U.S. rejects Viet Cong peace plan

PARIS (AP) - The United States rejected Thursday Communist demands for the unconditional withdrawal of American forces from South Vietnam but moved to negotiate the whole new Viet Cong peace plan in private talks.

The Communist delegates turned down the bid for private sessions. A Viet Cong spokesman said after the 120th peace talks session that the form of meetings could be discussed after the United States replied to the demand to set a date for American troop withdrawals.

U.S. Ambassador David K. E. Bruce and South Vietnamese Ambassador Pham Dang Lam poured cold water on much of the seven - point Viet Cong peace package submitted last Thursday.

However, they said they were willing to explore it more deeply to clarify obscure

Bruce said although there were "new elements" in the plan, basic Communist demands seemed unchanged. He did not repeat last week's White House assessment of positive elements in the peace plan.

Lam told the Communists: "We did not find any significant changes in your fundamental demands.'

In presenting her North Vietnam approved plan last week, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh of the Viet Cong said that if the United States agreed to get out of South Vietnam by the end of the year

"the release of the totality of military of all parties and of the civilians captured in the war including American pilots captured in North Vietnam, so that they may all rapidly return to their homes. These two operations - withdrawal and prisoner release - will begin on the same date and will end on the same date.'

Bruce wondered in his speech if agreement on "modalities" was not merely a "variation of your previous statement that the parties will engage at once in discussions on prisoners release.'

This was a major sticking point in previous Communist proposals on prisoner release. They gave no indication how long such discussions would continue.

Bruce also said the Communists must release prisoners they hold in Laos and Cambodia - not only in Vietnam as stipulated in the new peace plan.

Both Bruce and Lam raised the issue of a political settlement as laid down by the communists.

"You continued to insist that the present government of the Republic of Vietnam must be replaced by one which fullfils your own criteria," Bruce said.

"We will not impose any government on the people of South Vietnam, who must be allowed to determine for themselves their own future."

In their formal speeches, neither Mrs.

ethical principle that welfare is a right, not according to administration sources.

Binh nor Xuan Thuy, the chief North Vietnam delegate, answered any of the questions. They returned to their peace plan and insisted it met the wishes of the U.S. people and others in the world.

After the meeting, Thuy accused Bruce of refusing "to give a serious response" to the peace plan. Mrs. Binh told reporters that Bruce "tried to use the question of the nature of the meetings to evade the imperative demands of the people of Vietnam, the United States and the world."

In his speech at the meeting Bruce declared the demands for withdrawal of all U.S. and nonVietnamese forces "are so sweeping and categorical in nature that we cannot possibly accept your arbitrary determination that they must be agreed to by us without any discussion or negotation upon them."

The Viet Cong plan demanding U.S. troop withdrawal and the dismantling of American bases said these must be accomplshed "without posing any condition whatsoever.'

Bruce said, "We are ready, as we always have been, to take up with you any points which you have or might bring to our attention, and we expect you in return to adopt the same attitude toward any suggestions made by us. It would be most unprecedented for a negotiation to take any other course.'

Then Bruce proposed that next Thursday's session be "free from the glare of publicity and without the need to make public statements except to the degree we mutually agree upon. This restricted

Iceland to get new left-wing government

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) - After a political crisis of nearly a month, Iceland appears about to get a government much farther to the left than the middle - of - the - road coalition which ruled for 12 years.

There was speculation that a leftist government would continue the North Atlantic island nation's membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization but would seek withdrawal of the 3,000 American servicemen stationed at Keflavik, 30 miles from Reykjavik.

Supporters of this policy concede it seems illogical for Iceland to remain in NATO while denying the organization continued use of a strategically important base. They counter, however, with the comment: "It may seem illogical but it is important to us as a nationalist and political thing."

The outgoing government of Independents and Social Democrats, which held 32 seats in the 60 - seat parliament, captured only 28 seats in the June 13 election. It called on the Progressives to try to form a new coalition with the Liberal Left party and the People's Alliance, which together won 32 seats.

Since then the leaders of the proposed coalition have been meeting to decide who should get which post, with Progressive chief Olafur Johannesson considered the likely candidate for prime minister.

Highway support rescinded

By STEVE WATERBURY State News Staff Writer

The board of trustees has rescinded its earlier approval of a planned south campus highway, it was revealed this week. The board's action was taken during a closed session at the June trustee meeting.

The trustees' action was revealed at the East Lansing City Council meeting on

The planned highway would be a four lane boulevard extending from I - 496 across south campus just north of the Grand Trunk tracks out to Park Lake Road, east of East Lansing. It would serve as an alternative route to Grand River Avenue and would be a relocation of M -

The trustees, who had previously approved the plans and the route in September of 1969, rescinded their approval by unanimous vote.

highway. Patriarche said the design of I - 496 and of US - 127 took construction of the cross campus route into consideration.

"A lot of money has been put into the Trowbridge Road interchange, and if the highway is not built, this will go to waste,"

In a letter to Henrik E. Stafseth, director of the Dept. of State Highways, President Wharton said that "we are prepared for a continuation of discussions between representatives of the commission and of the University."

Thomas L. Shawver of the Dept. of State Highways said Thursday the department "will urge further negotiations" with the trustees before discontinuing the highway project.

Wharton's letter states that the trustees "have differing views on the overall propriety of the proposed highway.

"Some would be amenable to consideration of alternate plans in the present location which provide for the necessary grade separations," it reads. "Others would prefer an alternate location. Still others, however, have expressed opposition to the construction of any new recedent going beyond current alpractice laws.

"The doctor who cannot prepare and ondition his patient, both mentally and hysically, for a serious operation is rippled beforehand," Black said.

The doctor must now so hedge and guard his words as to create more doubt and fear than ever in the patient's mind."

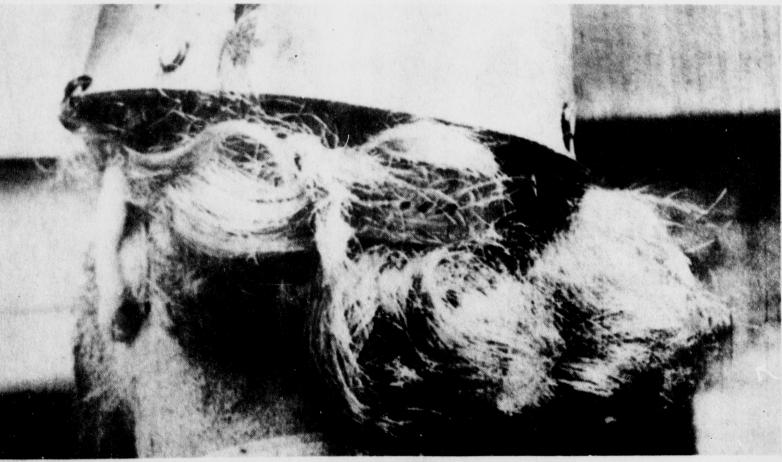

The Court ruled in favor of Richard A. Guilmet and against Dr. Joseph Arena and the late Dr. Kenneth N. Campbell. Guilmet had charged that Arena and Campbell had led him to believe that his hospitalization for a peptic ulcer would be of short duration, when in fact his condition required extensive surgery.

Guilmet had filed malpractice and breach of contract suits in Oakland County Circuit Court against the two physicians in 1964. The Oakland County Court found the doctors innocent of malpractice but guilty on the second charge of breach of contract. Speaking for the majority opinion, Justice Thomas G. Kavanagh said the court did not mean to call a physician's reassurances to his patient a contract.

"What we hold is sometimes made clearer by stating what we do not hold," Kavanagh wrote. "Here we do not say that every time a doctor says to his patient prior to the formation of their contract for example, 'I recommend an immediate appendectomy. It will fix you up fine. . . . It may be said that he contracted to 'cure' his patient.

"What we are saying, however, is that under some circumstances, the trier of fact might conclude that a doctor so speaking did contract to 'cure' his patient."

Uganda closes borders

President Idi Amin of Uganda warned President Julius K. Nyerere of Tanzania Thursday that he had ordered the Ugandan armed forces to shoot down any aircraft overflying this country's borders with Tanzania or Rwanda.

In a statement issued by his office in Kampala, Amin said his decision to close the borders meant that "all movement" across them is prohibited and any craft trying to cross the border would be fired on with antiaircraft missiles.

SALT off to good start

The fifth round of strategic arms limitation talks between the United States and the Soviet Union got off to a good start in Helsinki, Finland Thursday and conference sources said both sides were optimistic and determined to reach agreement.

At the opening session in the Soviet Embassy both sides "seemed anxious to make progress on the basis of the May 20 announcement by both governments," the sources said.

Curfew follows bombing

Israeli security forces cracked down on a cluster of Arab farm villages Thursday in Israeli occupied Jordan, searching for Arab terrorists, who fired rockets into an Israeli city, killing two and wounding 20.

All villages within 15 miles of the attacked city of Petah Tikvah were under curfew, lifted only briefly for women to shop. Armed, helmeted soldiers trooped door to door, seeking what they called "suspicious persons." They appeared to behave firmly but politely.

Taciturn Druse border police, fiercely anti - Arab despite their Moslem origins, kept the curfew in force in this tiny village of stone houses and olive groves.

Cambodian drive begins

South Vietnamese forces launched a new drive into Cambodia Thursday, with 40 U.S. helicopters landing 1,500 men in the old battle ground of the Parrot's Beak.

The landings took place from six to nine miles inside Cambodia and the troops headed toward Svay Rieng, a provincial capital about 65 miles northwest of Saigon near the western edge of the beak.

Simultaneously, 1,500 South Vietnamese who had been operating around the Cambodian town of Kompong Trach began moving south toward Svay Rieng 20 miles away.

High level talks continue

President Nixon met for the third successive day Thursday with Secretary of State William P. Rogers in San Clemente, and aides said they covered the gamut of all foreign policy matters facing them at the moment.

This range naturally included the Vietnam peace discussion in Paris, where the United States turned down a Viet Cong demand for pulling all U.S. troops out of Vietnam in exchange for release of war prisoners.

But the Western White House left all reaction to the American negotiating team on the scene and to the State Dept. in Washington.

House balks at discharge of plan to cut property tax

By United Press International

The Michigan House, on a 54-50 vote Thursday, rejected a Republican-led move to pry Gov. Milliken's property tax reduction plan out of a Democratic-controlled committee. The move, which needed 55 votes, fell five votes short of House rejection of the motion to discharge the committee from further consideration of the proposal means it will remain in committee until Democrats decide it should come out.

The proposal, if approved by the voters, would eliminate all property tax levies for school operating purposes except for an optional six-mill enrichment levy. The revenues lost through property tax elimination would be made up with an increase in the state personal income tax

House Speaker William Ryan, D-Detroit, and the House Democratic leadership, have insisted that the bill remain in committee unitl the budget and taxation bills for fiscal 1971-72 are worked out.

Though the Democrats generally support the concept of property tax relief, they are hoping to tie in a graduated income tax proposal with Milliken's plan. Republicans, however, want the two issues kept separate at the ballot box.

Supporters of the discharge motion argued that the property tax relief plan should be worked out before lawmakers are asked to vote on an income tax increase for the current fiscal year. To support a $2 billion-plus budget.

MILLIKEN, OFFICIALS MEET

State agencies join forces to maintain order in parks

Gov. Milliken announced Wednesday plans to insure safety and order in the Michigan State park system through a coordinated effort by various state enforcement agencies.

Milliken's statement followed a meeting with officials from the Dept. of Natural Resources (DNR) and the Michigan State Police on means of avoiding disorderly conduct, vandalism and other security problems in state parks and campgrounds.

In addition, Milliken ordered more effective utilization of currently staffed security personnel and top - priority attention to a request for an extra $500,000 in enforcement funds for this year's budget.

"These problems are occurring with increasing frequency in parks across the nation," he said. "There have been some isolated incidents in Michigan already this year. We are accelerating efforts to prevent reoccurrences and to guard against abuse of a park system that is one of Michigan's finest assets."

The governor speculated a record 25 million park visitors for 1971, or a rise of four million over the previous year. He said efforts must be made to "avoid situations that detract from their

Over the recent July 4 weekend, state police and DNR rangers reportedly arrested 202 persons in state parks in lower Michigan. Charges for most were disturbing the peace, minor larceny, illegal possession of alcohol and drug offenses.

Sources said Milliken was disturbed about incidents in state parks where motorcycle gangs and other disruptive groups intimidated and harassed family campers by stealing from them and even in some instances forcing them out of parks or forest campgrounds.

Col. John Plants, state police director, said all his eight district commanders were instructed to meet this week with DNR officers and local enforcement officials to develop contingency plans for coping with localized problems.

Ralph A. MacMullan, DNR director, said plans are underway to expand the number of areas where park rangers will patrol 24 hours a day. He said that enforcement officers will also increase patrols when needed.

Proposals were also submitted to Milliken for increased staffing for control and safety in state parks and forest campgrounds. State police also have plans for providing mobile support units where needed.

Both directors vowed to maintain the safety and security in outdoor recreation areas, and MacMullan stated some recreation sites may be forced to close temporarily if means for controling

EDITORIALS 'U' courts student ire serving special groups

Immediately south of the stadium lie MSU's 40 tennis courts. Students may use only 30 of them.

The Varsity Tennis Team plays on those other 10 canvassed - in courts, right? And this is as it should be, those courts being in markedly better condition than the common people's 30.

But the varsity isn't practicing this summer. Instead, the courts have been reserved for the exclusive use of the East Lansing Tennis Club (ELTC) so students still can't play on them.

Unless they join the ELTC.

The ELTC is not a registered student organization.

So why does it rate the use of University facilities? It has, each of the past four years, donated its residual treasury to the Ralph H. Young Scholarship Fund, that's why.

In other words, what's left over after lessons for their kids, trophies for their tournaments, shoulder patches for their warmup jackets, salaries for their gate guards, a Coke machine and a telephone for their convenience and court maintenance (the electric bill) buys athletes. A thousand bucks worth of athletes a

Anyone may contribute to MSU intercollegiate athletics by joining ELTC. Fees for students are five bucks; nonstudent, $15; family, $25. And for that special a la carte tennis occasion, 75 cents a day.

Before this year a nonmember could use the ELTC courts until a member came along to play, but now the club has hired "supervisors" to keep out all the rabble all the time.

Earlier this summer the club got a little carried away and began locking off its entire 10 - court area, but there were some dog - in - the manager - type beefs, and now, if one gets there before 8 a.m. or after dark, he may make use of the courts.

ELTC has an account with the

The club president, one John Suehr, professor of education, claims its membership of between 200 and 250 is mostly students. Other University - related folk and outsiders trail, in that order.

A quick glance at the membership list, however, brings to mind pre game warmups on the tailgates of station wagons.

Most of this year's money, according to Suehr, will go toward Junior Development - kiddie instruction. Eighty of the members, it turns out, are Junior Developers, or the sons and daughters of ELTC members.

Motives

Suehr says he thinks perhaps the club ought to become a University recognized student organization. Perhaps it ought. Perhaps, though, the University should make clear its motives for according anyone exclusive use of any facility.

Since the MSU organizations policy clearly gives student organizations priority over outside organizations in reserving University facilities, could 20 students band together in an organization and preempt those 10 courts?

It depends, we suspect, whether such an organization would have the wherewithal to up the Ralph Young Scholarship ante.

Students have objected to ELTC's reverse eminent domain before, and the club's response, if the student bitched loud enough, has been to pay his $5 membership fee for him, thus co - opting most potential

Cheated on your grade? Drag the prof into court

Miffed over that 1.5 you got in Soc. 241? And the prof is being really hard - nosed just because you did not take the final? Don't sweat it - just sue the miscreant for your rightful

A bizzare scenario certainly, but Time magazine reports that is precisely what is happening at Northwestern University. Phyllis Butler, a graduate student in Northwestern's Medill School of Journalism, is suing Neil V. McNeil, a professor, because she contends the F he gave her prevented her from getting a master's degree and harmed her personal and professional reputation.

Miss Butler claims the grade resulted from her failure to cover President Nixon's Friday night State of the Union address - an act prohibited by her Orthodox Jewish faith. McNeil's answer: "If I did have any bias against (her) it was for incompetence." A Chicago court will decide the matter.

Before you flood the judiciary with grade change cards, however, remember one very important thing: judicial precedents are often two way streets. If profs can be sued for bad grades, it seems logical to presume that they can, in turn, initiate litigation against wayward students.

Give it a couple of years and a student could innocently reach into his mailbox and come out with a handful of District Court summonses for smoking in Berkey, excessive cuts or talking in class.

BARNEY WHITE

'Love': no absolute existence

A friend of mine has the most peculiar habit: he falls in love a lot. Yet inevitably, the scene never works out and, thus, the bulk of his life is spent on a perpetual elation-dejection pendulum. One moment he floats two inches off the ground starry-eyed; the next he is extricating himself from the smoldering ruins of a scene whose crash registered "8" on the

We were talking on it the other night with an eye toward resolving the question of "What am I doing wrong?"

'Well," he said, "I guess I just get locked in too hard. I mean I'm basically a monogamous sort, so, like, I only do one thing with one chick at one time - and, man, like it gets so intense, the fire flares so hot, that we burn out all the potential of the scene in no time. You know, and then there's nothing left.'

complete. Finally, I said: "Yea, but you nothing more.

haven't answered the primary question 'why?' I mean, you've described the symptoms of the malady, but you haven't shed any light on the causes or the inner workings of the thing." He nodded, lit a cigarette, ordered another pitcher and subsequently moved in on a comely lady seated at an adjacent table. They are now very much "in love."

Obviously, we didn't resolve the crux of the matter that evening, but I haven't been able to put the thing down. So I've watched him and other folks that I know, and I've come up with a thesis of sorts.

Start from a point of philosophical scratch. What is this thing that our culture has decided to label "love?" Webster: "To regard with a strong feeling of affection; to have a devoted attachment to." Great, but so what? Even such a basic definition as this does little more than describe the We cogitated that for about four beers, manifestation of things already existent. but somehow his paradigm didn't seem Webster deals with cultural expression,

No, at the elemental level human beings do things for only two reasons: because they have to, or because they like to (or, possibly, both). Thus, Homo sapiens "fall in love" a)because it is necessary (perhaps to continue the race) or b) because he derives pleasure of some sort from the To utilize alternative a) is to immediately fall victim to one of the greatest semantic hassels of English-speaking culture: the foggy double-think that holds love and sex to be the same thing. They aren't, though one can be complementary to the other. Simply, I don't think that in the absolute sense love is necessary for the biological continuation of the race, or for that matter, that the drive for procreation is an "instinct" not to be denied. Besides, when we speak of "love" in the context of this column we are referring to a particular behavior-matrix, incidental to sex ·

In this light alternative b) appears to provide the only viable solution. My friend falls in love repeatedly because he derives some sort of pleasure from it. In short, it provides him with a vehicle whereby he can attain reassurance of his own personal existence and, thereby derive pleasure from the allaying of anxiety.

personality is an appropriate complement to his and, thus, able to provide him with optimum feedback, as it is that he obtain recognition-feedback at all costs. To him the feedback, the sweet nothings whispered in his ear, the recognition of his accomplishments is all important; never mind the source or it suitability so long as it is there.

So he latches onto the first chick that seems even moderately interested in him and, thereupon, sets foot upon a perilous escalator. At first "lets go out" is sufficient to excite pleasure and, thus, appropriate feedback from his opposite number. But perhaps because of the unsuitability of the match or because of other things, this mechanism soon wears thin and, iunkie-like, he feels compelled to increase the stimulus in order to maximize his

So, "you know, I really like you" serves as a sufficient prod for a time. But all too soon this also corrodes and a further escalation is necessary to maintain an optimum level of reassurance. And the love-addict moves to the ultimate step and declares: "I love you." And the seeds of tragedy have been sown: There's nowhere to go from here, there are no further quantum levels to be bridged. Crash is

"No, at the elemental level human beings do things for only two reasons: because they have to, or because they like to (or, possibly, both). Thus, Homo sapiens 'fall in love' a) because it is necessary (perhaps to continue the race) or b) because he derives pleasure of some sort from the state."

It's darn hard to be a truly solitary man. For the average person the time-honored equation of "I think, therefore I am" is not sufficient to reassure one that he does, in fact, exist - and meaningfully. A touchstone comprised of one's own substance is fraught with the potentiality for deception. It is necessary, therefore, that a person find an existentially "other" entity to serve the purpose of recognition through contrast.

Thus, we need someone to impress, someone to respond to our overtures and to recognize and, thereby, solidify, our existence-matrix — our hopes, dreams, methods of conducting business, etc. In sum, someone to provide pleasurable and reassuring recognition-feedback. Optimally, this could be any person regardless of sex, but because of quirks in this particular culture it is deeply ingrained that such a person should be a member of the 'opposite sex " A harmless, if somewhat limiting prerequisite.

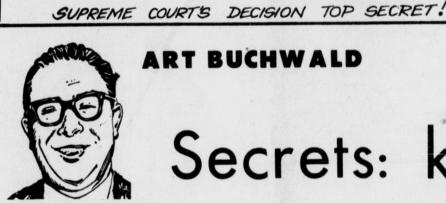

The problems arise when people, like my friend, get hung up with the form rather than the substance of the thing. It is not so important that he find an individual whose therefore, inevitable. Obviously, all scenes do not fit into this paradigm. There are, of course, some few which have proved quite viable, though whether because of optimum personality fit, or self-delusion of an advanced degree or what, I'm not sure. Simply, I am discussing the great many people who are in love with love and doing the thing for it sake alone. For the truly successful sceneif in the absolute sense there is a truly successful scene - I would suggest that word-construct other than threadban "love" be applied.

This is a crucial point. Millenia of poets aside, Webster was right when he described a process instead of a definable thing Simply, there is no absolute value, no elemental and indivisible essence, which may be called "love". Rather, that mystique-ridden vocal symbol describe nothing more or less than a mechanism method of obtaining pleasure through existential reassurance.

The question now, of course, is whether a process or operational figuration still ca be an absolute in the functional sense.

On the morning of July 1, someone stole one of my two boa constrictors from my office in the Psychology Research Building while I was teaching a class. The fact that only one snake was taken would seem to indicate that the motive was other than to resell the animal for profit. Perhaps the thief desired it as a pet, or intends to use it in some form of prank.

These particular snakes, however, are subjects in a research project which has been in progress for over a year. The loss of this snake will seriously disrupt my research on these animals. Its return would be deeply appreciated.

"I feel that the people that are governing the world in general are not moving fast enough to assure survival, not minimal survival but an ultimate human fulfillment," she said. "I think that this type of progress has to begin somewhere. If anyplace can attain that goal, East Lansing can."

Miss Eisenberg, 23, is a resident of a women's and children's co-op on Evergreen Street and has been a resident of East Lansing since 1965. She graduated from MSU with a bachelor's degree in psychology in 1970. She is now enrolled at MSU as a biochemistry major in order "to more fully understand environmental problems." She worked as a clerk in the U.S. Senate last summer and has also worked for the Peace Corps.

Now he's stuck with decisions because, according to the new estate - street - corner entrepreneur - salesman, the one with the pink stripe contained THC (Tetrahydrocannabinol); the M and M, LSD; and the chocolate, mescaline.

After a moment's perplexity he swallows the M and M, "turns up the jams," and waits for it to melt his head. Eight hours later our friend returns from his trip with plenty of sore muscles to go with his fantasies.

The sore muscles, according to John McNeill, MSU professor of pharmacology, probably are the direct result of convulsions from strychnine poisoning. The poison is finding increasing popularity in the street drug scene.

Strychnine has a peculiar ability to heighten the effect of a drug, McNeill explained, ability of some nerves thereby heightening their response to stimulous. But he emphasized the difference between the amount needed to heighten a particular drugs effect, and the amount needed to produce the poisons intended convulsive effect would be very very small.

Nineteen per cent of the 39 street drugs analyzed by the East Lansing Drug Education Center (DEC) during the past six months contained strychnine. A small green tab with a line through its center being sold here recently as mescaline was found to contain 50 per cent.

The convulsions might well be the result of another additive or hallucinogenic substitute known as PCP, McNeill said.

Originally developed as an anesthesia, he said, phencyclodine (PCP) grew unpopular because among varied side effects it caused hallucinations, and occasional muscle spasms. It's medicinal use today is limited to animals, where it is used as a tranquilizer, he said.

Unfortunately, on at least one occasion those muscle spasms have been read as strychnine poisoning, McNeill said, and two people died when they were treated with Thorozine. Thorozine is a depressant which counteracts the effect of strychnine, but multiplies the effect of phencyclodine.

Phencyclodine was a major ingredient of three per cent of the 39 street drugs analyzed by DEC, and was most frequently sold as THC (tetrahydrocannabinol), the active ingredient in marijuana.

The THC pills being sold today, according to McNeill, are the biggest hoax in illicit drug

TASK FORCE SET UP

Fishing dispute studied

A joint task force consisting of representatives of the Governor's office, the Indian Affairs Commission, and the Natural Resources Commission (NRC) was appointed by Gov. Milliken to resolve the dispute surrounding Indian commercial fishing activities in the state.

The governor asked the task force to develop recommendations so that the Indian Affairs Commission and the NRC could reach agreement by July 16 on the following points: an Indian fish management plan; an Indian administrator in the Dept. of Natural Resources (DNR); and the hiring of Indian enforcement officers and other field personnel in the DNR.

The governor further asked the Dept. of Civil Service and other departments to assist the task force in arriving at an agreement. Milliken said, "I am alarmed by the potential for further deterioration of the situation between sportsmen and Indians.

I call upon Indians and sportsmen to refrain from destructive actions, and urge all parties to work with the task force to arrive at a satisfactory agreement."

The issue follows a decision handed down by the Michigan Supreme Court in April which gave Indians permission to fish commercially in northern Michigan waters previously restricted to sport fishing by the DNR.

This precipitated a violent reaction on the part of many northern fishermen who found their favorite streams blocked with nets, and an allegation by the DNR that commercial fishing by Indians may destroy state lake trout and whitefish populations.

The task force will hold hearings in northern Michigan with Indian leaders and sportsmen to determine the feasibility of Gov. Milliken's recommendations. Time and place of the hearings will be announced later.

 Tigers' Cash named as a (belated) Star

For Detroit Tiger fans, the All - Star Game scheduled for the Detroit park on Tuesday evening won't be an entirely wasted affair afterall.

News out of Baltimore has last year's American League most valuable player, John "Boog" Powell, nursing a fracture in his right wrist.

The hairline fracture will put Powell, the winner of the fans' balloting for the all star first base slot, on the shelf for a week to ten days. Powell is forced to withdraw from the All -Star game.

Detroit's Norm Cash, who finished second to Powell in the voting by some 200,000 marks, will step into the starting line - up.

The move actually bolsters the American League line up. Cash, considered one of the premier fielding first sackers of the circuit, carries into the game a .298 average, as opposed to Powell's .220.

Cash is leading the AL in home runs with 19 whereas Powell has only 14. The only thing Powell has over Cash statistics - wise is runs batted in, as Powell maintains a 54-47 bulge.

Cash, who turned the boo - birds of previous seasons into cheers this season, was not even supposed to play in the game. Baltimore manager and all - star manager Earl Weaver decided that he would go with only one regular first baseman on the premise that other players on the squad (Carl Yastrzemski, Frank Robinson, Al Kaline, and Harmon Killebrew) have all had experience at first and could fill in if the situation arose.

Cash will join team mates Al Kaline, Bill Freehan, and Mickey Lolich on the all star team. There is still a possibility that Bill Freehan might join Cash in the starting line - up because of a slow healing injury to first team Star catcher Ray Fosse of Cleveland.

By TERRY FICORELLI State News Sports Writer

If you have gone by MSU's outdoor track, better known as Ralph Young Field, during this past week, you may have done a double - take.

The reason: four females have been keeping pace with the fellas in the opening session of MSU'S third annual Track and Field Coaching Clinic.

The two week, double session clinic is headed up by MSU head track coach Fran Dittrich as well as assistants Jim Gibbard and

And according to Gibbard, five more of the fairer sex are due in next Monday for session number two.

"The purposes of the clinic are to help develop track and field programs on the high school, junior high, and even the grade school levels throughout the state," Gibbard said.

"We have all these age groups represented, including four girls enrolled in this first session. We expect five more next week."

Several top - flight performers who have utilized have been Marshall Dill, recently

"The instructors at the clinic try to help organize the high school athlete, so he will be better prepared when he goes back to school," Gibbard added.

"No actual recruiting can be done while these sessions take place. This would be breaking standards of the NCAA.'

Also lending a hand to the proceedings are four ex-Spartans who distinguished themselves during their collegiate careers in track and field.

They are Bob Steele, NCAA 440 - Intermediate Hurdles Champion 1966-67); Gene Washington, NCAA 60 - High Hurdles Champion (1965), now working in MSU's Placement Bureau during his off - season from the Minnesota Vikings; Mike Bowers, first Big Ten high jumper to clear seven feet, and John Wilcox, a pole vaulter of

Design specialists suggest indoor-outdoor decoration

Design principles for interior for maximizing the use and decorating can be used as well in beauty of "living space:" yards and gardens, according to MSU design specialists.

The laws of scale, color, shape and spacial relationships apply to natural as well as manmade objects - trees and furniture, shrubbery and paintings -Margaret Boschetti, home furnishings specialist, and Joe Cox, landscape architect, said recently.

They made these suggestions

•Start with what you have.

An analysis of the positive and negative features of your home will help you devise a plan for improvement. Consider the size and shape of each room and of your lot or lawn. Where are the traffic paths and permanently installed objects? How do you use the neighboring spaces - both inside and out?

Analyze your family's needs. Most families need room for three major activities around the home: private, social and work. Ideally, the spaces provided for these needs are adjacent to each other. For example, outside service areas such as the garage and garden would be near the kitchen and inside utility areas. Exterior living spaces, patios, porches, etc., are a natural extension of the indoor living and dining areas.

*Make a plan for organizing the total space. Ask yourself what placement of chairs, tables, patio furniture, recreation areas.

Teamsters elect new union chief

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Teamster delegates shouted a sentimental hurrah for James R. Hoffa Thursday, and then cast their votes for Frank E. Fitzsimmons to lead the two - million member union into a new era.

The 2,100 cheering, whistling delegates elected Fitzsimmons over token but bitter opposition to a five - year term as the Teamsters' first new president since Hoffa began his tumultous. gally troubled reign 14 years ago.

"I gratefully thankfully accept," said Fitzsimmons, who easily survived charges of dictatorship and efforts to turn anti - Hoffa sentiment against him by his lone opponent, Theodore Daley of

Most of the delegates resoundingly booed Daley and Robert J. Coor of New Brunswick, N.J., who nominated Daley with charges comparing Fitzsimmons' takeover from Hoffa to the "hysteria" of Hitler's Germany.

I accept the nomination," Daley said to a chorus of boos and cries of "Seig Heil," but withdrew midway in a roll call vote and conceded the election was fair.

British soldiers open fire as groups riot in Ireland

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (AP) - British troops opened fire twice Thursday on rioting mobs in Londonderry, killing two men and wounding a third. The troops were harassed most of the day by gasoline bombs, nail bombs and rifle fire.

In the southern republic of Ireland, the rebel Irish Republican Army defied authorities in order to to bury one of its dead at Cork, bombed five holiday houses on the coast and announced a new phase in its war on foreign influence in the republic.

The outlawed IRA's previous activities have been concentrated largely in British - governed Northern Ireland, which it proposes to unite with the republic of Ireland.

The British troops in Londonderry returned fire after rioters mounted attacks on the soldiers with fire bombs and sniper

Seamus Cusack was the first victim of the troop fire. He died in

The second victim of military bullets, still unidentified, toppled into the arms of friends among the shouting republican rioters in midafternoon. He was dead on arrival at a hospital.

Troops opened fire the second time when rioters stole a truck and gunned it at high speed toward the soldiers, weaving across a stretch of littered Bogside pavement. The truck crashed against an army jeep without injuring anyone.

Earlier, troop fire had wounded a man near Cusack.

A crowd of about 150 men and women, holding a black flag aloft, marched from Bogside to central police station to protest the shootings. One segment of the protesters surged against the station's main gate. Soldiers repulsed the charge with stones banged against riot shields. No injuries were reported. Tight lines of British troops faced a barrage of bombs and rocks in front and attacks from side streets on the flanks. Rioters made effective use of nail bombs. Nails and metal from the bombs whistled down the streets and pinged off advertising signs. Five soldiers were wounded by these shrapnel - type weapons, beer cans filled with gelignite and shards of razorsharp metal fragments. The funeral at Cork, the southern republic's second city, was attended by IRA members in uniform. They defied police and city officials nad buried Martin O'Leary, 20, in a cemetery reserved for national heroes. O'Leary was killed Saturday in planting a bomb at the Canadian owned Mogul mine in County Tipperary.

Seamus MacCarra, leader of a five - week strike at the mine, said in the funeral oration. "The dead man is the first martyr of the new phase of Irish republicanism. It is a warning to all oppressors that the Irish working people are no longer prepared to be bonded slaves." About 500 uniformed police watched the funeral ceremony but took no action against it.

As the funeral went on, bombs wrecked five holiday chalets built near Arklow on Ireland's east coast by a part - German

IN A 5-2 DECISION, the Michigan Supreme Court has ruled that a person in prison does not lose his civil rights.

The court said that police illegally seized Edward Allen Trudeau's shoes at the Wayne County jail as evidence in an attempted burglary and murder, while Trudeau was awaiting trial on another charge. The court reversed a ruling by the Court of Appeals and ordered a new trial for Trudeau.

On the day of Trudeau's preliminary examination in an attempted larceny case, a Southfield police officer went to Recorder's Court where he examined Trudeau's shoes for comparison to a heel print found at the site of a Southfield murder. Later that day, police took Trudeau's shoes.

Justices Thomas E. Brennan and Eugene F. Black dissented, arguing that if the link to the murder had been a fingerprint instead of a heel print, no constitutional questions would have "The cooperative - type program often is adopted as an economy move. It is organized by parents who employ a trained teacher. Then the parents take turns helping the teacher. It's usually a half - day program with an unusual fringe benefit deep parent involvement. In addition to reducing costs and helping more people participate, it allows parents to better understand their own children and their development.

"Preschool nurseries and nursery schools are more general terms applied to preschool programs. These refer to programs which are usually a half - day service designed to supplement the child's home environment.

In this survey, as with most of the previous ones, students attending schools in the South were more favorably disposed toward the President. Just under one in every five college students are from schools either in the South Atlantic or East

South Central regions. Their attitudes have been consistently more conservative than those of their peers in other regions. On this question concerning Nixon and the news media, over seven in every 10 students enrolled in southern schools supported the degree to which Nixon has been using the media. Replied one

Louisiana State University senior, "The President was elected because of his personal ideas, how can anyone complain simply because he continued to make his thoughts known to the public after taking office?" A contrasting view was offered by a Cornell University coed: "Everywhere I look I see Nixon, and if not him,
