Chief Justice Warren E. lurger had issued an order banning their use of the mall, the grassy area between the Capitol and the Lincoln nemorial, saying they had to be out by 4:30 p.m. Wednesday.

War protesters vote to continue campout

WASHINGTON (AP) - A group of Vietnam veterans voted dnesday night to violate a Supreme Court order and continue ir campout on the Mall as part of an antiwar protest.

The vote, conducted state by state among the estimated 1,000 monstrating members of Vietnam Veterans Against the War, s 480 to remain on the Mall at the Capitol end, and 400 to de by the court order.

hree hours after the Justice Department deadline for clearing mall had passed, authorities had made no attempt to move tle · dressed protesters.

leanwhile, the White House announced Wednesday President Nixon is expected to be away during two planned antiwar demonstrations in Washington, the first to his Maryland retreat and then to California. Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler was asked if Nixon is leaving the capital because of the demonstrations.

"That is not the motivation behind the trip," he said.

Spokesmen for the group said the veterans, if faced with arrest, would submit peaceably and "march off as prisoners of war." Rennie Davis, an antiwar leader preparing for a massive demonstration in the capital next month, spoke to the protesters and urged all but Vietnam veterans to leave the Mall.

AFTER PROPOSAL REJECTION

Delayed implementation of report seen possible

By STEVE WATERBURY State News Staff Writer

The rejection of recommendations from the board of trustees by the Academic Council Tuesday may lead to further delay in the implementation of the Revised Report Concerning Student Participation in Academic Governance, Milton Powell, acting chairman of the University Student Affairs Committee, said Wednesday.

"In rejecting the recommendations, the council may have put the board of trustees in a position where they will reject the Taylor Report," Powell said.

The council voted Tuesday to reject two of six recommendations passed by the board at its March 19 meeting, at which the student participation report was presented to the trustees for approval.

The two recommendations that were rejected by the council "had to do chiefly with the relationship between the board of trustees and the faculty," Powell said.

"I feel that all of the amendments that are essential to the adoption of some form of student representation in academic governance were passed," he said.

In the hope that the council rejection of these amendments would not cause the board of trustees to reject the entire participation report, Powell said he introduced a motion at the close of the council meeting which urged that the trustees consider the participation report amendments separate from the amendments which were rejected by the

The motion proposed by Powell passed by the council states that it is the sense of the Academic Council that its action with respect to the rejected trustee recommendations "is not essential to the issue of student participation in academic government and should not prejudice the board's action with respect to that issue."

The first of the two recommendations of the trustees which were rejected by the council was an amendment to Section 2.5.8. This section forbids any act which "diminishes, suspends or compromises the distinctively professional rights of the

The trustee recommendation would incorporate into this section a statement that in the case of a dispute "concerning the application of this proviso, the final judgment shall rest with the board of trustees.'

The other rejected amendment provided that "any amendment of the bylaws affecting the substance of academic governance shall be referred to the board of trustees for its approval."

Powell said that the closeness of the council vote on the amendments to the student participation report which were adopted by the council called into question whether these amendments would succeed in winning the approval of the Academic Senate.

The Academic Senate will consider the amendments at a May 19 meeting. Approval by the senate is necessary before the amendments can be returned to the board for approval.

"Faculty members who feel that student representation in academic sovernment ought to be given a chance should go to that Senate meeting and vote or these proposals," Powell urged.

"The approval of the amendments is the only way in which the Taylor Report could begin to be implemented before fall of this year," Powell said.

Future for supersonics?

British and French government ministers confer in London today in talks that could decide the future of one of the most costly and controversial projects in aviation history – the Concorde supersonic airliner.

French Transport Minister Jean Chamant and Fred Corfield of Britain are meeting amid growing doubts in both countries that the sleek deltawing plane can ever become a paying proposition.

But if they scrap the project after last month's U.S. congressional decision to withhold funds for the Boeing Co's SST - the field of supersonic travel will go by default to the Soviet TU144, which may soon go into

Viet engagements few

South Vietnamese commanders dispatched more troops into the A Shau Valley in hopes of drawing the enemy into a fight but the enemy has not taken the bait, command officers said Wednesday in Saigon. They expressed a belief this could be the result of heavy enemy losses in the Laos incursion.

"So far the enemy has been trying to avoid engagements so there have been few contacts and we do not know if the enemy will stand and fight," said Maj. Gen. Pham Van Phu, commander of South Vietnam's 1st Infantry Division.

Premier to stay in office

Cambodian Premier Gen. Lon Nol. who resigned Tuesday in Phnom Penh citing poor health as his reason, appears ready to take back the reins of government with a new Cabinet and increased military prestige.

Lon Nol was formally asked Wednesday to stay on as premier and form a new Cabinet. The request came from Cheng Heng, the chief of state.

Sources close to Lon Nol said he would accept.

Ky to oppose Thieu

NGUYEN CAO KY

Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky came close to declaring his candidacy for president Wednesday and said South Vietnam's elections next fall should be free from all outside influence, including American.

Speaking with newsmen at a reception in Hue, an ancient imperial capital, Ky referred to "my electoral platform" but when asked if this meant he was running for president he said only: "There is a big possibility."

His other remarks, coupled with his speech - making in recent days, left little doubt that he would oppose President Nguyen Van Thieu for the country's top post in the national election Oct. 3.

Youth solutions urged

Interior Secretary Rogers Morton sat down with more than a dozen young people drafting environemtnal recommendations Wednesday at the White House Conference on Youth in Estes Park, Colo., and told them "I want to get youth on the solution side" of the problems facing the country.

The tall, graying Cabinet member, who replaced youth - favorite Walter J. Hickel, assured the young people the national administration would take their recommendations to heart.

Cost of living increases

A sharp rise in grocery prices boosted over - all living costs three - tenths of one per cent last month, while home mortgage interest and new car prices eased, the government said Wednesday.

The March increase pushed the Labor Dept.'s Consumer Price Index to 119.8, meaning it cost $11.98 last month for every $10 worth of typical family expenditures in the 1957 base period.

State News Staff Writer

The alleged grievances of six political science professors expressed in a letter sent to their colleagues earlier this month were acknowledged by Charles Press, chairman of the Dept. of Political Science, in a memo to the faculty

The six professors had written a letter to their colleagues April 12 expressing "distress over the unhappy condition of our department."

In his memo Wednesday, Press said the accusations had resulted in his asking Clarence L. Winder, dean of the College of Social Science, to investigate any grievances.

Press' memo suggested that faculty members set up appointments with Winder to discuss the situation in the department.

"We witness and experience our department's poor reputation with colleagues in other disciplines, the virtual collapse of our ability to develop and discuss meaningful collective policies and the alienation of many of us and their obvious eagerness to leave this situation," the letter noted.

"Isn't it time we brought ourselves together, located the causes of our difficulties, and overcame them?" the letter continued.

The six faculty members who sent the letter have declined to make public their specific Wharton reportedly attended one department faculty meeting at which time Press declined to discuss the situation. Winder said Wednesday that he hoped all faculty members in the department would come to him with their views but that it would be a voluntary matter. "In the individual interviews, I will ask each faculty member to discuss the department - its strengths and weakness and problems - as he or she sees it," Winder said. "I will get some suggestions from individuals about what might be done if it turns out that most people do think there are problems that aren't being resolved," Winder said. He said he would move through the interviews as quickly as possible, but added that it would take two to three weeks. Press' memo instructed faculty members to make appointments with "The way for me to go into this thing is with as open a mind as I can," Winder said.

Two of the dissident six professors said Wednesday that they were uncertain if the invitation to talk to Winder will be well received because of fears of reprisal against those who did voice discontent.

The resignations of some 20 political science faculty in the last four years is an extremely high departure rate, department critics point out.

They say that other signs of friction in the department include yelling at departmental meetings, an unwillingness to come to their areas.

The six professors who expressed discontent in writing were willing to do because they would either be resigning or leave next year, they noted.

Court decision handles symptoms, not disease

The Supreme Court has now done just about all it can do to combat intentional school segregation. The court has upheld the constitutionality of busing as a means to achieve racial balance in the schools. The ruling will at long last force, if at all possible, all presently segregated school districts to desegregate.

If the districts do not make their own plans for real integration, then federal courts will have the power to make plans for them. The judges will have the power to require busing, alter school zones, pair two zones not having common boundaries and apply racial ration as a guide to for integration.

The decision, a final blow against de jure (intentional) segregation, does not apply to de facto segregation – a situation prevalent in the North. Presently, contradictory lower court decisions stand on whether schools segregated solely on the basis of geography must integrate. If the court applies the law uniformly, it must soon decide whether de facto segregation is equally detrimental to the child.

has been 17 years since the Supreme Court outlawed separate - but - equal school systems for blacks. Today complete compliance with this ruling has yet to be achieved. We hope this latest Supreme Court decision will help complete a task that has already been delayed much too long.

This nation's education system has many other crises to resolve besides the integration problem. Teachers are restless. In many areas the quality of education has reached a nadir. Urban high schools are being broken by racial conflict. Education systems need to address themselves to the very problem of education.

The Supreme Court ruling may finally eliminate de jure segregation in the South. The court, though, cannot deal with the attitudes which created segregation, be it de jure or

Military's advertising step to volunteer army

Uncle Sam is no longer pointing a menacing finger at America's young men entreating them to enlist in the Army. Instead, the military has launched a massive advertising campaign that informs young men that the Army wants to join them. At a time of nationwide protest of military activities in Vietnam, American men must view the $10.6 million campaign as a waste.

But perhaps they should consider another aspect of the Army's advertising. A volunteer army offers a viable alternative to the draft. Forced servitude alienates and repels many Americans, especially those who are uprooted to serve.

Given that a U.S. Army is a necessity - even that can be debated - it seems that a volunteer army is less offensive than a conscripted

As obvious as this concept seems, it somehow escapes congressmen. They cannot see that a country has no business at war if it cannot muster enough volunteers to fight that war.

The real test of a hawk is whether he is willing to lead the charge into enemy machine gun fire. Hawks especially species congressman seem reluctant to support their rhetoric with action. Neither the silent majority nor vociferous congressmen form very long lines at Army recruiting offices.

Somehow, we doubt that the new $10.6 million campaign will lengthen

The separate legislative chambers disagreed on the manner in which the fund should be refilled. The House wants the state to pay the $45 million back to itself with interest; the Senate simply wants the $45 million repaid. POINT OF VIEW

Best advice: withdraw now

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following Point of View by Dhirendra Sharma, associate professor of philosophy and Asian studies, was originally a paper entitled "U.S. Expansionism versus Cultural and Economic Interests in Asia."

As these lines are forming on paper, military, navy and air forces are busy putting down their "enemies" in many parts of Asia and in South America. Also in other parts of the world the United States has its military contingency plans. The so called Guam Doctrine of Nixon, similar to the Monroe Doctrine, has never been formally adopted by Congress. Even so, guided by it, Washington has declared its future policies and intentions to defend freedom anywhere in Asia.

At Guam what Nixon and his aides intended was that social and political forces of Asian countries which do not see eye - to - eye with the Washington -Pentagon policies in that continent, should be intimidated. And recently the State Dept. has announced that it is contemplating, establishing military and naval bases on the island of Diegk Garcia situated between Ceylon and Mauritius in the Indian Ocean. India has, on several occasions, made it known that she regards the ocean as her area of interests and wants to maintain it as 'The Ocean of Peace' free from all cold and hot wars. The pronouncements of the U.S. government, then would appear to have been made without consent, consultation or discussion with the democratic leaders in Asia. And t is this unfortunate dilemma that needs to be explained and analyzed.

Noble? No matter how noble Washington's intentions may seem to be today, to Asians who have struggled and fought for their political independence for 200 years without any support from a U.S. government, it seems ironic that a peace and freedom - loving Christian nation is now so eagerly engaged in dispatching submarines, destroyers, and helicopters, seizing islands, landing troops, subverting governments, and distributing arms and ammunition among malcontents. Probably since the days of the Open Door policy, and since 1853 when the U.S. Navy penetrated Japanese isolation and 1871 when it attacked Korea, American policy makers have changed and gone through a spiritual transformation. But then, responsibility rests with Washington to convince the Asian nations of its change of However, its involvement in Vietnam since 1950 and bold invasion of Indochina in recent years does not offer a satisfactory proof of such an event. Nor does Washington's attitude and treatment of the most liberal democratic government in India and its leaders convince the Asian people that the United States intends to help and make them politically independent and economically self reliant. Probably the Asians will be better off it they forgot the past and thought only of the future. Every such attempt, though, is frustrated by Washington's ever - increasing expansion into Asia. The history of the United States abounds in precedents of armed interventions and occupation, from which it is clear that the Chosen People of our age have not learned to compromise; and every success on the battlefield gives them a renewed sense of Destiny. Aberration

Even if Vietnam and the current Asian adventures are considered an aberration, and America's role in the two world wars as permissable and praiseworthy, an examination of diplomatic and military records shows more than 100 instances of actual or authorized use of force outside its national jurisdiction. In about 75 of these, military might has been actually used or displayed; about 50 times there has been an occupation of territory, longer or shorter; in more than 30 cases some of the territory thus affected has been eventually generals rather than seek popular votes the people. However, there is another of the conflict which has so far overlooked by the policy makers Capitol Hill. Today, the Asian peoples living through an era of socio . political upheavals that were experienced by western nations during the 18th and centuries.

Europe was divided in holy allian and war - weary national kingdoms submerged in the tidal waves of some political unrest. With the advancement technology and science, nations were to to overthrow old standards. The goals popular movements of those days the overthrow of monarchs and property ownership, demanding a great share in the power wielding of the State the common man, and a militant une greater social justice and the economic being of the masses.

Economic justice, equality, land socio - political reforms alongside with advancement of science and technological were the paramount issues of Rum devastated by national, regional religious wars. However, whereas have was permitted to struggle through, with interference from outside powers, in a today, that has not been permitted by direct presence of external non . As powers. The vacuum created by withdrawal of European powers must filled by indigenous forces resulting viable socio - political standards institutions from within.

annexed to the United States. With such a glorious record and with the Monroe Doctrine blazing down on the scene, now one has to understand the mission of this great philanthropic Republic in the terms of "peace with honor," "defense of democracy," "security of the U.S." and "protection of the unprotected" from the ruthless and unscrupulous Red barbarians rolling down on the peoples of Asia from

Since the new strategy of the Nixon administration, of withdrawing the American boys and Vietnamization of the war, there seems to be a lull in the antiwar movements. This new move has significance, in that Washington wants to get by negotiation what it could not win on the battlefields. Since the Geneva accord in 1954, U.S. intention has been to divide Vietnam like Korea and Germany between two ideological blocks.

It is this proposition that has been rejected by Hanoi and the majority of the people of that nation. It is for this reason that Washington totally relies upon the support of the minority Christians, rich businessmen and psychopathic military total withdrawal from the continent m However, viewing the Japanese . U.S. Sino - Canadian relations during the two decades of the cold and hot wan can be said with greater certainty that U.S. economic and cultural interests will far better protected in Asia if Washing changed its aggressive military posture

Having annexed the Hawaiian and Guam in 1898, having occur Micronesian islands and many parts

Japanese territories since the end of Wa

Washing would be better advised therefore protect its long range economic cultural interests by withdrawing military power from Asia totally unconditionally.

Singers to stage spring concert

MSU State Singers, directed by Harold F. Brown, will present its annual spring concert at 8:15 p.m. Sunday, in the University Methodist Church on South Harrison Road.

The concert, open to the public without charge, will feature works from the Renaissance to the present performed by the 60-voice MSU choir and its 11-piece brass

The performance will feature works by two MSU composers. "Mourn Not the Dead," by Adolphu C. Hailstork III, won the international Ernest Bloch Composition competition. Hailstork, a doctoral candidate in music, wrote the work especially for the State Singers. This will be its East Lansing premier.

"Eldorado" by Jere Hutcheson, asst. professor of music, uses brass, percussion and choir. It was performed here eight years ago.

The choir and brass ensemble will open with "Jubilate Deo." Written in the 16th century by Giovanni Gabrieli, it is based on Psalm 100.

The program will also include "Plorate, Filiae Israel" by Carissimi; "Holy, Holy, Holy" by Mendelssohn; "Tears" by Roy Harris, and one of the "Trois Chansons" by Ravel. Using the text from Psalm 117, "Praise the Lord, all ye nations," the State Singers will perform "Laudate Dominum" by Mozart. Soprano Gloria Hill, Detroit sophomore, will be the soloist. Lynne Palmer of Lansing, accompanist for the group, will perform "Impromptu in E Flat, Opus 90, No. 2" by tudent co-ops offer food, room

By RANDY GARTON

Students seeking cheap - really cheap - accommodations uring their summer vacations need look no farther than the nany student co-ops across the United States offering a hosteling ervice for a maximum daily rate of $3. The co-ops, members of the North American Student operative Organization (NASCO) will offer two meals and a ace to sleep for persons holding a NASCO hosteling card, a ASCO representative said recently. According to James R. Jones, president of the MSU Student ousing Corp., the co-ops got the idea because of the poor pality of the youth hostels in the United States and Canada. "Youth hostels in this country are few in number and hard to to," Jones said. "And the restrictions on travel to these cilities — you can't drive there — reduce their effectiveness to crowds of students traveling during the summer." Though NASCO hosteling cards are available free to members NASCO, and for fees ranging from $1 to $3 to members of ASCO co-ops, persons not involved with cooperative can also btain a card. "Persons who are not members of NASCO must pay $5 for a rd to get the same privileges that regular members do," Jones

Jones emphasized that $3 was the maximum daily rate ($1 for om and $2 for the two meals), and that some co-ops would fer a place to sleep free of charge.

"It depends upon the number of visitors they have in the suse at that time," he said. "Also under some circumstances sitors don't have to pay the entire rate. For example, if they on't need food, they wouldn't have to pay for it."

The holder of a NASCO hosteling card gets a booklet listing co-ops; that are participating in the program, Jones said. "There are some in nearly every college town in the country," said. "At MSU, Hedrick House and Ulrey House are rticipating and other co-ops will vote on the question soon." The co-ops expect a heavy traffic this summer because of the smal employment picture, Jones said.

"A lot of kids will be traveling around the country and will ed a place to crash," he said. "We hope this will help some of

ECON INSTRUCTOR REPORTS

Price increases pay for war

By DENISE McCOURT State News Staff Writer

The average American is paying for the war through increased prices in consumer goods, Alan Shelly, instructor in economics, said Tuesday

Speaking at the Student Mobilization Committee teach - in, Shelly said the U.S. government printed more money in 1965, used this money to buy war supplies and therefore bid up the price of goods.

"Inflation has always been the tool of the tyrants," he said.

The expansionary measure used by the government helped to lower unemployment for a while, but no longer does high inflation guarantee less unemployment, he said.

But now the workers are against the war's inflation and are demanding more money. The government has the power, Shelly said, to engineer a recession so the workers will be forced to accept lower wages.

The economy in America has been faltering since the 1960s, Shelly said.

"We begin to see this country come apart with the limits of Keynesian economics, the limits of the urban centers and from the urban - rural society," he said.

The defeat of the supersonic transport system proposal showed that America has reached some technological limits also. "This country is doomed in its present situation." Shelly said. "I certainly wouldn't give this economy

He called men like Senators Muskie, Hatfield and McGovern "first - class chauvinists," not really dedicated to peace and respecting the Vietnamese people, but riding a wave of public sentiment against the

After Shelly's speech, four members of the Veterans for Peace spoke to students, explaining how they feel about the war.

The group has about 230 members, including employes at the Fisher Body Plant and Zolton Ferency, former Democratic candidate for governor.

Robert Boling, East Lansing graduate student, said the purpose of Veterans for Peace is to call for an immediate cessation of fighting and educating the people in the

This is the first time men have criticized a war while it was still in progress, Boling said. It is costing the country $130 billion and it's not worth it, he said.

catcher to third was probably unexpected to most. Rashead had moved to the backstop when Harry Kendrick graduated the year before.

Rashead did a fine job all year but this season was moved back to third where Litwhiler expects him to be just as useful to the Spartans' cause.

The Flint senior held down the hot corner in his sophomore year and was the best third baseman in the league, according to Litwhiler.

"Phil did a great job at third his first year," Litwhiler said. "We think that with Pruitt and Bailey Oliver able to handle the catchers job it is real good that we can get Phil back to third."

Catching does have some constant crouching that the position demands can be very tiring on the legs. Pruitt says that he won't beat out as many infield hits but other than that he is satisfied with the position.

The other changes included putting versatile Rob Ellis in right field after a year of playing every infield position for MSU. The decision to move the Spartan slugger to the outfield was made to take advantage of his strong arm and also relieve him of some of the tension that could concentrate on his hitting.

By United Press International

The Minnesota North Stars, still a little shaken by the Montreal firepower they faced in the opening game of their series, try again Thursday night to justify the faith of National Hockey League officials who claim that "parity is here."

Time and time again during the regular season - the fourth year since expansion - the cry was hard from officials of the six older teams that "they're as good as we are" and "there's no such thing anymore as an expansion team."

But while some of the expansionists have enjoyed a fair amount of success against the established teams during regular season play, they still are looking for their first victory ever against an older club in the Stanley Cup.

Palmer rates as favorite

RNCHO LA COSTA, CALIF. (UPI) — An elite field of 35 progolfers answers the starter's call Thursday in the first round of the 72 - hole $165,000 Tournament of Champions with Arnold Palmer installed as the favorite to win this title for the fourth

Palmer, 41, qualified for the T of C by winning two tournaments - the Bob Hope Desert Classic and the Citrus Open. Only winners of designated PGA tournaments plus the British Open Champion are eligible to shoot for the $33,000 first prize on the 7,114 - yard La Costa Country Club course. Par is 36 - 36

Defending champion Frank Beard won last year with a 72 hole score of 273, 15 under. He had a seven - shot edge over Gary Player, Tony Jacklin and Billy Casper who were tied for second. This year the rough has been permitted to grow higher — two and a half inches off the ground — and pro Eddie Susalla predicted 284, four under par, would be good enough to win.

All the big names of pro golf are here except Casper who is playing host to the King of Morocco at the request of the State Department. Casper spent some time in Morocco last year giving the king golf lessons. The pro golfer was eligible for the T of C but declined so he can escort the king on his current visit to the Player, winner in 1969, is back and so is Jack Nicklaus, the reigning British Open champion.

There are seven newcomers who won their first official PGA tournaments during the past 12 months. They are: Brian "Bud" Allin, Carlyle Snead, Tommy Aaron, Hugh Royer, Cesar Sanudo, Bill Garett and Gibby Gilbert.

Another three - time winner here, in addition to Palmer, for another crack at the title is Gene Littler who got in by winning the Monsanto Open last Sunday. Other entries: Jacklin, Dave Stockton, George Archer, Ken

MSU sailing club 2nd in regatta

The MSU Sailing Club captured second place in a field of 14 Midwest area teams at the Purdue Spring Regatta last weekend. In Saturday morning's competition, MSU, represented by Chuck White and Ralph Blasier in the A division and Dick Davis and Bonny Hart in the B division, racked up seven first place finishes in the first eight races to establish a commanding lead.

Saturday afternoon, however, MSU fell victim to a series of errors, fouls, and disqualifications and Notre Dame took over first place. MSU's Sunday catch - up attempt fell short, and Notre Dame won the regatta. Purdue finished third.

This weekend the sailing club travels to the Ohio State Intersectional Regatta, which is the largest intercollegiate regatta in the world. At the Ohio State Regatta MSU will face the nation's top teams, Rhode Island, Yale Tulane and USC.

MILTON MILLER

Speaker relates story of society

At age 40, a man is at peace with his peers but feels threatened by younger people on their way up, the chairman of the University of Wisconsin's Dept. of Psychiatry said on campus

Dr. Milton H. Miller was the sixth guest consultant to MSU Dept. of Psychiatry to speak this year. He was trained at the Menninger Foundation and is currently studying cross culture

Miller related a parable "which, like all fairy tales, is true but not all true" about a society where older people did not like younger people.

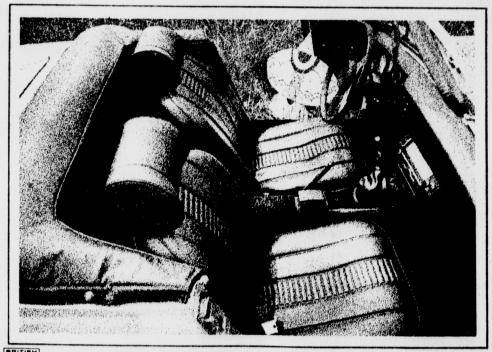

The older people of both the Asian and Western segments of the hypothetical society exercised social, sexual, economic and educational control over the young. The old also controlled the lives of the young by involving them in wars perpetuated to keep the young from rebelling.

In the real world, Miller said, society tends to preserve the rights of older people who also control power and money. A middle - aged man may term survival as being able to retain his self - esteem in face of being replaced by someone who is younger, stronger, better educated and more vital than he. "But I also think that the young of this generation are turning away from a strong need to compete," he said. He cite communal living as evidence of such a trend.

You can afford it while you're still young enough to enjoy it.

Having the want is one thing. Having the wherewithal is another. The trouble with being young is that all too often you have the one without the other.

But the 1971 MG Midget is something else again. Here is a true sports car for under $2500*the lowest price you can pay for the real thing. In this case the real thing includes a racewinning 1275 c.c. engine. Racing-type rack-andpinion steering (2.33 turns lock to lock) for cool, crisp driving. Heavy-duty suspension for superb road-hugging. Disc brakes up front for straight-line, non-fade stops. Twin reclining bucket seats. And full sports car instrumentation with an electric tach.

Which only goes to show that, even though MG has been engineering sports cars for over 40 years, there's no generation gap. For the name of your nearest Austin-MG dealer and information about overseas delivery, dial (800) 631-1971 except in New Jersey where the number is (800) 962-2803. Calls are toll-free, of course.

Billboard campaign aims to improve society unity By RAY ANDERSON

State News Staff Writer

"Some Call Him Pig," the billboard recently seen in the Lansing area depicting a policeman giving resuscitation to a limp child, came from a public relations campaign supposedly stressing national cooperation and unity.

Max Lorencen, executive vice president of Lansing's Central Advertising Co., received the package of billboards from the Naigele Advertising Agency in Minneapolis following the campaign's presentation at an advertising convention last October. Lorencen said he sponsored "Some Call Him Pig," immediately because it correlated with National Police Week.

The campaign, he said, was supposed to lessen the polarization that seems to be occurring in the United States. Other billboards in the series depict an operating table with the caption. Drive Fast, Your Table Is Waiting," an Indian head nickel with the comment "Is This The Only Indian You Give A Damn About," another with a composite group of people and the underlying caption "There's only one man in the world and that is all men," and others promoting nation cohesion.

Lorencen said the response to "Some of Him Pig" was very good, and he wasn't awan its being considered antistudent. "Joint Iss an East Lansing - based underground newspar found it offensive enough to publish a table size sequel showing a long - hair performing resuscitation with the caption "Some Call In Hippy.'

"The billboard wasn't meant to discriminatory," Lorencen said. "They were supposed to be public service announcement and primarily nonpolitical."

Central Advertising hasn't used the oth because their boards are all presently filled w commercial advertising.

General Sales Manager Joseph Jones said the have received a politically oriented ad fromt Veterans for Peace with the caption "What Home Without A Son," which will be used wh the funds are obtained from the group a billboard space becomes available.

Learn how you can serve as a Vincentian

St. Vincent de Paul was a Christ-like priest, a warm-hearted man with unbounded love for his fellow man, especially the poor, the sick, the oppressed and the neglected. His life was spent ministering to their needs. He preached to them, taught them, fed them and even begged for them. Like Christ, he came not to be served but

Today the Vincentians, the sons of St. Vincent, carry on his work. As a Vincentian, you can ease the misery of the poor and the suffering of the sick. They counsel the troubled and the oppressed. They teach the young and console the old and enlighten men of all ages. They try to meet the needs of the Church wherever they exist. The Vincentians serve.

Chicano center sponsors cultural awareness day

By ROSA MORALES State News Staff Writer

Approximately 200 people attended the recent Cultural Awareness Day program sponsored by the Flint Spanish Speaking Information Center, (SSIC) at the University of Michigan, Flint branch.

A day - long affair of Chicano activities, including a pan dulce y cafe (sweet bread and coffee) breakfast; workshops; films; the Lansing Teatro Cultural; a Mexican dinner of rice, beans, meat, tostadas and enchiladas; a speaker from Washington, D.C., and an evening dance, drew young and old people from Flint, Saginaw and Lansing.

Guadalupe G. Garcia, associate director of President Nixon's Cabinet Committee on Opportunity for the Spanish Speaking, was the main speaker.

Garcia, a former migrant auto plant worker in Michigan, said there is a need for nationwide unity in the Chicano movement before the Chicano can go on to other political activities.

"For us to be moving ahead we must start working on national unity," Garcia said. "It begins right here on the local level, then state."

"The Midwest has been ignored on the national level in the movement," he said. "Everything is happening in the Southwest. We could become the focal point for the whole country if we used a little more sophistication and if we work within the system."

"We must learn not to quibble about money," he added. "While we quibble among ourselves, somebody else gets the money."

Three of the six workshops were conducted by MSU people. An education workshop was conducted by Anna Marie Valenzuela, MSU counseling specialist; Mario Soza, Saginaw junior, conducted the drama workshop, and Alfred Rivas, San Francisco, Calif., graduate student, conducted a workshop on the antiwar movement and the Chicano moratorium.

Daniel Soza Jr., director of the SSIC, organized the conference, the first of its kind in Genesee County - an area with a Chicano population of 10,000.

The conference was a unique meeting, according to Daniel Soza, because "it's the first time a conference of this proportion has ever taken place in Flint."

"There are people here who have never sat down together in the same room for years," Soza, a 1970 MSU graduate, said. "This day has made all our (SSIC) efforts worthwhile."

The SSIC, located at 5013 N. Saginaw, St. in Flint, officially began operating Nov. 6, 1971. The council, however, has been in operation on a volunteer basis since Oct. 29, 1969.

The center, a nonprofit corporation, was founded partially as a referral agency to serve the employment, educational, housing, health, legal. cultural and social service needs of the Spanish speaking residents of Genesee County, Soza, a former MECHA vice chairman at MSU, said.

SSIC is funded by Flint Model Cities and has a full - time staff of four and a part - time of four.

Citing the often - overlooked need for such a Chicano conference, Soza said that "the Chicano is viciously absorbed into the mainstream of Anglo life without ever knowing what happened to his rich background."

"One of the shameful things that has happened to the Chicano in the city is that he becomes shamefully assimilated, yet is disgraced by others because he looks different."

"One of the evils we must prevent is the clutching automation mold that society is making of our people, by excluding us - our culture, history and personality," Soza said.

Soza said "the seeds of the Chicano activity that were planed at the conference Saturday will bear fruit for our children tomorrow."

Unit seeks opinions of students representative on a search and selection committee for the Dept. of Accounting and Financial Administration is seeking opinions from students in the department concerning the selection of a new chairman.

Donald Gillings, East Lansing senior, said the selection committee is seeking to fill the position held by James D. Edwards who has accepted a position at the University of Minnesota.

Gillings used students with opinions on faculty members or questions on the process to contact him.
