Sabine resignation, shift to research job expected

By JOHN BORGER Campus Editor

Gordon A. Sabine has unofficially resigned as vice president for special projects.

The official announcement of Sabine's shift in assignment is expected sometime today. Details of the shift were still being worked out late Wednesday.

Sabine first came to the University in 1955 as the dean of the College of Communication Arts; he became vice president in 1960.

The move was apparently made at Sabine's request, but no reasons for his transfer were given.

For the past year, Sabine has been on "half-time" at the University while he worked on a fellowship project for the American College Testing Program (ACT).

Sabine's recent book, "When You Listen, This is What You Can Hear . . ." was one of the products of his year of study.

The fellowship and year of "half-time" officially ended May 31, but Sabine is still making a few trips to ACT headquarters in Iowa City, Iowa, to wrap up loose ends.

There was no indication Wednesday whether the vice presidency for special projects will be continued.

During Sabine's year of absence, the responsibilities of his office have been distributed to other administrators. The functions of the registrar, orientation programs and the office of admissions and scholarships were placed under Registrar Horace C. King, with King reporting to Provost John E. Cantlon.

College staff debates teacher hiring decision

By BEA FRIEDEBERG State News Staff Writer

The recent State Board of Education decision to cut down on issuing permits for hiring uncertified teachers has met with hesitant approval by some members of the College of Education staff.

Some legal problems also are foreseen by Edward Phau, director of the division of teacher education and certification of the Michigan Dept. of Education.

If the June 14 millage proposals in Lansing and East Lansing don't pass, the decision may not have a very large effect here, William Hawley, acting dean of the College of Education, said recently. Voters will decide whether to approve 24 mills for Lansing area schools.

"It offers more opportunities for MSU grads, especially in rural areas, but if the financial situation doesn't change there won't be many teachers anyway," Hawley said.

One effect this might have is that teachers who have been teaching while not fully certified "may be coming to college to attain certification," he added.

On May 26, the State Board of Education announced that it will send letters to local board supervisors informing them of the oversupply of about 15,000 certified teachers who will be unable to find jobs next fall.

John W. Porter, superintendent of public instruction, said this might mean the loss of jobs for the nearly 6,000 teachers without full certification.

The upgrading of hiring is in compliance with a 30-year-old law which hasn't been used "because we have never had the problem of such an oversupply of teachers before," Porter said.

"Many fully certified teachers can't get

Official says countries aid drug traffic

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal narcotics control chief indicated Wednesday the heroin traffic, which he said kills hundreds and costs $3.5 billion annually, is sustained in part by governmental inaction or officials' connivance in several foreign countries.

John Ingersoll, director of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, told congressmen the problem is so widespread that throughout Southeast Asia middle-level government officials and military men are trafficking in opium which is converted into heroin and sold to American soldiers in South Vietnam.

Ingersoll's testimony before the House Select Committee on Crime brought demands from some members for a get-tough attitude on the part of the United States to induce greater cooperation in controlling the international heroin traffic. France came in for particularly sharp criticism.

Mother Waddles decries abortion

By CHARLES C. CAIN State News Staff Writer

The Rev. Mother Charleszetta Waddles, director of Detroit's Perpetual Care Mission, was in Lansing Wednesday to deliver a speech to a crowd on the Capitol steps urging Michigan residents to oppose abortion reform attempts.

"I am happy to be in Lansing today to speak out for those babies, still unborn, who are unable to speak in their own defense," the mother of 10 said.

About 1,700 people attended the rally, according to Michigan State Police estimates.

The crowd, mainly middle-aged women, came to hear speakers and show their dislike of a Senate-passed bill currently awaiting action by a House committee, which would provide for legal medical abortions for any Michigan women during the first 90 days of pregnancy.

"Our purpose here on earth is to serve God and that means to help our brothers and sisters to live better lives," Mrs. Waddles said.

The "human elimination program," fostered by abortion reform, could work to control the population of minority groups, she said.

"You don't have to be a prophet to predict who will be killed in this country to purify the race," she said.

Mrs. Waddles said abortions, regardless of medical preparations made beforehand, are murder.

"It's premeditated killing because the decision to have an abortion is not made on the spur of the moment," Mrs. Waddles said.

Even though abortion is "evil," Mrs. Waddles said, the Michigan legislature is considering writing a bill into law which would allow abortions.

"I pray that our legislature will wake up in time and understand that abortion is not the answer to our population problems," she said.

A New York state senator, James H. Donovan, told the crowd an "ominous dark cloud hangs over our beloved country" because of abortion reform.

The New York lawmaker, who led the unsuccessful fight in New York's Assembly earlier this year to repeal New York's abortion law, read from a prepared statement some of the problems caused by a liberal abortion law.

Donovan said by the year's end, about 200,000 lives will have been terminated in New York as a result of abortions.

"We have terminated more lives in New York State in six months than the United States has lost in 10 years of fighting in Vietnam," the New York legislator said.

Donovan said the abortion clinics, which have flourished since last July when the liberal law took effect, are "dedicated to the proposition that killing the unborn is desirable."

Donovan urged Michigan lawmakers to examine the repercussions of New York's abortion law before passing their own abortion reform measure.

"I would urge the legislature of Michigan to look at the history of what has happened in New York State and withhold legal authorization to kill until such time that it is demonstrated to them beyond a reasonable doubt that human life does not exist from the time of conception," Donovan said.

The topic—abortion

The Rev. Mother Waddles, upper left, director of the Perpetual Care Mission in Detroit, spoke to a crowd of nearly 1,700 people in Lansing Wednesday. The gathering was in opposition to the abortion reform bill now before the legislature.

42 policemen enforce law in campus area

By JIM SHELTON State News Staff Writer

Have you ever wondered exactly what goes on behind the doors of the 42-man law enforcement unit which line Birch Street at Kalamazoo Street?

Those little half-cylinders form the nucleus of the local police agency which is the MSU Dept. of Public Safety as the "mother-in-law" of 17 chiefs of police working in both municipal and university departments across the country. Forty-two sworn officers, operating from the quonset nerve center, enforce law within a nine-square mile area bordered by Hill Road, I-496, Hagadorn Road and the River and Michigan Avenues. Border posts to campus are also part of their jurisdiction under Michigan statutes.

Second in a series

MSU officers are all Ingham County sheriff's deputies and have legal authority throughout the county although they use it only to assist other police departments or to continue an investigation. Basic training and tools they use are the same as full-time deputies.

Among primary duties of an officer, in addition to law enforcement, are providing personal services, transporting the sick and injured, administering first aid and maintaining building security.

Crimes against property — thefts, burglaries, vandalism — and drunk driving and liquor law violations compose major areas of law enforcement. Of course, students and residence halls are the most frequent sources of requests for service.

While exercising these functions, no revolver has ever been fired at anyone, anywhere, by an MSU officer, Richard O. Bernitt, director of the Dept. of Public Safety, said. He has been with the MSU police since 1950.

Except when cleaning guns or using them on the firing range, Bernitt said, officers are required by department policy to file a written report when they draw their guns.

No mace is stocked in the campus station, Bernitt said, although tear gas, "better than a deadly weapon," has been used in crowd control work.

He added the department has no detention cells and uses Ingham County Jail facilities. The State Police Crime Laboratory or the Michigan Health Laboratory supply analytical tools to MSU police, who do have photography and fingerprinting equipment and a classroom.

The MSU patrol fleet consists of two semimarked cars and five marked vehicles, Bernitt said. All officers are armed with .38 caliber revolvers and have access to shotguns, used mainly on roadblocks. No machine guns or blackjacks are available.

With these enforcement tools, officers exercise their written responsibility to preserve the peace, protect life and property, prevent crime, maintain law and order, identify and arrest criminals, provide service or assistance and demonstrate professional public service.

Before a man becomes an MSU officer, he must have earned 85 credits at MSU with a 2.0 or better grade point average, or the equivalent at an acceptable university. Bernitt said that since education is a product of the University, it should be a "foundation of empathy between students and police."

"Trainees" are taught under standards and curricula of the Michigan Law Enforcement Training Council provided through the Mid-Michigan Police Academy.

Beginning officers with 85 credits take home $9,300; with 130 credits, $9,765; with a degree, $10,230. Over four years, an officer can receive raises based on merit to earn a top salary of $12,650.

Bernitt said officers need a "broad education spectrum" for police work. Among the 42 officers, 28 are police administration majors and the others specialize in law, mechanical engineering, political science, history and psychology, among others. One man has a doctorate in law.

First record of an MSU police service goes back to the one-man operation in 1928. About 1940, police employees were

Drug reform bill OK predicted

By JOANNA FIRESTONE
State News Staff Writer

State Rep. J. Bob Traxler, D-Bay City, said Wednesday he is "cautiously optimistic" that the drug reform bill now before the Michigan House will pass within the next week.

Traxler, author of the controversial bill, said the proposal is patterned after the liberalized federal drug abuse act which took effect May 1.

"My objective in introducing this legislation is to create a coordinated and codified system of drug control similar to that now utilized at the federal level," he said.

"It would classify all narcotics, marijuana and dangerous drugs subject to control into five schedules, with each schedule having its own criteria for drug placement."

Traxler said the bill provides channels for the state to add, delete or reschedule substances based upon new scientific findings and the abuse potential of the substances.

"The particular format and content of the legislation differs from the pattern of the federal act by retaining a provision to keep the simple possession of all hard narcotics, such as heroin, as a maximum four-year felony."

he noted. "Under the federal act, this is dealt with as a misdemeanor."

Traxler's bill, if passed, would make simple possession of marijuana punishable as a maximum 90-day misdemeanor, as opposed to the federal misdemeanor maximum of one year imprisonment. The Michigan misdemeanor penalty for simple possession of marijuana is the same as that provided in the governor's message to the legislature on alcohol and drug abuse of March 4, 1971.

"Another objective of the bill is to establish a closed regulatory system for the legitimate handlers of controlled drugs in order to curtail illicit drug diversion," he added.

"The system would require that legitimate handlers register with a designated state agency, maintain records and make biennial inventories of all controlled drug stocks."

The Traxler proposal also prescribes specific fines and sentences, provides law enforcement agencies with new tools to improve their investigative efforts and provides for interim education and training programs in the area of drug abuse.

"Many law enforcement people don't support the bill because they don't understand it," he said. "They think it is new and will curtail their powers, when actually this is not at all true. Use, possession and sale of drugs and still crimes and police powers of arrest are still the same."

"The bill would merely update and improve present state laws," he added. "It would insure legislative and administrative flexibility which would enable the state to cope with both present and future drug problems, recognizing that law enforcement alone cannot solve our drug abuse problem."

Traxler said the federal government is encouraging the states to adopt a uniform drug control act which could be coordinated with federal drug abuse laws.

"Some 30 other states are now considering this uniform act," he said. "At last count, 12 states have enacted it and one state, Virginia, has passed a modified version of it. I feel it is essential that Michigan join the uniform approach to one of the major threats facing society today."

Traxler said he sees no conflict between the proposed Michigan law and current federal standards.

STATES MODIFY PENALTIES

'Pot' laws leniency noted

By The Associated Press

Marijuana users are less likely to wind up in jail in 1971 as increasing numbers of states legislate more lenient laws.

A survey the Associated Press shows that many states are following the recent federal law that reduced possession of marijuana for personal use from a felony to a misdemeanor.

This will permit judges to keep first offenders out of prison.

The action by the states this year continues a trend of the past four years toward milder laws for simple possession. States that reduced penalties in 1971 include Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Indiana, Minnesota, Nebraska, Utah, Washington and West Virginia.

The survey indicates, however, that states are holding firm, or in some cases stiffening, the penalties for marijuana dealers.

A few states continue to hold the line against relaxing tough criminal statutes in marijuana cases. All states have balked at implementing the recommendation of a national commission to legalize the drug.

There is a noticeable trend to separate marijuana offenses from the existing body of narcotics laws. In Washington State, pot has been designated a "dangerous drug" rather than a narcotic.

Nebraska has some of the mildest laws. A judge there might impose a penalty as light as a $1 fine for possessing less than one pound of marijuana.

In Nevada first offenders may be charged only with gross misdemeanor, and may be penalized by losing their driver license for a year.

In contrast, states such as Texas still have tough laws. The penalty for possession in Texas is two years to life on the first offense, and 10 years to life on the second. A couple of proposals to lower the Texas penalties were got out of committee this year.

Michigan adheres to stringent laws that impose penalties up to 10 years for possession and 20 years for sale. But, as it has in so many other states, the trend toward leniency is catching up on the Michigan Legislature and liberalizing marijuana provisions are being given a strong chance for passage this year.

Massachusetts Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn has proposed legislation making marijuana possession a misdemeanor and repealing laws that make it a felony to be found in the presence of marijuana.

Reducing a first offense from felony to a misdemeanor allows a judge to place a defendant on probation, and, if the conditions are fulfilled, the case can be dismissed with no conviction record.

Reps pass bill for special ed in all schools

The state House Representatives approved Wednesday requiring all Michigan school districts to provide special education programs and instruction.

The bill, approved by an 80-vote margin, calls for the State Board of Education to develop, establish and continually evaluate a plan for special education designed "to develop the maximum potential of each handicapped person in the state."

Programs will include special classes for blind, deaf, mentally retarded and emotionally disturbed children.

Under the plan approved Wednesday, school districts will be required to submit plans for their individual programs. Districts are also authorized to hire all necessary personnel and equipment.

Districts refusing to comply with the new state law will forfeit 15 per cent of the operating cost which is to be applied towards the capital costs of subject program or service.

Hussein orders crackdown

King Hussein ordered a "final crackdown" by Jordan's government Wednesday against Palestinian guerrilla leaders he claims are plotting to establish a breakaway Palestinian state.

The king ordered his prime minister to take "bold, decisive and tough action against the handful of professional criminals and conspirators who use the commando movement to disguise their treasonable plots."

"I want no hesitation, tolerance or compromise in handling them," Hussein told Prime Minister Wasfi Tell.

Air war intensifies

U.S. air blows rained down Wednesday on three enemy divisions in eastern Cambodia, including a division headquarters on the Chup rubber plantation 30 miles inside the country, informed sources in Saigon reported.

The aim of the vigorous air campaign, spearheaded by B52 Stratofortresses, was to smash enemy concentrations and to prevent the movement of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops south.

It was from the Chup plantation, 55 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, that elements of the Viet Cong's 9th Division moved south and attacked Cambodian troops only 18 miles east of Cambodia's capital Tuesday.

Probe lists 55 cases

The Army, which has charged a general with murder and assault of Vietnamese civilians, said Wednesday it still has under investigation 55 other cases of alleged atrocities involving American soldiers.

These are among a total of 168 separate incidents of alleged war crimes investigated by the Army's Criminal Investigation Division since the beginning of the big American buildup in Vietnam in 1965.

They are in addition to the 1968 My Lai massacre for which Lt. William L. Calley Jr. was convicted March 31 of murdering 22 Vietnamese civilians.

Innocent plea entered

JUAN CORONA

Juan V. Corona, standing quietly beside a public defender and an interpreter, pleaded innocent Wednesday to 10 counts of murder in connection with mass slayings of itinerant workers in Yuba City, Calif.

In a closed-door hearing in Justice Court, public defender Roy Van den Heuvel entered the plea for Corona, who speaks English haltingly.

Corona, 37, will return to Justice Court on June 16 for a preliminary hearing at which Judge J. J. Hankins is to decide whether the farm labor contractor should be held for superior court trial.

Rail property for sale

The Penn Central Transportation Co., hard-pressed for cash and still losing millions in running America's biggest railroad, announced in Philadelphia Wednesday it will sell 10 blocks in downtown Manhattan, among the most valuable real estate in the nation.

The property includes the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, and 22 other buildings erected in this century and ranging from 16 to 59 stories high.

There is no estimated value but some believe the property could bring in $1 billion.

Hijacked plane returns

A jetliner hijacked to Cuba by a man apparently armed only with a small, sharp instrument arrived in the United States on Wednesday, its 67 passengers unable to say why they were detained in Cuba for four days.

Havana Radio reported the hijacker, identified as Ivan Garcia Landaeta, a 22-year-old political refugee from Venezuela, used a fingernail clipper as his weapon.

Arnold Serrata, a purser aboard the Pan American Airways jet, said it "looked like a small, sharp pen knife to me."

N. Viets hit POW survey

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam asserted Wednesday that South Vietnam's offer to free sick and wounded North Vietnamese prisoners was a sham and denied statements in Saigon that only 13 wanted to go home.

Red Cross interviewed 570 sick and wounded prisoners and confirmed that only 13 were willing to return to the North. South Vietnam then located 90 other sick and wounded and said they also refused to go home.

U.S. officials here said the interrogation of the prisoners was done exclusively by the Red Cross and that "we will let the acts speak for themselves."

Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam of South Vietnam said in Saigon that most of the prisoners refusing repatriation feared reprisals from the Communist regime in Hanoi.

Nguyen Thanh Le, the North Vietnamese spokesman in Paris, said South Vietnam and the United States pretended that only 13 wanted to go home, adding this was "a vile and cynical maneuver" that "has amazed public opinion and the press."

Referring to Washington and Saigon, Le declared: "It should be pointed out that they have never been sincere in freeing captive patriots. The United States and the Thieu - Ky - Khien puppet administration must set free all Vietnamese civilians and patriots they have illegally put in jails, savagely tortured and ill-treated," he said.

U.S. officials had hoped that if the return of the 660 prisoners had gone on, it might lead to some softening of the North Vietnamese position on U.S. prisoners. Hanoi has repeatedly said it will not discuss U.S. prisoner releases until the United States announces a withdrawal date for its forces.

Lam said South Vietnam offered on April 29 to return the 570 sick and wounded prisoners at the Big Phu Quoc Island POW camp. When only 13 agreed to go, he continued, officials searched all POW camps and found 90 more sick and wounded but they also refused to return home.

COGS to debate proposed ice rink

The Council of Graduate Students (COGS) is scheduled to discuss the proposed construction of a new ice arena at its meeting at 3 p.m. today in 107 Erickson Hall.

William Greene, COGS president, said the graduate student group has been requested by the board of trustees to provide feedback on the ice arena. Greene said he would introduce a proposal supporting the proposed construction, which will probably spark some debate.

A resolution that seasonal golf course passes be sold to students as well as faculty members will be voted on today by COGS. Mary Lu Larsen, Physics Dept. representative to COGS, said the season passes would increase student use of the University golf course and should increase course revenues.

The proposed seasonal rates for students that have been suggested to the Athletic Council are $15 for spring term, $25 for summer term, $10 for fall term and $40 for the entire season.

COGS will also discuss a request that they ask the University to only purchase and serve union lettuce. Greene said COGS must decide if such a resolution would be political, as its constitution prohibits it from taking stands on political issues.

The graduate student group is required to have one meeting during summer term and will resume its biweekly meetings fall term, Greene said.

Bloc vote seen as threat

By CINDI STEINWAY

Registration of prospective voters into a cohesive bloc poses a potential threat to the present political situation in East Lansing, Mayor L. Thomas said recently. The registered voters in East Lansing now number 14,000, about 1,000 students, said Thomas, who is also asst. dean of the College of Communication Arts. Thomas said, "It is not how you label students that is important; it is their level of community interest and concern that counts."

The East Lansing area, Thomas said, feels more apprehension than fear of the increasing student vote.

"It is more a 'wait and see' attitude," he said.

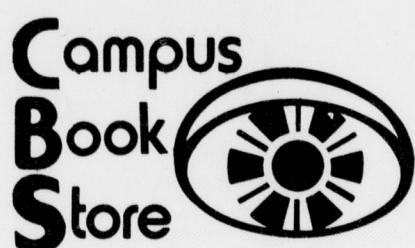

Thomas encourages student representation on the council. Anyone who is a resident and registered voter of the city for two years and is over 21 years old is eligible to run for a

"The individual who has studied the pros and cons, who is an intelligent, logical thinker and who will vote for the betterment of the community would be an eligible council member," Thomas said.

Student vote power:
get an absentee ballot

Power comes to those who exercise it. And in this nation the power of the ballot box is paramount.

Access is not automatic, though. You must register, and you must vote for your will to be carried out.

But what is one vote out of thousands? In many cases this may prove an interesting philosophical point, but in the City of East Lansing there are special circumstances.

Students comprise more than one-half the total East Lansing population. When the 18-year-old vote is implemented on a universal scale, the weight of the student vote will be profound. Your one vote combined with the votes of thousands of your fellow students can be critical in determining your future and the future of this city.

Clearly, the city fathers fear the student vote. City Hall has been markedly uncooperative in helping its younger citizens to register. And it is no accident that the city council primaries are held in the summer when the vast bulk of the student body is absent.

This year, city council elections may prove to be more critical than usual. In the face of the age of majority bill, it is rumored that the present political Brahmins are toying with the idea of instituting a ward system in East Lansing. This means one ward for the campus and, hence, probably a maximum of only one student seat. In political science parlance this is called gerrymandering.

The only way to head this off is to secure the election of sympathetic candidates to the council now. Thus the primary is all-important. Under East Lansing's nonpartisan election plan only the top six vote-getters in the primary will be allowed to vie for seats in the regular election. Unless there is a large student vote in the summer primary, it is unlikely that these six candidates will represent campus interests.

The solution is to vote by absentee ballot. On today's page 5 the State News has reproduced the East Lansing Application for Absent Voters Ballot. If you are a registered voter in East Lansing, you have simply to clip out the application, consult the accompanying precinct map to determine your precinct, fill out the application and mail or take it to the East Lansing City Clerk, City Hall, 410 Abbott Rd., East Lansing. An absentee ballot will be mailed to you for the Aug. 3 primary. If you are not a registered voter, but qualify as one, we urge you to go to City Hall, become registered and apply for an absentee ballot there.

Remember, your future is in your hands. If you do not exercise your legal right to vote, you will have no one but yourself to blame.

A new way to handle the drug use dilemma

What can states do to alleviate mounting drug addiction? Many have tried stricter laws and superficial programs aimed at converting an addict into a "normal" individual. Neither has worked on a large scale. But in Brooklyn a new drug rehabilitation program promises to provide an effective solution.

Former drug addicts are working hand-in-hand with the Brooklyn Criminal Courts, interviewing suspects who have been arrested on narcotics charges.

After conferring with the suspect, the drug program representative (the former addict) advises the presiding judge in the case. If the suspect is willing to enter a rehabilitation program the adviser recommends methadone treatment which blocks the craving for heroin, isolation in such therapeutic communities as Daytop Village or day care.

The intent of the program is to break the cycle of a man stealing to support his habit, getting caught, being sentenced, entering prison, coming out and starting all over again.

The judges in Brooklyn's criminal courts are enthusiastic about the program. The former addicts are familiar with the drug scene and can supply them with the needed "inside" counseling and suggestions that normally cannot be made. Moreover, the judges feel that the program is a viable working alternative to a prison detention that normally strengthens rather than dissipates drug habits.

However, the program is not without its problems. State funding is low, and, as a result, the program's counselors will probably be dropped. Nor are all addicts right for the type of rehabilitation as former addict representatives have pointed out.

The Brooklyn program provides a fresh approach, however, to a much neglected problem and as such should be encouraged. Still in the early stages, no one can tell as yet how successful the program will be. But if the program is as effective as early results indicate, New York will have progressed a step further in eliminating a haunting social dilemma.

With it

In announcing his offensive against drug abuse, President Nixon stated that he could "see no social or moral justification whatsoever for legalizing marijuana," since it would only start more people "down that long dismal road" to hard drugs. It is refreshing to find a Chief Executive so in tune with the times. No doubt, we can expect Mr. Nixon's future moves to include a new isolationism to avoid confrontation with Nazi Germany and a drive to reform the economy by going off the gold standard.

"However, some forms of creeping socialism are acceptable..."

Iran: dubious academic policy

By JOHN MASTERSON
Associate Professor of Mathematics

The level of acceptable intellectual corruption at MSU is very high. Our supposed foundations of humanism and land-grant service to people appear to be a hoax if we examine the effects that our programs and policies are having on people.

We have had the Vietnam Project, a unique educational experiment that provided a corrupt puppet government with the advice and weapons that should have been given to the people if anyone at all.

A faculty committee, the administration and the board of trustees just recently gave G.M. the go-ahead to continue supporting the grossest kind of racism in South Africa as long as this University's assets would not be disturbed.

This University continues foreign programs in Thailand and begins new ones in Iran, despite the fact that both of these operate against the best interests of the majority of the peoples.

MSU apparently has just signed a contract, or is in the process of doing so, with the University of Aryamehr in Iran. As with the other foreign programs, the faculty and students have been given none of the implications of what such a program means and whether or not such a connection is in keeping with our own best traditions. It turns out that it is in keeping with the standards set by our own Center for International Programs, for we are once again following the CIA into a country where we are not wanted, and where we have nothing to offer but the stabilization of old colonialism and new economic imperialism.

In the case of Iran, the present government was created by a CIA organized coup in 1953, at a time when western oil interests were threatened by desire of the Iranian government to decide who controls Iran's resources. More complete details can be obtained from the June 24, 1961 copy of The Nation and the book Iran, the New Imperialism in Action by Bahman Nirumand. A few highlights follow.

In late April, 1951, Homanned Mossadegh was appointed Premier of Iran and with the support of the Iranian people (95 per cent according to Henry F. Grady, the American ambassador at the time) he nationalized the oil industry. After two years time, during which the international oil cartel successfully crippled the Iranian economy, a bizarre coup removed Mossadegh from power and ended the nationalization. The coup involved: a secret meeting of American Ambassador Henderson, the Shah's twin sister Ashraf

OUR READERS' MIND

Greek stereotyping not fair
'we're different individuals'

To the Editor:

According to a set of pseudo-intellectual ideas expounded in this newspaper over recent months, I am a member of one of the most despised minority groups on campus. I am a self-centered, uninvolved, status-conscious, drunken "teeny-bopper-like" dolt who does nothing all day but sit in his room and count his Swiss bank accounts.

I am a "Greek!" I've lost my identity and my only hope of survival is to race to the nearest dorm and try to make amends for all my sins. And of course all my fraternity brothers are exactly like me and we get our kicks by picking fights with other "frats-rats" who look exactly like us. We're not the least bit like "residence hall residents" who all love each other and share a mutual hatred of all "Greeks."

Hopefully, by now this analysis sounds a little shaky to some of you more liberal-minded readers who may recall, "The only good Indian is a dead Indian," or "All blacks are dumb monkeys who should be sent back to Africa," or "All hippies are heroin addicts," or how about, "All farmers are turkeys." Why should any open-minded student accept a stereotype for any group? What possible rationale could justify such blatant generalities as, "All Greeks are this" or "All Greeks are that?"

Greeks are people! Almost every one of us used to live in a dorm or lives in one now (surprise!) We got here just like anybody else and without a Greek-letter jacket or shirt I dare you to single us out of a crowd that comes over my ears, I normally wear worn-out blue jeans and a T-shirt and I attend MSU through the grace of a substantial financial-need scholarship.

The guy across the hall is 6 feet 3, 22 pounds, directs traffic for the campus police, used to play varsity sports in Jackson and doesn't have a hair on his head longer than 2 1/2 inches. The guy at the end of the hall is 6 feet 5 and weighs 160 pounds, has a full beard and participates in a number of MSU music organizations; his roommate is a 5 foot 7 guy who hates beer, but has been known to enjoy a vanilla malt or two. Another of my brothers is involved with the local Big Brother program. Another brother well below his shoulders; still another frequently wears an overcoat that he picks up at the Salvation Army for one dollar, etc.

All rich snobs? Hardly. Identical conformists? Hardly. We're all students and we all derive certain social, fraternal, personal and educational benefits from our membership in a fraternity, but other than that, we're all different individuals.

Call it paranoia if you like, but I, for one, am fed up with asinine, unfounded generalizations and irrational stereotypes of the "Greek system!"

Finals rule

To the Editor:

A remark I made in the course of an Academic Council debate on finals week was quoted correctly but misleadingly in the State News. The context which governed the meaning of my comment consisted of the following rationale: A great many students need and want the additional time afforded by the eleventh week of the term ("the week") to prepare for standard final exams or to complete take-home exams, or produce whatever other evidence of achievement the instructor has specified as a major criterion of their performance in the course.

No student should be deprived of a premature tenth-week "due date" of study time he is entitled to under our 11-week quarter system. The new policy adopted by the council does two things: it acknowledges that the standard final examination is one of several legitimate means of assessing student performance; it also protects the student's right to "study time" regardless of the particularity of evaluation his instructor has chosen.

Transition: no end in sight?

We are not truly abandoning anything for the past, being gone, no longer exists. Indeed, the past of the popular mind is primarily a fiction. We became an exclusive world power but a few scant years ago, and then only by default.

may not arrive before the turn of the 21st century. We are moving in that direction ever so slowly since that is the nature of social change; but our finite minds see only the here and now, and it is unsettling.

The old perhaps are most unsettled. Their values are rooted in an America mostly rural, depressed, backward. Such a nation exists no longer. Industrial, urban, affluent we are moving forward with the clock to take our new place in a new world.

To the middle-aged, nurtured in the political honeymoon of the Eisenhower era, the renewed pace of this nation is frightening. We could afford to remain in the political womb in the 50s for we were in that brief, bright period undisputed masters of the international community, but it would have been impossible to maintain that stage, to stem the times of world progress, short of armed conquest — an act which could have participated Armageddon.

In the 50s material gain was held as an end unto itself, probably because the opportunity had never presented itself before to so many people. But the question of affluence has been met and is being won and, hence, is no longer an end unto itself.

And the young, equally lacking in a decades-long perspective, are impatient for the chance they somehow sense should be coming. And it is, the signposts are all around. It is no longer considered radical to express a concern for minorities, or the environment or the war. Indeed, the question no longer is how to win the war, but how to best get out. Abortion, formally anathema, is now on its way towards becoming a fact of life. The antiquated morals of the rural extended family are giving way to the freer, looser paradigm required by a rapid transit, urban civilization.

Change is, in fine, probably the only given fact of existence. If we cannot see the end, then perhaps there is no end in the absolute sense. That there is transition with its accompanying turmoil still vital and alive — still responsive to the needs always unprecedented new times.

We can only use the past as a guide to new directions, not as an anchor to the tides of change. And we must welcome the future with all its surprises for, as has been often said before, that is where we are spending the rest of our lives.

Implementation of the Action of the Academic Council to Delete the Three Credit Physical Education Requirement for a Bachelor's Degree.

On May 4, 1971, the Academic Council approved a recommendation from the Educational Policies Committee that the three credit physical education requirement be deleted from the requirements for a bachelor's degree. This action deletes item 6 of Graduation Requirements for a Bachelor's Degree on page 12 of the 1970 University Catalog and modifies item 8. to read "Complete a minimum of 180 credits with at least a 2.00 grade point average."

The Assistant Deans Group was asked to establish procedures to implement the action to eliminate the three credit physical education requirement.

Procedures:

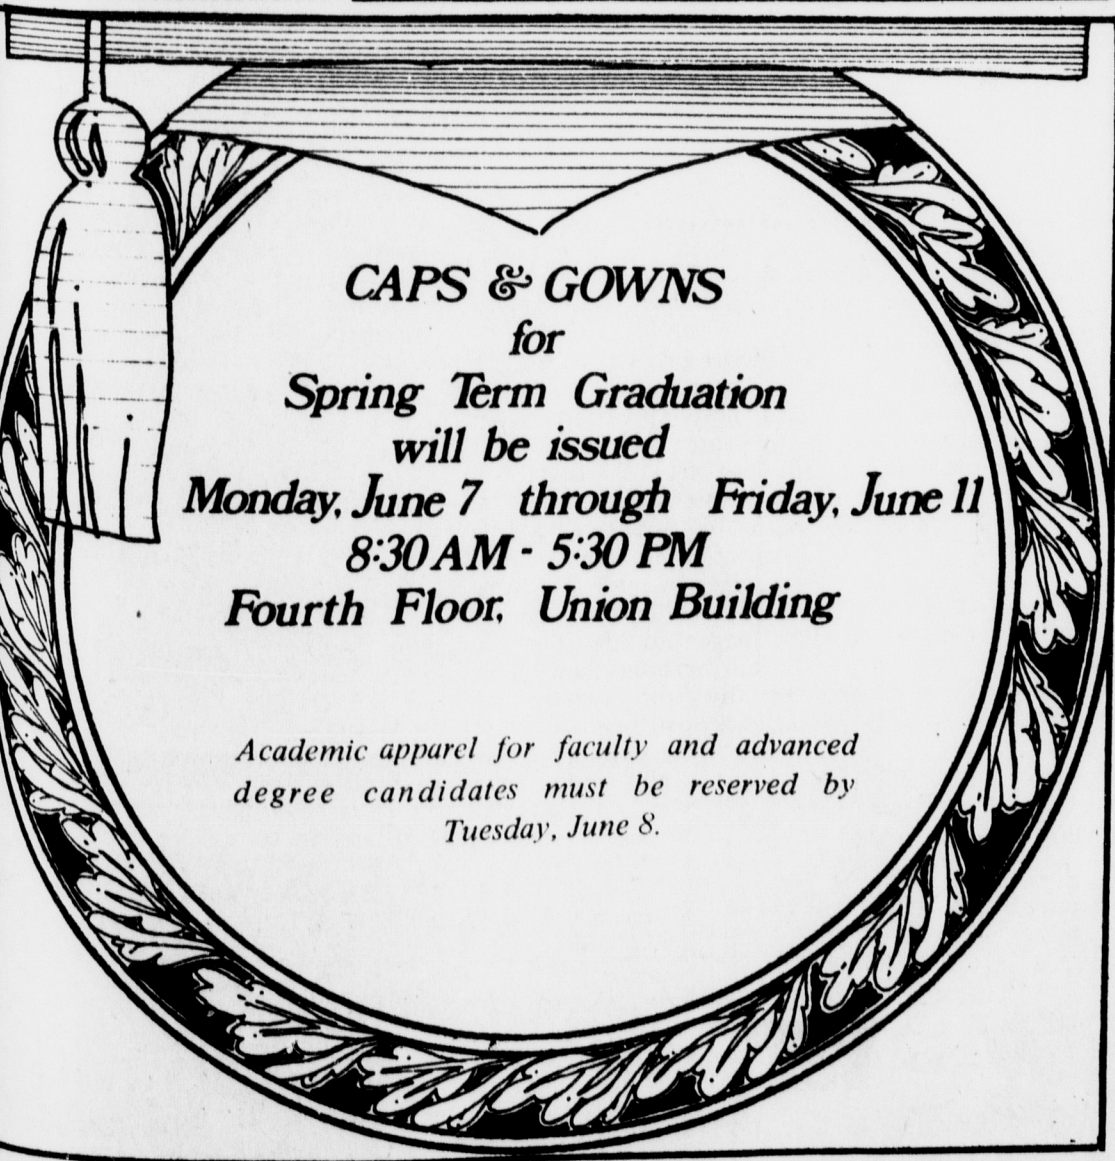

1. The effective date is the beginning of summer term 1971. However, in spring term 1971 any senior meeting all the requirements for graduation other than the physical education requirement will be permitted to petition the Assistant Dean of his college for a waiver of the requirement.

2. "Instructional (activity)" courses taken as electives in the Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation have been and will continue to be counted as part of the 180 credits required for graduation. However, any student who has completed before summer term 1971 one or more HPR "instructional" courses to meet the University's physical education requirement, may petition the Assistant dean of his college to exclude the credits, grades, and grade points in these courses from the credit requirements for graduation and from the computation of the final grade point average.

CAPS & GOWNS for Spring Term Graduation will be issued Monday, June 7 through Friday, June 11 8:30 AM - 5:30 PM Fourth Floor, Union Building

Academic apparel for faculty and advanced degree candidates must be reserved by Tuesday, June 8.

Mayo Druid makes 'magnificent' magic

By CRAIG LONG

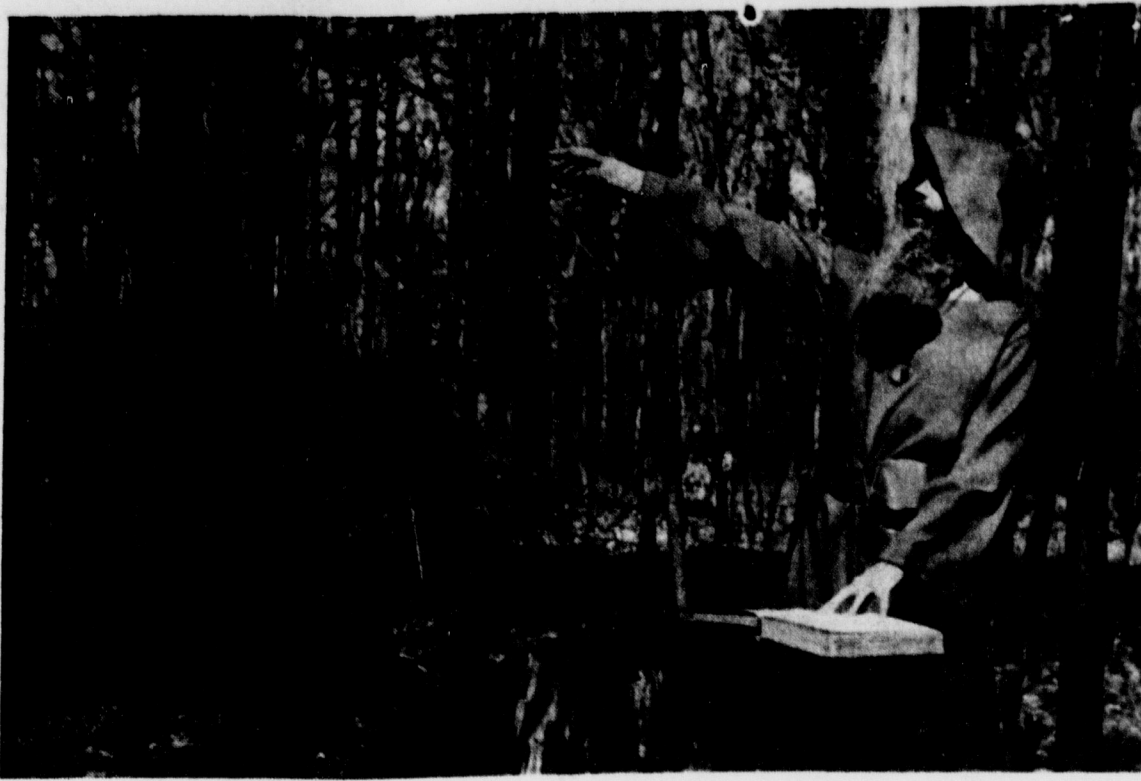

A 720-year-old Druid named Mentor the Magnificent is living in Mary Mayo Hall. Mentor's real name is Larry M. Phillips. Phillips, Dearborn Heights sophomore, chose "Mentor" as his stage name when he joined the Lansing Magicians guild six months ago. Phillips has been practicing magic since he was 12 years old, specializing in close-up, sleight-of-hand tricks. These involve manipulation of cards, coins and small objects. Phillips can transform a deck of cards into one card, like the ace of hearts. "All the cards have three sides," he explained. He can make a card jump out of a deck. But Phillips confessed that he's got "hours of card tricks that don't work."

Objects lose their solidity once Phillips begins to handle them. He can take the "essence" of a quarter out of a person's ear, put it on the bottom of an overturned glass and push it through. The quarter materializes once through the glass.

Phillips can put on a set of hand cuffs that look like a dog's choke chain and as he lifts his hands and drops them, the chains come off within seconds.

Phillips said he enjoys the close-up magic, but his ambition is to get up a full act of stage magic. He described one trick in which he turns dirt into gold and then gives it to someone. If the person does not believe it is gold, it will turn to salt.

Phillips claims that "Mentor" is only a stage identity, but at other times he says, "I'm not Mentor at the moment, but on the inside I am."

It's magic!

Magic is an art that demands skill and a great deal of practice. MSU has its own magician - in residence: the "Magnificent Mentor."

WMSB-TV offers internship plan

By LIN MRACHEK

"Students going through MSU's television and radio dept. are being short changed," a production manager at WMSB-TV said recently.

Richard P. Brundle said there are many students graduating with degrees in television and radio who have ability, but who are only partly trained and cannot get a job.

"They go into some other industry, and we lose them," he said.

Because of this situation, Brundle created a year-long internship program last fall in television production that is offered to seven students each term.

Although the internships are voluntary and offer no academic credit, students get valuable experience, he said. Through on-the-job training they learn about floor managing, lighting, construction, graphics, camera operation, scenery, switching and engineering.

MSU's lab classes are overcrowded, and time is limited, he said, but WMSB-TV can provide individualized training.

"If we can get people involved in the 'nitty gritty' of production, then when they finish the program they can get into 'Gamut,' producing and directing their own shows," Brundle said.

"Gamut," a student production organization, was created by Brundle in 1966 to bridge the gap between textbook theory and professional experience in television production.

"If we are concerned about making television more than what it is, attempting to utilize its many opportunities for all kinds of communications, then," he said, "we've got to train people differently. We've got to get students involved."

Brundle, who received his bachelor's and master of arts degrees from MSU, said the educational station has an obligation to work with the television and radio dept.

'U' volunteers seek discards

The Office of Volunteer Programs is asking students to think of other people before discarding room or apartment "odds and ends."

"We're collecting the types of things that students might throw away rather than take back home," Jo Ellen Loehr, East Lansing graduate student, said. The collected items will be used in recreational programs sponsored by the MSU volunteers or community agencies.

"We'd like to get sports equipment, old art supplies, types of paper, old toys and stuffed animals, furniture, pots and pans, cooking utensils and dishes," Miss Loehr said. She said no clothing can be accepted. Collection stations have been set up in all residence halls, she said. The Volunteer Action Corps will collect all the donations June 12.

"We'd really like a good response," Miss Loehr said. "The collection boxes should be in the lobbies, but if you can't find one, ask the receptionist. And if you have a large object to donate, call the Volunteer Bureau. If we can't pick it up, we'll try to find someone who will."

THROUGH LEGISLATION

Rights for handicapped sought

By SUSAN BENNETT

At one time MSU would not allow blind students in education to student teach. A few years ago the School of Social Work would not admit a girl in a wheelchair.

Qualified blind and disabled persons are often refused jobs because of their handicaps. The handicapped are frequently refused public accommodations and the use of public services. Landlords often refuse to rent apartments to blind people. The blind and handicapped sometimes have difficulty buying items across the counter or being served in a restaurant or bar.

No legal recourse has been available to disabled people in Michigan to challenge these discriminations but legislation now is pending in the House of Representatives to establish civil rights for blind and handicapped persons. It consists of an amendment to the Michigan Fair Employment Practices Act and a bill to prohibit discrimination in the use of public accommodations and to establish means of recourse to the State Civil Rights Commission or the courts.

The amendment would consider job discrimination because of blindness or any disability an unfair labor practice. The applicant could be denied the job only if he showed he could not do the work. It also enumerates discriminations by labor unions and employment agencies.

The legislation, proposed by the National Federation of the Blind of Michigan, has been proposed every year by the federation since 1967. In last year's legislative session the federation succeeded in getting the amendment through the House, but it died in the Senate.

Greer Wilcox, president of the federation, said the organization is having trouble enlisting support for the legislation. It has not gained backing from the Office of Services for the Blind, the Governor's Commission for the Handicapped or the State Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.

He said many people felt the legislation would do more harm than good by causing ill feeling between employers and employees who force their way into jobs because they were formerly discriminated against.

Some legislators do not want the Civil Rights Commission to expand its powers, Wilcox said. He said he has strong suspicions that lobbies for employers oppose the legislation.

Wilcox said the Civil Rights

Commission informed him they "could support us in principal, but that they would not support us unless we have the funds."

In the past the commission has estimated 30 additional staff members would be needed to carry out the legislation's program. Wilcox said he thinks considerably fewer personnel would be necessary.

He said he could appreciate the reasons of the opponents but if the legislation was passed, technical problems could be worked out.

"It would improve the human quality of our society and would bring economic, social and political benefits," he said.

Wilcox, 29, first became involved in working for the rights of the blind in 1968 when he attended a convention of the National Federation of the Blind.

"Right now there's no way a disabled person can insist on his rights legally," Wilcox said. "We're thrown back on the goodness of the people around us. We want some legal definitions of our rights and some means of recourse when they're violated."

Similar legislation has been passed in 13 states.

Ping-pong captain explains trip

By NAT ABBATE
State News Staff Writer

Graham D. Steenhoven, captain of the American table tennis team which visited Communist China in April, told students Tuesday the "top drawer" treatment he and his team received there.

Speaking to an interdisciplinary class, IDC 389, in the Engineering Building, Steenhoven told of being greeted in Peking by throngs of smiling, applauding Chinese table tennis enthusiasts.

All expenses were paid by the Chinese, he said. The only criticism he could offer to Premier Chou En-lai, when asked, was that his hosts were giving him "too much food."

Steenhoven, an employment supervisor in a Detroit stamping plant, narrated a film of the team's trip produced by the Chinese and presented exclusively to Steenhoven when his hosts heard him remark that he had forgotten to bring a camera, he said.

The film, in black and white, shows the American team during its tour and seems to focus on the goodwill and friendliness exerted by both the Chinese and the Americans.

The high points of the whole experience, were meeting Chou while in China and then meeting President Nixon when he returned to the United States, Steenhoven said.

"Meeting Nixon and Chou En-lai in one month has got to be a high spot in my life," he said. "There's only one man higher than that, but I don't want to meet Him yet."

Steenhoven said he was very impressed with Chou whom he felt could understand English even though he spoke through an interpreter. He said that at one point in the conversation, the Chinese leader laughed at one of Steenhoven's jokes before it was interpreted. His visit with the President was very informal, he said. He and Nixon sat and talked for about an hour on such topics as the price of table tennis balls.

Steenhoven said that although all he and Nixon talked about were trivial matters, the press was sure that he had brought "some deep dark secrets back from China."

Nixon had been particularly interested to learn of the Chinese penchant for giving and receiving gifts, he said. "He made sure to remember it when I told him that if they receive something from you, they tend to give it back in one way or another," he said.

Steenhoven summed up the tour as a success and expressed hope that the Chinese team would accept his invitation to play in the United States soon.

Swiss university nullifies lectures, exams, grades

By JONATHAN KAUFMAN

A new university, opening in Switzerland on June 29, will abolish classrooms, lectures, competitive exams and grades in its programs aimed "at action of future world relevance," the catalog states.

Each student will have his own personal study program. Students admitted to the university will have to pay a $1,500 comprehensive fee for each three months they will attend. This fee is nonrefundable, but students withdrawing from the university may apply the unused portion of it against their next three months' comprehensive fee, should they return within a year. A person may join or leave the university in any month of the year.

The University of the New World, in Valais, Switzerland, founded by Alfred de Grazia, a professor at New York University, will have a teaching faculty of leading intellectual and civic leaders from several countries, its catalog says.

Members of the studios elect their faculty for two-year periods, whenever a position is open. Such elections must be approved by the assembly of the university, which is also elected by the members. There is no tenure in the university.

Most of the school's "members" (students and faculty) will initially be from the United States. Students in the university will be grouped into workshops called "studios," classified under one of five major orientations toward growing, making, creating and governing. Each student will have his own personal study program. Students admitted to the university will have to pay a $1,500 comprehensive fee for each three months they will attend. This fee is nonrefundable, but students withdrawing from the university may apply the unused portion of it against their next three months' comprehensive fee, should they return within a year. A person may join or leave the university in any month of the year.

certificates. Students wanting further information should contact Donald Ward, East Lansing doctoral student in higher education.

Initial enrollment will be set at 325, and is expected to rise to 1,500 in four months. Eventually, the university expects to open branches in other countries.

An independent commission on evaluation and accreditation evaluates student achievements and makes recommendations to the assembly regarding the granting of degrees and as insurgents, he said. They became well educated and did not wish to leave. Indians now monopolize the government, which is the country's major form of employment.

Conflict also exists between the traditional and the elite societies, Kannappan said. It is difficult to bridge the westernized urban group with the traditional culture, he said.

"I hope that with the generation of growth some of the factors sustaining these rigidities will weaken," he said.

The University Club dining room will be open Saturday from 6 to 8:30 p.m., contrary to information in the University Club Bulletin.

Dressing Sparty

The "Sparty" statue near Demonstration Hall has long stood as a symbol of MSU. This unidentified student, however, apparently feels that the slight addition of a piece of clothing was needed to enhance the statue's appearance.

Prof compares problems of Ceylon to those in U.S.

Ceylon faces both employment and clashes between ethnic groups similar to those in the United States, an economics professor said Tuesday.

Abraham Kannappan, who recently returned from an eight-month mission to Ceylon, said the "state sector" of the country is a hindrance to growth because it is meeting its cost in the production of tea, the major export.

Another agricultural problem is that rice is subsidized for each family and creates a budgetary deficit in the government, Kannappan said.

A political conflict based on economic conditions exists in Ceylon between the Indians and the Ceylonese. Years ago the Indians were brought to Ceylon

Barbers gird for haircut rush

By RAY ANDERSON
State News Staff Writer

With finals less than a week away, East Lansing barber shops are preparing for the anticipated summer haircut rush.

"We had people standing in the street last year during finals," said a lovely female barber at the MSU barber shop.

"I had a guy come in quite recently and stand amazed at the door because we weren't crowded," she said. "He came late last spring and had to wait two hours to get his hair cut."

There was a consensus among East Lansing barbers that business would increase during the coming week, but they also felt it "would not be as significant as last year when long hair was still considered more of an exception than a rule."

Barber Shop said he does not anticipate as big a rush because there has been a greater acceptance of long hair by the establishment.

"Many of the people coming in for haircuts last spring wanted it above the ears, and this year we are doing more trimming then cutting of long hair," he said.

There are exceptions, though. He said he had a customer last week who had not had a haircut in two years.

"He had gotten a job in town here, and that's what his employer wanted," Beeman said. The customer took his ten-inch-long ponytail home to his wife. Reasons for getting hair cuts vary, but the most frequent reason given by those parting with long locks was a job.

One somewhat disgruntled student complained, "If I were staying in East Lansing for the summer I could get a job, but in the UP (Upper Peninsula) people don't appreciate the hippie image."

"They want a job, Reese E. Oiger, manager of the Varsity Barber Shop, said, "and they realize when they go out in the real world they'll have to part with their hair."

He said long hair has obtained acceptance in big cities and college towns but is still unpopular in rural areas.

"Hair that is considered average length here will be too long in Hob Nob, Iowa," he said.

Barbers also cited pending military service as motivation for parting with a winter coat of hair. "A lot of guys will be going to National Guard camps and stuff during the summer, and I guess they'd rather cut it off themselves then have someone else tell them to," said one barber at the Big Ten Barber Shop.

A minority of those getting their haircut have said they are trying to lessen family discord.

"Parents just aren't as concerned about long hair as they used to be," Rufus King of the Campus Barber Shop said.

Candidates to speak on school board jobs

Candidates for East Lansing School Board positions will present their views at an open meeting at 8 p.m. today in the John A. Hannah Middle School auditorium.

The six candidates will each have five minutes to speak and then will answer questions from the floor. There are two school board vacancies that will be filled in the June 14 school elections.

This meeting is sponsored by the Lansing Area League of Women Voters. There will also be a short millage presentation given by the East Lansing administration.

The candidates for one four-year term are John Henderson, Martha Thornton, Rita Stout and Harold Stonehouse. Candidates for the one-year post are Ann Hyndman and James Apple.

POLICE BRIEFS

A 21-YEAR-OLD MSU student was expected to post $750 bond sometime Wednesday after he demanded preliminary examination for charges that he possessed what MSU police said was marijuana.

The student, arraigned Wednesday morning in East Lansing District Court, was arrested at about 10 p.m. Tuesday when patrol officers "investigating suspicious circumstances" near McDonel Hall allegedly saw the marijuana protruding from his pocket.

Police declined to release details of the arrest. Date for preliminary examination was set for next Thursday.

AN ESTIMATED $1,843.50 in electronic and camera equipment belonging to MSU was discovered missing Tuesday from the trunk of a 1969 Chrysler owned by Jason P. Lovette, media director of the Center for Urban Affairs, East Lansing police said.

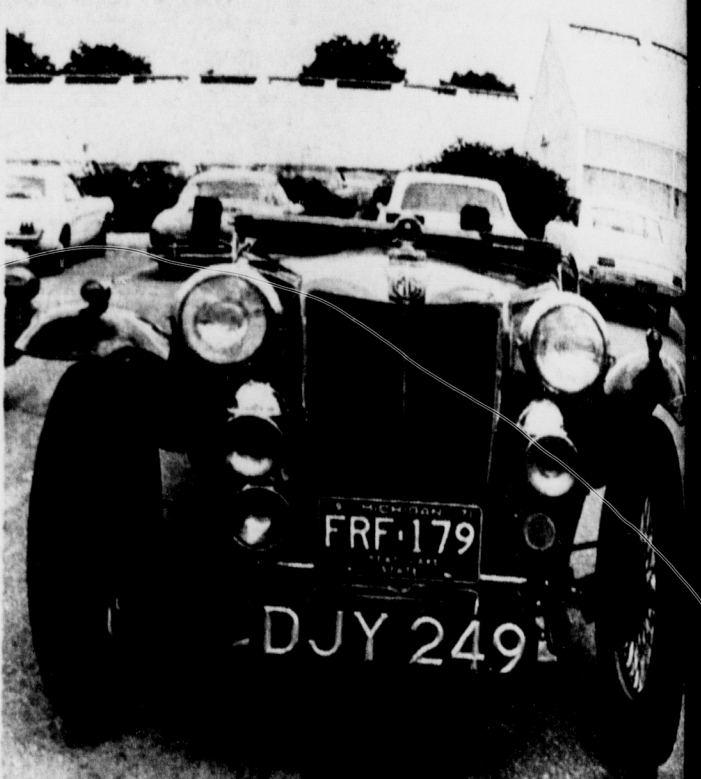

Police said Lovette's automobile had been stolen on May 17 from the 100 block of West Albert Street and was recovered this week by officers in Detroit. Contacted by police, Lovette picked up the vehicle and found the items missing from the trunk.

No other information on the incident was available.

A PAIR OF TENNIS SHOES and a basketball; a watch and jacket; earrings, a ring and a necklace; and an electric typewriter, with a total estimated value of $382, were discovered missing this week from two lockers in the MSU Intramural Building, a student room and the Chemistry Bldg. library.

Police said the lockers were both reportedly locked at the time of the theft. The jewelry was reported stolen while a coed slept in an East McDonel Hall room, and the typewriter theft occurred from a locked office.

PERSONS WHO REFUSE to accept suitable employment opportunities would not be allowed to collect welfare in Michigan under a bill introduced into the Michigan House of Representatives on Wednesday. "This bill returns the welfare program to what I perceive was its original intent, of helping people in their time of need until they can return to the employment rolls," Rep. Fredrick L. Stackable, R-Lansing live up to it," William Hicks, coordinator of the graduate student affairs office, stated. However, he added, certification doesn't necessarily make a teacher good.

"It's (certification) too highly restrictive; it's a form of protection for the students, but they still haven't found a way to find out if the teacher is really good," Scott said.

42 policemen enforce law in campus area

(Continued from page one) supervised by the East Lansing police chief, and, by 1947, the agency was solely a University function. The present public safety department was organized in 1958.

Today, "little routine is involved" in patrol efforts, according to Bernitt. Each of five University districts is patrolled by one officer, who rotates districts daily. He answers to a duty supervisor, who gives assignments, holds daily briefings and maintains radio contact.

Three eight-hour shifts in the protective services division are each staffed by a sergeant, a corporal and from five to 11 officers. The sergeant of each shift answers to captain Adam J. Zutauf, uniformed commander.

Two other divisions of the public safety department include staff services, with the vehicle office; and safety services, for fire safety, pest control and sanitation. All divisions answer to Bernitt, whose boss is President Wharton.

How does the campus react to its police? Bernitt said although officers receive occasional harassment, only two assaults on officers occurred this year, one with a knife and the other with a fist, he said he recently received a letter commending nine officers involved in investigating the recent East Lansing State Bank robbery.

Beyond normal work routine, officers sometimes are called on to let persons into buildings with a set of master keys used by the department. Personal assistance is often provided to stranded motorists.

Bernitt said these tasks are part of the department's duty - and he will continue to be as long as he is director.

Rob Ellis

Dream of pros in reach for Ellis

By JOHN VIGES
State News Sports Writer

It may sound corny, but Rob Ellis had a dream. And in reality, what person who ever played sports to a great extent can say he did not have the same dream. "Ever since I was 10 years old I've thought about signing a professional contract," Ellis said as he stood along the left field fence of John Kobs Field for one of the last times.

The difference between Ellis' dream and that of most others is that the Spartan junior can be expected to realize his dream, probably this summer.

The professional baseball draft will be held this month and Ellis is certain to be chosen high up on the list of collegiate ball players and other free agents.

Almost as probable is the fact that Ellis, the best hitter to ever wear an MSU uniform, will sign for a big bonus and depart from the Big 10 champion Spartans.

"I've thought of playing professional ball for a long time," the Spartan's right fielder said, "and if a chance comes along I just can't let it pass.

"Sure it would be nice to stay an extra year and maybe make up for losing the district tournament but I think that getting started in pro ball, as soon as possible, is more important to me."

A player of Ellis' caliber is worth money to the pros and to turn it down is to leave yourself open to the possibility of injury or a bad season which would diminish or eliminate the bonus money. Also considered is the bargaining power that comes with being a junior. If Ellis does not get a good offer by the team that drafts him he could sign with another the next season.

The possibility of making big money is unusual when only 21 years old and a player must be able to know how much he is worth.

"I think I should get at least $60,000, maybe more," the Grand Rapids product calculated. "If offered much less than that I think I would hold out. I think I've shown enough the last two years to deserve $60,000.

"The scouts look first for the home run hitters and with 14 this season I should be in good shape."

Ellis set season and career homer marks for the Spartans and he also posted new records in almost every offensive category.

Among the honors received by Ellis was his being named to the All-District 4 team. Placement on the district team is necessary to be considered for All-America honors.

Record books are not what scouts look at when evaluating a player, but Ellis' performance at MSU could not help but create an impression in the minds of scouts.

A good fielding right fielder with an excellent arm, Ellis can also play almost any infield position and he is capable of performing catcher's duties.

With the scouts bird-dogging him in Florida and across the Big 10 map the pressure for Ellis to come through was great all year.

"The pressure was there but I tried not to think about it," Ellis said. "It's kind of funny, but true, there have been days when I've made thousands of dollars by having a good day at the plate. Then the next day or week I would lose all the extra money. The scouts watch closely for things that show how much a player is worth."

It would seem that a baseball coach, in jeopardy of losing his top ball player would try to convince him of the high value of a "solid education." Danny Litwhiler urges him to sign a contract.

"Coach Litwhiler is a real good man in this respect," Ellis testified. "He leaves it up to me and even helps me out."

"I think Rob is an excellent ball player," Litwhiler commented, and if he gets a chance to make good money he should sign. I've known a lot of players get good money who aren't half as good as he is.

"When we recruit players we tell them that if they come here they will have an excellent opportunity to develop as professional caliber players and sign with the pros."

The facts correspond with Litwhiler's statement. In his years as a collegiate coach he had 145 players win letters, these 71, almost half, had signed professional contracts and seven have proceeded to major league competition.

DETROIT KETTERING STAR

Hairston chooses MSU

By NICK MIRON
State News Sports Writer

MSU basketball received a big boost yesterday when Lindsay Hairston of Detroit Kettering High School announced that he will enroll at MSU next fall.

The announcement came as a relief to the coaching staff which had taken a blow when Campy Russell decided to attend the University of Michigan.

Hairston, a 6-9, 200 pound center is an all-America and all-state basketball star and was scouted extensively by colleges around the nation. He led his Kettering team to the Detroit city title and to the finals of the Michigan Class A tournament in March.

His talents are varied as he averaged better than 23 points and more than 21 rebounds per game in his high school career.

"I was very impressed with the educational and athletic atmosphere at State," Hairston said. "Coach Ganakas (Head Coach Gus Ganakas) and Coach Aitch (Frosh Coach Matthew Aitch) were most sincere in their dealings with me and my family. The staff, the team, and the athletic department show a real togetherness and a desire to really help each other."

Ganakas was elated with Hairston's decision. "Big men are hard to come by because they are not in abundance," Ganakas said. "College recruiters seek out the big man and build around him. Hairston will usher in a new era of basketball at MSU."

Commenting on the loss of Russell to U-M, Ganakas noted that he felt MSU had still taken the largest piece of the cake. "If we had to have one, I'd choose Lindsay," Ganakas noted. "Not only is he a great player, but he's a well-rounded young man as well. He has an outstanding family, school and community background."

Joining Hairston, on what promises to be one of MSU's finest freshmen squads, will Lovelle Rivers of Dearborn, Mich., was an all-league player and at 6-6, 220 pounds will add great depth to the basketball teams of the future.

Tau Delta Phi captures IM softball championship

Tau Delta Phi is the 1971 all-university softball champion and for the second consecutive year Holocaust is the runner-up.

After Tau Delta Phi defeated independent team Housenwall and Holocaust edged Cachet of Case Hall in the semi-finals last week, the stage was set for the championship showdown.

Holocaust, representing Holmes Hall last year enroute to the championship game, played with most of the same personnel this year in the independent division. Holocaust bidding to sweep the top honors that evaded it last year twice blew one-run leads in the 3-2 defeat to Tau Delta Phi.

Holocaust scored the first run in the opening inning when Mike McLean hit a double down the right field line and then scored on a single by Frank Sheckel.

Tau Delta Phi tied the score in the second inning on an unearned run. After two outs Brent Kleiman stroked a single to center field and went to third on a two-base error. Kleiman scored when the next batter was safe on a Holocaust error.

Holocaust scored again in the third inning when two-out singles by Tom Altmeyer and Sheckel produced the go-ahead run.

Pitcher Jim Holloway blanked Tau Delta Phi in its half of the third inning, but then watched his defense collapse across its second unearned run to Lnot the game, 2-2. With two outs Kleiman picked up his second hit, a single center field. He took second when the Holocaust outfielder slipped and scored on a throwing error when the next batter hit a ground ball to shortstop.

In the last inning of the five-inning contest Holocaust did not score and in the bottom of the frame Tau Delta Phi put together the consecutive singles to score the winning run.

Greg Hyland started the rally with his second single of the game and went to third on Larry McLeod's second single. Rick Perez then won hero's honors with a line-shot single down the third base line.

Tom Koernke was the winning pitcher for Tau Delta Phi. Picking up two hits for the victors were McLeod, Kleiman, Hyland, and Larry Perez. Pacing the hitting attack for Holocaust with hits apiece were Sheckel and Matt Balgenorth.

A hurricane. Six hundred people were killed by one in New England in 1938. Four years later, eleven thousand were killed by one in India. The winds of a hurricane are over 75 miles an hour. It takes the form of a circle or an oval, sometimes as much as 500 miles in diameter. There is no prevention. But if we reduce the element of surprise, we can reduce its deadly potential. And we've taken steps so that it will never surprise us again. RCA has designed, developed and produced the world's most advanced family of weather satellites. It's called the ITOS program. It's the most sophisticated weather detector yet devised by man, and perhaps one of the most beneficial facilities man has created since he broke the bonds of earth. From the detailed photographs transmitted back to earth, we can see the formation and plot the course of hurricanes, typhoons, storm centers. We can spot sea ice and snow cover. Calculate wind speeds. Anywhere on earth. This program exemplifies the importance of interdisciplinary engineering, the engineering concept of the future. It is becoming increasingly more apparent that in the future, the engineer will touch virtually every aspect of our lives. From medicine to the arts to education to leisure products. And he will do this in conjunction with other disciplines to complement, overlap, and unite his output for an end result that is both balanced and complete. Think for a moment about an endeavor which, like meteorology, is seemingly unrelated to classical engineering; the graphic arts industry. Recently, RCA engineers, working in conjunction with that industry, developed the world's most advanced electronic typesetting machine. It's called the VideoComp. It can set type as fast as 900 lines per minute. Compare this with the 15/minute of mechanical typesetting, or the 300/minute of photocomposers. It is our goal ultimately to produce an RCA electronic printing system that will accept a manuscript as input and deliver printed copy—packaged, addressed and sorted—to the shipping dock. Now consider another field which had previously been outside the realm of the engineer: medicine and health services. We've been involved in the development of a mobile laboratory to provide comprehensive physical examinations in on-the-spot locations to people otherwise out of the mainstream of our health services. And we've researched a high-speed turbine drill to increase the efficiency and decrease the pain in dental work. And we've done extensive work in developing facilities for teaching speech to the retarded. Communications? Computer education? Oceanography? We're involved with them. And with so much more. We like to think that at RCA the drive toward innovation should be everybody's concern. Because this concern is needed if we are to continue the forward direction of creative technology for people. You may be planning a career in industry—if so, you could be part of our vision of the future. We invite inquiries through your College Placement Director—he can supply additional information about an RCA career. We are an equal opportunity employer.

Sorting center finds partner

There will be an IM service working out of Women's Intramural Building that will act as a "sorting center" for both men and women who are seeking partners for various recreational sports activities. The center will help both men and women find partners in tennis, paddleball, table tennis, badminton and golf. A person interested in finding a partner for any of the above mentioned sports need only call the Women's IM at 5-4712 and have his name go on file. When a partner is located, the two people would be paired up by the service and return phone calls. The service will be available the remainder of the present year and will continue throughout the summer session.
