

Stores tighten security to cut shoplifting

By DIANE PETRYK
State News Staff Writer

Shoplifting in East Lansing has increased since the term break by roughly 300 percent, as students returned to campus this fall, according to District Court Judge Maurice Schoenberger.

Most store managers have indicated they prosecute all shoplifters apprehended in their stores.

Allan Dalzell, manager of the Campus Book Store, said his store uses hired private police, costing the store "a lot of money," to watch for shoplifters. They prosecute every case.

"We haven't in the past," he said, "but you might say we're getting sick and tired of it."

Dalzell said mainly nonbook items are being stolen and the thieves are about evenly divided between male and female.

The Campus Book Store has apprehended about 10 shoplifters in the past week.

At the Student Book Store, where a private detective agency is employed to stalk shoplifters, Howard Ballein, store manager, said:

"We are apprehending about one a day. During this period that is fairly normal."

Both store managers said they have no idea how much they lose each year through shoplifting.

"We'd probably be shocked if we knew," Ballein said.

James D. Howick, manager of the MSU Bookstore on campus, said there is frequent evidence of shoplifting where no one has been apprehended — wrappers stuffed behind counters or known items missing. When a thief is caught at the MSU Bookstore campus police are called and the person may be prosecuted in East Lansing.

Howick said the loss to the bookstore through shoplifting is "very substantial" and "a tremendous expense."

Besides stealing from the store, Howick said, students also steal from each other. Frequently students' belongings are stolen from the boxes at the store entrance where they must leave their belongings.

Howick said the possibility of putting in lockers for students has been studied but decided against because other schools report they have not worked.

"Some stores that have installed lockers have taken them out," Howick said. "They turned out to be storage areas for off-campus students and didn't serve the purpose they were intended for. Students would use them as their base of operations for the day and most of the lockers would be taken by students not shopping in the store."

Concerning both theft from other students and theft from the store, Howick said:

"There's no reason to believe people at MSU are any more or less honest than people any other place."

At Hoslers, however, not much faith is being placed in human integrity.

The store has installed an electronic device that supposedly will be triggered if anyone attempts to go out of the store with one of the garments, all of which bear sensitized tags.

"I would say apprehensions have increased 70 per cent," Paula Johnson, Hoslers manager, said.

At Jacobson's "shoplifting is fairly well under control due to our own efforts," Robert J. Wilcox, store manager, said.

Wilcox said the store has had about 12 cases of shoplifting in recent months and "the vast majority are college age."

"We mean what we say," he said. "If you're caught, we will prosecute. I've had people in my office who can't believe it when I pick up the phone to call the police."

Wilcox said shoplifting "sure isn't worth it."

"It's an awesome thing to be read your rights, fingerprinted, and booked," he said.

But at the same time that they are going all out to catch shoplifters, some East Lansing merchants are embarking on an advertising campaign to educate the community that shoplifting is bad.

Nixon's pay raise delay supported by House vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's order for a $1.3 billion six-month delay in a federal pay raise was upheld by the House Monday 207 to 174. The Senate has yet to act.

A host of Southern Democrats joined Republicans in turning back a House move to make the pay raise effective Jan. 1 instead of next July 1, as Nixon ordered.

It was the first congressional vote on any of the President's emergency economic proposals, and he said a veto of his action postponing the pay raise would torpedo the whole package.

Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, plans to press for a vote in the Senate Wednesday or Thursday. Either the Senate or the House can override the President's pay-raise deferral action, without concurrence by the other chamber.

The Senate voted 65 to 4 Monday to give members of the armed forces a $381 million annual pay raise in addition to a $24. billion increase included in the already-enacted legislation to extend the draft.

In other developments on the economic front Monday:

•The Cost of Living Council ruled that retailers must keep available at each store a list of maximum prices permissible under the wage-price freeze.

•AFL-CIO President George Meany urged Congress to take active control of the economy. He told the House Banking Committee that Nixon has proven unworthy of trust in his moves to stabilize wages and prices. He argued that the administration program hurts labor while helping management.

•W. Abel, president of the AFL-CIO Steelworkers Union, said in a speech that the American worker "is drowning in a flood of imports" and declared Nixon's 10 per cent import surcharge is inadequate to solve the problem.

•A soft-coal strike continued but the United Mine Workers Scale and Policy committee met in New York. This committee is the one that passes on contracts agreed to by union and industry negotiators and its convening raised hopes that a settlement might be near.

•Economists participating in a Federal Home Loan Bank Board conference predicted 1971 home building will set a new record but that this will be exceeded in 1972.

Haste in council setup disturbing to Buckner

By JUDY YATES
State News Staff Writer

As procedures for placing voting student representatives on Academic Council slowly evolve, Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU) chairman Harold Buckner charged Monday that pressure to meet the Jan. 1 deadline may result in a poorly chosen membership.

"It's good to see that the faculty is interested in implementing the bylaws," Buckner said Monday. "Unfortunately they seem to be suffering from the same problem they had in passing the laws, that is, they are in such a hurry to get something set up by Jan. 1 that they cannot be sure it will work Jan. 2."

Buckner said even though ASMSU had some objections to the bylaws last spring, it is interested in seeing that it works as well as possible, especially since it is a two-year program.

"The first six months can make or break it and we don't want to see it broken because of lack of preparation on our part," Buckner said.

Buckner emphasized that ASMSU is doing its best to meet the Jan. 1 deadline even though it realizes there are going to be problems.

"I sometimes think the faculty thinks we are not doing our share because we disagreed with the bylaws last spring. We're trying as hard as we can to make the best of the situation," Buckner said.

ASMSU has appointed Mark Bathurst, Fairfax, Va., junior and former vice-chairman of ASMSU, and James Gates, Davison junior, as interim student representatives to the Academic Council until 10 student representatives - at - large are chosen.

The student members - at - large will be elected from a slate of candidates - at - large prepared by a Student Committee on Nominations. The Student Committee on Nominations will consist of three members appointed by ASMSU, three members appointed by the Council of Graduate Students (COGS) and the student member of the Steering Committee.

ASMSU has named Richard Yarborough, Malverne, Pa. junior; Donna O'Donohue, Harbert senior and Sam Riddle, Flint senior to the Student Committee on Nominations. Will Greene, COGS president, was unavailable for comment Monday regarding the appointments COGS will make.

Council asks stores post legal prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council said Monday retailers must keep available for public inspection at each store a list of legal prices permitted under President Nixon's wage-price freeze.

The council said sellers are required to permit prompt public inspection of ceiling prices from the list on an item-by-item basis.

A spokesman for consumer advocate Ralph Nader said the council's ruling is important, since it provides the consumer with more guidance to police the price freeze.

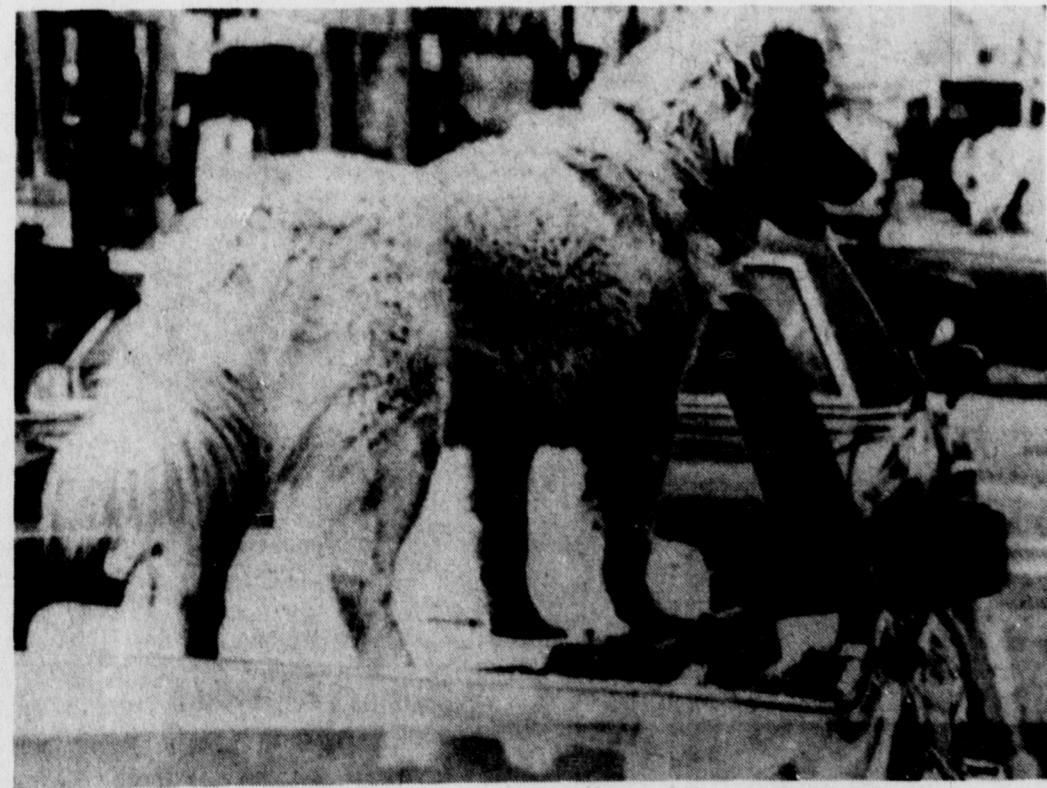

The council, releasing what it called "additional guidance" on the freeze, said consumers not satisfied with the ceiling price of a product provided by the seller should file a complaint with the local office of the Internal Revenue Service.

The Nader spokesman, Mark Frederickson, said the ceiling price lists have not been universally available to consumers. He cited a survey of New York stores showing the price lists were not available in a number of cases.

Several chain stores have contended the lists do not have to be available at the store as long as they are available within the company, Frederickson said.

The council said if customers question ceiling prices, sellers are encouraged to show records in support of the price on any particular item.

But this is not a requirement, it said, since "these records comprise proprietary information."

Pay hike proposal expected

By MICHAEL FOX
State News Staff Writer

The University administration is expected to announce today the recommendations it will make to the board of trustees on a proposed salary hike for faculty and staff.

Informed sources said Monday that an average 7 per cent pay hike is still considered a possible recommendation, despite the governor's announcement last week of a cut of up to 3 per cent in the state's $76-million appropriation to MSU.

It appears very likely that the University must make a decision on what pay hikes can be provided without final information from the state budget office as to the extent of any reduction in the MSU appropriation, one source commented.

The state budget office is currently requesting an assessment to be made in writing by each agency and institution to evaluate what impact a 3 per cent appropriation reduction would have. The deadline for this assessment, which would be submitted by MSU, the 12 other Michigan public colleges, and other state agencies, is mid-October.

Because of the apparent time lag of weeks until the state budget office may take any action to reduce appropriations, the University administration will make a salary hike recommendation to the trustees without a full knowledge of the budget cut, another source observed.

Furthermore, it is possible, though not necessarily probable, that a special meeting of the trustees will be arranged to weigh a salary hike recommendation. The next scheduled trustee meeting is Oct. 15.

If the administration does make a final decision on a salary increase early this week, the MSU trustees will probably be asked to consult their calendars for a mutually convenient time for a special meeting later this week or early next week one source said.

The trustees already plan to convene on campus for a public hearing Oct. 14 on a proposed cross-campus highway, to be followed by their regular monthly meeting Oct. 15. One special meeting arranged for Sept. 29 had been called by the administration, but was cancelled the afternoon of the night meeting when the possible cuts in state appropriations were announced.

Sources said Monday that the administration would like to recommend a 7 per cent salary increase to the trustees if at all possible. Internal reallocation of priorities, mainly elimination of some programs or services, might account for more than half of the 7 per cent raise.

The 7 per cent proposed raise would cost about $4 million, of which the University had planned to contribute 3.5 per cent of $2 million. But with the cut, more reductions in internal operations might be forthcoming to facilitate an even larger MSU contribution to the salary raise. The state legislature had provided for a 3.7 per cent salary hike in its appropriation to MSU.

Any pay raise granted by the trustees to MSU faculty would be retroactive to July 1. Furthermore, the amount of increase would vary between academic colleges and professional rank.

For example, full professors at MSU would probably receive a full 7 per cent pay hike. As a group, the full professors rank eighth in the Big Ten schools in terms of average compensation, according to one AAUP report.

Associate professors, assistant professors, and instructors are on more equitable terms in comparison with other leading Big Ten schools and probably therefore will not receive as large increases as will full professors. The details of any administration recommendation will not be available until such time as the trustees convene to weigh any administration recommendation.

The one development expected today in the long battle for faculty and staff raises will be an announcement of an average percentage of increase and an indication as

TAFT-HARTLEY ACT

Nixon charts action to end dock strikes

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Negotiations in the West Coast dock strike were reported at an impasse Monday and President Nixon decided to invoke the Taft-Hartley Act to get the longshoremen back to work.

Word of the impasse came from J. Curtis Counts, chief of Federal Mediation Service. He said he had notified the White House of the deadlock.

Shortly afterward, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler announced at the Florida White House that Nixon would ask for an injunction within the next few days to get the dockers back on the job for an 80-day cooling off period.

Ziegler said the big question was whether Nixon also would seek an injunction against longshoremen in East and Gulf Coast ports who walked off the job Friday.

Nixon's first step upon his return to Washington Monday night, Ziegler said, would be appointment of a five-member board of inquiry to report to him — possibly by Tuesday night — on all dock negotiations.

After he has the report, Nixon will ask the Justice Department to seek an injunction against the striking members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, Ziegler said.

There was no immediate comment from union and management leaders.

It was the first time since taking office that Nixon personally moved to invoke the provisions of the Taft-Hartley law.

Counts, who had been sitting in on marathon negotiations in San Francisco between the ILWU and the Pacific Maritime Association, said of the talks: "They have reached an impasse of such nature that the likelihood of termination of the work stoppage seems very unlikely."

The current dual tieup marked the first time dockers were on strike on both coasts simultaneously. Involved in the East were 45,000 members of the AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association, in the West 15,000 members of the independent Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Thieu wins 91.5% of vote as fraud charges mount comparable to the outburst in Da Nang, where at least three persons were killed and nearly 60 wounded over the weekend. Covering the election in Long An Province south of Saigon, an American television crew said it filmed a voter casting two ballots. The voter said the second one was for his wife, who couldn't come to the polling place.

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu claimed Monday his overwhelming majority in re-election was a defeat for communism in South Vietnam and a victory for democracy.

Elected as Thieu's vice president was Sen. Tran Van Huong, 68-year-old former premier who came out of retirement to join the ticket. Huong has been ailing and is likely to take nothing more than a background role in Thieu's new regime.

But charges of fraud mounted as swiftly as results were posted in Sunday's uncontested balloting.

The Vietnamese National Election Center gave Thieu 91.5 per cent of the ballots cast. His press secretary estimated the vote against Thieu at 5.5 per cent. No accounting was given for the other 3 per cent.

In Saigon, an election official said all polling places were ordered in advance to replace invalid, meaning anti-Thieu, ballots with valid ones and to call police if newsmen tried to visit the polls. He said more than 400 ballots were replaced at his polling station.

AT BUDGET LEVEL

Senate limits $ for Laos

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Monday to set the first congressional limit on U.S. spending in Laos, approving a ceiling at the budgeted level of $350 million after war critics dropped efforts for a sharp cut.

Symington said "it's better to have a half a loaf than none at all." Symington proposed originally a spending limit of $200 million excluding only the bombing around the Ho Chi Minh trail.

R-Ore.; Mike Mansfield, D-Mont.; Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine and Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio.

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, agreed to support the limit after Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., its sponsor, narrowed its application.

After a series of conferences, Symington agreed to raise the limit to $350 million and omit any ban on the $143 million budgeted for bombing in Northern Laos.

Stennis said in endorsing the revised amendment "it doesn't add any power to our legislative control but it does set a pattern here of operations . . . for the members of the Armed Services committee to consider" in the future.

The limitation placed in the $21-billion military procurement bill applies to economic and military aid plus Central Intelligence Agency support of both Laotian and Thai irregular forces trying to keep the small landlocked Indochinese country from falling to North Vietnam.

In addition, the amendment includes provisions requiring the Nixon administration to keep Congress informed of actual expenditures in Laos on a quarterly basis and provide written explanations of future requests for funds.

The Mississippi Democrat said also, however, "it gives a legislative recognition that these funds are needed."

It includes all U.S. bombing activities — attacks in and around the Communists' Ho Chi Minh supply trail and those in support of Laotian forces in the Plain of Jars and in Northern Laos.

Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., said he fears the amendment would be interpreted as an authorization for U.S. involvement there.

Funds for Laos have been included with those for South Vietnam and Thailand in a $2.5 billion item in the procurement bill.

Approval was by a roll call vote of 67 to 11 with opposition coming from a handful of war opponents who considered it could be interpreted as an authorization for U.S. action in Laos and from administration backers opposing any restrictions.

Besides Fulbright, the amendment was opposed by Sens. William Brock, R-Tenn.; Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass.; James L. Buckley, Con-R-N.Y.; Marlow W. Cook, R-Ky.; John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky.; Peter Dominick, R-Colo.; Mark O. Hatfield,

In an earlier roll call Monday, the Senate voted 65 to 4 in favor of an amendment by Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., to grant members of the Armed Forces an additional $381 million annual pay raise on top of the $24. billion increase included last month in the draft-extension act.

But the increase, mainly additional pay for the lower enlisted grades, faces a doubtful future in conference.

Holladay said he was later shown a report by Henderson which did not respond to reports of indiscriminate killing Henderson received at the meeting culminating Young's order.

More racial animosity

On the basis of racial stereotypes, the opinion of blacks about whites has seen a rise in animosity in the past year as contrasted with a decline in derogatory opinions of white people concerning blacks, the Louis Harris survey reported Monday.

In the past 12 months, the report said, the number of blacks in the United States who agree with the statement, "Whites are really sorry slavery for the blacks was abolished," has risen from 63 to 70 per cent.

"By contrast," Harris said, "over an eight - year period the number of whites who hold stereotypes about blacks is declining." For example, the survey said, the number of whites who feel that blacks "have lower morals than whites" has decreased from 55 to 40 per cent.

IN LABOR PARTY VOTE

British Market entry opposed

BRIGHTON, England (AP) — Britain's opposition Laborites voted overwhelmingly Monday to resist the country's entry into the European Common Market on existing terms and demanded that the issue be tested in an early national election.

The vote was carried at the party's annual convention by a margin of 5,073,000 to 1,032,000. Delegates representing rank-and-file party branches and the country's big labor unions are empowered at the convention to vote in the names of their members.

The party took its anti-Common Market stand after hearing one of its leaders, James Callaghan, serve notice that a future Labor government will seek to renegotiate terms accepted by Prime Minister Edward Heath's Conservative government in four key sectors. These relate to high food prices, the right to buy food outside the Common Market area without incurring penalties, the financial contribution Britain has agreed to make and plans for developing Britain's depressed regions.

Callaghan went further in reserving a future Labor government's right to seek better terms and understandings than those the Heath government has obtained from the six-nation Continental grouping.

Speaking of Heath's undertaking ultimately to join the Europeans in an economic and monetary union, he said: "Mr. Heath should be warned not to take us far beyond that road before a general election is held. For it involves locking exchange rates in Europe together. And if that means central decisions taken by a Brussels bureaucracy which is effectively responsible to no one, then we say 'no'."

Callaghan argued that the implications of forming an economic and monetary union are so breathtaking that they would lead to demands - which he said European Socialists already are making - for "a federal United States of Europe."

The Heath government has long maintained that a national election is not needed to endorse British entry into an enlarged Common Market. Heath argues it is now up to the House of Commons to judge whether the terms are acceptable. That process of judgment begins Oct. 22 when lawmakers debate the issues for six days before making their choice.

In another vote Monday, the Laborites implicitly confirmed they still would be ready to join the European grouping if somehow - either before or after Heath leads the nation in - they can get a better bargain. By

3,082,000 to 2,005,000 votes they rejected a left-wing resolution urging the party "to press for the withdrawal of Britain's application" and to declare "its total opposition to entry under any terms." The sponsors offered as an alternative the goal of "a Socialist United States of Europe."

FOR LAWYERS

State court passes revised ethics code

The Michigan Supreme Court Monday adopted a revised code of ethics which forbids the release of statements by attorneys and prosecutors to the press that might influence the outcome of pending cases.

The change in the lawyer's code of conduct - the first since 1935 - reduces 47 canons into nine restrictions on press coverage of criminal trials.

The code demands that:

- *Statements cannot be made concerning the identity, testimony or credibility of a prospective witness.
- *Statements cannot be made concerning the results of any tests or the objection of the accused to submit to examination or tests.
- *Statements cannot be made revealing the prosecutor's opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused.
- *Statements cannot be made concerning the character or prior criminal record of the accused.
- *Statements cannot be made concerning the possibility of a plea of guilty or to the acceptance of a lesser charge.

In addition to the restrictions set by the court, the American Bar Assn. accepted a provision which requires attorneys and prosecutors to provide the name, age, residence, occupation and family status of the accused, and any information necessary to aid in the apprehension of the accused or to warn the public of any danger he may present if not apprehended.

Chief Justice Thomas M. Kavanagh said he feels the new guidelines are more specific than the 47 old ones and that they will serve to clarify the professional behavior expected of attorneys.

E.Lansing gets $180,000 from revenue-sharing bill

East Lansing will receive an additional $180,000 in state monies this year under the new state revenue-sharing bill recently signed by Gov. Milliken, east Lansing city officials said Monday.

The unexpected increase in revenues could possibly lead to a decrease in property tax, City Manager John M. Patriarche said. Patriarche also said that the money from this bill would not be used in this year's budget.

"We weren't sure we were going to get the money so we didn't plan on it," he said.

The new state income revenue formula includes the tax effort of the city, mainly property tax and income tax, in addition to the traditional revenue return from sales and intangible taxes.

The bill provides for $226.1 million, of which $52.5 million will be paid on the basis of local tax effort, with the rest paid on a population basis. All cities are guaranteed at least $16.50 per capita, regardless of their tax effort.

In East Lansing this will mean $21.24 per resident, or $3.80 more than expected. The city will receive a total of about $1,042,000 in state revenue.

State Rep. Jim N. Brown, R-Okemos, said East Lansing's share of the state revenue is actually lower than it could be, primarily because the 1970 census upon which it is based was taken during spring break, while most students were away. The 1970 census figure for East Lansing is 47,540, including the MSU campus.

Brown, whose district includes East Lansing, said he was not pleased with the revenue-sharing bill.

"East Lansing is the exception," he said. "Most of my district will lose money in this bill."

Brown said the bill was implemented mainly to help Detroit, which stood to lose money because of a decrease in its population.

The new formula, with its emphasis on city tax effort, will increase Detroit's share of state revenue to $48 million, almost $26 million more than it received last year.

DEARBORN (UPI) — The American Independent Party has little chance of putting anyone into political office during this century, according to Georgia's Lt. Gov. Lester G. Maddox.

Panel cites backing for faculty pay hike

In an announcement to faculty members released Monday, Frederick D. Williams, chairman of the Faculty Affairs and Faculty Compensation Committee (FAFCC), said the committee "has not reason to believe that the administration has abandoned its support of a 7 per cent retroactive increase" for faculty.

Williams continued that there is no indication that the administration will drop the 7 per cent pay plan retroactive July 1, even if appropriations to the University are reduced later this fiscal year.

The information came out of a Thursday meeting between the FAFCC, Provost John E. Canton and Elliott Ballard, assistant to the president.

Williams said a set of guidelines prepared by FAFCC for the distribution of monies for faculty salary increases was accepted by the administration with little or no revisions.

'U' executive employees ponder group bargaining

The Administrative Professional Assn. will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in the University Club to consider a resolution which could lead to formalized collective bargaining with the University.

The group is presently an advisory committee to the administration on salaries and benefits to administrative professionals (A-Ps).

The resolution to be considered reads: "The MSU Administrative Professional Assn. Executive Board should exercise all necessary resources and powers of the association to represent administrative professional employees in all conditions of employment in accordance with applicable law."

Passage of the resolution would give the Administrative Professional Assn. the authority to negotiate with the administration over the recent suspension of the A-P merit salary raise plan.

Approval of the resolution could also lead to an increase in the dues structure, the hiring of a labor attorney, a call for an election for representation and the assurance of obtaining salary and benefit items bargained for in good faith.

The meeting will include an election to fill a vacancy on the association executive board and reports from the membership and classification study committees.

A patriotic game plan

For you Johnny - come - lately attendees of home football games, a historical explanation: in the days of our innocence a "doctor" named John Hannah held sway in the university penthouse.

A stern patriot, "Dr." Hannah decreed that, at least on Saturdays, his university and everyone at it would display the proper respect for our country, in this way:

Before the games, a squad of ROTC "Pershing Riflemen" would march over to the flagpole in the stadium, weapons a-bristle. As "Old Glory" was raised they would present arms and a cannon would be fired.

Alas, "Doc" Hannah was called to serve the country he so loved, and a free-wheeling, scurrilous libertarian of the first water, a Mr. Walter Adams, eased himself into the former's chair, probably through some political chicanery or other.

It seemed as though we'd had our last patriotic orgasm. This Mr. Adams, by fiat, ordered the riflemen's place taken by a gaggle of mere paramilitary boy scouts. He stilled our cannon. Saturday just wasn't the same. The band seemed unable to coax into our National Anthem the liveliness we'd come to expect. They played it as a dirge.

Now, thank the Lord, under the sage guidance of our new mentor, C. Reginald "Frag" Wharton, we are seeing a resurgence of the love for our nation which once permeated every Saturday tilt: Our first home game this year was graced by the presence of three sleek jet airplanes provided by one of America's scrappiest fighting outfits: the proud, tradition-riddled United States Air Force.

"When told there were no opponents scheduled for Wednesdays, Fishel said that would be all the better, and we could simply say beforehand that if MSU scored more than half the points we would consider it a viable victory."

And, masterfully piloting one of the swooping beauties was none other than one of our own Spartan grads, made good.

All this, and a moment of silence for our prisoners of war cruelly incarcerated deep in "The People's Republic of" Vietnam, too.

Your columnists have learned that Michigan State's return to proper respect for the flag and to honor its country is a product of careful study and dedicated planning over many long months on the part of our central administration. For example, take this leap:

The minutes of the meeting of the Ad Hoc MSU Loves America and All That It Stands for Standing Committee, Sept. 27, 1971.

Chairman Wharton called the meeting to order.

Chairman Wharton asked for suggestions of ways MSU could display its appreciation for the great nation it lives in. Vice Chairman Florence King suggested MSU try to schedule Lt. Calley's Medal of Honor presentation for halftime of the homecoming game. She said Calley had gunned down 102 gooks, whereas Sgt. York had wasted only 40 krauts.

"Dr." Richard Bernitt asked whether the 102 gooks had been NVA gooks or VC gooks. Ms. King said she didn't know because most of them had been under the age of nine, and besides, they all look alike, anyway.

"Dr." Robert Perrin said some of the taxpayers would probably enjoy seeing our entire Reserve Officer's Training Corps out there, but reservations were expressed about this, since the cadet has only two hands, and would therefore find it hard to raise the flag, shoot the cannon, and present arms all at the same time. "Dean" Smuckler suggested we reorder the priorities for the Seventies, starting with replacing the boy scout ushers with Marines, and instructing them to "bare-handedly off" anyone trying to sneak into better seats.

A representative from the Howell Alumni Chapter offered to have "some of the boys" put on a show before the game. If the University would provide the buses, he said, his group would paint "Pontiac Public Schools" on them and blow them up. In uniform. And all this during the raising of an asbestos flag on a cross which bursts into flames when the band gets to the "rockets red glare" part.

Wesley Fishel came in late and reported that he'd just talked to "Dr." Hannah, who had said he was pretty sure AID could provide a few used gooks we could waste.

Fishel said he envisioned a crack squadron of B-52's buzzing the stadium, and unloading two or three 500-pounders on the hunkering gooks.

Professor Hugh Daugherty objected, but Fishel said there was no sweat: right after the bombs hit, the Army Corps of Engineers could dash out and bulldoze all the bodies into the bomb crater and lay new Tartan Turf over them. He said the odor problem could be whipped by doing this every home game, so that the fresh meat would cover the stench of last week's carrion.

Chairman Wharton said he thought we could hack it, and asked Fishel when he thought we ought to pull it off. Fishel suggested any Wednesday would do.

When told there were no opponents scheduled for Wednesdays, Fishel said that would be all the better, and we could simply say beforehand that if MSU scored more than half the points we would consider it a viable victory.

"Big" Munn objected, and threatened to resign from the committee.

"Dean" Smuckler agreed to the bombing idea, on the condition that he be allowed to present Doctor of Human Letters degrees to William Westmoreland and, posthumously, Ngo Dinh Diem at halftime.

Florence King threatened to get a complement of her women's lib friends to perform self-immolation on the 50 if Madame Nhu didn't get a degree, too.

Chairman Frag's motion to adjourn died for want of a second.

Respectfully Submitted, Doctor Jack Breslin, Secretary.

Secrecy condemned but meetings continue

Every once in a while a MSU trustee lambasts the board for conducting important business in closed meetings which supposedly are only to be used to discuss confidential financial matters.

It's just like a skyjacking. Or a longshoreman's strike. Or maybe even fighting over the Suez Canal. It's one of those events which happens every other month or so which warms tempers briefly, gets a few folks excited, but peters out in the end to an event of relative insignificance.

The most recent instance occurred at the Sept. 9 board meeting. Warren Huff, D-Plymouth, suggested the board move an item on its closed session agenda the following day to an open session. The topic was the Presidential Commission of Admissions and Student Body Composition report, a subject which had always been treated in open sessions before. Clair White, D-Bay City, joined Huff to move the report onto the open meeting agenda, but the majority of trustees voted against the move.

Earlier this year Patricia Carrigan, D-Ann Arbor, proposed formal guidelines for closed meetings which would specify which matters would be discussed in private and which ones would be handled in public. Her guidelines were supported by Don Stevens, D-Okeemos, and Dr. Blanche Martin, D-East Lansing. But her guidelines were rejected by the board.

Thus within the past year a majority of the trustees have all voiced opposition of some sort to closed meetings. Yet in the meantime all of the trustees keep on attending these secretive sessions.

Supposedly only confidential financial and personnel matters are to be discussed in closed meetings, such as staff salaries. Traditionally, however, the most important University business is conducted in these clandestine gatherings, behind the back of the public. In 1969 state Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley noted in an opinion that private sessions were "rarely necessary" and should be "actively discouraged."

Soon the trustees will conduct another closed meeting. And if trustees Carrigan, Huff, White, Stevens, and Martin attend that closed meeting, they will be continuing their hypocritical actions of the past. If a trustee is truly opposed to conducting nonfinancial or personal business in private, he will simply disassociate himself from the process. The time has come for the trustees to either put up or shut up. The credibility of a trustee who cries out about the undesirability of closed meetings, yet keeps on attending them, is nil.

Harty OBA proposal: motives cloud issue

One of the tragedies of government - and student government in particular - is that people so often get in the way of their own politics.

A topical case in point occurred at last week's ASMSU board meeting. Vice Chairman Kevin Harty introduced a motion to abolish the two Office of Black Affairs (OBA) voting seats on the student board. Harty's proposal would, however, allow minority students nonvoting ex officio representation.

On the surface the move is excellent. The retention of special interest seats on the student board - including Residence Halls Association and Off-Campus Council seats - is in direct contradiction to the one-man, one-vote district representative system. Further, since OBA is officially in the ASMSU cabinet there is a question of conflict of interest in their also maintaining votes on the student board. It is questionable, however, whether such a significant structural change would best be implemented in the middle of the term or, for that matter, the academic year.

Harty's mistake is that he has chosen to use his laudable OBA motion as a vehicle for pursuing his personal politics. He has made it abundantly clear that his intent is as much to compel the restoration of the Inter-Fraternity Council and PanHellenic seats as it is to undo OBA representation. In essence his proposition comes down to an "if OBA, then IFC-PanHel" equation.

Needless to say such machinations - while no doubt establishing Harty as a Greek folk hero - has had an exceedingly adverse effect on the original motion. Whatever they may have thought before, OBA is certainly now dug in to fight for their seats and the barbed wire is already being strung between the various board blocs.

The net result of this fiasco will undoubtedly be division and bad feeling on the board and the ultimate perpetuation of the present inherently inequitable representation system. And the big losers will, as usual, be the students.

Property levy not just

In the very near future Gov. Milliken and Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley will file suit before the state supreme court asking that the state's system of financing public schools through local property taxes be declared unconstitutional.

The crux of the matter is that the present funding system is utterly "unfair, unequal and inequitable." On the one hand property owners are forced to assume the financial burden for the entire community. Conversely, economically depressed areas are compelled to accept substandard educational institutions since the big property tax dollars are concentrated in the affluent suburbs rather than the inner city.

If the recent California Supreme Court ruling is in any way precedent setting, Michigan's high court will have little choice save to strike down the existing system. Certainly, the California arguments seem equally applicable to this state.

The one logical alternative to the present revenue system is the implementation of a state-wide educational income tax. In this manner all citizens will share equitably in the cost of schooling the children of Michigan.

Don't mess with Harry

WASHINGTON - I received a call from a guy last week who claimed he was president of the Harry Antidefamation League. He said, "You wrote an article last week in which you used the name Harry to make fun of a TV football situation. For years now, radio, television and newspaper writers have been holding up the name Harry to ridicule and derision, and we Harrys have banned together to do something about it."

"Now wait a minute, sir," I protested. "I do not always use Harry when I need a fall guy. Sometimes I use George, other times Arnie and quite often I use Henry."

"That's what I mean," Harry said. "Why don't you ever make fun of the Steves or Jims of Jacks or Bills."

"There is nothing funny about a Steve, a Jim, a Jack or a Bill," I answered frankly. "The image just isn't right. If I call my guy Chuck or Jack, my reader is going to expect him to punch someone in the nose. But if I call him Harry or Fred or Louie, the reader is going to expect him to be punched in the nose. It's as simple as that."

"But why should this be? We Harrys and Mortons and Arnies and Chesters have a right to live too."

"I didn't make the rules," I protested. "A long time ago there must have been a Harry who slipped on a banana peel. From then on, any time a writer needed a name for someone who was going to get all fouled up, he used Harry."

"Well, we Harrys don't like it," Harry said. "It's bad enough that people are always making fun of Harry, but it's even worse when they make him the guy who commits the crime on a TV show."

"I don't know why you take offense at that," I said. "Everyone knows that if a Harry doesn't have two left feet, he probably has criminal instincts."

"Yeah, but why does a Harry always have to be one of Rocco's boys or Frank's henchman? Why can't he be the leader of the mob?"

"People just don't think of Harry as a leader," I said. "Writers know this. If they have to come up with a name for a gang leader they would rather go with Red or Dusty or even Phil. You just can't see a Harry being the brains behind a bank job. As a matter of fact, it's more likely that he's the guy to make the fatal error so everyone gets caught."

"You see? All your prejudices about Harrys are coming through. Those of us who are not public jokes are stool pigeons."

"Not necessarily," I said. "Max is more liable to rat on the gang than Harry."

"We aren't taking it any more," Harry said. "From now on every time we see a Harry presented in a bad light on television, we're going to call the sponsor and tell him that everyone in this country named Harry is going to boycott his product. And we also intend to cancel our subscriptions to any newspaper that holds up a Harry to derision."

"Frankly, sir..." I began.

"The name's Harry," he said angrily.

"Harry, then," I said. "I think you're being oversensitive. If your name was Hubert or Alfred or even Bert you might have a case. But I only use Harry when I'm looking for a minor snook. If I'm looking for a real hopeless case I'll never use Harry."

"Who do you use then?"

"Marvin."

Know facts of 'U' employment

To the Editor:

This letter is in response to the articles in the State News on Wednesday, September 29, 1971, regarding the "Meatball of the Week" award.

I am really quite elated in receiving an

Band ban

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to the recent article and editorial in the State News concerning females being admitted to the MSU Marching Band. Mr. Bloomquist is reported to have said that women have never participated in marching band nor have they ever requested admittance to the all male ranks. This is his justification for their absence. He also stated that he could not recall an official policy banning women from marching, though he felt they were not capable of handling the rigorous schedule.

In December of 1967, I wrote requesting information on applying for membership in the marching band. I was informed that it was an all male organization and that if I desired to play my instrument I could try out for one of the other organizations on campus. I am sure that there must be other women on this campus who have had the same experience.

award, but prior to bronzing that "Meatball", it might be interesting if the University administration and the state legislators had a chat about the figures in the appropriations bills and see if they clearly understand what they represent.

FACT 1 - If the figures only represent student enrollment, then it is clear that MSU has 159 less students enrolled this year than last with an increase in appropriations of $6,026,504.00 from the legislature.

FACT 2 - There has been a definite phase-out of employment at MSU. (Everyone should know that any employee who is laid off at MSU does not receive unemployment compensation regardless of how many years he has worked there. The state universities in Michigan are the only State employers that have seen fit to remain exempt from providing unemployment compensation for their employees.)

FACT 3 - These figures of research may be amusing to some, but they are the figures in the state appropriations bills which appropriations of tax-payer's dollars are based on. (Maybe the University should submit an "On-On" campus figure for those students actually living on campus. It would be interesting to see the actual figures of students living on the MSU campus for last year and this year (1970 and 1971).)

This is not amusing to the Union membership as they lose employment or promotional rights. CMU laid off 38 and EMU laid off 17 this past week. Union officials have already had one meeting with House Appropriations Chairman, State Representative Copeland, and will continue to pursue the issue until we find out what is really going on.

Overcrowding yields rebates

By RAY ANDERSON State News Staff Writer

Residence hall overcrowding is being dealt with as rapidly as possible, and will be completely eliminated by the end of the term, according to numerous residence hall officials.

There has been an effort by the entire staff to honor commitments to returning students, and, he indicated, most of the over-assigned rooms contained freshmen.

weeks in the fall or until space becomes available through cancellations and dropouts.

Resident hall managers have told Underwood that a significant number of students in over-assigned rooms have chosen to remain rather than move and establish new contracts.

Those who choose to remain in an over-assigned room or suite following an offer to take a less-crowded room or suite forfeit a rebate, he said.

The rebate will be $3 per man per week for three man rooms, and $2.50 per man per week in five man suites.

Credit for the student will be issued to his or her university account, Underwood reports. Students who reside in an over-assigned room for the entire term and then drop out will be sent a refund.

"Everyone eligible for a refund will get one," he said.

Committee Chairman Earl Nelson, D-Lansing, said Thursday that meetings held during the past few months indicated a need for state-wide public hearings, which he said, are tentatively scheduled to begin in the next couple of weeks.

There has been a good deal of interest expressed on both sides of the coin," he said. "I've received mail from students, low income renters, middle class renters in Southfield, various consumers organizations and some private testimony given to the attorney general by renters and tenants."

He indicated the public hearings are being held to determine the exact scope of the problem, and he hopes to get at least five of the committee's seven members to each of the hearings.

"Accusations are rampant on both sides and this will provide the public with an opportunity to testify in their behalf, and provide some legislative input," Nelson said.

Legislation is not expected to reach the floor until January or February, he said, but the conclusions drawn from the hearings will assist the committee in obtaining relevant and equitable legislation to grapple with the problem.

Hearings will be held in Lansing, Detroit, Ann Arbor, Grand Rapids and various other cities.

Other members of the committee are Joseph Forbes, D-Oak Park; Alma Stallworth, D-Detroit; James O'Neill, D-Saginaw; Thomas Sharpe, R-Howell; Melvin DeStigter, R-Hudsonville and James Defebaugh, R-Birmingham.

Bookstore case muddled

By JONI BENN State News Staff Writer

It was a game of managerial musical chairs Monday morning on the third floor of Student Services Bldg., as the newly reorganized Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU) Bookstore was closed, then reopened.

by the student governing group, the bookstore question has been torn by conflict in goals. The conflict has already resulted in what ASMSU termed "a suspension of operations," followed by a resumption of business in the afternoon by bookstore codirector Donald Bale.

joint decision made Friday by Diane Rathnow, ASMSU director of cabinet services, and bookstore codirectors Mary Jane Brininstool and Bale.

The three decision-makers had been advised by Grant Greuc, ASMSU comptroller, that the bookstore venture had become temporarily unfeasible.

"A bookstore without books is a financial liability," Ms. Rathnow reiterated yesterday afternoon.

To end any affiliation with the debt-ridden Man and Nature Corp., the new management has sent back any stock ordered by the former management.

Ms. Rathnow projected that since most students have already bought texts for fall term courses, it would be unwise to buy stock or resume operations until January.

Bale disagreed, however. "The bookstore was closed this morning because no one was here to staff it," the codirector said as he opened the facility for business in the afternoon.

Though Bale agreed that operations will be slowed by a lack of stock, he promised a new supply of paperbacks next week, with the bookstore resuming "full force" with an increased supply of text books by winter term.

The store was closed again by 3 p.m. Monday.

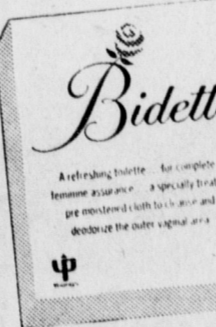

Although final jurisdiction lies with Ms. Rathnow, as advised by Greuc, any formal decision to suspend operations will be brought to the ASMSU board for approval.

GOV. MILLIKEN'S order to cut the state approved budget allotments by as much as 3 per cent was criticized Monday by Secretary of State Richard Austin as "arbitrary, insensitive and unilateral."

The governor's proposal would divert $75 million to the general fund.

"The proposed budget is balanced," Austin said. "This 3 per cent cut could cripple some departments including the Dept. of State, and do irreparable harm to important services such as education, housing and other human needs which at best are already inadequately financed."

A REVIEW on the environmental impact of all state actions which affect Michigan's environment has been called for by Gov. Milliken.

In an executive directive to all state departments, the governor asked that the 15 member Advisory Council for Environmental Quality coordinate the review system.

The Council is made up of various state agency heads and public representatives.

"Major state activities which affect the environment need to be carefully scrutinized so that the changes brought about in land, water or air use are consistent with overall state environmental policy objectives," Milliken said.

The council will establish guidelines for the departments regarding the review, will evaluate the reviews and recommend whatever action might be necessary.

Abbot initiates night ID check

By LINDA WERFELMAN
State News Staff Writer

With management hopes of limiting thefts and maintaining close hall relations, Abbot Hall this fall became the first men's residence hall to employ night receptionists.

The hall management hired five work-study students, each of whom works one or two nights every week checking identification cards of students who want to enter the hall after closing.

The policy was suggested last spring and met with what Robb Mason, Abbot Hall resident adviser, called a "fairly positive" student response.

"We wanted to foster and secure a sense of community between Mason and Abbot," Mason said. Because those entering the hall after closing are residents of Abbot or Mason halls or their guests, the passageway connecting the two halls is now open all night.

Thefts of University and student-owned property also prompted the adoption of the night receptionist policy. Nonresidents who capitalized on student trust for one another were primarily responsible for the thefts, Mason said. "We want to prevent other people from invading this trust. We don't want patrolling security guards; we'd rather have the kids in the hall aware of what's being done," he added.

The project is succeeding, Mason said, explaining that the hall had not experienced large-scale thefts, similar to those which had occurred last year when furniture valued between $1,000 and $1,500 was stolen from the lobby.

The plan remains in an experimental stage throughout fall term, and will continue only with the approval of hall residents. Although most students have accepted the system, some have objected, probably because they are newcomers to the hall or do not understand the economic problems which led to the initiation of the policy, Mason said.

One new resident objected that the policy was overly protective. "I tolerate it, though. It's a practical idea," said Peter Fleury, Fraser freshman.

Another student, Andrew Sevald, Royal Oak freshman, said that the new policy had not affected him directly.

Men who had lived in Abbot Hall last year disagreed. "It's nice having the whole hall open, so I don't really mind too much," said Patrick McMullan, Ann Arbor sophomore. Mark Quick, Menominee junior, also endorsed the system, explaining that outsiders had frequently wandered through the building last year.

Id checks

Identification checks are being made for all students entering Abbot Hall after closing. Night receptionist Shirley Whittaker is shown checking IDs of two male students.

AS COURT BEGINS

Harlan, Black honored

WASHINGTON (AP) — A subdued Supreme Court resumed its public sittings Monday with tributes to former Justices Hugo L. Black and John M. Harlan.

In an 11-minute session opening of the 1972-73 term, the seven remaining justices took solemn note of the death of Black after 34 years of service, and the retirement of Harlan, a 16-year veteran who was stricken with spinal cancer.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, speaking for the court, eulogized Black and wished Harlan a restoration to health. He then accepted nine lawyers to practice before the court and adjourned until next Tuesday, when the first round of rulings since June will be announced.

The court's opening session is traditionally brief and without decisions or hearings. But it usually has an air of anticipation since it is the onset of a new term. But Monday the death of Black on Sept. 25 and the retirement of Harlan with a grave illness cast a shadow.

"He loved this court as an institution, and contributed mightily to its work, to its strength and to its future," Burger said of Black. "He reversed the Constitution; he had enormous respect for the presidency and for the Congress, but above all else he believed in the people."

Of Harlan, the chief justice said his decisions since 1955 "attest to his prolific and erudite contribution to the work of the court."

Justice William O. Douglas sat at the right hand of the chief justice, the place occupied by Black since 1945 as the most senior of the court's members. At Burger's left was Justice William J. Brennan Jr., who now is second in seniority.

Alternating, then, are Justices Potter Stewart, Byron R. White, Thurgood Marshall and Harry A. Blackmun.

There were no chairs at the two ends of the bench for the two new justices who are to be nominated by President Nixon subject to Senate confirmation.

A 20 YEAR-OLD RESIDENT of Wonders Hall was picked up at 10 p.m. Sunday as officers responded to a call about a peeping tom from a resident at 915 Cherry Lane. Officers said they observed the student peering in the window. He has been referred to the Ingham County prosecutor.

A TAPE-PLAYER, stereo speakers and assorted tapes were stolen from a student's car parked in Lot X, officers report. The equipment was valued at $45.

TWO SEAT CUSHIONS with an estimated value of $50 were stolen from the Union lounge sometime Saturday night, police said. The theft was reported by the assistant manager of the Union.

Lonesome Cowboys is a magnificent and very funny satire of the American Western that is liberally seasoned with our favorite 4, 8, 10 and 12-letter words and a cornucopia of nudity and sexual carryings-on that is—in combination —perhaps unprecedented!

Irish rally draws 5,000

The University of Notre Dame held a pep rally for the MSU game last Friday in which 5,000 students and alumni turned out for the Irish team. The Spartan followers will have a chance to display their wares on Friday (tentatively, as the rally may be moved back to Thursday if arrangements can be made so as not to conflict with the James Taylor concert) with a pep rally at Old College Field for the Michigan game.

Pep rally at MSU Friday

By RICK GOSSELIN
State News Sports Editor

Been yearning for the days of when MSU's football team was an honest-to-goodness midwestern threat, when people on campus really got excited about a football game, when pep rallies were the rule rather than the exception on Friday nights before a game?

Team wins rugby meet by 44 to 6

MSU's Rugby team defeated the inexperienced University of Toledo Rugby Club 44-6 in a match at Toledo last weekend. Ron Kyser was the high scorer for the Spartans with 14 points on three tries (touchdowns) and one conversion (two points). Tom Stone had two tries and one conversion, and John Christeller added one try and kicked two conversions.

Two new ruggers, Roger Hart and Bob Moglia, scored on try each. While the Spartan football team is taking on the University of Michigan Saturday afternoon, the MSU Rugby Club will also take on the Wolverines on Old College Field at 3:30 p.m. In the last two matches between the two clubs, MSU has lost by small margins. The match annually the roughest and most-played match of the year. For those interested, practices are held every Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday on Old College Field. There will be a club business meeting Wednesday night in the Men's M. building.

excitement on this campus is at a premium. And finally, for the first time since you know when, the MSU campus will be the scene of a pep rally on Friday night. The rally will be held at 6:30 p.m. Friday at Old College Field. The rally will last approximately 45 minutes, leaving plenty of time for students who wish to attend the James Taylor concert to walk next door to Jenison Fieldhouse. Duffy Daugherty and many of the team members will be there in addition to members of the Spartan marching band. At Notre Dame last Friday night, the students sponsored a pep rally that drew 5,000 people. There are only 10,000 students at Notre Dame. The students were quite vocal in their support of the team. Leon Hart, a former Notre Dame player and the only lineman ever to win the coveted

Varsity Club

The first varsity club meeting of the year will be held 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Varsity Club Room. The subject for the meeting will be "organization" and President Steve Piro urges all members to attend this first meeting of the year.

Heisman Trophy as college football's outstanding player, brought the throng to its highest peak of cheering when he proclaimed, "The student body has always been worth at least one touchdown a game to the Fighting Irish, but tomorrow against Michigan State, let's try to make it two." (The final score read Notre Dame 14, MSU 2.) Coley O'Brien was in attendance at the rally and he had the crowd howling for blood when he commented, "At Notre Dame, it's not how you play the game, but rather if you win or lose — just ask Purdue." (In obvious reference to the last minute 8-7 win over the Boilermakers when the Irish recovered a Purdue fumble in the end zone.) The American Broadcasting Co. (ABC-TV) was on hand to film the Notre Dame pep rally and there is a chance that ABC will be on hand to film the MSU

Cuellar, Oriole homers overpower Athletics, 5-1

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Big Boog Powell, hancuffed much of the season by an ailing wrist, backed Mike Cuellar with two towering homers Monday to move the Baltimore Orioles to within one game of their third straight American League playoff sweep with a 5-1 triumph over the Oakland A's.

World Series this weekend. They entertained themselves after the game by yelling, "We want Blue" — a reference to Oakland ace Vida Blue who was beaten in the first game 5-3 by Baltimore.

He was protecting a 2-1 lead in the seventh inning when Hendricks homer gave him an extra cushion and Powell's homer in the eighth wrapped it up.

After a 3,000-mile plane ride Monday evening, the two teams will play the third game of the series in Oakland at 3 p.m. EDT Tuesday with Jim Palmer starting for Baltimore against Diego Segui.

The deadline for team paddleball entries is 12 noon Friday, October 22. Fraternity play begins Tuesday Oct. 26, the independent action begins Wednesday, Oct. 27 and Residence Hall play starts Thursday, Oct. 28.

The deadline for handball doubles entry is 12 noon, Friday, Oct. 29. Play begins 7 p.m. Tuesday, November 2. Football pass competition will be held from Monday, Oct. 11 through Friday, Oct. 22. The Outdoor Pool will remain open until Saturday, Oct. 9.

If you have a liking for figures, finance and money, Aetna Life & Casualty might be a way to both job satisfaction and success.

If you haven't thought about insurance, maybe that's because you haven't heard the whole truth about it.

For example, because our business has become so sophisticated, we have one of the largest computer installations in the country. And, if you think of insurance in terms of premiums and settlements, you'll be surprised at how deeply Aetna is involved with stocks and bonds, equities, and real estate.

If you're analytically-minded, there are many careers open to you. As an actuary, accountant, computer programmer or securities analyst, for example. In these positions and others you'll be helping 27 million people who depend on Aetna for security in a shaky world. We have a reputation for not letting them down.

A brochure called "The Whole Truth" spells out how Aetna works, and the many specific opportunities we have for people of all talents. It's an honest picture of an honest business.

Why not stop in at your placement office soon and read it.

You could do yourself—and many other people—a lot of good.

Nixon's pay raise delay supported by House vote

In the House, leadership-backed Democrats pressing for a veto of Nixon's six-month pay raise delay accused the President of sacrificing federal employees' pay for his economic program before wage guidelines for everyone else have been announced. But Republicans with strong help from Southern Democrats supported Nixon's argument that federal employees must share sacrifices and that rejection of the $1.3 billion saving would break up his anti-inflation package.

"If you break the dam today, if you open up the dike," said Rep. William M. Colmer, D-Miss., "then the inflationary field will be flooded." But Democratic Speaker Carl Albert said Democrats were simply trying to give federal workers equal treatment with private workers and Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, D-Calif., disputed what he called Nixon's assertion that federal employees were being asked to make sacrifices on their own.

"What we're dealing with," Waldie said, "is a decree from the President sacrificing his employees to the failures of his economic policy." House GOP leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan said "there will be no general pay raise" for private workers after the present 90-day wage-price freeze ends - and said if there is he personally would back legislation to give federal workers a raise also.

The President's plan to save $1.3 billion by delaying the scheduled January pay raise for 4.3 million federal employees is the biggest single item in $5 billion worth of government spending cuts to offset the tax cuts.

Academic Council by any procedure they choose. The colleges are currently trying to bring their constituencies to a vote. Student representatives to the Academic Council, once selected, will elect one student, either a graduate or an undergraduate from their number, to sit on the Steering Committee. This student will also sit on the Student Committee on Nominations. "It appears that the college advisory councils and students are making progress in identifying their student constituency," Glenn Waxler, chairman of Committee on Committees, said Monday. Waxler notified the chairmen of the college advisory councils Sept. 21 that Oct. 22 is the tentative deadline for selecting the student representatives to the Academic Council. Waxler said he has not received any names.

FOR "COMPARABILITY" U.S. upgrades pay rates

WASHINGTON (AP) - The struggle over federal pay antedates the current presidential wage freeze, going back to 1962 when a program was begun which has doubled the government's payroll to $50 billion a year.

Federal employees have enjoyed 10 salary increases since the program to upgrade their pay was begun in an effort to make Uncle Sam competitive with private employers in the quest for talent.

The drive for "comparability" began during the Kennedy administration when New Frontiersmen were gearing up the government to beat the Soviet Union to the moon and take a more activist role in moving the country.

When the comparability pay raises began, the starting rate for a GS4 clerk was $4,040. Now it is $6,202. Average pay for the government's Grade 13 version of the junior executive has increased some $8,000 to a top of $23,089 in nine years. For the top - grade GS18, it has doubled to $36,000.

While the escalation looks drastic, salaries in the private market have gone up, too. The question under dispute is which has gone up further, faster.

Some private employers are complaining that the government is pricing them right out of the market. Actually, government pay still trails private industry in some crucial areas, but fringe benefits tend to make up the difference.

For example a professional chemist working for the government trailed his private enterprise counterpart by almost $5,000 a year in 1962. He now earns $25,174 a year, or about $2,600 less than the private - industry man. An unusually liberal pension plan and leave policy are probably worth at least the difference in dollars.

The government says it makes no apologies for its salaries either wav. And the Civil Service Commission says comparability has enabled it to get the people it needs.

The freeze - request was not the Nixon administration's first response to this reaction, which has intensified over the past year. Last August - two weeks before Nixon's economic speech - the White House ordered federal agencies to hold down white - collar promotions.

George Schultz, director of the Office of Management and Budget said the average grade level for government supervisors and executives and crept up to grade 8.1 and he wanted it down to 7.9 by mid - 1973.

Nixon's economic program not only asked for a six - month freeze on federal pay raises, but called for a 5 per cent cut in the work force.

Tight security

Music Co., believes it is impulse shoplifting that is on the increase.

The biggest point some people are missing is that we're not just trying to protect ourselves. They're not realizing the seriousness of the crime," he said. "They take it as a prank, but its going to be a real detriment to getting a job in the future.

"If you've ever been caught shoplifting you might as well hang up a career," he said. Westgate said companies and schools almost always check on the police records of prospective employees.

"Even if you're not convicted, it's a black mark you can't get rid of," he said. "I caught a shoplifter today," he said. "It was just luck - I don't have time to watch all the time. We catch the amateurs. The pros are too good for us." He said Hosters' system is the way to catch the pros.

With colder weather coming, Westgate said there will be more of an opportunity for shoplifters to conceal things in heavier clothing.

Judge Schoenberger, who hears all local shoplifting cases, said fines range from $65 up. "There's no set fine. I use discretion in every case," the judge said. "Sentencing depends on a number of factors - amount taken, past record, attitude, cooperation with authorities."

90 days in jail and a fine of $100 is the legal maximum punishment for shoplifting. The consequences can be much more far-reaching.

find a new freedom

Name one thing that hasn't gone up since 1950.

1. Try. Try hard.

The only thing we can think of is what we make. The Swingline "Tot 50" Stapler. 98¢ in 1950. 98¢ in 1971.

And it still comes with 1000 free staples and a handy carrying pouch. It staples, tacks and mends. It's unconditionally guaranteed. It's one of the world's smallest staplers.

And it's the world's biggest seller. Could be that's why it hasn't gone up in price in 21 years.

If you're interested in something a little bigger, our Cub Desk Stapler and Cub Hand Stapler are only $1.98. Both Tot and Cub Staplers are available at Stationery, Variety and College Bookstores.

The Swingline "Tot 50" 98¢ in 1950. 98¢ in 1971.

If you can name something else that hasn't gone up in price since 1950, let us know. We'll send you a free Tot Stapler with 1000 staples and a vinyl pouch. Enclose 25¢ to cover postage and handling.

TV audience, small town view MSU band's shows

By JOHN McKAY

As the five-bus caravan of the Spartan Marching Band pulled away to the tune of the "Mary Mayo Chorus" someone shouted, "I don't see Walter Adams walking alongside the bus."

It was that kind of weekend. The 215-man marching band was to perform Friday night for a Class "C" football game in the hinterlands of Kalamazoo County en route to Notre Dame. The buses lumbered out onto the highway and the smell of diesel fuel mixed with the aroma of black shoe polish as freshmen were initiated into the more pedestrian duties of new bandmen.

At 4:45 p.m. the crowd of 200 townspeople sent up a cheer as they caught sight of the MSU buses, and the Galesburg-Augusta High School band blared out the MSU fight song.

"Nothing this big ever happened in our town before," high school band member Nancy Fowler said. The whole surrounding countryside had mobilized to house the 215 musicians in homes as far away as Kalamazoo and Battle Creek.

Young girls whose parents had volunteered to host band members shared in the popularity of the visitors. "Can I stay at your house tonight, Caroline?" cried a chorus of petulant teenage girls.

With braces shining in the light of the mercury vapor lamps, another girl boasted that the drummer was staying at her house.

A record crowd, responding to billboard and TV and radio ads heralding the band, filled the stands of the newly finished football field.

The band did its half-time routine with a special attraction for the hosts—a new arrangement of the G-A fight song.

"G-A!! Look, they're spelling G-A!"

Virtually no one left his seat at half-time except to give the band a standing ovation. The band performed a post-game show and the spectators acted as though they would have stayed all night if the band did.

With the help of an additional 215 "cheerleaders," the hosts managed to trounce White Pigeon, 50-8. But this Friday night Football Boach Bill Maskill, who is used to coaching state champion teams at G-A, had to share the limelight with G-A band director Martin Benstein.

Benstein's brother, Harvey, is manager of the MSU band and is responsible for seeing that everything goes smoothly. By 7:30 a.m.

Saturday the buses were rolling out of the school parking lot headed for South Bend.

"Did you all have a good time in Galesburg?" Harvey asked.

"Yes, Harvey," they replied in unison.

"We went for pizza," one man shouted.

"We went to a prayer meeting," another said excitedly.

It was already 81 degrees at 10:00 a.m. when the band began playing on the courthouse steps in South Bend. Band Director Kenneth Bloomquist looked like a proud father as passing motorists yelled compliments and a crowd of 500 cheered from the sidewalk on the other side of the street. Little children sat on their fathers' shoulders and grown men stood on tiptoes to watch.

A motorcycle police escort with sirens blaring led the way through the heavy football traffic to the Notre Dame campus. When the traffic became too heavy on one side of the road, they used the other. Cars didn't offer too much resistance.

'U' ombudsman to attend meet

James D. Rust, University ombudsman, will attend a conference sponsored by the Carnegie Commission of Higher Education at the University of California in Berkeley Oct. 21-22.

Selected ombudsmen from across the country will meet to discuss the campus decision making process, and suggest ways in which it can be changed.

The small conference, consisting of from six to eight members, will include ombudsmen from Ohio State University, Cornell University and the University of Washington in addition to Rust.

Rust strongly favors increasing student voice in decision making and noted: "We're way ahead here."

He believes that the Taylor Report, which will be activated as of Jan. 1, is a step in that direction.

"It's not perfect, but is a beginning," Rust said.

"The Carnegie Commission probably sees us as close to what is going on, and will expect us to give an insight into what students think their role in decision making is," Rust said.

The 18-member Commission is headed by Clark Kerr, former president of the University of California.

Faculty musicians to play at Fairchild

An informal concert featuring some of MSU's most distinguished artists, will provide a "sneak preview" of upcoming concerts planned by the MSU Music Department.

The preview concert will be held at 8:15 p.m. today, in Fairchild Theatre. It is also intended as an introductory experience for students who would like to become acquainted with classical or serious music.

Host for the program will be Kenneth Beacher, director of MSU's Lecture-Concert Series, who notes that it is a rare opportunity to hear such an array of artists on one program.

Included on the program will be the MSU Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Dennis Burk, asst. professor of music, performing several of Dvorak's "Slovakian Dances." MSU's Beaumont String Quartet will perform the first movement of Beethoven's "Quartet, Op. 18, No. 6."

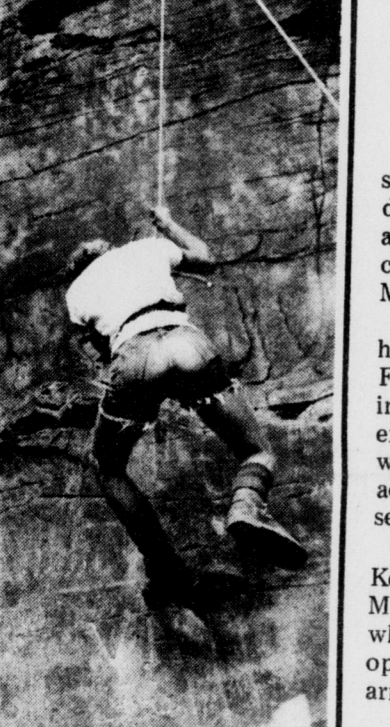

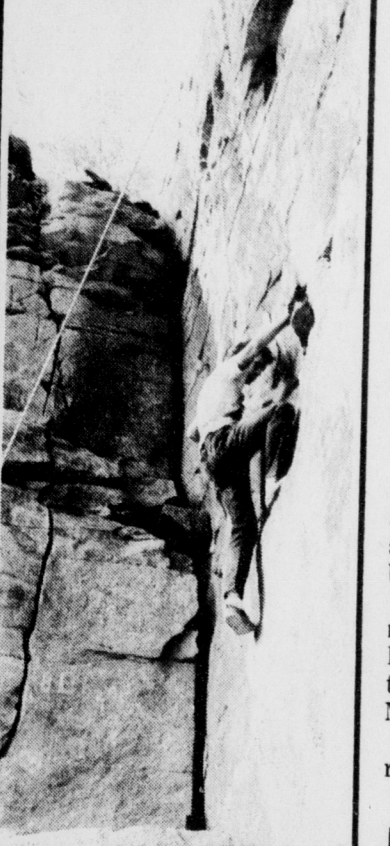

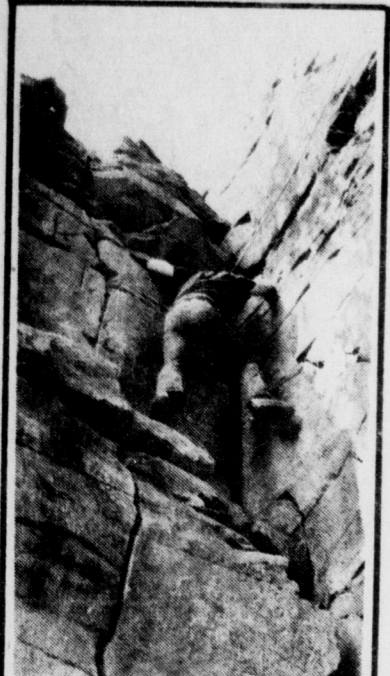

Pianist David A. Renner, asst. professor of music, will perform the first movement of Beethoven's "Sonata, Op. 22."

Violinist Walter Verdehr, asst. professor of music, and pianist Ralph J. Votapek, asst. professor of music, will be heard in the second movement of Cesar Franck's "Violin Sonata."

Votapek, accompanied by the MSU Orchestra, will also be heard in an unusual performance of Chopin's "Grand Polonaise" with the composer's original, but seldom heard, orchestration.

There will be an opportunity for the artists to talk about the music they will perform and the audience will also be able to question the performers.

The concert is open to the public without charge.
