JUDICIARY TAKES ACTION

Student leaders lose vote on ASMSU board

By JOHN JUEL
State News Staff Writer

The heads of five major governing groups — Men's Halls Assn., Women's Inter - residence Council, Interfraternity Council, Panhellenic Council and Off - Campus Council — lost their vote on the ASMSU Student Board Wednesday as a result of an action by the Student - Faculty Judiciary.

The judiciary moved Tuesday night not to hear a pair of appeals by ASMSU contesting the decision of the All - University Student Judiciary (AUSJ) to invalidate Proposal 4 of the recent ASMSU referendum.

Proposal 4, passed by a 900-vote margin, made the heads of the five major governing groups voting members of the student board.

In denying ASMSU's appeals, the judiciary upheld AUSJ's decision that a conflict of interest in the placement of polling locations and a discrepancy between the wording passed by the board and that which finally appeared on the ballot were sufficient grounds for invalidating the proposal.

The Student - Faculty Judiciary spent two weeks considering the appeals, devoting two of their weekly meetings to the question.

After the first meeting, Student Faculty Judiciary felt it needed further clarification from AUSJ before deciding on whether to hear the appeals, Ruth E. Renaud, director of judicial programs, said Wednesday. The final decision not to hear the appeals was the result of considerable study of the case, she added.

Due to the appeals, the governing groups had continued to vote on the student board despite the AUSJ invalidation of the proposal that gave them the vote.

Under the ASMSU constitution, any proposed constitutional amendment passed in a referendum immediately becomes a part of the constitution. Until a final judicial decision was made on the appeals, the groups could legally continue to vote. The original two suits brought against Harold Buckner, ASMSU chairman, and Mark Jaeger, ASMSU elections commissioner, challenged the governing group vote proposal on separate grounds.

In the case of Off - Campus Council vs Jaeger, the proposal was contested on the grounds that by placing a large number of polling places in fraternities and sorority houses when Interfraternity and Panhellenic Council stood to gain a vote on the board if the proposal passed, ASMSU had allowed a conflict of interest.

In the case of Larry Stempel, McDonel - Shaw district representative, vs. Jaeger and Buckner, it was charged that the wording of the proposal passed by the board and the wording of the proposal that appeared on the ballot were not the same.

Stempel contended that Intercooperative Council had been included in the proposal passed by the board, yet was omitted from the proposal on the ballot.

AUSJ upheld both charges, ruling that the location of polling places had constituted a conflict of interest and that the proposal had been placed on the ballot unconstitutionally.

"I'm very surprised in Student - Faculty Judiciary's decision in the Off - Campus Council case," Buckner said Wednesday. "In effect, they upheld a decision that said even if no rule was actually violated, a court could throw out an election because it looked like there might have been a conflict of interest."

A new proposed constitutional amendment to make the heads of the major governing groups voting members of the student board is currently before the board. The proposal was tabled at Tuesday night's ASMSU meeting and will be acted on by the board spring term.

If the board passes the proposed amendment — which would make Interfraternity Council, Panhellenic Council, Off - Campus Council, Inter - Cooperative Council and the newly created Residence Halls Assn. voting members — the issue will once again be put before the student body in an all - University referendum.

More 'copters lost in Laos

SAIGON (AP) — Severe fighting broke out in southern Laos again Wednesday and eight U.S. helicopters flying in support of the South Vietnamese were shot down, the U.S. Command said.

It was the largest loss of helicopters in a single day since the drive to smash parts of the Ho Chi Minh trail began Feb. 8.

In other developments:
The U.S. Command said North Vietnamese surface - to - air missiles were fired into South Vietnamese skies Tuesday for the first time in the war, aiming at two American planes. Neither was damaged. The North Vietnamese have been moving these SAMs closer to their southern border.

President Nguyen Van Thieu declared that he hoped the North Vietnamese "would soon awaken to the reality and not put us in a situation which forces us to attack them right on their own territory."

The heaviest fighting reported in the Laos campaign was a battle at Hill 30, a government position eight miles northwest of the border.

South Vietnamese headquarters said North Vietnamese troops attacked but lost 98 men killed in 10 hours of fighting.

South Vietnamese losses were announced as one killed and three wounded. Sixty of the enemy were said to have been killed by artillery and air strikes.

The new losses raised to 30 the number of American helicopters the U.S. Command acknowledges as lost in Laos since the South Vietnamese drive into that country began. Helicopter pilots say more have been shot down but are not listed as lost because they were recovered.

A command spokesman said he had no details other than that the eight UH1 Huey helicopters were hit by enemy ground fire, crashed and were destroyed in the lower panhandle of Laos while supporting South Vietnamese forces.

In the eight losses, he said, one crew member was killed, seven were wounded and eight are listing as missing.

The 30 announced helicopter combat losses now listed in Laos raised the casualty figures in those aircraft to 17 killed, 28 wounded and 22 missing, according to command figures.

There have been nine other U.S. combat helicopter losses on the South Vietnamese side of the border in connection with the Laos operation. Casualties in those crashes are listed at eight killed, 12 wounded and none missing.

Although the command said it had no details concerning the latest aircraft losses field reports said it was believed there was a helicopter combat assault by South Vietnamese forces into Laos during the day.

Associated Press photographer Neal Ulevich reported from the northern war zone that several American helicopters flew into Khe Sanh base during the day bearing the marks of battle damage. He said some also had blood stains.

About 2,000 Vietnamese marines have been moved into Laos in the past two days, raising the number of South Vietnamese troops in that country to 18,000.

While South Vietnamese drives into Laos and Cambodia went on, there was only sporadic action reported at widely scattered points in South Vietnam.

Guerrillas liberate Fly

Fly family conference

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Tupamaro guerrillas claimed Wednesday that they freed American soils expert Claude L. Fly under an amnesty, but diplomatic sources said the kidnappers obviously panicked when Fly suffered a heart attack.

Fly, 65, held captive for nearly seven months, was reported in "delicate condition and resting" at British Hospital.

U.S. Ambassador Charles Adair called on Fly twice and said the Fort Collins, Colo., grandfather probably will remain in the hospital three to four weeks. "We are very worried about his health," Adair added.

Fly was found Tuesday night on a stretcher outside the hospital. With him was Dr. Jorge Dighiero, 58, one of Uruguay's leading heart specialists whom the Tupamaros kidnapped to treat Fly.

The Tupamaros, a leftist group which kidnaped U.S. police adviser Dan Mitrone last July and killed him two weeks later, said in a statement that Fly had been informed on Feb. 18 that he had been given an amnesty and would be released soon.

MSU Library to close later during finals

The Library will extend hours until 2 a.m. beginning Monday, through March 18, with the exception of March 13, Richard Chapin, director of the libraries, said Wednesday.

The decision to extend Library hours for 10 days prior to and during exam week for winter and spring terms was made by the University Library Committee in February. The action was the result of a proposal by the Library administrators.

"We want to try to stay open year round until 2 a.m.," Chapin said. Whether the Library will financially be able to do this is questionable, he explained.

The committee will review the results of the experiment after winter term.

BRIEFING DISCUSSED

No kill order issued, My Lai witness says

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — No orders ever were issued from a high - level conference that women and children were to be killed at My Lai, prosecution witnesses testified Wednesday at Lt. William L. Calley Jr.'s court - martial.

One of the witnesses, William C. Riggs of Midland, Tex., commander of Alpha Company, said he attended a briefing on the eve of My Lai, conducted by Lt. Col. Frank Barker, head of the task force which made the March 16, 1968, assault.

"It was pretty much a standard briefing," Riggs, a former infantry captain, added. "There was nothing much out of the ordinary that I recall."

Another witness who was present at the briefing, which Calley did not attend, was

Lt. Col. Frederic W. Watke, who was asked:

Q. Do you recall any specific mention of women and children?

A. Not specifically, no.

Q. Was there an order given to kill every man, woman and child in the area?

A. Not at all.

Q. Was there an order given not to take prisoners?

A. No.

Calley, 27, is accused of premeditated murder of 102 unresisting Vietnamese men, women and children at My Lai while leading the 1st Platoon of Charlie Company on a search and destroy mission through the hamlet.

Cease-fire extension urged

The United States pressed United Nations Secretary-General U Thant on Wednesday in New York to ease the Middle East crisis by appealing for an extension of the Israeli Egyptian cease-fire due to expire Sunday.

Diplomatic sources said U.S. Ambassador George Bush asked Thant to include the appeal in a report on the progress of the Arab-Israeli peace talks under his special envoy, Ambassador Gunnar V. Jarring of Sweden.

Bush asked that the report be issued in advance of a meeting of the Big Four chief UN delegates set for Thursday afternoon.

Two dead in rioting

More rioting broke out Wednesday despite the presence of troops called into Dacca, East Pakistan, to prevent violence in the wake of a decision to postpone Pakistan's constitutional assembly meeting.

Informed sources said one person was killed in the new rioting after a night of clashes between police and demonstrators that left at least two dead and 80 injured. There were other unconfirmed reports that 13 persons had been killed in all.

Official admissions made

Defense Dept. officials acknowledged Wednesday in Washington that South Vietnamese troops conducted clandestine operations in Laos long before their big U.S. backed offensive began earlier this month.

This is the first official confirmation by Pentagon officials of what has long been an open secret. In addition to cross-border operations in Laos by the South Vietnamese, U.S. special forces teams are known to have accompanied reconnaissance patrols and led anti-Communist tribesmen in Laos.

Five officers indicted

Five Los Angeles policemen, a San Leandro, Calif., policeman and one other person were indicted by a federal grand jury Wednesday on a variety of civil rights and criminal charges.

Two indictments charge three Los Angeles officers and the San Leandro officer with violation of the constitutional rights of two Mexican nationals who were shot to death last summer.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell announced the indictments in Washington. They were returned in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles and involved three separate cases.

Welfare reform plan offered

REAGAN

Gov. Ronald Reagan called California's welfare system "a $3-billion moral and administrative disaster" Wednesday and proposed a reform plan that would make it tougher to get on welfare and require recipients to labor in public works projects or stop getting benefits.

The Republican governor said his proposals would save an estimated $740 million in the program, now serving 2.4 million Californians. He outlined the plan in a luncheon address to a civic group in Los Angeles. The speech was televised throughout the state.

Apollo 16 crew named

The space agency named the crew Wednesday in Washington for the Apollo 16 mission to the moon, scheduled for launching next March.

Navy Capt. John W. Young, 40, will command the mission.

It will be his fourth space flight. He flew on the Gemini 3 and 10 flights, two-man earth orbital missions, and on Apollo 10, the first manned flight around the moon.

His command module pilot will be Navy Lt. Cmdr. Thomas K. Mattingly II, 34, who was to have been the command module pilot on Apollo 13. A few days before the launch of that spacecraft he was exposed to the German measles, and was replaced.

The lunar module pilot for Apollo 16 is Air Force Lt. Col. Charles M. Duke Jr., who will be making his first space flight.

Red China launches satellite

WASHINGTON AP — Communist China launched its second space satellite Wednesday, the Pentagon announced.

The North American Air Defense Command's satellite detection and tracking network is monitoring the flight of the satellite, which was launched at about 7:15 a.m. EST from Central China, the announcement said.

The new satellite was reported orbiting the earth once every 106 minutes, with an apogee, or high point, of 1,800 kilometers and a perigee, or low point, of 269 kilometers.

A kilometer is a little over half a mile.

The Pentagon reported that a U.S. Navy pilot, returning to the carrier Kitty Hawk from a mission in Southeast Asia, spotted the flight of the Chinese satellite.

He reported seeing "the bright plume from the launching vehicle well to his north and at high altitude," the Pentagon said.

The first Chinese satellite was launched last April 25 from the Shuang-Cheng-Tzu launching base in Central China, the Pentagon said.

The first satellite was a 381-pound package that broadcast a song, "The East is Red," honoring Chairman Mao Tse-tung. After about a week in orbit its signals began to fade.

Red China's ability to launch satellites into space suggests to American experts that the Chinese are well advanced in developing big rocket boosters and moving toward an intercontinental ballistic missile.

President Nixon, in his State of the World message to Congress last week, said that "China continues to work on strategic ballistic missiles and, by the late 1970s, can be expected to have operational ICBMs capable of reaching the U.S."

More than four years ago, the then secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, forecast that Red China might conduct a long-range missile test before the end of 1967, but the Chinese have yet to achieve this.

After the initial Chinese satellite went into orbit, Dr. John S. Foster, director of defense research and engineering, told a congressional committee that the space vehicle "is not associated with any kind of military weapon in space, but primarily with intelligence and perhaps communications." Chinese advances in missiles may have been delayed somewhat by the disruptions of the cultural revolution in recent years, but Adm. John S. McCain Jr., U.S. commander in the Pacific, said last December that China had already deployed medium range ballistic missiles with a reach of about 1,100 miles.

The Chinese apparently are well advanced in developing nuclear warheads. They held their 11th atomic test last Oct. 14 with a three-megaton device that exploded in the atmosphere.

NEW CONSTITUTION

COGS to vote on document

By JOHN JUEL
State News Staff Writer

The Council of Graduate Students (COGS) moved Tuesday to submit a new constitution to vote of the entire (COGS) membership.

Copies of the proposed constitution and ballots will be mailed to the COGS representatives in each department this week. A three-fourths of the entire voting membership of COGS is needed for passage.

If passed, the new constitution will be placed on a graduate student referendum at the beginning of spring term for final ratification.

In other action Tuesday, COGS passed several amendments to the proposed constitution and amended a proposal for an interim graduate judiciary calling for open hearings in all cases involving graduate students except disciplinary actions.

The amendments to the new constitution included:

- The officers of COGS and representatives to COGS shall not receive compensation unless authorized by referendum.
- COGS cannot raise taxes unless authorized by referendum.
- All referenda must have at least one month prior announcement in the major campus news media.
- Referenda cannot be held during the summer or during the first month of classes fall term.

APPROVES ECOLOGY CLASSES

House adopts hospital bill

By CHRIS MEAD
UPI Staff Writer

The Michigan House adopted and sent to the Senate a bill making it a crime for a hospital to refuse emergency treatment to any person despite whether they have the money to pay for the service.

At the same time Tuesday, the House reversed an earlier vote and approved legislation requiring schools to offer ecology courses as part of their regular curriculum.

Approved 99-2 after a prolonged debate was a measure which could cost a hospital its license if it refuses emergency treatment or first aid to any person on the basis of race, color, creed, sex, national origin or financial status.

"It's as simple as this," Rep. Rosetta Ferguson, D-Detroit and sponsor of the bill, said. "You either want to perpetuate discrimination or you want to end discrimination."

Other backers said the measure would end the practice in some hospitals of requiring proof of insurance or ability to pay before a person can be admitted for emergency treatment.

"We've got to let the people into the hospital and we can't ask a million questions first," Rep. Gerrit Hasper, D-Muskegon, said. "Let's perform an act of mercy first and ask the questions later."

"If we can't see beyond the dollar," Rep. Loren Anderson, R-Pontiac, said, "then God help us."

In other action, the House voted 68-30 for a bill making some form of environmental education mandatory in all schools from kindergarten through the 12th grade.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Raymond Baker,

R-Farmington, was rejected a week ago. Since then, backers agreed to a minor amendment which insured passage.

The rejected version stipulated schools "shall" include such environmental topics as chemical contamination of the air and water, solid waste disposal, land use and planning and overpopulation problems. The compromise version states schools "may" include those subjects in their ecology programs.

In another area Tuesday, the house approved 73-25 a bill which would prohibit a person holding an elective office to file for another unless he first resigns.

If approved, the measure would bar a local official from running for a judicial seat or a spot in the state legislature unless he either resigned or his term would be up by the time the new term of office started.

The proposal would not apply to persons seeking a federal office or an elective office within a political party.

Fire officials assess damage at $950,000

A fire that destroyed three buildings on Lansing's north side Saturday night caused about $950,000 in damages, Lansing fire officials estimated Wednesday.

The cause of the blaze remained undetermined Wednesday as fire officials continued to investigate the charred rubble.

Several businesses reported losses in the fire that destroyed the old Bishop Furniture warehouse and two other buildings. Included in the loss list were the Campus Bookstore, which lost $5,000 in books, and the State of Michigan, which lost $196,000 in equipment and supplies including three chandeliers from Gov. Milliken's office.

ASMSU meets

A proposal to hire a full - time attorney for the legal aid department was passed at the ASMSU meeting Tuesday. Also approved was a final cabinet structure.

ASMSU to hire attorney

By JOHN JUEL
State News Staff Writer

The ASMSU Student Board voted Tuesday to hire a full - time attorney for the legal aid department.

In other action, the board approved a final cabinet structure and tabled proposals to establish a speaker's bureau and to return the vote to the major governing groups.

The full - time attorney, in addition to giving legal advice himself, will be responsible for organizing, training and supervising lay advocate legal counselors.

The attorney and lay advocates will give priority to counseling students in matters involving civil rights, selective service laws, tenants' rights and domestic law and student concerns.

The ASMSU lawyer will not go to court under the full - time contract, but, with the help of the lay advocates, will develop a legal referral system to aid students in finding an outside attorney who can handle court actions at the best possible fee.

Interviews are currently being held to select a person to fill the full - time attorney position.

In the past, ASMSU's legal aid department has operated with a part - time lawyer, who counsels students on Wednesday afternoons, and a system of student defenders.

The board approved a cabinet structure submitted by cabinet director Vicki Banks Tuesday night.

The ASMSU cabinet will have eight departments: Legislative Relations, Office of Black Affairs, Legal Aid, Pop Entertainment, Great Issues, Travel, Mimeo and Silk Screening and the cabinet director's discretionary fund for special projects.

The cabinet will also include a number of organizations with whom the board wants to maintain communications but does not want to designate as official cabinet departments.

While these organizations may receive appropriations, office space and other forms of support from the board, the board assumes no responsibility for their financial debts or public statements.

Included in this second group are Women's Liberation, MECHA, Student Mobilization Committee, the book exchange, Man and Nature Bookstore, Student Electronics Workshop, E-QUAL, Great Lakes Indian Youth Alliance and Green Earth Co-op.

Also included are Gay Liberation, Radical Lesbians, Hubbard Information Center, New Community, Free University, Draft Information Center, Offset Printing Services, Sierra Club and the Detroit Geographical Expedition and Institute.

The board tabled a proposal that would have established a speakers bureau to act as a clearing house for students from the ASMSU board and cabinet and other student organizations who wish to speak to University and non - University groups.

The function of the bureau would be to compile a list of speakers and organizations offering speakers and to notify community organizations of the availability of student speakers.

The board also tabled a proposed constitutional amendment that would have made the heads of the major governing groups — Residence Halls Assn., Interfraternity Council, Panhellenic Council, Off - Campus Council and Intercooperative Council — voting members of the student board.

The proposal will be acted on by the board at the beginning of spring term.

Judge comments on jail, fine ruling

By JAMES SHELTON
State News Staff Writer

East Lansing District Judge Maurice E. Schoenberger said Tuesday that during his three - month term as judge, no MSU student or East Lansing area resident has been sent to jail because he was unable to pay a fine.

Schoenberger's remarks followed Tuesday's Supreme Court ruling which forbids jail sentences for convicted persons too poor to pay fines set as punishment for an offense.

Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan said this week imprisoning convicted poor persons is discrimination which violates the Constitution's guarantee of equal protection under the laws.

Since the decision was based on Texas law which only imposes fines for traffic violations, Schoenberger said, it is not certain whether the Supreme Court ruling would apply to Michigan.

Michigan law includes the vehicle code under the criminal code, which makes all traffic violations misdemeanors. Courts have the option of imposing a fine, a jail sentence or both when a person is convicted of or pleads guilty to committing a misdemeanor.

"When I sentence someone to a fine or to the alternative jail sentence," Schoenberger said, "I do not want anyone to go to jail simply because they do not have the money at that time."

Schoenberger said when a person proves by verbal examination that he does not have the money to immediately pay the fine and that he will make an effort to obtain the money by a certain deadline, that person will not be sent to jail.

His policy does not mean that the person will never be jailed the judge added.

The deadline for getting the money is made "crystal clear," he explained, and if the person fails to appear at that time, a bench warrant is issued for his arrest.

Schoenberger cited only one case during his three - month term as East Lansing district judge where a man was jailed for a traffic offense. This person refused to pay the $15 fine, Schoenberger said, and instead chose the jail sentence.

Although jailing poor persons for failing to pay a fine may not be constitutional, Schoenberger said, jailing a man who can pay but refuses is not a violation of the recent Supreme Court ruling.

Panel to review GM plans

By DAVE PERSON
State News Staff Writer

The University Business Affairs Committee will hold a special meeting today to consider possible directions the university can take concerning the General Motors Corp. shareholders proposals.

The meeting has been scheduled for 4 p.m. in the conference room of the vice president for business and finance at the request of President Wharton.

Last spring, the board of trustees voted not to support proposals supported by shareholder advocate Ralph Nader who would have given GM holders a greater voice in corporation.

A special meeting was called by Wharton so that action can be taken before the formation of a committee for the March 15 meeting.

Michael K. Haviland, Council of Graduate Students representative to the Business Affairs Committee, Wednesday expressed hope that some recommendation would be made by the committee to the board of trustees.

The three proposals have been submitted to institutions having shares in GM by the Project on Corporate Responsibility. The proposals would:

* Require GM to list on its proxy, candidates for director nominated by shareholder petitions.

* Permit GM consumers, dealers and employees to participate in the selection of three GM directors.

* Require GM to publish in its annual report, statistics on its progress in auto pollution control, auto safety and minority hiring.

Last spring the Business Affairs Committee formed a subcommittee to consider two proposals made by the Project on Corporate Responsibilities.

One proposal asked that three public interest directors be added to the GM board of directors. The other proposal allowed for a Shareholder Committee on Corporate Responsibility to review GM's public policies.

The subcommittee recommended that the board of trustees support the latter proposal but made no recommendation on the first.

The trustees initially voted 4-4 on the proposals. Later Frank Hartman, D-Flint, changed his vote in a controversial telephone poll which gave board backing to GM management and, therefore, rejected both proposals.

The proposals also were defeated at the annual GM stockholder's meeting.

CASE-WONDERS

Rep's election validated

In action Tuesday, the ASMSU Elections Commission voted to validate the Case - Wonders election of Feb. 16, officially declaring Kevin Hart, Glenview, Ill., sophomore, district representative.

Harty, who was seated finally fulfilled its responsibility" to the Case - Wonders District.

The election had been contested by Hart and his opponent, Kaye F. Jones, Detroit sophomore, both charging improper placement of posters and illegal campaigning on election day. Hart polled 227 votes as compared to Miss Jones' 204.

The All - University Student Judiciary (AUSJ) refused to rule on the case earlier, calling the appeal "not a judicial matter," and directing the Elections Commission to make a final decision.

Elections Commissioner Mark Jaeger said Wednesday that Miss Jones has filed an appeal of the commission's judgment.

"The appeal is being sent to AUSJ questioning whether or not Kevin's alleged violations should cause him to be disqualified," Jaeger said.

He said AUSJ has not yet decided if it will now hear the case. If it holds to its previous refusal, Hart will remain the legally elected candidate.

Harty was denied a seat on the board Feb. 23 when it ruled that such a move would be in violation of the ASMSU constitution.

The Case - Wonders District has been without a representative since Paul Korda, Detroit senior, resigned Jan. 26.

HARTON REPORTS

Admission requests rise

By JEFF SHELER
State News Staff Writer

President Wharton said Tuesday that applications for admission to MSU are up this year over last year's figure by a nationwide falloff of applicants to colleges and universities.

This is the result of a state effort by our education department to gain the present level of enrollment," Wharton said at a luncheon.

A drop in University enrollment would likely mean in the state legislature's apportionment to the University.

arton said the University is down the road" to a target enrollment of 6,700 new freshmen next fall term.

He said University officials "cannot say at this time" whether a tuition increase will be needed next year until the legislature decides on the University appropriation.

The Senate Appropriations Committee has received the University's budget request and will consider it in the next few weeks.

Wharton also told newsmen he does not interpret the relative calm on campus after the Laos incursion by South Vietnamese troops as a signal of declining student activism.

"I would not for a minute say that the small reaction to Laos means the students will be less active this spring than they have in past years," Wharton said. "I don't think there has been that much of a change in student attitudes and in the mixture of students at the University."

He said the modest reaction to the Laos incursion may be a sign that student activists are searching for new methods of protest.

"Perhaps there has been a concern among the student activists over past tactics — that there are new methods that should be tried," Wharton said.

Admission standards breed policy problems

The recent State News series on admissions problems in upper-school programs brings to light two areas of concern: the validity of admissions requirements and the adequacy of departmental priority systems for the enrollment of majors and non-majors.

Admissions requirements are ticklish business. Frequently, these requirements are dictated by professional necessity; certain competencies are essential to success. A math major should know how to add, for example. With this type of requirement, we have no quarrel.

Other requirements are determined by physical conditions beyond the control of individual departments, colleges or even universities. Nurses should have clinical experience as an integral part of their training, and if off-campus clinical facilities have limited resources, departments here must adjust enrollments accordingly. Such a departmental course of action may not merit commendation, but it certainly does not deserve blame.

What we find disturbing are admissions requirements which are non-essential to professional education. Departments which reason that "It would be nice if all our students had this course or this ability" should realize that there is a great difference between an essential course or ability and one which is merely "nice."

Even more disturbing are those departments, schools and colleges which deliberately attempt to "upgrade" their national image by requiring high grade points and difficult courses of dubious "necessity" to eliminate students who are less than outstanding. Of course, this is understandable in a nasty sort of way: it takes little faculty effort to polish the knowledge of a student who could succeed in his chosen field with nothing more than a high school education and native ability.

But a university, particularly one supported by public funds, owes more than this to its students. It must be willing to instruct the mediocre as well as the brilliant, and to insure that its students are all capable upon graduation, regardless of individual resources or knowledge upon entry.

We suggest that a central student-faculty-administrative body, possibly the University Curriculum Committee, investigate all departmental and college admissions requirements to insure that only necessary requirements, or requirements imposed by outside physical limitations, remain in effect throughout the University. All proposals for new requirements should be presented to this body for approval; proposals should be accompanied by a statement showing why the requirement is essential.

In the second area of concern, every academic unit should realize its responsibility to educate nonmajors as well as its own majors. Decisions to restrict nonmajor enrollment may affect only a few students here and there, but eventually a consistent policy of nonmajor restrictions will hamper the programs of almost every student in the University.

Undoubtedly, some restrictions must be made in a limited resource situation. But eventually restriction-making reaches a point at which true education is destroyed. The University has not yet reached that point, but may not be far from it unless counter-measures are soon taken.

Faculty and administrators must make their decisions consistent with the principle that the student's education is the University's most important product. If student opportunity for a complete education is chipped away by college and departmental restrictions on nonmajor enrollment, nonessential admissions requirements and other policies outlined in the series, the quality of education must suffer.

Balancing the budget at motorists' expense

To help balance the state budget for 1971, Gov. Milliken has proposed transferring $45 million from the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund to the state general fund. Each uninsured motorist pays $35 a year into the fund; insured drivers pay $10. The fund pays claims on accidents where uninsured drivers are at fault. After a certain time the uninsured driver must repay the fund for money paid on claims made against him. Otherwise he will lose his license.

The claim fund presently has $55 million in its account.

Officials say interest drawn on this sum varies between $4.5 - $5 million a year, enough money to pay the operating expenses of the claims fund.

Under the governor's plan, $10 million would be left in the claims fund. The $45 million presently being borrowed from the claims fund would be paid back in five $9 million installments starting probably in 1973.

The net effect of the $45-million transfer would be to keep the state from having to raise taxes in 1971, at the cost of losing up to $5 million a year interest for the next few years. Officials in the secretary of state's office have no idea what effect the transfer will have on the claims fund.

It must be kept in mind that the $45 million transfer will not be brought about without cost to the state. When taxes are raised in Michigan next year, they will have to rise enough to make up for lost interest on the $45 million, besides meeting the repayment plan.

The uninsured driver's fund was established for one reason - to help protect Michigan drivers. If the fund has $45 million to spare, only one conclusion can be drawn: Michigan is overtaxing motorists for the claim service.

Rather than transfer funds and continue the uninsured drivers' tax, it seems that a more fair solution to the over-tax situation would be to discontinue uninsured drivers fees and continue protection.

OUR READERS' MIND

Pollution of soul greater danger

To the Editor:

Better the world? A. Sim follows human nature and blames the system rather than man's nature, which is evil. Environmental concerns and pollution cannot be answered by capitalism, socialism or humanism. Science teaches us the "laws of nature," but it fails to solve evil. We won't "evolve" into omniscient beings capable of coping with the whole world with perfect knowledge. "Isms" push us from all sides. Ecology is the password; but ecology is a man-made study of man-made theories.

The emphasis lies on man as the only being capable of explaining and manipulating nature. We ignore what has been said by Someone who does know and understand why the world is here and what it is. The Creator of the Universe, the One and Only Source of all TRUTH, the Triune God reveals Himself in the Bible. He alone has the knowledge all men seek and He tells us many things. He says men are evil. "All men have sinned and come short of the Glory of God." "There is not one who is perfect; no, not one."

This is why there is pollution, why no man-made system will ever be perfect, why perpetual motion is not. We begin to realize what God means when He says, "The wages of sin is death," and, if we stop now, there is no hope for any man because all are evil.

Fortunately, God is gracious and gives us hope. "The free gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord." True Christianity, as Christ taught it, is not social gospel. It deals with the basic problem of evil and offers a solution far better than socialism, capitalism, or any man-made religion. As we search for life in a world that is rapidly decaying, we dare not ignore what God says in His Book, the Holy Bible.

Pollution of the body is far less deadly than pollution of man's immortal soul.

Don't forget that tip

To the Editor:

There is a group of working girls in town that are being exploited by the local businessmen and students alike. They are not being paid in many instances for their service and I think that this should be brought to an end immediately. I am speaking in particular about the waitresses in the local restaurants.

These often very good looking girls are trying to make some money to put them through college. They are paid an average of about a dollar an hour and their tips are supposed to supplement this and leave them with a reasonable hourly wage. They don't expect the nationally accepted 15 per cent of a fancy evening restaurant. The customers could show some appreciation for the work they do. Many of these girls are having to find other jobs because they can't keep spending their time for nothing.

The waitress works hard to bring out the orders as quickly as possible and then clean up the mess after you leave. In addition they put up with your little comments and those of you that feel a necessity to talk with your hands.

The next time you're in for a sandwich and a beer or Coke, count the number of trips she has to make for you. See if she is trying to give you good service and tip her accordingly. But remember that being a regular customer doesn't grant immunity; everyone has to tip. Don't penalize the girls for management problems and bad food; talk to the manager.

RICK WILBINS

Onward Christian soldiers

I suppose this column is directed at all of you God-fearing and/or Jesus-loving people who as yet, have not been able or willing to take an honest second look at your religion (if you had, you certainly wouldn't be God-fearing or Jesus-son-of-God loving).

Undoubtedly, I'm going to get hate mail and raise people's hackles. I learned a long time ago that one doesn't attack another's politics or religion and not kindle some fire in the process.

But I've been bearing a grudge against organized religion since that time in high school when I realized that politics and religion were inseparable allies. I've remained quiet for a long time but an experience two weekends ago really soured me and the proverbial camel's back was broken.

You see, I went to a funeral. Don's father had died and three friends and I went to his funeral. After the service at the funeral home, we sat in our car waiting for the funeral procession to start.

The service had been short, a half hour, but somehow I got the impression that in the prayers and readings, the man who had died had been forgotten. Instead, we were deluged with the grace of God, the resurrection of the dead and the sinfulness of man.

Religious treachery

Dave, a normally rather straight individual, summed up all of our feelings when he said, "If that's religion, I don't want any part of it."

It's not that I haven't been involved. The church was my life for quite a while. In fact, during my sophomore year in high school I joined Campus Crusade for Christ and became active for a year. That was the peak of my religion. I read the Bible, studied Christian history as the Church presented it and even made a habit out of saying my prayers as any good Christian should.

Then came my senior year in high school. I was late as usual on a term paper so I picked what seemed to be an easy topic - the Crusades. With a little research, I began to see religious history in a different light, strongly tied to politics and the greed for power. I read of the mass murders perpetrated in the name of religion; I saw religions help to separate man from his neighbor and turn them into enemies; I followed the Catholic Church's ruthless struggle in becoming the strongest political power in Medieval Europe.

More importantly, though, I realized for the first time that religion was nothing more than the strongest social pressure conceivable. Divinity was man's invention.

Quite naturally, I absolved myself from the religion race, rejected God and accepted Christ as a great philosopher - but no son of God.

Without a doubt, churches i.e., organized religions, have served meaningfully for as long as their existence, setting up food dispensaries for the poor, sheltering the homeless, contribution to heart and cancer research funds.

On the other hand, by their very advocacy of a supreme being, a divine word, etc., they have done a great deal of harm and will continue to do so as long as people still believe that someone else is responsible for their actions. Not only have men been separated by their religions (or religions separated by men which should make the whole question of divinity so obviously false), but at times the rights of nonbelieving members of society have been infringed upon. Abortion reform, for example, has been constantly blocked by Catholic legislators who believed in an inane "gospel truth" which states that

ART BUCHWALD

Antiwar protestors spying on the spys

WASHINGTON - What happened to all the antiwar protestors of yesteryear? Well, in spite of what you read in the newspapers, they're still around. Only they're a new breed and in many ways much tougher.

I went to an antiwar rally at the Washington Monument the other day with my friend Dumbarton who works on demonstrations for the Secret Service. Dumbarton was dressed in dungarees, had long hair and was carrying a guitar which was really a very sensitive tape recorder.

When we arrived at the Mall we saw five bearded students carrying a Viet Cong flag. "Hey, Dumbarton," I said, "they look like anarchists."

"Nah," said Dumbarton in disgust, "they're FBI undercover agents. I saw them last week at Harvard."

We walked around. There were six students, all with peace symbols painted on their navels, sitting in a circle smoking what surely smelt like grass.

"Look, Dumbarton," I said excitedly, "Communists."

Dumbarton shook his head in disgust. "They're from the Naval Civilian Intelligence unit. The guy waving the photograph of Ho Chi Minh is really a lieutenant commander in the Seabees."

We walked away. Suddenly I saw those four girls in dungarees.

Dumbarton looked around. "It's the squadron at Andrews Field."

"But they're girls," I said.

"The Air Force always dresses the agents in drag," Dumbarton said. "They don't want their people to be mistaken for Naval Intelligence Agents."

A fight broke out among the demonstrators standing near the speaker's platform. They were going at it thick and heavy.

"My God," I said. "That looks like trouble."

"Don't get upset. Half the guys are from the Army Civilian Intelligence unit at Fort Holabird and the other half are from the Army Civilian Intelligence unit at the Pentagon."

"Each outfit claims they have jurisdiction in Washington. You should have seen the brawl they had at the headquarters a few weeks ago. After it was over, both sides issued body counts."

"Why don't the police break it up?"

"Most of the cops here are from the Washington, D.C., undercover squad. They don't want to let on to anyone who they are."

The speeches began. One bearded student shouted, "The blankety blank are not going to push us around. We'll put them up against the wall."

"Have you got your tape machine going?" I asked Dumbarton.

"What for?" Dumbarton said. "Heard from the Internal Revenue Service Intelligence unit. I wish he'd get a speech."

The next speaker was introduced as Swede who had just come back from Hanoi.

"That's the CIA's man," Dumbarton said in disgust. "They have to get in the all the time."

As we were listening, Dumbarton suddenly froze. "You see those four girls over there with the 'Free Father Berrigan' signs? I've never seen them before. They could be the real thing." He turned on the tape recorder in his guitar and we were over behind them.

One of the students turned around. "Hey, Dumbarton," he said in surprise. "What the hell are you doing here?"

"Collins," Dumbarton said. "What are you doing here?"

"I'm with the National Park Service Antisubversive Corps."

"You're the last person I expected to see here," Dumbarton said.

"Well, it's better than fighting fires."

POINT OF VIEW

Adams' domestic analysis incorrect

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following Point of View was submitted by Eric Amador, Chicago, Ill., senior.

You seem to have found the Acting MSU President's moratorium speech appropriate on the occasion of renewed acts of aggression forces are committing in China. I found the speech to be correct in its analysis of the domestic situation. Therefore, I would like to state the points on which I disagree, after first briefly stated the points which I agree.

Whereas I agree with the main points of the speech:

1) That the priorities of the American government are truly befitting the nature of its empire. And it most certainly does not seem appropriate to me to "clinically" analyze the "cost/benefit" merits of the war on our domestic scene. To use such an attitude when analyzing the war would most certainly lead Adams into accepting an identical war of genocide, were it to be a war which was profitable to this society. To leave out the human and legal aspects is to neglect the crux of the matter. The war in Indochina is a war of genocide, imperialism and aggression on the part of the "Free World" forces. This is a very important point and it must be remembered if we expect to analyze the war correctly.

2) That American military forces should immediately withdraw from Indochina.

3) That the war is very costly to the masses of people in this society.

I nonetheless disagree with the analysis of the speech on the following grounds:

1) The priorities of the American government are truly befitting the nature of its empire. And it most certainly does not seem appropriate to me to "clinically" analyze the "cost/benefit" merits of the war on our domestic scene. To use such an attitude when analyzing the war would most certainly lead Adams into accepting an identical war of genocide, were it to be a war which was profitable to this society. To leave out the human and legal aspects is to neglect the crux of the matter. The war in Indochina is a war of genocide, imperialism and aggression on the part of the "Free World" forces. This is a very important point and it must be remembered if we expect to analyze the war correctly.

2) Throughout the speech, Adams contended the United States did not stand to gain much by remaining in Indochina (specifically, Vietnam), and he also contended our withdrawal would not benefit "the enemy" significantly. There were hints that Red China would not gain much. Adams further claimed it was not important to the American government to win, as the struggle was merely ideological. While the conflict is definitely ideological, it is also definitely territorial. The wealth of the Indochinese area was the primary reason for our intervention. The imperialistic nature of U.S. ventures in Indochina leaves no doubt on this point, and it is not hard to document the wealth in natural resources of the area. The American forces and their puppets are fighting for high stakes: in the past, much wealth has been exploited from the Indochinese and Chinese regions; the British, French, American, Dutch and other governments have known this wealth, and presently U.S. forces are trying hard to hang onto it.

3) Adams did not consider the basic sources of our domestic problems. It seemed implicit in Adams' speech that stopping the war and spending the tax money at home would solve many of our problems of "bigotry and poverty." This contention is false. The only solution to our problems in these areas is to restructure our society in its institutions, in such a fashion as to eliminate the values and ethic which originally gave rise to the problems of sexism, racism and poverty. The problems arose not out of excessive spending on the military, but rather, the excessive spending on the military arose from the problems.

Let me clarify this: this society is based on oppression; our ghettos at home and our colonies abroad amply testify to this. From its inception, this country has been one where large masses of workers and slaves have done the work which makes the factory owners, plantation owners and politicians rich. From its inception, the ruling circle of this country has benefited from the exploitation of its peoples. The basic sources of our domestic problems reside in the values of this society, and, specifically, the values maintained by the ruling rich. The sexist values of this society keep females oppressed on the labor market. Females get paid less than males for identical work, and further, females are denied access to certain positions which are reserved for males (usually WASP males, at that. Hmmm.). The oppression of females means employers get female labor at cut rates. Hence, employers make higher profit. Very interesting. The racist values of this society keep blacks, and other minority groups of nonwhite origin, oppressed. To start out with, these groups were genocidally put under the foot of the white man as his slaves, and even though I'm told this is no longer true, I still think people of color are slaves. The reason I think so is simple: in much the same fashion as females, these groups are denied access to many jobs, and their pay rates are much lower. This is not hard to document. The oppression of these minority groups, once again, means cut-rate wages for the workers from these groups. Once again, this means more profit for the employers. Does that seem like a pattern? Racism + sexism = Profits.

Sub-employed Poverty can also be seen in this light. When a capitalist country has a core of unemployed people, wages can be kept at a lower level due to the higher demand for work and the lower demand for workers. Not only that, but employers can control their employees more tightly, as they are assured of a body of unemployed from which to hire workers should they decide to fire a few troublemakers on their staff. The nature of the "sub-employed" (as Nixon so graciously called this group of poverty-stricken people) is more perverse. The ghettos of this country provide examples of "sub-employed" people. These people live in communities in which most of the property is owned by people living outside the community, hence, the products of the labor of the people therein leave to line the pockets of the owners who live elsewhere. Thus, once again, we see that the unemployed and the sub-employed provide a convenient means for property owners (in the large sense — factories, etc.) to make profits. Strange, huh? Racism, sexism and poverty all work to keep the ruling rich in power and wealthy.

What would I put in the place of this country? A society where people are guaranteed work, housing fit to live in, food, adequate health care, and above all, political power. To achieve these goals will require a political system wherein people are represented in proportion to their presence. Proportional representation means communities have control over their own affairs, and also have a voice in the decisions made externally which will affect them. Thus, I would not desire white boards of education to decide the affairs of schools in black ghettos. But, back to the issues and the problems facing us today.

In order to rid ourselves of the problems Adams lamented, we must basically restructure this society to eliminate the values which gave rise to the problems. The institutions in which these problems fester, must likewise be restructured. And if you think the American ruling circle is going to stand by and let us peacefully reorganize society into a better place for all, take a look at what is happening in Indochina, the inner-city ghettos and the high school hallways of this country. Take a look at the man's stick. And get one to match his. If you love peace, struggle to institute a society which will promote peace.

Our present society will not promote peace, nor will it welcome those who do. We must change our country if we expect to change our lives. We must have control over the decisions affecting our needs, or our needs will not be met. Remember, if this country were a country where a person gets what it produces, the black people would own the South. Their sweat built it. The solution is to institute a government which truly is responsive to the needs of its people and truly protects and fills those needs. An unarmed people are slaves, or subject to slavery at any given moment, as Huey would say.

OUR READERS' MIND

Remember the restroom!

The Editor:

With the advent of the paranoid administration of Richard Milhous Nixon, came a series of political acts which, considering the mental condition of our illustrious leaders, were not surprising. Those who make a hobby of political weather watching have, with tongue in cheek, pressed the ugly thunderhead of political persecution take in the distant horizon and an alarming rapidly drift in direction.

Some of us members of the so-called culturally and educationally deprived minorities who by virtue of our ory are possessed of a sensitivity to the jackboot oppression are becoming increasingly apprehensive at the seeming disregard (thorance?) and complete awareness displayed by the intellectual community abouts, to put it mildly.

The fettering and loading of the Supreme Court to control judiciary; the withholding of national funds to coerce who won't "toe the line," blatant and hypocritical attacks on the media which ears to be broken; these and any other events are by no means normal political proceedings. They are all part of a well-designed scheme to control the minds of the people and prepare them for the demand performance which is to come.

The plebeians are too keenly aware that the grandiloquent attitudes oozing from the mouths of the Spiro - Nixon are but a cover-up for the speculative and condemning ink blotches were dry on the newsprint and equally unable to is already being unleashed on the American people, unawareness and all. (For instance, a couple of Hawaiian senators are now locked in legislative combat to prevent the Spiro - Nixon gang from working on the concentration camps of World War II fame which are quietly being readied for the grand reopening. That these two senators are of Japanese extraction is not mere coincidence. And who can read a daily without some sign of the Spiro - Nixon plan?)

One of the latest, though by no means last, political ploys is the "anti-war bombing" in the Capitol on Monday, which, if we are to believe the news, blew up a restroom in the basement of the Pentagon or some such building. The media, which is thoroughly trained now, dutifully presented the chorus line replete with such intellectual giants as Sen. Hugh Scott, White House spokesman Ronald Ziegler, and the car salesman himself "Madman Milhous." Almost before the speculative and condemning ink blotches were dry on the newsprint and equally unable to suppress his glee, the madman chortled the cue which America is supposed to take up in chant: "A shocking act of violence which will outrage all Americans."

We are outraged all right. This "anti-war bombing" smacks too much of an attempt to create a "burning of the Reichstag" mood. The Nixon gang's efforts to portray itself as the victim of a political fraying are almost too childish to warrant serious thought were it not for the grave repercussions they portend. It has all the trappings of a Capitol Hill who - dun - it which by its very obviousness should cause any pseudo - intellectual to collapse in helpless mirth. A calm analysis of the action unfortunately leads to the Nixon and cohorts are not trying to be funny. They are playing a deadly game in deadly earnest, if you'll excuse the pun.

Bear in mind that the think Chairman MSU Chicano Veterans Assn tank in the madhouse Cabinet has nothing to lose; for if this act discredits the antiwar movement, Bingo! Bird No. 2; and if it causes an outcry for "law and order," Bingo! Bird No. 3; and if it reflects on unruly minorities, Bingo! Bird No. 4; and if... etc. We firmly believe this to be the case. Jittery legislators on Capitol Hill, some of whom are getting so paranoid they are packing submachine guns in their office closets according to the news, needed an excuse to tighten security around their offices. This prevents irate antiwar citizens from coming within hearing distance. Also, we can look forward to an escalation of political persecution and repression, particularly of minorities.

In this "crisis" we depart from the Right Wing with several cries to rally them around the flag, motherhood, God and country. "Remember the Maine... Remember the Alamo... Remember Little Big Horn..." To the politically sophisticated we say... "Remember the Bay of Pigs... Remember the U-2."

We can only speculate as to the slogans which may well become the rallying cry for the Rightish hawks as they close ranks with the police and sobering discovery that Nixon and cohorts are not trying to be funny. They are playing a deadly game in deadly earnest, if you'll excuse the pun.

Age gap bridged with sex

Theatergoers in Michigan have quite recently been exposed to several productions which attempt to bridge the generation gap sexually.

"The Apple of His Eye" featured an old buzzard farmer, starchy-eyed over his young housekeeper, and was absolutely dreadful. "Forty Carats" which was presented Tuesday night as a Lecture - Concert Series Broadway special, also was concerned with May-December relationships and fared much better.

Adapted by Jay Allen from a French play by Barillet and Gredy, "Forty Carats" seems as American as a 20-cent hamburger. The one-line funnies and obvious action are a step above the usual Broadway drab but, unfortunately, some of the laughter is dependent upon New York jokes. A New York joke typically is concerned with the New York life style, such as the paranoia about door locks, good and bad buildings (one doesn't speak of neighborhoods anymore), congestion and the like.

The humor is pleasant without being really funny.

Actually the entire evening is on a level of pleasant toleration, nothing really exciting or disastrous but enjoyable.

"Forty Carats" centers around the life of Ann, a 40-year-old (what else?), successful real estate broker, who has a fling in Europe with a 22-year-old Romeo and is then haunted and courted by the glory that was Greece.

Ann had given the young man a false name, but when, one fine evening, he comes to pick up Ann's daughter as a favor for a friend, passion is renewed in the young lad's heart.

It seems that the young man, Peter Latham, is quite persistent, and Ann, for a while at least, is resistant. Ann's mother is a typical meddling old biddy who attempts to interest Peter in marrying Ann to involve the family in the fortunes of the well-to-do Lathams.

Ann's daughter, 17-years-old, has a mind of her own and marries a 45-year-old wealthy Texan. Love triumphs in the end.

with Ann going off to marry Peter, leaving her inhibitions and society's disapproval to comfort each other.

I do not object to anybody loving anybody else, but I question some of the aspects of the Peter-and-Ann relationship. She looked ridiculous dressed in hippie garb on her way to the Electric Circus, which was just too much for the old girl. Obviously, the couple saw something in each other that I didn't.

Barbara Britton as Ann is not my idea of a real beauty, and Robert Dannenberg as Peter was so bland and lackluster that he could have been her

Reception off due to cost cut

President Wharton has discontinued the traditional senior reception for this term and until the University is in better financial shape, James D. Spaniol, asst. to the president, said Wednesday.

The reception for graduating seniors has usually taken several days each term. No record has been kept of attendance, Spaniol said.

Spaniol said discontinuing the reception is one of several adjustments made by the president's office to cut costs during current fiscal constraints.

grandfather.

Nancy Cushman as Ann's mother, Maud, was a regular camp and thoroughly delightful. It was her deep voice and comic antics which added some life to the evening.

"Forty Carats" is not one of Broadway's best examples of comedy, but it is not the worst. I didn't love it and I didn't hate it, but found the evening mildly amusing and rather tolerable.

"Forty Carats" is aimed at a middle-aged, middle-class audience.

In bringing "Forty Carats" to MSU, the Lecture - Concert Series seemed to neglect the student population in favor of local-area residents. I would have rather have seen something more in focus with student tastes.

If you missed any part of "Forty Carats" or wish to see it again, another version starring Barbra Rush is at Detroit's Fisher Theater.

TREATMENT PERMISSION

States ease laws on VD

By The Associated Press

With the incidence of venereal disease in the United States now estimated at more than two million cases a year, nearly twice the number five years ago, state legislatures have passed or are considering laws to make it easier for youngsters to get treatment without their parents' knowledge or permission.

Massachusetts passed the nation's first such law in 1954, and 33 states and the District of Columbia have followed suit, most of them in the past two or three years.

In North Dakota, according to the state medical association, the law leaves a physician open to an assault charge if he treats minors for venereal disease without their parents' consent.

However, a bill to change that is pending in the legislature. Arizona, which requires that parents be notified and give their permission before their children can be treated for VD, has a bill under consideration in the legislature which would permit treatment without parental consent.

"I think most health officers would concur that this law would help," says Lawrence Burinsky, chief of the Health Department's VD control section.

Such a bill reached the Nevada Legislature, but it was returned to committee after a legislator called it "Communist" because it "allows government to step in and take over the of the family."

Similar legislation also pending in Wisconsin, Minnesota, New Mexico, Georgia and Ohio. The Georgia law provides that attending physicians may tell the patients' parents but are not required to do so. A similar law was approved by the legislature last year, but was vetoed by Lester Maddox, then governor.

Selection committee to finish candidate list

The chairman of the College of Communication Arts search and evaluation committee said Wednesday the work of the group should be completed by mid-April.

His committee will develop a list of three to five candidates which will go to the provost who will then make a selection to replace Jack M. Bain who is resigning from the dean's position to return to full-time teaching. "I can't imagine it would be beyond the 15th or 16th of April to compile a final list unless we possibly get hung up in some way," Robert H. Davis, committee chairman, said.

Davis affirmed that the committee has no intention of releasing the names of the under consideration.

He said resumes had been received from seven candidates, four of whom are from MSU. The others are from outside the University.

"It's possible to begin to make some judgments about candidates," Davis said.

The committee intends to interview some of the candidates during the first week of spring term.

"We want to be sure if we bring in candidates from outside campus for interviews that they are viable and will end up in the top three," he said.

THE VICE PRESIDENT of Michigan Bell Telephone Co. charged Wednesday that Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley is using delaying and diversionary tactics in stalling the company's request for increased rates.

Lloyd J. Haynes described the financial condition of Michigan Bell as "deteriorating."

Kelley had suggested Friday that the rate case be dismissed because the company did not specify the exact increase it was seeking.

A BILL THAT WOULD REQUIRE credit cards to have a current photograph of the owner was introduced Wednesday in the House of Representatives.

A BILL THAT WOULD GIVE municipalities the right to abolish the office of constable was introduced in the state Senate Wednesday.

A BILL WHICH WOULD make it illegal to sell detergents with more than 10 per cent phosphorus in Michigan after July 1, 1973, was introduced Wednesday in the state House of Representatives.

The bill, aimed at alleviating a "serious source of pollution," is sponsored by Rep. Lucille H. McCollough, D-Deerborn.

A BILL WHICH COULD reduce within eight years the number of billboards on Michigan highways was introduced Wednesday in the House of Representatives.

Rep. Raymond J. Smit, R-Ann Arbor, sponsored the bill. "Michigan legislators... have decided that prompt action is needed to stop the growth of the disorganized billboard jungle which is disfiguring the state," Smit said.

CANTLON SPEAKS

Ecology study: intellectual

By BOB ROACH
State News Staff Writer

University programs are part of the local and national ecology movement, which indicates a major turning point in human understanding, Provost John E. Cantlon told student and faculty environmentalists Tuesday night at Phillips Hall.

Appearing before members of the Sierra Club Committee and Students for Environmental Quality (E-QUAL), Cantlon said that recent local and federal programs place the movement for ecological awareness alongside the intellectual discoveries of Galileo and Darwin.

Galileo showed man's relative insignificance in the universe, while Darwin offered proof that man is related to the animal that also inhabit the earth, he said.

"Through today's ecology movement," Cantlon said, "man for the first time is perceiving, in a broad public way, that the life support system of the planet depends on his complex interactions with a variety of sensitive organisms."

"This is not a fad, but a whole new turn of the wheel. We'll never return to our previous ignorance," he said.

Examples of the University's commitment to ecological action and awareness include the Center for Environmental Quality, the Campus Water Plan and an extensive study of University waste problems, Cantlon said.

From its beginning, the center faced budget problems and the dilemma of whether to reach for a broad or narrow focus, he said. It could either sponsor a small, technical program or aim its activities to reach all departments. The center eventually adopted a series of programs that would make all students more aware of the environment.

"We see a lot of people leave here each year," Cantlon said. "We felt we shouldn't turn out several thousand 'intellectual Corvairs,' with defects in their training in environmental awareness."

The Campus Water Plan is a major research project that will study the interrelation of rural and urban areas and the possibilities of recycling nutrients found in sewage plants effluents, he said.

Private grants totalling $1.2 million must now be matched by a $500,000 appropriation from the state before work can begin on the project, Cantlon said. The state money was approved but later cut from the present budget and must now be passed on the new budget.

The University is taking corrective action on waste disposal irregularities discovered in a study recently completed by a private engineering firm, the provost added.

Use of fertilizers, pesticides and other chemicals are also being controlled, but Cantlon said he is not completely satisfied that the chemical monitoring system is totally effective.

He said entry into environmental studies by "big science" of academia and the federal government also indicates that ecological awareness is here to stay.

With support from the National Science Foundation, the Atomic Energy Commission's Oak Ridge Laboratory is now studying problems caused by radioactive waste and fallout, Cantlon said.

BIG 10 TRACK

Spartans ready for fast meet

The Big Ten has improved track, so have its meets, and weekend's 61st annual meet at Madison should be no exception.

The fieldhouse at Wisconsin is jumping and jam-packed with track fans, as it is when the Badgers are in. And that alone should produce some fast times and top-notch performances.

By event, the meet is up like this:

MSU's Herb Kingston is on choice, a 5.9 best. Indiana's Mike Smith, Larry Highbaugh and Miller, MSU's LaRue, Ohio's Jim Harris and Hill and Michigan's Gene Smith should battle for runner-up honors.

Goodrich tops here at 30.5. He's also defending but could be pressed by moving Butcher and Hoosier mates Highbaugh and at Michigan. Both teams are far ahead of any others.

Field Events — Pat Matzdorf of Wisconsin has the best high jump at 7-2 but Northwestern's Rick Rogers is at 7-1, five others are at 6-10 or better and five more at 6-8 or 6-9. So it's just about up for grabs. Pole vault looks the same with Wisconsin's Gordon Crail tops at 15-10 1/4 and six more at 15-4 and up.

Wisconsin's Patrick Onyango far ahead in the triple jump at 51-11 but Eric Allen of MSU (48-6) and Doug Vine of Indiana (48-5 1/4) should battle for runner-up honors. Northwestern's Rich Feazel and Wisconsin's Johnson look like the long jump's best, while defending champ Bob Winchell of Indiana should have a tough battle with Minnesota's Colin Anderson and Michigan's Steve Adams for shot put honors.

First and ten

Tuesday night's rugged MSU-Purdue game at Jenison Fieldhouse often resembled a football game with lots of bumping and shoving on the court. Here Purdue's George Faerber (33) appears to be tackling MSU's Brad Van Pelt as they fall to the floor while battling for a rebound.

Grapplers put team crown, individual titles on line

A team en route to winning the Big Ten wrestling championship must have depth and win several individual titles. MSU while streaking to five consecutive conference crowns has had many wrestlers capture individual championships.

In 1969 the Spartans set a tournament record by sweeping six individual first place finishes out of the 10 weight divisions. Last year MSU garnered five of the elite spots.

This season, as the Spartans attempt to defend their team championship, several MSU grapplers will also be guarding their individual titles.

After sitting out his sophomore year with an ankle injury Greg Johnson (118) rose to become the most outstanding lightweight wrestler in the country last season. Not only will Johnson be defending his Big Ten title but the NCAA honors as well.

Johnson was hampered by an injury in the middle of the season but has looked impressive in recent outings and will be a favorite as he goes for his second title this weekend at Purdue University.

If the shoulder injury that has limited Tom Milkovich (134) in the final weeks of the dual meet season is healed, he will be the overwhelming favorite for a second conference title.

Milkovich is considered to have the potential to be one of the greatest Spartan wrestlers ever. In his freshman year he won the conference title and placed fourth in the NCAA tournament. He had a fantastic 70-0 mark as a high school wrestler at Maples Heights, Ohio. He has only one loss in dual meets this season.

"That only loss," Coach Grady Peninger commented, "was to Dwayne Keller who is going after his third national title. It's no disgrace for a sophomore to be beaten by a senior who is already a two-time national champion."

Johnson and Milkovich are the only MSU returning champs from last year's tournament, but John Abajace (150) and Tom Muir (158) won titles in the 1969 showdown.

Abajace missed all of last season with a knee injury but should be among the contenders this season. The Washington, Pa.

product was injured again this year and sat on the sidelines for the latter part of the season.

Peninger said that "when Abajace is on he can go." But because of his injury a "wait and see" situation exists.

Tom Muir was granted another year of eligibility because of an injury that forced him to miss most of the action last year. Muir was off to a good start this year when an injury again took him out of the lineup.

Muir displays such competitive drive that even ballooned knees couldn't prevent him from working out in some way.

Muir challenged teammate Rick Radman and lost a disappointing match. Radman has shown steady improvement as Muir's replacement and now holds down the Spartan assignment in the tournament.

OSU, U-M win, but Hoosiers fall

Ohio State held its lead in the Big Ten basketball race by beating Minnesota, 84-70, while Michigan nipped Illinois, 75-74. Wisconsin shocked Indiana, 94-87, in double overtime and Iowa beat Northwestern, 78-64.

Tankers seek 3rd in Big 10

Looks like a four way race, with Ohio's Harris, on a 30.5, He's also defending but could be pressed by moving Butcher and Hoosier mates Highbaugh and Defending champ Winzenried of Wisconsin heavy favorite, but MSU's young John Mock, last year's champ, should challenge. So Illinois' Bob Mango and LaBadie and Wisconsin's Vandev.

Northwestern's Tom has a 2:08.7, second only to Winzenried's 2:07.2 and he'll run the 880 and mile. Michigan's Rick Storey and Ron Phillips should battle in this one.

Winzenried again, as defending champ, but should be edged by MSU's Ken Popejoy, Dave Dietters, Illinois' die and Rick Gross, mate Vandrey, Minnesota's Hopko and Michigan's Pierce.

1970 winter Bjorklund the pick. But could be a strong contender, along with Indiana's Mander and Steve Kelley, Minnesota's Don Timm.

Dick Taylor of Northwestern, John Morrison of Michigan's Godfrey are deadlocked in the 800. At 8:3 while Morrison, or Purdue's Don Price the best in the low at 7.8. The Relay — Illinois has the time at 3:13.5 but that on Ohio State's fast track MSU's second - rated 4 came on the tight turns

The Big Ten swimming championships get under way today in Columbus, with teams from every school in the conference fighting for points in 15 individual events and three relays. The meet will run until Saturday.

Perennial champion Indiana has the number one spot all but sewn up, and Michigan is a heavy favorite to retain the runner-up spot, but after that, things should get very interesting indeed.

The Spartans have finished third for the past six years, but for the last four they've had to hold off strong challenges by Ohio State to do it. This year, OSU boasts a stronger squad than ever, and are slight favorites to finally overtake MSU.

The Buckeyes came on strong late last season to finish 10th in the NCAA meet, and have been going strong ever since. In a dual meet earlier this season, they edged MSU by four points.

The Spartans are far from out of the picture, however. Coach Dick Fetters has some excellent swimmers on his squad, and all are healthy and ready for the meet.

Unlike the Buckeyes, who have a young, deep team, the Spartans rest their hopes for success primarily on a handful of top - flight, experienced swimmers. Fetters does not have a large number of swimmers to work with, but he has some good ones.

One of the best is junior Jeff Lanini, who has to rate as a favorite for top honors in both the 100 and 200 yard breaststroke events. Lanini placed third in the 100 last year, and has the best time by a Big Ten swimmer in the 200 this season.

Another Spartan who should score big points is sophomore All - American Ken Winfield, one of the league's best butterfly men. Winfield finished second in both the 100 and 200 fly last year, behind Indiana's Mark Spitz. He could do as well this time around.

Winfield is also the Spartan's top man in the 50 free, and is likely to swim that event as well. He will also join Lanini in the medley relay.

Junior Pat Burke has come on very strong of late, and should join Winfield in the butterfly scoring. Burke placed in the 100 last season, and has improved steadily since then.

MSU's top prospect in the backstroke is Al Dilley, who finished fourth in the 200 and fifth in the 100 last year. The backstroke is one of the Big Ten's strongest events, so Dilley may find it difficult to improve upon those finishes.

Dilley also placed in the 400 yard individual medley last year, and will repeat that performance if he swims the event. Fetters may elect to enter Dilley in the 200 free instead. Dilley will also swim the backstroke leg of the medley relay.

Another backstroke who figures to get into the scoring is senior Mike Boyle, who has won points for MSU in the last two Big Ten meets.

Distance ace John Thuerer took sixth in the 1650 last year, and should move up a notch or two this time. There are only a handful of distance men in the Big Ten that Thuerer cannot beat, and all are on the Indiana team.

Joining Thuerer in the distance races will be senior George Gonzalez. Gonzalez is likely to swim the 200, 500, and 1650 freestyle races, and swim on one or both of the freestyle relays.

The Spartans' strong diving contingent will be led by seniors

Jud Alward and Tom Cramer.

A good performance could net Alward the top spot in the three - meter competition, but there are so many good highboard men in the Big Ten that anything could happen.

ESP; or Extra-Sensory Pollution

Physicists tell us there are three basic forces at work in the universe: matter, energy and chopped liver.

But I, for one, am no longer satisfied with this narrow definition. How do physicists classify ESP? Certainly it falls into none of these categories, but just as certainly it exists. And not as a mere theory, ESP is a proven, demonstrated fact.

For example, how many times have you walked into a place you never saw before and yet recognized everything? How many times have you known the exact words someone was going to say before he ever said them? How many times have you been absolutely certain something was going to happen hundreds or even thousands of miles away and, sure enough, it did?

Let me tell you about a case I am fortunately able to document. Some years ago I went fishing with my dear friend Donald L. Fromkiss at a virgin lake deep in the Canadian wilds. It was hellishly difficult to get there, but we did not mind, for the moment we dropped our lines we each caught a splendid crappie. Mine weighed just over 300 pounds. Donald's was somewhat smaller, but by far the friendlier.

Imagine my surprise then when, before we could throw our lines back for another try, Donald suddenly leaped up and cried he'd had a premonition that he must go home immediately. He could not tell me why. He only knew that some one or some thing was calling him back and he had to go at once. Apologizing profusely, he left me alone on the lake and portaged to the nearest town (Moose Jaw, well over a thousand miles, and poison sumac every inch), and there he chartered a Ford Tri-Motor and flew home.

Well sir, at first he felt like an utter dolt. Everything was perfectly normal at home. His wife Edith was quietly reading The Sensuous Woman. His son Herschel was taking his daily glassblowing lesson. His dog Trey was eating his leash.

And yet the premonition would not leave Donald. Carefully, he went through the house, inch by inch, room by room. Sure enough, when he got to the back hall he suddenly heard a faint whimpering noise outside. He flung open the door. And there, by George, he saw where the whimpering was coming from: someone had left a basket on the back stoop!

Well sir, who can blame Donald for crying a cry of joy and triumph? What a find! A whimpering basket! That's something you don't see every day, let me tell you!

And so today, as you know of course, Donald L. Fromkiss and His Whimpering Basket is one of the highest paid acts in show business. Next Sunday, in fact, he completes his 84th consecutive year on Ed Sullivan.

As for me, I too was a beneficiary of Donald's ESP, for when he left me alone on the lake I figured I would get to drink all — not just half — of the goodly supply of Miller High Life Beer we had brought along, and as you know of course, Miller High Life is never so welcome as it is on a tranquil sylvan lake while a flock of Canada geese darkens the sky above. Of course, Miller isn't bad in a noisy bar either while a flock of American coeds darkens the jukebox. For that matter, it's even great in the dorm while your cruddy roommate darkens the tub.

But as it happened, I never did get to drink all our Miller High Life because I forgot how well sound travels across a sylvan lake. No sooner did I pop my first can of Miller when — lo and behold! — ten Mounties galloped out of the forest singing selections from Rose Marie. Of course, I shared my Miller with them, and gladly, because I know it's hard being a Mountie, especially if you're an alto. And so by the time they polished off my Miller and said adieu, we were all fast friends. One of them, in fact, let me slide down his hat.

No order to kill issued

On the witness stand, Calley said he was obeying orders from his company commander, Capt. Ernest L. Medina, to wipe out every living thing in the hamlet near the South China Sea.

Medina attended the Barker briefing and the prosecution aim in its rebuttal testimony was to convince the six-man court-martial jury that no such orders were passed down from the high level conference.

Further rebuttal testimony is expected to deal with a subsequent briefing Medina gave the men of his company, including Calley.

Watke, 37, a heavily beribboned veteran, was a major at My Lai, in charge of a helicopter unit. He was followed to the stand as the court-martial resumed after a three-day recess by S. Sgt. Lones Warren of Ft. Riley, Kan., a tall, muscular man who was a senior military policeman in charge of security for Task Force Barker.

He, too, testified he attended the Barker briefing and heard no orders against taking prisoners and no orders to kill women and children.

On cross-examination, Watke said he recalled Barker telling the briefing that he "wanted a good sweep" through My Lai. Asked to interpret that, the dark-haired Watke said:

"Look in all treelines, look in every building, look in every hole. If they saw any Viet Cong, they would kill or capture them."

Watke also testified he replayed observations and reports by helicopter pilot Hugh Thompson to Barker, Col. Oran Henderson, the brigade commander at My Lai, and Brig. Gen. George H. Young, assistant commander of the Americal Division, the task force's over-all command unit.

Watke was not asked nor did he volunteer the nature of the observations by Thompson, a warrant officer at My Lai, who later was commissioned a lieutenant and who testified early in the court-martial.

Thompson was said to have been the first to call the attention of superior officers to atrocities on the ground at My Lai during the 1968 assault. It was a year later that information of the killing of civilians first came to the attention of Washington.

Barker died at the age of 40 in a helicopter crash less than three months after My Lai. Henderson is awaiting court-martial on charges of taking part in a coverup of the My Lai incident. Similar charges of coverup against Watke and Young have been dismissed.

Medina has been charged with overall responsibility for civilian deaths at My Lai but he has not yet been ordered to trial. He has claimed the Army is preventing him from testifying at Calley's trial, where he said he could refute the defendant's allegation regarding his orders.

In the absence of the jury, the trial judge, Col. Reid W. Kennedy, told prosecution and defense lawyers that the jurors have the right to call witnesses — including Medina — after both prosecution and defense have pleaded their case.

"If the witness is called by the court jury, he becomes a witness and he would be subject to cross-examination by both sides and neither of you would be vouching for the credibility of that witness," Kennedy added.

Referring to the possibility that Medina might be called by the jury, Kennedy said: "Capt. Medina is a party of interest and his testimony would have to be accepted with greatest caution."

House

he said.

Vaughn has introduced a package of rights, bills and resolutions to accompany passage of the 18-year-old vote. Similar bills and resolutions were introduced by Vaughn in 1970 but were held up in committee and never came before the House for a final vote.

Vaughn's proposals include:

- Two bills that would protect a student from unjust expulsion or suspension by requiring a hearing and consul.
- A bill to allow all eligible voters to circulate petitions, including 18-year-olds.
- A bill to give the right of serving on a jury to all persons eligible to vote, including 18-year-olds.

Several resolutions suggesting constitutional amendments giving students seats on the State Board of Education and boards of trustees or regents of universities; and giving students a grievance board and lowering the required age for lieutenant governor and governor of the state.

Hedrick House is having an "open party" for friends and anyone interested in co-op living at 9 p.m. Saturday at 140 Haslett Street. There will be refreshments and a light show by "Nummy."

Teachers, education majors: An idea exchange will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday in 31 Union. Topics will be creative writing, media, simulation and team teaching. The cost is $1. Refreshments will be served.

A Turkish dinner will be held from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. today at Owen Hall cafeteria.

A meeting for Campus Action will be held at 9 p.m. today in 39 Union. Evaluation of this term and plans for next term will be discussed.

The MSU Management Club will hold a meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in the Teak Room, Eppley Center. Mr. Steele of Snelling and Snelling will speak on the "Employment Agency's Role in the Job Hunting Process."

A meeting of the Young Socialist Alliance will be held Sunday night in 33 Union. A discussion on the "Communist Manifesto" — Its Relevancy for Today" will be held.

Three Cuban films will be shown at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. today at the Albatross Coffee House. Donations for the Venceremos Brigade will be collected at the door.

An open meeting of the Dept. of German and Russian Student Advisory Committee will be held at 2 p.m. today in 740A Wells Hall. All are welcome.

Persons interested in attending a five-week international seminar on comparative journalism in Yugoslavia this summer should attend a meeting at 7 p.m. today in 39 Union. All majors invited.

Great Issues encourages letter writing to Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Me., to pay a nonpartisan, academic visit to the MSU campus spring term. No charge is involved.

MSU College Republicans will meet at 7 p.m. today in 218A Berkeley Hall. Details of the state convention will be discussed.

Brotherhood Movement with Man and Nature Bookstore presents a benefit concert featuring the Plain Brown Wrapper with Backstreet at 7 p.m. today in Shaw Hall lower lounge. Admission is $1.50.

The Sports Car Club will present "Twelve Hours of Sebring 1970" at 8:30 p.m. today in the Captain's Room, Union.

History majors: The deadline for entries in the history essay contest is March 12. Papers must be typed, double-spaced and no more than 35 pages long. The author's name should appear only on the title page. The first prize is $50.

The Pre-Vet Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in 146 Giltner Hall. Vet students will be there to answer any questions regarding the College of Veterinary Medicine. Final sign-ups for the trip to Parke-Davis will take place.

Sisters, join us in a celebration of International Women's Day, Monday, in 36B, 38 and 39 Union. Discussions will be held on women in China and Vietnam, abortion testimonials, workshops on women and their bodies, self-defense and female culture.
