Lansing police officials remained optimistic Sunday even though no new leads had turned up as to the whereabouts of 16 · year · old Laurie Murninghan who was kidnaped Thursday during the robbery of a Lansing gift shop.

Virtually all area law enforcement agencies, including the State Police and the BI, continued to search for the girl and er abductor who is described as a male, black, about 25 years old, six feet tall, weighing about 165 pounds and wearing a goatee and mustache.

Miss Murninghan, daughter of former Lansing mayor Max E. Murninghan, was bducted shortly after 2 p.m. Thursday from Gallagher's Gift Shop, at 1010 W. Saginaw St., where she was employed for he summer.

U.S. replacing Israeli jets

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United adjusted up or down depending on whether States is moving quietly to replace Israel's combat losses of F4 Phantom fighter bombers and to provide the means to jam increasingly effective Soviet - built antiaircraft missiles in Egypt, it was learned

The Pentagon refused to say anything about the matter - as did the White House - but government sources described the program as a flexible one designed to maintain the military balance between the Israelis and Egyptians in the face of growing Soviet involvement in military support of the Arabs.

Use of the term flexible indicated there probably is no U.S. commitment to provide a fixed number of new F4s to

There were hints the number will be the Russians continue to toughen Egypt's air defenses with more SAM2 and SAM3 missiles and Soviet - piloted MIG jets.

Newsweek magazine said Sunday the first shipment under the secret program involves eight Phantoms, including six to be taken from U.S. production quotas. It reported also that Nixon assured Israel it could count on two Phantoms a month for an indefinite number of months, starting in August.

Improved radar - guided SAM2 missiles are credited with two or three Phantoms shot down since June 30. In all, U.S. intelligence says the Israelis have lost five Phantoms among about 24 of their planes downed in combat since the six - day war three years ago.

Electronic warfare equipment understood to be going to the Israelis is built to interfere with radar guidance and radio commands by which SAM missiles are directed to their targets.

Officials were unusually reticent about discussing the new arrangements with Israel, evidently because the U.S. government would rather keep the moves secret to avoid severe responses from the Arab world.

Joseph J. Siscoe, asst. secretary of state for the Middle East, appeared on the NBC program "Meet the Press" Sunday and was asked about the Newsweek report.

"I can neither confirm nor deny the Newsweek report," he replied. "I am not going to get into details about what we are doing, or may have done, for Israel."

But he said: "We are going to do whatever is necessary to assure that the balance is not tipped against Israel."

And Siscoe said the "involvement of the Soviet Union in the area has affected the balance."

He said there are 8,000 to 10,000 Soviet personnel now involved and that U.S. intelligence has learned that the Soviet Union recently shipped amphibious equipment to Egypt.

"That doesn't look like defensive equipment to me," he commented. He stressed that "there are no plans for the involvement of American forces." Siscoe recalled that "we are pursuing an important political initiative to try to get the parties talking," and noted that Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser is in Moscow. He indicated the United States would have little definite to say, at least until Nasser's return to Cairo. So far, he said, the Soviet - American talks on the Middle East are in "fundamental disagreement" regarding the questions of Israeli withdrawal from lands conquered in 1967 and regarding what to do with Arab refugees. The United States, he said, does not think Israel should have to give back all the territory. He claimed the United Nations Security Council resolution did not make such a demand. He said so far the two super - powers had agreed that all countries in the area including Israel - had a right to exist and use international waterways.

Israeli embassy officials refused all comment.

ASMSU overspends, broke until December

By JOHN BORGER State News Staff Writer

ASMSU is operationally broke until December 31 of this year, cabinet president Bob Grossfeld told the Student Board Sunday Allocations during spring term had overspent the board's general fund by nearly $6,000, he said. The deficit was covered by curtailing items on the budget, Grossfeld said, but "we have to reduce our spending to approximately zero until the end of fall term" when a new budget comes operational.

"ASMSU, while not officially, is substantially broke. All the budgeted money has been spent," Grossfeld said.

The board now has nearly $30,000 in its account, he said, but this is earmarked for Pop Entertainment.

In a Sunday meeting which drew only four voting members (chairman Harold Buckner, off - campus representatives Nancy Hack and Claire Guthrie and Hubbard - Holmes representative John Farley), the board also granted summer office space in the board room to the Gay Liberation Front (GLF).

The GLF asked for the space as an information center and as a central space through which members could be contacted.

"We don't keep a list of our members' names," a representative of the group said. The representative said this was because homosexuality was illegal under Michigan law and because there are FBI agents on

The group also requested an allocation from the board to pay for books to acquaint resident assistants with homosexuals.

The board suggested that the group take its request to Residence Hall Programs, which handles R.A. training.

"Just over - order on their budget," the board suggested when GLF members said they wanted additional books for their office.

The item which prompted the special meeting, a discussion of the trustees' review of the Academic Freedom Report, was primarily a background session for board members.

No action was taken on the review at the meeting. The board will be contacting trustees and administrators to determine the status of the review and to discover the trustees' major points, however.

Protestants parade in peace marched in Belfast and Londonderry Sunday but Northern Ireland's government put a squeeze on bigger demonstrations scheduled to celebrate victory over Roman Catholics in the Battle of the Boyne three centuries ago.

About 3,000 Protestants paraded to their churches in Belfast without incident. Calm prevailed, too, in Londonderry, where 500 Orangemen went first to lay a wreath at the War Memorial before marching on to church.

The big test comes Monday when 120,000 Orangemen are expected to take part in processions in 19 towns and cities.

But the provincial government banned two parades in particularly sensitive areas, Dungiven and Lackagh. Both are in predominately Roman Catholic Londonderry county. Authorities also ordered extensive re-routing of Monday's big parade in Belfast.

The government massed an impressive display of force to avert trouble. A security corps of 20,000 soldiers, police and men of the Ulster Defense Regiment - national guard - were put on 24-hour alert. They had a full array of weapons and were backed up by squadrons of armored cars and water cannon.

Men of Britain's Special Air Service, tough paratroop commandos, stood by at Belfast Airport with a squadron of helicopters ready to rush to any trouble spot.

The expected 20,000 marchers in Belfast Monday were ordered to avoid predominantly Catholic areas in Springfield, Grosvenor and Crumlin Roads.

The whole northern part of the motorway from Belfast to Lisburn, where British security forces have their headquarters, was shut to all but emergency traffic - security vehicles, ambulances and fire trucks.

The ban on the Dungiven and Lackagh processions was announced by Home Affairs Minister Robert Porter. He said this was done "in the interests of peace." Porter previously had banned all sale of liquor Monday.

Forbidding the procession in Dungiven is likely to cause ill feeling among the Protestants in the town, where Roman Catholics of the Ancient Order of Hibernians defied a similar ban

A message from bishop Neil Farren was read in all Roman Catholic churches in Londonderry Sunday. It called for discipline

"Lasting strife must sully the good name of Derry, put its future at risk and, saddest of all, damage the character and conscience of our youth," the bishop said.

FBI 'check out' check threatens right to know

The latest assault on civil liberties by J. Edgar Hoover's zealots has taken place in Atlanta, Georgia. Almost unbelievably the encounter involves the Feds versus the libraries.

The plan was this: the FBI would obtain check - out records from the several libraries in that city and then carefully scrutinize them. Anyone who showed an interest in checking out books on explosives and similar disciplines would immediately be placed on a suspect list and, thereby take his place along with millions of other citizens in the memory banks of the government's omni-puter.

The reason?

According to FBI logic anyone showing an interest in the destructive arts is a potential troublemaker and, probably, a rioter - radical. The idea. of course, is to tag the prejudged bad guys in advance so that the government will know who to nail when something erupts.

Regardless of its intention, this project is completely out of line. There is a point at which FBI thanks to a bureaucracy drunk with the ideals of efficiency at any price - a direct threat to it. Probably this point was reached when the federal government began sorting through people's garbage for information. The library project is of the same order.

There are two things unnerving about this entire business. First, while it is to the credit of their profession that many librarians refused the FBI request, others did not and offered to allow federal inspection of their records. Certainly this is a breach of the public trust. By cooperating with the authorities in their unjust quest, the libraries in question were striking a blow against the very precept that they are supposed to protect: the individual's freedom to knowledge without harassment.

The second bewilderment is the self - righteous presumption that a man may be typed by the books that he reads. This is no more valid than the thesis that "clothes make the man." If this idea is carried to its furthest extreme then it seems logical to assume that someone who checks out a number of works by James Joyce is a sexfiend. Or that the person who is well read in Russian history is a Communist. Or that someone with a taste for science fiction is, in fact, a Martian.

We are told that, because of the ire that was immediately raised, attempts to save our society become the FBI has dropped its library peeping plan. One cannot be sure, however, that it will stay dropped. For the sake of self - preservation it might not be a bad idea if each of the 40,000 - plus MSU students checked out a few books on explosives, Marx and The Selling of a President. Then when the Thought Police come around to audit our reading habits, they will not know

Coke contest 'capped;' right on' for the FTC

In a rare, though we are told not unprecedented, move the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has come down hard on deceptive advertising. The defendant in the action is the Coca-Cola Co. and the specific fraud in mind is a now - defunct sales boosting contest called "Big Name Bingo."

On the surface the thing seemed simple enough. One simply had to buy; a carton of Coke or Tab, get the contest card enclosed within and match the spots on the card with selected bottle cap liners. Thus, hypothetically, "freed the slaves" matched with the Abraham Lincoln bottle cap liner. What was never

'G' strung out

Family theaters are a failure. At least that was the finding of two Detroit clerics who opened a family theater two months ago in response to complaints that none existed in Detroit. They showed only "G" movies.

A week before "Gone with the Wind" was to play, the theater died with the breeze. Couldn't meet expenses.

Must be a moral somewhere. Every righteous effort has a moral. The shutdown could be some deity's pervert way of saying that sex even celluloid sex - is not inherently clearly indicated was the fact that a number of the questions had more than one answer and an unwritten rule required that they all be given to

The FTC has ruled, however, that it is quite unreasonable to assume that the average American is a skilled semanticist and therefore, for all practical purposes the contest was a gyp. The possible result of the ruling could be that the Coca-Cola Co. may have to pay off hundreds of thousands of people who got at least one correct name per question - and the tab would be the promised $100 prize each.

It is our hope that the FTC will follow through on its threatened action and that the action will serve as a landmark case. Ignoring for a moment the fact that most promotional contests constitute a direct affront to the sensibilities and intelligence of the American people, the fact remains that something like "Big Name Bingo" is a fraud, pure and simple. Were a private individual to attempt to perpetrate such a hoax, he would surely wind up in deep trouble with the authorities. We can see no reason why a corporation should get off any easier. It is a sick society, indeed, that spends its time denouncing external threats and, yet, closes its eyes to blatant mistreating and defrauding of the people by unscrupulous advertisers. Maybe the Coca-Cola case will mark the beginning of a change. It would be nice.

LARRY LERNER

We mean: 'On Strike, Open It Up!'

A recent letter to the State News cogently pointed out the vast communication gap which exists not only between adults and the young but among the young as a politically naive group. Appropriately - in carrying the emblazoned banner of "communications breakdown" - the letter's author wasn't even vaguely aware of his profundity.

Basically the letter - writer expressed the opinion that the University couldn't end the Indochina war or free Bobby Seale or do very much about eradicating ROTC, but he, on the other hand, could supply an answer: a new course capable of training and allowing students to work in the PEACE movement, etc. . .

Retort: You know, everybody has got to have a "solution," an "answer." In this case, a partial solution suggested is a new course. How original! How creative! Students are so indoctrinated with courses, texts, grades, that many believe the answers (woe to those who actually believe answers exist) lie with the devising of new, "exciting" courses.

The problem with the student who wrote the letter and all those essentially agreeing with his position is this: they take the strike demands and others coming from the radical, educational fringe all too seriously while remaining dangerously unaware of what the demands are really saying about our system, government, etc.

Most, if not all, of those involved in the student strike, realized that striking wouldn't end or curtail the Indochina war, nor would it free Bobby Seale, disarm the police and National Guard, or sever the University's link with he Defense Dept. via ROTC. That's why the demands, in this case and in most others, are non negotiable . . . because . . . we were trying to say you can't fight an immoral, unconstitutional war AND you can't allow

ROTC on the University's premises to recruit for murder AND you can't let Bobby Seale rot in jail (along with thousands of other political prisoners tried without juries composed of their peers) and possibly be electrocuted AND, at the same time, have America's colleges and universities (the supposed system of education / enlightenment / learning)

Part II: We were merely trying to say that you can't allow a government to continually hoodwink the American people - whether it be the Kennedy, Johnson, or Nixon administration — and expect students to sit idly by in a university which remains open - open to FBI / CIA infiltration, open to tampering for political gain, open to a continuation of factory, rote - learning - type education. We were really trying to say, "ON STRIKE, OPEN IT UP!" only it came out, "CLOSE IT DOWN!" because for too long the proposals of even moderate students had been spurned by faculty and administrators on the other end of imaginary channels of > communication. We were simply trying to tell President Nixon, Clifton Wharton, et al., that it wasn't that we knew too little - that we stifle our brains from kindergarten throughout college AND, yes, graduate schools, too . . . you can feed lies to us about "turning the corner in Vietnam" or "de-escalating the war" for us while escalating it for everyone else in Southeast Asia and probably have these absurdities swallowed by the silent majority . . . you can tell us what's right about America as if we didn't know . . . you can make the flag into a symbol of pro - administration, pro. war as if you didn't know that every time the American flag was burned or draped across somebody's shoulders it was a show of contempt for the BASTARDIZATION of the ideals of this supposed democracy...

don't expect students to be good little Jews on their way to inevitable assimilation into oblivion. The difficulty in trying to communicate with a Nixon or the student who wrote the letter to the editor is that some of us are trying, desperately trying, to re-establish an humane interaction among people. You can't talk about humane interaction when a President must deal with statistics, i.e. wondering whether five or six per cent you can do all that and more . . . but unemployment is beneficial to the economy.

The difficulty in trying to communicate with a Nixon or the student who wrote the letter to the editor is that some of us are trying desperately to re-establish a humane interaction among people. You can't talk about humane interaction when a President must deal with statistics . . .

didn't have all the facts (which, of course, only the President alone was privileged to know) - but that we understood the situation (Cambodia, Vietnam, education, the college campuses, repression) far too well. We knew (and suddenly actualized our thought after Kent State) that we didn't have to wait until President Nixon disclosed the "true facts of our involvement in Southeast Asia" because, baby, murder, mutilation and willful destruction are facts of, not life, but death and nobody has to disclose them . . . because every night they're on Walter Cronkite and we can see them with our own eyes (something many Vietnamese can't do anymore).

We were only trying to tell the President that, sure, you can kill us . . . yup, you can

The strike was indeed successful Everyone - that means all the pseudo. revolutionaries, the busy role - playing leaders — interacted and had a feel of humanity, being close to other people, touching, doing, being, acting, searching, crying, laughing.

To communicate with the young who still believe in solutions, answers, ends, is the objective. President Nixon and friends are operating on one wave length; some of us are on the other extreme - whether it is ostentatiously apparent through acts of physical destruction or through the radicalization of thought and mental awareness.

Only a fool would prophesy a dearth of student strike activity in the coming

'Old Glory' sign of new distress

It's become so common an addition to cars, I'm sure Ford, GM and Chrysler will offer a standard replica of the emblem as an option with their 1971 models. The work clothes, front lawns and garages of middle America are all plastered with the red, white and blue, and the woman whose favorite color is not among the famous three has lately found it difficult to replenish her wardrobe.

The American flag has found a new popularity as the main symbol of the most overpowering wave of American nationalism since World War II. With motherhood and apple pie on the decline with the impending liberation of the providers of these services, loyalty to America reigns supreme. But despite the patriotic frenzy, Old Glory is simply a sign of a new distress. It is the security blanket of the silent majority and the holy robe of Spiro

When there were only black, brown and red revolutionaries, white conservatives only needed to distinguish themselves from the "devil - Reds." But as the Communist threat broadened to include a white corps of 'pinkos,' 'bums' and an "effete corps of impudent snobs," the threatened majority had to form their own club: America, Inc.

As the Nixonites cleverly called for their silent constituents to rally "round the flag", the new patriots became aggressively and vocally patriotic, happily following a vice - presidential cheerleader. It was a clever use of psyche that one has to

But rather than sell the mind to a god called patriotism, America must face the second revolution, the twentieth century renaissance that it fears so much.

It is going on despite the patriots' romantic veneer.

As a result of this frightening flag waving neurosis, the news media have begun to respond in the way the silent majority has demanded. While protesting loudly at the charges made against them by the vice president, they have dully heeded his advice. We no longer read, hear or see instant riots, protests and dissension. To the media, current American problems have become secondary to traditional American heritage and history. The silent majority has found its voice, instructing the media to ignore the voices of the oppressed.

To date this summer, there have been urban rebellions in Miami; Asbury Park, N.J., and at this writing Detroit is about to rekindle its unprecedented flames. But the news media have all but ignored these disturbances except to count the dead and wounded. It no longer matters to the public who is dissatisifed and why. The emphasis is on repression in the news media as well as in law enforcement, and like children, we see and hear only what we

Newsmen are indeed fiddling while Rome burns, centering more and more on the fortressed minds of suburbia. In an expected reaction, the media is responding to a market, where the customer is always

The customer sees a country with a bureaucratic structure to answer every criticism, an organization supposedly devoted to every cause. The customer wants to believe that this piece of machinery, which he has purchased so dearly, is functional and efficient. He understandably wants to love this contraption and take pride in it. There is no more modern efficient machine in the world, and the customer believes that all he has must be good - for there is no comparison.

So they wave the flag and talk of love of country - trying to make it real, as the song goes, but compared to what?

But soon company and customer will realize that riot squads cannot disintegrate unrest. The country is turning around; it will be revolution and renaissance and re-establishment, and we all can and should participate. Saying that our country is better than most is small comfort in a world of war and injustice.

If those who are victims of the patriotism fad want to cling to their symbols and rhetoric, they must begin to force the government to remedy the causes of dissention rather than repress rebellions. The causes are American problems suffered by Americans, they are a part of the country the patriots claim to love so dearly.

The flag is not just the symbol of "old" glory and past success, but it is a banner that represents the current crises in America. If the "love - it - or - leave it" Americans want to ignore these crises, they have seceded from a kind of union that can make a country heal itself. Maybe they should adopt another symbol, to make their cop-out clear.

OUR READERS' MIND

Bill keeps the profs off the streets

To the Editor:

A cheer goes up for the Michigan Legislature! What better way to placate the angry people back home and also to solve the problem of campus unrest than to force the radical instigators - the educators - into the classroom where they belong! A stroke of enlightened genius, indeed a masterpiece of legislative craftsmanship - how is it that the AAUP could consider 12 hours as maximum while counseling nine as the optimum when our own congressmen, skilled as they are in educational matters, aware as they are of the intricacies of the teaching professor, realized that truly 15 hours of class time a week is the best? We must not let students or faculty have time to think about social problems, "An idle mind is the devil's playground." (Playground hours are 8 to 5 at the Capitol.)

To meet these new legislative obstacles to higher education the following suggest themselves:

a. Let's double the number of courses offered or sections of courses offered. This will reduce class size, as well as produce mild headaches for those who must schedule classrooms and times for a newly expanded University program. More money for class buildings can come from faculty pay, funds will become available as the sane members leave to find tolerable working conditions.

b. Let's count office hours and sidewalk conversations with passing students as class time, each of us might lecture our wife at dinner or a student can be assigned to each of us with whom we could converse at lunch.

c. We could double the number of hours per week our courses meet and thus put the students who now only go to class 20 hours a week on a more respectable 40-hour week.

d. Let's not neglect home - rooms and study halls, in-class assignments and projects, field trips, tours and class picnics. e. We can redefine "hour" to mean "20 minutes" rather than the current "50 minutes." Each period then becomes 21/2 "hours" long.

If we want to retain our quality students and faculty, "e." is perhaps the only real alternative. Otherwise the State of

HELLO? IS THIS THE DAISY HILL

Michigan will be the only one to award in its college a B.A. in High School. Anyone interested in unionizing our profession would have little trouble convincing us that here was another example of exploitation. You can bet that they will not double our salary to correspond with this increase in our work load. As individuals we have no power to resist - we can only submit or abandon the State of Michigan, letting it become an educational wasteland. The only predictable result will be hasty and inferior preparations, and an end to pursuit of research and concern for community problems and social relevancy; in short, a reduction of the overall quality of education in our state.

Films from 40 countries will be shown in 11 locations on ampus today through Friday as a unique feature of the 11th nnual Fine Arts Festival.

MSU's Worldwide Film Festival, Ali Issari, head of the film roduction unit in the Instructional Media Center, said, is the irst of its kind on this campus and perhaps the first on any U.S.

"I know of no other film festival of such scope," Issari said. The films will be shown from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m. Monday brough Friday at 10 locations on campus. Feature - length films ill be shown in Fairchild Theatre from 4 to 6:30 p.m. Monday Like the other Fine Arts Festival events, these showings are pen to the public without charge.

Each evening, films from several countries grouped by region ill be shown continuously in each auditorium. A program with a hedule and a synopsis of each film will be provided.

"The intention of the festival is to show our audiences what is eing done in film around the world," Issari said. "Film is surely one of the most powerful means of building and preserving mutual understanding among the peoples of the world. It is an especially powerful and appealing force to young people today.'

Early this year, letters were sent to 116 embassies requesting two films representatives of their film industry or film art.

More than 60 films from 40 nations have been received. These include feature films and documentaries in color and black and

The films were timed and reviewed by Tom Foster, a graduate student in television and radio. "We received good cooperation from most countries because they are interested in this type of cultural exchange," Issari said. Films have been supplied by some of the less familiar nations such as Kuwait, Uganda, Tangania, as well as some of the newer African nations such as Zambia.

Issari said he would like to see this type of festival grow and eventually expand to include other cultural events. "We could have an international art festival with many nations contributing examples of their dance and drama as well as films."

The schedule is as follows:

- Tuesday, "The Skinny Fellow and Some Others," feature length, and "The Bag," Polish films, English subtitles.

- Wednesday, "Girls in the Sun," feature, and "Journey to the City of Legends," both from Greece, English dialogue.

- Thursday, several 35 mm short subjects from England, Kuwait and India.

- Friday, "Gain Sons, Not Loosing Daughters," a feature from the Republic of China (Taiwan), English subtitles. One program for the entire week is scheduled for each of the other 10 locations. These films will be shown continuously each evening from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The locations and their programs are as follows: South Kedzie Hall, room 105, films from Scandinavian countries -Sweden, Norway and Denmark.

- 107 South Kedzie Hall, films from Europe - Belgium, Germany, The Netherlands and Spain.

Ron English captures Lansing golf title

The touch of a champion

MSU senior-to-be Ron English displays the putting touch that led him to the 71 on Sunday and with Friday's 74, finished at 212, two strokes better than Lansing All - City Medal Play Championship at Groesbeck over the weekend. English putted magnificently Saturday en route to a 5-under par 66. He added a MSU Golf Coach Bruce Fossum is probably wishing the golfing season was just starting. The way a couple of his players are shooting, they're wishing the same thing.

Ron English became the second Spartan golfer in two weeks to capture a major intra-state tournament as he fired a final round 71 Sunday to win the Lansing All - City Medal Play Championship at Groesbeck. Two weeks ago Denny Vass captured the state amateur championship at Charlevoix.

English finished with a 54-hole total of 212, two strokes better than Fred Behymer Jr. and three shots ahead of former All - City titlist George Wakulsky. English's teammate Lynn Janson had a final round of one over par 72 to finish at 219. English started the day at 141 that gave him a three - stroke lead over seven golfers, including Behymer and Wakulsky. The tall lanky English covered the front nine in one over par while Behymer turned in a nifty 34, two shots under par to even the match at the end of 45 holes. But English didn't realize this as he was four threesomes ahead of Behymer. After parring the tenth and eleventh holes, English sank a 20-foot birdie putt to go even for the day. But he lost a stroke to par two holes later when he three putted on the 14th green. After three straight pars, English headed for the final hole with the news that Behymer had birdied another hole which put him one stroke ahead. But the smooth - swinging MSU - senior to - be put together two long drives for an eagle. Though it came up short, English tapped home a birdie to put the pressure back on Behymer.

Just as English was finishing his round on the 18th hole, Behymer started the 15th, which actually finished him for the day. He lifted his drive to the left on the 190 - yard hilly par 3 and laneded in a clump of trees. Attempting to chip out and over a sand trap, Behymer couldn't get clean swing at the ball and landed in the trap. He then ran his chip shot past the cup and two. putted for a double bogie, leaving him two. strokes behind the eventual champion.

Behymer had a chance for a birdie on the 17th which would have cut English's lead to one, but he left a 30-foot putt a couple of feet short. His second shot on the 18th went over the green and his returning chip was off to the left, giving

English the championship. English, who played as the number 3 or 4 man most of this past season for the Spartans credited the eighth and ninth holes Sunday a giving him a big lift.

"I missed the greens on both of those holes," He said, "but had good chip shots to compensate for it. I parred both, and I think that gave me big boost.

"My irons weren't too strong today and my putting wasn't as good as yesterday, but I guess had enough to win. Actually I hit the ball best the opening day but I putted terribly. Then yesterday I had ten fewer putts than on Friday's round, and I knocked eight strokes off my

REC

Behymer, who was playing superb golf through 14 holes Sunday, said his double bogie five on the 15th was not the first time he had had trouble with that hole.

"That's the third time in four years that hole has proved fatal to me," he said. "I thought! could get back on the green after my bad drive. but I couldn't get enough of the ball and plopped her right in the trap.'

For his winning efforts, English took home, trophy and some other merchandise. It was a long day for the 6-1, 160 pounder. He was upa 6 a.m. Sunday to go to work at Walnut Hills the description have been received from as far away as Cleveland and Chicago.

However, Lansing Police Chief Derold Husby said Sunday there was no evidence to suggest the girl had been taken from the Lansing area. Husby said he believed the chances that the girl will be found improve with time. However, he added that other police officials would likely take the opposite view.

Police continued to puzzle over the abductor's motive in kidnaping the girl.

O'Toole said one theory is that the man panicked when his gun discharged as he struck Mrs. Gallagher over the head. Though the bullet went into the ceiling, the man may have thought he had shot Mrs. Gallagher and, not wanting to leave a witness, he took Miss Murninghan with him, O'Toole said.

Since the abductor has not yet
