free to do as we like.

We don't knock studying, partying, or working in student organizations. These activities are just as valid, but no more, than Psi U's function of providing a good place to live. For us "a good place to live" is a house that reminds visitors of a castle, a cohesive yet tolerant group of friends, communal living responsibilities. Wharton: leadership in last two speeches

In his last two speeches MSU President Clifton Wharton has addressed himself to some of the more pressing problems of today. This stance if somewhat belated is, nevertheless, most welcome.

In a talk to the Detroit Economic Club Dr. Wharton devoted his opening remarks to a consideration of the waning public confidence in institutions of higher education. He attributed this trend to economic exclusivity, inability to effect social reform and impersonal bureaucracies. From this analysis the president went on to delineate a solution embodied in the three elements of his conceptual scheme of the "pluralistic university"—namely, universal access to higher education, commitment to social problem-solving, and genuine concern for human values.

Another concrete point made in the president's speech is the announcement of his intention to create a Presidential Commission on Admissions and Student Body composition to determine a response to the pressure for equal access to university admissions, and how to determine the composition of the student body. This commission is to submit its report by the winter term of 1971. This may very well constitute the most important decision he has made thus far in his administration.

President Wharton's second speech — delivered at the First Annual Martin Luther King Memorial Lecture — like his first contains a solid core of worthwhile recommendations. The most immediately important part of this materials is Dr. Wharton's commitment that from seven to eight per cent of next fall's freshman class will be black — a figure considerably higher than the six percent graduation rate from Michigan high schools this year.

Dr. Wharton further expresses hope that the functions of the Center for Urban Affairs can be expanded to become a College for Ethnic Studies and Urban Affairs as a further step toward including minority peoples studies into the university. He also commends the Brookover Report as "another example of the University's increasing sensitivity to the dehumanizing . . . forces of discrimination."

We find Dr. Wharton's two speeches — as well as his follow-through actions — to be of an exceedingly heartening nature. In the past we have been disappointed by some of his public statements and lack of a clear-cut position on problems that plague the university and society. We welcome President Wharton's clarification and plan of leadership for MSU — and we are optimistic about the direction that he wishes to take.

Detecting criminals during childhood

Can a six-year-old be tested to determine whether or not he is capable of criminal behavior? Richard Nixon apparently thinks it may be possible since he has asked the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) to study the proposals of Dr. Arnold Hutschnecker.

This psychiatrist favors using tests such as the Rorschach (ink blot) to find children that might be criminally inclined. Such children would receive massive psychiatric treatment after school. Teenagers later found to be indulging in delinquent behavior would be sent to camps. According to Hutschnecker, such a program would be a better short-term solution to the crime problem than urban reconstruction.

Tests like the ink blot can only be useful when administered by experts. According to the psychology department, it is completely impossible to train enough people to administer the tests. The personalities of children are also subject to rapid change. A child at age six could show criminal tendencies which would vanish at age seven as his character and personality develop. It is nearly impossible to put much stock in any long range predictions based on tests given at age six.

The very studies on which these proposals were based are faulty logic. In these studies one group of delinquents and one group of non-delinquents were given the ink blot test. The delinquents did indeed show criminal tendencies while the non-delinquents did not. The subjects studied were not six year olds, they were teen-agers. If a significantly large group of six year olds had been selected and those that showed criminal tendencies had turned out to be delinquents, the study would be much more credible.

Certainly these recommendations reek of 1984, but the reason that such studies are even being considered is just as frightening. Apparently the Nixon administration is looking for quick and easy short-range solutions to the crime problem, while avoiding coming to grips with the root causes of crime. The urban reconstruction that would eliminate most crime in America is being ignored by Nixon.

Also interesting is the fact that Hutschnecker has also proposed testing high school and college students to detect mental illness. Those that seem sane would be given mental health certificates which would be required for any "job of political responsibility."

Yes, Dr. Hutschnecker is truly an interesting man, and a man that has been associated with President Nixon since the 1950's. An old saying tells us that we can tell the most about a man by the men with whom he surrounds himself. Nixon does not only have Mitchell and Spiro; he has a resident pseudo-scientist, too.

"O.K., Johnny, I won't ask you to do 'welfare Cadillac'...but I'd certainly like to hear these..."

DONNA WILBURN

Daisy Mae protests Al Capp

Recently I was chosen to serve as Daisy Mae for a Republican banquet hosting Al Capp as the guest speaker. After being briefed on my duties, I realized I had been selected because I was a State News Staff Writer and the Republican party thought they would receive a glowing newspaper story from a naive college reporter.

I decided to enjoy their dinner and forget the Republican expectations for free publicity. However, after meeting Al Capp in person, listening to an exclusive news conference and hearing a 45 minute speech by the creator of Li'l Abner, I decided to share my observations with the campus community.

The Republican 16th district wanted coverage, but I do not think this is precisely what they had in mind . . .

Al Capp is a muscular man with a booming voice and an undeniable witty way with words. The 61-year-old cartoonist advocated the age old saying "children should be seen and not heard." And, he groups 21-year-old college students in the category of children.

In past months, Capp has visited organizations, campuses and television shows to say that concerned student opinion on world situations have no validity.

"Puberty and hubcaps are the only areas college students know about, and the only areas in which they can talk intelligently," Capp said. He further stated that students attended a university because they realized how little they actually knew.

Capp suggested all students shut their mouths and open their books so they will eventually learn something.

"Show me a young idealist who hasn't lived long enough to express an opinion and I'll show you a pest," Capp said.

He gave an example of a model student as one who works hard, studies hard and takes his place among the silent majority. "Show me a young person who makes a good living and I'll show you a good citizen."

To Capp, a respectable person is one who is uninvolved, and unconcerned about national problems. He approves of the timid student who hasn't an opinion, or who is afraid to express it.

Capp said student unrest is merely an opportunity for the young to "kick up a stink" and that students are really not interested in the issues. He further stated student dissent has come to denote mugging, vandalism and arson. And, then he paralleled students to animals that belonged in cages if they fail to conform.

Conformity is such a nice, easy way to avoid confrontation with conscience. Non-action can always be rationalized if an entire group has approved. Capp urges the young to fall in behind past generations and live in an age of missiles as if it were the decade of Roosevelt, World War II and Betty Grable.

It was evident the aging cartoonist does not feel comfortable on a college campus. "The lunatics are running the asylum, and I would rather be in Saigon than on a campus," Capp said. He promoted the conservatives, conformity and vice president Agnew. Capp applauds Agnew as a "well-balanced, fair American with a lot of common sense."

In a question and answer session, Capp is talented in evading questions and instead replying with witty, humorous phrases. Serious probes are often answered with pre-determined jokes calculated to embarrass the questioner. I heard him give the identical joke as a response to two different questions on two different occasions.

When asked his view on the Chicago Seven trial, Capp offered a vague, but witty response. "All I can say about the Chicago Seven is that birth control pills were discovered too late," he quipped.

Capp is an established humorist who said it was his duty to expose fascism and fakery. He is an influential figure in the mass media and has begun to wage war on the cancer of the country — the concerned college student. His noble dedication reminds me of McCarthy in the '50's who likewise was so moved by the democratic spirit.

People with strong voices like Capp are a threat to any type of profitable change which our nation desperately needs. Capp condemns the sophisticated and pensive college student who shows concern. And, if those who peacefully dissent gave up all cause — who else would care?

The young adopted the motto, "give a damn." It should have been followed by — "the past generations never did." It was Capp's society that made the world the place it has become, with the chaos, race riots and corrupt government. The past generation has left the world in shambles for us to pick up the pieces and start again.

College students no longer eat goldfish or cram into phone booths — there are more important ideas to be examined.

But, I am not suggesting to silence the old with their infinite wisdom. Capp should be allowed to speak at as many campuses and gatherings that will permit him to do so. His ludicrous words should be heard by every ear. But, his significance should be evaluated for what he represents.

People must realize Capp's views for exactly what they are — a 61-year-old cartoonist who has an insight into Dogpatch existence, but who has no conception of the importance of a college community.

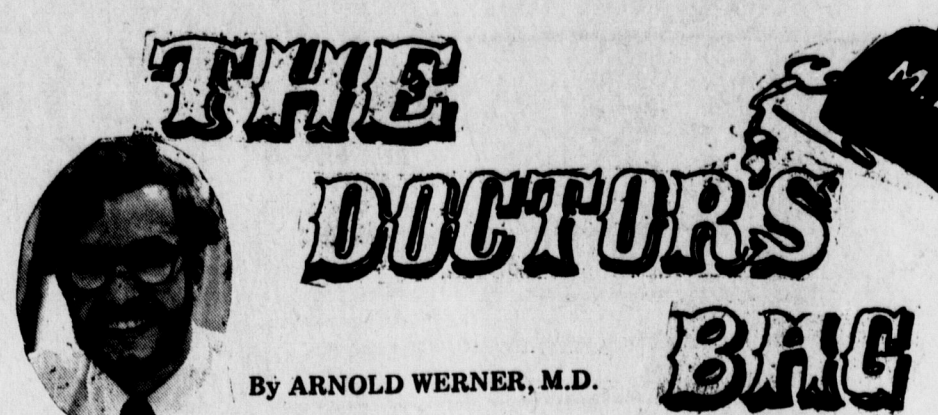

If Capp would rather be in Saigon than on a college campus, let him stay out of the campus life and the problems of today.

Let him live in his Cambridge mansion and never contemplate the ghetto problem. Let him make thousands of dollars a year and scoff at welfare programs.

Let him write witty comic strips when people are starving because of over-population.

Let him be so concerned with what is lawful that he can no longer see what is good.

Let him remain unconcerned about the world problems, in twenty years he won't be living here . . . we will.

Letters may be addressed to Dr. Werner at 309 Linton Hall. Names need not be included unless a personal reply is requested.

I have a rather ugly wart on my thumb I'd like to get rid of. Are there any safe, effective, commercial preparations available in drugstores that would do the job? If not, what's the solution?

While preparations to remove warts are available in drugstores, visiting a physician first is recommended. There are different types of warts, and some are located such that surgical removal is advised. Also, there are other things commonly referred to as warts which require selective use of certain drugs. I suggest visiting your favorite Health Center physician. If you're lucky, he may even kiss your thumb and turn you into a fairy prince or princess.

I have used drugs such as dexedrine, methadone, mescaline, marijuana and hashish. I feel I really need to try LSD for my own personal development — it is something I must do. I am personally not afraid of any affects. However, my fiancée is very worried and I'm asking questions on her behalf.

What is the truth about recurrence of the effect at a later date? Are medically substantiated and how often they really occur? Is there the least truth to the chromosome fears of days? What causes bum trips, and often do they occur?

Recurrences, or flashbacks do occur with the hallucinogenic drugs. It is impossible to say what the frequency is, but I have treated a number of cases. Supposed flashbacks can occur with marijuana — a hallucinogenic drug in normal doses though I have never seen a case. Flashbacks have invariably been very distressing to people who have them. Rather than a free trip, they have been experienced as intrusive, frightening, and undesirable.

The chromosome scare has not been substantiated. The experiments showing chromosome breakage were all performed in test tubes while those experiments performed in human subjects with doses did not show breakage. The chromosome, however, may be detrimental to the in early pregnancy.

No one knows for sure what causes trips. They are very infrequent with known amount of pure drug is taken under laboratory conditions. They are more frequent in the usual setting which drugs are taken where matter suggestibility, anxiety, and fear of the can work on the person. As well, the available on the street are of unimpure purity and often have been found mixed with a variety of serious poisons such as strychnine. For some reason, people are more careful about the purity of the foods they eat than about the purity of the drugs they use. It is very difficult to predict who will have a bad trip or when a bad trip will occur.

The contrast between your fear and concern and your braveness makes wonder if your personal development might not profit from taking her advice. Some people like to try everything at once. It is probably fair to call experience freaks.

My hair is fine, dry and badly split would like to let it grow out, but having great difficulty. I have tried it but they don't seem to do much. What do you suggest?

My hairdressing consultant informs that it is necessary to keep the hair trimmed, even though you are letting it grow out. Hair splits from the ends and is not unusual in people with fine Rines and other things may be damaging to the hair than they are. Very rarely, a person has difficulty with their hair because of a vitamin deficiency, thyroid trouble, or a fungal infection. A physician should be able to help decide this.

Can a doctor tell for certain if a virgin by examination? What is the hy Can he definitely say she has intercourse?

The hymen is a thin membrane blocking the entrance to the vagina hidden from view by the outer labia. In some women, the hymen opening is fairly large and in others fairly small. In cases where the opening is small, evidence of it stretching from intercourse or other sexual activity usually be seen on examination.

Whether virginity is a physical technicality or a state of mind is debatable. However, a doctor can be reasonably certain a woman is not a virgin if pregnant.

OUR READERS' MIND

'Indian' problem does not exist

To The Editor:

In reference to the articles on Indian History by Miss Corriere in last term's State News, the American Indian has a term which describes our feelings. Buffalo Chips!

Professor Cleland perfectly fits the stereotype of the Anthropologist put forth by Vine Deloria Jr. in his book, Custer Died For Your Sins.

John Winchester, on the other hand, is an Indian in Middle class clothing with middle class ideas. If he would think for a minute he might realize that it is not our Indian children who are awkward, as he stated in the article, but the white school systems that are awkward in their approaches toward all minorities. The Bureau of Indian Affairs has the same attitude as Mr. Winchester in ignoring our children's cultural capabilities. These capabilities are exemplified by the work of "awkward" Indian children at the Institute of American Indian Arts in Santa Fe, New Mexico, an exception among B.I.A. schools.

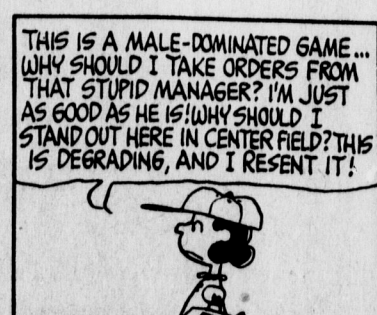

There is no "Indian" problem, only a white problem. The problem is ignorance and misunderstanding. And Kimo Sabe says: "Tsk, Tsk, Lo the poor red man." Solving the problem is not important. We are too small to be concerned with except when there is used clothing, rejected by Blacks in Mississippi, to get rid of, then it is shipped up to L'Anse.

The previous generation of American Indians saw assimilation into the "Great" society as the solution to their existence as a sub-culture. Mr. Winchester still holds this view. This is why he is proving to be ineffective as a recruiter of American Indian students to this campus.

In closing, I would like to suggest that Miss Corriere cover the next Michigan Indian Commission meeting in its entirety instead of leaving at the noon recess as she did on February 28th.

Changes have been made in the launch rules, Kapryan said, as a result of the experience of Apollo 12, whose instruments were temporarily knocked out by electrical discharges as it rocketed through a cold front formation.

Under the old rules, the only weather restriction was that no launch would be made into a thunderstorm, Kapryan said.

Now, he said, "we will not launch within five miles of a thunderstorm or within three miles of the anvil" — a horizontal cloud sometimes stretching out from the top of a storm.

"We have been advised that we can trigger lightning by passing within a mile or so of an anvil," Kapryan said.

Also, he said, there will be no launch into a cold front, squall line, or middle cloud layer whose thickness exceeds 6,000 feet.

Youth Against Pollution (YAP) has recently teamed up with State Rep. David M. Serotkin, R - Mt. Clemens, to fight increasing pollution in Michigan.

The group — seeking to promote "grass roots" participation throughout the state — plans a state-wide Clean Up Day May 9. Douglas Darl, Romeo sophomore and YAP chairman, said that YAP efforts will involve beautifying littered areas around lake fronts, parks, road sides and other sites.

"The assistance of youth is the crux of the effort," Serotkin said. "The kids are interested and will generate a great deal of enthusiasm for this vital issue."

Former instructor dies

Mr. E. Grover, 80, former radio and chief engineer of station WKAR, died Sunday in a local hospital.

Mr. Grover worked with the university FM station from 1947 until his retirement in 1966. He supervised the station's technical development, sometimes building equipment himself, as the station grew from a radio transmitting unit into a fully technical broadcasting station.

Mr. Grover came to MSU during World War I as an instructor for the Army Signal Corps. Later he taught boxing and was involved in the physical sports program.

Mr. Grover also helped set up radio apparatus at Interlochen and throughout the state.

A native of Caro, Mr. Grover lived in the Lansing area for 54 years.

On campus book sales close successfully

By CHAS FLOWERS
State News Staff Writer

The two non-profit book exchanges on campus concluded Monday with sales totaling more than $5,000, exchange coordinators reported. Shaw and Brody exchange coordinators cited student reaction to commercial bookstores' buy-back policies and the use of a central location as the main factors in the success of the exchanges.

Assisted by a staff of about 25 student volunteers, coordinator John Michael, Portage, Ind. junior said the Shaw Hall exchange handled more than $4,000 in used book transactions. Another $1,000 of student money found its way to student booksellers through the Brody exchange.

"It's a significant dent in the merchants' pockets," Dan Behringer, Wheeler junior and Brody coordinator, said.

Michael said the volunteers delayed promotion of this term's exchange following the announcement at the end of winter term by MSU Bookstore manager James Howick that his store would sell used books at 65 per cent of new book prices rather than at 75 per cent.

The new buy-back policy was deserted, however, after East Lansing bookstores threatened the University with a suit charging the MSU Bookstore with unfair competition.

Michael said the MSU Bookstore's announcement and subsequent reversion to old policy "confused people."

"There are established inequities," Behringer agreed, "which are reflected in the outrage of students and in the need for these exchanges."

One of the Shaw volunteers is also an employee of the MSU Bookstore, Marty Gilmore, Lander, Wyo., sophomore, said he was unhappy with the bookstore's buy-back policy and wanted to do something about it.

"I don't like to sell my books back at 50 per cent," Gilmore said, "and then turn around and buy them back at 75 per cent." He said that besides restricting its 65 per cent buy-back policy to finals week, the MSU Bookstore also cut back on the number of books it was willing to take.

Michael said the Shaw exchange encouraged students to sell books at 60 per cent so both buyers and sellers could save at least 10 per cent over bookstore prices.

This term's exchanges were the second such attempt by student groups to supervise used book exchanges recently. The pilot book exchanges last term were located in four complexes. Michael said this term the decision was made to combine the three exchanges east of Brody into the Shaw exchange.

Although coordinated, the two exchanges worked quite differently and under different auspices. The Shaw exchange took in books for sale and purchase money and then held the money for the sellers. The Brody exchange completed sales through card files of books for sale with the names and telephone numbers of the sellers. The Shaw exchange was sponsored by New Community and the Brody exchange by the Brody Complex Council.

Although Michael said the Shaw exchange cleared more business than any of the four book sales last term, both he and fellow coordinator Lynne Schaefer, Mt. Clemens sophomore expressed disappointment that more volume was not done. "We just tried the idea of a sale in a new way. We were central facility," Miss Schaefer said. "It was not as successful as we hoped."

Michael said the Shaw exchange collected nearly $750 in donations which he said would be used for advertising expenses.

The exchange will be open Sunday from 1 to 8 p.m. at the Fee reception desk to return money and unsold books.

TOO THEORETICAL

Bowdler raps med training

By JOHN JUEL
State News Staff Writer

Better use should be made of the pre-medical training period in American colleges, an assistant professor of medicine told the MSU Faculty Club Tuesday.

Speaking on comparative medical education in the United States and Great Britain, Anthony J. Bowdler noted that in Britain a four-year pre-professional period is not required. British high school graduates designated as medical students immediately begin six years of clinical training.

"There is a lack of any firm proof that four years of college is either necessary or beneficial for medical students," Bowdler said.

"It has only an ill-defined relation to a student's professional goals. While ideally it would aid a student's general education, in a time of great pressure for shorter medical training, it is a luxury."

Bowdler said there is also a difference in the approach taken toward medical education in the two countries. The United States is very strong in theoretical medicine, while Great Britain places more emphasis on clinical skills.

"In Britain, training is extremely practical and tends toward an apprenticeship approach rather than pure academics. This has the advantage of letting the student work more closely with actual patients, but has the disadvantage of being less an education than a training for a trade."

"United States schools follow a highly theoretical approach," Bowdler continued. "The defect in this is that they have tended to divorce themselves too much from the practical. It is possible to get a license to practice medicine without being examined in the basic physical skills or the observation of simple data."

Bowdler said both systems could benefit from closing the gap between the practical and the theoretical.

While the route to becoming a general practitioner may be shorter in Great Britain, it is much more difficult to become a specialist, he said. In Britain, it is not simply a matter of acquiring a diploma; a physician must be accepted for a specialist position in the hospital system, he added.

"A limited number of hospital appointments go to people who have proven their abilities in a specialized field," he explained. "It is an extremely wasteful system; graduate training continues almost indefinitely before physicians are allowed to practice as specialists. The training often takes between 7 and 15 years, taking away a period when a doctor should be productive."

Bowdler said the medical profession should take a look at the problem of teaching medical students, should try to develop a more efficient and balanced program.

"Three years of training turn out physicians equipped to treat almost all common ailments," Bowdler said. "Patients have no built-in signs which tell if he is common or uncommon. We must turn out doctors capable of treating uncommon ailments as well as common ones. The returns of continued education."

Black career day lures firms

By JACKIE BORDEN
State News Staff Writer

Over 43 companies from industry and government sent their recruiters to the second annual Black Student Career Program. The Placement Bureau sponsored the program in the union ballroom from 7 to 10 p.m. for black students interested in future career and summer employment.

Student opinion of the program ranged from "it's a good idea" to "it's a waste of time." Freshmen and sophomores were disappointed at the low quantity of summer jobs actually being offered.

Juniors and seniors, however, appreciated the exposure they obtained from the various companies.

Lamar Richardson, Detroit senior said, "I received realistic job offers from several companies in conjunction with my own experience and education."

Marion Smith, Detroit senior said she had come in contact with more companies at the program than at the Placement Bureau. Miss Smith felt that she had no guarantee of jobs but had received real possibilities.

Kay Richardson, a graduate of MSU from Detroit felt that the recruiters did an excellent job on selling their companies and that hiring would follow.

Ronald Mooten, Detroit senior said, "The employers were genuinely trying to interest students in their companies."

"I talked seriously with five companies who I think were interested in me," commented Sharon Dunn, Detroit senior. This program is a good idea because I knew what to expect from the companies and they were expecting me.

Most companies sent their recruiters because their regular recruitment programs did not draw black students.

City National Bank of Detroit recruiter Bill Green said that the employment of black students in banking would be beneficial to both the community and the individual.

"We are hiring any person black or white because we need people," said Ray Pleasant of UNIVAC.

Jim Williams, IBM recruiter felt that his company offered more than most other companies. He was pleased with the turnout because the company needed black employees.

Jack McDougall, recruiter from General Foods Corp. suggested a career seminar to explain to students exactly what they can do in their majors so that students would have knowledge of their availability.

A great many students expressed the desire for more real job possibilities at the next seminar. Students also suggested two career programs: one for graduating seniors and one specifically for summer jobs.

MUG FACADE, PRIVATE UPSET

Thais two-faced on Indochina

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN
Associated Press Writer

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thailand's army strong man, Gen. Prapras Charusathien, was recently in trouble in neighboring Laos and Cambodia. He spread to Thailand.

No comment," he said. "Why interfere with them? Why bring fight into our own home?"

Prapras, who is deputy prime minister, interior minister and commander in chief of the army, is expressing in his forthright way what appears to be government policy on events in

News Analysis

Indochina — sit tight, say nothing and hope for the best.

Outwardly the Thais appear relatively unconcerned by the North Vietnamese thrust through the Plain of Jars in Laos and the unsettled political situation in Cambodia which resulted from the ousting of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, an old enemy of Thailand.

But behind this public facade of unconcern, Thai officials are worried.

If the Communists take control in Cambodia or even get as far as they are in Laos, then Thailand's future is very grave, said one senior Foreign Ministry official.

A columnist for the largest Thai-language daily newspaper probably reflected the fears of many officials when he wrote that in the long run Sihanouk's fall may do more harm than good to Thailand.

Both government and press have shied away from comment on Laos. The press has been told to and the government wants no publicity about undercover measures it is taking to help the Laotian government.

The Thai newspapers carried without comment news agency stories which said two battalions of Thai troops had been airlifted by Air America to Long Cheng to reinforce the troops of Gen. Vang Pao.

Prime Minister Field Marshal Thanom Kittikachorn and Gen. Prapras denied Thai army troops were involved, but admitted some Thai "volunteers" might be serving with the Laotian army.

Despite the possible threats to Thailand there has been no move to withdraw the 12,000-man Thai force from South Vietnam.

The Vietnam force, which has been there on one-year rotated periods of duty since 1967, has added a significant stiffening to the regular army. About 20,000 Vietnam veterans — all volunteers — have been brought back and mixed with untested army units. American advisers to the Thai army say this program has been successful.

Ramsey Lewis finds kinship with students

By EDWIN BLACK

"Musical boundaries have fallen and college students are toppling them over."

Ramsey Lewis spoke these words before embarking upon his annual college tour. The trio leader of international prominence will visit campuses across the nation, playing to "his favorite audience." In an exclusive interview Ramsey Lewis explained his affection for the college audience and how campus thinking has "forced honesty into the minds of musicians."

"Categories were the big thing a couple of years back. Some of the students were into classical, some to jazz, others to rock, or folk or any of the others," said Brother Ram, as he is called by his friends. "All that's gone now. Music is much closer. I feel it's because the students are broad-minded. They don't feel the compulsion to listen only to 'hits.' What they really want is new ideas. Truth, really. And they also want truth and sincerity in their music, dig. In the artist."

"A jazz concert today is not like it was several years ago," Lewis noted, "and it's on account of the students' demand for artistic truth — the spontaneous musical creation, not some rehearsed and beaten tune they dragged out of the studio and monkeyed on the stage. Students want genuine expression. It's the same way in all the musical divisions, country and western, blues, rock, whatever. Man, I'm for tearing down those labels."

"Don't call me a jazzman, don't call me a soul musician, don't call me a classical or semi-classical performer. Man, call me a piano player — 'cause that's all I am and all I ever want to be."

Eventually Lewis's expressive freedom could not resist incorporating elements of different musical divisions into a single "style." That style is the "Ramsey sound" which has met with such success everywhere. But its greatest triumph has been the college campus, where recognition has come from diverse groups.

Having been a student not long ago, Lewis finds an essential kinship to his college fans.

"I think it goes beyond my age or closeness to the college scene. I love student audiences because they plainly appreciate performers more than any other group."

"That's why I groove on students," Lewis continued. "You can always rely on them to see you as a real person. I remember the time at the University of Michigan. This one little chick found out where I was staying and waited for me after the performance. She insisted upon rapping about the racial situation on campus. I didn't know what was happening at that particular campus and told her so. But she had so much energy, and was so set in her mind about rapping, we sat down and rapped. And I'm glad we did."

Other memories from campus include the time Lewis attended a piano class at Princeton. "After the show," Lewis recalled, "a couple of piano majors invited me. I wasn't leaving until noon the next day, so I agreed as long as they didn't let on who I was. I can't say I dug the method of teaching, but the students were just the grooviest beginning pianists I ever saw."

RAMSEY LEWIS

Lewis said he feels that all students represent free souls and good creative minds. "Somehow I get the feeling that students on the East and West coasts are initiators and Midwest students the imitators, but I don't think this can reflect their awareness of current problems in politics, economics, racial matters or society in general. I do think the climate for the development of those ideas exists in the East and the West. It usually takes the corn belt a while to catch up."

Recounting an experience with University of Tokyo students, Lewis remembered, "Those kids were just the spirit of spontaneity. The deputy ambassador from our country invited a bunch of them over to his house to jam with me. It was great. We had a couple of basses and another piano. And most of them weren't even music majors. I love when those things happen."

"When you've got kids who can express the vitality of improvised music, I can understand why performers like

B. B. King, Bo Diddley, Chuck Berry, why all these guys are no longer what was 'ethnic' in sound. If they were honest, soul giving performers, they were 'camp' in sound. And that's why this college tour will be so great for me. 'Cause my music will not be jazz, semi-classical, 'popular' or even progressive. 'My music will be me, and I'm just happy the students have found something in me they want to hear.'

SUMMER COMPETITION

MSU to hold film contest

By ANN HODGE
State News Staff Writer

Aspiring film producers will have an outlet for their talent this summer when the MSU Dept. of Theatre sponsors its first film contest.

This unique addition to the list of summer activities is being initiated by Frank C. Rutledge, head of theater production.

"Practically everyone can see a play, but there is not outlet on campus for the public to see films," Rutledge said.

He is planning the competition to stimulate film production at all levels and provide a public showcase for film creation.

Anyone is eligible to enter a film of a maximum length of 30 minutes. Films in 8mm, 16mm, super 8 mm, color, black and white, and sound or silent films with accompanying sound may be submitted.

Proper identification of director, author, actors and cameraman must accompany the entry. There are no specific categories, but vacation travel films and training films will not be considered. Animated films or a combination of animated and live films are acceptable.

All entries must be delivered or mailed to Rutledge by July 15, along with a returnable stamped mailer. The entries will remain the property of the owner but the Theatre Dept. assumes no responsibility for loss or damage by theft or fire.

Films selected for public showing by the panel of judges will be exhibited July 26 in the Summer Circle Theatre in Demonstration Hall.

Rutledge said if the summer contest is successful it could become part of the activities planned for the regular school year.

Ballroom sign-up set for Thursday

If you or your organization plans to have a dance on any weekend in the next few months, the best time to sign up for the Union Ballroom will be Thursday at 3 p.m. in the Oak Room.

Beth Gustafson, in charge of Union reservations, is concerned because the system for reserving rooms for dances has been on a first-come, first serve basis.

She said that a few groups monopolize all the dates and then cancel out at the last minute with the result that other groups are "left out in the cold."

Mrs. Gustafson said that there is only one room available for such groups' activities, the Ballroom, and that this room is only rented out on Friday and Saturday nights.

The reservation desk is calling the meeting for all groups interested in signing up for the Ballroom and is also requiring a 50 per cent deposit on all reservations to cut down on cancellation.

Lightfoot commixes music, life

By SUSAN DORMADY
State News Reviewer

I'm not really sure anyone should be sent to review Gordon Lightfoot concerts. Nobody can judge a performer's lifestyle. In Lightfoot's case, his music is his muse. Somehow his performance gives an audience a flashing, changing, moving picture of his life. That's as much as any audience can expect from a performer.

Perhaps as a critic I could consider the quality of Lightfoot's voice, but the beauty of his performance doesn't depend on his voice, so I'm left to experience rather than judge. It's a far more rewarding, if less controversial, position.

The Auditorium darkens completely. Two guitarists seat themselves onstage and red lights spotlight them. Tension mounts. Looking around me, I recall the jam-packed, noisy crowd on splintery benches before the Fifth Dimension, and the very cool yet overflowing crowd at the John Mayall concert. It's quieter before Lightfoot in comparison to other ASMSU concerts I've attended; the mood is noticeably more subdued and the crowd is smaller.

Suddenly Lightfoot appears. He's a well-built man with a shock of blond hair falling across his forehead and eyes in waves. He begins with a couple of easy-going folk tunes, and gradually eases into biting social commentary about the Detroit riots.

Lightfoot isn't a trickster; he uses no gimmicks. His voice projects easily and smoothly. He sings a variety of songs which reflect different facets of life and death, giving the audience a full spectrum of his thoughts and attitudes. It's a joy to sit back and let his thoughts, so pleasantly enmeshed in music, play in the mind. Essentially he's a poet who considers himself "a romanticist and a social critic." He tries to avoid speaking out onstage. "I can say more by playing and singing, and keeping my mouth shut in between."

Lightfoot performs his own compositions almost exclusively, including such a favorite as "For Loving Me" and others. Two highlights of the show are renditions of a hysterical account of a diabetic dog named "Piddling Pete," and his "Doomsday" song, a pageant of life in garbage-ridden, rat-infested, smog-covered America.

Lightfoot would be impossible not to like with his broad grin and easy laugh, and he changes moods as fast as he switches guitars. To me his concert was nothing short of a musical happening.

Unusual planet grouping visible in next two weeks

An unusual grouping of planets will be visible to the naked eye in the next two weeks.

Venus, Mercury and Saturn will form an especially close group. These planets will be visible low in the western sky during early evening, beginning about Sunday. The phenomenon will occur in the evenings until about Wednesday, April 15.

A fourth planet, Mars, appears above the grouping, and a fifth planet, Jupiter, appears in the southeastern sky before darkness falls.

MSU astronomer Robert C. Victor of MSU's Abrams Planetarium gives these instructions to prospective planet watchers:

"First, note the sun's position along the horizon as it sets." "Next, about 45 minutes later, look in the same direction. You will notice a brilliant object, the planet Venus, not far above the horizon. Venus will be visible until October as the 'evening star.'"

"Then, look for two fainter objects which appear close to Venus during the next two weeks. These are the planets Mercury and Saturn."

This week's events are: On Tuesday, a slender crescent moon will be accompanied by Venus and Saturn to the lower left, and Mercury below. Faint, reddish Mars will be to the upper left of the moon.

On April 9-11, the closest grouping of Venus, Mercury and Saturn occurs. It will be possible to include all three in the field of view of a pair of binoculars.

The close grouping, however, is only apparent: Mercury will 100 million miles from earth; Venus will be 50 million miles beyond Mercury and Saturn, in turn, will be nearly 800 million miles farther into space.

The event is explained by the arrangement of four planets very nearly in a straight line: Earth, Mercury, Venus and Saturn in that order.

Such an alignment of the earth and three planets, in a direction far enough from the sun to be seen, is very unusual, according to Victor. Much more common is a lineup of the earth and two planets, resulting in a conjunction.

Conjunctions of two planets occur several times each year. Some of those events are not visible, however, because they occur too close to the sun.

Sky watchers during the next four weeks will be able to see the approach of another planetary conjunction, until Venus passes Mars on May 8.

Tuning up
Gordon Lightfoot strums a tune prior to his Monday night concert in the Auditorium. The Canadian musician mixes his music with his life style in his performance.

New York wins 7th game

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dave DeBusschere and Dick Barnett each scored 28 points and led a fourth period surge Monday night as the New York Knicks defeated the Baltimore Bullets 127-114 and earned the right to meet Milwaukee in the Eastern Division playoff finals.

New York, which held a 19-point lead early in the third period, found the margin down to six at 88-82 entering the fourth quarter before DeBusschere netted 10 points and Barnett added eight to give the Knicks victory in the seventh game of the series.

Three steals resulting in six points within a seven-second span midway in the fourth quarter broke the game open for

New York as it took a commanding 106-88 lead. The Bullets could only manage to close the gap to 10 points the rest of the way.

Baltimore lost much of its rebounding power when Wes Unseld drew his fifth foul with 3:23 to go in the third period. But even with the big center sitting out for a time, Baltimore closed the cap from 88-74 to 88-82 by ending the period with eight straight points.

Unseld returned after six minutes of the fourth quarter and Earl Monroe, who finished with a game high 32 points, kept the Bullets in contention with long range shooting. However, on numerous occasions the Bullets missed their foul shots.

The Knicks, who host Milwaukee in the first game of their Eastern Division finals Saturday afternoon April 11, held a 28-23 first quarter lead and increased the margin to 62-

47 at the half as Walt Frazier had a hot hand with nine points. Willis Reed, captain of the Eastern Division champions, played a much superior game than his weak effort Sunday afternoon, when Baltimore evened the series at 3-3. He scored 14 points but showed superior strength with 14 rebounds.

Reed did not score in the fourth period but his board control enabled him to feed off to DeBusschere, Barnett and Cazzie Russell, who scored 18 points in the game.

The series was a tough one for New York, which swept Baltimore four straight last year and took the first two games of this opening round series. The Knicks concentrated on defense and finding the open man in this deciding game.

Gus Johnson had 23 points for Baltimore and Jack Marin 21 in the Bullets losing effort.

Oregon State basketball job fails to interest Iowa's Miller

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — University of Iowa Basketball Coach Ralph Miller Sunday said he has withdrawn his name from consideration for the head coaching job at Oregon State University.

Miller made the statement

after returning from the Oregon State Campus at Corvallis.

"My wife and I appreciated the opportunity of visiting the campus of Oregon State University but after careful thought I have withdrawn my name from further consideration," Miller said.

Knicks, Bucks open East final Saturday

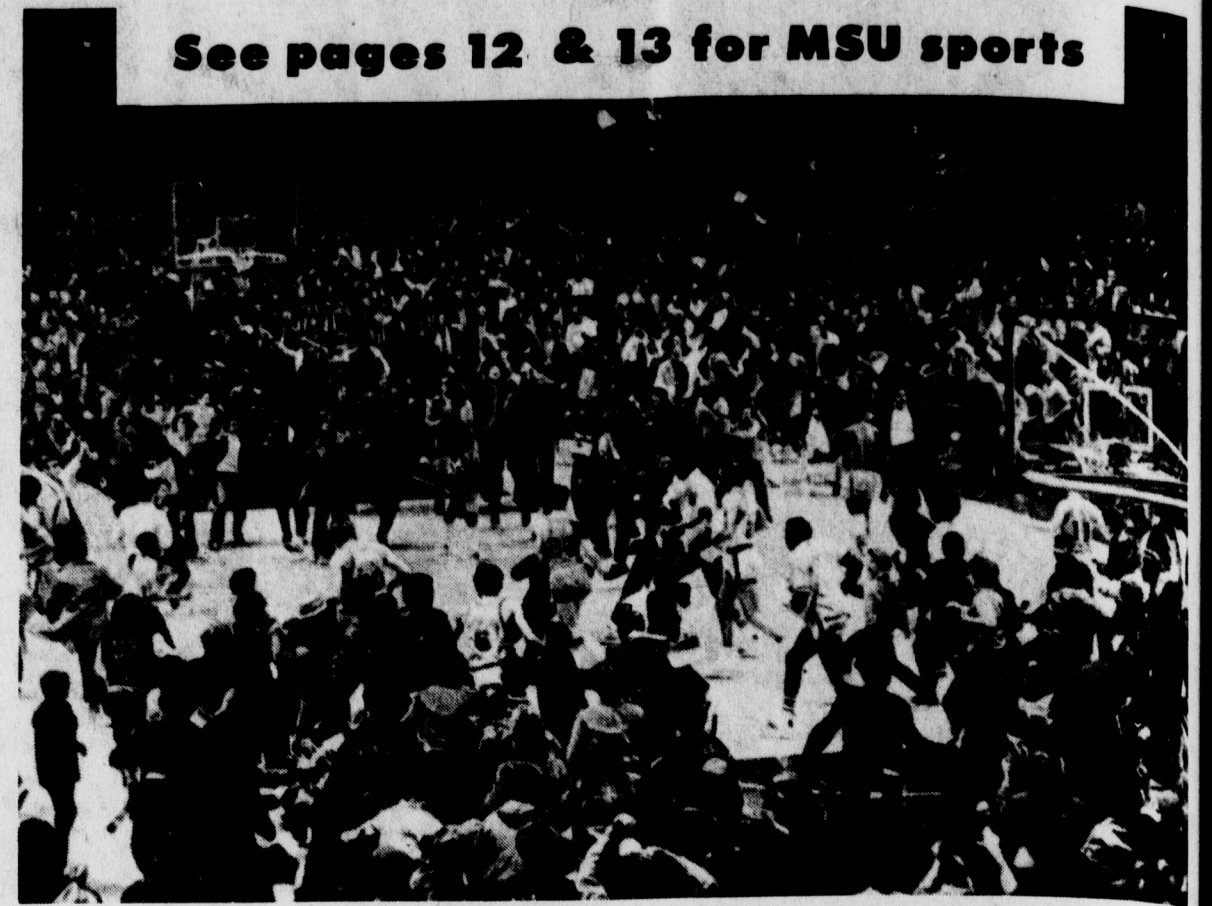

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Knicks get five days of rest after their 4-3 opening round victory over the Baltimore Bullets. They meet the Milwaukee Bucks here Saturday afternoon in the opening game of the Eastern Division Final Playoffs.

The series remains in New York for the second game, which will be played Monday night April 13. Milwaukee hosts the third game Friday night April 17 and the fourth on Sunday afternoon on April 19.

If necessary, the series moves to New York, for a fifth game on Monday, April 20, to Milwaukee for a sixth game on Wednesday April 22 and back to New York for a seventh game on Friday, April 24.

The fans take over

There was bedlam in Madison Square Garden Monday night after the New York Knicks beat the Baltimore Bullets in the seventh and deciding game of the Eastern Division's semifinal playoffs. Fans rushed onto the court and mobbed the Knicks who qualified to meet the Milwaukee Bucks in the Eastern Division finals.

Abel says Wings ready as Cup series opens tonight

DETROIT (UPI) — Sid Abel would like to assure Billy Reay of one thing: his Detroit Red Wings will be ready for the Chicago Black Hawks.

The Red Wings worked out in Detroit Tuesday before flying to Chicago and the Wednesday opener of their quarterfinal series with the Black Hawks.

"We're ready to go," pronounced Abel, general manager and acting coach of the National Hockey League team.

"What does worry me is the fact that we will be playing four games in five days at the start of this series."

"This is tough on my club because of the older players like Gordie Howe and Alex Delvecchio. But there's nothing much that can be done about it."

For those worried about the Red Wings' poor showing on television against the New York Rangers last Sunday, forget it.

Abel's plan of resting his older players as much as he could and giving his injured skaters a rest has apparently worked.

Defenseman Dale Rolfe, who missed the game with a split left elbow, is ready to go again. Defenseman Gary Bergman, who re-injured a sore right ankle and suffered bruised chest muscles against New York, will also be in the lineup.

Left wing Frank Mahovlich, who twisted his knee in that 9-5 debacle, is also going to be able to put his booming shots on Chicago goalie Tony Esposito.

Roy Edwards has been nominated by Abel to start in goal for Detroit. The 32-year-old was the hot net-minder for the Red Wings as the club made the Stanley Cup playoffs for the first time after a three-year hiatus.

Detroit, like Chicago, improved vastly on defense from a year ago, when neither club made the playoffs. The late-season acquisition of Rolfe from Los Angeles helped that department and Carl Brewer, a former all-star with Toronto, came out of retirement and played outstanding defense.

The Black Hawks are rated the edge, mainly because of the home ice advantage. The two clubs split eight games in the season.

Reay was a combination of pessimism and optimism Tuesday looking forward to the Stanley Cup playoff series between his team and the Red Wings.

"Detroit is a veteran team," he said. "They've got much more experience in playoffs than we have, much more experience overall."

"But," he continued, "if we keep getting the same kind of goal tending from Tony Esposito and if we keep working, we should be all right."

Many new faces among 'S' pitchers, catchers

EDITOR'S NOTE: State News Baseball Writer Gary Walkowicz has compiled a position-by-position preview of the 1970 MSU baseball team. Today, in the first of two parts, he looks at the Spartans' pitching and catching prospects.

Hit hard by graduation and the decision of Rick Miller to sign a pro baseball contract, the MSU baseball will be fielding a greatly revamped lineup this season.

The Spartans lost two Sporting News All-Americans in outfielder Miller, who is currently playing in the Boston Red Sox chain, and catcher Harry Kendrick. Other graduation losses included starting outfielders Joe Gavel and Richie Jordan and ace hurlers Mickey Knight and Dan Bielski.

But the influx of a talented group of freshmen and sophomores has made Spartan Coach Danny Litwhiler very optimistic about the coming season.

CATCHING — Both last season's two catchers, Kendrick and Bill Linne, graduated, so Litwhiler moved junior third baseman Phil Rashead to fill this hole. Rashead was a starter all last season at third, hitting fourth, fifth or sixth in the batting order. Rashead owns a sharp bat, averaging .277 and knocking in 20 runs in 1969.

Rashead is currently the No. 1 catcher, but is being pressed by freshman Bailey Oliver. A left-handed hitter, Oliver is a good bet to see at least some platoon action with Rashead behind the plate. Both catchers had a slow Southern trip with the bat. Rashead only hit .217, but was runner-up for the team lead with 11 RBIs. Bailey hit .071 with one home run.

"Phil got off to a slow start, but he really hit well in a few games down South," Spartan Assistant Coach Frank Pellerin said.

PITCHING — Graduation claimed half of MSU's four-man starting rotation, leaving junior Kirk Maas and senior Phil Fulton for Litwhiler to build his staff upon. The chunky Maas, who like Fulton is a righthander, was unbeaten in five decisions last year. He completed three of his seven starts and compiled a 2.50 ERA. This spring, Maas has a 2.01 ERA in 27 innings.

Fulton finished 3-4 with a 3.50 ERA in 1969. He had no problem getting the ball over the plate, issuing only 12 walks in 51 innings, but gave up 64 hits. Fulton impressed this spring with a 2.07 ERA and 20 strikeouts in five appearances.

The Spartans were troubled last season by the lack of a left-handed pitcher, but Rick Kreuger erased that problem this year. The southpaw senior missed most of last season with an injury, but has been very razor-sharp this spring with three wins and a 1.77 ERA.

The surprise hurler of the trip was freshman Larry Ike, a left-handed basketball player who pitches from the right side. Ike won four games, posting a 3.17 ERA.

"Larry did a good job, but we got a lot of runs for him,"

Litwhiler said. "He'll be pitching better as soon as he eliminates some of his mistakes."

Ike, Maas, Kreuger and Fulton look like Litwhiler's top four starters right now with freshman Robert Clancy, the No. 1 man in the bullpen. Clancy boasted a 1.12 ERA after six appearances.

"Clancy did an outstanding job in some tough situations," Litwhiler said.

SUFFER 14-8 DEFEAT

Stickmen drop opener to U-M

By RICK GOSSELIN
State News Sports Writer

The MSU lacrosse team had its home opener ruined not only by miserable weather, but also by an inspired University of Michigan team, 14-8.

The Spartans never led in the contest and often had to fight back from staggering deficits. Down by four goals in the first period, the MSU stickmen fought back to eventually tie the game at 7-7 midway through the third period. But the Wolverines stunned the Spartans by outscoring them 7-1 for the remainder of the game. In the process, Michigan scored four goals in the game's final stanza, shutting out the Spartans.

Spartan goalie Billy Hermann faced 35 shots, thirteen of which were goals. Coach Turf Kauffman replaced Hermann late in the game with Fred Hartman, who faced two shots, stopping one of them.

Michigan goalie Jay Johnson faced 18 shots, eight of which eluded him.

Michigan opened the scoring in the first period when Bob Gillon stole the ball from a Spartan defender in front of the net and had an open net to shoot at.

Skip Flanagan duplicated Gillon's feat, and the Wolverines had a two goal lead before the game was ten minutes old.

The Spartans battled back, however, with Doug Kalvelage putting the stickmen on the board with MSU's first shot on net.

In the second period, Michigan exploded for three consecutive goals, to take a 5-1 lead. But it was Kalvelage again to the rescue, as the attackman from Grosse Pointe High School scored two more unassisted goals. Tim Rodgers of Michigan sandwiched a goal in between Kalvelage's two marks, and the score was 6-3.

John Kelley moved MSU one goal closer, when his 30 foot shot eluded the Michigan goalie near the end of the first half.

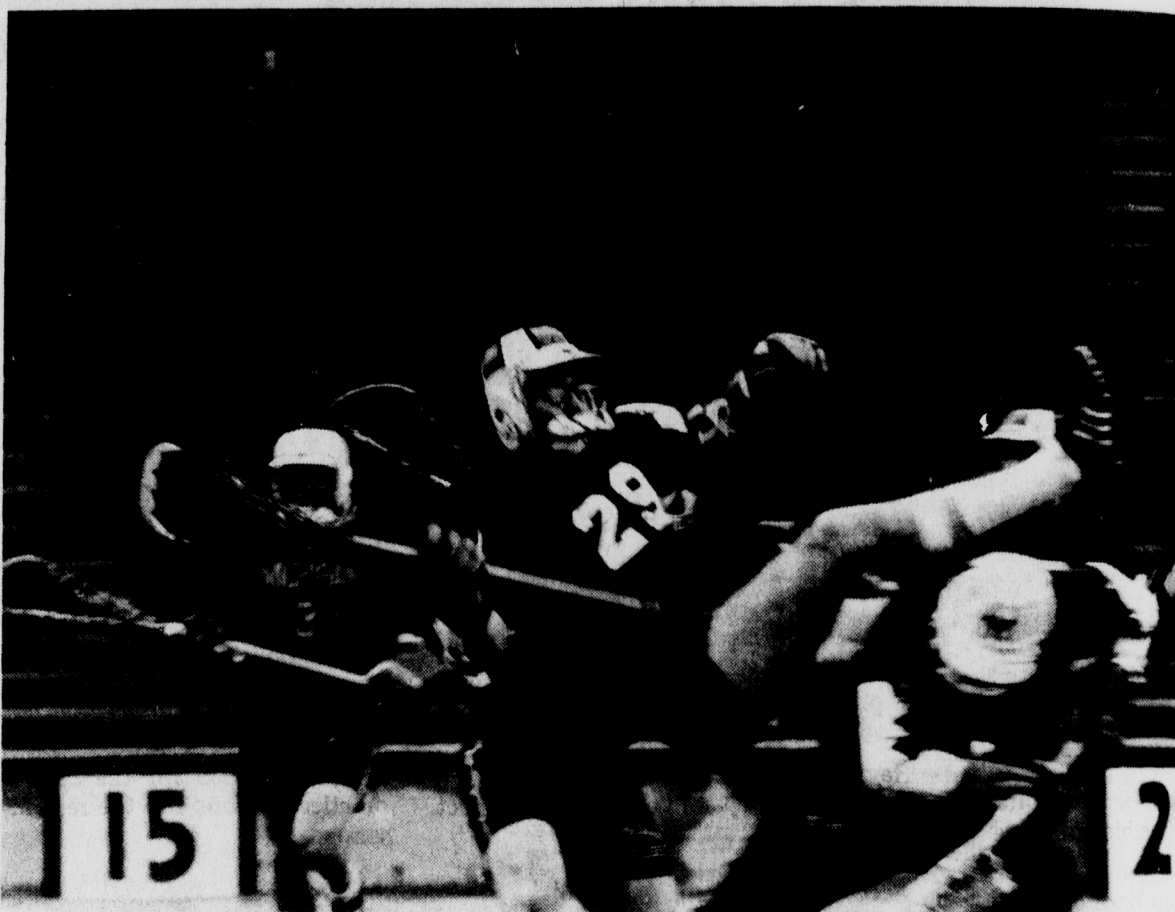

The Spartans came out in the second half playing as if their life depended on it. The stickmen blistered the Wolverine net with seven shots in the first ten minutes of the period, rallying for three goals and a tie.

But Michigan scored seven of the next eight goals to earn the victory.

Kalvelage led the Spartans with three goals; Andy Homa notched two, while Kelley, Rich Bays and Tom Condit registered solo marks. Bob Gillon scored four goals for the Wolverines, aided by Tom Midhaugh who scored three.

"I'd say that our lack of experience hurt us," Kauffman said after the game. "Our brightest spot was Doug Kalvelage. He's only a sophomore and should help us not only this year, but also in the years to come."

Time for a landing

Spartan co-captain Richard Bays is given a rude introduction to Spartan Stadium's Tartan Turf, as an unidentified Michigan player escapes with a check, and the Wolverines with the game.

Green's attorney says he'll prove Maki started fight

OTTAWA (UPI) — Ted Green's attorney said Tuesday he would demonstrate that Wayne Maki speared Green with his hockey stick before their stick-swinging fight.

Edward Houston, defending Green at his common assault trial in the second half of the first criminal case ever filed against professional hockey players for on-ice fighting, said he would produce a witness who saw Maki stab at Green with his stick at the beginning of their Sept. 21 brawl.

Green, a defenseman for the Boston Bruins, suffered a head injury in the fight which sidelined him for the entire 1969-70 National Hockey League season.

Maki, then playing for the St. Louis Blues, was sent to the Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League after serving his one-month suspension for the fight.

The Boston defenseman went on trial Tuesday before provincial court judge Michael Fitzpatrick. Green said he felt almost completely recovered from his injuries.

Still up in the air about rush?

When you get "down to" the brass bald facts, fraternity life is another form of independence. Yes, you belong and there's a name attached, but you're still very much your own manager.

Beta Theta Pi is a fraternity, no question about it. A group, with a common goal like learning to learn is one of the ways we have our independence. We have our social flings and things, sometimes together and sometimes not.

Ask yourself, Fraternity life for me? It depends. It depends on what you want to get out of college, what you're willing to put into it.

But make that decision after you've had a chance to see what a fraternity really is. A good place to start is Beta Theta Pi, 1148 East Grand River. We'd like to sit down and talk with you. Need a ride, we'll be happy to pick you up. Call us at 351-3921.

I AM THE WANT AD

My MISSION is to serve humanity without regard to creed or position or time or place. I am the servant of the poor, the commissioner of the rich. With each sunrise and sunset I go forth with new missions to perform. Each new day thousands rely upon me to fill their needs and satisfy their wants. I search out all manner of things for all manner of persons. I find the castle for the newlyweds, a home for those grown weary and aged. I find a business for a future giant of industry and a little shop for a widow's livelihood. I alter the course of millions, and many times the future of mankind is in my determination. I recover the lost pets of weeping children, and restore lost persons to anxious friends. I sing the praises of artisans, proclaim the skill of craftsmen. I find labor for the man of brawn as well as opportunity for trained and active minds. I am the Fabbed Dwarf, Aladdin's Lamp and the Magic Wand of modern times. Millions in trade are consummated through me, yet the value of my service is not measured in silver or gold. Even rogues avail themselves of my power and filch from those who trust me. I am an index of trends, a barometer of commerce, a harbinger of coming events. I am a by-word in countless thousands of homes, the first thought in many times of need. My speed of action, the sureness of my success, matches the completeness of my public acceptance. Within my lines are the sad stories and the glad stories of everyday living that goes to make up life. I perform in my own individual way; for me there is no substitute. No other medium, no other method, plan or scheme can duplicate my service. In multiple, I become the world's greatest market of services and things. I am born of the people and have lived and grown by their insistence and over the protests of those who held my destiny. I have become an institution of service big enough and broad enough to do anything for anybody at any time — I AM THE WANT AD.

Ganakas turns traveling man

Gus Ganakas, MSU's basketball coach, is a man without a home — at least for the month or so. After a week of trying to get in touch with the ubiquitous Greek, I finally found him in his office, with the ever present phone pressed to his ear and his desk cluttered with papers, folders and memos.

That's what it's like during the hectic, ulcer-raising recruiting wars which last until the end of May.

Lots of plane trips, endless phone calls and the constant hassle of keeping on top of the high school players who might come to MSU. If you let up for a minute, one minute, it could cost you a player — and in time a conference championship.

"You just never get caught up," Ganakas said between phone calls as he poured over a road map. Even though he's in town for a few days this week, tonight he has to drive to Midland for a banquet and a speech.

Friday he leaves for Youngstown, Ohio, to watch an all-star game and go to another banquet. Last week, a rather busy one, Ganakas flew to Pittsburgh on Friday for the Dapper Dan All-Star game, back here on Saturday to talk to a prospect who was visiting campus, then back on a plane to Schenectady, N.Y. to see Sid Edwards — another big prospect.

Ganakas spent Sunday and Monday with Edwards and then flew to Detroit to talk to 5-11 All-State guard Mike Robinson, who is almost positively coming here.

"I don't get to see my wife very much," he said, with the phone strangely quiet beside him. "I don't mind the traveling, though. I like people and visiting with families. But you can't put anything off... you always have to keep on the move."

"You travel around by plane and when you get a free minute between flights, you have a list of players that should be called. So you call a list of maybe ten and two are home. I end up usually talking to a grandmother of one of them."

"Boy, we'd have a heck of a grandmother team if we could recruit them. Recruiting is just like playing regular games. There is the same kind of depression and elation as in winning and losing."

Right now, Ganakas is a little depressed. Edwards, a 6-9 center who was a teammate of MSU's Gary Pryzbylo in high school, is leaning toward Houston. Two weeks ago he was favoring MSU. Either way, though, he still has to qualify academically on the college boards.

Leaning toward MSU besides Robinson, are two of the best players in the Detroit area, 6-2 Tyrone Lewis, an All-Stater from Ferndale and George Gervin, a 6-6 guard — forward from Detroit Martin Luther King. But both of them still must take the test to qualify. Lewis has already given Ganakas a verbal commitment.

MSU is still in the picture with several other top players around the state and the country, but the chances of getting an out-of-stater are about as narrow as Raquel Welch's waist... or Spiro Agnew's mind.

In the middle of one of Ganakas' sentences, the phone interrupted him. It was Joe Copeland, one of the better players in the country, calling from Virginia.

"Hi Joe," Gus said. "Hey the weather's great here... we're in our bathing suits right now! In fact, it's just like the South, in fact. The blossoms are out on the trees..."

And on it goes... the endless struggle to field a respectable college basketball team. Gone forever are the men who only work from November to March.

If you don't believe it, if you still think coaching is a seasonal vocation — like driving a Good Humor truck, just ask Ganakas. Better yet, ask Mrs. G.

Sailing Club in HFCC meet

The MSU Sailing Club, fresh from a second place finish in last weekend's University of Detroit Regatta, will unfurl the sails again this weekend at a regatta sponsored by Henry Ford Community College.

The Spartan skippers tallied 41 points in the U of D Regatta, 10 points off the winning pace set by Ohio Wesleyan University. OWU had the meet's two top performers in John Hessenbruch and Fritz Hanselman.

Sailing for MSU in the A division were Jeff Norris and Phil Gural with crewman Pat Cross. The B division was skippered by Chuck White, teaming with Nancy Schiffer.

White was third in low-point skippers with a total of 13 points in the Detroit Regatta.

Finishing behind MSU in last weekend's regatta were host U of D with 55 points. Wayne State, 67; General Motors Institute, 78; Xavier, 81; St. Clair Community College, 85; Ohio State and the University of Cincinnati, each with 115; and Henry Ford CC with 118 points.

A future event for the sailing club is the Columbus Star Trophy, April 18-19 at Ohio State. The Star Regatta has 23 teams entered and will be one of the toughest races of the year.

On following weekends the Spartan sailors will be in action April 25-26, sponsoring the Spaghetti Bowl, in Wisconsin, May 9-10, for the Monotype Championships and also competing at Ohio Wesleyan in the Pennell Regatta.

The Midwest championships will be held May 16-17 at Indiana with the closing regatta of the season May 30-31 in an Octagonal at Toronto.

Nine S' athletes are recognized

Nine MSU athletes have been selected to appear in the 1970 edition of the volume "Outstanding College Athletes of America."

They are Rich Saul of Butler, Pa., football; Robert Gale of Trout Creek, basketball; Bruce Richards of Tacoma, Wash., swimming; Phil Fulton of Alma, baseball; Tom Gray of Waterloo, Iowa, tennis; Lynn Janson of East Lansing, golf; Richard Murahata of Boulder, Colo., gymnastics; Tom Muir of Bay City, wrestling, and Denis Boles of St. Louis, Mo., soccer.

The publication features biographical and accomplishments on the field and in the classroom for many young athletes around the nation.

'S' football team needs managers

Anyone (male) interested in becoming a part of the 1970 MSU football team has the opportunity to do so and fill a needed position at the same time. Football managers are urgently needed for the Spring practice sessions and the regular season.

Interested applicants should call Rick Drobot, this year's head manager, at 337-1611 by Friday. Spring practice begins Tuesday, April 14.

LOOKING FOR A SOLID FRATERNITY?

CONSIDER FARMHOUSE

THE OUTSTANDING NATIONAL FRATERNITY

SCHOLARSHIP?

The best record of any fraternity at MSU... first scholastically for the last 15 terms. We have majors in every college in the university. No minimum grade point required.

SOCIAL LIFE?

A well rounded schedule of house parties, as well as week-end excursions like canoe trips. No date? Our little sisters will get you one.

CAMPUS ACTIVITIES?

Currently in ninth place in I.M. sports. FarmHouse is active in homecoming, Greek Sing, and various campus organizations.

PLEDGING?

M.S.U.'s most progressive fraternity — no hazing, no blackball. From the start, we treat a pledge as a brother. We realize that you are here to get an education, and grow. Heavy pledge duties are not a part of FarmHouse's pledge program.

FarmHouse invites all underclassmen to visit our Home at 151 Bogue on Monday or Wednesday from 7 to 10 p.m. even if you're just curious to see what a good fraternity is like. Call 332-8635 for rides.

See a little bit of diversity for yourself— Try fraternity open rush tonight
