Board OKs 'U' suggestion for faculty, staff pay hike

By BILL HOLSTEIN
State News Staff Writer

The board of trustees, with two members absent, voted unanimously Friday to approve administrative recommendations for an average 7 per cent pay increase for faculty and staff retroactive to July 1.

Robert Perrin, vice president for University relations, told reporters the University would not release what increases individual faculty members or individual departments received. He also declined to say what effect the raises would have on the ranking of MSU faculty among Big Ten schools.

The two trustees absent, Clair White, D-Bay City, and Warren Huff, D-Plymouth, were elsewhere in Kellogg Center when the vote was taken in the center's Heritage Room.

White came into the meeting minutes after the vote was taken. Huff did not come in at all. Neither were available for comment Sunday.

October pay checks will reflect the raises. The money due the University employees retroactive to July 1 will be distributed in special checks on Oct. 18 for salaried employees and on Oct. 21 for hourly workers.

Citing the "relative degree of deprivation" suffered by MSU full professors, President Wharton said full professors would receive more money in raises than other faculty.

MSU salaries for full professors rank eighth in the Big Ten, associate professors seventh and asst. professors second.

The meeting Friday was originally scheduled for Sept. 29 but was called off on short notice when Gov. Milliken said the state would withhold up to 3 per cent of the University's budget — or $2.28 million — as part of a state "contingency fund."

The University was faced with either reducing the anticipated 7 per cent raise or coming up with the necessary money by cutting back internally.

To further complicate the picture, the University was uncertain how much, if any, of the 3 per cent would eventually be returned to MSU.

Hence, the University developed "contingency plans" for whatever action the state may take.

If the state withholds only 1 per cent, Wharton said the University can compensate for the $650,000 gap in the General Fund by enforced closure of small enrollment sections, a freeze on vacancies, limitations on the spending of MSU's medical schools and reductions in maintenance expenditures.

If the state withholds 2 per cent, or $1.3 from the General Fund, Wharton said the University would defer more maintenance expenses and pay some operating expenses out of reserve funds.

A "significant reordering of program priorities" would be necessary if all 3 per cent were withheld, Wharton said.

He termed his contingency measures "emergency measures" and said they could leave the University in dangerous financial shape at the end of the fiscal year.

President Wharton said the University will be able "fairly soon" to determine whether the cuts will be crippling.

Calling the cuts "severe, painful and extremely difficult", Wharton called for a "reciprocal response" from faculty members who are to receive raises.

Trustee Kenneth W. Thompson, R-Grand Rapids, emphasized how hard the University (Please turn to page 11)

CHALLENGE FIGURES

'U' Chicano report disputed by groups

By BECKIE HANES
State News Staff Writer

The United Mexican-American Community Organization claimed Sunday that the administration report "MSU and the Chicano Community" contains false statistics concerning the enrollment figures of Chicanos at MSU.

The administration's report noted that the University ranks first in the state in enrollment of Spanish-surnamed students. The organizations said the report assumes that all Spanish-surnamed students enrolled at MSU are Chicanos (American citizens), but that many of these students are foreign-born, Spanish-surnamed students.

The organizations felt that the report was "further proof of the University's unstated policy and complicity in minority discrimination, persecution and exclusionary practices."

Jose Trevino, spokesman for the Chicano Veteran's Assn. contended that every statement, claim, figure and statistic presented in the University's report is false. Robert Perrin, vice president for University relations and author of the report, stated that about 370 Spanish-surnamed students were enrolled at MSU for fall 1970.

A report by the Chicano Veteran's Assn. stated that fall term at MSU included 25 to 30 more Chicanos and brought the enrollment of Chicanos at MSU to 55 or 60. This included all graduate and undergraduate students.

Only six or eight of the 100 Spanish-surnamed students enrolled at MSU in fall 1968 were Chicanos, the report by the Chicano Veteran's Assn. added.

This number was compiled by the association by contacting Spanish-surnamed students and determining their place of birth and the place of birth of their parents.

The University's report also lists 81 graduate students at MSU last fall with Spanish surnames while the Association's report states 10 or 12 Chicano students were admitted this fall.

FRIDAY HEARING SET

Overspending suit filed

By BOB ROACH
Executive Reporter

Two East Lansing City Council candidates and a campaign treasurer for them were charged with exceeding campaign expense limitations in the August primary, in a suit filed Friday in Ingham County Circuit Court.

The suit asked that Charles Max Phillips, Duane P. Bone, and Bones' treasurer, James J. Fleming, be prevented from spending any more money on their campaigns.

The plaintiffs, including write-in candidate Chuck Will and eight East Lansing voters, are also asking that the names of Bone and Phillips be stricken from the Nov. 2 ballot, or that the primary election be nullified and a new one held. Plaintiff's attorneys, Richard P. Oleksa and W. Perry Bullard, obtained an order from Judge Donald L. Reisig requiring the defendants to appear in court before Oct. 15 to show cause why they shouldn't be prevented from further spending.

Reisig also ordered the East Lansing Board of City Election Commissioners and the Board of City Canvassers to show cause why they shouldn't be ordered to strike the names of Bone and Phillips from the ballot.

State election law limits expenses for each candidate to $440 per individual committee for each election year. The plaintiffs claim that Bone and Phillips have already surpassed these limits.

From mandatory statements filed with the county clerk, the plaintiffs point out that in the primary Bone spent $1,580.82 of $2,367 contributed, and Phillips spent $1,061.33 of $1,536 contributed.

After the statements were filed, Bullard presented the alleged violations and asked Ingham County Prosecutor Raymond L. Schodeller to prosecute and void the nominations of Bone and Phillips.

Attorneys for the candidates later filed amended campaign statements listing various committees which they said existed before the initial statements were filed.

Schodeller did not give Bullard a formal reply, but notified the county clerk that, "Although some of these committees appear to be unorthodox in form, I do not find that any are in violation of Michigan Law."

On Sept. 24, Bullard, in behalf of the Coalition for Human Survival, asked Michigan Attorney General Frank J. Kelley to prosecute Bone and Phillips. Kelley was also asked to void their nominations. Conviction for filing fraudulent campaign expense statements could result in a $1,000 fine and two years imprisonment. Kelley has not yet acted on the request.

From his home Sunday, Phillips said he had no specific comments on the suit.

"I didn't know of this until I saw it in the paper Saturday," he said. "And then a young fellow from the Coalition for Human Survival brought a notice of it by the House at 9:30 Saturday night."

"We've understood the prosecuting attorney to say there is no cause for

White releases salary list

By DIANE PETRYK
State News Staff Writer

Proclaiming that public money is public business, Trustee Clair White, D-Bay City, released a complete list of individual MSU faculty salaries and recommended increases to the State News Saturday.

His action came despite urgings made at the Friday night board of trustees meeting that no one take "unilateral" or "arbitrary" action to release the figures before faculty and others have an opportunity to express their opinions.

"I think all citizens, this includes groups trying to accomplish legitimate goals — such as the Alliance group — are entitled to this information," White said. "How else can they support their contention of discrimination? Maybe they won't find any, but they're entitled to look."

White referred to the Alliance to End Sex

Discrimination at MSU, whose members have charged the University with concealing salary records to cover up discrimination against women faculty and staff.

"I have complained for seven years that we have a self-serving clique running our departments, holding down younger members who might present a threat to the ruling oligarchy," White said.

"Actually," he said, "My feeling is that instead of exposing some super-secret, this is good public policy."

"This unshackles a department hierarchy that makes Hitler's Germany look like a Boy Scout troop."

White said it is true that MSU salary averages for full professors are lowest among the Big Ten schools, but said some people at the top couldn't find a better salary anywhere.

"These guys are full-time politicians," he said.

White said he is doing some faculty members a favor in revealing their salaries. "The people of Michigan aren't cheapskates," he said. "They'll pay when they're convinced they are getting their money's worth."

But White said the taxpayers won't pay for outlandish salaries for people who also may not be carrying the required teaching load. At the special Friday night trustee session convened to deal with the proposed faculty pay raise, which six trustees passed unanimously, White and Trustee Warren Huff, D-Plymouth, did not enter the board room until after the voting.

After the pay raise was approved, Provost John E. Cantlon brought up the issue of revealing faculty salaries. Apparently addressing himself to White, Cantlon said: "In the spirit of collaboration, before anyone takes unilateral action on this, let's let the faculty express their opinions."

Trustee Don Stevens, D-Okemos, asked for a board discussion of the matter. He said he has maintained for a long time that faculty salaries should be open.

State shifts cross-MSU highway plan

By MICHAEL FOX
State News Staff Writer

The cross-campus highway proposal has been altered by the State Highway Dept.

The changes involve creation of a Farm Lane intersection and tightening of the Bogue Street interchange, but no new location for the route, Robert Perrin, vice president for University relations, said Sunday.

"The State Highway Dept. delivered to the University Friday some revision of its previous plans. The Bogue Street intersection has apparently been redesigned to take up less land and therefore would not be as close to the Veterinary Clinic," Perrin said.

"The revised plans for the Farm Lane crossing call for an interchange instead of an underpass," he said.

The revisions in the plans, which were not released to the University until Friday, reportedly do not include any change in the location of the cross-campus route. Current plans locate the highway from the Trowbridge Road exit at I-496 to Grand River Avenue at Park Lake Road, east of East Lansing.

The highway would cross MSU property from Harrison Road on the west to Hagadorn Road on the east, running through an easement which extends north 200 feet from the Grand Trunk railroad tracks. The $9.7 million plans show the Bogue Street interchange with the highway and the railroad tracks passing under Bogue Street.

Perrin said Sunday that the State Highway Dept. intends to open a public display on Tuesday in Kellogg Center which would illustrate its current highway plans.

Almost 40 individuals and organizations have formally registered with the office of the vice president for University relations to speak at the highway hearing Thursday.

FOR MS. VAN TASSELL

Committee to debate prof reappointment

By JUDY YATES
State News Staff Writer

The Dept. of Natural Science Ad Hoc Committee for Reappointment and Tenure will meet today to continue deliberation of the reappointment of Eileen Van Tassel, asst. professor of natural science.

The committee decided to recommend against the reappointment of William L. Downes, asst. professor of natural science, at the same meeting.

At the same meeting, Ms. Van Tassel met with the committee to appeal the preliminary set of reasons for her reappointment. She received the reasons for her reappointment and was given seven days to appeal.

The reasons for the Downes recommendation will be forwarded to the department chairman. The department chairman will use the recommendation in considering his recommendation to Dean.

Manuel Hackel, chairman of the Dept. of Natural Science, said Sunday he had not received any reasons.

"I don't know what else can be done regarding the appeal," Downes said Sunday. Downes said he will wait and see what decisions are made in the proposed Interim Faculty Grievance Procedure before deciding if he will take further action.

The proposed Interim Grievance Procedure is scheduled to go before the Faculty Council Nov. 2.

The Ad Hoc Committee for Reappointment and Tenure, composed of tenured faculty members, has met eight times since Sept. 20. Four recently-tenured members have joined the committee since last year's discussion of the Van Tassel case. "This means that the membership is a continuously moving group that changes with the times," Lincoln Pettit, chairman of the committee and professor of natural science said.

Downes, who did not receive reasons for his nonreappointment for the 1971-72 academic year, was granted a one-year contract extension last spring by a class action of the Dept. of Natural Science.

The action, which also affected Ms. Van Tassel and fellow asst. professor Bertram Murray, followed a motion passed by the board of trustees in April. That motion offered a one-year contract extension to all faculty members who were not reappointed in fall 1971 and who did not receive reasons for the nonreappointment.

The trustees offered the extension after Ms. Van Tassel and Murray filed a charge of unfair labor practices with the Michigan Employment Relations Commission. Their appeals to department committees and the University Tenure Committee had failed to secure a satisfactory resolution of grievances.

Murray has since left the University.

Curb medical costs, MO says

By TONI PELLILLO
State News Staff Writer

The greatest objective of health care is to contain its cost, especially now during President Nixon's anti-inflationary efforts, a top-ranking federal physician said at a press conference Friday following a convocation in Erickson Kiva honoring the first class of the MSU College of Osteopathic Medicine.

MSU has the only University-based and state-supported College of Osteopathic Medicine in the nation. The initial 36-member class will receive their diplomas in 1973.

Dr. Merlin K. DuVal, assistant secretary for health and scientific affairs in the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), said he believes Phase 2 of the freeze will not involve "special treatment" for health care systems. He emphasized, however, that some controls on already established federal insurance programs (Medicare, Medicaid), will be enacted, but that fee-setting would probably not be one of the controls.

But until physicians involve themselves personally in health care prices, the cost will not go down, he said.

DuVal discussed the possibility that Americans are currently at a "crossroads" in health care, he disclosed, therefore, some bills in Congress providing "socialized" or completely federally-funded medical programs involving salaried health services.

"This is as close as we may come to complete socialization," DuVal said. He stated that such action would involve a move in the wrong direction, in the sense that all professional medical services would be salaried by the government.

DuVal commented he is in favor of a national health insurance plan that meets the needs of people—the employees as well as the employers—one that contains cost, and one that is not exclusively governmental. He voiced approval for some of President Nixon's health care plans, but was not in favor of some of the Senate's suggestions.

At the convocation, DuVal said he was "interested in creating opportunities for conversation among federal and private entities" so that the two groups can work together for a common goal—better health care for all Americans.

"To do our part, we in government must first streamline, restructure and initiate truly innovative planning for the full and efficient utilization of the enormous resources that are at our disposal," DuVal said.

DuVal told the students that "whenever professional standards and performance appear to serve the interests of the profession more than those of the public, it is the public interest that will prevail."

Also speaking at the convocation were: Warren M. Huff, MSU Board of Trustees; John Cantlon, provost; Myron S.

resident, is president of the Michigan Osteopathic Medicine Advisory Board, which is advisory to the board of trustees.

Receiving the awards were: Dr. DuVal, an M.D. and former dean of the University of Arizona Medical School; Rep. Josephine Hunsinger, D-Detroit, chairwoman of the House State Affairs Committee; Sen. Charles O. Zollar, R-Benton Harbor, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee; Sen.

Gariand Lane, D-Flint, chairman of the Joint Capitol Osteopathic Subcommittee and former chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee; William R. No enthusiasm for Byrd

Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma said Sunday he would not support fellow Democrat Sen. Robert C. Byrd if the West Virginian were nominated for the Supreme Court.

Another Democrat, Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, said he would keep "an open mind" on the matter, although he would not submit Byrd's name for nomination if he were president. McGovern predicted Senate confirmation if Byrd is nominated.

Javits urges cooperation

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., urged union leaders Sunday to cooperate with President Nixon's Phase 2 economic program. And he assured them that the Cost of Living Council will not veto Pay Board decisions which labor might help shape.

Principal labor leaders thus far have not responded to administration proposals that they participate in the new Pay Board to set policy on increases in wages and salaries.

Political crisis brewing

A political crisis will be simmering behind the scenes as Vice President Spiro T. Agnew arrives in this deeply troubled North Atlantic Treaty ally Monday to conduct talks with President Cevdet Sunday and Premier Nihat Erim.

NIXON WORRIED

Struggle over welfare could delay tax-cut bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's tax-cut bill could become entangled in a Senate Finance Committee struggle over his welfare-reform program, and he is moving to head off any such impasse.

Any such intra-committee fight could mean a long delay in Senate action on the House-passed $15.4-billion tax-reduction measure, something which could be a severe blow to Nixon's over-all economic program.

Nixon told the committee chairman, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., while still supporting the administration welfare proposal strongly, he does not want it tied to the tax legislation.

Nixon said that, if the tax cut is to have the beneficial effects on the economy that he expects, it should be enacted into law by early November if at all possible.

But the opposing sides in the welfare battle both look on the tax bill as an opportunity for maneuvers to aid their cause.

Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., chief supporter of the welfare plan in the finance panel, said he now is convinced the committee majority is not going to act on the proposal.

The committee killed the plan in the last Congress after it passed the House. This year it has bottled up the legislation since it passed the House a second time in June.

Ribicoff favors a somewhat more liberal version of the plan that Nixon recommended.

He is having his ideas drafted as an amendment for a possible attempt to get it added as a rider to the tax-cut measure.

If this were done, he said, it would add to the administration's economic package $5.5 billion of purchasing power for the nation's poorest families.

The committee's conservatives have a different strategy in mind.

Some of them would like to lift out of the bill passed by the House in June provisions which would increase Social Security payments and raise welfare benefits for the aged, blind and disabled.

They believe that, if these could be enacted as a part of the tax bill, there would be much less pressure to pass the Finance Committee welfare reform bill.

Long said that he, for one, would like to add the Social Security provisions to the bill.

"But I'm not going to start for adding Family Assistance tax bill if I can help it," he told a newsman.

"I'll fight against that we're hip deep in snow now here or even until next spring."

Long said that, since it is obvious if one side tries to force welfare reform to the tax bill, the other would move to add Social Security, the result might simply be that neither would make a try.

"President Nixon sees it that way. He wants us to pass a tax bill," he added.

The Finance Committee will begin hearing public witnesses on the tax bill Tuesday.

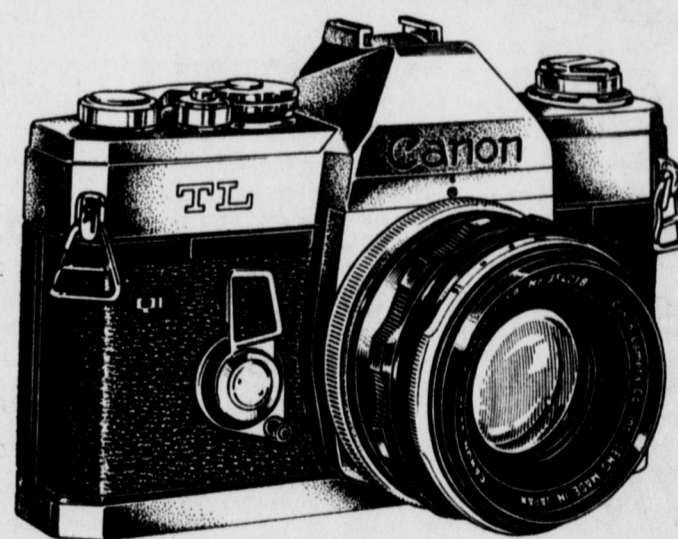

AFL-CIO President George Meany, a strong critic of the Nixon program, is to testify Wednesday.

The chairman said he expects to get the measure out of the committee and to the Senate floor for debate by the end of October.

OPINIONS AT MSU

Economists rap Nixon's policy

By NICK MIRON
State News Staff Writer

Phase (2) of President Nixon's new economic policy drew mixed reactions from a sampling of four MSU economists interviewed since the President's speech Thursday.

Professors Lawrence Officer, Anthony Koo, Thomas Moore and instructor Daniel Saks all agreed that in many respects the president's speech had been a "non-event". Nixon had left many issues still up in the air, they said.

Saks noted that the real issue is what the government is doing in the areas that the President is not talking about.

"The things talked about in speeches are side issues", Saks said. "It would be a shame if we payed too much attention to the rhetoric and not enough attention to what is actually happening."

On the new pay board (made up of five representatives each of labor, management and the public to stop inflationary wage and salary increases), Officer commented that it may be just a little throwing of fish to the workers to give them the impression that they are really going to have a voice in setting wage rates.

"The pay board can make decisions," Officer said. "Its mandate will be to have guidelines, but whatever it says or determines can be overruled by the Cost of Living Council and the Cost of Living Council is made up solely of high level civil servants and members of cabinet rank."

Koo stated that the definition of windfall profits is vague. The President could disrupt the competitive nature of some business if some companies are affected and others not, Koo said, and noted further that it may only be a "political ploy without any real teeth."

"What we should really do is remove the obstacles to free prices," Officer said. "That is, remove the tariff, remove the tariff surcharge; break up monopolies; and break up powerful labor unions. The vast prices that would rule would be those that would freely be set without any control at all.

"The best thing the president can do to halt inflation is to remove this 10 per cent surcharge on imports, also reduce import tariffs generally, even if other countries don't go ahead. The next best thing is to have a firm antitrust policy. Break up the big auto companies; breaking up monopolies in big business.

"The third thing he should do is to begin breaking up the powerful unions. The tremendously powerful unions should have their power controlled just as big business is controlled. These three things would go a long way toward reducing inflation and at the same time increasing employment," Officer concluded.

Moore was generally displeased with the Nixon course of action in recent months and said he felt continuing controls would not ease inflation.

"World War II controls didn't repress inflation," Moore said. "They postponed it until after the war let up. That is all that this is doing—postponing until the day they go up."

Officer was disturbed over the president's statement that we (taken to mean the government) would not let special interests hold sway over the rights of the general public.

"In the meantime the president is slapping on these tremendous quotas on foreign textiles, solely to get the southern votes in the 1972 elections. He is making American consumers pay more for their clothing," Officer said.

Officer was outspoken on the Interest and Dividends Committee (which will apply anti-inflation yardsticks in these areas with care not to drive credit from housing or other critical areas).

"To control interest rates you might have to print an awful lot of money, to keep interest at the same level," he said. Interest has to be determined in a free market. If we have our interest rates too low a lot of American money will leave the country. This would hurt our balance of payments.

"This is just a phony issue to give the workers the impression that everyone is suffering. Well, if Nixon continues with these policies, everyone will be suffering," Officer stressed.

Koo felt that Nixon's failure to mention the international trade situation or the plight of the dollar in his speech was intentional.

"He wanted to keep the foreign competitors in suspense, especially Japan where there is increasing pressure to depreciate. The U.S. policy now is to put maximum pressure on Japan. Japan is very stubborn, they do not want to depreciate the yen. This is why the president is not telling everything that he has in mind," Koo said.

Forty people walk 2 hours studying highway effects

By KAREN ZURAWSKI
State News Staff Writer

Nearly 40 people struggled through tall grass and marshy land Sunday, as they walked along the proposed cross-campus way route.

The two-hour walk sponsored by Environmental Interpretation, one of two areas in the Dept. of Park and Recreation Resources, attempted to show ecological effects of the highway.

The walk went west from the Grand Trunk road crossing on Hagadorn Road to the intersection of Trowbridge traffic light.

Lie W. Gysel, professor of fisheries and life and forestry, spoke of the loss of the belt area, trees, grass and shrubs along the highway. He said the highway would change the park-like character of the area.

Paul Hamel, an East Lansing graduate student, pointed out that the area is important for classes and research.

The only two cattail marshes on campus would be destroyed and birds such as the meadowlark, and pheasant would have no place to go, he said.

Between 1962 and 1966 approximately 16,000 student hours were spent in Baker Woodlot under such departments as botany, forestry and animal ecology.

Gysel expressed concern about Baker Woodlot because it is located near the proposed Bogue St. interchange, and would become the center of an influx of cars.

Environmental Interpretation conducted public tours through the proposed highway area and Baker Woodlot last year. Each week-end during spring and summer terms 10 to 20 people toured the area, Hamel said. Mayor Gordon Thomas, who participated in the walk, feels more committed to the idea of alternative solutions after seeing that the "land is not lying fallow but is being used for classroom purposes."

"It dramatizes the problem the University faces and the potential loss involved," he said.

Don Stevens, D-Okemos, one of three MSU Trustees who toured the route in another walk Saturday, agreed with the Mayor's observation.

"I was impressed. I didn't realize how much the departments used the area," he said.

"There are so many things growing out there of great value," he added. "We may be the only university with open space of that kind."

Trustees Frank Hartman, D-Flint, and Kenneth Thompson R-Grand Rapids, also participated in the Sunday tour.

Campaign costs bill may stir party battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two House committees have laid the groundwork for a potential partisan battle over two bills to limit campaign spending by national candidates.

The Republican says President Nixon might veto any such legislation.

One of the bills would tie spending to the number of voters in geographical area and the other, to the total population. The House Rules Committee has to clear either bill before it gets to a vote and that committee has set an Oct. 1 deadline for anything but emergency legislation.

The bill is so full of loopholes that you could drive a truck through it," Rep. William L. Springer, of Rhode Island, said.

The commerce bill would limit spending to 10 cents for each candidate. This could run as high as $14 million in a nationwide campaign.

"What should I spend on a music system?"

(An important question deserving of a straight answer. We'll risk one:) You probably should spend $650 on our Advent/Kenwood/PE/Shure system. Why are we so sure?

The system we have for $650 is not just a good value (although we do think it's actually the best value now available in hifi equipment.) Nor is it just a question of its sounding "good for the money" Our Advent/Kenwood/PE/Shure system is unique among all the systems that can be put together: it is a stereo radio/phonograph system that is nothing less than the right, completely satisfying choice for most people with a demanding interest in both music and sound — at a price far lower than such a system would have cost just a few years ago.

An ambitious claim to be sure. But one which, from experience, we are not afraid to make. Our $650 system will do the following for you:

It reproduces the entire frequency range of all music, without annoying coloration or distortion, at levels which will comfortably fill your listening room with sound. (Wagnerians and acid-rock freaks not excluded.)

It sounds convincing not only on the best recordings, but on the great majority of recordings and broadcasts of all kinds.

It has enough controls and features to satisfy your needs, without making you pay for unnecessary frills. (There's ample flexibility for adding such niceties as a tape deck or additional speakers.)

Its performance and durability are such that it's highly unlikely you'd want to change any of the components for a very long time. It's fully guaranteed for 2 years by our own service department.

The Advent Loudspeakers have over and over again proved true the claim originally made for them: they provide the kind of performance associated with speakers then and now costing far more.

The Kenwood KR 5150 AM/FM Stereo Receiver is yet another example of the wonderful way your inflated dollar now buys much more real performance in hifi equipment than ever before: 33 watts/channel RMS, with less than 0.5% distortion, across the entire audio range. Sensitive FM performance permits the greatest number of stations to be received in truly listenable form.

The PE 2038 Automatic Turntable does its job smoothly and reliably; its heavy platter turns records at a constant speed, quietly. There is a gentle changing mechanism and a convenient cueing control. The Shure M93E Cartridge transmits all the sound that is on the record, and at a record-saving 2-gram tracking force. Its excellent high frequency capabilities complement the fine high frequency characteristics of the Advent Loudspeakers and the Kenwood KR 5150 Receiver.

POINT OF VIEW

New voters will have impact

By WILBUR B. BROOKOVER
East Lansing Councilman
Candidate for City Council

Two candidates for the city council election have launched their emotional campaign for the student vote with the slogan, "It's time to give a damn." Yes, it is time to give a damn. It is long since past time to give a damn. Some people have given a damn about the rights of students and others before this campaign. I have been concerned about MSU students for a quarter of a century. I have been concerned enough to devote my full energies to this University and the East Lansing community. It is ironic that neither of the so-called "student" nominees have a constant daily contact with MSU. Mr. Colburn left the campus for greener pastures. Mr. Griffiths is a junior high school teacher in the city of Lansing. I have given a damn for student rights, or in a larger sense, all human rights for many years. In 1952 I testified in Federal Court in Brown vs. Topeka Board of Education to gain equal education rights for black children. In 1969 and 1970 I served as chairman of the committee appointed by President Walter Adams that developed the anti-discrimination policies and procedures now in force at MSU.

I not only have demonstrated that I care for students, but have shown interest in the problems people face in American cities. This concern is reflected in my major University responsibility as Associate Director of the Center for Urban Affairs. I have, therefore, more than a part time, occasional interest in urban affairs in East Lansing. The needs of students and the city are often identical. This was true in 1967 when the State News staff editorially, "Wilbur Brookover... stands out as being best able to represent the interests of students and the whole community as well." I believe my record has justified that endorsement. The following interests give some indication of what I have stood for

- during my four years as city councilman.
- * March 1968 - Introduced amendment to strengthen the ordinance prohibiting discrimination in housing, employment and public accommodations by adding penalties for non-compliance.
- * June 1970 - Introduced resolution that the city council go on record favoring the 18 year old vote.
- * August 1970 - Introduced motion requesting the City Manager and City Clerk to make all arrangements for registering student voters on campus during MSU registration.
- * September 1970 - Introduced resolution simplifying registration procedures to require only an affidavit on residence and age - one of the most progressive procedures in the country.
- * January 1968 - Introduced ordinance which increased required number of parking places for apartment houses based on number of residences.
- * April 1971 - Introduced ordinance

- regulating the towing of cars from private lots.
- * October 1970 - Introduced resolution giving council support for State Board proposal for low-income housing.
- * January 1971 - Introduced ordinance to make possession or use of marijuana a misdemeanor in East Lansing with a minimum penalty.
- * June 1971 - Amended stipulation with Water Resources Commission concerning sewage treatment to provide for support of MSU experiment in recycling sewage and supported the amended commitment to remove phosphate by tertiary treatment.
- * October 1971 - Introduced resolution requesting that ordinances be drafted to implement Housing Commission recommendations including licensing of rental housing with maintenance standards and Housing Commission, with staff, to enforce licensing, mediate housing differences and promote low-cost rental housing.

Mansfield amendment once again in danger

The Senate has once again passed an amendment, introduced by Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., calling for total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina within six months if American POW's are released. This time the amendment is attached to the military weapons bill.

A few months ago the very same amendment died in committee when it was attached to the draft bill. Despite clear cut support from the Senate for the nine-month Vietnam deadline withdrawal, the Senate conferees sold out, emasculating the Mansfield rider.

The present situation is identical to the previous scenario. Informed Washington sources indicate that the Mansfield amendment will once again be watered down to relative insignificance in committee.

The Senate cannot allow this to happen again. The purpose of the joint Senate-House committee system is to arrive at a compromise when the two houses pass different versions of the same bill. Yet can it be called compromise to kill the Mansfield amendment after it has received strong support in the Senate? Can it be called compromise when every opinion poll shows the vast majority of the American public favors a Vietnam withdrawal deadline? Can it be called compromise when the very American presence in Vietnam guarantees the preservation of the corrupt military dictatorship of Nguyen Van Thieu?

The Senate, by twice passing the Mansfield amendment, has taken a firm stance against the war in Indochina. This time the Senate conferees cannot allow the House to overrule the will of the upper chamber.

The Senate is in a position to force the military to swallow a bitter pill—an end to the Vietnam war—when its annual package of military hardware is delivered at the beginning of the fiscal year. If the upper chamber does not take positive, deliberate action in this direction the American public will remain saddled with a war they emphatically do not want.

It is truly amazing how, as presidential primary time rolls along, the multitude of Senate doves contemplating running for this nation's highest office continue pronouncements against the war, while the liberal majority of the Senate allows conferees to deal away the will of the nation. Clearly the only way to end the war is for the liberal faction of the Senate to play the same sort of power politics in joint committee which has kept this nation in Vietnam for the last two years.

It is clear now in the aftermath of the recent South Vietnamese census (i.e. "election") that we have failed in our supposed goal in South Vietnam—allowing the South Vietnamese to determine their own form of government. Unless the Senate stands up for the Mansfield amendment in committee, similar doubts will be cast upon the American people's own power to determine governmental policy.

Abortion petition drive: the people must assist

Most states provide little recourse for citizens at the mercy of balky legislatures. Happily, Michigan is one exception to this rule. Under provisions of the 1963 constitution, citizens may by petition compel their state representatives to consider specific issues. If the legislature refuses to enact such a proposal it automatically appears on the ballot in the next general election.

The Michigan Coordinating Committee for Abortion Law Reform (MCCALR) is presently undertaking such an initiative crusade. Since its passage last spring, Senate bill No. 3, the abortion reform measure, has languished in House committee. It is becoming increasingly apparent that the doughty representatives intend to let this political hot potato die there if they are compelled to do otherwise.

To accomplish this goal the MCCALR must obtain a quarter of a million signatures by the end of October. Clearly, manpower is essential to the success of the drive.

To circulate an initiative petition you need only be a registered voter in the State of Michigan. You need not be a registered voter in the city of township in which you are collecting signatures.

We urge all citizens who support the principal of freedom of choice on the abortion issue to assist in the petition drive. You may get petitions and/or further information from the Michigan Coordinating Committee for Abortion Law Reform, 406 E. Michigan Ave., Lansing, 484-7453, or from Gladys Beckwith, MCCALR Ingham County Coordinator, 485-3400 or 355-4668.

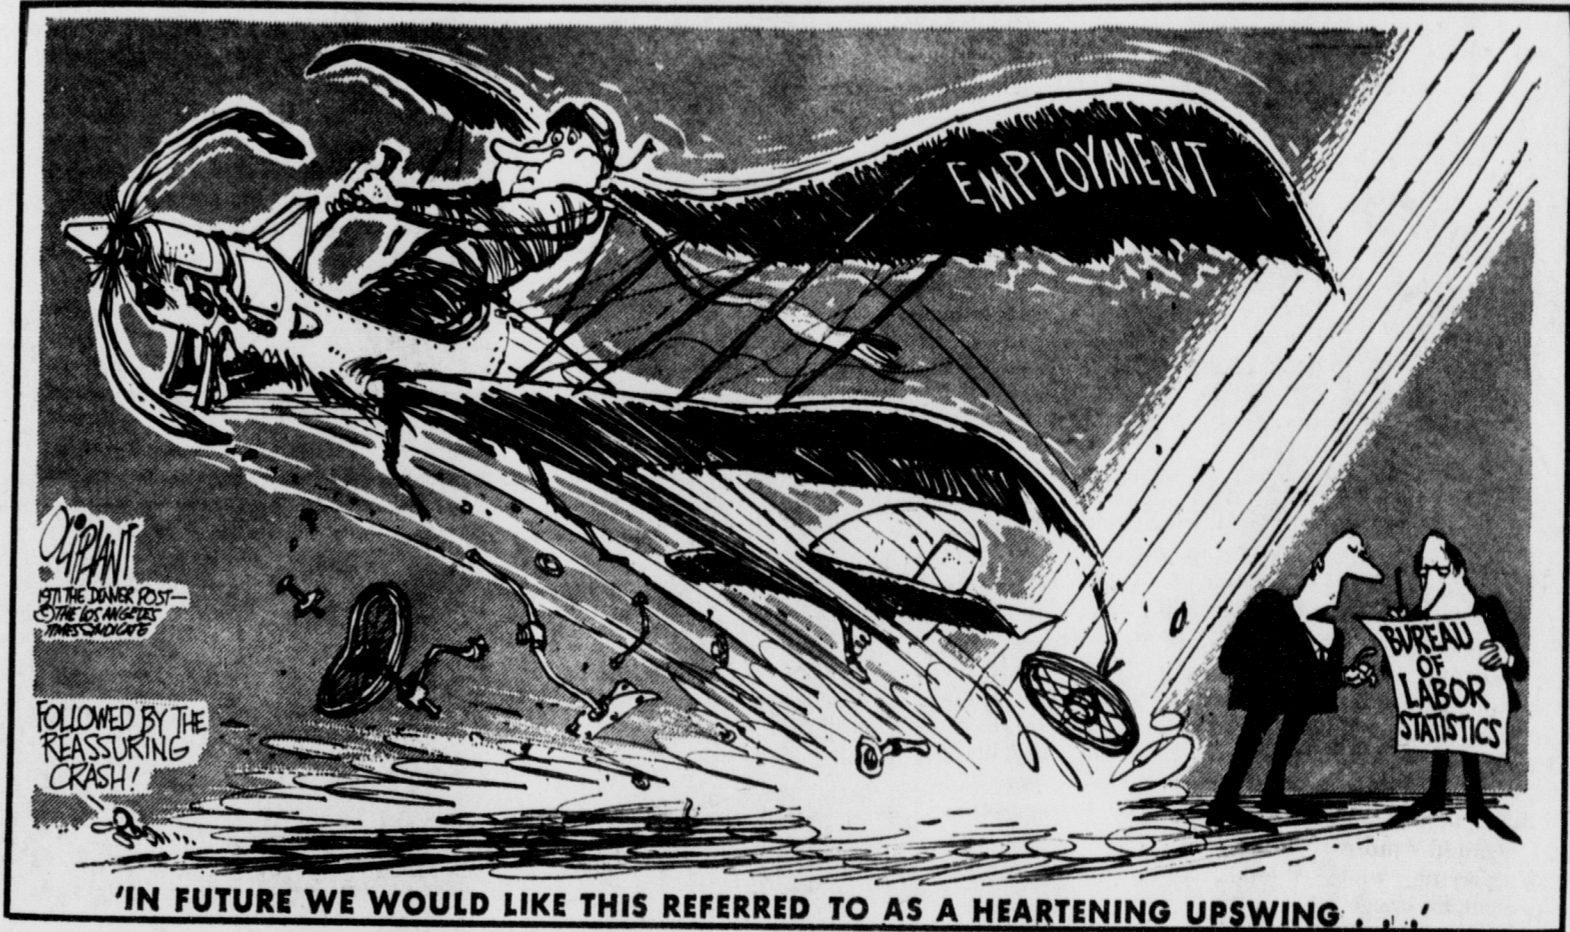

Drug program undone

Earlier this year the Army received several plaudits on its program to rehabilitate servicemen addicted to heroin. The addict was able to be treated by Army doctors without suffering fear of punitive measures. Because of the confidentiality of the program, many addicts reported for treatment, making the program a success.

The Army has now announced, however, that it will soon begin recording the names of those seeking treatment for the sake of keeping accurate records. This may or may not be a legitimate explanation of the move. The Army could as easily be planning to take punitive action against addicts at a future date.

Yet even if the new policy was initiated only to facilitate Army bookkeeping, the fact remains that many addicts will be suspicious of the Army's motives for keeping these records and will not report for treatment. In order to continue a very successful program, the Army needs to rescind its new policy.

OUR READERS' MIND

ASMSU: a lively corpse

To the Editor:
Last Wednesday in the State News, I read that ASMSU is dying, and, if it did, there would be no mourners. As an off-campus representative to the Student Board, this came as a surprise to me. I attended a Student Board meeting Tuesday night, and everyone there seemed very much alive to me. Today, while passing through the halls of the third floor of Student Services, I noticed a lawyer consulting and advising a vast array of students within the confines of the ASMSU offices, again - very much alive. Many of my friends and constituents have taken advantage of the ASMSU short term loan office. If they were dying, $20.00 certainly wouldn't have done them much good. This Friday, James Taylor is appearing before a sell-out crowd of over 7,000 people, who certainly aren't dead or even dying.

What does ASMSU stand for? These much touted and ridiculed initials represent the Associated Students of MSU. The Student Board (usually referred to by the press as ASMSU) is only the representative body of these Associated Students. If ASMSU is dying, it's a suicidal venture. We of the Student Board are committed to tasks and responsibilities delegated to us by the student body in a general election last spring.

Sadly, enough, turnout in this election was hardly representative of the entire 38,000-plus students here at MSU. However, those students who are most vehemently against the workings of the Student Board are often the same students who were just "too busy" to vote last April.

14. How many of the students attending the concert October 8 have ever voted in an ASMSU election or attempted to participate in any of the responsibilities of student government?

If student government on this campus is dying, the students themselves are killing it. It will be a slow, agonizing death, almost a suicidal assassination plot. Splits and blocs on the board? Sure there are, but I feel they have been substantially assisted by the press. Apathy on the board? Lack of concern for the students? Not on the Board, but on the collective part of the student body.

We can all watch as the apathetic student body and a crusading press helps kill something that, seemingly, no one will miss - at least until it's gone. So, shoot away, but please look around you before you take aim.

Election night suspense

WASHINGTON - Some of us here, but not all, still have not recovered from the exciting presidential election held in South Vietnam a week ago Sunday.

All of us stayed up all night long as the election seasawed back and forth, first Thieu ahead, then the ballot mutilators picking up strength in the cities.

The lights were on at the State Dept., the Pentagon and the White House. High government officials, whose reputations were at stake on free elections in South Vietnam, stayed glued to their TV sets in anticipation of a new era of self-determination for this great bulwark of democracy which all Americans had learned to love and respect.

The first results came in form the town of Bu Dhang Bien. CBS reported 156 for Thieu, one ballot mutilated and 2,345 of the enemy killed.

Eric Sevareid came on and analyzed the vote. He said that Bu Dhang Bien had always been considered a Thieu stronghold and there was no reason to believe that this was a trend for the rest of the country.

Just then John Chancellor came on with a bulletin that Chu Phuoc Hai had gone for Thieu by 98 per cent, but the highway between there and Saigon was still not safe to travel at night.

Harry Reasoner said that ABC had given the entire Mekong Delta to Thieu - at least those parts of it that still weren't in Viet Cong hands. This was at 9 p.m. He did say that several ballots, four to be exact, had been mutilated in Due Thanh and therefore it was too early to predict who would win.

Walter Cronkite then started reading returns from the north. Thieu had won in Di Boup, Chu Yang Sin and To Bong. It turned out that To Bong was one of the crucial towns in the election because three of Vice President Ky's relatives lived there. But the police had been campaigning since August and To Bong had gone overwhelmingly for Thieu, with 768 votes for him and 20 students arrested.

By this time precincts from all around the country started reporting in. NBC had Thieu leading by 95 per cent of the vote, CBS by 91 per cent and ABC had switched to a rerun of the Monday night football game.

But despite the heavy Thieu vote, the ballot mutilators refused to concede to Thieu. NBC and CBS had both set up their cameras in the palace of President Thieu to cover the victory celebration, but Thieu said he wanted to wait until every vote was in before he made a victory statement.

The funny thing was that most of us went to bed believing Thieu had been elected president of South Vietnam. When we woke up in the morning you can imagine our surprise to find we was true.

Easy way out

To the Editor:
The solution to closed trustee meetings advocated in yesterday's (October 5) State News - i.e., don't attend - is reminiscent of the "America: Love It or Leave It" slogan that still adorns many automobile bumpers. In short, if you don't like what things are, get out!

That's the lazy response. The easy way out. But is it the route to constructive change? Is it a responsible course of action for a citizen? Or an elected official?

Not, in my view, until every possible effort to generate change from within has been made, and has failed.

I don't believe that point has been reached yet. Not in America, and not on the board of trustees.

Evers asks campaign aid

By CAROL THOMAS
State News Staff Writer

The audience grew quiet in the dimly-lit auditorium, then fidgeted through long, eulogy-like introductions to hear the man speak.

He stepped to the podium amid a standing ovation from more than 2000 people, both black and white, and smiled.

"It's always good to have folks talk for you — sometimes you didn't know all those things," he chuckled.

Charles Evers, mayor of Fayette, Miss., and a candidate for governor of Mississippi, speaks to MSU students and faculty during a lecture held Friday afternoon. In his speech, he asked for student aid in his campaign.

campus community for help in his campaign in a speech Friday afternoon in the Auditorium.

In his bid for the governorship there is a grim note — there is rumored to be a $15,000 contract on his life, and the Ku Klux Klan has vowed that he won't live until election day, according to a recent "Playboy" interview with Evers.

"You see, I'm not afraid of death, maybe there's no need to be afraid — you die when God wants you to die," he explained.

Evers asked for both money and people for next fall's campaign. He said his campaign needs money, radio and television time and also students to go to Mississippi to canvass voters and watch polls on election day.

Because of the poverty in which many of his supporters live, he asked students who go to work for him to provide their own transportation and living expenses while they are in Mississippi, or else not to go at all.

"Your grandparents made this racism; whatever this country is it's because white brother made it that way. They are the congressmen, the mean, dirty sheriffs, and all the Presidents. White people did this, not blacks, not Indians, not Mexicans," he said.

"They were men who had no love, I'm going to be governor and say 'no more hate' — we can't afford to become the kind of men who made this country," he continued, describing the pervading hate present in the South.

Addressing himself to the black people in the audience, he cried out against hatred between races. "Black folks, I beg you, don't become haters — hate destroys you, it eats away at you like a cancer."

"It's wrong for hate to kill men, to kill a community, kill a nation. . . don't be that, just don't hate," he continued.

Leaning over the podium and gazing at the crowd, he almost whispered:

"I've got to be governor and make my state a place where old folks can live in peace, I want to feed the people because they're hungry and ease the burden of the suffering."

As the first black mayor of Fayette, Miss., Evers has gained not only the support of the blacks in his community, but also the help of the white moderates, according to syndicated columnists Rowland Evans and Robert Novak.

"Charles Evers is attempting a political balancing act designed to divide power between the Negro numerical majority and the economically dominant white minority . . . if he can manage it without driving out the whites, it could be the beginning of biracial black-white power in the Deep South," they wrote.

Summing up his attitude toward the people of the South and his own people, he ended his speech by saying: "My mama always told me to do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

LOW-KEYED PERFORMER

Taylor: soft but effective

Watching him he seems hardly the effective performer he proved himself to be Friday night in Jenison High School. All soft-voiced Taylor did, after all, was sit there and play his songs, as if he was playing for himself.

There were no stage antics, no unnecessary embellishments in the band. Just a couple of songs of James Taylor and his

By NAT ABBATE
State News Staff Writer

With some excellent accompaniment on guitar by Danny "Koutch" Kortehmar, and with Lee Sklar on bass, Russ Kunkel on drums and Craig Doerge on piano, Taylor did a wide range of songs, from the cocktail lounge sound of "Don't Let Me Be Lonely Tonight" to the driving rock of "One Man Parade."

little too much in parts of the fieldhouse.

But the only thing you can fault James Taylor for is that he didn't sing "Fire and Rain."

Yet through all the songs, Taylor maintained his own characteristic style, taking it easy and ending up sounding like he meant every word he sang. Even on "Steamroller," Taylor's parody of young bands who claim to be playing blues, his integrity and simplicity turned the song into more of a legitimate effort than a mere parody.

While the lyrics might get a bit ridiculous in parts ("I'm a napalm bomb for you baby/stone guaranteed to blow your mind"), the easiness of style and the basic bass pattern in the background let you see the song for what it is: besides taking a poke at pretentious bands, Taylor is also trying to get you to tap your feet and move around a little.

Admittedly, things could have gone off a little better Friday night. The equipment didn't have to blow up. Some young entrepreneur didn't have to make everyone wait in the rain because he was after a quick buck with his counterfeit tickets. There were some complaints that the echo was a Here's to your health! It's time you learned the facts about Natural-Organic Health Foods and Vitamins.

Vitamin B-12. Just one of the B Vitamins. Just one of the elements your body needs. Many things use up the B Vitamins in your body. Things that almost everyone comes in contact with. Almost every day.

So, if you want to keep the party going on, you've got to keep the B Vitamins coming in. Every day.

In the main, vitamins come from sources outside your body. From the foods you eat. The right kinds. In the right amounts.

Unfortunately, modern processing often removes the B Vitamins from the foods we eat.

So, a lot of people have turned to vitamin supplements. And a growing number of people are now buying natural-organic vitamins, instead of synthetic ones.

Natural-organic vitamins are extracted from their natural sources . . . fruits, vegetables, meats and seafoods.

In Revco's new Natural-Organic Health Foods Department, you'll find Vitamin B supplements and other excellent supplements.

Plus multi-vitamin formulas with B Vitamins, and many other vitamin supplements. All are derived from natural-organic sources. All are low, everyday discount priced.

If you already take vitamins, take a second look at what natural-organic vitamins offer you and your family. If you're thinking about taking vitamins, think over what you just read.

It's your party. Keep it going.

U-M drops Spartans

By GARY SCHARRER
State News Sports Writer

A Spartan Stadium record crowd of 80,093 were on hand Saturday to watch the poise of the country's second ranked team, University of Michigan overcome an upset bid by MSU, defeating the Spartans, 24-13.

But it was not until the fourth quarter that U-M was able to overtake the momentum that had been built for the Spartans near the end of the second quarter.

MSU trailed 10-7 at half-time but mounted a drive in the third quarter that took the Spartans all the way to the Wolverine 14 yard line and a first down at that point. Quarterback Frank Kolch, fullback Paul Manderino and tailbacks Eric Allen and George Mihau provided the Spartan punch, and a fired up MSU offensive line together with the enthusiasm of Spartan fans kept carry them right into the Wolverine end zone. However, a Spartan illegal motion penalty moved the ball back to the 19-yard line. The Wolverine defense then nailed Kolch for a nine yard loss. On a third down situation Kolch went back to pass but did not survive a determined pass rush by the Wolverines. Kolch lost 20 yards on the play but more importantly fumbled in the ball with U-M's Mike Keller recovering on the Wolverine 47-yard line.

MSU lost what proved to be their final chance to go ahead or even kick a field goal to tie the score. The Wolverines, who had slumped after an opening game touchdown drive and second quarter field goal, needed only nine plays after the fumble recovery to score a Bill Taylor touchdown. Taylor, who ran roughshod through and around the Spartan defense in the limited time that he played, ran for 117 yards in 15 carries and scored two touchdowns.

Taylor demonstrated why he is an all-America candidate and why he is about to break U-M career rushing records of Tom Harmon and Ron Johnson. At the start of the game Taylor carried for the first four plays before busting lost on a 38-yard scoring sprint.

The Wolverines had to settle for a Dana Coin 27-yard field goal in the closing minutes of the second quarter after the Spartan defense held U-M for three plays from the MSU six-yard line.

MSU scored its first touchdown on the last play of the first half when Kolch faked to Allen going over the middle and then dove over left tackle for one yard. In the MSU drive the Spartans were given added life as a Wolverine roughing - the kicker penalty gave them a first down. The big play was a 41-yard Kolch pass to Steve Kough who fought his way to the one yard line. MSU called time-out with one second remaining to set up Kolch's touchdown.

A late fourth quarter touchdown by both U-M and MSU closed out the scoring, but the Wolverine score, which was set up on a Manderino fumble on the U-M kickoff following Taylor's touchdown, all but clinched the Wolverine victory. U-M recovered the fumble on MSU's 24-yard line and four plays later quarterback Tom Slade went nine yards for the score. Coin's conversion made the score 24-7.

Mike Rasmussen engineered the Spartans' second touchdown with just over four minutes remaining in the game. A 32-yard pass to Mike Hurd sparked the drive, and a pass interference penalty against U-M gave MSU a first and goal situation from the one-yard line. Allen went up the middle for the touchdown, but the Spartans' two-point conversion attempt failed.

Spartan defensive lineman Ron Curl was named the outstanding defensive player by ABC and probably summed up the strength of U-M's backs better than anyone, saying, "With the halfbacks and fullbacks that U-M has, sometimes they don't even need an offensive line."

Follow the bouncing ball . . .

Wolverine defensive end Butch Carpenter (94) gives chase to MSU quarterback Frank Kolch and the loose ball. Play had just entered the fourth quarter when the Spartans had a first down on the U-M 14-yard line and were threatening to break

U-M's 10-7 lead. Then a penalty, a nine-yard loss and a fumble gave U-M control of the game.

LANDRY ON TARGET

Lions outscore Packers, 31-28

DETROIT (UPI) — Greg Landry had his best day as a professional quarterback Sunday, throwing for 302 yards and four touchdowns as the Detroit Lions piled up an early lead and held off the Green Bay Packers, 31-28.

Zeke Bratkowski, 39 relieved rookie quarterback Scott Hunter in the second half with the Packers trailing 24-7 and rallied the Packers for three touchdowns but it was a case of not enough and not soon enough as Detroit, No. 1 against rushing, contained the National Football Conference's top rushing attack. The difference eventually turned out to be a brilliant 60-yard touchdown pass from Landry to Larry Walton, who earlier had scored with a catch of 10 yards. Walton took the ball on his own 42 and amazingly broke five tackles on his way to the end zone.

That left the score 31-14 midway through the third quarter and although Bratkowski scored on a one-yard sneak and then threw a five-yard touchdown pass to tight end Rich McGeorge with 56 seconds left in the game, it proved to be too much to overcome.

Coach Dan Devine ordered the obvious on-side kick attempt but Wayne Rasmussen snared Lou Michaels' soft line drive and Landry ran out the clock himself.

Earl McCullough made good on a 17-yard touchdown pass from Landry, who completed 18 of 29 attempts, when safety Doug Hart slipped in the end zone 5:01 into the game. Mike Weger took the first of two interceptions Hunter threw and on the next play, Landry hit Steve Owens with a 26-yard scoring toss over the middle. Owens also added 87 yards in 17 rushing attempts.

Errol Mann kicked a 12-yard field goal 10 seconds into the second quarter before Green Bay, now 2-2 scored against Detroit, 3-1, for the first time since 1969 when running back Donny Anderson threw a left-handed touchdown pass of four yards to John Brockington. Anderson scored from a pass out in the third quarter as Mike McCoy recovered a fumble for Green Bay but Detroit came right back on Landry's second touchdown toss to Walton.

Biggie Munn listed critically ill

M' loss a crushing blow to Spartan title chances

By RICK GOSSELIN
State News Sports Editor

Bo Schembechler and his Michigan Wolverines, Saturday's loss was just another step along the road leading to the Big Ten championship.

Duffy Daugherty and his Michigan Spartans, it was something even more devastating. It was losing a game — THE game — that so many man-hours were devoted to in anticipation of victory. It was a game that was to make or break the Spartan Big Ten season. To go further, it was a game that was to make or break the entire MSU season.

Up until Kolch's fumble, the record crowd of 80,093 at Spartan Stadium was witnessing what no other crowd had ever seen before — a team moving the ball with persistence against the 1971 Wolverines.

Duffy instituted a brand new offense for the game, the wishbone-T, and it had the Ann Arbor boys slightly confused.

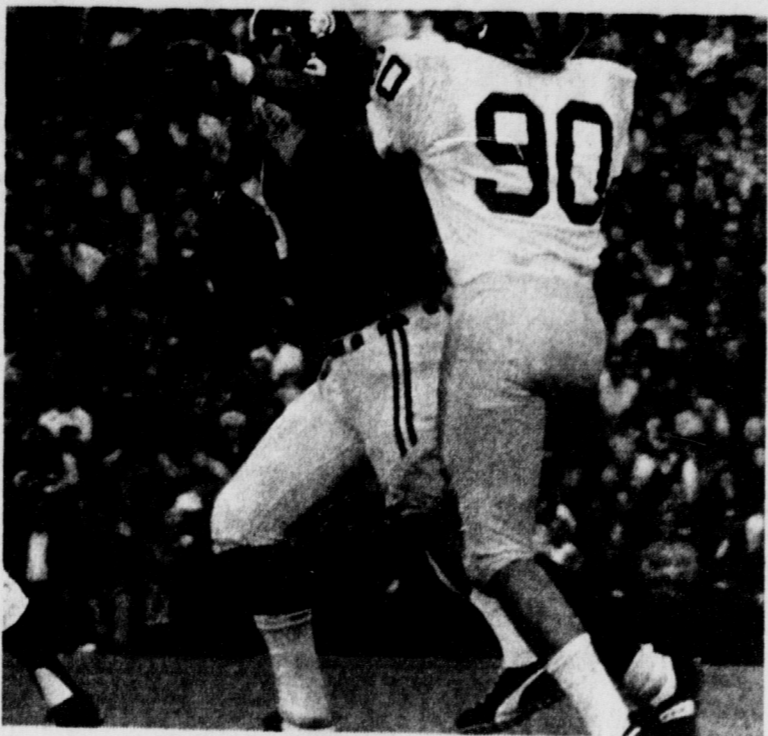

Kolch kept the Wolverines off balance with his passing efforts, completing six of nine for 129 yards and setting up both touchdowns with pass plays that set the ball on or near the Michigan one-yard line.

The Spartan defense was once again plagued by poor field position. The Kolch fumble paved the way for a 47-yard Michigan scoring march and the fumble on the ensuing kick-off by Paul Manderino allowed the Wolverines an even easier drive with 24 yards good enough for the touchdown.

"I was surprised that they moved the ball so well against our defense," Daugherty commented after the game. "It's really hard to score when you don't have the ball and we had trouble getting hold of the ball. Michigan played good ball control."

"I'd rather be in their position right now than in ours," Duffy continued. "It's going to take a great team to beat Michigan."

Turning point

One of the turning points in the fourth quarter was when Frank Kolch was thrown for a nine yard loss on a broken play. A flag was thrown, Kolch neglected to throw the ball, and the Wolverines declined the penalty.

WITHOUT KILPATRICK

Harriers blitz Buckeyes

By GARY KORRECK
State News Sports Writer

Randy Kilpatrick didn't get his second win over Ohio State Saturday but Ken Popejoy tried hardest and got his first as the MSU harriers stomped the Buckeyes 20-36.

Kilpatrick didn't run at all, in fact, as he sat out the meet with a bruised ankle. It didn't seem to bother the rest of the squad, however, as they loped to four of the first five places.

Behind Popejoy, who garnered his second straight win, was co-captain Dave Dieters, followed by Rob Cool, John Hammond of OSU, and Ron Cool of MSU.

Coach Jim Gibbard seemed more than satisfied with the squad's performance. "We ran exceptionally well for this point in the year," he said, "I was very satisfied with the split; it would have been closer with Randy in there."

The "split" referred to by Gibbard was just 36 seconds between winner Popejoy and Ron Cool, MSU's fourth man.

Almost secondary to the conclusive victory were the conditions under which the meet was run.

"It was pouring down rain," Gibbard said, "The times were very good for the condition of the course; Kenny (Popejoy) missed the course record by only 17 seconds."

Popejoy's time of 24:50 was the best collegiate time he has run over a five-mile course. Dieters, crossing the line at 25:07, also posted his best collegiate time.

Gibbard noted the finish of Ron Cool as a necessary improvement. Cool finished at 25:26, just seven seconds behind the Buckeye's Hammond, and 12 behind his brother, Ron. "He's getting the message that he's got to get up with the others," said Gibbard.

Saturday was, at last, MSU's final journey over five mile courses. This Saturday they host the six mile Spartan Invitational, which they won last season, at Forest Akers Golf Course.

Gibbard plans to run his squad over longer distances and put them through some extra hill work as preparation for this, and coming meets. "The next couple of meets will be very important," he said. After the invitational, MSU travels to Minnesota for a Big Ten warmup with Minnesota, its main challenger for the conference title.

"We're right where we want to be right now," said Gibbard. At this point last year the Spartans were 1-2. With a 3-1 mark thus far this season they should be right where they want to be November 14, in the Big Ten winner's circle.

We sincerely wish to thank you for making our first year a success.

Campaign spending suit filed

(Continued from page one) prosecution, and the attorney general hasn't done anything yet." Phillips said his attorney will be handling details of the case, and "we'll just have to wait and see what happens in court."

Bone said Sunday the suit appeared to be "basically aimed at limiting our total expenditures to $400, or so. If that's the case I couldn't even send a postcard to every registered East Lansing voter."

"Through the courts," Bone said, "Will and the others are trying to do something the legislature didn't intend."

Bone said the legislature provided for establishment of committees, individually subject to the limits, but that the number of committees or total expenditures were unlimited.

"Thus the suit apparently intends to get the court to interpret something already written into the law, against what the law already says," he said.

"Since they (Bullard, Will and others) first contacted the county prosecutor, they've made the false assumption that I'm a wealthy person and that this is all my money," Bone, an East Lansing builder and real estate developer, said.

I haven't spent one red cent on the campaign. All the money comes from contributions from my friends who would like to see me elected, he said.

Will explained Sunday that the suit is strictly aimed at gaining the defendant's compliance with existing law, although he would like to see laws enacted to provide for more equity between what candidates of different means and influence can spend.

"Older people complain that young people — they call us radicals — won't work within the system," Will charged. "But here we are, trying to work through existing law, then maybe we ought to change that law," Will said.

"But we feel they ought to at least meet the existing law that says if they're going to spend a lot of money, they must at least file it properly," Will added.

Faculty pay list released to State News by White

(Continued from page one) "It's true MSU is a constitutionally autonomous body," Stevens said, "but that doesn't erase the fact that we are a public institution. If a department head or dean can give sound and good reasons for giving one person more than another there's no reason to hide it."

"I wouldn't propose that one trustee arbitrarily act without giving others the right to express their opinions," he added.

White's intention to release the salaries was announced in the State News Thursday.

Trustee Blanche Martin, D-East Lansing, asked Cantlon how salaries became confidential.

"I plead total ignorance in this matter," he said. "I thought salaries were available to anyone who wanted to see them."

"I came here in 1954 and apparently it antedates both of us," Cantlon said.

"After taking over as provost I found that those were the ground rules — that salaries weren't published. You have to understand that 80 to 90 per cent of the current faculty hired with the understanding that their salary was their own information."

"Before we change the rules, let's hear from the faculty," Cantlon said.

White said Wednesday that the faculty is "just afraid the public is going to find out how overpaid they are."

"Most of our professors are making less than their wives who are teaching public school — and damn it, that's embarrassing," Cantlon said.

Republican trustees Kenneth Thompson of Grand Rapids and Frank Merriman of Deckerville both said they were opposed to revealing individual salary figures.

"As far as I'm concerned," Merriman said, "I'm very much opposed to publishing salaries of employees of this type. I think they deserve this privacy."

Trustee Patricia Carrigan, D-Ann Arbor, said she felt some were thinking publishing meant publicizing.

"We don't mean that we are going to paint the salaries on Grand River Ave. in green paint tonight when we adjourn," she said.

Ms. Carrigan said she was not opposed to making salaries public information, but was opposed to publicizing them.

She asked University Attorney Leland Carr if the trustees could legally deny anyone access to the salaries.

"Probably not," Carr said.

"It is clear the business of the board has to be done in open session before the public," Carr said. "The consensus of the board in the past has been to ask the press not to give that (salaries) visibility."

Carr contended that in the past when the University was building it could not have gotten people, such as those from Harvard and Princeton, to settle here if their salaries were "ventilated all over."

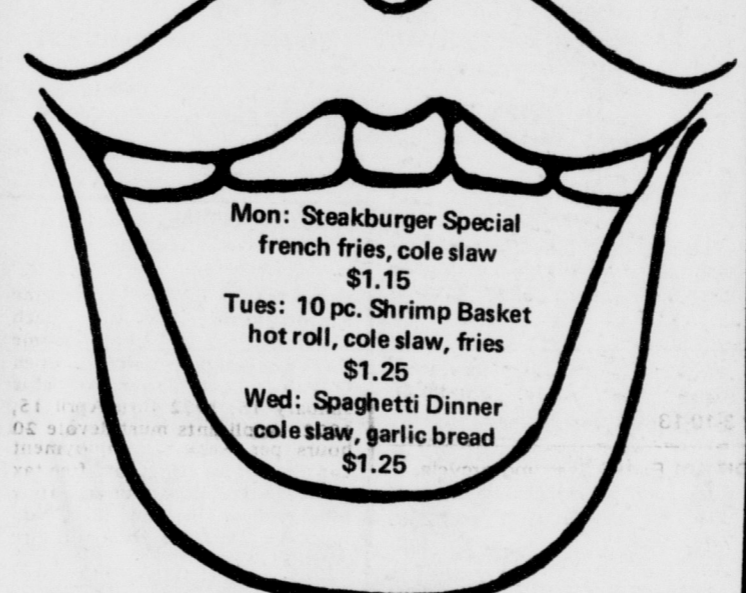

President Wharton also said that a large number of faculty would object to one or more individuals on the board making salaries public.

Chicanos

(Continued from page one) Only six of these graduate students received any financial aid from Center of Urban Affairs or Equal Opportunities, the Chicano organizations said. Some of the six have had their financial aid discontinued for this fall.

Perrin's report also calms 122 professional positions are presently held at MSU by Mexican-Americans. The Chicano report could locate only five positions filled by Chicanos at the University.

"Perrin's University answer to the oppressed and repressed Chicano community is a bureaucratic brainteaser and smacks of an administrative attempt to whitewash itself," the association said.

Board

(Continued from page one) was scrapping to provide the salary increases and called for the faculty to tighten their economic belts and to be more productive and accountable.

University administrators say the salary increase does not conflict with the wage-price freeze now in effect. They base their belief on a letter from the Cost of Living Council to the president of the University of Michigan.

The letter indicates that Michigan universities can go ahead and give the raises because they would have given the raises well in advance of the freeze if the Michigan Legislature had not been delayed in appropriating money for the 1971-72 year.

relief from the ordinary.

The Olde World is a relief from the ordinary. Superb sandwiches; fine wine and imported beers, all in a casual European atmosphere. The Olde World is located in the center of East Lansing on MAC. Look for a distinctive red and blue awning.
