Swat defense set The GOT A FEELING THAT for beetle battle He'S NOTREALLY ONE OF US!

By MICHAEL FOX State News Combat Correspondent

PLAIN OF COWS, East Lansing - Dutch elm disease beetles continued their savage full speed advance against campus elm tree positions today with renewed bombing attacks in the "south 40 acres" area.

Minor squirmishes were reported along Wilson Road where beetles came into contact with troops of the third armored division of campus parks and planning. Division personnel armed with fly swatters have been deployed at half-mile intervals along a quarter-mile stretch of the road. Battle counts from the battle front reported 1.483,795,142 enemy beetle casualties and 14 University troops wounded when the beetles destroyed the plywood floorboards of their MSU vehicle. The beetle offensive went into its second week with the miserable Michigan monsoon season clearing over the holiday weekend. Minor violations of a 16-hour holiday truce were reported Monday in the Baker Woodlot sector.

The Republic of Lansing Monday again refused any responsibility for the troops which the republic stockpiled in diseased elms over the past few months at a neutral

Plan continued to release N. Viet prisoners of war

SAIGON (AP) - The government is oing ahead with its plan to release North ietnamese prisoners of war on Friday hough official sources reported only 13 fabout 660 eligible POWs have agreed to

The prisoners, sick or suffering from ounds, have until Thursday, to change

It was not known why the prisoners ere refusing repatrition, but one source aid Monday: "Maybe they simply are anding by their original orders to remain the South until victory is achieved. laybe they've gotten orders through the rapevine to stay.' The prisoners are being interviewed by epresentatives of the International ommittee of the Red Cross. Under terms the Geneva convention no prisoner of ar can be forced to return home.

The South Vietnamese government roposed the release of sick and disabled risoners in a communique last month and e North Vietnamese government agreed t week to accept all patriots who wished return home.

American officials have expressed hope e repatrition might lead to a release of me of the U.S. prisoners held by North

Because of this, some sources said, U.S. ficials here have exerted considerable essure on the South Vietnamese government to carry out the release as originally planned and on schedule.

One U.S. official said, however, it wasn't exactly pressure, but it was pointed out that we could sit around again for a long while waiting for North Vietnam to agree to anything as positive as this.

The government originally offered to repatriate 570 prisoners because that was the number of sick and wounded North Vietnamese held at Phu Quoc Island, the largest POW camp in the South.

But sources said when the government began to ask the prisoners whether they wanted to return they found only a few who answered yes. At Bien Hoa, the second largest POW camp, only about 12 volunteered to return, one source said.

"When that happened the call went out to find any and every prisoner who might fit into the category of 'sick and wounded." The number of eligible was from 570 to

The Red Cross, which handles the interrogation, assembles the prisoners in groups to listen to a tape recording of the North Vietnamese radio broadcast announcing Hanoi's acceptance of the proposal. Then, the prisoners are asked to indicate by hand whether they want to return. Those who refuse are interrogated individually. The planned release, to take place off the coast of the demilitarized zone, would be the sixth and largest of the war by South Vietnam. According to the proposal, the prisoners would be transferred from South Vietnamese ships to North Vietnamese craft during a 24 - hour cease fire in the area of the release.

Murphy dies in crash

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) - The wreckage of a chartered plane carrying Audie Murphy, America's most - decorated World War II hero, was found Monday on a mountaintop near here and state police said six bodies

State Police Lt. Marvin Kent said the bodies were "badly mangled" and a medical examiner would be sent to the scene to try to make identification.

Numbers still visible on a portion of the tail of the twin - engine plane, however, matched those on the aircraft that Murphy, 46, and several other businessmen boarded Friday in Atlanta, state police said.

The wreckage, located on the north side of Brush Mountain about 14 miles northwest of Roanoke, first was spotted from the air, then was reached by rescue workers on foot.

Charles Burnette, pilot of a Virginia State Police helicopter, said the plane burned on impact. Murphy, a baby - faced Texas farm boy who received 24 decorations, for heroism during World War II, was traveling from Atlanta to Martinsville, Va., in connection with a possible investment. The former soldier turned to business several years ago after a movie career that included "To Hell and Back," a film based on his autobiography.

He was accompanied on the flight by several other persons. Early reports indicated there were five persons on the plane. Police did not give any possible identity of the sixth person.

Burnette said it appeared from the wreckage and the fact that impact occurred only 300 feet from the top of the mountain that the plane was trying for a landing approach into Roanoke's Woodrum Airport about 20 miles to the east.

Wreckage of the twin - engined Aero Commander first was spotted in mid afternoon 300 feet below the top of Brush Mountain in Craig County, about 20 miles east of the West Virginia border.

The plane was last heard from when its pilot, Herman Butler, radioed the flight service station at Roanoke's Woodrum Field shortly after 11 a.m., saying he would land there 40 minutes later.

Tuesday, June 1, 1971

A short time earlier, a number of residents near Galax, some 70 miles to the southwest near the North Carolina border, reported hearing a plane in trouble in a rainstorm. A reporter for the Galax Gazette said he saw a twin - engine plane flying at near treetop level "like it was on a yo - yo string."

Burnette said the attitude of the wreckage and the impact just below the summit of the mountain made it appear the plane was trying for a landing approach into Woodrum

The Federal Aviation Administration said the Murphy party had filed no flight plan and it had received no reports on the missing plane until Sunday afternoon.

No air search was possible until skies cleared early Monday.

69 persons detained in Cuba after hijacking

MIAMI (AP) - Sixty - nine persons aboard a Pan American Airways flight hijacked Saturday spent Memorial Day in Cuba behind a wall of Communist silence with no release in sight.

"I've been waiting by the telephone all day," said a Pan Am official. "But we haven't heard a thing."

Meanwhile, Havana Radio - the official voice of Fidel Castro's regime acknowledged the hijacking for the first time Monday. In a Miami - monitored broadcast, Havana Radio said the plane was diverted from its Caracas - to - Miami flight Saturday afternoon by a "Venezuelan youth who claimed political reasons."

The broadcast did not mention the fate of the 60 passengers and nine crew members. On Sunday, however, the State Dept. said it had been in touch with the Swiss Embassy, which represents the United States in Cuba "and they said all

Neither the Federal Aviation Administration nor Pan Am would comment on speculation that Castro would keep the plane and passengers until the United States freed captains of four small Cuban fishing boats held along with their boats at Key West on charges of violating this country's fishing rights by dropping lines within the 12 - mile territorial zone. Four fishing boat crew members, not charged, were released Monday when a Coast Guard cutter delivered them to the parent boats of the Cuban fishing fleet, some 15 miles off Key West in the Florida

The hijacked plane began its trip Saturday in Buenos Aires, Argentina, with 21 passengers. Thirty - nine more boarded in Caracas. The hijacker reportedly grabbed a woman passenger and threatened her with a knife, forcing the pilot to fly to Havana.

Veterans march for peace

Lansing's moderately attended Memorial Day Parade had an additional note of solemnity this year.

Muted silence punctuated by sporadic applause was the gallery reaction to the Veterans for Peace contingent that poignantly marched at the rear of the parade with a banner pleading "Please. . . NO more."

"The nondescript mob," as one World War I veteran referred to them, was primarily made up of long - haired Vietnam veterans in various stages of military dress, but scattered throughout the hundred or so marchers were World War II and Korean War veterans.

Former gubernatorial candidate Zolton Ferency, Ingham County Commissioner James Pocock and numerous professors from MSU joined the Veterans for Peace contingent to demonstrate their concern about the continuing situation in Southeast Asia, and their opposition to it as former servicemen.

Before them moved a flag - draped coffin carried by representatives from the Air Force, Army, Navy, and Coast Guard. Frank May, a Jackson area veteran. followed a flag bearer and played the contingent's sole musical accompaniment - "Taps" - on his coronet.

Then came a banner identifying the group borne by a Vietnam and World War II veteran, the main body, an open coffin and a lone Air Force veteran holding his baby preceding the "Please. . . No More"

Veterans for Peace support could not be identified with any particular age, sex, or race group. Applause was sporadic along the entire parade route, but it grew particularly strong at the reviewing stand where the entire assembly addressed the reviewers with an extended peace sign, rather than the traditional salute. Aside from the applause the crowd response was as much indifferent as negative or positive, and the most frequent comment was something like, "It's a free country, and they have as much right to march as everyone else, but I don't see as they're doing much by it."

At the conclusion of the parade the company marched into Reuben Park for a brief memorial service through heckling it's making me feel inside. A Marine veteran in his late 20s — "If they want to protest, it's okay with me, but they're going about it the wrong way. They are running down the uniform. They have dirty hair and some of them probably went to the PX and got their uniform. They should do things like that guy (John Kerry) who testified in Washington did.

"They are a minority, less than ten per cent of all veterans. wonder how many of them are sincere and how many of them just go along with the crowd because it's the thing . . . I don't even know if their medals and stripes are for real.'

A WW II veteran - "I think they're fine. They are making their stand known. It is important. They have insights that are not available to the average American who hasn't been there.

A VFW member - "If these boys wanted a parade they should have had one of their own. This one is sponsored by the American Legion and the VFW. It should be some other time; this is our parade.'

Another VFW member — "These people are a disgrace to the uniform."

A middle - age woman - "I think it's great, and that's the only reason I came down here. I think this is the only thing that is going to have effect on anyone.

An "Americaa Gold Star Mother" who rode in the parade - "I think it's for the birds. Haven't you ever read the Bible. Wars have been going on for a long time. My son is in the Air Force and he's been there

Sale of violation data criticized by officials

RANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Selling traffic olation reports has become big business for Kentucky Dept. of Public Safety and so has brought some criticism from ficials who claim the practice is an wasion of privacy.

he plan, begun several eyars ago, works way; anyone who pays $1 and submits e proper form can get information on idual drivers' convictions on moving ations. The Division of Driver Licensing ok in $300,000 this way last year.

Officials say the most frequent buyers ecredit rating agencies who represent clients ling to know an individual's worth as a for insurance, credit or employment.

Gerry Carroll of Lexington, a former enager of the Lexington office of Retail redit Co., explained, for example, that ence checks done by credit firms might ep a truck driver or a salesman using a any car from getting a job if he has a driving record.

Roger L. Wilhoite, director of the n, said the program pays more than third of his operating budget for 125 ployes. "If we had to quit it," he said, legislature would have to give us money make up for it."

State Finance Commissioner Albert

Christen said, however, "If somebody comes in and asks for a record he's entitled to, it will be pulled and opened for inspection. But I don't think we ought to sell it or give it away by mail.

"Public safety is not being served by sending out reports to private interests."

Col. W. O. Newman, commissioner of public safety, said he will take a closer look at the administration of the division. He said he was opposed to any overt recognition of public record that would result in "pain or punishment" for the drivers involved. The program is neither prohibited nor authorized specifically by law.

Under Kentucky law, drivers are given from 3 to 12 points for violations and a license may be suspended or revoked on accumulation of 12 points. Points are subtracted on the second anniversary of conviction for the original violation.

S. Viets receive setback

North Vietnamese regulars drove a South Vietnamese task force into retreat Monday from the Cambodian rubber town of Snuol which U.S. troops captured more than a year ago.

The South Vietnamese apparently were badly battered. The retreat came as a severe setback for the Saigon command which earlier in the day claimed a victory in South Vietnam's northern sector near Da Nang.

Washington's behind - the - scenes diplomatic advice has been aimed particularly at heading off any sharp, debateprovoking criticism by Norway and Denmark against Greece and Portugal.

The northern countries of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) don't like Portugal's colonial policy in Africa and what they see as suppression of democracy in Greece.

Western Union strike set

More than 20,000 employes were set to strike Western Union across the country at midnight Monday after rejecting a company offer of a 20 per cent wage increase over two years.

Four per cent of the pay raise offer hinged on government approval of higher tariffs.

The United Telegraph Workers and the

"A Palestinian state, governed by guerrillas, is the final objective of the current campaign of subversion, sabotage and terror the guerrilla leaders have been conducting for the last three days," the statement charged.

GM bus business set

Theodore W. Kheel, New York attorney and well known labor mediator, asked the government Monday to force General Motors out of the bus - manufacturing business - an action he said can be taken under a 1965 consent agreement signed by the company.

Speaking as co - chairman of the National Conference on Public Transportation, Kheel said in a statement GM's dominance of the bus market "must serve to restrain all developments of public transportation by buses." He said this is so because every bus increases the potential for travel without a private automobile and thus may diminish GM's market for such cars.

The recently approved Council of Graduate Students (COGS) budget for July, 1971, through June, 1972, is aimed at improving communication between graduate students and aiding them with various services, Robert Menson, COGS treasurer, said Friday. Some $4,200 of COGS' anticipated $14,000 income for the next year will fund a newly established graduate student loan program, Menson said. The program offers interest - free loans of up to $100 for graduate students for a period of 60 days.

The loan program, which began three weeks ago, has already been used by six individuals with one loan repaid as of Friday, Menson reported. He said $1,500 of the $2,000 allocated for this year's loans remains on balance. The loans are available from the Financial Aids Office of the Administration Building.

Menson said the loan program fills a loan gap for graduate students in that it provides relatively quick money at no interst for whatever need arises - emergency plane fare, rent or whatever. Menson said the only other sources of loans for graduate students are the MSU Credit Union, which only graduate assistants can tap, and the MSU short - term loan program, which charges interest. Some 30 per cent of the annual COGS budget is allocated for the loan program with $1,000 added each term. "The loans are intended to cover all types of graduate student needs and expenditures," Menson said.

The new COGS budget will be its first full year budget. It was approved May 20 by the COGS assembly. COGS started collection of a 50 cent a term graduate student tax this winter

Another major allocation in the 1971-72 COGS budget is $2,200 for secretarial help. Menson said a full time regular secretary was necessary to man the COGS office in the Student Services Building basement.

NEW YORK (AP) - The Aluminum Co. of America (Alcoa) and the United Steelworkers Union (USW) annnounced agreement Monday on a three - year contract that will boost average pay by about 30 per cent, and Alcoa said, force price hikes on some of its products.

Agreements with four other aluminum producers - Reynolds "So that's a first step," Low Metal Co., Kaiser, Ormet and Olin - were expected to be added. "We'll have groups announced later Monday. meeting during the summer to Alcoa, the nation's No. 1 producer, and Reynolds, also were engaged in negotiations with other unions whose expirations were at midnight.

The union called the terms of the Alcoa settlement "unprecedented" and "a substantial victory."

Moving mondo-mobiles: consider traffic safety

The 14 - foot - wide mobile home was born in reaction to growing public demand for bigger and better house trailers. However, delivering the 14 foot - wide mobile home is not permissible in Michigan as state law bars from the roads trailers wider than

A bill has passed both houses of the legislature allowing the 14 - foot wide behemoths to ramble the roadways. Unfortunately, most modern Michigan highway lanes are only 12 feet wide. The bill is now in committee to iron out differences between the House and Senate versions. The Senate barred 14-footwide trailers from the highways on weekends; the House gave them a 24hour - a - day, seven - day - a - week carte blanche.

Neither version makes much sense. Granted, Michigan has a $96 million a - year mobile home industry, providing residents with jobs and housing. Yet allowing oversize trailers to roam the highways during virtually every hour of the day would only increase an already growing highway death toll.

It would be virtually impossible to industry in Michigan.

pass a 14-foot-wide trailer on a twolane highway. People would try anyway. Fourteen - foot - wide trailers would increase driver aggravation and impatience, which would create still more traffic accidents. What would happen should two of these 14-footwide Goliaths ever meet on a 24 - foot - wide two - lane highway remains entirely up to conjecture.

On the other hand Michigan can ill afford to chase away the growing mobile home industry. Mobile homes provide all the advantages of a private residence at considerably cheaper cost. Mobile homes offer a bright alternative to a state facing a housing crisis.

A viable compromise for this mobile home imbroglio would be to allow 14 - foot - wide trailers to be transported only between 1 and 6 a.m. At these early morning hours, traffic is very light. The trailers could be escorted by brightly lighted vehicles, giving motorists on each side of the road ample warning of their approach. This solution would maintain highway safety and, yet, aid the mobile home

The Viet 'skag' tragedy

The tragedies of the Vietnam war will run like open sores upon the American conscience until every last American soldier leaves that devastated land. But a new tragedy is finally gaining public attention, the scars of which will not be left behind when the GIs finally come home. Approximately 30,000 to 40,000 soldiers will return to civilian life as living corpses - slaves to "skag," the final victims of a war the American people had hoped to forget when the shooting stops.

Figures recently released by the provost marshall's office in Saigon indicate that as many as 10 to 15 per cent of the American servicemen in Vietnam are presently using heroin. And the number is probably higher now, since the poll was taken nine months ago.

But whatever the exact figures, the heroin market is deathly alive in Vietnam. Vietnamese servants smuggle smack onto bases in lunchpails, children hawk it on street corners, mama - sans always stock a ready supply, and small - time entrepreneurs peddle it along with cigarets.

Has use escalated recently? Heroin has probably been at epidemic proportions in Vietnam for the past several years, but newly acquired leisure time, due both to a de-escalation in fighting and decreased responsibilities under Vientnamization, has given the combat soldier the dismal prospect of endless days of inactivity - sheer, monotonous boredom. The depressed morale of our forgotten men, none of whom would choose to be the last to die in a purposeless war, makes the situation ripe for any means of escape.

South Vietnamese President Thieu, in response to a personal plea from Ambassador Elsworth Bunker, ordered a crackdown on heroin pushers. But high Vietnamese officials, including police, are party to the crime, turning their backs for a cut of the profit. In April, only three kilograms of heroin were seized by Vietnamese police, less than token enforcement of the law. No one expects much better results, however. If the FBI cannot stop heroin importation in this country, it comes as little surprise that the corruption - ridden Vietnamese police are even more ineffectual.

Meantime, hundreds of new junkies are added to the tolls every week. Action must be taken quickly if we hope to stop this tragedy among the survivors of that war.

First, heroin can be detected by urinalysis, and every returning GI must be tested, beginning immediately. For those discovered to be addicted, expanded care facilities, possibly through Veteran's hospitals, must be made available. But this requires a change in government attitude which currently bars GIs who have run afoul of the law trying to support their habits from admission to veteran's facilities.

Secondly, more supportive services must be provided for the in service addict. Fifteen recently begun "amnesty houses" represent a step in this direction, but the services they provide are woefully inadequate to cope with the magnitude of the problem.

Thirdly, the Army must begin educating its members. "Junkies" who return from the amnesty houses are notoriously ridiculed by the lifers, whose sensitivity to personal problems is generally about as perceptive as Attila the Hun's. Consequently, officers and noncoms play a part in driving the young addict back to his habit.

Lastly, the Army brass must change its tactics. The continual harangues about marijuana, contrary to what every enlisted man knows to be true, has caused the Army's warnings about heroin to fall on deaf ears. Army educators must begin to teach GIs and officers that there is a differencein drugs, that smack cannot be classed with marijuana.

In fine, however, all of these remedies are at best makeshift. The problem will not see ultimate resolution unless and until all American forces are withdrawn from the graveyard that is Vietnam.

Profs refused adequate hearing

By BERTRAM G. MURRAY JR. Asst. Professor of Natural Science

I write the following account for two reasons. First, the MSU community is ignorant of many facts regarding the "Murray - Van Tassell Case." Second, I have accepted a position elsewhere, and I will not have an opportunity to refute my critics.

During the past 15 months Van Tassell and I have attempted to find out what the faculty and the administration consider to be our deficiencies so we might defend ourselves. We wrote to Chairman Hackel, to the department's Faculty Affairs Committee, to the department's Committee on Tenure and Reappointment, to the University Tenure Committee and finally to the faculty of the Natural Science Dept.

What can one person do? Don't

But now we young can vote to you register yet?

young are 25 million strong?

Friends presented our appeal to Dean Carlin and Provost Cantlon. All have refused to hear us. Why?

The MSU Faculty Policy Handbook requires that each department annually inform a nontenured professor of his progress. In our department we are supposed to meet with the chairman or the Advisory Committee. No such meeting was every held. The first indication to me that anyone was dissatisfied with my work was a curt note from the chairman stating that I would not be reappointed.

My department's bylaws state that reappointment will be based on teaching, scholarship, committee participation, student evaluation and service to the institution. The department's Faculty Affairs Committee informed me, however: 'Whether any member of the committee used criteria other than those listed in the bylaws is a matter of conjecture." There is, Following the rules then, no evidence that any of the criteria were considered by the committee that fired

> Both the handbook and department bylaws provide for a meeting between the nontenured faculty member and the evaluating group before it makes its recommendation. A subcommittee of the University Tenure Committee admitted to me that my contention was correct that this provision was to give the nontenured faculty member an opportunity to answer adverse criticism, which to be helpful must occur after the evaluating group's preliminary > > deliberations. Nevertheless, every level to which I appealed, except the board of trustees, upheld the department's opposite contention that a meeting before the committee began its deliberations was satisfactory. Even the full University Tenure Committee ruled that "the bylaw procedures you cited were not violated," thus denying their certain knowledge that the intention of the bylaws was violated. Moreover, this committee ignored the procedures long recommended by the MSU chapter of AAUP and the National AAUP working to improve the situation. We joined a group that was already successfully developing an alternative version (called track B) of the standard course.

THEO

The four persons recommended for reappointment in spring, 1970, used the department's own, faculty written text. The three persons not reappointed on the tenure track taught in track B and did not use the department's text. Student ratings of track B were so favorable in comparison with other tracks that Dr. Nelson, chairman of the nat sci evaluation committee suggested that further evaluations comparing tracks be discontinued: "The (last) evaluation seems to take on an intelligible of the comparing tracks are then an intelligible of the comparing tracks." emotional rather than an intellectual character. Consequently it provides very little objective evidence to serve either as a basis for course improvement or as a measure of the relative effectiveness of the various tracks."

Publish and perish

Of the four persons recommended for reappointment in spring, 1970, two had published nothing, one had last published paper 22 years earlier, and one had published three papers. Of the three not recommended for reappointment, one had published 11 papers; the other two had published five each.

Why did the entire University Establishment refuse to hear us? Perhaps the facts that would have emerged would have been too embarrassing.

In spring, 1968, the students and faculty of University College evaluated the program. The results appear in what is called "The Nosow Report." Exactly half the 48 natural science professors considered their current course "relatively poor" or "poor." The students were less generous.

The nat sci professors said they believed the reward system in University College is based on, in order, (1) committee work, (2) personal relationships, (3) good teaching (4) other, (5) committment to general education, (6) research and writing and (7) good student response. # Students merit vote in E. Lansing

To the Editor:

"Should MSU students be permitted to vote in East Lansing elections? The scene is a Meet the Candidates Night in a local school auditorium during a previous city council election campaign. "No," replied each of the East Lansing City Council candidates, explaining that students should vote in their hometowns where they know more about the issues and the people.

One candidate later expressed the fear that students who are here only a short time could vote to approve a bonded indebtedness that the property owners would be paying for years later.

The 1970-71 edition of MSU's

However, many East Lansing residents leave the community after only four to five years. This is a transient town like any other university community.

It is also foolish to assume that students vote as a block on any issue or candidate. Of all groups, students are the least likely to be organized as voters. They come from a wide range of cultures, backgrounds and living styles.

Yet there is a long history of discouraging students from registering to vote in East Lansing. With the impending constitutional amendment for the 18 - year

'U' health care plan explored

By BARBARA FARY State News Staff Writer

The results of a survey to gauge reaction to a proposed prepaid University health care plan will be available by July 1, members of the All-University Health Center Advisory Board were told Friday.

The board met with Philip Marcus and William Given of the Urban Survey Research Center who said more than 1,200 surveys would be mailed over the Memorial Day weekend to members of the University community chosen at random. "There will be surveys of 750 single students, 200 married students and 280 permanent employes (faculty, administration, clerical-technical and labor)." Marcus said.

Each of the surveys differs slightly in content to focus on the needs of a particular group, he said. All of the mailings were to be accompanied by a cover letter and literature on the proposed health care plan which would provide complete health care for a set subscription fee.

To insure return of the survey forms, Marcus added, all of the subjects would be telephoned. Information obtained through the survey will be completely confidential, he said, because no identifying marks will be made on the forms.

Marcus said a pilot survey of 75 subjects, also chosen at random. had "gone very well." All 75 participants were contacted by telephone and interviewed personally earlier in the term.

The purpose of the pilot survey was to hlep formulate questions for the current survey. Marcus indicated to the board how the revised questionnaires featured closed-end questions drawn from the open-end responses of the pilot survey.

Question 9-A of the single student survey reads, for example: "What did you like most about the medical care you received at the University Health Center?"

The participant is asked to check one of seven responses, which were the most frequently received replies to a similar open-ended question on the pilot survey, Marcus said.

Although the prepaid health care plan has largely been the work of the College of Human Medicine, a consultant advised that the program not be established until the entire University community was surveyed. The All-University Health Center Advsisory Board was chosen to monitor the survey because it is a committee ex-officio members who are administrative personnel.

If reaction to the prepaid health care plan is judged favorable by the board, it will advise President Wharton to recommend its passage to the board of trustees. The plan could be implemented at a pilot level by July, 1972.

Board chairman Louie Bender, East Lansing graduate student, announced Friday that two student members, off-campus representative David E. Jolly, Houston, Texas, senior, and on-campus representative Penelope Zielinski, Detroit junior, had resigned from the board. They will not be replaced this term, he

the Memorial Day Parade.

"As ex - soldiers dedicated to the principles and defense of this nation, we believe American participation in the Vietnam war is contrary to the principles defended by those we honor on Memorial Day," he said.

The American ideals of freedom and justice which have been painfully earned are being flouted in this war of wholesale destruction, Boling said.

"Our consciences and the memories of our fellow soldiers who died for America cry out for an end to this country's part in the war in Vietnam, Let us respect those American ideals we were willing to give our lives for, and so many did," he said.

Afterwards Day led the crowd in a short prayer and 'Taps" was played.

Radio Lansing, however, has repeatedly broadcast the beetles' intention to capture the MSU campus. A new call was issued Monday night by the beetle kind for total student withdrawal from the MSU cmapus before negotiations could begin between the attackers and the University.

"We find the precence of students at MSU most annoying and an unnecessary problem in administering the University," the radio statement read.

'Until the students leave the MSU campus and the regime is then allowed to go about business as usual, the beetles will continue their attack," it concluded.

ASMSU was expected to pass a resolution at its weekly meeting tonight endorsing the construction of a three-mile long, 40-foot high concrete wall at the southern edge of campus to block the beetles. The student board also is expected to point out tonight that its recent antirape resolution forbids Dutch elm disease beetles from violating the health of campus elm trees.

The University was reported Monday to be most concerned with protecting the elm trees located around the Administration Bldg. and Cowles House. It was rumored that MSU might meet the beetles' demand to exile all students, but officials denied comment.
