Accusations, panic mark lock change

BY JOHN BORGÉ
State News Staff Writer

Lack of effective communication produced confusion and near-paranoia Thursday as 19 locks were removed from student government offices on the order of Gold Buckner, Chairman of Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU).

Locks were removed and changed in every ASMSU office except the Office of Black Affairs, the business office, Man and Machine Bookstore and the offices of the four governing groups.

Individuals in the offices had received no warning that locks would be changed. Some interpreted the move as a "power play" by Buckner. Off-campus representative Rick Kibbey called the move "a coup."

Buckner said it was not.

There is no reason for everyone on this campus to be paranoid," he said. "I ordered the locks changed weeks ago. I didn't tell anybody because I thought the locks would be changed sometime next week and was going to tell them at the board meeting tonight (Thursday)."

Buckner said locks were changed only on offices for which a satisfactory accounting of the existing keys could not be found.

He added that burglaries had necessitated better security measures. The choice, he said, was to either change the locks on the offices or lock the entire Student Services Building every night at 5 p.m.

Paul Hekhuis, dean of students, said security in the Student Services Bldg. has been a problem for some time. He had dealt with both Buckner and Cabinet member Bob Grossfeld since last spring about the problem, he said, and the possibility of reconsidering the current open status had been raised.

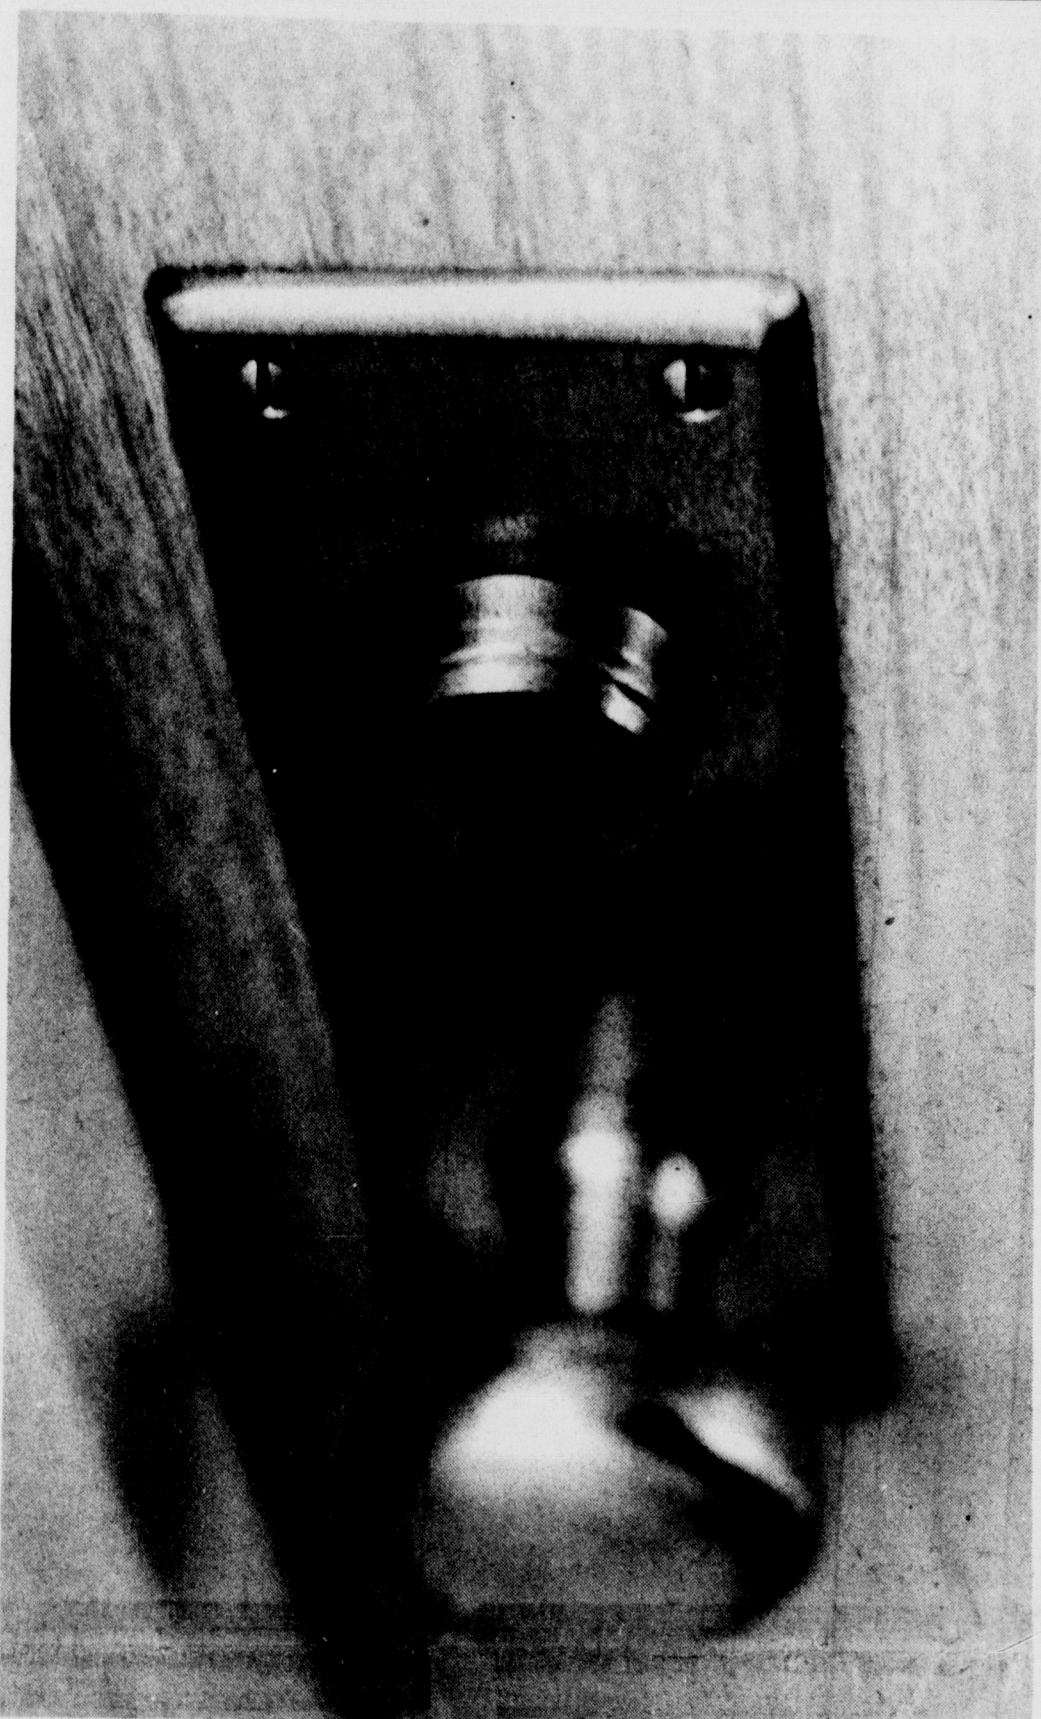

At that time, he said, the choice was not as black and white as Buckner indicated.

Hekhuis said many of the groups recognizing the lack of security for their offices while the locks were out were really concerned about the status of office allocations.

That concern had already been aroused by Buckner's notice Wednesday which vacated all offices vacated by Friday afternoon. Many groups felt they were being summarily evicted.

"I made a mistake in the wording," Buckner said Thursday. "All the offices were up for review tonight anyway, and the groups that were approved for this,"

A previously-scheduled lock removal in some ASMSU offices caused some anxiety Thursday over status of assigned offices. Locks were replaced, however, in an attempt to thwart vandalism and burglaries which have plagued ASMSU offices since spring term. The ASMSU Board scheduled office allocations for their meeting Thursday night.

Military government resigns in Jordan

BEIRUT (AP) — The Jordanian government serving under embattled King Hussein resigned Thursday night following the disappearance of the prime minister just as the monarch's military forces appeared to have gained the upper hand over guerrilla insurgents.

Amman radio said Hussein accepted the resignation of the week-old government of military officers headed by Gen. Mohamed Daoud. The king asked the ministers to stay on as a caretaker regime until a new government could be formed.

Informants in Cairo said Daoud, who had been attending the summit meeting of Arab leaders there, disappeared from his hotel room. They said the prime minister left a note indicating that he intended to form a civilian government aimed at restoring peace to Jordan.

In other developments:

— In Washington, the Pentagon said several U.S. Air Force units in Europe which had been alerted for possible evacuation of Americans from Jordan were released for routine airlift missions. The move reflected an easing of the military crisis.

— In Cairo, Arab leaders launched a new move to get a cease fire in Jordan.

— In Tel Aviv, Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan voiced full support for Hussein in his fight against the guerrillas.

— In London, Prime Minister Edward Heath announced a new five-power attempt to secure release of 54 hostages held by the Palestinian guerrillas who hijacked their airliners.

— In Jerusalem, an International Red Cross spokesman said a 17-vehicle Red Cross convoy carrying medical supplies and food will leave for Jordan Friday morning.

Two captured Palestinian leaders, released by Jordan from Cairo to Damascus to try to get Yasir Arafat, powerful guerrilla chief, to accept the cease-fire they had worked out with Hussein.

A four-man Arab peace mission returned to Amman from Cairo and met with Hussein in an attempt to get the fighting stopped. The mission headed by Gen. Jaafar el Numairi, president of Sudan, flew to Amman first Tuesday and returned to Cairo Wednesday with freed guerrilla leaders.

Fighting ebbed in Amman and an airlift of foreign refugees began. A Middle East Airline plane carrying 58 foreigners, 32 of them Americans, landed in Beirut. Passengers said mortar shells hit 100 yards from their plane before it took off. Two other planes took Britons to Cyprus.

Israeli observers 10 miles west of the fighting in the north said Jordanian troops broke the resistance of the guerrillas with heavy artillery barrages at Irbid, Jordan's second largest city 50 miles north of Amman.

After the artillery barrage lifted, army units began pursuing the guerrillas, they said.

The Israelis also said invaders from Syria, reported routed Wednesday, withdrew to Dera in southern Syria leaving behind 25 destroyed tanks.

Amman radio said 5,000 guerrillas had surrendered, but it did not say whether they gave up in the north or in all parts of Jordan.

Official reports from Amman reaching the British Foreign Office in London said Hussein's forces have won back virtual control of the whole country after a week of bloody fighting.

Before the fighting died down in Amman, Jordanian troops opened artillery and heavy machine-gun fire on Arab guerrilla strongholds in Jebel Webdeh district. A vast wall of smoke hung over Amman from a fire that burned throughout the night in the heart of the capital.

Halls lack residents; cost MSU $2 million

By SHARMAN STEWART
State News Staff Writer

Residence halls are under assigned in excess of 2,000 students this term.

The decrease in dorm residents means a loss of $2 million to the University.

This is the first time that the dorms have been forced to operate under capacity, according to Robert C. Underwood, manager of residence halls. In past years the dorms have been filled to capacity with three to four students to a room. Today, single occupant and vacant rooms are found on many floors.

The decrease, according to Underwood, is due to the University's decision to reduce freshmen enrollments.

"Each year the university cuts back on freshmen enrollments to stay within the limit of 40,000 students that the legislature has placed on MSU," he said.

The effect of the decrease in funds on the operation of the dorms will not be known until late in the year, according to Underwood.

"Since we will have fewer students to serve the costs of running the dorms will be reduced."

"We knew last spring that we would be operating at this loss and altered our goals to combat the loss," he explained.

The increased hours of freshmen women freedom, 24-hour open houses and the liquor policy offered students in the residence halls is an attempt to become more student oriented, Underwood explained.

"We are not trying to lure students into staying in the dorms by loosening regulations. If a student doesn't want to be in a dorm, then he shouldn't be. The only lure is better service for each dollar spent," he said.

The number of upperclassmen leaving the dorm each year is consistent and does not affect operations, Underwood explained.

"Juniors and seniors move off campus thinking that they can live for less, I'm not convinced they can. Computed on a daily basis living in a residence hall is less expensive than apartment living," he said.

The $35 increase in room and board this term is not a result of the 2,000 shortage, according to residence hall management. A 40 per cent increase in labor and food costs over four years is blamed for the hike.

"The increase is insignificant when viewed on the daily basis of 45 cents a day," Underwood said.

"Inflation catches everyone. The dorms are no exception."

New grad tax will provide COGS budget

By STEVE WATERBURY
State News Staff Writer

The Council of Graduate Students (COGS) announced Thursday that MSU graduate students voted to provide the council with its first operating budget through a 50-cent graduate tax on graduate students.

The tax, approved by a more than two to one margin, will provide COGS with about $4,250 a term beginning winter term.

The 50-cents per graduate student per term will be collected during registration in the same manner as the undergraduate assessment of the Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU).

The referendum was the first attempt made by COGS to finance their organization through use of a graduate student tax. The council has operated since 1967 without an office or a budget.

COGS moved into its present office in 310 Student Services Building during summer term. ASMSU is expected to decide late Thursday whether to continue to allocate office space to COGS.

The funds will be used for office expenses, to finance a COGS newsletter, and to create an emergency financial aid fund for graduate students.

COGS President Peter F. Flynn said Thursday the passage of the referendum will enable the council to provide "improved communications for graduate students on the latest information on available funds and grants, University regulations, and dissertation problems and solutions."

Council members presently are reportedly considering the implementation of collective bargaining procedures for graduate assistants. Flynn said he was "surprised" at the large amount of support for collective bargaining revealed in a recent campus poll.

In the past, COGS has been active in the representation of graduate students on University committees, and lobbied successfully for a $200 increase in the per-term stipend for half time teaching assistants.

Contraceptive plan launched

By TOM SPANIOLO
State News Staff Writer

After nearly a year of preparation by MSU students, physicians and administrators, the Health Center Thursday initiated a new policy regarding contraceptives and family planning.

The policy gives all MSU students who are normally able to use the health center the chance to obtain contraceptives.

In order for a student to obtain contraceptives he must first call the Health Center for an appointment and specify to the appointment clerk what he wants, so the student in question will be referred to a doctor who has agreed to handle such requests.

Until this fall the Health Center did not have a comprehensive policy regarding contraceptives.

MSU President for Student Affairs, Milton Olin, said he is "not expecting any major complaints" because of the new policy.

Formulation of Olin's new policy was initiated in October, 1969 by the Ad Hoc Committee for Family Planning chaired by Dr. Arnold Werner, director of psychiatric services at Olin. The committee was composed of a cross section of the University community including an obstetrician, a married student couple, a single student and two other people. It was the committee's recommendation that the Health Center provide contraceptives and family planning advice in the interest of the overall health-care program.

The recommendation was then sent to the University Health Center Advisory Board, also composed of a cross section of the community, which approved the report with a few minor changes.

The final report of the Ad Hoc Committee for Family Planning was passed in June. In part the report stated the following:

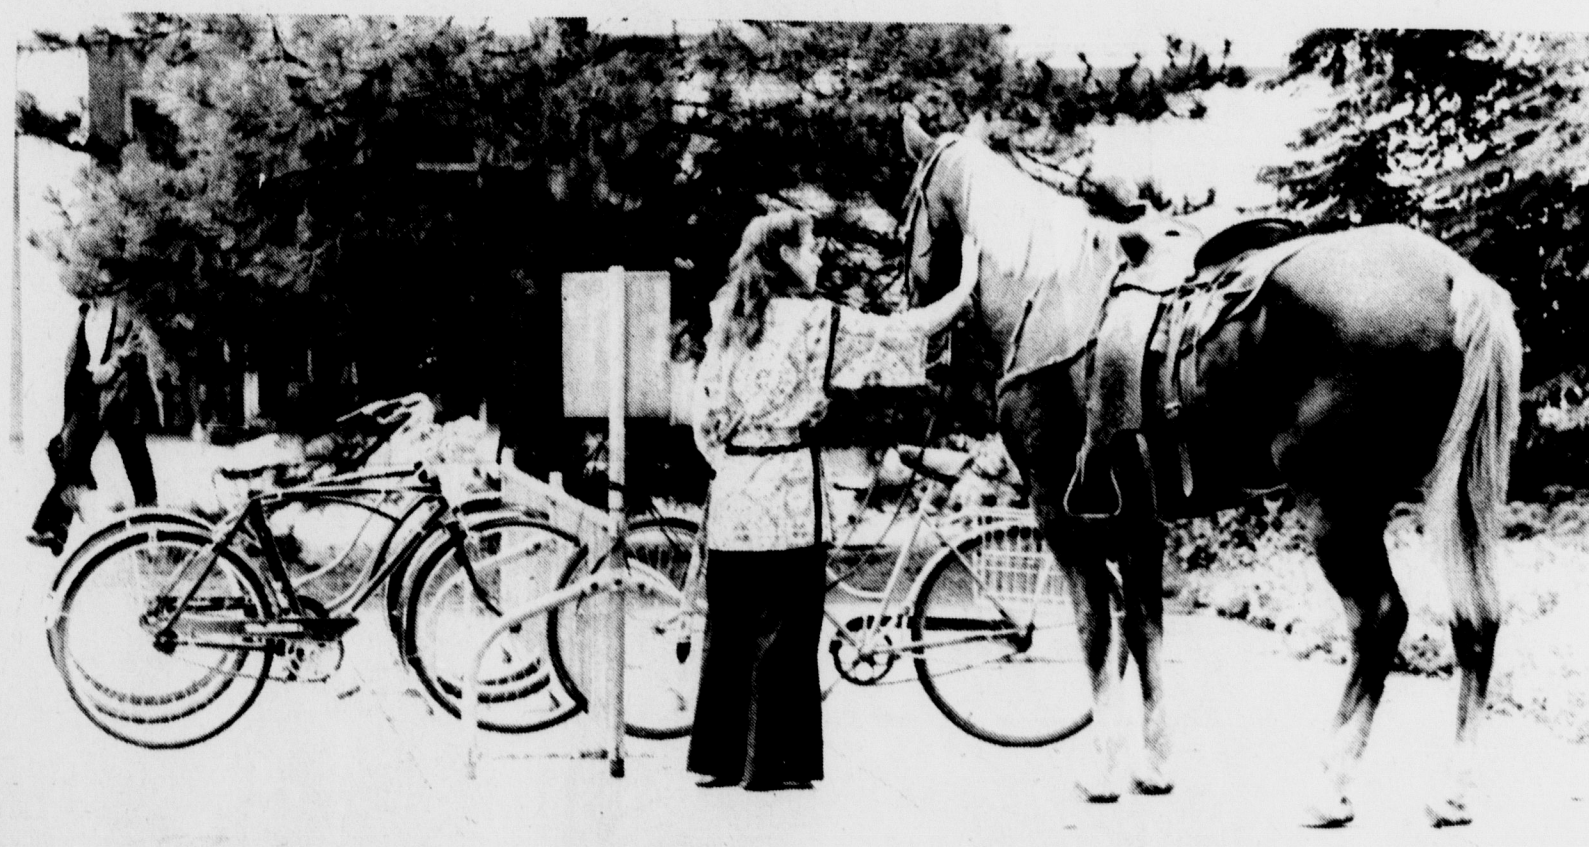

- "That contraceptive services be provided to those persons eligible for other Health Center services."
- "Clinical standards for contraceptive prescriptions should be determined by the Division of Obstetrics and Gynecology."

Specific recommendations of contraceptive devices and medications should be made to the Pharmacy and Therapeutics Committee and these materials should be made available in the Health Center Pharmacy."

• "There is an acute need for greatly expanded services for counseling students with sexual concerns. Those needs include:

Additional space, trained personnel not currently on the Health Center staff, such as medical and psychiatric, social workers and supporting staff."

The report also urged a comprehensive family planning program which would cover a wide spectrum of topics including "health, religion, moral, social, psychological and personal parameters."

Authorities hold three in Wisconsin bombing

HILLSBORO, Tex. (AP) — Texas authorities announced they were holding three men for questioning Thursday in connection with the University of Wisconsin bombing Aug. 24 in which a graduate student was killed and three persons injured.

The Texas Department of Public Safety issued a statement saying the men were arrested at the request of the FBI and were being held at Hillsboro, a town of 10,000 about 65 miles south of Dallas.

The FBI was investigating to determine the men's identities, the department said.

The four men have been charged in the bombing and were placed on the FBI's most wanted list.

The men were detained Thursday afternoon after being stopped on Interstate 35 in a car with Wisconsin license plates, the department said. They were taken to the sheriff's office in Hillsboro.

The Aug. 24 bombing of the Army Mathematics Research Center on the university campus at Madison resulted in FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover's announcing earlier this month a nationwide search for the four young men.

In making that announcement the FBI identified the fugitives as Karleton Lewis Armstrong, 22, Dwight Alan Armstrong, 19, his brother; David Sylvan Fine, 18, and Lee Frederick Burt, 22 a summer student at the university.

The four were charged with sabotage, destruction of government property and conspiracy.

Cambodian government troops, blocked by a stubborn enemy force in attempts to recapture a big section of Cambodia's heartland, were cut off from their supply base Thursday by blown bridges to their rear.

Some 16 battalions of Cambodian troops -- up to 6,000 men were cut off when Vietnamese saboteurs slipped round the task force north of Phnom Penh and blew up three bridges.

Cambodian officers in Skoun said it was not known when the offensive would be able to resume. The Cambodian high command was reported to be holding back on the use of air strikes and artillery to root the enemy out of Taing Kauk. Fleeing villagers had informed the army that earlier allied air strikes had had no effect on dislodging the well-entrenched foe.

A vast sea and air hunt for three missing balloonists continued Thursday and the Coast Guard said it had no plans to call off the search.

Two airplanes and two cutters hunted through the night in the 50,000-square-mile search area off Newfoundland where the balloon "the free life" was last heard from Monday evening.

The three missing are Malcolm Brighton, 32, an English aeronautical engineer, Rodney Anderson, 32, a New York commodities broker and his wife, Pamela, 28, an actress.

They took off from an eastern Long Island meadow Sunday to attempt the first balloon crossing of the Atlantic. Their last message was at 7 p.m. Monday, when they radioed: "Six hundred feet and descending. Signing off. Will try contact after landing."

The Federal Trade Commission has issued a general warning to the public that certain Italian-made chenille berets are very easily ignited and are dangerous.

Not only do they ignite quickly, the FTC says, "but they burn with great intensity, release a large amount of heat and are extremely difficult to extinguish."

Test strips of the material used in the berets have begun burning while the flame was still several inches away, making lighting a cigarette while wearing the hat an extremely dangerous act.

A crowd of 100 to 200 persons gathered at noon to discuss the student housing problem in the Ann Arbor area. Speakers supported the three-week tent-in which was forced to disband Wednesday.

The university went to court Wednesday to have the tent city declared a health hazard. Paul Gikas, a representative of the Washtenaw County Health Department, appeared that evening and read a statement saying the protest against the student housing situation had become a health hazard.

He said the University didn't need an injunction, but could remove the tents under trespassing laws.

The tent-in was a protest against the lack of moderate-priced housing for college students.

Soviets recover Luna capsule

MOSCOW (AP) -- Soviet space scientists successfully guided home their first samples of moon soil Thursday and quickly hailed the all-mechanical feat as equal to the U.S. Apollo moon landings.

The 11-day mission of the unmanned Luna 16 craft ended as recovery teams tracked the capsule through the earth's atmosphere and picked it up on target more than 1,400 miles southeast of Moscow, in Soviet Kazakhstan.

There was no immediate announcement on the quantity or condition of the moon soil aboard, which Luna 16's mechanical hand scooped up in the Sea of Fertility on the lunar surface Sunday.

Dr. Ivan F. Obraztsov, head of Moscow's Aeronautics Institute and a leading space expert, praised the Luna success on television as "a large achievement of Soviet science and technology."

He acknowledged that the U.S. moon landings also had been "big events," but said the Luna experiment "is a no less important event, from the point of view of technology."

This was believed to be the second Soviet attempt to make the round-trip moon scoop expedition. The first ended in failure in July 1969, when Luna 15 crashed on the moon after its retrorockets apparently failed. That mission coincided with the Apollo 11 landing and apparently had been calculated to beat Americans home with soil samples.

But the Luna 16 success gives the Russians a clear lead over the Americans in unmanned lunar exploration. Soviet press reports indicate Luna-type craft will be used to try to extend this lead by shooting for samples from Mars and Venus.

Cosmonaut Alexei Yeliseyev noted on Radio Moscow Thursday that Luna 16 succeeded "without risk to human life and without unnecessary expenditure." His implication was that the Luna program has found a cheaper and safer way to do what Apollo is doing.

A report from Tass said first reports from the recovery area indicate the return craft is in "excellent condition." No mention was made of the moon rocks aboard the capsule.

The agency said the lunar probe landed not far from the Baikonur cosmodrome where Luna 16 station was launched Sept. 12.

Two of West Europe's leading experts on the Soviet space program have hailed the Luna mission as opening a new era in space exploration.

Heinz Kaminski, director of the West German space research institute in Bochum, said Luna-type scoopers offer "far safer" precautions against contamination of earth by unfamiliar bacteria from other celestial bodies.

And Dr. Bernard Lovell, director of the radio-astronomy observatory in Jodrell Bank, England, said Luna's success means soil samples might be brought back from Mars in the decade.

For Moscow's man in the street, the Luna triumph brings a boost for national pride and signals at least a partial comeback after the Russians lost the race to put a man on the moon.

An instrument capsule from Luna 16 remains on the surface, carrying out some radiation measurements and other unspecified tests.

Trial of 10 MSU students scheduled for Monday

By JAMES SHELDON
State News Staff Writer

Ten of the 132 MSU students arrested May 19 at the Union will be tried by a jury Monday at East Lansing Municipal Court before Judge William K. Harmon on the charge of trespassing on University property.

According to Hugh M. Davis, Detroit attorney for the group, 100 of those arrested decided they had been treated unfairly and came to him for legal assistance. They said they were "trapped" in the Union by officials there, he added.

They were charged with trespassing and loitering.

Davis said the students will not be tried for loitering.

An East Lansing attorney, who gave legal advice to and represented the 132 for reduction of bail last spring, explained that Raymond Scodeller, Ingham County Prosecutor, assured Federal Court Judge Noel Fox in Grand Rapids this summer that the loitering charge would not be prosecuted.

Davis said he and other attorneys for the students filed a Federal Court suit in July because the loitering charge was in violation of the students' civil rights and because the prosecution was in "bad faith."

Scodeller said he dropped the loitering charge to prevent the federal judge from holding it "unconstitutional" and avoid the question of double jeopardy or "double prosecution" arising from the trespassing and loitering charges.

Davis maintained in federal court that the prosecutor was trying to "harrass and intimidate not only the 132 but also the rest of the students and faculty on the Mich. State campus who might be interested in dissenting politics."

The issues presented in federal court by the defense centered around "lack of notice" to leave the building, "entrapment" by the police after the students did leave, and police "variance" from established operating procedures.

Davis said the federal judge decided August 12 that the prosecution was "not undertaken in bad faith" because the loitering charge could possibly be interpreted constitutionally, because the loitering charge had been dropped and because the University can write its own constitutional laws.

Scodeller said the federal judge may still be holding the case under advisement to make sure the loitering charge is not prosecuted again.

Each student faced a possible 120-day sentence, Davis said. With the loitering charge dropped, the maximum sentence is 30 days, he added.

"We have achieved a three-fourth victory," Davis continued. "That is what we expected to do with the federal suit. I expect it to be an interesting trial."

Davis said he will not defend all the 132 students himself.

EASTERN SEABOARD

Power crisis continues

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Air conditioners were turned off and lights were dimmed Thursday as utilities along the Eastern Seaboard again ordered power reductions or "brownouts" to cope with an electricity shortage. There were signs of improvement, however, as hot, humid weather eased a little in some areas and repaired equipment was put back in service.

It was the third day of the current power crisis which began Tuesday, the last day of summer, when the shortage was so severe some utilities were forced to resort to blacking out selected communities for brief periods to prevent a major failure. The unexpected hot weather, generator failures and loss of power from equipment undergoing seasonal repairs combined to cause the trouble. Utilities in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Washington, D.C., and Virginia broadcast appeals Thursday asking customers, particularly large industrial users, to cut back on the use of nonessential electricity.

There were some encouraging signs. The Pennsylvania Electric Co.'s Keystone generator at Johnstown, Pa. -- an 820,000 kilowatt facility that failed Tuesday -- was put back in service Thursday afternoon.

In New York City, early afternoon temperatures were in the low 80's, about 10 degrees below the Tuesday and Wednesday readings.

Consolidated Edison Co., which has been hampered all summer by the lack of two generators, reduced voltage five per cent at 9 a.m.

Both Tuesday and Wednesday, however, the utility had cut power eight per cent, the maximum possible without damaging the equipment and the eight per cent reduction was in effect for about eight hours Wednesday.

The New York Telephone Co., for the second day, turned on its 250 emergency generators in the downtown area to relieve Con Ed and the Long Island Lighting Co. of the need to power 153 telephone buildings.

City Hall workers set the example in voluntarily cutting back electricity. Only one of three air conditioners and two of six lights normally in use were on in the press room.

The mayor's receptionist turned off all the lights in her office.

Bruce delivers U.S. reply to latest Cong peace plan

PARIS (AP) — The United States issued a formal reply Thursday to the so-called "new peace initiatives" of the Viet Cong, and the response appeared to have left North Vietnam and the Viet Cong at cross purposes.

U. S. Ambassador David K. E. Bruce, in the first official American reaction to last week's Viet Cong proposals affirmed that Washington will not impose any government on Saigon. He left the door open for further talks on military questions.

The Viet Cong representative here labeled Bruce's reply "entirely negative," but Hanoi's envoy did not regard it as an outright rejection.

At last week's session, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, head of the Viet Cong delegation, called for a U. S. commitment to withdraw from Vietnam by next June 30 and to replace the Saigon regime of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

In exchange, Mrs. Binh offered a cease-fire with U. S. troops during the withdrawal and the start of talks on prisoner of war repatriation.

Bruce said that the call for a withdrawal deadline "does not, in practical terms, differ markedly from your previous call for the withdrawal of our forces within six months.

"Nor have you made clear what you mean by your statement that 'the question of Vietnamese armed forces in South Vietnam shall be resolved by the Vietnamese themselves.' We continue to favor withdrawal of all outside forces."

Bruce's answer to the military demand did not seem to be a flat rejection.

Bruce said he was willing to wait for clarification of some points, but that, "on the question of treatment of prisoners of war, we and the world at large expect immediate action on your part."

U. S. delegation spokesman Steve Ledogar told newsmen that

"the other side" had been "deficient" in four areas pertaining to prisoner treatment:

— Identification. He said that last September there were 1,461 U. S. servicemen missing in Southeast Asia and that only 412 had been identified by various means as prisoners. The figures today, he said, were 1,550 missing.

EMU, striking workers ordered to continue talks

YPSILANTI (UPI) — Washtenaw County Circuit Court Judge William Ager ordered negotiations to continue Thursday between striking service maintenance employees and officials of Eastern Michigan University.

The judge delayed ruling on EMU's request for an injunction against the strike which has shut down the 20,000-student school and ordered negotiations to resume at the courthouse. Both sides were meeting separately this morning and reporting periodically to Ager.

The 380 members of Local 1666, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, walked out Monday following unsuccessful negotiation on a new contract.

Supervisory personnel kept the University open until Wednesday, when it was decided to cancel classes indefinitely. Negotiations Wednesday made no progress.

Garbage had begun to pile up at dormitories housing 5,400 students Wednesday and some elevators had been stopped because of a lack of maintenance. Negotiations broke down late last week after the rank and file rejected a settlement approved by Union leaders. Lewis Profit, University Vice President for business and finance, said that settlement included eight per cent yearly wage increases over a three-year period.

Many teachers reportedly gave students assignments for two or three weeks ahead, in case of an extended strike. Dormitory residents were asked to vacate their rooms.

6,500 JOIN PICKETS

UAW - GM talks stalled

DETROIT (UPI) — A top United Auto Workers official has declared negotiations are at an "absolute standstill" with General Motors Corp., and another 6,300 workers had planned to join 343,610 other UAW members on the picket lines Thursday night.

Main-table discussions continue on non-economic issues, with top UAW leaders leaving the strike to their assistants. Meanwhile, GM announced Thursday price increases averaging $136, or four per cent, on its 1971 cars over comparably equipped 1970 models.

The price announcement, the most serious move in the big three automakers, however, was seen as a costly academic exercise, because the 10-day-old UAW strike has shut the company down completely. Only a few thousand cars were available in dealer showrooms to go on sale beginning next week.

GM left the door open for possible additional price increases at the conclusion of contract talks with the striking UAW.

Earl G. Bramblett, chief GM negotiator in the strike said 400 issues were still unresolved in a national contract to end the strike that began at midnight Sept. 14, and "We didn't resolve any today."

"If we can see daylight we have the capability to put something together in three or four days and nights," Bramblett said. "It has been done before in this building."

Bluestone said negotiations were now primarily concerned with local issues, where an estimated 32,000 local union demands remained unsolved. They could hold up resuming production even if a national settlement was reached.

Of the company's 199 Manufacturing, only a battery plant at Olathe, Kan., has settled a local contract.

An additional 6,300 workers at a Kokomo, Ind., Delco Electronics plant were to join the strike tonight, cutting to 26 the number of plants exempted from the UAW strike. It had been exempted because it made parts for other auto companies.

Another 25,000 workers have been idled at other plants not involved in the strike.

The GM price increases ranged from $49 for the Chevrolet Nova to a top of $855 for the low-volume Fleetwood 75 series.

The factory sticker prices, including federal tax represented the lowest percentage increase amount the big three automakers.

For, which announced its prices last week, boosted its prices an average 4.8 per cent or $156, while Chrysler which announced two weeks ago boosted prices an average 6.2 per cent or $143 on its compact cars. Chrysler has yet to announce prices on bigger cars.

GM said its prices were tentative and subject to possible review "in the light of prevailing economic factors and competitive condition in the marketplace."

But it also advised dealers they could take orders at the announced price, guaranteeing against any increases on models sold, but promising a rebate if prices were reduced.

Thievery, vandalism mar term's beginning

As students began to flow steadily onto campus over the last five days, a wide array of goods totaling more than $4,500 flowed out of buildings and cars.

The largest amount taken included several pieces of furniture stolen from the men's lower lounge in West Fee Hall. The furniture was valued at $1,193. Also taken during the weekend were a stereo tape recorder, turntable and radio valued at $500.

Other items taken in the five day period included a tapestry, records, several bicycles, five fire extinguishers and $628 worth of clothing.

Campus police also reported paint was sprayed on the Administration Bldg. and Bessey Hall Tuesday night.

Cuban government returns U.S. hijacker

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department reported Thursday that an alleged U.S. aircraft hijacker was being turned over to the United States — the first time that the Havana regime has directly sent such a person back to this country.

The man was put aboard a U.S. plane at a Cuban airfield Thursday, being turned over to the custody of American authorities who flew to Cuba to receive him. The plane involved was on a regular flight on the refugee airlift between Cuba and the United States.

Press officer Robert J. McCloskey of the State Department identified the man as being returned as Robert J. Abadie, a former U.S. Army private who was indicted in South end, Ind., on Sept. 10, on charges of aircraft piracy and kidnapping.

The flight involved then was a flight of Aug. 24.

"State Department authorities authorities are returning this man to the United States."

Washington had notified Havana through the Swiss embassy there that it would accept the alleged hijacker back in this country, McCloskey said. Two days ago the Havana regime proposed putting him on the plane today.

LIBERAL ARTS MAJORS

PQT can open a whole new world of opportunity...

Each year, NSA offers challenging career opportunities to Liberal Arts majors through participation in the Professional Qualification Test. This year, NSA has scheduled the PQT for Saturday, October 10. Completion of this Test by the Liberal Arts major is a prerequisite to consideration for NSA employment.

The Career Scene at NSA: The National Security Agency is the U.S. Government agency responsible for developing invulnerable communications systems to transmit and receive vital information. As an NSA professional, you will be trained to work on programs of national importance in such areas as:

- Cryptography — developing & logical proving of new crypto-logic concepts
- Research — the gathering, analysis, and reporting of substantive data

- Language — used as a basic tool of research into a number of analytical fields
- Programming — includes data systems program writing, and development of mechanical and administrative procedures
- Documentation — technical writing in its broadest sense, including research, writing, editing, illustrating, layout and reproduction

Your specific academic major is of secondary importance. Of far greater importance are your ingenuity, intellectual curiosity and perseverance — plus a desire to apply them in assignments where imagination is the essential qualification.

Salaries start at $8,000.00 and are supplemented by the benefits of career federal employment.

Advancement and Career Development — NSA promotes from within, and awards salary increases as you assume greater responsibility. NSA also is anxious to stimulate your professional and intellectual growth in many ways, including intensive formal as well as on-the-job training. Advanced study, if job related, is available at any of seven area universities and can be partially or wholly reimbursed through NSA Fellowships or other assistance programs.

The deadline for PQT applications is September 30 (for the October 10 test). Pick up a PQT Bulletin at your Placement Office. It contains full details and the necessary test registration form. Masons terminate tradition BOSTON (UPI) — A 195-year custom was broken when three top officials of white Masonry visited with the Conference of Prince Hall Masons during their annual meeting.

"Until now," said a spokesman for the 400,000-member, all-black Prince Hall Masons, "they didn't want to admit we were Masons. There wasn't anything fancy about their visit but it represented recognition for us."

"It took us 195 years to get recognition, but we got it from the whites."

Prince Hall founded the group, which now has headquarters in New Orleans, in 1775 in Boston.

Visiting the blacks' convention were George A. Newbury, sovereign grand commander of the Supreme Council, northern jurisdiction; Dr. Winthrop Wetherbee, past master of St. Andrew Lodge of Boston, and Herbert H. Jaynes, grand master of Masons of Massachusetts.

At one point in the convention, the group gathered at the grave of founder Hall. The 1971 conference will be in Jackson, Miss.

Sabbath: chance to rest, reflect

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK — For 24 hours, you're immobilized. You don't work. You don't travel by car, bus or even afoot outside your neighborhood. You don't cook. You don't haul. You don't make deals or figure your bank account. You slow down. You stop the treadmill. You pause and take stock of what you are and why.

That is Orthodox Judaism's concept of the Sabbath, a day of tranquility, rest, worship and reflective family associations — an ancient, ordained period which a noted Jewish authority sees as even more valuable now in the hurly burly of modern life.

"It's more necessary than ever," says Rabbi Dr. Emanuel Rackman, president of the Rabbinical Court of America, the judicial arm that determines the application of Orthodox Judaism's religious-moral laws in the contemporary environment of the United States.

Orthodox Judaism, one of the three major branches of Judaism in this country, adheres firmly to the age-old Scriptural disciplines of the Bible's first five books, the Torah, but Dr. Rackman emphasizes that they must be continuously adapted and reinterpreted to cope with current situations.

"The mere text of the law is not enough," he said in an interview. "Judaism has a mandate to keep those standards viable amid changing economic and social conditions."

But he said the Sabbath rules, commonly viewed as dated, and ignored to a large extent by Christians and many non-Orthodox Jews, are especially relevant in the high-pressure patterns of modern times.

Yet, he said, the survival of any significant observance of the Sabbath is threatened by that very atmosphere that makes the observance more essential.

"People today are always on the go," he added. "It deadens them to any sense of meaning. Many are escaping all the time, from themselves and from any real contact with others. They don't know how to communicate with those around them. We're such an action-minded society, even looking for ways to 'kill time,' not recognizing that time is the most precious thing we have."

But Orthodox Judaism's approach to the Sabbath throws a regular deterrent into that hectic pace, imposes a standstill, and injects a different kind of interlude into the general whirl of activity.

"It forces one to look at the problems of his life where he is, to face its purpose and meaning, without ways of escaping it, and makes him seek adjustments with himself and those around him," Dr. Rackman said. "Often on a Sabbath, a family will sit together at the dinner table for two or three hours, talking, singing, playing on the floor, really being together at least once a week."

Rackman, 60, spiritual leader of Fifth Avenue Synagogue here and former president of the New York Board of Rabbis and of Orthodox Judaism's clergy arm, the Rabbinical Council of America, stresses the continuing validity of Jewish law in a new

Seminarians declare Bible relevant to today's issues

NEW YORK (UPI) — Is the Bible relevant to the mounting, complex problems of today? To such diverse issues as the youth rebellion, the generation gap, ecology and the threat to man's environment, racial relations and Vietnam?

A group of young seminarians, while differing on details, were in basic agreement that it is.

The seminarians, meeting in an advertising agency's offices, discussed these and related questions in preparation for the 30th annual observance of National Bible Week, the interfaith movement to promote study of the Bible.

From the discussion the agency hopes to develop material for inspirational public service messages to help promote Bible Week, which this year will be observed Nov. 22-29.

Representing the Protestant, Roman Catholic, Greek Orthodox and Jewish faiths, the young seminarians engaged in a lively tape-recorded exchange of opinions and ideas.

They spoke of Jesus as an anti-establishment revolutionary and made it clear they could identify and sympathize with viewpoints of other young people of today, including campus rebels.

Dennis Keane, a Roman Catholic, expressed the opinion that the New Testament was firmly against violence for any reason even to alleviate social ills.

Willis Logan, a black student from the Union Theological Seminary, disagreed. There are situations, he said, that call for a violent response, as when Jesus drove the money changers from the temple.

"Jesus teaches us to accept defeat and even death if necessary for the cause that is right and just," Logan said. "And man," he added fervently, "you can't get more revolutionary than that!"

Eric Yoffie of the Hebrew Union College said: "One of our problems is that too often various groups have interpreted the Bible to suit their own prejudices and selfish interests. As a result the Bible has been used by oppressors to pacify the oppressed. This is wrong and must be corrected."

Jim Fraser of the Union Theological Seminary observed that in the New Testament "the poor and the oppressed generally come off better, and have a better rating than the rich."

Catholic bishop commends Mao

ROME (AP) — Communist China has enacted some "very constructive and good" reforms for the Chinese people and may soon reach an accommodation with the Roman Catholic Church, Bishop James Edward Walsh said recently.

The 79-year-old missionary from Cumberland, Md., who was imprisoned for 12 years by the Chinese, praised the Mao Tse-tung regime for creating equality of the sexes and of the races and for banning indecency in public.

But he tempered his praise with disdain for a regime that restricts liberty to such an extent. I have no sympathy whatsoever with the system," he said.

Asked at a news conference whether he thought Peking would follow the example of Eastern European Communist countries and find an accommodation with the church, Bishop Walsh said: "I shouldn't wonder if it occurred in the future, and not too distant either."

He added: "There are certain indications of a very good spirit even at the present time that I was able to notice even in prison. The present government has introduced certain changes in the life of the people in China that I think are very helpful and very good, and I'm glad to be able to say that."

The three reforms he listed, Bishop Walsh said, amounted to "a great constructive advance for the Chinese people."

The bishop's cautious prediction about church-state relations in China reinforced the church's hope of reaching some kind of agreement with Peking.

Pope Paul VI has said he hopes Bishop Walsh's release from prison will be a sign of "better days" for religious freedom in China.

Bishop Walsh was arrested in 1958, while he was directing church missionary activity in China from Shanghai, and sentenced to 20 years imprisonment for espionage. He was released July 10 for what the Communist Chinese called reasons of health and age.

Local jobs scarce, pay low for part-time student work

By DAVID BASSETT
State News Staff Writer

Yes, Virginia, there are part-time jobs in East Lansing and Lansing. There aren't many of them, they don't pay exceptionally well, and you can't be very selective, but if you look hard enough and are lucky, you might find one.

Following the pattern of the rest of the country, the Lansing-East Lansing job market has been hard-hit by the current economic slump, and the outlook for the future is not overly promising. The present unemployment rate in Michigan is 9.1 per cent, and it's still on the increase.

Writing in the current issue of the Michigan State Economic record, David Verway of the Bureau of Business Economic Research, reports that the jobs most accessible to teenagers and other persons with marginally valued skills just dry up when a business cycle takes a down swing. For example, the rate of unemployment for black teenagers was 29 per cent in July.

Verway continued by noting certain trends in labor market fluctuations which he says have emerged during the four recessions this country has experienced since the end of World War II. These same trends may be detected in the current slowdown.

According to Verway: — The unemployment rate continues to go up for one or two months after employment begins its recovery (a process which some economists believe to be in progress).

— High unemployment retards an upward trend in the white female labor force. (The number of working women has increased enormously since the end of the Second World War).

— The ranks of long-term unemployed are swollen by individuals with marginally valued skills.

— Those who are laid off at the onset of recession are the last to be rehired after it is over.

— Clerical work as a young woman's means of entry into the labor market becomes scarce.

— Laborers in both agricultural and non-agricultural industries — the jobs most accessible to teenagers — bear the brunt of economic recession, as do craftsmen, foremen and assembly line workers.

— The number of male farmers rises above potential. Jack Shingleton, director of the Placement Bureau, says the part-time job situation in this area is particularly acute for a number of reasons. Among these is the fact that more students need jobs than in the past.

— "More students need part-time jobs during this school year than ever before," Shingleton said, "because their parents are either laid off or on strike. Also, many students couldn't find jobs during the summer."

— "The national job market is slow, and East Lansing is no exception. The decrease in durable goods manufacturing affects everyone; factory workers get laid off, they don't have money to spend in restaurants and clothing stores, and the restaurants and clothing stores can't afford to hire part-time help," he said.

While the off-campus job market is slow, the on-campus picture is not much better. The state legislature's appropriation of $11.2 million less than the University asked for is being felt by academic departments, dormitories, the physical plant, and the grounds department. The cut-back is forcing the University to tighten its belt, and the first to feel the pinch are the students.

Shingleton said that for the time being, the scarcity of jobs will merely force students to spend less money on non-essential goods, but that it is possible some students will be forced to drop out of school.

"Last year, 16,562 students worked on-campus, and at least another 10,000 worked off-campus," he said. "We don't have exact figures available yet, but I'm certain that there won't be nearly that many able to find jobs this year."

As for wages, the minimum University rate is $1.60 per hour, which Shingleton said is the rate for most jobs. He said that off-campus salaries have remained stable, but "wouldn't be surprised if they went down in some instances."

Shingleton indicated he is not optimistic for the future.

"Jobs are not going to be plentiful around here during Christmas break or next summer," he said. Students graduating in the spring are going to have a more difficult time finding a job than those who graduated last spring."

Economist Verway was somewhat more optimistic.

"The absence of any real economic buoyancy dims chances for improvement in the labor market over the near term," he said, "but it is also unlikely that unemployment will plumb the depths reached in 1958 (a 13.6 per cent monthly average) and 1961 (10 per cent).

Boundry fight near resolution

By United Press International

A border dispute between Michigan and Ohio that has dragged on for 134 years came a step closer to settlement Thursday. Michigan Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley announced he has filed the results of a state fact finding study with the U.S. Supreme Court which will decide the issue.

At stake is a 200 square mile area of Lake Erie water and bottomlands between Michigan and Ohio which are reportedly rich with valuable gas and oil deposits.

Historically, Michigan claims that the boundary between the two states in Lake Erie is an extension of the actual land boundary straight east across the lake. On the other hand, Ohio claims that the boundary bears 45 degrees north from the east-west land boundary.

Michigan's case was presented to Albert B. Maris, retired federal judge in Philadelphia, who was appointed by the Supreme Court as "special master" in the case three years ago.

Ohio has 30 days to submit its arguments to Judge Maris. The boundary dispute goes back to 1836 when Michigan and Ohio took up arms against one another in what was known as the Toledo War.

At that time, Michigan adopted the Talcott Line as the boundary into Lake Erie giving the state its claim to the oil-rich bottomlands.

The line was named for Andrew Talcott, a captain in the U.S. Corps of Engineers who submitted a report on the boundary squabble between the two states in 1836.

The lawsuit against Ohio aimed at making the Talcott Line official was filed three years ago when the state legislature approved a resolution requesting the attorney general to take the issue to the U.S. Supreme Court.

According to Kelley, Judge Maris will prepare his own findings of fact and submit a proposed order to the high court. The court may then either approve, reject or alter the order.

AID TO STUDENTS

ASMSU expanding services

By JOHN JUEL
State News Staff Writer

With many of the policy battles of the last year already won, including open hours in residence halls and liquor on campus for students over 21, the Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU) will be placing increased emphasis on its services to students this fall.

"With rising fees and costs, the most important thing to most students is to help keep down expenses," Bob Grossfeld, ASMSU cabinet president, said. "We'd like to expand the student-run bookstore and even form a co-op store if we could get a real estate agent on Grand River to rent to us."

Grossfeld said ASMSU will also be starting a life insurance policy plan to go along with its health insurance for students. The program would offer low cost life insurance, especially useful to married or grad students, he added.

"Along with economic matters, we'd also like to help form new lines of communication, both between ASMSU and the students and between students and the community at large," Harold Buckner, ASMSU chairman, said.

"There's a very good chance we'll have a student representative on the board of trustees by the end of the year, and possibly by the end of the term. Most of the trustees I've talked with have seemed receptive to the idea," he said.

ASMSU will also offer a speakers bureau, Buckner said. "The bureau will make student speakers available to groups throughout the state, whether they want to hear the president of the ASMSU cabinet or a representative of the campus SDS chapter," he said. "It will also make student government officers available to dorms or other living units, to help establish closer contact between students and their representatives."

Another of ASMSU's activities, Pop Entertainment, will kick off the fall season with Pacific Gas & Electric Co. and Sweetwater Oct. 10. Richie Havens and Melanie will appear for Homecoming Oct. 24, and Jethro Tull and Catfish will wind up the fall schedule Nov. 7.

Donovan, who was scheduled to appear on the first concert, cancelled his American tour, Bob Moore, chairman of the Pop Entertainment Committee, said. However, there is a good chance Donovan will be rescheduled for spring term, Moore added.

Other ASMSU projects this fall will be the expansion of course evaluation, the improvement of the Great Issues series and the establishment of a legislative relations board to serve as a watchdog on the state legislature and the governor's office protecting student interests.

"We'd also like to extend the legal aid branch, hiring a full time lawyer as a part of the ASMSU staff to offer legal advice to students," Grossfeld said. "We'd also like to contract with the Draft Counseling Center in Lansing for the services five days a week."

"But I don't see how we can carry out some of these things without a tax hike," he added.

FALSE CLAIMS CITED

FTC hits enzyme ads

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission accused the three major manufacturers of enzyme detergents Wednesday of false advertising in claiming their products are effective against all stains.

In a proposed complaint, which the FTC said would be issued against Procter & Gamble Co., Colgate-Palmolive Co. and Lever Brothers Co., Inc., the agency said the advertising was "unfair, false, misleading and deceptive."

It gave the firms a chance to settle the complaint through a consent order which would require future enzyme detergent advertising to list types of stains "which the product cannot reasonably be expected to remove."

A similar list would be required on the package under the proposed order.

Procter and Gamble denied the FTC contention and said it would contest the complaint. The other two companies had no immediate comment.

Saying the FTC complaint

"hinges on the word 'implied,' Procter and Gamble said in prepared statement. "We have never said that our enzyme products remove all stains."

"No product ever made — no liquid bleach, no powdered bleach, no pre-soak product, no enzyme detergent — will remove all stains. Our enzyme products do however, remove a variety of common stains that heretofore were impossible to remove in the home laundry. We do tell American consumers about the capability in our television advertising."

In the little more than two years that enzyme detergents have been sold in this country, they have captured more than half of the U.S. detergent market, the FTC said. The agency said enzyme detergents are multimillion dollar business.

E. Lansing implements new voter sign-up

By SYLVIA SMITH
and
JAMES SHELDON

News Analysis

she said she would not accept housing such as dormitories, sororities, fraternities and student co-ops as "legal residences."

Arguing that state law defines "residence" as "a place at which a person habitually sleeps, keeps his or her personal effects, and has a regular place of lodging," the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) and MNC protested the city clerk's office's rigid questioning of registrants.

Following suggestions made to City Council by the MNC, several individuals began to develop a more standardized, less arbitrary, system of voter registration.

Wilbur Brookover, city councilman and asst. director of the MSU Center for Urban Affairs, introduced the resolution for the acceptance of the affidavit to the council for approval. The resolution was accepted by the council with only Councilman James Brown dissenting.

State Rep. Jim Brown, R-Okemos, delivered an attorney general's opinion on the legality of the voter registration affidavit to city hall, Sept. 14, only a few hours before the council approved the action.

Brown said he was "duty-bound" to contact the attorney general because the issue centered in his congressional district and he was the "logical channel."

The page long affidavit requires the registrant to attest to his U.S. citizenship, age and residence as defined by the following five criteria:

— "This is the location at which I habitually sleep and keep my personal belongings;

— "This is the place at which I reside the greater portion of the time;

— "I have no other legal residence, as evidenced by such documents as drivers' license or automobile certificate;

— "I have no intention to return to a prior residence or location which I consider my home or residence; and — "I have not voted by absentee ballot in any other state election within the last six months."

The affidavit also stipulates that the city clerk may ask any questions of the registrant under oath relating to the truth of the statements contained in the affidavit. At voter registration tables set up at MSU fall term documentation that is seemingly required by registration officials," Ferency said. "I think that it requires him to answer questions concerning his qualification."

At voter registration during fall class registration, students showing proper identification were verbally sworn in by the registering officials after producing proof of residence.

Officials were careful to obtain proof of residence, since the city clerk can be charged with a misdeemeanor if a person is falsely registered, one official said.

For the most part, registration of students went quickly and easily during the three days of registration. However, one student was unhappy when he was refused registration because he could not produce a utility bill of his that would have indicated his East Lansing residence.

At least 200 students were registered at the tables Monday through Wednesday at fall term class registration, according to the city clerk's office.

Prof. says social issues challenging psychiatrists

The job of psychiatry at MSU is "more challenging" than at other institutions because of pressure for social responsibility, Dr. Allen J. Enelow, chairman of the Dept. of Psychiatry, said Wednesday.

Dr. Enelow addressed the fifth annual convocation of the College of Human Medicine. Stephen Toulmin, visiting professor of philosophy, also spoke.

Dr. Enelow said medical students today are much more concerned about social issues. After giving a brief history of psychiatry, he said this history does reflect a concern for social issues by psychiatrists.

But, Dr. Enelow said, a number of individuals both in and out of the medical profession have always been concerned with and worked for the betterment of conditions for the insane and mentally disturbed.

Toulmin, discussing some of the more important problems facing the medical profession, said that in the 1960's physicians were often tempted to allow "concern for knowledge to edge out concern for the patient."

Toulmin said that because the pursuit of knowledge is so important today the conflict for the doctor is much more difficult.

"The question that has to be faced is, at what point does human compassion require one to turn off the kidney machine, or abstain from an organ transplant, even though medical science would benefit from these acts," he said.

Toulmin said the doctor who looks at his patients as clinical material to be used for the pursuit of knowledge, rather than human individuals, has succumbed to temptation.

Paraphrasing the philosopher Emmanuel Kant, Toulmin said doctors should treat their patients as ends in themselves, and not as means to some ends.

Toulmin said this temptation exists more in the 1970's than before, and that in coming years doctors will be tempted to view social problems as more important than individual patients.

Toulmin said he believes the principle concern for medicine must be a moral concern.

NEW COURSE

Black families examined

By JEANNE SADDLER
Associate Campus Editor

A new course, "Black Families in White America," will be offered by the College of Human Ecology (formerly Home Economics) this term. The course was proposed last spring by a college committee on race relations.

Eleanor S. Morrison, instructor in Family Relations, and Trellis Baker, graduate student in Family and Child Sciences, will teach the course. They were assisted in developing the course by the Center for Urban Affairs. The course objectives are aimed at studying the black family from a social systems approach and from a historical perspective, and understanding the interaction of economic, social, sexual, religious and political forces affecting the family.

"The black family is really a sub-culture of a sub-culture of American society," Mrs. Waxler said. "When we look at the black family, we have to look at the larger culture of which it is a part. We take the position that very few times has the black family been studied in this way."

The Moynihan Report, the controversial document on black families by Daniel Moynihan, presidential adviser, will be reviewed in the course. The report defines the black family as a weak, matriarchal structure. "Where you do have the matriarchal family," Mrs. Waxler said, "it is an adaptation to the society as a whole."

The first sessions of the class will look at the family structures in Africa, then those of the black family during slavery in America.

The course will then deal with white racism, interaction between society and the black family, psychic security and adult relationships, child socialization, and identity.

achievement and class.

The course, which was not listed in the fall catalogue, will meet from 3 to 6 p.m. Tuesdays in 301 Human Ecology. The course number is HE 450, section 1 and sequence number 480-0565. Enrollment is limited to 50 students.

Skin flick, royal drama among 18 area films

Activity planners say welcome back with a record number of 18 film offerings this weekend.

With one of the greatest American comedies, one of the finest war films, a devastating royal drama, a stunning rock documentary, a penetrating biography, a bizarre tale of ancient corruption and the return of the darling of skin flicks among the selections, choosing among them is the only thing one can complain about.

On - Campus Films
BABY VICKIE - for those who love her, she's back Friday night in 106 Wells.

BRIDGE ON THE RIVER
KWAI - David Lean's engrossing 1957 drama about a group of captive soldiers who are forced to build a supply bridge for the Japanese and their soon demented commander who attempts to maintain his dignity even in captivity. Alec Guinness gives a distinguished performance as Colonel Nicholson, a leader whose pride blinds him of his loyalties. Winner of seven Academy Awards including Best Film. Shows at 6:30 and 9:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday night in 109 Anthony Hall.

BULLITT - a rather ordinary detective story saved by Steve McQueen's cool detachment and a pulsating automobile chase scene over hilly San Francisco streets. Shows at 6:30, 8:30 and 10:30 p.m. Friday in 108 Wells Hall, Saturday night in Wilson and 9:00 p.m. Sunday in Conrad.

BUTCH CASSIDY AND THE SUNDANCE KID - Paul Newman and Robert Redford rob trains and banks, share Katharine Ross and face danger and death in good spirits. Amiable but not very distinguished entertainment. Shows at 6:30, 8:30 and 10:30 p.m. Friday in Wilson and Saturday in Conrad.

GOODBYE, MR. CHIPS - Peter O'Toole's brilliant performance as a gentle schoolmaster saves this overblown musical and makes Petula Clark's atrocious performance, the idiocies of the Terence Rattigan script and the emptiness of the Leslie Bricusse music worth bearing. Shows at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Auditorium.

THE LION IN WINTER - an excellent drama of a king, a queen and a family that have made back - stabbing their royal pastime. Katherine Hepburn, as Eleanor of Aquitaine, and Peter O'Toole, as King Henry II, are magnificent. The film was named 1969's best by the New York Film Critics Group. Shows at 7 and 9:30 p.m. Friday in Conrad and Saturday night in 108 Wells Hall.

SOME LIKE IT HOT - Billy Wilder's comic gem that seems more precious with each viewing. Starring Marilyn Monroe in her most glowing role and Jack Lemmon and Tony Curtis in their most hilarious one, it shows Friday and Saturday nights in 104 Wells Hall.

Lansing Area Films
THE ANGEL LEVINE - starring Harry Belafonte - as an angel - and Zero Mostel. At the Spartan East.

CHISUM - Duke Wayne's first post Oscar film. At Meridian 3.

FELLINI SATYRICON - vivid proof that Federico Fellini can be masterful even in partial failure. The breathtaking imagery alone seems worth the price of admission. At the Spartan West.

HAGBARD AND SIGNE - a foreign love story shows at the State.

HOUSE OF DARK SHADOWS - Jonathan Frid and all the vampires from television. At the Michigan.

PAINT YOUR WAGON - a bustling, brawling, mindless musical. At the Meridian 2.

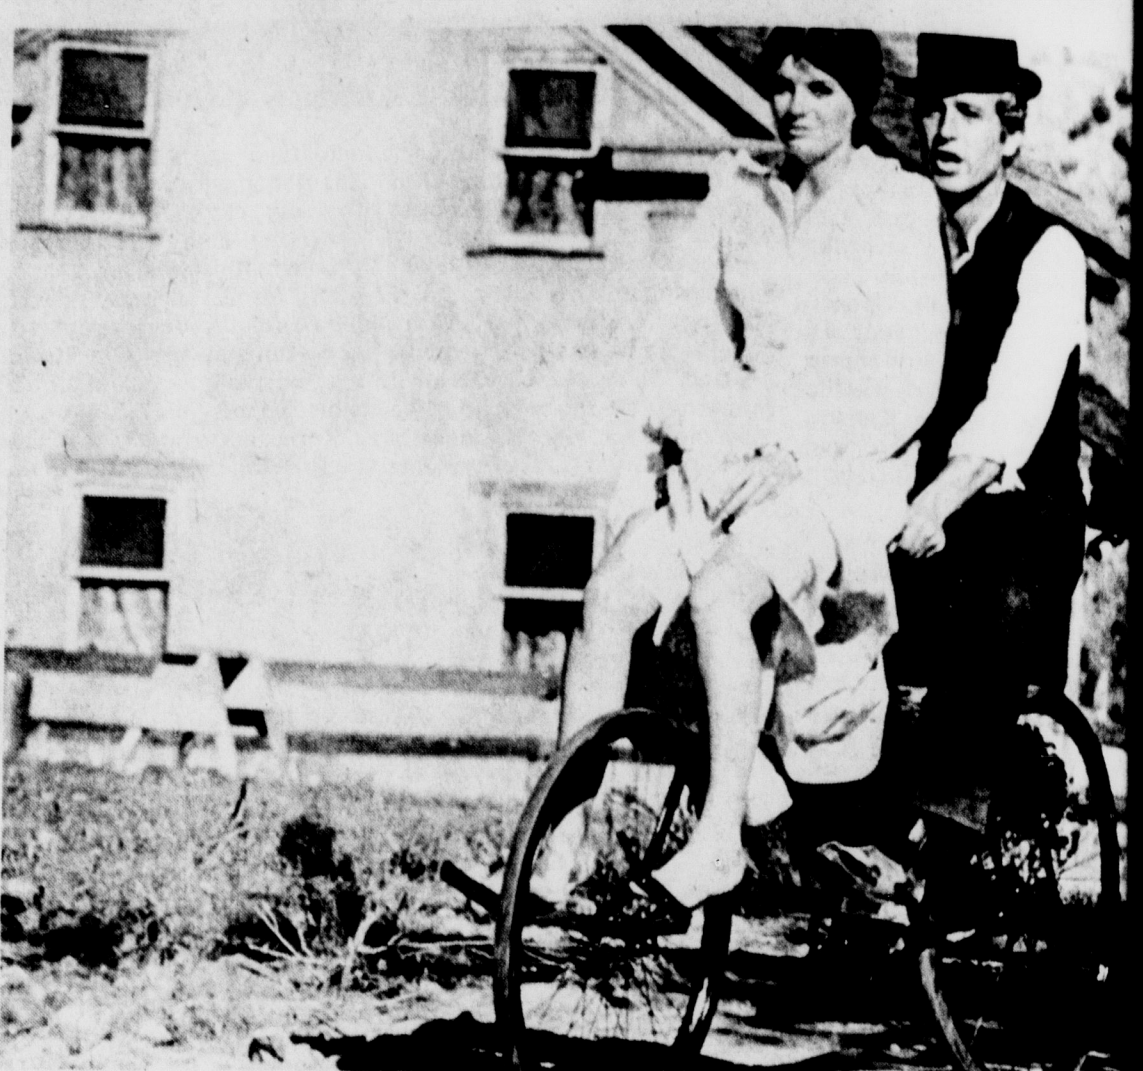

PATTON - a rare spectacle with brains and guts. It's unlikely that a finer film or a finer performance - than George C. Scott's - will be seen this year. At Meridian 1.

THE PEOPLE NEXT DOOR - a film about a young girl hooked on drugs and the anguish of her parents. Rarely does it rise above strictly a melodramatic level. At the Campus.

TOO LATE THE HERO - a war adventure film starring Michael Caine and Cliff Robertson. At the Gladmer.

WHAT DO YOU SAY TO A NAKED LADY? - Alan Funt's leery look at modern morality. Shows with TOM JONES, Tony Richardson's ribald masterpiece, at the Lansing Mall Theatre.

WOODSTOCK - a stunning film that needs no introduction. At the Meridian 4.

COUNTRY MUSIC AWARDS

'Okie ...' grabs nominations

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer and writer Merle Haggard, whose "Okie from Muskogee" hit began as a joke, has been nominated nine times in six of the 11 categories for this year's Country Music Association (CMA) awards.

Johnny Cash, who swept five of the 11 awards last year, picked up four nominations for the Oct. 14 presentation, along with Charley Pride and Conway Twitty, also with four each.

Haggard was nominated for Entertainer of the Year, Single Record two times, Album two times, Song of the Year twotimes and Male Vocalist and, with his wife Bonnie Owens, Duo.

CMA officials said Wednesday the final ballots for the awards are in and are being counted, with the deadline for voting by CMA members set for Oct. 7.

In addition to Haggard, Johnny Cash, Glen Campbell, Roy Clark and Charley Pride have been nominated for Entertainer of the Year.

Nominated for the top single record were Haggard's "Fighting Side of Me" and "Okie from Muskogee." Twitty's "Hello Darlin'" and "My Woman, My Woman, My Wife" by Marty Robbins were nominated, along with Pride's "I'm So Afraid of Losing You."

Haggard said "Okie from Muskogee" began when he was sitting in his Bakersfield, Calif. home watching the news.

"The item on the news said the Bakersfield police had caught two guys going through town with a load of marijuana and newscaster said one of them from Muskogee," Haggard said.

Later, the singer said he riding along in his bus talking about Muskogee, when my mama and daddy came from and I just sang "we don't smoke marijuana in Muskogee."

After the song was recorded became one of music's most popular commentaries on American life.

PAC schedules Osborn drama

By KENNETH STERN
State News Reviewer

The Performing Arts Company (PAC) will launch their 1970-71 season with John Osborne's intense drama, "Look Back in Anger," which opens Oct. 6 in the Arena Theater for a six-day run and will play in the Kivas of Fonders, Brody and McDonel from Oct. 12 to 17.

The play is under the director of C. W. Bahr, a newcomer to MSU from Ohio's Bowling Green State University. "Look Back in Anger" originally opened in England in the mid 1950's where it enjoyed wide critical acclaim.

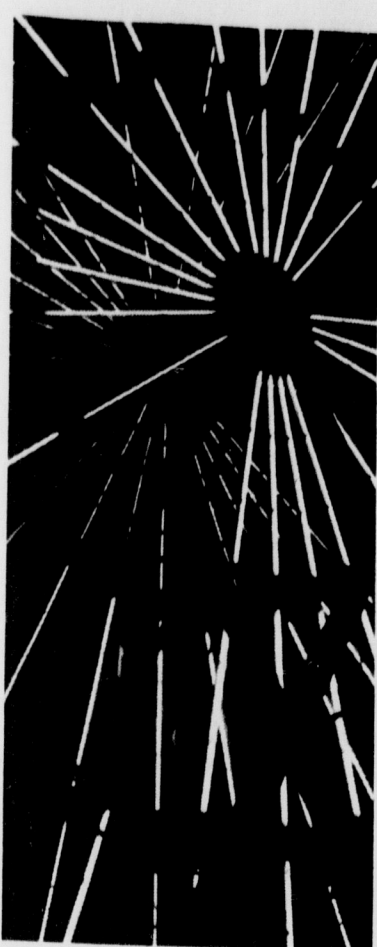

Osborne's drama is a character study of Jimmy Porter, an angry young man, who sees himself trapped between an intolerable future and an equally miserable past. The drama is centered around Porter's tirade about art, religion, and mother-in-law. Porter attributes part of his condition to living in an "American Age," he is a disarmed rebel, deplores the middle class, and has only contempt for a "dead God."

Wolcott Gibbs of the "New Yorker" wrote that Jimmy Porter "might easily have been tedious and insufferable if Osborne hadn't somehow managed to write about him with compassion and truth, and to endow him with a kind of savage and authentic humor not often found in heroes who consider themselves victims of life, since they are far more apt to be damp with self-pity than bright with rage."

Gibbs' observation is important to consider, for in this case the play is elevated from an evening of plain bitching to something with a bit more substance and meaning.

The object of the play, in the playwright's words was "to make people feel, to give them lessons in feeling. They can think afterwards." Osborne wants his anger to spread so others can "become angry enough to care."

The PAC production of "Look Back in Anger," includes veterans Peter Landry and Beatrice O'Donnel in the leads and Juliana Boehnlein in a supporting role.

An umbrella?

No, it's not an umbrella weathered by the rainy and damp Lansing monsoon season. It's the mid-section of a ferris wheel reminding us of the summer fun we've probably forgotten since the first day of classes.

Play staged to benefit Raft

By GAIL WILLWERTH

A play consisting of four independent acts will be performed at the Albatross Coffee House, 547 1/2 Grand River, to raise money for the Raft, an organization that aids runaways.

The production is called "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running," by Robert Anderson.

The show was cast and is directed by L. J. Corn, an East Lansing High School senior.

He said his intentions for the play followed the philosophies written by state director Peter Brook in his book, "The Empty Space."

Corn said Brook believed that many of the conventional trimmings such as elaborate sets, make-up and costumes detract from and stifle good acting.

Four high school students and two college freshmen adapt themselves to portray two, and in some cases, three different characters in the four acts.

"The only real limitations they have had is not having many facilities, but they feel that all they need is space," Lee VanDyke, an East Lansing High School theater teacher, said.

VanDyke said the cast has had no overall supervision from outsiders. He said he has helped direct in one act because the director was needed to replace a cast member.

"Get people to say, 'My God! That's just like us,'" a line from the first act, states the play's purpose: each act shows the audience something of themselves.

The combination of the close atmosphere of the Albatross and a script that reveals many of the comical sides of people and a few of the sad, makes a satisfying and worthwhile evening.

The play will be performed at 8:30 p.m., tonight, Saturday and Sunday. Donation is $1.

Cast members include Daniel Weymouth, 17, Okemos High School senior; Mary McKinney, 17, East Lansing High School senior; John Brown, 17, also an East Lansing High School senior; Ann-Marie Spata, 19, and Leslie Haines, 19, both MSU freshmen.

'TORA TORA TORA' Film applauded in Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Twentieth Century-Fox's Japanese-American recreation of the Dec. 7, 1941, attack on Pearl Harbor touched off applause — and speculation — at its Tokyo premiere Thursday night.

The applause for the $25-million film "Tora Tora Tora" came from the largely Japanese audience at the close of the 2 1/2 hour show. The speculation centered on the effect it might have on young Japanese who know Pearl Harbor only as the first step in the Japanese defeat of World War II.

One of those who believed it would have an anti-war impact was Alice Kuru, American-born widow of Saburo Kuru, Japan's ambassador to Washington at the time of Pearl Harbor. He and his fellow ambassador, Kichisaburo Nomura, stood silent while U.S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull gave them a tongue lashing.

White-haired Mrs. Kuru told a reporter the movie was "absolutely splendid," then added: "Showing it in Japan will be a good thing for the young Japanese who don't know what war is like. It will teach them to be cautious about getting involved in such disasters in the future."

The film, which shows Japanese planning and execution of the attack as virtually flawless in contrast to American bumbling and lack of preparation, may well strike some secret sparks of pride among the middle-aged Japanese who were here when it happened.

But Japan's older generation has long ago apologized for Pearl Harbor and the war which followed. The conflict left Japan exhausted, bled white and strongly anti-war.

Directed by Richard Fleischer, with Japanese sequences by Toshio Masuda and Kinji Fukasaku, the cast is half American and half Japanese, with subtitles filling the language gap.

Durante still going strong after 58 years in business

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "The people will tell me when to quit," said Jimmy Durante. "When they don't come no more, I retire."

Durante, now 78 but still doing two shows a night regularly, was wheeled out on a couch in his dressing room at the Desert Inn Hotel on the Las Vegas Strip.

Three months ago, Durante collapsed while working across the Strip at the Frontier Hotel. This is his first engagement since the collapse.

"It was just a little lapse. I just got myself exhausted," said Durante as he lay in front of the dressing room's open door, shouting "Hi ya" to all who passed and "Hello Sweetheart" to the chorus girls. "I take it easy now."

Sunday night Durante was awarded the Golden Award by the American Guild of Variety Artists. The award was part of the first annual Georgie presentations, named for the late George M. Cohan. The award, presented on CBS TV's Ed Sullivan Show, will be given each year to honor a performer who has been on the stage for more than 50 years.

Durante was unable to appear for the presentation because he was still recuperating from his collapse.

Durante and his famous nose,

"the Schnoz," began entertaining people 58 years ago in the cafes of New York's Coney Island.

"People always laugh at the same things," he said. "You change it around a bit, a different song now and then, but it's all the same."

And it was all the same when Durante shoved a battered felt hat onto his head, walked into the wings and paused as the applause swelled to greet him. The house was full, as it had been every night since he opened.

"What the hell am I going to do if I don't work?" he had said before going on. "Stay home? I've been to Niagara Falls. I've been to Paris. So what is there left for me to see? I'm just happy I'm able to work."

"I love it out there," he said.

"It ain't work. To hear those people laugh and enjoy themselves... when you're out there, you pray to God that it'll never end."

Strange

A one-eyed ship captain is one of the many breaks that inhabit the strange, surreal world that Federico Fellini has created for "Fellini Satyricon," his spectacular new film.

'SATYRICON'

Theme of Fellini's film lost in dazzling imagery

"Fellini Satyricon" is a fascinating proof that a Federico Fellini film can be good or bad but never easily dismissed.

Regardless of whether you think it a masterpiece or a monumental hoax, "Fellini Satyricon" is unforgettable. The Italian master's latest work is a spectacular visual creation that dazzles and stuns the eyes as it challenges the mind to probe its thematic core.

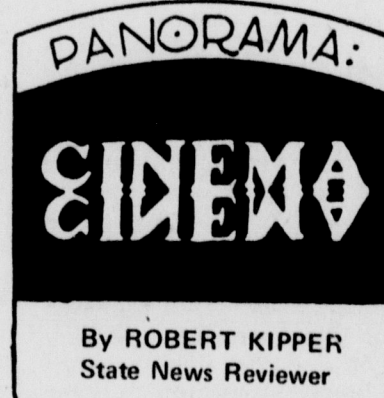

Based on a classic novel by Petronius, who is believed to have been a companion of emperor Nero, it is a tale of ancient Rome and the decadence of its patrician class who had transformed wealth into power and spiritually destroyed their civilization in the process.

Fellini said he hoped to freely adapt Petronius' work and make it "a powerful and evocative allegory—a satire of the world we live in today."

Undoubtedly, Fellini and fellow screenwriter Bernardino Zapponi added much of their own perceptions to those of Petronius. "Fellini Satyricon" looks at Roman corruption through the eyes of two young men who journey through their society almost passively, experiencing the squalor they did not create. Seldom do they outwardly react against it.

The film follows these men from adventure to adventure as they interact in a society their encounters teach them to study, question and ultimately reject.

Fellini has established what he must feel is the historic contrast: a rotting civilization wallowing in its own excess and a youthful subculture giving it the scrutiny it cannot bear if it is to continue. In this contrast and through this scrutiny Fellini implies a crucial social continuum: the inevitable demise of societies who have lost their ideals and their replacement find ourselves confronting a society at the height of its splendor but revealing already the signs of a progressive dissolution.

Fellini said he hoped to freely adapt Petronius' work and make it "a powerful and evocative allegory—a satire of the world we live in today."

Undoubtedly, Fellini and fellow screenwriter Bernardino Zapponi added much of their own perceptions to those of Petronius. "Fellini Satyricon" looks at Roman corruption through the eyes of two young men who journey through their society almost passively, experiencing the squalor they did not create. Seldom do they outwardly react against it.

The film follows these men from adventure to adventure as they interact in a society their encounters teach them to study, question and ultimately reject.

Fellini has established what he must feel is the historic contrast: a rotting civilization wallowing in its own excess and a youthful subculture giving it the scrutiny it cannot bear if it is to continue. In this contrast and through this scrutiny Fellini implies a crucial social continuum: the inevitable demise of societies who have lost their ideals and their replacement by new societies built on the rejection of the old order and renewed idealism.

Fellini has sought to establish this social continuum and bring into sharp contemporary focus by looking to the past. Unfortunately he has muddled his efforts by his emphasis on the visual and his neglect of the thematic.

The viewer is so overwhelmed by the surface effects he is inclined to accept or reject the film for strictly visual reasons. Those who praise it do so because of its haunting imagery, and those who discredit it do so because of its freak show appearance. Notice the underlying theme and this is less the viewers' fault than it is Fellini's.

Fellini has embellished his film with unique blend of fantasy and reality. The scenes seem to realistic to be shruffed off yet surrealistic to be approached logically. The imagery is a stunning even the most appalling and bloody moments seem strangely compelling.

Indeed, in the purely visual sense, "Fellini Satyricon" without peer in imagination and variety. Unfortunately its reason for being—the contemporary parallels implied—are lost in the nightmarish panorama of twisted humans and their freakish actions.

Still, "Fellini Satyricon" is a unusual it should be seen. While else but Federico Fellini could be so masterful even in partial failure?

Terrorists kill third policeman

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A policeman was killed and another seriously wounded Wednesday by four terrorists who opened fire from inside a car on a precinct in the outskirts of Buenos Aires.

It was the second attack in less than a week against an Argentine police station. Last Friday two policemen were killed when another terrorist group tried to seize a police post at Rosario, 170 miles north of here.

Later a group known as the People's revolutionary Army claimed credit for the attack.

Library offers children's hour

Registration is being taken today through Monday for the children's story hour entitled "Children and animals have fun everywhere," according to Miss Julia Hunt, Children's librarian at the East Lansing City Library.

All children from three to five years of age and not yet in kindergarten are eligible to register. The story hour will be offered at four time periods: 10 to 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday and 2:30 p.m. Wednesday in the library located at 950 Abbots Rd., East Lansing.

The story hour is an eight week program starting the week of September 28.

Unions accused of non-white bias

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's top job rights officer accused U.S. labor Thursday of "playing all those cards" of its influence in Congress to avoid opening its unions fully to nonwhites.

"They feel they have a lot of friends on the Hill; they put a lot of money into congressional campaigns," Asst. Secretary of Labor Arthur A. Fletcher told a House subcommittee.

As a result, there is a widespread feeling in government, he said, that even though equal opportunity programs are backed by President Nixon, labor will be able to maintain white-favoring membership practices through friends on key congressional committees.

"I've found that labor unions have been jawboning on civil rights and lining up with Congress on civil rights bills for so long that they feel they're above and beyond having to comply themselves," Fletcher said. "Now the moment of truth has come... They aren't being very cooperative."

Fletcher, assistant secretary of labor for wages and standards, testified before a House Armed Services subcommittee studying the effects of federal equal opportunity programs on defense contracts.

Fletcher told the subcommittee he had just learned that a nationwide industry which he would not publicly name is operating under a union contract that excludes nonwhites.

He said the Office of Contract Compliance under his jurisdiction will investigate.

"This keeps minorities out of this industry across the country," he said. "It's just about impossible for them (the industry) to be in compliance."

Chairman Charles H. Wilson, D-Calif., said his subcommittee has found no evidence that the quality of defense work is being reduced by federal requirements that contractors hire and train minority workers — although companies say the training programs will increase contract costs.

Wilson said industry's complaint is that it is frustrated by multiple and sometimes conflicting equal opportunity directives from a variety of federal and state agencies.

FBI REPORTS

City crime increases

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Major crime increased in six large cities during the first six months of 1970, according to statistics compiled by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Lansing reported increases in all seven crime reporting categories. Larceny cases showed the largest jump, from 853 in the first half of last year to 831 this year.

The FBI figures showed Detroit had an increase in six of seven categories, compared with the first half of 1969. The decrease was in the number of auto thefts, 10,024 this year against 10,439 in 1969.

Detroit recorded increases in murder and non-negligent manslaughter, from 200 to 210, and in the number of forcible rapes, robberies, aggravated assaults, burglaries and grand larceny.

One less robbery was reported in Livonia for the six-month period, giving that community an increase in six of the seven categories.

Grand Rapids and Warren each had declines in two of the seven which were more than offset by rises in the other five. Dearborn had increases in four of the seven categories.

Of the seven Michigan cities listed in the FBI statistics of cities over 100,000 population, only Flint reported less crime

NOT ELECTION ISSUE

Parties play down strike

Michigan campaign strategists for both Republicans and Democrats are tending to minimize the effect of the United Autoworkers strike against General Motors on the Nov. 3 election.

"I really don't think the strike will have a big effect on the campaign," said Democratic state Chairman James McNeely. "Maybe if feelings intensify over it and the strike's still dragging on at election time, it will affect the outcome of the campaign in a very, very general way."

However, McNeely said the strike is a highly volatile situation and "could change dramatically from day to day, so it's difficult to assess what the impact will be."

McNeely usually a severe critic of Gov. William G. Milliken, said "Voters are too sophisticated" to place the blame for the strike on Milliken.

"It's not credible. There's not that kind of direct relationship here. There are many other legitimate issues in the campaign," he said.

An aide to Democratic gubernatorial candidate Sander M. Levin believed the strike would hurt Republicans if it continues into November.

"The situation would then draw attention to governmental economic policies, with unemployment and inflation coming into focus," he said.

One Republican worker involved in legislative races said the strike "can't do us any good, but it's not really that important of a factor."

"When the voters are mad about the way things are going, the incumbent usually gets blamed," he said. "But I still don't think the strike will

Flint GM strikers feel money squeeze

DETROIT (UPI) — Nobody's drinking whiskey at Ethel's Bar in Flint, Mich., these days. Bottle beer sales are also "down to practically nothing."

Most of the customers are auto workers from the Fisher Body plant across the street. The few who still can afford it have been limiting themselves to a couple of glasses of draft beer before they resume picketing duties or hunt for a part-time job.

Strikebound General Motors Corp., of which Fisher Body is a part, is the largest employer in highly industrial Flint, with 56,000 workers.

"Everyone around here seems to be trying to save as much money as he can," said the daytime barmaid at Ethel's. The barmaid, a mother of four, is "thankful" to be working. Her husband, one of the striking GM employees, isn't.

The GM strike is not yet two weeks old. Some of the auto workers hope it will end in another week or so. Others expect to be on the picket line during the winter.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock warned at the re-opening of formal negotiations with GM Tuesday "this is going to be one hell of a long strike."

A Michigan Employment Security Commission report made public by Gov. William G. Milliken this week concluded that a six to eight week strike would "rule out any hope of substantial (economic) recovery (in Michigan) during the last quarter of this year."

"A strike of that duration would mean that unemployment, swelled by layoffs in the related industries, could equal the June level of 280,000... throughout the quarter," Milliken said.

In Pontiac, where the GM strike has idled about 35,000 workers at four plants, the pinch is already being felt.

Harold B. Euler, treasurer of the North Oakland County Chamber of Commerce, said he has already noticed "fewer sales" and generally "less activity in all businesses downtown." He said it was too early to make any deductions from these findings.

It didn't take Robert Zamecki, an employee at GM's Pontiac Division plant, long to make his own deductions.

"You still have to eat and the doctors bills don't stop just because a strike is coming," he said. He said he "expected the strike and tried to prepare for it, but there's no way to put much money aside when you have three kids."

Despite his financial woes, Zamecki, 33, supports the union's decision to strike GM entirely.

Most of the strikers agree with Zamecki, even though they have received their last full paycheck. As of Sept. 29, they will be receiving only $30 to $40 a week from the union's strike fund — which will be exhausted in seven or eight weeks.

Grand Rapids and Warren each had declines in two of the seven which were more than offset by rises in the other five. Dearborn had increases in four of the seven categories.

Talks focus on 'Youth City'

By JOHN BORGER
State News Staff Writer

President Wharton will explore the University community's "city of youth" in many of his lounge dialogues at residence halls this year, he said this week.

The "city of youth" theme deals with the nature of student contact with other students, faculty and administrators within the University structures -- and the limited number of contacts outside those structures.

"The University ought to be a beautiful society of the mind," Wharton said. "We should all work together."

Wharton first emphasized the "city of youth" theme in his keynote address to the annual convention of the Michigan Municipal League Sept. 9.

"Our approach to environmental problems should not merely focus upon the interaction of man with his physical setting but should pay equal attention to the interaction between man and man," Wharton told the group.

Isolated society

The most important characteristic of the "city of youth" is the narrow age distribution of the members of the community, Wharton said. Nearly 80 per cent of the campus community is between 18 and 22 years old, and have little contact with persons outside this age range -- and often even within this age range.

"Except in laboratory sessions or small sections, peer contacts of a close and continuing nature are limited to a few individuals and these rarely extend beyond a particular course or term," he pointed out.

Wharton said he will discuss student contacts with faculty in the classroom and with University services in his meetings this fall.

"The full effect of living and studying in a city of the young is that of far greater isolation and insulation from other generations, and a predominance of contacts and interaction with one's peer group," Wharton said in his speech.

"Even when the peer group interaction is not personal, there is a shared set of youthful values and attitudes which transcend differences in background, income, race and levels of intelligence. With limited contact with other age groups, one inevitably finds a massive reinforcement of the youthful values and concerns."

These shared values and concerns help to account for the rapidity with which news spreads when a sensitive issue erupts and for the speed with which a large number of demonstrators gather during any student-administration confrontation over such an issue, he said.

Accepted behavior

Another characteristic of the University community is the diffusion of authority and the lack of any single authority figure, Wharton said.

A young person entering the "city of youth" is removed from the broader societal pressures and constraints which induce conformity to standards of acceptable behavior, Wharton said.

"In today's modern society," he stated, "adherence to behavioral codes and the avoidance of unacceptable behavior is due far more to social pressure than to moral and ethical codes."

"Whether we like it or not, many citizens today adhere to a standard of conduct more because their neighbors do, or are expected to do so, rather than because they are fully convinced of the moral validity of such codes," he said.

"The 'city of youth' phenomenon is not limited to the university community, Wharton said. As young people become increasingly mobile and parents lose effective surveillance, societal controls have been disintegrating, especially in large cities and wealthy suburbs.

A sub-culture of youth within the larger culture is also emerging within several urban areas, Wharton said.

AT KENT STATE

White vows no shutdown

KENT, Ohio (AP) — President Robert I. White Thursday renewed his vow to keep Kent State University open and declared, "We are not going to live in a state of perpetual apprehension."

He told new students arriving on the campus where four students were shot to death last May that security will be stiffer this year and, "Heaven knows, I regret it as much as you do."

But he warned them to be aware of "the rumor mill — a ghastly institution that works overtime."

White closed the university last May 4 two hours after four students were shot to death and nine others wounded in a confrontation with Ohio National Guardsmen.

The troops had been sent to the campus to put an end to a series of student disorders.

White noted the Kent State campus police force has been beefed up from 36 to 48 full-time officers since last spring and said that additional coordination has been established with nearby police agencies.

The new strength and new coordination, he said, "are designed to keep other law enforcement agencies off the campus."

"Basically, we are saying we will handle the job ourselves," he added. "We are going to stay open. We are going to operate."

White said earlier he will combine orderly university operation with closer student-faculty communications to keep the school open.

Classes begin Monday, and though enrollment for the freshman class is down about 43 per cent, university officials anticipate final enrollment to approach the 21,000 plus students who registered last fall.

"I hope it's quiet this year," Stahl, 21, Richwood, N. J., senior said. She said she saw the confrontation and shooting from her dormitory window last May.

"I thought the guardsmen were firing blanks," she said, "and even when the students were falling I just couldn't believe it."

University officials announced a new code of conduct for the students, providing for quick suspension and banishment from the campus of troublemakers. This code brings the campus in line with a state law on campus disruption that became effective Sept. 16.

Jackson State Opens quietly

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Fall classes began quietly at Jackson State College on Wednesday, opening the first regular school session since the violence of last May 15 in which two persons died.

Bullet-shattered panels and windows have been replaced on the girls' dormitory in the area where two young blacks were killed during a police barrage.

Student leaders said no memorial ceremonies were planned now but they were considering designating a week next May to commemorate the deaths of Phillip Gibbs and James Earl Green.

Officials said the violence appeared to have no impact on enrollment, which was 3,700 last spring, but no fall figures were available.

Jackson State called off the final two weeks of the spring semester following the shooting, but held a summer session without incident.

'U' journalism students study in Yugoslavia

Editor's Note: State News staff writer Diane Petryk was one of 35 students participating in MSU's first International Seminar in Comparative Journalism.

By DIANE PETRYK
State News Staff Writer

It was the first time a group of Americans had ever stayed in the little town of Omis, Yugoslavia, where 35 students attended MSU's first International Seminar in Comparative Journalism this summer.

The comparing of cultures, and the enthusiasm Yugoslavs and Americans showed for getting to know one another made it a summer that neither group will easily forget.

Yugoslavia was chosen by the creator of the program, Stanley E. Smith, associate professor of journalism, because of its accessibility to both western and eastern journalists and because of his familiarity with the area.

Smith provided distinguished guest lecturers from some of the most renowned and respected newspapers, news services and broadcast systems in the world.

The students' job was to ask them questions probing and comparing their various press systems, theories and methods. No punches were pulled with the journalists from the Communist countries concerning such topics as propaganda, censorship and objectivity.

"It is difficult to describe the totality of the educational experience," said Beverly Twitchell, associate editor of the MSU Faculty News, who participated in the program.

"We probed journalistic concerns with the speakers, but we found equal interest on both sides in other contemporary issues -- racism, campus unrest and pollution," she said.

"The discussions were sometimes broad, but more meaningful were the international contributions -- interjections on various political and social struggles in Africa from Frank Barton of the International Press Institute; the industry (pollution) vs.

tourism question in Yugoslavia discussed with Richard Sudhalter, UPI correspondent in Belgrade and discussion on solutions to racism with Georges Albert Salvan who covered the Algerian revolution for Agence France Presse.

"We gained a lot of perspective and other points of view," said Jane Gaston, Kalamazoo Senior. "A lot of the Yugoslavs like America more than we do."

Kim Serota, Birmingham sophomore, said the whole trip was "fascinating with regard to the people we met and talked with. It was as much a cultural experience as it was a journalistic learning experience."

Smith summed up his feelings concerning the seminar this way:

"It went even better than we had anticipated. The caliber of the guest lecturers from all over Europe was exceptionally high, and their talks really stimulated the students. But even more striking was the way students profited from the informal meetings with the guests -- over coffee or wine, or even sitting by a cove on the beach in the evening.

"But I think equally valuable for the students has been their contact with the local people and with young people from other countries. It's an experience they'll never forget -- and I'm sure the people of Omis will never forget these young Americans either."

Each guest lecture was tape recorded and students were asked to transcribe it. Smith is now planning a book on the foreign press.

Outside of class, -- held only in the mornings -- students were free to enjoy the sun and to swim in the Adriatic Sea (situated only a few feet from their hotel), to attend the dances held in the evenings and to drink the inexpensive Yugoslav wine.

The women were overwhelmed by the handsome Croatian men found in great numbers in the little resort town and anxious to date American girls.

The men were often occupied with challenging a local team in basketball. They lost every game.

"They're not good, but we're worse," Dave Taylor, Royal Oak Senior said.

Eating at the hotel was also an experience.

Trying to communicate with waiters who spoke only Serbo-Croatian. Failing. Trying to get up the nerve to eat the fried squid tentacles one was served.

Mattie Garrett, Flint Sophomore, had an interesting experience when the group was invited for a lamb roast in a tiny, remote village where relatives of one of the seminar members live. Being the first black person they had ever seen, she received a great deal of special attention.

The students found Yugoslavia, often considered the most free of all Communist East European nations, is rapidly becoming a great tourist center. The rocky Dalmatian coast provides striking scenery. The people are open and are allowed to freely criticize their government. An almost universal love of Tito prevails along with a fear of what might follow when he is gone. The people were generally anti-Soviet.

One Yugoslav student, Frank Magista of Ljubljana, said Yugoslavia has more freedom than any of Russia's other satellite countries and wants to keep it that way. Part of the anti-Soviet feeling, he said, is due to resentment over having received no help from them during World War II.

In getting to Omis, the students traveled for a grueling 36 hours by plane, bus and train. Smith said when he greeted the exhausted students on their arrival he thought they were going to lynch him for planning such a route.

Next year Smith hopes to hold the seminar somewhere else in Yugoslavia. He was annoyed by the factories of Omis polluting the air with thick smoke. The city of Trogir, not far down the coast, is a possible site.

Another change he hopes to make will allow the seminar to be truly international. Instead of only international guests, Smith also hopes to recruit students from various countries.

Those interested in the seminar may view a display of artifacts and pictures the students brought back from their trip in the Center for International Programs November through April.

Grad to help black women

By JEANNE SADDLER
Associate Campus Editor

Black women at MSU now have someone they can turn to who understands the problems, assets and realities of being black in a white system.

Toni Eubanks, recently appointed graduate assistant for minority students by Eldon Nonnamaker, dean of students, will be working primarily with black women on campus this year.

The new position was created to deal with the special problems often encountered by female black aides in the dorms on a full-time, campus-wide basis.

"We will deal with all aspects of the black woman this year," Miss Eubanks said, "starting with her unique beauty and including her political role in the black struggle and her role in society."

Personal problems

Although she stressed that she wants to let the young women express their concerns to her, Miss Eubanks said that she would definitely have to work with pregnancy and drug problems.

By working closely with Don Coleman, director of minority students and with the female black aides, Miss Eubanks hopes to deal with problems and issues both on a personal and general basis.

"My long-range goal," Miss Eubanks stated, "is to help black women to make their own individual decisions about their future. I hope I can help them make these decisions with knowledge of and within a black value system."

Beauty hints

Miss Eubanks said she will first deal with the outer aspect of black beauty. A representative from "Libra," a black cosmetics company will visit campus Oct. 14 and 15.

She will demonstrate the correct shades, and application of make-up. For non-users, the "Libra" representative will discuss proper complexion care for blacks.

"All black men, no matter what their politics are, want to be physically attracted to their black women," Miss Eubanks said. "Black women should not reject or neglect their beauty."

The "Libra" representative will also show a short movie, "A Sense of Beauty, Your Source of Pride." The demonstrations will be from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the Union parlors B and C, Oct. 14, and in McDonel Kiva, Oct. 15.

Symposium planned

In the future, Miss Eubanks hopes to plan, with the help of as many black co-eds as possible, an all-University symposium on the black woman.

After graduating from MSU in the spring of 1969, Miss Eubanks taught for one year at Jefferson Junior High School in Pontiac. She conducted a similar program for black girls at Jefferson, an all-black school.

This year she will be studying for her master of arts degree in English with a concentration in writing, and hopes eventually to return to the field of education.

Ford dumps low leases to members of Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Ford Motor Co., prompted by a Senate Ethics Committee admonition to legislators, announced Thursday it is abandoning its practice of leasing Lincoln Continentals and other luxury cars to members of Congress at heavily discounted rates.

At least 24 senators and 16 house members, including some sitting on committees dealing with legislation affecting the auto industry, leased cars from Ford and Chrysler at cut rates. Ford said that starting with the 1971 model year, committee chairmen and ranking minority members would be offered the cars at regular commercial rates in the District of Columbia — $3,600 a year or $2,800 for a two-year lease.

Favored legislators had been able to rent Continentals for $750 a year, with maintenance and many other expenses paid by Ford.

Following the disclosure, the Senate Ethics Committee advised senators to turn in discount lease cars before the 1971 model year began. The committee also criticized the practice of leases contracted through Senate committees even though individual senators were billed for costs.

It said it was issuing a schedule of higher rates "in response to comments on Ford's leasing program by the Senate's Select Committee on Standards and Conduct."

Increased housing need cited

Housing is a critical problem in the United States.

To meet growing needs and the 10-year goal established by Congress in 1968 to provide 26 million housing units, requires doubling the present rate of production, according to William Lloyd, professor of building construction at MSU.

America needs to build but the question is how?

To find some possible answers, Lloyd and graduate student John P. Bailey recently completed a 3-month study of prefabricated housing techniques in Sweden.

"If the housing objectives established by Congress are to be met, our housing policies must be altered to direct more investment into the housing sector of our economy," they said.

To facilitate growth, Lloyd suggests building codes in the United States should be made more uniform and in line with industrial forms of production.

"Standardization is the first prerequisite for industrial forms of production," Lloyd said. Thus, seems rational that U.S. trade organizations, financial institutions, the government or some other controlling organization should take steps to encourage more standardization of building forms.

Currently, MSU is conducting extensive research on industrialized housing production, transportation and consumer acceptability.

The development of mass markets for quantity production is also required, Lloyd said, along with more extensive housing research.

HOSTS FOREIGN STUDENTS

SERVAS aids travelers

By DAVID BASSETT
State News Staff Writer

Foreign students at MSU interested in learning more about American life by visiting in American homes can do so through SERVAS, a non profit organization whose hundreds of hosts across the country have opened their homes to promote international understanding.

SERVAS was first conceived by an international group of youths studying in Askov, Denmark, in 1948. Originally called the Opendoor System of Work, Study and Travel, the name SERVAS (an Esperanto word meaning "serve") was later adopted to denote a spirit of international mutual service.

The United States SERVAS Committee, Inc., is part of a worldwide voluntary organization working to bring together men and women of all nationalities.

SERVAS hosts invite travelers into their homes for a visit of two nights and attempt to offer their guests a welcome and genuine interest in sharing and exchanging opinions, ideas and experiences.

Approved SERVAS travelers plan their own itineraries, using host lists from the areas in which they will travel. Travelers have the opportunity to visit homes in small towns as well as those in large metropolitan areas.

No fees are exchanged between visitor and host. Each year, several hundred approved travelers make approximately 2,000 visits with their hosts in America.

SERVAS also offers American students the opportunity to visit with hosts in over 25 countries, including England, France, Japan, Columbia and Switzerland.

Foreign students who are interested in becoming SERVAS travelers during their stay in America may write for information to U.S. SERVAS, McBurney Branch YMCA, 215 W. 23rd St., New York 10011, or contact Duncan Meikle, 110 Bailey St., East Lansing.

Economics forces United to cut back regular flights

By DONNA WILBURN
State News Staff Writer

United Airline service from Capital City Airport will be cutback from nine to three flights daily beginning Oct. 25.

United manager in Lansing, Paul Elmen, said the cancellation of flights was the result of a nationwide program which eliminated 23 flights and affected 59 Michigan cities.

"Lansing has not been singled out as the only city which has been forced to cutback flights because of the economic plight of the airlines," Elmen said.

Elmen explained that some improvements to customers have evolved in spite of the consolidation of regular services.

"Lansing passengers will not have to share flights with other cities as in the past; we will be able to sell all seats on the three flights non-stop from Lansing," he said.

Elmen added that although the choice of times to depart will be less, the amount of seats to a destination will remain basically the same. He also said connecting services will be more efficient.

United daily flights after Oct. 25 include two flights to Chicago and one to Cleveland which continues to Baltimore.

Flights to Detroit, Grand Rapids and Saginaw, two flights to Chicago and one flight to Cleveland will be cancelled.

Although four airlines operate from Capital City Airport, United and North Central provide a majority of the service. Trans-Michigan and Air Michigan each schedule only four flights daily.

With fewer flights scheduled by United, North Central may assume more service. David E. Moran, North Central vice-president in Minneapolis, said the possibility of additional flights will be evaluated to aid preparation of future schedules.

However, flights cannot be added to meet the Oct. 25 date, since schedules are already complete.

Russell Brown, manager of the Capital City Airport, said that at the present time all passenger requests cannot be accommodated. "We need more eastbound flights and better scheduling," he said.

Brown explained that airlines as well as other businesses across the nation are feeling the pressure of the present lag in the economy.

Mc Kee report to return

By DAVE SHORT
State News Staff Writer

Almost four months since its overwhelming defeat by the Academic Senate, the controversial McKee report on student participation returns to the University Limelight when the Academic Council reconvenes for the fall term on Oct. 6.

The report recommended that students be given increased representation and voting rights on the Academic Council and its standing committees, increased involvement within the several departments, colleges, centers and institutes of the University, provisions be granted for specific minority student representation in academic government, the establishment of a new Faculty-Student Committee on Academic Governance and the redefinition and reconstruction of the Student Affairs Committee.

"The McKee Report will be the (Academic) Council's number one priority business. We plan to deal with it in full, deliberate speed," Walter Johnson, professor of administration and higher education and the vice chairman of the faculty steering committee, said.

The McKee report, which was viewed by many as the most inclusive and far-reaching document advocating student participation in University governance, faces almost certain revisions.

Revision needed

"Unless the Council makes some changes in the report, it'll be bounced back again. I don't see any chance for the Senate to change its mind on the report in its present form," Herbert Rudman, professor of administration and higher education, said.

"Because of such overwhelming faculty opposition to its passage last spring, which was significantly more than I had anticipated, it will have to have revisions before it is passed," Terry Sullivan, the student representative to the Academic Council, when the report was defeated, said.

The major objections to the report revolve around the number of student representatives on committees, concern over the legality and the selection of minority group representatives and whether or not students have a right to be involved in decisions concerning faculty matters.

While most University faculty members support the idea of increased student participation in academic governance, they are apprehensive about the effects it may have on their academic freedom.

Participation wanted

"There is a genuine desire among the faculty to have student participation but they will not buy any degree of representation that they would construe as student domination," Chitra Smith, professor in James Madison College, said.

"I am entirely confident that with two or three major changes, dealing with the over-representation of minority groups, too many students on committees and having students voting on strictly faculty matters, the report will be passed," Smith said.

The faculty does not want to lose any of its powers. Some members see any form of increased student participation in academic governance as a definite threat to them; and other faculty members fear that the students and the administrators on certain committees could form a block against them.

A major controversy also developed over the clause in the McKee Report that involved increased minority group representation.

There was considerable question last spring as to whether the report's minority group provisions would be a violation of the 1964 Civil Rights Act. In an attempt to clear up the legality issue, President Wharton plans to make a statement based on his research early next week.

Minority representatives

The manner in which minority group representatives would be chosen is also at issue among the faculty. Many faculty members are against having one particular faction select the representatives because they may not be indicative of the broad scale of minorities.

In revising the McKee Report, the Academic Council is faced with several possible methods. A committee could review it, the report could be revised from the floor, or a special review system could be instituted.

Even if the Academic Council's revisions are not acceptable to the Academic Senate, the McKee Report could be amended from the Senate floor this time.

University leaders are confident that the objectionable parts of the McKee Report will be ironed out before the Council sends it back to the Academic Senate again for reconsideration.

And, most elements within the University, from the Administration on down, are confident that the McKee Report will be passed by the Senate's assigned deadline of January 1, 1971.

Yet, there is much speculation as to how effective and far-reaching the McKee Report recommendations will be if they are passed.

"The report will be passed in some form but you get to the question of what is going to be left of it," Charles Larrowe, professor of economics, said. "I think it'll be watered down, a sop, but at least, it will be a step in the right direction."

"If students want equality, the report (will appear to be) watered down. But if they want participation at a proper perspective, the proportion will be significantly increased," Herbert Garfinkel, dean of James Madison College, said concerning the changes that will have to be made in the report.

James McKee, professor of sociology sees some hope for the report's passage.

"I think that the council will have to try to come up with changes in it. Yet, the changes aren't necessarily radical ones in creating student participation that is worthwhile," he said.

Increased student participation in academic governance seems likely to come in the near future. But, the extent of it remains to be seen; it probably will not be as wide-sweeping as that proposed in the original McKee Report, however.

Gridders hope to rebound in home opener

By JEFF ELLIOTT
State News Staff Writer

Out to prove that they're not as bad as last week's loss might indicate, the MSU Spartans will meet Washington State University (1-1) Saturday in Spartan Stadium.

Kickoff is set for 1:30 p.m. with a crowd of 65,000 expected as the Spartans open their six game home schedule. An extra feature Saturday is the annual Band Day extravaganza, with numerous bands from around the state providing the halftime entertainment. All high school students can attend the game by purchasing a special ticket at $2 each which will go on sale at the stadium starting at 10 a.m. Saturday.

The Spartans will be attempting to bounce back from last week's 42-16 drubbing at the hands of the University of Washington. In that game the Spartans' offense picked up 298 yards, but the defense allowed twice that amount, including two long touchdown plays.

MSU Head Coach Duffy

Daugherty has been giving the defense a little overtime work this week in preparation for the Cougars' attack.

"Washington State's offense is similar to Washington's," Daugherty said. "They picked up over 500 yards against a tough Kansas defense so we know they can move the ball. And they certainly can score at will as indicated by the 38 points they scored in the second half against Idaho."

With the loss of middle guard Bill Dawson and tackle Ron Curl for the year, Daugherty has been experimenting with five different men in hopes of coming up with the right combination to stop the opponent's running game. The five who were after the two starting jobs this week were John Shinsky and Tom Barnum, both of whom started last week, linebacksers Mike Hogan and Dan Kulikowski and middle guard Duane McLaughlin.

Following a tough practice Thursday, Daugherty indicated he would go with Hogan and Kulikowski as the starters, with the other trio standing by and ready for duty should the starters falter. Hogan, a senior, is 6-3, 225 pounds from Kettering, Ohio and Kulikowski is a 6-1, 214 pound junior from Muskegon.

Defensive captain Wilt Martin will start at one end while junior Doug Halliday replaces Dave Thomas at the other end spot. Senior Cal Fox will start again as one outside linebacker while sophomore Gail Clark gets the call at the other side. In the middle, Daugherty indicated he'll go with either senior Jay Breslin or sophomore Ernie Hamilton.

The defensive secondary stays the same with the exception of the safety spot where sophomore Brad Van Pelt will start. Harold Phillips and Doug Barr will be the cornerbacks and Brad McLee will be in the roverback spot.

There's some new faces in the starting offensive squad as well as the defense. Junior tailback Henry Mathews and sophomore fullback Ken Alderson will open in the backfield along with quarterback Mike Rasmussen and flanker Eric Allen. Bill Triplett and Tom Love are both hobbled by injuries, although Triplett should see action in Saturday's game.

MSU's two fine ends, Gordie Bowdell and co-captain Billy Joe DuPree will be Rasmussen's targets again. Last week Rasmussen hit both receivers six times for better than 100 yards.

There's two changes in offensive line for the Spartans this week. Vic Mittelberg and Errol Roy will start at left tackle and left guard respectively, while Bob McClowry, guard Joe DeLamielleure and tackle Jim Nicholson start their second game.

Line coach Gordie Serr drilled his men long and hard this week in effort to improve on last week's rather feeble showing. When asked if the line would make a better showing this week, Serr replied, "Indeed — indeed they will!"

Last year's second leading punter in the Big Ten Pat Miller reported to the squad this week and should be ready to go Saturday. He's receiving stiff competition from sophomore Richard Salani however, for the kicking chores. Place kicker Boris Shlapak will again handle kick - offs, extra - points and field goal attempts.

Why is this man smiling?

MSU Coach Duffy Daugherty leads his team out of the locker room and out into Spartan Stadium. Spartan fans hope that famous smile is still there after Saturday's home opener with Washington State. State News photo by John Harrington

FACE UNBEATEN TEXAS A&M

Bucks open title quest

CHICAGO (UPI) — All Big Ten football teams swing into action this weekend, including Ohio State which traditionally starts its nine-game schedule after its conference colleagues have had one game under their belt.

The Buckeyes, co-champions of the Big Ten and ranked second nationally before they have even taken the field, face undefeated Texas A & M. Although Ohio State is the likely favorite in this intersectional match, the oddsmakers did not list the contest one way or the other.

Purdue, one of three Big Ten teams who won their maiden 1970 intersectional clashes last Saturday, meets the toughest foe of all conference teams. The Boilermakers face Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind., and the Irish, impressive winners over Northwestern, have been installed a two-touchdown choice.

Michigan, another conference squad seeking to make it two in a row, travels west for a game at Washington. The Wolverines are picked 10 points over the Huskies, who defeated Michigan State last Saturday.

Illinois, long accustomed to being the underdog, is again cast in that role for its Saturday game against Tulane, although the Illini pulled off the surprise of the week with their conquest of Oregon.

Sophomore Mike Wells, who made UPI's Midwest Back of the Week honors for the Illini last weekend, was listed as doubtful player because of chest injury suffered against Oregon. Tulane was a three-point favorite.

Three other games were on the card against West Coast teams. Iowa will be host to Southern California, a 15-point favorite. Northwestern travels to UCLA and Indiana to California. Minnesota and Wisconsin open their home campaigns, the Gophers seeking to avenge 35-35 tie last year with Ohio University, and Wisconsin aiming to get its offense moving against Texas Christian.

Patience needed
with offensive line

Hey fans, take it easy. After all, the Spartans can still have a 9-1 year.

True, they can still go 1-9 as well, but this year's club is not a 1-9 team. There's just too many good ball players on the squad to lose 90 per cent of the games on this year's schedule.

Last week's 42-16 loss to Washington was very discouraging indeed. I'm not sure who suffered more, the team itself, a few of us MSU writers in the pressbox or the majority of fans who sat in front of the radio listening to the broadcaster dejectedly describe another Washington score. But having seen the game, I still contend that the Spartans are not that bad, and that Washington is not 26 points better than MSU.

Everyone has been criticizing the offensive line for not doing their job in opening the holes for the backs or not giving quarterback Mike Rasmussen enough protection on passes. What your forgetting is that of the six linemen that started last Saturday's game, everyone of them was starting his first college game at that position. Gary Nowak, left tackle, had started a couple of games on defense the past couple of years, but was in his first games as an offensive lineman.

Senior guard Mike Tobin is a two-year letterman but spent the last couple of years playing behind All-American Ron Saul and was starting his first game. Junior Jim Nicholson was hurt most of last year and was used at tight end when he did play. Guard Joe Delamilleure and center Bob McClowery are both sophomores with a lot of potential, but you can only expect so much the first game.

Senior center Tom Beard was the only veteran linemen returning this year but broke a bone in his foot two weeks ago and will be out at least another game. Beard's experience and his size (6-6, 267 pounds) was being counted on by Spartan coaches to guide the newer and younger players, kind of a quarterbacks of the linemen. So fans (and the Spartan backs for that matter) may have to be patient with the men up front for another game or maybe two until "they get their feet wet."

You can look for two new faces in the line this week. Vic Mittelberg, who ruled as the Big Ten's wrestling heavyweight last year, will get the nod over Nowak at tackle, and senior letterman Errol Roy will join Mittelberg on the left side of the line in place of the line again and McClowery will repeat as the starting center.

One area which the offensive line will have to improve on besides blocking for the running play, is penalties. In the Washington game, the Spartans were penalized 100 yards for 10 infractions, half of which were for illegal blocking of some type. They got a 15 yard penalty when Nicholson batted down a Rasmussen pass, which may have saved an interception, though.

So fans, be patient and keep faith in this year's squad. The potential is there and avoiding any more serious injuries, this club is going to be tough. A win over Washington State Saturday could start the momentum needed for the next three weeks when the Spartans meet Notre Dame, Ohio State and Michigan in succession.

Paine may hurt Spartan defense

By JEFF ELLIOTT
State News Sports Writer

Ty Paine is a quiet, conservative, 18-year old who is making big news on the Washington State campus this fall. Already people in Pullman are calling him the football messiah that has arrived at WSU to revamp the Cougar's football fortunes.

Paine, 6-3, 205 pound signal caller from Billings, Mont., led the freshman team to a perfect 4-0 season last year and inherited the starting quarterback spot this fall. In the Cougars' first two games this year (they lost to Kansas 48-31 and beat Idaho 44-16), Paine completed 18 of 44 passes for 285 yards.

While his passing statistics aren't equal to those of a Jim

Plunkett or an Archie Manning, Paine has that one characteristic that many of the big name quarterbacks lack — team leadership and command.

"He's emotionally unperturbable," WSU Head Coach Jim Sweeney says. "When he enters the huddle he is in charge and the others know it."

"I picture myself a leader," Paine himself says, "I step into the huddle and I tell them. You got to be that way. When someone makes a mistake, it is you who has to harp on it. You can't ever let anyone know how you really feel."

Paine's favorite target this year has been Jim Oggs, a 5-8, 155 pound JC transfer, who's caught 8 passes for 237 yards and 2 scores. The running attack is led by Bernard Jackson, a junior halfback. Against Kansas, Jackson carried 23 times for 131 yards and last week lugged the ball 20 times for an even 100 yards. He's also scored three touchdowns. Fullback Bob "Baby Bull" Ewen, the Cougars' top choice for all-star honors, has bashed his way for 228 yards on just 32 carries to sport a nifty 7.1 average.

Sweeney will start an all-junior offensive line, with three players starting for the second straight year. Buss Brazeau is the biggest man, weighing in at 265 and measuring 6-5. Brazeau is a nephew of former Spartan star athlete and coach Al Kircher. Center John Hook is a JC transfer and beat out last year's starting center Mike Lynch.

The Cougars defense is spearheaded by safety Lionel Thomas who was an all-conference cornerback last year for the Cougars. Against Idaho last week Thomas intercepted three passes and returned a punt 63 yards for a touchdown. For his fine play, he was named the Pacific 8's Defensive Player of the Week.

Pat Messenger calls the defensive signals for WSU, which will use a 4-4-3 defense. Messenger, a quick side linebacker, was credited with 22 tackles against Idaho.

The Cougars will go with a pro-set offense with two set backs, a flanker and a split end, similar to the Spartans formation. On occasions Sweeney will bring the flanker into the backfield and go with an "I" attack or "power I". The Cougars have a balanced attack averaging 247 yards on the ground and 249.5 yards in the air for their first two games.

TITLE FIGHT POSSIBLE TITLE

NY grants Ali license

NEW YORK (UPI) — Muhammad Ali applied Thursday for a license to box in the state of New York, and the athletic commission indicated formal approval will come on Monday to clear the way for the deposed heavyweight champion to reclaim the title.

Ali's license was suspended after his title taken away 3 1/2 years ago when he refused to be inducted into the army. Ali, who is free on bail while his draft evasion conviction is being appealed, has not fought since he defeated Zora Folley in Madison Square Garden and early next year it will allow him to fight Joe Frazier, who emerged as Ali's successor to the heavyweight title.

Asked if he still considered himself champion, Ali admitted suspension "arbitrary and unreasonable" and ordered the commission to license him again.

The license from New York will be the second granted to Ali within the last weeks. He also was granted permission for a 15-round "title" bout in Atlanta on Oct. 26 against Jerry Quarry. However, the license in the state of New York is to help smooth the path for the Quarry bout to be telecast on closed circuit in Madison Square Garden, and early next year it will allow him to fight Joe Frazier, who emerged as Ali's successor to the heavyweight title.

Asked if he still considered himself champion, Ali admitted for the first time that "As far as I'm concerned, I'm just a former champion trying to get back the title. I said I was retired, and he won the title. Of course, that's only on paper because I didn't have much choice but retire as long as nobody would let me fight and the people are the ones who have to decide on who the real champion is. Of course, in a couple months there won't be no doubt. It'll all be decided."

"It's just like Jack Johnson," Ali explained. "They don't let me fight for 3 1/2 years and then give me six weeks to get ready. Now we're gonna get him, everybody's saying. But if Quarry can get hit by a jab, there's no way I can lose, and folks have told me he can get hit by a jab."

Dr. Edwin Campbell, who gave Ali a physical examination as one of the steps for granting the license, said the deposed champion weighed 12 pounds more than his heaviest fight weight previously. But the commission doctor indicated Ali should have no trouble getting in condition to fight Quarry, and added, "His reflexes are still there, and that's the most important thing."

"The part I hate most about getting a license is when they take the blood," Ali said. "I hit his 18th homer to give him a 2-1 lead. A walk, needle, and goose pimples popped out on his arms. Freed's sacrifice fly and Dave

Tigers lose again, victim of Cuellar

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Mike Cuellar, backed by two homers by Paul Blair, recorded his major league high 24th victory Thursday as the Baltimore Orioles beat the Detroit Tigers, 7-4.

Cuellar, who lifted his record to 24-8, recorded his 21st complete game and broke a club record for season victories. Detroit took a 1-0 lead in the third inning when Mickey Stanley tripled and scored on a double play but Blair singled in the third and Brooks Robinson can't even watch that. He hit his 18th homer to give Baltimore a 2-1 lead. A walk, needle, and goose pimples popped out on his arms. Freed's sacrifice fly and Dave Johnson's single helped Baltimore stretch its lead to 4-1 in the fifth.

Mark Belanger singled in the sixth off loser John Hiller (5-5) and Blair greeted reliever Norm McRae with his 16th home run. He hit a solo homer in the eighth off Fred Scherman.

Detroit scored three runs in the eighth inning on singles by Ike Brown, Al Kaline, Don Wert and Elliot Maddox plus Blair's error.

CMU eyes big time status in all sports but football

MOUNT PLEASANT (UPI) — Central Michigan University has decided to apply to the National Collegiate Athletic Association for designation as a university division school in all sports except football, beginning with the 1971-72 school year.

William B. Boyd, president of Central Michigan, Tuesday authorized Athletic Director Rose to take the action.

The only effect this would have upon our program presently would be in post-season competition," Boyd said.

"The qualifying standards for the national championship events are noticeably tougher."

"However our football team would still be classed in the college division because this is the only sport in which the schedule determines the classification."

The NCAA studies a school's football schedule, which are made up years in advance, over a period of seasons. Generally, more than half a school's games must be against university division competition or else the school must be a member of a university - dominated conference for the NCAA to grant it university division status.

The Chips are now seeking a new league athletic alignment in the Midwest. The Interstate Intercollegiate Athletic Association disbanded this year and Central Michigan is competing as an independent for the first time in 20 years.

Mercury content checked in birds

Game birds taken from the Lake St. Clair area contained higher levels of mercury than those from inland areas, according to tests made at MSU.

Matthew J. Zabik, MSU pesticide researcher, believes this indicates that most mercury contamination of Michigan game birds comes from industry rather than from agricultural seeds treated with mercurial compounds.

"The latest tissue analysis showed less than .1 part per million (ppm) in 200 samples of pheasants and ducks from inland areas," Zabik explained. "Wild fowl from the Lake St. Clair area contained significantly higher mercury levels of .1 to 1.4 ppm."

Zabik notes that only one mercurial seed treatment compound can still be sold under federal regulations, and he believes that this product will soon be banned.

Chevy's Vega drags bottom

DETROIT (UPI) — Chevrolet's Vega, one of the domestic subcompacts designed to undercut foreign imports, rides low a shock absorber bolt may catch on car wash conveyor belt, it was disclosed Tuesday.

The Vega clears only 4 1/4 inches above the floor and most car washes have a 5 1/4 inch clearance, the Automatic Car Wash Association International said in a bulletin to 49 states and foreign countries. General Motors said it recognizes the washing Vega may have "a potential problem and we are working on it. We think it can be solved because it affects only the point on the underside of the car."

The car washers association termed "test results in Detroit show shock absorbers and undercarriage housing are torn off by conveyors in local car washes. Extreme caution is advised on washing this car on conveyors."

Moving in September is the time for moving. Coeds moving into South Campus residence halls were aided by University laundry carts and male muscle. Most residents were reported moved in by Wednesday afternoon.

Arafat, head of the Al Fatah guerrillas and the Palestine Liberation Organization, rejected the cease-fire Wednesday, calling it a "tactical withdrawal."

He was last reported in Jordan but sources in Cairo said he was expected to meet the two Palestinians in Damascus, the Syrian capital.

Abu Avid, Arafat's deputy in Fatah who helped to work out the cease-fire Wednesday, also flew to Cairo to meet the two Palestinians.

He had captured earlier this week the two to see Arafat. It was reported only one, Abu Avid, was released.

Replied to an urgent message from Arab leaders in Cairo about reports of more fighting near Irbid, Hussein said they were "absolutely false."

The king's message was addressed to Numairi and his four-man Arab mediation team. "All efforts since your visit have been directed at liquidating the causes of the conflict," Hussein said. "I have given strict orders to all units and all commanders to cease firing and abide by the cease-fire agreement."

Guerrilla broadcasts from Baghdad said the guerrillas still controlled Irbid and Ramtha 10 miles to the east although they conceded some of their forces made "a tactical withdrawal."

Correspondents who arrived in Beirut from Amman said Wednesday they do not believe the army will follow the cease-fire agreement.

Jordanian authorities said there were no more than 2,000 casualties but guerrilla leaders and others say they are at least 10 times as high.

AID TO MARRIED STUDENTS

Board approves funding to set up day care center

By DAVE PERSON
State News Staff Writer

The board of trustees voted at their September meeting to approve appropriations for a pilot unit for a married student service center.

The funds provided by the trustees will be used initially to form a day care center for the children of married students. This move is the first step in an effort to help married students meet more than just housing needs. It is also one of the first programs of its kind in the nation, Donald Melcer, associate professor of family and child science, said.

The proposal for the center was developed during the past year by a faculty-student committee from the psychology, family and child sciences departments, and the Counseling Center.

The concept for a married student services facility began a number of years ago as part of a larger interdisciplinary effort to develop a center for family and child study. The Institute for Family and Child Research was officially organized July 1, 1970 to carry out this plan.

Based on a survey of needs of married students conducted last spring, the center will offer not only a day care program for young children but also a variety of adult and family programs. These will include discussion groups concerning child rearing, marriage enrichment, family management, family crises and marriage and child counseling.

The first family service, to be established shortly, will be an evening telephone service manned by trained counselors who will answer questions concerning marriage and family.

The primary need expressed by married students, however, was for a quality day care program for preschool children. The Institute for Family and Child Research believes that student wives should have an opportunity to attend the University or to work to support their families. Therefore, a majority of the initial appropriations will be for buildings and personnel for the day care program.

The pilot unit will be located on the south side of Spartan Village and will accommodate fifty children. The Institute hopes to expand their program shortly so that any parent living in married housing will be able to have his children at a day care center within walking distance of his residence.

The day care center is designed to provide exceptional educational, recreational and nutritional programs for young children. The facility will not only meet federal licensing standards for day care programs, but is intended to be a model facility for training preschool teachers.

The director will be required to hold a master's degree in child development and have experience in teaching young children and administering early childhood programs.

Four teachers will be employed who hold bachelor's degrees in child development or elementary education. Trained parent and student volunteers will assist the teachers.

The day care program is being developed by personnel from the Institute of Family and Child Research which also directs the Laboratory Preschool, Therapeutic Preschool and Infancy programs.

The center is scheduled to open January 2, 1971. It will be in operation from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. The age range of children to be accepted in the first unit is from 2 1/2 to five years. Hot lunches will be served to children attending full day or morning periods; and snacks will be served mornings and afternoons.

The day care fee will be five dollars a day per child and a minimum enrollment will be for two half-day periods per week. Initially, enrollment will be limited to families living in student married housing.

Scholarship aid is available for needy families.

Interested married students can attend open meetings at 8 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday in the Spartan Village elementary school gym. Further explanation of the program will be offered.

Priority for placement will be given to parents who pre-enroll their children. This may be done by sending the child's name, birth date, the parent's signature, address, telephone number, and the anticipated number of days the child will attend the center per week to the Institute for Family and Child Research, Human Ecology Bldg., MSU. The deadline for pre-enrollment is October 5.

Lock removal

year wouldn't have had to move at all.

Office allocations are reviewed each fall, but groups are not normally asked to vacate their offices until the review is complete.

Some of the groups which currently have office space in ASMSU, including the Gay Liberation Movement, were granted temporary space this summer until the full board could act upon their request for space fall term.

Forged letters concerning the locks and Buckner's absence much of the afternoon complicated the rumor situation. Misrepresentations flourished. Several board members, including John Farley, Hubbard - Holmes district, and Robert Rosenthal, Holden - Wilson district, spent considerable time listening to Buckner and the complaining groups in an attempt to discover the actual situation.

LANGUAGE MAJORS

NSA speaks your language

And furthermore, if you are especially adept in certain foreign languages, the National Security Agency is ready to give you immediate linguistic assignments or may even train you in an entirely new language.

Demonstrated ability in language research can lead to more complex and sophisticated duties. The systematic accumulation of information, examination of data and preparation of special reports are important parts of these assignments. And scientific linguists will find nowhere else the opportunities for practical applications of their craft.

At NSA you will be joining an Agency of national prominence—a unique civilian organization responsible for developing "secure" communications systems to transmit and receive vital information.

NSA offers you this opportunity to further broaden your knowledge of modern language or area studies, and to use your talents in a challenging and rewarding career while you enjoy also the broad, liberal benefits of Federal employment. In return, we ask that you not only know your language, but that you be flexible, naturally inventive and intellectually curious. That's a lot to ask.

Do you fit the picture?

Where to go...what to do: Language applicants must take the Professional Qualification Test (PQT) as a prerequisite to NSA interviews for employment. Pick up a PQT Bulletin at your Placement Office, the sooner the better. It contains a brief registration form which must be received in Berkeley, Calif. by September 30 (for the October 10 test).
